WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

On his record, Congressman Richard Roudebush of Indiana, has always seemed to be a supporter of individual initiative and free enterprise.

But the other day he made an observation that might indicate that perhaps he feels this matter of business initiative may be stretched a bit.

For he reveals the formation of a new firm in Washington, D. C. doing business as "Proxy Pickets."

This firm, headquartered in the nation's capitol, has sent out advertising literature announcing its services are available for organizing, equipping, and staging demonstrations, marches, protests, walk-ins, sit-ins, and other types of protest operations.

The firm will furnish five pickets for $17 per hour, 10 for $33 per hour, and so on up to an hourly rate of $124 for 50 pickets. The company brochure also advises larger affairs can be arranged upon special arrangements.

The literature carries a return coupon for inquiries, and readers are asked "Do you have a gripe against the President, © National Federation of Independent Business the Congress, or someone else in Washington. Would you like to say thumbs down to a particular policy? For that matter thumbs up? If so, let Proxy Pickets handle everything for you."

So far, Proxy Pickets appears to be a bona fide independent enterprise.

But perhaps it is just a matter of time until the telegraph company which offers to send flowers or candies by wire, will also get into the act and it will be possible to send a demonstration to Capitol Hill or the White House by telegram. And then perhaps this will be in time followed by an offer to arrange a Washington, D.C. demonstration on one of the national credit cards.

There are also other questions arising here, aggravated by the fact that Proxy Pickets will also produce the placards, slogan and speeches required. So a not inconsiderable question is whether or not Proxy Pickets will handle competitive accounts.

In other words, they will handle at the same time, for example, an anti-Vietnam demonstration and also a pro-Vietnam demonstration. If not, then as the sole operator in this field, would they be subject to anti-trust laws. Here indeed, could be a most absorbing legal issue to the Supreme Court.

Lead A "Colorful" Life

Each Spring the earth shows its true colors again when the new crop of bright-hued flowers, bushes and trees bloom. Mother Nature's color show is only matched by the color explosion of finery found on mothers and daughters. And this year, the color explosion is more delightfully hued than ever as brighter colors grow in popularity. Color knows no limits. Everybody's wearing it - from magenta to pea green, from lemon yellow to turquoise. Get in the color swim this year by wearing your brightest outfit and a distinctive hairdo to complement it. For instance, this center-parted coiffure - heightened by a semi-chignon and flipped behind the ears to make room for the dazzling earrings. If you feel intimidated by the new color extravaganza, chances are your hair isn't switched on to the color scheme. If your hair is dull and dingy, do something about it. If it isn't highlighted, it's high time it was. Go Go Light, the new home hair lightener from Beautiful Hair Breck, can help you turn hair from mousey to marvelous. Just apply like shampoo and in 10 minutes you can have hair approximately one step lighter than the original shade. Go Go Light is perfect for the first-time user or young girl who wants to highlight her hair, because a shade predictor chart on the back of the kit tells you what shade you'll have before you begin. Discover the rainbow of color this year. You won't even want the pot of gold at the end - the more colorful you that results will be reward enough.

Free China Calling

The bodies of the 72 martyrs were buried en masse at Huang Hwa Kang (Yellow Flower Mound) on the outskirts of Canton, in south China. In 1924, the Chinese government built a tomb to honor the memory of the heroic event.

Seventy-two young Chinese revolutionaries sacrificed their lives on March 29, 1911, in an abortive uprising against the corrupt Manchu regime in China. Their martyrdom hastened the overthrow of the Manchus in the revolution led by Sun Yat-sen.

Today, the Republic of China, on Taiwan, commemorates March 29 as Youth Day. On that occasion, President Chiang Kai-shek addresses the traditional mass rally and vows to rid mainland China of communism.

Through the years, many fad diets have been used for weight reduction. They appeal to obese individuals because they are claimed to offer a quick and easy solution to a difficult problem.

Many fad diets have unusual proportions of fat, carbohydrates and protein and may be deficient in one or more nutrients. Adherence to fad diets may endanger health. Total fasting is particularly hazardous. Obesity is a complex medical problem and should be treated as such.

Obesity was recognized as an "affliction" over a hundred years ago as was the fact that weight could be lost by fairly simple means. The question of by what method an obese person should reduce, however, is a controversial one.

Why is weight reduction such a problem? One of the reasons is that food represents many things to human beings in addition to nourishment. Food habits are closely intertwined with the ethnic, religious and family culture. Most social functions involve eating; in many cases it is the predominant feature. For some, eating provides satisfaction and relief from stress which, for some people, can be obtained in no other way.

Even though it is attractive to avoid the frustration of failure when dieting, fad diets seldom help an obese person. Weight may be lost on fad diets, but the reduced weight is seldom maintained. Diets which do not permit an interesting variety of foods can cause a person to revert to his former eating habits and his former weight.

The safest way to diet is to plan with a doctor a well-balanced diet low in calories, and high in nutrition. Under such a plan and over a reasonable period of time, weight can be lost safely.

Dear Friends:

One of the weaknesses of the human race is our almost universal willingness to try discredited remedies just because we hope they will work in the future.

Surely we must have learned that we cannot and should not try to take on the obligation of maintaining every newly established government in the world. Many of the new governments simply are not worthy of our support. Many do not have the support of their own people. In many cases their people simply do not have the capacity to maintain a democratic form of government.

We got our fingers badly burned in the Congo a few years ago, and yet we are right now sending American planes into those very areas, apparently on much the same basis as that on which we went to South Vietnam. I think we should stay out of Africa. I can't see that it is our business whether Tshomee or Mobutu controls the Congo and I can't see that we are asking for anything but trouble when we try to overthrow the Smith government in Rhodesia. There are so many places where we can't avoid trouble that it seems foolish to me for us to get involved in these areas where we have no direct interest.

If we could just learn to tend to our own business and let other people handle their affairs, I think we would all be better off. I don't think that it is necessary or desirable to try to remake every country in the image of the United States, nor is it desirable for us to try to make every State the pattern laid out in Washington.

Just this week there has been considerable publicity given to charges made by the Chairman of one of our Agriculture Committee subcommittees who has criticized one of the National farm organizations for allegedly not paying adequate taxes.

Possibly all non-profit organizations, including labor unions and churches, as well as all farm organizations, should pay taxes on their income producing property, but the Agriculture Committee has no control over the tax laws. Most of our members felt that we could not judge the legality of any specific tax practice but that it was improper to condemn anyone if they were doing what the law allows.

There were many charges that the Chairman of the subcommittee had grossly abused his powers. Every member of the subcommittee signed a statement disagreeing with his procedure. This statement was filed with the full Committee. The full Committee did not attempt to make any findings, either as to the facts or to a proper tax policy, but simply passed a resolution disassociating ourselves with "any personal attacks on any person or organization."

The subcommittee Chairman has made many public statements and has appeared on many radio and TV programs. Little or nothing seems to have been accomplished but he has secured lots of publicity. I regret that these proceedings may have hurt the public opinion of agriculture at a time when agriculture needs friends.

NEW YEAR-ROUND PROGRAM TO STOP ANAPLASMOSIS

This is the season when the entire cattle industry must be on the alert for one of its most difficult disease problems— anaplasmosis. Now reported in 39 states, anaplasmosis has in a few years moved out of its traditional problem area—the southern states—onto farms and into feedlots across the nation. Modern transportation and the trend to purchase southern calves for feedlots has extended the problem to many anaplasmosis-free areas farther north. Today anaplasmosis represents a 50 million dollar total annual loss of livestock producers nationwide.

Now that summer is near, the blood sucking insects such as flies, mosquitoes, and ticks, will soon be at work transmitting the parasite from carrier animals to susceptible cattle. But even producers can pass the disease along mechanically—using castrating knives and dehorning saws.

Here are some tips for cattlemen based on successful tests in southern states where research has been conducted on the disease for many years. This information will help you to stop anaplasmosis before it strikes:

1. Be sure to sterilize all instruments used in castrating, dehorning or other work with animals.

- Control ticks, flies, and mosquitoes. Clean up mosquito breeding places, using malathion insecticide for effective control. The new Malathion low volume concentrate is now registered for use in the control of flies and mosquitoes around feedlots, holding pens, and similar areas. The low volume rate of 6 to 8 fluid ounces of insecticide makes insect control both effective and economical.
- The entire feeding program should be designed to prevent anaplasmosis. Research has shown that only feeds that contain the broad-spectrum antibiotic, Aureomycin, can prevent and even eradicate anaplasmosis. Aureomycin is absorbed and circulated throughout the bloodstream to fight the anaplasmosis organism that lives there. Feeds with Aureomycin should be fed during the warm months to prevent infection; and the antibiotic should also be used in the winter feeding program to eliminate the carrier state and reduce the source of infection.

Let's Go Boating!

EXCESS OIL HURTS ENGINE PERFORMANCE

Outboard owners are wasting oil and opening the door to erratic performance, warns Jack Ascott, service manager for Evinrude Motors.

The problem is oil-rich fuel mixtures, says Ascott. Outboard manufacturers have made tremendous strides in engineering and design in recent years. One of the benefits of this progress is the need for less oil in the fuel mixture. In most cases the requirements have been cut from 24 to 1 to 50 to 1.

However, many outboard owners are skeptics. They don't want to run the risk of serious engine damage due to improper lubrication. They continue to use the old formula and ask for unnecessary headaches.

The most frequent problem is fouled spark plugs. With the new 50 to 1 ratio, plugs should last a full season under normal operation. If you change plugs more than this, check your fuel mixture, says Ascott.

An oil-rich mixture can also result in hidden problems—gummy deposits throughout the fuel system. If left to build up, deposits will eventually restrict the proper flow of fuel and cause erratic engine performance. When this happens, you're faced with a troublesome clean-up project. The fuel tank, lines and carburetor must be flushed with an acetone or lacquer thinner solution.

Care should also be taken in the selection of lubricating oil, says Ascott. Although there are many excellent oils on the market, beware of off-brand "bargains." If you have any questions on a specific brand of oil, talk to your marine dealer.

Ascott also mentioned special oils available from outboard manufacturers. Evinrude markets its own brand, called 50 to 1. These oils were developed especially for two-cycle engines and have excellent lubricating characteristics. If you use one of these, you can't go wrong.

NAUTICAL TERMS

Every good boater should recognize and use the colorful and traditional language of the sea.
