COGITATIONS and APHORISMS of JODOK

You may be surprised to learn that I have been "hob-nobbing" with a newspaper man since my last column was written, I mean by that, with a really-to-godness newspaper publisher and editor, and that was in the person of "Hop" Graham, publisher and editor of the State Line Tribune of Farwell, Texas.

Of course, you understand, I "hob-nob" more or less, all the time with the Star man, just the same as does John Chronister and the Mayor and Sheridan Mitchell, et al, et al, et al, but that does not count in this message, for that is but ordinary; but "Hop" is not only the editor and publisher, but also is president of the Panhandle Press Association, and as such, is stirring up some mighty interesting plans for the next meeting of the Association as well as some things for the comfort and pleasure of the tired editors and other members of the newspaper world, that shall endure indefinitely through coming generations, yet unborn.

Well, it all came about this way. The Star force always gets the paper off the press and ready for the mail each Thursday afternoon, sometime between 4 p. m. and midnight, and as there was not much going on out on the street corner last Thursday night, I meandered around to the Star office and found the force busy, hammering away at the job, and so stepped in to watch the operation, and I had not been there but a little while, when who should step in but Hop. He was just on his way home from Canyon and Hereford, where he had been interviewing Clyde Warwick, at Canyon, as Secretary and Vice-president, Mrs. Holman, at Hereford, relative to his new plan which I shall get to presently.

When Hop stepped in at the Star office the old Mentges folder was busy at work folding the papers, and Hop rather intimated that he would like to try his hand again at feeding the folder, as it had been a long time since he had done the trick. He stated just how many hundred years it had been, but the old machine was making so much noise snapping at the papers, that I did not catch the exact number; but anyway, Hop proved his skill that he was a veteran at the work, and soon had the job done.

Now, just a few more words of diversion, and I will get back to the rest of what I am planning to say—any of you have never seen an old mentges folder at work, it will be worth your while to step into the Star office some Thursday afternoon not earlier than four o'clock nor later than midnight, for then it would be Friday morning—and watch this relic of antiquity in operation. It is quite interesting the way it does work.

But, to get back to my story—It appears that all the publishers and editors and all others in any way connected with the newspaper business in the Panhandle (except the editor of the "Star"), have money enough and time enough that they take off two or three weeks during the hot summer days for what they call a vacation, and go out into the mountains or some other cool and quiet place where they can have a good rest, filled with interesting and light diversions, such as hunting, fishing and "snoozing"—and was about to say something else, but it rhymes with "snoozing", but, perhaps, should not be included, or they can lie down in the shade of a tree and "spread out like moles and just rest and not work at anything else," and get themselves re-energized with vitality and be ready for their year's grueling work at the Star's desk.

Mr. Graham had but recently returned from his vacation in the mountains of New Mexico, and the first thing he told me about, which is entirely original with him, is to select an attractive and actually suitable place over among those same mountains to be donated by its owner, or leased by the members of the Association, where a suitable building may be erected, with all the necessary, though NOT modern conveniences for cooking, eating, sleeping and warming and commodious enough to accommodate at one time four, six or more families, should any appoint to take their vacation at the same time.

There would be plenty of cold spring water for domestic and wood for fuel, with one or

Over 80 Cars Wheat Shipped Making Fair Yield And Test

FIVE TO EIGHTEEN BU. PER ACRE

The wheat harvest locally is now under full blast and moving onward uninterrupted by rain or other weather conditions, and it is supposed that every farmer who has his own combine is either through harvesting or well on the way to a finish, and those who do not own a machine, are either having some neighbor do their work for them or getting very impatient for one to become ready to harvest for them.

Wheat trucks are keeping the highways warm with their constant coming and going between the fields and the elevators, and this coming and going is almost continuous for the entire twenty-four hours of each day, Sundays not excepted.

Since the moisture produced by the rain two weeks ago has evaporated sufficient to allow the machinery to work, there has been very little to interfere with the progress of the harvest.

At this writing, Wednesday afternoon, there has been a total of 80 cars of this season's wheat shipped out of Friona, with a prospect of, at least, that many more before the harvest season closes.

Most of the wheat coming in has made a good test and is of excellent quality, and the price has ranged from 63 cents at the beginning to as low as 56 cents at this writing, which price is for No. 1 wheat.

The yield has been reported from some fields as high as 18 to 20 bushels per acre, while other fields have averaged as low as five bushels per acre, and even lower in some instances. One man reported that he received $180.00 from 320 acres of wheat. He believed his low yield was caused chiefly by the green wheat bug, and, of course, weather conditions probably played a part in his low yield.

Other farmers who had a promising prospect a few weeks ago, have lost, some as much as 100 per cent, from hail damage, while others have lost from 20 to 50 per cent from hail.

Estimates as to the total yield for this territory vary greatly, estimating the total yield for the season to be much larger than it was last year, while others claim it will be much less, but this cannot be determined until the entire crop has been harvested.

Notwithstanding the fact that the government has been planning to reduce the wheat acreage all over the country, it is reported that locally the acreage is much larger this season than it has been for the past three or four years. The Star is in a position to know the true facts, in the case regarding the acreage, but has gathered this information from various ones who claim to be acquainted with the facts.

Basing an opinion on reports or statements from farmers from the different parts of the trade territory, it would seem that fully as large, and perhaps, a larger acreage will be planted to wheat this season than was planted last year.

FORMER RESIDENT HERE

Mr. and Mrs. Wright Williams arrived here last Friday evening from Pampa, for a few days visit with Friona friends. Mr. Williams was formerly manager of the Friona Consumers Company and the Friona Wheat Growers.

COME! STAY! SEE!

A religious picture to be shown at the League Service for all young people at the Friona Methodist Church Sunday night, July 10th, at 8:00 o'clock.

Everyone is cordially invited to attend. Be there. We will expect you.

President.

Judge J. C. Temple, of Farwell, was a business visitor here Tuesday forenoon and while here paid the Star office a short but appreciated visit.

Baseball News

DIAMOND SPARKLES By Ed White

Friona Bees won over Lariat nine by a score of 9 to 6 at Lariat. Schmitz pitched a fine five-hit game and Lariat had only one earned run. The rest were due to the many errors.

Schmitz also did some fine hitting making a two-base hit and 2 singles out of five times at bat. Coffman, beat out two infield hits and got a two-base hit out of four times up. Lee did a fine job of catching, and also got two hits. Price Brookfield also got a two-base hit.

Lariat will come here for a return game, which promises to be a fine game, at Whiteway Park this Sunday. Come one and all. It is a free game. See a fine bunch of nice ball players, that are sports and always hustling.

CALIFORNIA PEOPLE HERE

Mr. and Mrs. Elwin Gischler and Reuben Gischler, of Santiago, California, arrived in Friona last Friday afternoon, for a few weeks visit with relatives and former neighbors.

The Messrs. Elwin and Reuben are the sons of the late John Gischler, who was one of the pioneer business men of Friona, and they are brothers of Mmes. Carl Maurer and George Treider.

Elwin was married in California, and this is Mrs. Gischler's first visit to the Panhandle, and Elwin has been away for two years. Their many friends here are pleased to have them with them again.

NEW HIGHWAY NOW OPEN TO TRAFFIC

The new highway 33-60 which has been under process of construction since about the first of the year, has been opened for traffic across the entire portion of Parmer County, covered by it.

The opening was made on Monday the Fourth of July, when the last bit of black-top and gravel was laid and made ready for traffic, and as a result Parmer County now has another stretch of hard road, as good and as nice as any to be found in the state, with some of the most beautiful curves and bridges, each drawn across by it being spanned by pretty and substantial concrete bridges.

The completion of this gap makes a complete line of paved road on Federal Highway 60 entirely across our state, and with the exception of a few short gaps yet unpaved in some of the other states crossed by it, there is a complete paved highway from the Atlantic to the Pacific ocean.

The people of Parmer County have a right to be proud of this splendid stretch of paved highway, and it is predicted that it will soon become one of the most used trans-continental highways in the land for tourist travel.

PLANS PROGRESSING FOR METHODIST BUILDING

The committee elected to have charge of building the Methodist church basement has been organized with J. L. Shaffer as chairman and B. T. Galloway as secretary-treasurer. The committee is meeting weekly to work out their plans. The blueprints are in the hands of an architect for the purpose of making minor changes.

Enthusiasm for the project is so keen that donations are being volunteered by people both in and outside of the membership of the church. This is a great help as the committee has had little time so far to solicit financial help.

Actual work will begin on the building just as soon as plans concerning blueprints, materials and labor can be completed.

Miss Mildred Hughes, who has a position with a bank at Coolidge, Arizona, arrived here Monday for a two-week vacation visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hughes and other relatives and friends.

WEDDINGS

PARTRIDGE-DOLLAR WEDDING

A letter received at the Star office this week, bears the announcement of the wedding of Miss Florence Partridge of Mountville, Georgia, to Rev. C. Carl Dollar, pastor of the Congregational church of Friona.

The wedding occurred at 3:30 o'clock p. m., on Tuesday, June 28, at the home of the groom's father, Rev. J. D. Dollar, at Shawmut, Alabama, who pronounced the rites that made them man and wife.

The rites were spoken in the presence of a group of friends and relatives.

The letter further stated that Rev. and Mrs. Dollar are spending a few days visiting friends and relatives in Alabama and Georgia and will be in Friona about Friday July 8th, after seeing some of the sights in Mississippi, Louisiana and East Texas.

The bride in this wedding received her education at the University of Georgia and Duke's University. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Partridge, of Mountville, Georgia, and has been teaching in the Georgia public schools.

Many lovely and useful gifts were received in a pre-nuptial shower. During the few months that Rev. Dollar has been in Friona he has formed a large list of good friends, not only within the congregation he serves but among the people of all other churches of the city and community, all of whom will be pleased to welcome him back to Friona with his bride.

The Star joins this large number of other friends in wishing for Rev. Dollar and his bride a long and useful wedded life with all the attendant happiness and blessings this life can afford.

HEATH-HUDNALL WEDDING

One of the nicest social affairs of the season was the quiet home wedding of Miss Lois Faye Heath to Harvey Lee Hudnall, both of the Lazzbuddy community.

The wedding rites were spoken by Rev. H. B. Naylor, pastor of the Lazzbuddy Baptist church at the home of the bride, at nine o'clock Sunday morning, July 3rd, in the presence of immediate family members of the contracting parties.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Heath, of the Lazzbuddy community, and is one of the community's most popular young ladies.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Hudnall, of the same community, and is identified with the farming interest of the community and one of its most highly esteemed and progressive young men. They will make their home on the groom's farm in the Lazzbuddy community.

The Star joins the many friends of these two fine young people in wishing for them a long and happy life.

VISITED AT LUBBOCK SUNDAY

Last Sunday Misses Orma White and Alice Guyer drove over to Lubbock and spent the day as guests of Misses Lora Mae McFarland and Floy Gbodwine, who are attending Texas Tech college there.

On the trip over there they were accompanied by Misses Geraldine McFarland and Lois Sheehan, who are also students in the Lubbock college and who had come home to spend the weekend here with their folks.

OFF TO DETROIT

Misses Mary Reeve and Gladys Settle departed last Thursday for Detroit, Michigan, and other points in the Central States.

They took the train from here to Pampa, where Miss Reeve has been teaching school for the past three terms, and there they join some of her friends who were driving through in their car.

They will stop in Indiana, where they will visit friends and relatives of Miss Reeve, before coming on to Detroit, where she will invest in a new Chevrolet car, which she had ordered through the Ross Chevrolet of this city, and in which they will return to Friona after about two or three weeks of visiting and sight-seeing.

POLITICAL RALLY HUGE AFFAIR

Reports of such wide interest in the County-wide Political Rally have come to the women of the Friona Methodist Church that they have decided to hold the event at the local lighted football field and to use a public address system that the large crowd may be accommodated. The date is July 21st, 8:30 p. m.

There will be many candidates here from both in and out of the county, and everyone of these will be given time to speak according to the office sought, the candidates for state positions being given the most time. Time allotments will be strictly adhered to that we may be fair to all and that the crowd may not be kept unduly late.

It is very important that speakers who desire to represent candidates who cannot be here make application for this privilege not later than Saturday, July 16th, to the committee, addressing all communications to the undersigned.

Every effort is being made to be fair to all candidates and to the public by wide publicity and careful planning. If some candidates are present whose opponents are absent, it cannot be the fault of the sponsoring organization.

For the pie supper part, the Methodist women are inviting all girls and women in and out of the community to bring pies who care to do so. There will be lots of pies on hand to be auctioned, and all the proceeds will go toward the erection of the proposed Methodist Church basement.

C. R. HARDY, Friona, Texas.

FRIONA GIRLS TO SCOUT CAMP

Mrs. J. C. Wilkinson drove to Amarillo Sunday afternoon and took with her a group of girls of the local Girl Scout Troop, who will enjoy a two weeks outing at the Girl Scout Camp fifteen miles northwest of that city.

The local Scouts who will enjoy this outing are: Jacquelyn Wilkinson, Janeann Warren, Frances Buchanan, June and Shirley Maurer, and Mary Beth Jowning.

These girls have won this splendid recreation through their diligence and earnest effort in completing the work of organization required of them and their ability in executing this work.

Miss Mary Beth Jowning, whose home is at Truscott, is what is known as a "lone star" scout, owing to the fact that there is no organization in her home town, and she learns the work and writes it and sends it to her grandmother, Mrs. J. E. Stover, who is Scout Master for the Friona troop.

The little lady was highly delighted on her arrival here with her parents Sunday, to learn that she was eligible for this choice honor, and to be able to accompany the other girls from here on this outing.

Most of the girls of the Friona troop have made unusual progress in this line of work under the able leadership of the Friona ladies, who have the work in charge, and are worthy of compliment for their efforts, and are fully worthy of the reward they are receiving.

A Minute With CHARLEY DEE

JEFFERSON AND F. D. R.

Recently I read an editorial calling attention to the way political sentiment has shifted in this country at times, the shift usually being caused by changed economic conditions. The last shift referred to in that article was that of the Democratic party from its more than a century-old opposition to a strong centralized government into the creation of the most greatly centralized government in the peace-time history of this country.

It may be interesting to investigate this revolutionary change a bit, and see if it is as radical and inconsistent as it seems to be.

Thomas Jefferson, upon whose principles the Democratic Party was founded, lived in a day when governments were oppressive and the common man lacked protection from their tyranny. He had seen his own country suffer from the attempted enforcement of laws by a government that was about the least oppressive of any government of its time. In the Declaration of Independence he penned the most scathing indictment of an oppressive government that was ever written. His soul burned with a passion for freedom and for the rights of the common man. His political philosophy recognized that tyrannical governments were the greatest hindrance to the exercise of fundamental human rights, and therefore, he dedicated his efforts to the restriction of such governmental powers as might be used for the oppression of the people. The fundamental basis for Jefferson's political philosophy was the protection of the welfare of the individual citizens.

For a hundred and fifty years this country has existed under a form of government which has its powers restricted under a constitution with its guarantees of individual liberty contained in the Bill of Rights, contained in the first group of amendments added to the original constitution. In this century and a half it has been found that a democracy with limited powers can operate successfully and that fears of governmental oppression under such a government as groundless. Americans sympathize with the helpless citizens of the totalitarian states, but they fear no such oppression from the government Jefferson did so much to shape and form so that it would be the protector of individual rights.

With all his foresightedness Jefferson could not envisage conditions that exist today. He made provisions against governmental tyranny, but he did not provide against economic tyranny. He did not anticipate an industrial system where vast wealth would exist side by side with poverty and starvation. He could not anticipate production abundant enough to supply the needs of the people and yet many starving because they could not buy these abundant products. He could not envisage millions of jobless having to watch their loved ones suffer while hundreds of thousands were living in wealth and luxury unknown in the early days of this country.

Is there any consistency or any fundamental difference in the fight that Jefferson waged for the rights and welfare of the common man of his day, and the fight that Franklin D. Roosevelt is making for the rights and welfare of the common man in his day?

REMEMBER PIE SUPPER AND RALLY

The public is hereby reminded of the announced pie supper and political rally to be held at the school auditorium on the night of Thursday, July 21st, under the auspices of the ladies of the Methodist church.

This was announced several weeks ago, and, lest we forget, the Star is calling it again to the mind of the public.

On this occasion each of the county candidates will be given, perhaps the last opportunity before the primary election to present their claims for the suffrage of the people, and at least one out-of-town speaker will be present. Plenty of pies and fun for everyone.

MOTION PICTURES FOR LEAGUE PROGRAM

The Young People of the Methodist church will feature a moving picture on their League program next Sunday evening at 7:45 o'clock. The picture will include a trip through the Mediterranean Sea and the Holy Land. It will be of interest to all and they invite everyone, especially young people, to come and enjoy the program.

The courier spoke timidly. "Excellency," he murmured deprecatingly, unfortunately, I must be on my way, not being on a pleasure trip, like yourself, and . . . and there is a letter in there that I have on my conscience. I should have asked you about it before I left the presidio. It does not bear your frank."

The Governor looked startled. "So? And who has sent a letter out without my frank?"

"Her Excellency, La Senora La Gobernadora, Dona Eulalia."

"Ah! Let me have it, and I will attend to it."

The courier took the paper from among the rest and handed it to the Governor. It was addressed to the Viceroy of Mexico. The Governor shook his head and rubbed his eyes. The men watched him in amazement as he tore the letter open and read it.

"A woman's tongue is only three inches long, but it can kill a man of six feet! You," he said to the trembling courier, "get on your way at once. I will keep this letter. And the rest of us will return at once to the presidio."

At the exclamation of disappointment from his escort he laughed loudly.

"But we will stay only a short while, and before this sun has set we will be on our way again. Our pasear is interrupted, companeros, not abandoned!"

A little while later the presidio gates were again thrown open, and to the surprise of everyone, the Governor's party swept into the parade-ground in a cloud of dust and a clatter of hoofs.

From her window La Gobernadora watched El Gobernador ride madly toward the palace, and before she could control the sudden trembling that seized her, he strode into the room.

Behind him came two soldiers, who had followed from the gate.

"Senora," thundered the Governor, "I have come to place you under arrest." He motioned to the two soldiers, who stepped smartly forward and took their places one at each side of Eulalia. Their eyes goggled with amazement, but they clanked the butts of their muskets smartly on the floor, and stood at attention.

"What is the meaning of this," inquired Eulalia, "is it a drunken prank? For what am I to be placed under arrest?"

"It is no drunken prank. Woman, you are under arrest for treason. I have here"—and he slapped Eulalia's letter to the Viceroy on to the table—"I have here a document written by you containing treasonable utterances against the Governor of the Californias. And any treason against the Governor of the Californias is treason against his Most Catholic Majesty the King of Spain. Therefore I put you under arrest."

Eulalia grew white around the lips, and her voice shook.

"T-t-treason!" she stammered.

"Yes; you have said here that the Governor of California has been going slowly but surely insane for the past three years. That all his acts are the acts of a madman, a maniac. That his governance here has been a long period of misrule. That he fails to co-operate with the priests in their religious work. That everyone is afraid of him, and dare not report his madness to the Viceroy. That he has repeatedly threatened your life, and the lives of others, and that he neglects his duties to consort with Indian women. Is that true?"

"Every word of it!"

"I mean it is true that you have written this?"

"Yes, I wrote it."

"Very well, then. I arrest you in the name of the King of Spain."

Eulalia wavered.

"But—but—you can not do that! What—what are you going to do with me?"

"You are to be incarcerated in the monjera, the quarters of the Indian women at Mission Carmelo until I return from my trip. Then I will consider your case."

"In the monjera! You can not do this to me! I will not go! You dare not degrade me, disgrace me this way, before the whole community! I will not go!"

"You do not hesitate to degrade and disgrace me before all California, Mexico and Spain, Senora. You shall go to the monjera, and at once. Prepare yourself."

"No! No! I will die first . . . Angustias!"

Angustias was cowering in a corner, watching the scene in terror. At the doors and windows frightened servants listened and looked.

"There is no use calling Angustias. I am through being ruled by women. Angustias will remain here with my children, and you shall go. At once, I said!" he thundered so suddenly that Eulalia jumped. "And if you hesitate any longer you shall go without any preparation. The matron at the monjera will give you a robe such as the Indian girls wear. Well, are you not going to get ready?"

"I am not. I am not going. Please, Pedro, do not do this to me, please. I am sorry . . . I wrote because I am so unhappy . . . it seemed the only way. Please, my darling, adored husband. Please, oh, please do not do this to me!" Whimpering like a child she threw herself at his feet before the scandalized eyes of the watching soldiers and servants. Angustias moved toward her, but the Governor motioned her back. His face was stern and drawn.

"Get up, woman! What a scene to make before these people! A woman's tears and a dog's limping are not real. Will you go now or shall I be forced to make you?"

Still she knelt on the floor.

"No! No! I will not go . . . you can not make me! Oh, Pedro! Oh, Mother of God! Oh, help me!"

The Governor clutched his beard with one hand and gritted his teeth.

"Pick her up," he ordered the soldiers, "tie her hands, and put her on a horse. Take her to the fathers at Carmel and tell them it is my orders she stay in the monjera until I return. Under no circumstances is she to leave before then. And if she misbehaves, she is to be beaten."

And at the missions he visited long with the padres; ate their good food, drank their good wine; admired their fat herds and sleek horses. Then passed on to the next mission. Passed through much rich country, or wild land alive with herds of antelope and elk, bear and mountain lions. He killed the giant bear he had promised himself, and carried most of it to the Mission San Gabriel Arcangel. There he rested for many days in the shade of the carefully tended trees, with the music of a little stream in his ears. And there he visited with some old, old friends who had traveled with him on the expedition.

"I am retiring," said one old comrade, Don Epifanio Sanchez, long sergeant of the guard at the Mission San Gabriel. "I am retiring," he repeated as Don Pedro sipped absently at his wine.

"From what . . . ?" questioned the Governor.

"From the King's Army. The King has granted me many varas of land. And I am choosing it well. There are springs on it, and meadow land for grazing, and land to raise corn and grapes. And I have already chosen the knoll on which I will build my house." He stretched his legs luxuriously before him and sighed with pleasurable anticipation. "Ah, and what a life that will be!"

"But your wife?" asked Don Pedro. "Will she consent to come here and live with you?"

"Had you not heard? My poor wife, God rest her soul, died last year in Mexico City. She would never join me here. And I could not leave here. You understand? Life was lonely for her, I suppose. We had no children . . . and so . . ."

"He shrugged his shoulders. "God took her home. You are most fortunate, Don Pedro, in having Dona Eulalia with you. Most fortunate!"

"Yes," muttered Fages. "And what will you do with this great rancho and house you are going to build? Will you live alone? What will you do without wife or children?"

Don Epifanio stirred uneasily.

"Pues, comrade, you know how it is. I have already chosen me a wife. Just an Indian girl. That is, part Indian. Her father was a Spanish soldier, though God only knows who he was. But she is beautiful and very young, and has been well educated here at Mission San Gabriel. She can cook, and sew. She can even play the guitar! And she is young. Oh, yes, very young. Fifteen. But look you, I am barely fifty! So I will have many years ahead of me, and God willing, many children." He laughed. "Who knows but we will start a new race in this new land?"

Don Pedro was very quiet as the other dreamed of his future happiness over his wine-glass.

"Yes," mused the Governor to himself. "You will have a happy life. An ideal life. Ah, yes . . ."

The other broke into his musings.

"I Am Retiring," Said One Old Compadre.

live-oaks, sycamores, water alders, willows and all manner of trees and shrubs, as he sniffed the wild roses and drank from the clear springs; as he gazed at the mighty mountains or at the rolling restless surf of the Pacific he laughed.

"My life for California!" he said. "By God, she is worth it, the jade!"

Each morning that found them on the road he carefully stamped out the remains of the camp-fire, often on a spot where he had built fires many times before. And as he did this he wondered. Out of these ashes, on one of these little mounds, would a city rise some day? He sighed at the thought, but indulged in prophetic retrospection.

And at the missions he visited long with the padres; ate their good food, drank their good wine; admired their fat herds and sleek horses. Then passed on to the next mission. Passed through much rich country, or wild land alive with herds of antelope and elk, bear and mountain lions. Don Pedro was very quiet as the other dreamed of his future happiness over his wine-glass.

"Yes," mused the Governor to himself. "You will have a happy life. An ideal life. Ah, yes . . ."

The other broke into his musings.

"Why do you not retire, Don Pedro? You have given the best years of your life to your King and this country. The King would be more than willing to award you a great slice of this land that you have governed so long. Why not do it? Let someone else be governor, and have all the worries and anxieties, while you retire and establish a grand hacienda, enjoy your wife and children, and let the Indians do the work?"

Don Pedro was quiet a long time, idly twirling his beaker, and watching the ruddy juice washing in little waves against the glass. All unconsciously his old friend, in relating his own hopes, had laid bare the deepest desires of the Governor's heart.

A great estate of his own! He could see himself riding over the land; could see the sleek herds, the spirited horses he would raise; could see the fields of corn and grain, squashes, beans and chiles; he wandered through his own orchards and vineyards. Ah, Dios, that was what he wanted! A great house where he could entertain a hundred guests, and where a hundred servants would do his bidding; where there would be music and flowers and hospitality . . . and at the end a host of strong sons to speed his departure into that dark uncertain land . . . But the vision did not hold Eulalia.

With a bitter laugh he gulped his wine.

"Before God, Don Epifanio, you are sent by Satan to tempt me! That may be your life, but it can never be mine."

"I am sorry, my friend. For there are many of us who campaigned with you who are going to do this very thing of which I have spoken. In fact, many have sent for their wives and families to come from Mexico, and, as I said before, those of us who have not wives will find them here. Yes, we will found a new civilization, I think, in this strange new land, and you should be one of the founders."

The Governor left San Gabriel, visited the troublous little village of Los Angeles, and left there shaking his head over the laziness and immorality of its inhabitants. South, then, to the Mission San Juan Capistrano, and at last to the Presidio and Mission of San Diego, the cradle of California. Then he turned north again, to return to Monterey, more restless, more unhappy, more disturbed in mind than when he had started on his journey. He had not left his anxieties behind. They had traveled with him. And to them was added the nagging certainty that he was at a crisis in his life. He could not continue living as he had been. He and Eulalia were killing each other.

He must resign as governor of the Californias.

And after that, what?

One of two things. Remain in the province as an hacendado, and fulfill his dearest dreams, regardless of Eulalia. Or return to Mexico, perhaps to Spain.

He groaned in spirit, and worried his grizzled beard as he considered that possibility.

The soft breath of California kissed his cheek as he rode north. The very brambles and wild roses reached out and clutched him with clinging fingers; and when he lay down at night the warm earth seemed to cradle him in loving arms that would not let him go.

When at last he rode through the gates of the Royal Presidio Monterey two months after he had swept through them, he had made a decision.

He would not leave California.

Farm Life Has No Appeal to Peasants of France; Children Prefer City Life

People leave farms in France largely for the same reasons as everywhere else. Ever since the foundation of the Third Republic (nominally 1870) peasant children have been getting education, though the number of illiterates as shown by the army conscript examinations is surprisingly high. With education, the ambition of the average peasant has been to make his son a gentleman (a monsieur), which means generally to get him a white-collar job. His daughter likewise prefers to marry off to a city desk worker rather than to a young farmer, observes a writer in the Chicago Tribune.

By a process which has gone on in other languages, even the word peasant has fallen into bad repute. It is now never used in the news reports of the Paris press. When a word must be used, a peasant is called a cultivator. The word fermier (farmer) has never been used extensively, and not often would it be an accurate translation of our word farmer.

Even if he cannot get a coveted job with the government, the young peasant usually prefers to come to the city and take a chance. He may get on the chain in an automobile factory or punch tickets in a subway station.

The average French farm has not been improved as the American one has within the last generation. The radio is rare; automobiles are even rarer. The standard of living is undoubtedly higher than before the war, and currents of life now flow freely through the French countryside, but the peasant still thinks of his life as a dull one.

Mud, a Strange Export

One of Czechoslovakia's strangest exports is mud. The mud is of a very special quality, for it is that of Piestany and other famous spas and contains radium, silica, iron, calcium and other healing minerals. There, at Piestany, the mud, known as "fango," can be dried and made into cubes and poultices, without loss of its health-giving qualities. So dehydrated, it is exported all over the world for the treatment of rheumatism, gout, sciatica and other ailments. The greatest springs for the cures at Piestany rise on the bathing island in the River Vah. These wells up through fissures in the rock strata, the water having a temperature of about 140 degrees.

- By Virginia Vale—

TIMES certainly have changed. Miss Vera Dickens of Lynchburg, Va., was May Queen at Randolph-Macon college, and as a result pictures of her appeared in the news reels.

Whereupon Metro offered her a screen test, and possibly a contract. But she wasn't at all sure that she'd accept; said that she wasn't particularly interested in a movie career.

At Universal they're sort of out on a limb. When they sold the "Madame Curie" story rights to Metro, they made a deal which gave them the services of Robert Montgomery, James Stewart and Robert Young, when they had the right stories for these three young men. And time passes, and they don't seem to have yet found the right stories.

Maybe you think it's summer, but the football season is already under way in Hollywood. Paramount is filming its yearly football picture, "Touchdown, Army," with practically the same cast that last year did "Hold 'Em, Navy." Taking one college a year, they can keep going forever at that rate.

Paulette Goddard is taking her career seriously at the moment. She plans to go to the Cape Playhouse, on Cape Cod, in time to appear in "French Without Tears," and it's said that Charlie Chaplin will coach her. And, of course, if the plan should be a great success and be done in New York, with her still in the cast, she wouldn't be at all annoyed.

Virginia Payne, the star of the popular radio serial, "Ma Perkins," has all plans made for her vacation. She wants to go to Alaska and she wants Mrs. Patia Power, Tyrone Power's mother, to go with her. Mrs. Power has agreed to go. The only difficulty is that Miss Payne, after elaborately making plans, may have to stay home. She's not like those lucky radio stars who write their own material, and can just write themselves out of a sketch for a few weeks when they want to go away.

Ginger Rogers' mother has stepped out. She was a newspaper woman way back in the Texas days when Ginger was just a youngster who did the Charleston awfully well. She has always stood behind her talented daughter, helping her along and encouraging her. Now, she feels that it's time for her to make a life for herself.

Mrs. Lila Rogers

Ginger doesn't need her now, she says. So she packed up and went to New York, with a play, "Funny Man," that needed a producer. She also, though that wasn't generally known, was on a hunt for new talent for the screen.

There are a lot of radio stars who believe that it's the second profession that you follow, not the first one, that brings success.

Jack Benny began as a violinist. Burns and Allen were tap dancers. Lum and Abner were blackface comedians before they adopted the characters of rural storekeepers. Phil Baker was a musician, and Fred Allen was a juggler way back in the beginning.

ODDS AND ENDS—Jean Arthur has been shopping for a collar for a cat, and then having to explain to the salespeople that she really wants it for a baby lynx—the "Wild Bill Hickok" company brought the lynx back from Utah, and Jean wants to keep it for a pet . . . Lionel Barrymore spends his spare time in the studio designing a yacht compass . . . And James Stewart has a 16 mm. movie camera, with which he's been snapping everybody in "You Can't Take It With You" . . . John Ford is breaking in a new meerschaum pipe, the gift of Edward Robinson.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK—As a token of good will, President Kemal Ataturk of Turkey sends his bomb-tossing adopted daughter on a flight over Greece and the Balkans. She holds a diamond medal for bombing Kurds, having outscored veteran male fliers in a recent work-out.

When the timid and demure Turkish women started coming out from the harem, they kept right on going. They seem to be out-distancing our girls who are merely coming out of the kitchen.

Turkey's "Flying Amazon" is Sabiha Gueckchen, twenty-four-year-old daughter of a Turkish army captain who was killed fighting Greeks in 1921. She is a pretty little thing.

An admiring woman correspondent described her as "shy and demure," with quick recourse to her "modish little vanity case," as she climbed from her plane after a hard day's bombing. That was in the Der-sim area, in eastern Anatolia, in which she had been blasting the Kurds out of their caves.

She is a first lieutenant in the Turkish army, the only woman air force officer in the world.

Her French flying instructor says she is the most gifted woman acrobatic pilot in the world. She was trained in flying and gliding in Russia and later was a cadet in the Turkish army air force school. She rides a single-seated military plane, handles all types of planes and is especially accurate and skillful in bombing.

It is said no aviator in Turkey can match her in diving and stunting, but she shrinks modestly from all such, possibly unfeminine, exhibitionism, and sticks to her humdrum bombing tasks.

HERE is another diverting little news note, in sharp contrast, however, on the emergence of the modern woman. At her home in New York, Mrs. Lewis Stuyvesant Chanler presents prizes of $750 to the winners of the annual "Intellectual Olympics," conducted by her new history society.

Happily the flying bomb put is not included in her deathroll. She has been for many years a diligent and earnest advocate of peace and brotherhood, working through the international Bahai movement, of which she has long been a leader. She derives from the Blue Book and has turned from society to religious and humanitarian concerns.

Her husband, now retired, is a great-grandson of John Jacob Astor, and a former lieutenant governor of New York. He is a big, gray, silent man, walking a small white poodle dog, rarely seen at his wife's salon, but a loyal partner in her endeavors. He is the brother of the late Bob and John Chanler.

The flaming-haired Valeska Suratt was an instrument of fate in the life of Mrs. Chanler. They were jointly engaged in a Hollywood script enterprise when Miss Suratt introduced her to Mirza Ahmed Sahrab, descendant of Mohammed and a disciple of the Abdul Baha. He was her tutor in the esoteric faith whose followers, like those of the Oxford movement, fervently believe the world can be saved only by a religious and cultural internationalism.

DOWN in Peru, this writer knew some dilatory natives who frequently used a word which meant, "not tomorrow, but day after tomorrow and maybe not then."

Dick Gets Degree 20 Years Late

From an ancient parchment, Trinity college dons lift the reverse expression—"nunc pro tunc," which means "now instead of then." With this high academic sanction, they are enabled to deal a bachelor's degree to Richard Barthelmess, who failed to touch second when he was there 20 years ago.

Baseball moguls could now say "nunc pro tunc" and hand Fred Merkle that run he didn't get in 1908. If the custom gets going, it might open the way for some European debt payments.

Mr. Barthelmess is one of the thinning line of the stars of the old silent screen who remain in the public consciousness. His mother was Caroline Harris, an actress of the Biograph days. She gave Nazimova English lessons and in return Nazimova gave her his professional start in "War Brides." "Broken Blossoms," with Dorothy Gish, was his last big success.

After 20 years ... CZECHOSLOVAKIA

Exactly 20 years ago little Czechoslovakia emerged from ruins of the Austro-Hungarian empire. Today, on her birthday anniversary, is she being swallowed by Germany? Since Hitler's Austrian coup more than half the Czech frontier teems with Nazi activity. Along this frontier live Sudeten Germans, pro-Nazi, who seek autonomy and eventual annexation by Germany. The Sudetens have just grievances because their trade was stifled when they were joined to Czechoslovakia by the treaty of St. Germaine in 1919. But they are making mountains of molehills.

HOW TO WRECK A VILLAGE

PIE-A-POT and Long Lodge, Cree chieftains, audacious warriors and veterans of many a scrap with other tribes, ruled their villages with an iron hand. They were happy, prosperous and had very little trouble. Shortly after the coming of the "red coated pony soldiers of the Great White Mother," the Pie-a-Pot and Long Lodge tribes of Crees had been given a splendid reservation with timber and game and fish in abundance. There they had settled down peacefully.

And then one day, to the astonishment of all concerned, Pie-a-Pot and Long Lodge ordered their tribesmen to pull stakes, for the two tribes were going for a ramble across the country without having any particular destination in view. The handful of white settlers became a bit alarmed, but their alarm subsided when they observed the Pie-a-Pots and Long Lodges were orderly.

In time the Pie-a-Pots and Long Lodges came across a large party of white men digging up the ground and also laying thin strips of iron or steel across the flat prairie. "What is all this?" inquired the majestic Pie-a-Pot. "Oh, we are just building a railroad," replied one of the workmen. The Crees moved on into the west and when they were about a mile or so past the end of steel the two chiefs ordered the tribes to pitch camp.

Slowly but surely the end of steel crept closer and closer toward the Cree encampment and it was later discovered that the camp was situated on the right of way of the railroad. As the end of steel moved closer and closer, engineers and foremen parleyed with Pie-a-Pot and Long Lodge, entreating them to move either to the right or left, off the right of way, so that the work could go on without unnecessary delays. The chiefs stood firm, and in time refused to parley further with the engineers in charge.

Then, one fine morning Pie-a-Pot and Long Lodge were visited by two red-coated horsemen, a sergeant and constable of the Northwest Mounted Police. The argument was soon going again, and matters reached such a stage that the sergeant informed them that they had better move or he would do the moving for them. Pie-a-Pot let out a ninety horse-power howl, and soon the sergeant and constable were surrounded by hundreds of howling, painted Crees out for blood and scalps and the complete destruction of the white invaders. During a lull in the melee, the sergeant took out his watch and told Pie-a-Pot that he would give him exactly 15 minutes to move off that railroad right-of-way. Instantly there was another demonstration of anger and truculence, and the two Men of the Mounted sat their saddles as best they could in the milling mob. As the last tick of the fifteenth minute passed into eternity, the sergeant of the Northwest Mounted Police dismounted right into the midst of that bloodthirsty mob. He forced his way through it and walked right over to Pie-a-Pot's teepee and kicked the keypole down. While squaws and children howled and screamed under the collapsed teepee, the sergeant walked to the next teepee and kicked the keypole of that one down. From one to the other that lone sergeant strode, kicking keypoles down until every teepee was flat. Young bucks and so-called "braves" followed close on his heels, pushing against him, making faces at him, cursing him, and doing all they could to annoy or frighten him, but the sergeant just kept right on going until all teepees were flat, and in spite of their proximity, not one Cree had dared to strike a blow at the courageous sergeant. With everything flattened, the sergeant mounted his horse and gave his last order.

"Orlright . . . bustle abahit a bit . . . On the move . . . shove orf abahit your blurry business, wotever it is," all of which was his cockney way of saying "Get goin'." Meanwhile, Pie-a-Pot and Long Lodge were so angry they were stumped for words. Never had they seen such audacity. One lone man, wearing a red coat, had literally wrecked their village. It is highly probable, moreover, that Pie-a-Pot and Long Lodge realized that if the other men of the Mounted were anything like this sergeant, perhaps the Pie-a-Pots and Long Lodges had better not get into any more arguments with them. These red coats were bad medicine. At any rate, as the chieftains saw the hopelessness of further resistance, they muttered a few words to nearby tribesmen, and within two hours the Pie-a-Pots and Long Lodges were heading for their reservation. En route Pie-a-Pot chanced to remember that if he didn't behave himself the Great White Mother would stop sending supplies of food and flour and clothing and that little bit of treaty money now and then. "Oh well, what a day it's been, anyway," he might have said, as he arrived at the reservation.

1 President of Czechoslovakia is Eduard Benes (shown with his wife), one of Europe's smartest little statesmen. To pacify Sudetens he has made many concessions, seeking meanwhile to maintain the principles of Thomas Garrigue Masaryk, father of the Czech republic. But when he closed the German border during a recent election, two Sudetens were killed and the Nazis made much of it.

2 No heroes ever received more elaborate funerals than the two Sudeten "victims," who could have saved their lives by obeying regulations. The world was made to watch the burial service, a much-publicized event admittedly designed to inflame Sudetens against the Czech government. Meanwhile President Benes kept his fingers crossed during a period of European high tension unequalled since World war days. At last both Czechs and Germans withdrew border reinforcements.

3 Leading the Sudetens and other Czech Nazis is Konrad Henlein, close friend of Adolf Hitler. Of the nation's 15,000,000 people, probably one-fourth answer his beck and call.

4 Although Czechoslovakia's frontier is mountainous (the treaty-makers intended it that way) she is rushing a first line of defense against Germany. This special trench is one of many in a series of fortifications comparable only to France's famous Maginot line.

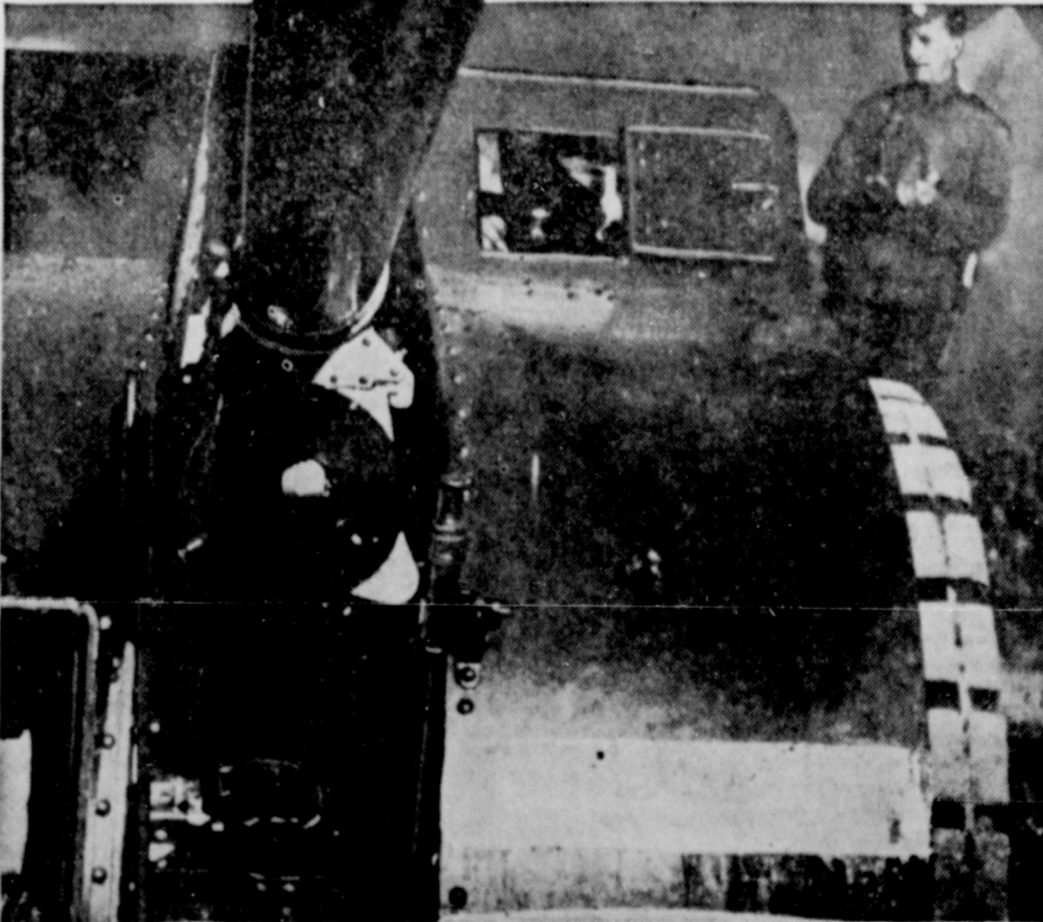

5 Czechoslovakia's peace-time army is 180,000 strong, with 1,000,000 trained reserves. Military preparation is now being emphasized; there is good reason.

FOTO- FEATURE

6 All Europe envies Czechoslovakia's famous munition industry, long an important business in the Sudeten area. This strategic weakness is being overcome by construction of a new armaments center at Bystrice, in Slovakia, far from the German border. The Czech army is perhaps the best armed small force in Europe, strong in artillery, anti-aircraft, tanks and machine guns. But it is no match for Germany's military machine, one of the world's strongest.

7 Thus in 1938, as she celebrates 20 years of peaceful progress, little Czechoslovakia points bristling weapons at the world, hoping that she need never use them but certainly not afraid to fight. To France and Russia she looks for assistance in the event of invasion, but the Czechs are hemmed in by none-too-friendly neighbors who may cut off her allies. Moreover, who can depend on allies in the year 1938? President Benes would like to know.

more good streams for fishing, and the weary editors and their families could enjoy two or three weeks of celestial life here on earth each year, with no additional outlay of cash other than the actual expense of living, and that they will have to bear anyway.

Mr. Graham has also devised the means for raising the funds with which to build and equip this proposed building without any necessary outlay of cash by the members of the association; but as very few, if any of my readers are newspaper people they would not quite understand the plan, therefore I will not mention it here.

Now, this strikes me as an idea thought and I most heartily approve of it, and compliment Mr. Graham for his originality. But this is not my main purpose in mentioning this; but it is more to bring before the minds of my readers, the magnanimity and big heartedness of Mr. Graham in giving of his busy time and thought in devising ways and means for the welfare comfort and happiness of his fellowmen. It occurs to me that there are by far too few of such men in this busy old world, and if Mr. Graham's attitude could be multiplied by millions each year, we would be much nearer the goal, that is evidently set for us by our Great Creator. By far to many of us have but one goal, one objective in life, and that is self, self, and me and mine and mine throughout our entire mundane existence, and too few of us ever tax our gray matter with any plans for the good and enjoyment of our fellows unless "self" can lay claim to the greater part of it. Get me?

In my column two weeks ago in airing my views of our army of gubernatorial candidates, I expressed the thought that Mr. Lee W. O'Daniel was probably not very well acquainted with politics and politicians, and any later information regarding him and his political campaign, has not tended to destroy or reverse that opinion, but he evidently possesses a knack for winning the hearts of the people, especially the common people of this part of the State, for I notice in Mr. Cooper's JAUB in the Shamrock Texan, that he held a straw vote in his city or county, on the gubernatorial situation there, and of the 179 votes then in, Mr. O'Daniel received 79 of them and was still gaining.

I have been told that there was a straw vote taken here in Friona, and that Mr. O'Daniel ran far ahead of any of the other candidates, but I did not learn the number of votes cast for either of them. He may have eliminated the "run-off" here. I do not know, but he is evidently winning the hearts of the "common people." And they have the bulk of the votes, because there are so many of them. Abraham Lincoln is quoted as saying: "God surely loves the common people. He has made so many of them."

Friona did not have any Fourth of July celebration this year, and so far as I know, never will have, owing to the fact, largely, that the Glorious Fourth comes each year right in the midst of the wheat harvest, and can you imagine a wheat farmer stopping his harvesting operations just to attend a Fourth of July picnic, or any other kind of a picnic, for that matter?

No, I do not see him doing that, and since nearly every farmer in this territory is a real-to-goodness wheat farmer, or at least raises some wheat, a Fourth of July celebration at Friona would have a mighty small attendance, both in the numbers and the size of those who would attend, as most of the attendants would be children. So here is saying "good-bye" to any immediate prospect of Friona ever having a Fourth of July celebration.

But there is no reason, except lack of interest, why we should not have a good county fair here every year, and this fair may or may not include the annual "Stock Show" of the county.

And by the way, that reminds me, that we have already organized a county fair to be held here each year, and have elected the officers thereof, and the officers have appointed the necessary committees to carry out various lines of work in order to get the fair in trim for operation.

The last I heard of the progress of these committees, was several weeks ago, when Mr. Lillard, who is chairman of the grounds and building committee, stated that the committee was divided in opinion as to the most suitable location and the type and size of building to be erected.

Well, here's hoping they succeed in making an satisfactory choice of location and decide upon a suitable plan for the building and that the finance committee is successful in raising the necessary funds for an early completion of their part of the project, this being the first and most necessary part of the preparatory arrangements for a mighty good fair.

And now comes one of our county candidates and tells me that out in the country somewhere a farmer had this sign hanging on his gate:

"CANDIDATES
Beware of the dogs.
They hate all kinds of skunks."

Almost every day and sometimes two or more times a day I am greeted by men who express themselves as being thoroughly disgusted with the present workings of the "New Deal" in practically every line of its workings. They make such remarks as: "We have tried it for about six years now, and we are in a worse condition than when it was first started."

One man stated it in something like these words: The new Farm Law is not understood by any body, and instead of it being a help and a servant of the farmers, it bids fair to make them its servants or slaves.

I do not know any of the provisions of this bill or law, but it is evidently not pleasing the people, or at least, not all of them in this locality. I have never been in favor of "farm regimentation" and if all I hear of this law is true, it provides for just that in the fullest sense of the word.

TWO BURNED WITH GASOLINE

A mishap, which might easily have been quite serious and even fatal, occurred to two of our young men, Bill Guyer and Clarence Jasper, Monday morning.

Mr. Guyer, who was hauling wheat with one of F. W. Reeve's trucks, became stranded on the road about five miles north of Friona, and while trying to learn the cause of his difficulty, Clarence drove up and stopped to assist him, and it was soon learned that Bill's fuel tank was empty, and a bucket was used to draw some gasoline from the tank on Clarence's truck to enable Bill to get to town. While doing this some of the gasoline was blown against the hot exhaust pipe and was ignited. The flames caused Bill to drop the bucket and some of the gasoline splashed onto Clarence's trousers, burning his legs rather seriously.

One side of Bill's face and one of his arms were slightly blistered, but his injury was not considered serious and he continued his work. But Clarence proved to be burned quite seriously, and has been under the care of a physician since. He suffered so much from the effect of the burn that he was unable to sleep any during Monday night, and if no complications arise, he is expected to get along all right, though he will be laid up for several days at least.

HAROLD LILLARD VISITED HOME

Harold Lillard, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Lillard, who is employed with the United States Soil Conservation Service, and is stationed at Channing, came home for a weekend visit, Saturday.

ATTEND TRAINING SCHOOL

County Agent Jason O. Gordon, Assistant Agent Garlon A. Harper, Julian Thornton, Justain Danner, and R. B. Ezell, all of the agents' force, and Leo Forrest were attendants at an instruction school on aerial map making, held in Muleshoe, on Monday.

Agent Gordon stated that all land under the AAA programs this year would be measured in this manner, thus necessitating the various schools of instruction which are being held over the entire state.

Bob Smith, of College Station, and field man for the AAA, was in charge of the meeting. Harper and Forrest returned to Muleshoe on Tuesday for additional training, it was stated.

REGULAR SERVICES AT CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH SUNDAY

Rev. C. Carl Dollar has written that he will be in Friona the latter part of this week and will occupy his pulpit at the Congregational church at the usual morning worship services Sunday. He urges the attendance of all members and friends of the church and all those who are not affiliated with any other local church.

4-H Club News

PARMER COUNTY GIRL WON STATE HONORS

Lois McGuire, of Oklahoma Lane club, Parmer county, was awarded one of the State Gold Stars on the best 4-H club work, this award being made by the A. & M. College Extension Department.

Following is Lois' story of her work till 1938:

On April 15th, 1936, I, Lois McGuire, joined the 4-H club of Oklahoma Lane. I joined it for the fun there was in it; but it became so interesting that I have tried ever since to be an active member and to help the club to become better.

The year 1936 was a year for fruits. I planted a fruit row, canned five containers of fruit per member of family, and exhibited one pint container of grape juice. I also purchased a single blanket, made a pair of pillow protectors out of sugar sacks and made bedspread out of unbleached muslin, which I dyed orchid and tufted with yellow tufting thread.

In 1937 I made a garden plan and a cold frame. The frame garden was made out of scrap lumber with wire and loth stretched over the top. From the garden I canned eight containers of beans, six of peas, five of mince meat, one of carrots, and one of pimientos. At a Parmer Home Demonstration Exhibition at Friona I won third place on a container of carrots, and second place on the leafy vegetables.

I was bedroom demonstrator for 1937. The bedroom, before the demonstration, was very unattractive and inconvenient. I shared the north half of a 12x26 foot room. A partition and closet space, two and a half feet wide, was put between the rooms. The closet space allowed storage for quilts, hats, linen, shoes, underclothes clothing, and other things. A door into my brother's room was taken out and closed over and another window was added to make double windows. The walls were papered in blue with small pink flowers and the ceiling, wood work and furniture are ivory. The floor, which was very rough, was refinished until it was smooth and pretty.

The old refinished furniture harmonized well with the rest of the room. The bedspread and curtains were of pink voile, and the scarfs and quilt block chair cushions were pink checks. At the exhibit at Friona I won second place in the scarfs and pillows.

In 1936 I was secretary of the 4-H club, and in 1937 I was vice-president and bedroom demonstrator.

I have learned very much since I joined the 4-H club. Some of the things are: refinishing room and furniture, making cold frames, planning gardens, canning, and many other things.

COLORADO FOLK VISITING HERE

On Friday afternoon of last week, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Guyer and children, Billie and Richard, of Salida, Colorado, arrived here for a two weeks visit with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Guyer and Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Jones and other relatives and friends.

They were accompanied by Mr. Guyer's brother, Reeve Guyer, and Hulet Lea, both of whom have been employed in or near Salida. Mr. Lea has accepted a position with the Friona Consumers Company, Inc., and will remain in Friona, but Reeve contemplates returning to Colorado with his brother and family when they have completed their visit.

VISITED SON AND FAMILY HERE

B. Lange, of Llano, who has been visiting his son, O. F. Lange, and family here for the past ten days, returned to his home Tuesday.

On his return trip Mr. Lange was accompanied by his two granddaughters Carolyn and Doris Ann, who will spend the next few weeks visiting with him. He will probably return to Friona for another short visit later in the season. We, of the Star, deeply regret that we were unable to enjoy a short visit with Mr. Lange while he was here.

METHODIST SERVICE

Church school meets at 10 a. m. Services at 11 a. m. and 8:30 p. m. All services begin promptly on time. We started two weeks ago beginning our services exactly on time and we find that the people like that better despite Friona custom.

The pastor will preach at both hours next Sunday. Everyone is cordially invited to come and worship with us, especially strangers who are in our community at this time. We have visitors and new people every Sunday and always are happy to have them.

C. Reginald Hardy, Pastor.

Here's Good Health, Governor!

AUSTIN, Texas.—The milk route to good health was recommended by the Governor and the State Health Officer of Texas as Governor James V. Alfred (right) issued a proclamation designating June 9 to July 6 as Milk and Dairy Products Month. "Here's good health," the Governor was saluted by Dr. George W. Cox, who added: "Good, clean, safe milk is the nearest-perfect of all foods."

Early American Banking
In the country's early days banking was almost a nightmarish business, a bank's usual capital consisting merely of notes. A Rhode Island bank, for instance, founded in 1804 on a capital of $1,000,000, had only some $10,000 ever paid in, and of this the directors withdrew what they paid in, leaving $3,000. Then, some one bought out most of the directors for $1,200 each, paid out of the bank's deposits, and proceeded to borrow $750,000 himself out of the funds left. When the bank failed it had actually $85.36 in cash, with an unknown amount of bills out.

CHICKEN DINNER ON ELECTION DAY

The ladies of the Congregational church here, announce that they will serve a good old fashioned chicken dinner in the church basement on the day of the Democratic Primary Election, Saturday, July 23.

In addition to the bountiful amount of chicken there will be a complete menu of other delicious foods, including iced tea and ice cream. The ladies solicit the patronage of the public on this occasion.

Mrs. G. H. Brock and infant daughter, Sandra Elaine, are expected to be dismissed from the Hereford hospital next week.

HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUBS

Lakeview 4-H Club News

The Lakeview 4-H club girls met in the home of Mary Lou Barker on June 28th for an all-day meeting, starting at promptly 10:30. The next meeting will be held in the home of Lillie Sparkman, July 22.

Business was attended to in the morning, after which the group had lunch. Following lunch, Miss Margaret St. Clair, agent, gave a demonstration on "bathing centers in the homes," and kinds of towels and rags to use.

The following members were present, Floella Saunders, Dorothy Sue Cummings, Lila Robason, Patsy Ruth Robason, Bobbie Jean Barker, Mary Lou Barker, and Mrs. M. B. Buchanan sponsor. Visitors, Mrs. Fred Barker, Joyce Barker and Miss Polly Parsons.

Bovina Club

The Club met June 23, with Mrs. Regan Looney. Roll call: Show best bathroom towel.

Refreshments were served to seven members: Mesdames Bill Nittler, C. F. Hastings, Lawrence Starr, Willis Hastings, Regan Looney; Misses Reta Caldwell and Maggie Hastings.

The club will meet July 14, 2:30 p. m., with Mrs. Lawrence Starr. Roll call: How are quick breads used in favorite meals. Demonstration by agent, using yeast breads to brighten meals.

All members and new members are urged to attend. Visitors are welcome. Come, bring some one with you. Let's make a hundred percent attendance.

Midway 4-H Club

The Midway 4-H club met on Tuesday, June 21, with the sponsor present. We first had a business meeting then the demonstration on how to write our history at the end of the year. We enjoyed games for an hour, then adjourned for noon.

Oklahoma Lane Club

At a meeting of the Oklahoma Lane demonstration club a good response was given when the president, Mrs. Clyde Magness, asked all present to give an answer to roll call, "How I Use Quick Breads and Yeast Breads to Brighten Our Meals." The meeting was held at the club room on July 1.

Council report was given by Mrs. Clyde Perkins. An invitation was extended the Hub club to meet with the local club on July 15th. Roll call, "The high point in this year's work for you from the extension service."

Arrangement for the afternoon was given to the program, social and recreation committees. Recreation chairman was given finance to order recreation literature.

Members present were Mesdames H. L. Agee, W. E. Verner, G. T. Watkins, Tom Foster, A. B. Wilkinson, E. M. Deaton, J. R. Caldwell, J. J. Fogarty, Dicky Magness, Alta Robertson and R. L. Henson.

RETURNED TO FRIONA SUNDAY

Miss Mary Emma Stover, who is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Stover, and who has been for the past several weeks, employed at Truscott, returned to her home here, Sunday.

Miss Stover was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Jowning and children, Mary Beth and Lynette, Mrs. Jowning being her sister, who came over to spend the Fourth with her parents, the Doctor and Mrs. Stover.

Mr. and Mrs. Jowning returned to their home at Truscott, Tuesday, but the children remained for a longer visit with their grand parents, Mary Beth, who is what is called a "Lone Star" Girl Scout, that is one living in a place where there is no girl scout organization, but learns and writes in her work to some organization, accompanied the other girl scouts from Friona to the scout camp near Amarillo.

Lynette celebrated her tenth birthday Wednesday, and early in the day reminded her grand father that he had failed to give her the spanking that he promised her father he would give her, and the promise was then faithfully complied with.

Scalping an Old Custom

The practice of scalping is not primarily an Indian one as it has been noted among the ancient Scythians as far back as the time of Herodotus, nor was it known to all the American tribes of Indians. The spread of the practice of scalping in the central and western parts of the United States was a result of the encouragement in the shape of scalp bounties offered by colonial governments.

The Abbreviation "lb."

The abbreviation "lb." is a puzzle to many people. The symbol "lb." is a contraction of "libra," the Latin word for pound. And strictly speaking, the plural of "lb." should not be formed by adding an "s," because the plural of "libra" is "librae." But the error has been repeated so frequently that "lbs." now is recognized by dictionaries and may be regarded as good usage.

Barnum Liked Publicity

P. T. Barnum was an old man when he became associated with W. C. Coup in a combined museum-menagerie-circus. He knew the value of advertising and was a genius in getting publicity. Though he preferred favorable notoriety, any other kind was acceptable. He was accused of being a humbug and referred to himself as the greatest humbug of his time.

Travelers Coin Words

Travelers are responsible for two of the most carefree words in the English language. "Meander" comes from the name of a river in Asia Minor which follows a very winding, wandering course, while "saunter" comes from the medieval French word for pilgrim, which was a combination of "sainted" and "terre," or "holylander."

Pirate's Offer Accepted

In 1814 Jean Lafitte, the pirate, was offered a huge sum of money and a commission in the navy on condition that he assist the British in their attack on New Orleans. He refused and offered his services to the city of New Orleans on condition that he and his followers be pardoned. The offer was accepted.

Likely and Liable

Likely means probable, liable means tending to, responsible or obliged. It is not likely that I would throw a stone through the window, for if I did I would be liable to be arrested and fined. Though most motorcycles are not likely to skid, Tom's is liable to do so at any moment.

C. Houston Goudiss Noted Food Authority

Explains What Is Meant by CORRECT NUTRITION

Describes How to Construct a Balanced Diet, So Essential to Maintain Optimal Health

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS
6 East 39th St., New York City.

TO SOME families, a summons to the dinner table means nothing more than a chance to satisfy hunger. To others, it represents an opportunity to gratify the palate, sometimes to the extent of overtaxing the digestive system.

Neither of these extremes fulfills the true function of food, which is to provide adequately but not to excess, for growth, maintenance and repair of the body.

Food May Fail to Feed

You can satisfy hunger without providing correct nutrition. You can partake of delicious-tasting foods to the point of over-indulgence--without meeting bodily requirements.

The mere spending of money will not insure good nutrition, for extremely poor diets can be found in households where the income is large and the food budget is ample. What counts is learning to provide the right foods in the correct proportions. The return in health will be more than worth the investment of effort in acquiring this knowledge.

A Balanced Diet
Science has discovered what foods are necessary to help build top health and keep us 100 per cent fit. The amount of food required by a man for a day's work can be accurately determined. We know that a specific disease may be produced by one diet and cured by another; that growth can be influenced through changes in the quality of the dietary; that old age may be deferred by choosing the food with care.

We know that the body is a working machine which never stops but may slow down or get out of order unless the daily diet includes every element, every mineral, every vitamin needed to maintain health and avoid the deficiency diseases.

Seven Essentials
There are seven factors to be considered in planning a balanced diet. Protein for building body tissue and repairing the millions of cells that are worn out daily. Carbohydrates to produce quick heat and energy. Fats--a more compact form of fuel, which are also essential in a satisfactory diet. Minerals which serve both as builders and regulators of body processes. The six vitamins, A, B, C, D, E and G, that also act as regulators and prevent a number of deficiency diseases. Water--which serves as a vehicle by which food is carried to the tissues. And cellulose or bulk--required for the normal functioning of the intestinal tract.

Danger in Omitting One Food Substance

The homemaker who fails to take every one of these factors into consideration is depriving her husband of the opportunity to develop his greatest efficiency. Moreover, she may be robbing her children of their birthright. During every day of childhood, the body is being built, and defects in body structure are likely to arise if the child is improperly nourished. It is then that disease and disability make their appearance as a result of faulty nutrition. How tragic to deprive the young body of substances so necessary to its well being.

How to Check the Diet for Balance

Perhaps you are like the homemakers who tell me that they do not know a protein from a carbohydrate. Or it may be that while you understand the difference, you do not know what quantities should be included in the diet each day.

To simplify your task of serving balanced menus at every meal, I have prepared a Homemaker's Chart for Checking Nutritional Balance. In convenient chart form, it shows what foods should be included in the diet every day and gives the standard amount for each food. There are also skeleton menus outlined by food classifications, which enable you to plan balanced menus for every meal by making a choice from each group of required foods.

I urge every homemaker to write for this chart and use it daily. Then you won't make such common mistakes as serving a dried legume as a vegetable at a meal in which meat is used, which tends to concentrate too much protein in one meal; or choosing a too-heavy dessert following a main course that is overly rich in carbohydrates.

60 Per Cent Carbohydrates

Carbohydrates should form at least 60 per cent of the supply of food fuel. Rarely are menus deficient in carbohydrates, because they are so widely distributed in such common foods as cereals, bread, potatoes, macaroni products, sweets, and sweet fruits and vegetables, such as oranges, grapes, apples and peas.

Fats should supply about 20 per cent of the caloric content of the diet. They are obtained from butter, margarine, cream, egg yolk, salad dressings, vegetable oils and the fat of meats.

A protein food should be provided at each meal. Meat, poultry, fish, eggs, cheese, milk and most nuts supply complete protein. Cereals and legumes furnish incomplete protein which may be supplemented by the complete protein of milk.

The Protective Foods

It is essential that the diet should contain an abundance of minerals and vitamins which are furnished by the protective foods--milk, eggs, fruits and vegetables.

Free Homemaker's Chart for Checking Nutritional Balance

PLANNING a balanced diet will cease to be a puzzle if you send for the Homemaker's Chart for Checking Nutritional Balance, offered free, by C. Houston Goudiss. It lists the foods and the standard amounts that should be included in the daily diet, and includes skeleton menus for breakfast, dinner and lunch or supper, to guide you in selecting the proper foods in each classification. A postcard is sufficient to bring you this valuable aid to good menu planning. Just ask for the Nutrition Chart. Address C. Houston Goudiss, 6 East 39th St., New York City.

Cellulose or bulk is obtained from fruits, vegetables and whole grain cereals. Water comes from juicy fruits, succulent vegetables, milk and other beverages, as well as the water that is consumed as a beverage.

To provide adequate amounts of the seven food essentials at every meal--to avoid the mistake of serving too much of one type of food and too little of another--should be the worthy aim of every homemaker. You will find the task considerably easier if you send for the Homemaker's Chart. Tack it up in your kitchen or in the room where you plan your menus, and use it to check the nutritional balance of every meal you prepare.

If you faithfully follow the food program outlined in the chart, you will help to assure your family of correct nutrition. This is the most priceless gift you could bestow upon them. For nutrition is the architect that draws the plans of human destiny. In providing the right foods, you lay a firm foundation for health on which to rear a life of happiness and success.

Questions Answered

Mrs. F. C. T.--Dried figs contain from 60 to 70 per cent sugar and 4 to 5 per cent protein. They are a fine energy food.

Mrs. A. G.--Prunes are a fine natural laxative food for those in normal health. They furnish vitamins A, B and G. But they must not replace oranges or tomatoes as they do not supply vitamin C.

Mrs. G. L.--There is evidence that a lack of vitamin A more quickly affects the eyes of children than adults. However, both children and adults require generous amounts of this vitamin to help maintain healthy eyes. A shortage may affect the tear glands causing a failure of secretion and dryness. The membrane becomes sensitive and inflamed, and the lids may swell.

White Hope Era Forecast With Louis Victory

OLD-TIMERS who saw Joe Louis polish off Max Schmeling in two minutes and fifteen seconds in their recent championship fight in New York are predicting that another open season for White Hopes looms ahead—a season reminiscent of the almost forgotten days of a generation ago when Carl Morris, Jim Flynn, Luther McCarthy, Frank Moran and Jess Willard were crowding their way up for a chance at the heavyweight belt which dusky Jack Johnson had won from Jim Jeffries.

But it's going to take a mighty good man to give Joe any competition, on the basis of his sensational knockout of the crafty Schmeling. From all appearances he is going to be the top-man heavyweight for a number of years to come. There was considerable doubt about that before the fight, particularly in view of his knockout in 1936 by Schmeling and his indifferent showing a while back against the mediocre Tommy Farr.

Joe showed he was a great champion, though, and finally made good the predictions made about his fistic genius two years ago when he was knocking all opposition cold and before he met Schmeling the first time.

Schmeling wasn't in Louis' flight this time. It was a massacre from the start. Louis smothered the puzzled German with fists and had him on the canvas almost as soon as the fight started. He clubbed him down twice more before the fight was stopped. The kidney punch which Max said disabled him and which necessitated his having hospital treatment afterward for a broken vertebra was delivered after Louis had rocked Max with blows to the head.

$200,000 a Minute

Louis had the distinction of being the only champion in history to knock out an opponent before the first round was over. He also set a new world's record for earnings. His share of the gate was $400,000.

JOE LOUIS

making his time worth approximately $200,000 per minute, or $3,225.80 per second.

Promoters will probably look in vain for anyone in the present crop of heavyweights sufficiently handy with his fists to relieve Joe of his crown. Only three fighters of today would stand an outside chance: Max Baer, who rehabilitated his reputation as a big-time performer when he fought Tommy Farr recently; Tony Galento, who has been called the "human punching bag"; and Gunnar Barlund, the doughy Swede, who stopped Buddy Baer just when that young man seemed headed toward a ring career.

Max is scheduled to meet Joe in September for a crack at the title. How much of a fight Max would be able to make against the champion is extremely problematical. The Baer who knocked out Schmeling, Carnera and others would make a good showing.

But the Baer who lost to Brad-dock and Louis wouldn't stand the ghost of a show. Max Baer's chances for future success depend on his physical condition and on his mental state. He can beat fighters he thinks he can beat, if he is in condition. In or out of condition he would be a push-over for Louis unless he conquered the jitters that had him shaking just before his previous fight with Louis.

Night Clubs Out

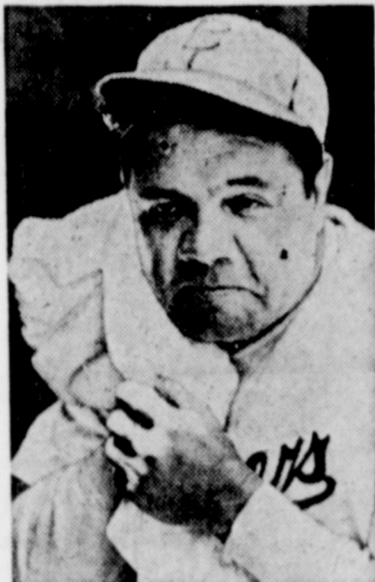

Baer claims he is in condition and that he will train faithfully and this seems to be borne out by the facts. He has cut out the night club stuff since his marriage and the birth of his son. His decisive victory over Tommy Farr of England, more decisive than Louis scored over Farr, indicates he is telling the truth. He is only twenty-nine years old. When he's right he can hit hard enough to knock anybody out.

If Max can't stop Louis and the odds are that he won't, then Galento and Barlund are all that stand in the way. That is, until a modern crop of White Hopes begins to fight its way up for the chance to meet the Brown Bomber.

Babe Manager?

WHEN the canny Larry McPhail, business manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, signed Babe Ruth as coach recently, he not only added thousands of dollars a year to the pulling power of the Dodgers at the turnstiles, but he aroused one speculation that intrigues sports fans everywhere. Will the Babe be Brooklyn's next manager?

From all indications the popularity of Manager Burleigh Grimes is waning rapidly, not only with the fans but with the management. While the announcement of Ruth's appointment as coach broke as sudden news, those on the inside say negotiations have been under way for weeks and that it was Ruth himself who sold the management on the idea of signing him.

There isn't much chance of a switch until the season is over, if it does occur then. The Babe has been away from the game long enough to be just a bit rusty. Moreover, he will have to acquaint himself with the strength and weaknesses of National league teams and players. But by next year, the insiders say, he will be ready.

What kind of a manager would Ruth make? Baseball men are unanimous on the subject of his ability. They say he has baseball sense—an asset you must be born with. One authority declares there never was an outfielder in the majors who made fewer mistakes than the Babe. This instinct guides a manager as well as a player in making decisions, the results of which will win or lose ball games.

Fans everywhere have wondered why Ruth hasn't been given a manager's job up to now. Colonel Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees, gave the Babe serious consideration for the job, but decided otherwise because he believed the home-run king was too happy-go-lucky.

Olympic Troubles

THE growing chain of Olympic committee resignations was enlarged by the withdrawal of William J. Bingham, director of athletics at Harvard, who declared he would have nothing further to do with the 1940 games in Tokyo, because he "could not ask the American people to support a team which was going to a country standing for what Japan stands today."

Observers close to the Olympic situation believe that Bingham's resignation will have the effect of increasing the aloofness of American colleges toward the event—an aloofness resulting from the action of the international Olympic committee in changing the dates for various competitions so as to make it almost impossible for American undergraduates to compete in the games.

Original 1940 Olympic dates were set for August 25 to September 21, permitting the collegiate athletes plenty of time to compete and return to America for their autumn school terms. Then a change requested by Japan, and supported by Italy and Germany was made, moving the dates from September 21 to October 6. The United States and England, protesting vigorously, were overruled.

LUMBER!

Though America's logging industry has been on the downgrade several years because of heavy imports, this spring one of the largest timber log drives ever run in New England took place near Machias, Maine. Over 4,000,000 feet of lumber—pine, hemlock and spruce—was floated down the river to the Whitfield mill 45 miles south. Lumberjacks work hard all winter but the drivers have more adventure during the drive when they must balance themselves on swirling logs, pry open jams and sleep in a different "home" every night. They wear caulk shoes with spikes.

There's little waste time or waste space in the camp's kitchen where Cook Leonard Elwell prepares 240 meals a day, moves 35 miles down the river and sets up his equipment again. To supply 60 men participating in the last drive he cooked 500 doughnuts, 500 sugar cookies, 200 biscuits, 16 loaves of bread, boiled four hams and cooked 50 pounds of beef, all on the above stove. And it was plenty good. If the young driver at the right knows what he's smiling about!

They eat four meals a day, these drivers, and when the day is over they sit around the campfire and chat about one of America's most colorful industries, logging, a business that demands hardy men who like outdoor life and isolation. Gone forever is the heyday of America's logging industry with its Paul Bunyan and blue oxen, but the colorful picture of north woods life will live forever in song and story.

A Little Bit Humorous

HIS LATE DISCOVERY

An old man living in South Berkshire was leading two lively calves out to early pasture in the morning. When he came to the field, relates the Indiana Farmer's Guide, he tied one of the calves to one of his bootstraps and the other to the opposite bootstrap, while he opened the rickety gate. The calves ran away. When he was picked up his wife asked him:

"Didn't you know any better than to do a foolish trick like that?"

"Yes," he answered, "I hadn't been dragged four rods before I saw my mistake."

For Dual Purposes

The undersized husband was trying on the overcoat his wife had bought him.

"You know, dear," he said, gazing at himself in the mirror, "this is a nice present and all that and don't think that I'm ungrateful but really, isn't it much too big for me?"

"I know, dear," she returned, "but we can't help that. You must remember that it's got to cover the radiator of the car in cold weather. We have to consider that, haven't we?"

JUST COULD NOT GUESS

"How old do you think I am?"

"I don't dare think."

Glad Tidings

Two Irishmen had worked in a stone quarry for years. Murphy was careless in handling dynamite one day and his friend Kelley was given the job of carrying the sad news to his widow.

"Mrs. Murphy," said he, "isn't today when the fellow calls for the payment on your husband's life insurance?"

"It is," was the reply.

"Well now, a word in your ear. Sure ye can snap your fingers at him today."—Wall Street Journal.

What a Relief

He had been walking with one foot in the gutter and the other on the pavement, and he was not getting on very well. After about a half-mile he met a constable.

"You're drunk," said the latter.

"O, is that what it is?" he replied. "Thank heaven! I thought I was lame!"—Stray Stories Magazine.

AROUND THE HOUSE

Storing Silverware.—If silverware which is to be stored for some time is packed in white flour it will not tarnish.

Sunlight in Rooms.—There should be direct sunlight in every room of a house at some time during each day.

Hanging Pictures.—Paste a strip of sandpaper across the bottom of the back of a picture. That will help keep it hanging straight on the wall.

Save the Floors.—Carefully arranged newspapers make good padding under fiber rugs and matings, because the dirt which sifts through may be easily removed with the newspapers.

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 34 to 35), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells.

Get more fresh air, 8 hrs. sleep and if you need a good general system tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist in getting jittery nerves and disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life. WELL WORTH TRYING!

Watch Your Kidneys!
Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste
Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fall to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
Symptoms may be sagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eye—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

 Congressman, Marvin Jones, while in Friona on Thursday of last week, favored the Star office with a very pleasant visit.

FARM SECURITY NEWS
 The net worth of low-income farmers in Parmer county, served by the Farm Security Administration, is steadily improving, according to a statement issued this week by Thomas G. Moore, rural rehabilitation supervisor, as he made preparations to begin the new fiscal year for this federal agency, beginning July 1st.
 Mr. Moore said his agency is serving 200 families in Parmer County. He also said that in view of the progress made in the past two or three years by the rehabilitation loan program borrowers, the Farm Security Administration will be able to extend this aid to other worthy families of the low-income group.
 The Farm Security Administration's broad program for farmers includes rehabilitation loans, community and cooperative service, farm debt adjustment service, and tenant purchase loans. All of these different services are, of course, designed to help distressed farm families to rehabilitate themselves.
 A typical rehabilitation loan, Mr. Moore explained, includes money for purchase of seed, for buying of work-stock, farm machinery, cows, brood sows, and chickens. It may also include money for the purchase of needed articles in the home, such as pressure cookers and canning jars. Occasionally a few dollars are set aside for the purchase of clothing and medical attention. All families obtaining a rehabilitation loan, however, are required to make budgets for living expenses and keep accurate records of all transactions.
 Just how well this program is progressing in Parmer county may be gleaned from Mr. Moore's records which show that a number of families have completely repaid all of their obligations and are now continuing their farm operations without help from this agency, and a few of the farmers in this county have repaid their loans long before they were due.
 Mr. Moore said rehabilitation loans are made to come due in installments of from one to five years, depending upon the nature of things to be purchased with the money, and the financial conditions of the particular family. Crop liens and chattel mortgages are taken as security.
 Mr. Moore who has offices in the courthouse, said he will be glad to explain all phases of the Farm Security Administration program to all interested parties.

BAFFLED
 A clergyman passing a railway goods yard was shocked to hear abuse coming from the other side of a cattle truck.
 On investigation he saw two porters trying to force a mule into the truck. The mule, however, was determined not to enter without a struggle.
 "Ah, my good fellows," said the clergyman, "I see you are having a hard task. Can I be of assistance?"
 "Aye," said one of the porters, wiping his perspiring brow. "Being a parson, p'raps you can tell us 'ow Noah managed to get two of these perishers into the Ark?"—Tit-Bits Magazine.

One on the Lawyers
 Once upon a time, so the story goes, the fence broke down between heaven and hell. St. Peter appeared at the broken section of the fence and called out to the devil, "Hey, Satan, it's your turn to fix it this time."
 "Sorry," replied the boss of the lower regions. "My men are too busy to go about fixing a mere fence."
 "Well, then," scowled St. Peter, "I'll have to sue you for breaking our agreement."
 "Oh, yeah," echoed the devil, "where are you going to get a lawyer?"

HEALTH NOTES
HEALTH
AUSTIN—"Infantile paralysis can be expected to occur more frequently during the next three or four months," predicts Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer. "This disease is always more frequent during the hot months."
 "The germ responsible for infantile paralysis is so small that it escapes detection even with the most powerful microscopes. The first symptoms are usually vomiting, headache, fever, stiffness of the neck, pain in the legs, irritability and drowsiness. Complete recovery may follow such an illness. In the more severe cases, the germ penetrates the nervous system, resulting in paralysis of nerves controlling one or more groups of muscles. Some remarkable recoveries have been noted.
 "Flies or other insects have not been demonstrated to play a part in the spread of this disease. Infection spreads from person to person with the droplets transmitted by coughing and sneezing. Children and grown people that are healthy may be carriers of the germs. When present in epidemic form, about one child in each hundred is apt to suffer an attack.
 "Early recognition and diagnosis are essential. The use of immune serum may be a factor in preventing paralysis. A period of complete rest is essential for muscles that are affected. If parents note any symptoms of illness in their children, the family doctor should be consulted at once."
 The United States Civil Service Commission has announced open competitive examinations for the positions listed below.
