

Oil heads toward $70, impact on economy uncertain

By BRAD FOSS
AP Business Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Oil prices appear headed back toward $70 a barrel, a level not seen since Hurricane Katrina battered the Gulf Coast and sporadic shortages sent gasoline at the pump above $3 a gallon nationwide.

While last summer's price spike triggered outrage in Congress and hurt sport utility vehicle sales, it caused only a hiccup in motor-fuel consumption. And for now, with demand back on the rise, the economy seems capable of absorbing uncomfortably high prices.

Analysts warn, however, that consumers and businesses could be just one major supply disruption away from more serious financial consequences. Sherry Cooper, chief economist at BMO Nesbitt Burns, said the ramifications of $70 oil and $3-a-gallon gasoline would be "more mild" the second time around "because we're getting kind of used to it."

But while the gas-price sticker shock may be wearing off, Nomura Securities chief economist David Resler fears a more subtle fuel-related angst setting in among consumers.

"There is the pessimistic notion that this is not going to go away and that's going to have a more lasting impact on driving habits and behavior, I suspect, than we've seen so far," Resler said.

In that context, a hypothetical supply disruption that jolts oil prices to $80 or higher and keeps them there for an extended period — say, three months — could result in "a substantial falloff in discretionary spending" that snowballs into a serious slowdown.

Perhaps the top threat for the oil market is the standoff between the United Nations and Iran, OPEC's No. 2 producer, over Tehran's nuclear energy ambitions. Iran's foreign minister said Friday his country would not use oil as an economic weapon, and that helped

The family that travels together stays together — at least, that's the formula that works for Cade and Elizabeth Gilbert.

The Gilberts, from Stanton, were among more than 30 vendors selling their wares at this weekend's Spring Arts and Crafts Show at the Howard County Fairbarns.

Inside the main building, Elizabeth was busy selling "topless" sandals — sandals consisting only of the sole coated with an adhesive that sticks to the wearer's feet — while Cade was outside supervising children who made use of the couple's inflatable slide.

The couple is on the road almost every weekend, traveling to arts and crafts show, festivals and other special events. A typical weekend will find them almost anywhere in Texas or New Mexico.

It's time to spring forward

Most Americans will see more of the sun as the nation makes the switch to daylight-saving time Sunday.

That means push the clocks ahead — spring forward — before going to bed Saturday night. The official change occurs at 2 a.m. Sunday, local time.

Daylight-saving time ends Oct. 29.

President Bush has signed a law changing the dates of daylight-saving time, effective in 2007. Then, daylight time will start three weeks earlier, March 11, and will end one week later, Nov. 4.

Residents of some parts of the country can ignore the changes. Daylight-saving time isn't observed in Arizona, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa, Guam and the Northern Marianas.

Symphony concert to feature 20th Century American music

By THOMAS JENKINS
Staff Writer

The Big Spring Symphony Orchestra and Chorus will wrap up its season April 8 with a special celebration of 20th Century American music.

Dr. Keith Graumann, conductor, said the evening will feature some of the premier composers of the last 100 years.

The evening will begin with "Overture to Candide," written by Leonard Bernstein, followed by "Four Dance Episodes from Rodeo" by Aaron Copland.

Also part of the program are favorite works by classical pops composer Leroy Anderson, including "Buglers Holiday," which will feature local trumpet performers Jose Luis Gonzales and John Ontiveros, as well as Midland artist Michael Santorelli.

"This will be a fun concert for everyone," said Graumann. "I've chosen what I think is some of the best music of the 20th Century. Leonard Bernstein was one of the true geniuses of that era, and his series of children's concerts and lectures did a great deal to further the orchestral arts.

"The Leroy Anderson pieces will be familiar to many in the audience. He called himself a classical composer, but I think of his music more as a bridge between popular and classical music"

The performance will begin at 8 p.m. in the Big Spring Municipal Auditorium, located at the corner of East Third Street and Nolan.

According to Graumann, the perfor-

Early voting in runoff begins Monday

By THOMAS JENKINS
Staff Writer

Area voters will once again be asked to go to the polls next week, as early voting in several state runoff elections begins at the Howard County Courthouse.

Early voting begins Monday and will continue through Friday, with election day set for April 11. All polling places having been consolidated to the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Runoff elections are being held in the Democratic races for U.S. Senator and the Lt. Governor's Office, as well as the Republican race for the Place 8 bench on the Court of Criminal Appeals.

According to Sandra Bloom, election administrator for the county, said it's important for area voters to remember which primary they voted in if they cast a ballot in March.

"If you voted in the primary, you are aligned with that party for the runoff as well," said Bloom. "If you didn't vote in either party's primary in March, you can vote in either one during the runoff election. For example, if you voted in the Republican primary in March, you can't vote in the Democratic runoff elections. You can only vote in the Republican runoff election."

"There have also been inquiries about signing a petition for an independent candidate. Only those who did not vote in the March primary election are eligible to sign an independent candidate's petition."

On the Democratic ticket, Maria Luisa Alvarado will face Benjamin Z. Grant in the runoff for the office of Lt. Governor. Also on the Democratic ticket, Barbara Ann Radnofsky and Gene

Miriam Elizabeth Carlton

Miriam Elizabeth Carlton, formerly of Big Spring, passed away peacefully Aug. 20, 2005, in Vancouver, Wash., surrounded by family and friends.

She was born Aug. 24, 1920, in Trampling Lake, Saskatchewan, Canada, the daughter of American missionaries. Miriam married James Carlton in 1942, and he preceded her in death in 1972.

Miriam is survived by three children, Marjorie Holland of Vancouver, Wash., Karen Carlton of Walnut Creek, Calif. All three children are graduates of Big Spring High School.

In 1940, Miriam received an associate's degree in accounting and was employed as an accountant for the Army Air Force Exchange Service. James was a chief warrant officer in the U.S. Air Force and the family was transferred throughout the United States and France.

They were stationed at Webb Air Force Base in 1965 and Miriam continued to reside in Big Spring until 1974. For the remainder of her career, she would be stationed at Fort Bragg, Fort Benning and Fort Dix, as well as Japan.

After more than 30 years in distinguished service, she retired in 1982 and lived in North Carolina until 1995, when she moved to Vancouver, Wash., to be closer to her children.

Miriam was a volunteer with the Girl Scouts and an avid gardener. She taught her children by example: Hard work, love for God, charity and following the Golden Rule.

She is at rest now, with her best friend and partner, her beloved husband.

Graveside services will be held at 3 p.m. Tuesday, April 4, 2006, in Trinity Memorial Park, officiated by the Rev. Dr. Russell Patrick. The family will be at 404 Washington Blvd.

'Dancin' in the Streets' to be held at VA Hospital

Special to the Herald

The West Texas VA Health Care System announced today that Re-Creation's "Dancin' in the Streets" show will appear at the VA Medical Center on Monday bringing a new stage presentation to hospitalized veterans and their guests.

The show will begin at 2 p.m. in conference room 219.

The group represents Re-Creation USA, Inc., which provides a national program of live entertainment for the nation's 172 Veterans Affairs Medical Centers.

According to Iva Jo Hanslik, volunteer coordinator for the VA Medical Center, said Re-Creation has been to the local facility several times in the past and is something the residents look forward to.

"In the past this has been almost an annual thing," said Hanslik. "However, they weren't able to come last year, so we missed one. We're really excited about them being here Monday, however, and would love to invite the community to come and enjoy the show with us. We'd love to have a packed house for it.

"The show is very special for the patients. The young people that put on the show make it personal for them, and even sing to them individually at times. I've seen more than one teary-eye in the audience in the past."

Hanslik said the show is high-energy and features some very talented performers.

"These kids are the most vivacious and talented group I've ever seen," said Hanslik. "I've seen them make as many as 15 costume changes in the course of a one-hour show. It's really a lot of fun to watch, and their dancing and choreography are amazing."

In addition to the Department of Veterans Affairs, two national organizations support this program. The Bowlers of America (BVA) charity for hospitalized veterans, provides financial assistance for tour costs and the Benevolent Protective Order of the Elks (BPOE) provides lodging for Re-Creation touring groups.

Re-Creation "Dancin' in the Streets" spotlights great songs and great stars as America's young ambassadors to hospitalized veterans focus on this nation's best loved music. Dynamic vocal renditions are enlivened by intricate, disciplined dance and choreography as the stage and the entire room virtually erupt with Re-Creation excitement.

Re-Creation was founded in 1973 and has performed in all 48 of the contiguous United States. Credits include appearances at some of the nation's most prestigious fairs and festivals, at local, regional, state and national corporation banquets and conventions, and at major resort areas. Civic clubs, fraternal groups, schools, and public and private organizations now keep Re-Creation booked for more than 300 concerts each year.

Re-Creation travels with comprehensive sound equipment and staging materials. Each Re-Creation performance is a full variety production designed to provide unique and satisfying musical entertainment.

mance of the Copland pieces has rather personal ties for him, thanks to his musical education.

"I have a special fondness for Copland's music as I am one of his grandstudents. That is, my composition teacher, Michael Hennagin, was a protégé of Copland while at Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia," he said. "I was fortunate enough to meet Copland on a number of occasions when he came to visit my teacher."

Graumann said the members of the Big Spring Symphony Chorus will join the orchestra on the second-half of the program in a performance of "Porgy and Bess Suite," composed by George Gershwin.

"This will be only the second performance of an arrangement by principal guest conductor John Giordano," said Graumann. "Featured soprano soloists will be Joyce Bradley singing 'Summertime' and Claudette Forward performing 'My Man's Gone' and 'Leavin' Today.'"

"The Big Spring Symphony Chorus has worked very hard in preparation for Gershwin's 'Porgy and Bess Suite,' which will be apparent in their performance," said Graumann. "The arrangement is by my good friend and teacher, John Giordano. Being asked to perform amass, a short jaunt down the road to Big Spring is almost like a vacation to the Gilberts.

"We usually leave for shows on Thursday night, and get home by Monday. It depends on how far away we have to go," Elizabeth said. "But it's OK. We get to meet a lot of different people ... and that's fun."

"Some of the shows we attend are pretty far off," Cade concedes. "But if you enjoy travel and meeting people, this is the thing to do."

The Gilberts have been on the road for the past four years, but have only recently branched out their operation to include the inflatable rides, which Cade transports to birthday parties and other special events when they're not in use on the show circuit.

The slide is not cheap — Cade said it cost more than $12,000 — but is highly popular, as evidenced by the fact that children were using it before the show even opened its doors at 10 a.m. Saturday.

"We saw one at an arts and crafts show ... and went out and bought one," Cade said. "We've taken it out on the road ever since."

Constant travel may not appeal to some people, but it's an almost ideal life for the Gilberts.

"This way, we get to spend more time with the family," Cade said. "We both enjoy traveling and being able to do these kind of things."

The show, which features more than 30 vendors, continues through 6 p.m. Saturday, and from noon until 5 p.m. Sunday at the fairbarns, organizers said.

He's becoming a MacStar

FOND DU LAC, Wis. (AP) — The record-setting consumer of Big Mac sandwiches couldn't stump a television panel on the new "I've Got A Secret" show, but Don Gorske says he got a surprise on his trip to the West Coast for the taping.

Thanks to his cameo appearance in the 2004 documentary film, "Supersize Me," that was highly critical of the fast food culture, he ran into autograph-seekers at the airport in Los Angeles, and teens used their camera phones to take his picture.

"I couldn't believe how many people recognized me," he said.

The Fond du Lac man earned a spot in Guinness World Records in March 2003 when the number of McDonald's Big Mac sandwiches he had eaten hit 19,000. He kept records showing he ate one or two every day since 1972.

His record is still growing. When interviewed by The Reporter of Fond du Lac about his trip, he downed No. 21,249.

The 6-foot Gorske has kept his weight at 180 pounds despite his diet.

The episode of "I've Got A Secret," a revival of a classic game show from the 1950s and 1960s, is expected to air in early May on the Game Show Network.

At Monday's taping, Gorske said each of four panelists had 40 seconds to try to uncover his secret, and the final panelist hit the target with a question about fast food, followed by one with the magic word — McDonald's.

"Then the crowd started to cheer, and he guessed it in time," Gorske said.

He returned home Tuesday $1,000 richer.

Mansfield is a nut in shining armor

Harvey Mansfield is a nut in shining armor. Mansfield is the proudly conservative Harvard professor who wrote the book "Manliness." In it, he describes truly "manly men" as guys who are strong, spirited, "often intolerant," "irrational," drawn to war and desperate for attention because they've got so much to say. (Generally, "Pay attention to me and my male problems!") The manly man achieves great things because, says Mansfield, "he is good at ordering people to get them done."

LENORE SKENEZAY

In other words, the manly man is a jerk just like your boss.

But not to Mansfield. While it's hard to make a case for self-deluding, order-barking, war-embracing blowhards, I guess someone had to do it (and the vice president was busy). Mansfield's book is making quite a splash as the latest rant against a society that has supposedly given women so gosh-darn many rights that manly men have been reduced to wusses.

Result? They are stuck doing things like helping out at home when they should be out achieving. After all, says Mansfield, "The best thinkers, the philosophers, have been almost exclusively male." (Never mind the fact that, for most of history, women weren't allowed to get an education.) In the workplace, he grouches, there are now laws against sexual harassment, even though truly manly men would never force themselves upon a lady. (The fact that plenty of men have harassed women means little to Mansfield, who longs for the days of chivalry the way women long for pay equity.) Women should be happy just ruling the roost, says Mansfield. But instead, they "want to be equal to men."

Imagine that. And somehow this threatens the manly man, who sounds about as sturdy as pantyhose. Perhaps the weirdest thing about this supremely weird book is that it keeps equating bravery with manliness. A manly man "prefers times of war, conflict and risk," says Mansfield. As if a true hero wouldn't strive for peace (as feminine as that sounds) rather than a chance to look macho on the battlefield...

At another point Mansfield insists that, "Manliness... restores order at moments when routine is not enough." Which is odd, because when the school nurse calls and someone has to rush off, no matter what danger this may pose to employment, most of the selfless routine-breakers are known as "moms." Women are just as brave as men, but in less sword-rattling ways.

Mansfield believes a society that recognizes women's equality and treats them fairly is somehow being unfair to men. That's not only unchivalrous, it's whiny.

Key Club says thanks

To THE EDITOR,
The Big Spring High School Key Club would like to publicly thank the community for contributing to their fund-raising efforts while the group was selling Krispy Kreme Donuts.

We would also like to thank our parent organization, Big Spring Kiwanis, for their support, contributions and help over this last year. Without them and their representation, Key Club would not be able to exist and we truly cherish and respect each member of Kiwanis.

Throughout the year, we often don't take the time to thank each business and individual in our community who has helped us in some way and we hope this will reach each of you to let you know how much we appreciate the support you all have shown our organization.

Our members love to get out and show their dedication to their school and community and we hope that shows through their hard work and participation in Key Club.

A big round of "thanks" goes out to the BSHS Principal, Mike Ritchey, as he has helped enable our club to be the best we can be.

YOUR VIEWS

Local groups such as the Big Spring Symphony and AMBUCS have aided Key Club in our quest to lend a hand when assistance is needed at various events.

Key Club members have also been instrumental in lending their time to tutoring at Kentwood Elementary in recent months.

Because Key Club depends solely on donations and fund-raisers throughout the year, we want you to know our school and community helps provide us with the means to do our job and that is doing whatever it takes to make a difference.

Once again, thank you all for your support and we look forward to helping serve BSHS and our community.

Just fade away

To THE EDITOR,
I would like to thank the Herald for being fair and balanced during the past Primary. The Herald gave all candidates a fair chance to air their views. I would like to say thanks to those who exercised their right and voted.

I have a couple of things to say and will close:

I would like to repeat, it would be a travesty to build a county jail without the assistance of the city of Big Spring. It makes sense for the Commissioner's Court to allow the Mayor to offer again, the city's support.

It is amazing to me that the Texas Health and Human Services Commission is continuing with a plan to close hundreds of local Human Service offices where people in need go to access community care and replace them with four regional call centers. This plan will make it more difficult for Texans to access state health and human services.

Many will just fall through the cracks. Sometimes progress is not progress. Please, write your congressman.

In closing, let me say, it has been a pleasure to serve as city councilman for Big Spring. I hope in some small way I made a positive difference in people's lives. However, I hear you Howard County, especially Big Spring. My wife and I will try and fix up the house and place it on the market in a few months and, except for fond memories, just fade away.

God bless you all!

Finally some politicians with courage

Now that a silent majority is finally speaking out, demonstrating across the nation against draconian measures that would turn illegal immigrants into felons, perhaps President Bush and some lawmakers have found the courage to confront immigrant-bashers.

"No one should pretend that immigrants are a threat to American identity," Bush said Monday, "because immigrants have shaped America's identity."

Of course, to most Americans, this is a well-known fact. But since the loudest protests had been coming from the extreme, xenophobic right — especially on conservative talk-radio and the Fox News cable TV channel — few politicians had demonstrated the leadership required to shut them up.

Immigrant-bashing was becoming the new American pastime. Using Sept. 11 and terrorism as an excuse to thrash other human beings, some loud Americans had taken their mean-spirited nature to new heights.

But now that massive demonstrations have been held in numerous American cities, now that students, labor unions and church and business people are showing the politicians that there is another side to this debate, the tide is beginning to turn.

Until now, it had been easy for the politicians to go along with the bashing. After all, illegal immigrants don't vote.

But now that voting Americans are showing that they have more compassion than the heartless ideologues leading the House of Representatives, there is reason to feel optimistic about solving the nation's immigration problem.

On Monday, while approving a plan to double the current 11,300-person force of Border Patrol agents, the Senate Judiciary Committee also agreed to create a guest-worker program that would give 12 million illegal immigrants currently in this country a chance to stay and earn U.S. citizenship.

This goes further than the guest-worker program Bush had proposed. Scared of the bashers that are part of his conservative base, Bush has kept insisting that he is opposed to any form of amnesty. Under his plan, temporary workers would be required to go back to their country after six years of labor in the United States.

For the illegal immigrants who are already settled here, the Bush proposal made little sense. Most of them would not sign up for such a program.

But under the comprehensive legislation approved by the committee Monday, which should now go to the full Senate for debate, million of illegal workers would come out of the shadows, and America would become a much more secure nation.

If security is what really concerned them, wouldn't it be better if we could identify everyone who lives in this country?

Nevertheless, some Republican senators, including Majority Leader Bill Frist, are still vowing to prevent the committee's bill to be debated by the full Senate. Frist, a Tennessee basher, subscribes to the enforcement-only approach to dealing with illegal immigration.

In December, the House approved an enforcement-only plan that would criminalize not just illegal immigrants, but anyone who gave them humanitarian assistance.

Under the House plan, churches and charitable groups, as well as individuals, could be subject to prosecution simply for helping another human being.

As a nation, we should be ashamed that it got as far as it did.

Thankfully, the Senate Judiciary Committee rejected the House's get-tough approach by refusing to turn compassionate Americans into criminals. An amendment by Sen. Dick Durbin, D-Ill., would protect us from criminal prosecution for providing food, shelter, medical care and counseling to illegal immigrants.

By adopting a plan similar to the one that had been proposed by Sens. John McCain and Ted Kennedy, in spite of objections from some Republican members, the judiciary committee has shown the leadership that is still lacking from the White House.

The time has come for the President to get off the fence and stop sounding like a broken record. He keeps proposing a plan equally opposed by those on the left and on the right of the immigration debate.

"No one should play on people's fears or try to pit neighbors against each other," Bush said Monday at a swearing-in ceremony for 30 new American citizens.

But those are just words, Mr. President. The time has come for you to show some real leadership.

It's time for you to say that we will reinforce the borders and crack down on future illegal immigration. But it's also time for you to take a stand on allowing America's 12 million illegal immigrants to earn a chance to stay.

Look at it this way: Now that demonstrators are on the streets, Republicans can no longer expect to fool Latinos into voting for them.

Man accused in torture case faced allegations before

FORT WORTH (AP) — A man accused of kidnapping and torturing his former girlfriend was accused of committing a similar crime, a year ago, police and court records show.

Robert Drew Stephenson, 43, was being held at the Mansfield Jail on charges of aggravated kidnapping, aggravated assault with a deadly weapon and retaliation.

He was arrested Tuesday after a woman told police he beat, raped and tortured her during the nearly three weeks he held her captive. The 42-year-old woman said he hung her by her feet from a rafter, burned her back with a blowtorch and then poured drain cleaner over it.

Stephenson faced similar allegations last year from a 29-year-old Forest Hill woman he had dated. That woman told police Stephenson beat her, used a makeshift electrical device to shock her and forced her to have sex. Stephenson beat her and unplugged the telephones so she couldn't call police, she said. He placed a soldering iron near her eye and threatened to burn her eyes if she called police, according to a police report.

"He is sick," said Carla McCollum, the woman's relative. "He scared me to death. When he gets into one of these rages, he's a totally different person."

Stephenson was arrested in April 2005 on charges of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon in the Forest Hill case. But a Tarrant County grand jury later declined to indict Stephenson in that case.

Authorities in the most recent case are investigating Stephenson's criminal history for leads on the current charges, said Betty Arvin, deputy chief of the trial division.

"This is a long, twisted road of victims, witnesses, allegations, withdrawn allegations, and counter-allegations," Arvin said. "Frankly, we're not going to comment on anything specific in past cases until we've sorted it all out and stand ready for trial on this one."

Stephenson was sentenced to 100 days in jail in December 2005 following accusations that he beat the Fort Worth woman and choked her until she passed out.

He was sentenced to 90 days in jail in March 2005 for assault on the teenage son of the woman in the Fort Worth case. Stephenson was charged with assault of his common-law wife in February 1996. The case was later dismissed because the woman was not willing to testify.

Pleas entered by two men in dynamite theft

WEATHERFORD (AP)—Two men accused in the theft of dozens of sticks of dynamite from a rock quarry have pleaded guilty to federal charges.

Bryan Newsom, 22, and James Hardin, 18, pleaded guilty Friday to stealing explosives in interstate commerce. They face up to 10 years in prison.

Both were accused along with Brett Garrett, 19, of taking the explosives from a locked storage facility at the Fort Worth Crushed Stone in Weatherford.

Former prison official pleads guilty to felony

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — A former top state prison official accused of sexual assault has pleaded guilty to reduced charges in a deal that lets him avoid prison time.

Salvador "Sammy" Buentello, 50, entered guilty pleas Friday to one felony charge of unlawful restraint and five misdemeanor counts of official oppression. In return, the three felony sexual assault charges he faced were dismissed.

OIL

ease prices, but analysts say they remain concerned about supplies from Iraq, Russia, Venezuela and other places.

Unrest in Nigeria has taken more than 500,000 barrels per day of oil off the market, and more than 300,000 barrels per day of Gulf of Mexico output remains shut-in because of damage from last fall's hurricanes.

With global oil demand expected to average 85 million barrels per day in 2006, and excess production capacity limited to 2 million barrels per day, oil analyst Jamal Qureshi of PFC Energy in Washington said prices aren't likely to retreat anytime soon.

"The market is awakening to the scope of the risks," said Antoine Hajff, director of global energy Fimat USA in New York.

Yet in spite of all the apprehension about oil supplies — or maybe because of it — U.S. inventories of crude are at a seven-year high of roughly 341 million barrels. That does not include the 685 million barrels in the country's strategic reserve, available in an emergency.

Some analysts point to this buildup of inventories as evidence the market is divorced from reality. IFR Energy Services' Tim Evans sees a "dangerous complacency about the downside potential for prices" — but many more say it is a reflection of unease about geopolitical uncertainties.

Friday, light crude for May delivery settled at $66.63 a barrel, down 52 cents on the New York Mercantile Exchange. U.S. retail gasoline prices averaged $2.53 a gallon, or 37 cents higher than last year, according to Oil Price Information Service.

The potential exists for $3-a-gallon gasoline at some point this summer, analysts say, but that assumes out-of-the-ordinary disruptions to refining or distribution, or both. The Energy Department, meanwhile, is forecasting an average summertime price of $2.50.

Economists and oil-market experts say industry and homeowners may not like paying more for fuel but they are adapting, in large part because energy is a tiny piece of overall spending and, thanks to more efficient technology, an even smaller piece than it was during the energy crises of the 1970s.

The burden is most severe on low-income families and fuel-intensive businesses, though truckers, chemical manufacturers and, to a lesser extent, airlines have had success in passing along these costs.

Relatively low interest rates, which have made it easy to borrow money while helping to prop up the stock and housing markets, have reduced the impact of high oil prices on the economy.

Of course, the Federal Reserve has raised short-term rates 15 times since June 2004 to cool off the housing market and keep inflation in check, and this is likely to slow growth irrespective of energy prices.

BMO's Cooper said the Fed probably needs to raise interest rates again in May to slow economic growth because there are signs — rising airfares among them — that inflationary pressures are creeping up.

Brian Hicks, co-manager of US Global Investors' Global Resources Fund, a mutual fund heavily invested in energy, said a recession in the U.S. would likely reverberate across emerging-market economies and could quickly depress daily oil demand by 2 million barrels per day.

That dire scenario is not what Hicks or most other financial professionals are anticipating. Hicks foresees oil prices trading in a range of $55 to $65 through the end of the year, with consumption tapering off anywhere above $70 and the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries curtailing production at around $50.

James Cordier, president of Liberty Trading in Tampa, Fla., believes oil prices will climb as long as the economies of the U.S., China and India continue to grow and that prices may need to hit $75 before there is any significant demand response.

"We are going to find out at what price level we start rationing demand," Cordier said. "That is what we have to do."

Different approach to Lent

BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP) — Instead of giving up the usual chocolate or coffee during the Lenten season, members of one church are adding something — exercise.

Advent Lutheran Church kicked off their six-week program "40 Days of Fitness" on March 1 to encourage members to get moving. The program offers free Saturday morning workouts, along with volleyball, yoga and cycling classes during the week.

Church pastor Andy Hagen sees the program as an alternative for Christians to the traditional sacrificing of the Lent.

"We like the idea that we would take on a routine of physical fitness instead of denial," he said. "The connection between fitness of the body and spiritual development has been a real exciting experience for people that didn't make the connection of the two, but the Bible makes the connection all the time."

Howard women win 10th straight, sweep EPCC

EL PASO — Howard freshman Alisha Rams had six hits in two games and the Hawks got two solid pitching performances from sophomores Paige Ruiz and Nicole Dickson Friday and took down Western Junior College Conference foe El Paso Community College, 10-1, and 7-4.

The conference sweep gives Howard 10 straight wins and improves its overall record to 26-6 and its WJCAC record to 14-2.

Howard started slow in the first game with no runs in the first four innings and a 1-0 deficit on the scoreboard. However, an eight-run seventh inning blew the game open as the Hawks won, 10-1.

"We hadn't played a game in awhile and the rain Tuesday didn't allow us to practice some this week so I knew we would probably be rusty to start off," said Howard head coach Kelly Raines. "It was good that we picked it up at the end though."

Rams had four singles in the game and scored one run and had one RBI to lead the offense. Ruiz gave up no earned runs and allowed just three hits while striking out six and walking two. Ruiz is now 12-3 on the season.

"Paige pitched really well and truthfully we shouldn't have given up the one run we did because it came after we misplayed a ball in the outfield," said Raines.

Freshman Jessica Garcia added two hits at the plate, including a triple, and also had a run and an RBI. Sophomore Amanda Kuramata went two-for-four with one run. Ruiz singled and was walked four times. Freshman Laura Lopez scored twice.

Howard jumped all over El Paso in the second game. Five of its seven runs came in the first two innings.

Much of the damage at the plate was done by

COAHOMA — Behind the strong arm of senior Tad White and the powerful swing of freshman Donnie Garcia, the Coahoma baseball team withstood a tough challenge from District 4-2A rival Hawley Friday and improved to 3-0 in the league with a 10-8 victory.

White, who is the team's ace on the mound, gave up six earned runs in six innings, but struck out 18 batters. He is now 9-0 on the season.

"It took him a little longer tonight to get going, but he adjusted as the game went along," said Coahoma head coach Brad Harman. "He beared down for us and was able to get the outs we needed."

Garcia might be swinging the team's hottest bat right now. He had three more hits Friday, including a home run over the wall in left field.

"He's not your typical freshman," said Harman. "He is so relaxed and just loves to play the game. He has been a pleasant surprise."

Coahoma jumped out to a 3-1 lead after the first inning, but all three Bulldog runs were unearned. Both teams scored four runs in third inning to make the score 7-5 in favor of the home team.

"We created some plays in the first inning and Hawley put itself in the COAHOMA — Before the start of Coahoma's District 4-2A contest against rival Hawley, Bulldogette head coach Robby Dickenson said he didn't know how his team would play because some of them missed practice during the week due to various circumstances.

"I just didn't know how they were going to come out because I didn't get a good read on them in practice this week because so many were gone," he said.

Although the 12-year streak of never losing a district game was not broken, the Bulldogettes struggled their way through a 6-4 win against the Lady Cats.

"I was surprised a little bit because I didn't expect to be down early in the game," said Dickenson. "Hawley put the ball in play and made things happen."

Hawley grabbed two runs in its first at-bat and scored another run in the third inning to lead 3-0 after three frames. But, a big bases loaded double to the wall by senior Sarah Dunn gave Coahoma a lead it wouldn't relinquish.

"Sarah had a really good night at the plate," said Dickenson.

Dunn smashed all three runs home to tie the game and then was able to score on the hit later as she advanced to third after Hawley threw home and then an error on a throw to third allowed her to score.

No. 8 Coahoma added two more runs in the fifth inning to make it 6-3 before Hawley scored one in the sixth.

Junior Ami Martinez singled to start off the fifth inning and then senior Ashle New knocked home Martinez with an RBI PLAINVIEW — Big Spring's Megan McCormick shot a 92 Thursday in Plainview to lead the Lady Steers during the first round of District 4-4A competition.

McCormick is 10th overall and the Lady Steers are currently sitting fifth as a team with a 390. Amber Miller shot a 94 to hold down second on the team and Cassie Guinn added a 98. Porscha Knowlton shot a season-best 106, while Joy Seay fired a 109.

Hollis Bancroft led the Big Spring medalists with a 114. Sophia Gonzales shot a 117 and Cecili Acosta fired a 130.

Andrews' 'A' team is leading the team competition and has four of the top five individuals. The Lady Mustangs shot a first-round 330 and is leading Andrews' second team by 21 strokes. Addison Long leads the way individually after shooting a 77. Kaylan Brownlee shot an 81 and Desiree Gallegos fired an 82. Jae Palentinos shot an 83 to lead the 'B' team.

Plainview's top team is two strokes behind Andrews' 'B' for third and the Lady Bulldogs were led by Jordan Brumley's 84.

Frenship is five strokes ahead of Big Spring for fourth. The Lady Tigers are currently being led by Alexis Rice, who shot a first round 92.

The next District 4-4A tournament will take place at Shadow Hills in Lubbock April 4.

LUBBOCK — The Steers' bats stayed quiet Friday on the road against Lubbock Estacado disadvantage by making mistakes in the field," said Harman. "I also thought, on the flip side, we fielded the ball well and made just one error."

Collin McMillan doubled in senior Cody Griffith in the third inning to start the scoring spree.

Freshman P.J. Daylong added a two-run double and White finished off the scoring with an RBI single which scored Daylong.

Coahoma extended its lead to 8-5 in the fourth with the Garcia home run.

Dakota Teaff walked in the fifth and then scored two batters later after Hawley committed back-to-back errors.

White struck out three batters in the sixth inning, but Hawley still scored three runs to close to within one run. Wes Lambert led the charge with a two-run double.

Garcia began the Bulldog sixth inning with a walk and later scored the game's final run. Hawley again had trouble in the field as it committed back-to-back errors after two straight strikeouts.

"We're not going to lay down for anybody," said Harman. "Hawley gave us its best shot and I can honestly say there were two good baseball teams out there competing tonight. I never doubt these guys though."

Hawley began the seventh with a single off senior Kacee Coberly, but then a strikeout and a double play ended any chance of a rally.

McMillan was the instigator of the double play. He caught a hard line drive at second base and retired the runner on first base after he led too far off the bag.

"Collin has made huge plays for us this year in the field," said Harman.

McMillan also had two hits at the plate in five chances.

The Bulldogs travel to Anson Tuesday before heading to Stamford Friday. Both games will start at 4:30 p.m. double. Senior Kalli Roberts walked and Dunn sent New home with an RBI single.

Roberts struck out eight on the mound, but gave up four runs on six hits. She settled down after giving up two early runs in the first inning. Roberts struck out two in the second inning and then struck out the side in the fourth. Hawley's run in the sixth came on three straight hits.

"She pitched well, but Hawley had her timing down," said Dickenson. "We got hurt a little bit on the short game. It caught us off guard."

Dunn finished with two hits and four RBIs on the night. New had two hits and scored two runs while walking once and knocking in one run. Martinez also had two hits and scored twice. Roberts singled, walked and scored one run.

The Bulldogettes played the game without starting centerfielder Liz Conley, who was ill. Senior Drew Wells also missed two days of practice during the week as she performed in a school play. Roberts missed one day of practice due to a death in the family and others battled sickness all week as well, according to Lopez, who accounted for five of the seven runs. She went three-for-four and hit her sixth home run of the season.

Dickson improved to 11-1 on the mound as she gave up seven hits and allowed four earned runs while striking out two and walking three.

"She didn't get the corners like she usually does so I told her to just pipe them down the plate," said Raines. "We were just hoping to outscore them and we were able to do that."

El Paso scored two runs each in the fifth and sixth innings and cut the Howard lead to 6-4 before the Hawks closed out the game with one run in the seventh.

Dickson also had two hits and two runs on offense. Rams went two-for-four as well.

The Hawks played two more games against El Paso Saturday in hopes of pushing their win streak to 12 games. Final results of the doubleheader were unavailable at press time.

BSHS cruising, power outage delays finish

LUBBOCK — The Big Spring softball team had things rolling along against Lubbock Estacado Friday evening before a power outage postponed the finish of their District 4-4A contest.

The Lady Steers were batting in the third inning already up 15-0 when the lights went out and power was never restored. The game will be started from where it was left off when Lubbock Estacado visits No. 17 Big Spring April 21. The regularly scheduled game will follow the conclusion of the postponed game.

The Lady Steers scored 12 of their 15 runs in the second inning. The game crossed in the first and without having three out in the third, two runs have come across. "We relaxed a little bit at the start, but they focused on the second inning and pitched in the first. Senior Amber Sides and Katy Abner also had two hits, two runs and two RBIs each. One of Abner's hits was a triple as well. The Lady Steers concluded their District 4-4A play Tuesday as Round 2 begins. Hawks continue to struggle, changes coming EL PASO — The Howard College baseball team had aspirations of earning a trip the College World Series before this year began in February. Thirty-two games later Howard head coach Britt Smith is left looking for answers as the Hawks split another conference doubleheader on the road, this time against El Paso Community College.

Howard, which is now 20-12 on the season and 4-6 in Western Junior Athletic Conference play, took down El Paso, 8-7, in Game 1 and then fell 12-9 in the second game.

"We are just not playing up to our potential right now and I am going to make some changes (Saturday)," said Smith. "We just weren't very good today."

The Hawks jumped out to an 8-0 lead after three innings of the first game and then gave up seven unanswered runs before pulling out a one-run victory.

"We were good offensively for a few innings and then played bad," said Smith. "We took bad at-bats and just didn't get it done at the plate. We were up 8-0 and had to hang on late and that can't happen."

Kenny Smalley started on the mound and gave up all seven runs in the first 4.1 innings. Adrian Bermudez threw the final 2.2 innings and got the win as he gave up no runs. He is now 2-1 on the year with a save.

Sophomore Daman Aaron hit his fourth home run of the year, a two-run shot, during Howard's three-run third inning. He also scored twice.

Sophomore Will Basom had two hits and two runs, while freshman Ryan Pruitt tripled and sophomore Jeff Storms doubled and had two RBIs. The Hawks found themselves with another early lead in Game 2, but this time couldn't hang on to it. Howard led 5-2 after two innings. El Paso grabbed the lead in the third with four runs and then put the Hawks away for good in the eighth with a three-run inning.

"We pitched behind all day and took some more bad at-bats," said Smith. "Our baseball knowledge isn't very good right now. We are playing selfish and just didn't get it done today."

Sophomore Matt Shepherd (1-1) earned the win on the mound as he came on in relief for Eamonn Donovan. Shepherd threw 5.2 innings and gave up five earned runs. Donovan pitched two innings and faced five batters in the third without getting an out. He gave up six runs on the day. Lance Brown got the final out of the game.

Sophomore Darby Brown, who will play baseball for Texas A&M next year, went three-for-five in the game after hitting four solid line drives with only one hit to show for it in Game 1. He singled, doubled and tripled mound for Big Spring, but his nine strikeouts weren't enough. He gave up five earned runs on seven hits.

Downing was bettered by Marcus Limon, who brought his 'A' game to the table Friday. He also went the entire way and gave up only four hits while fanning 13.

Estacado grabbed an early 3-0 lead after three innings and then added one run in the fifth and two runs in the sixth. Marcus Flores put the game away in the sixth with a two-run home run. Flores, a sophomore, has six home runs to lead the team this year.

The Steers threatened in the first two innings, but couldn't get any runs across. They have scored one run in two games and gotten just five hits at the plate.

Big Spring senior ace Andy Lasater sustained a jaw injury in practice last week and is expected to miss up to six weeks, which could ultimately be the rest of the season. He had surgery Friday.

Big Spring falls to 6-10 overall, while Lubbock Estacado improves to 10-14 overall and 1-2 in the district. The Steers will in Game 2 and scored three runs and had one RBI.

Freshman Barrett Lowenstein, who Smith said is the team's most consistent hitter right now, went four-for-four with four RBIs and two runs. Pruitt had three hits and three RBIs as well. Freshman David Fonseca had two walks and also got hit by a pitch.

Howard was planning on starting Ryan Robinson in Game 2, but tightness in his arm has forced him to miss up to one week. Sophomore pitcher Scottie Moore is also injured as he strained a muscle in his throwing shoulder.

The Hawks played two more against El Paso Saturday, but final results were unavailable at press time. Bobby Gonsoulin and Scott Stephen were expected to start on the mound.

The Hawks will return to Jack Barber Field this Friday and Saturday against WJACAC rival Clarendon College. The doubleheaders will start at noon both days.

Random acts of kindness

Alltel Wireless spreads name, and cash, across West Texas

By BILL MCCLELLAN
News Editor

Rich Gonnello sat down in a chair before reviewing some photos he had taken and pulled out a roll of cash register receipts several inches thick.

"We've been a number of different places in Big Spring and everybody's been pretty happy to see us," he said with a grin. "We've bought breakfasts, lunches and prescriptions for people. Then we went to the high school to meet with the band."

Rich and Abel Arias were in Big Spring this past week on behalf of Alltel Wireless and the company's Random Acts of Kindness program. Alltel, which acquired Cellular One in the West Texas area last year, is in the process of making the transition.

One of the ways Alltel is getting its name before the public is by going from town to town spreading the news — and some cash.

"They bought breakfast for everyone during the time they were here this morning," Herman's Restaurant co-owner Stina Wilkerson said Monday. "And every member of the staff was given cash.

"It was really something! I was so grateful for them for doing that. I think we gave them a receipt for almost $400," she said.

Rich and Abel — he's the "Good Deeds Guy" — said their purpose was to say that Alltel has arrived in Big Spring and "we want people in the community to know we will be a good neighbor."

The company, which is the fifth largest wireless communications provider in America, certainly was being a good neighbor Monday.

Rich — from New York — and Abel — from Los Angeles — flew into Midland last week and headed to Big Spring where they started their acts of kindness by buying breakfasts at 15 to 20 tables in Herman's and 10 or more at Dell's Cafe.

From there, they went to Leonard's Pharmacy and helped another eight people by paying for their prescriptions. Then it was on to Big Spring High School where they presented the band a poster-sized $2,000 check for the students' upcoming trip to Carnegie Hall. "It came as a great surprise to us and it sure was needed," said Rocky Harris, band director. "The students are very thankful and excited."

Lunch found the pair at New York's Finest Hot

Dogs. "We bought lunch there for about 20 people," said Rich, who was fascinated with the fact that a downtown eatery in West Texas could be owned by a New York transplant — Tom Tufaro — and decorated with scenes and mementos from the Big Apple.

"I had to take some pictures while I was there to show some friends back home," Rich said. After lunch, it was grocery shopping time and Abel greeted several fam-

By LYNDEL MOODY
Special to the Herald

All right procrastinators, here's a motive to file your taxes.

After finishing her tax return Jan. 31 at the H&R Block franchise in the Big Spring Wal-Mart, Dorothy Smith scratched her way to a $5,754 surprise.

Smith became a winner in the 2006 H&R Block Double Your Taxes Instant Win Game.

"I thought 'Lord, that's a lot of extra money,'" she recalled after scratching off the game card.

Tax specialist Leo Engele, who prepared Smith's tax return, and tax associate Cynthia Hernandez both said Smith seemed rather composed after winning such a large prize.

"She was sitting there calm as she could be," Engele said.

H&R Block representatives presented Smith with a ceremonial check Thursday at the franchise. Smith said she received a more cashable check back in February, about two weeks after she won the game.

Although the first this year, Smith is the second winner in Big Spring in the past two years. In 2005, the Gregg Street office produced a winner in the game, said Tommy Richmond, who runs the H&R franchise in Big Spring. Last year, 49 out of 50 possible winners walked away with extra cash in the nationwide contest.

Last-minute filers still have a chance to double their money. As of Wednesday, only 48 people have scratched their way to extra dough out of a possible 100 winners, Richmond said. Seven of those were in Texas, he added.

The game will continue to run

State hospital names top five employees

By VALERIE AVERY
Special to the Herald

Big Spring State Hospital CEO Ed Moughon announced the hospital's top five employees of the past year during Wednesday's Annual Commendation Awards Ceremony in the Allred Building Auditorium.

Commendation awards were presented to Donna Brown, admissions office; Ronnie Epley, information management; Roe Lynn Fuqua, RN, team nursing; Raymond Ontiveros, activities therapy department; and Jan Rios, acute psychiatric services for males/intensive observation services.

Commendation award winners are selected on their work performance, attendance and supervisor evaluations. A committee of past award recipients choose the winners.

A reception followed the ceremony, which also recognized employees reaching certain milestones in their careers. The annual program was dedicated to Dr. Elias Lopez, a 22-year veteran of Big Spring State Hospital.

"He is one of the elder statesmen at this facility but his energy level leaves younger men gasping," Moughon said of Dr. Lopez during the dedication. "He practices an open door and heart policy whereby patients, families and staff find him accessible and willing to listen and assist in any way to make life less stressful."

Brown was awarded a commendation award for setting a high standard for all employees through her professional and courteous interactions with new hospital patients, Moughon said.

"She flawlessly executes the complex and extensive admissions process and consistently achieves this level of performance even under extreme workload and stressful situations."

Fuqua has been instrumental in the success of her clinical team, Moughon said. "She thoroughly monitors each individual patient's health condition and provides key information to the patient's clinical team. She also is a very positive influence on other co-workers and has been a strong proponent for staff members increasing their physical activity and health awareness. This positive attitude is effective in promoting harmony in the workplace."

Epley has been instrumental in the design and implementation of the through Monday, April 17, the deadline set by the Internal Revenue Service this year to file taxes.

Don't despair if you are one of the many who has to pay a chunk of change to the IRS. According to the H&R Block Web-site, the minimum winning instant prize amount is $1,000.

Those who believe luck can strike twice can have their taxes prepared at the franchise in Wal-Mart during the hours of 11 a.m. to 9 p.m., Monday through Friday; 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

The office at 1512 Gregg St. is open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday. Residents can also enter by filing their taxes on-line at www.hrblock.com or enter by asking for a game piece through the mail. No purchase is necessary.

For contest rules or more information, visit the H&R Block Web site and click onto the double your refund icon.

As for Smith, she said she'll be back in 2007. "Remember next year," Smith quipped to Engele, "you be here. We'll do a repeat."

lies at H-E-B with the news that their groceries this week were on Alltel.

"That brought some smiles," said Abel. "A lot of people were happy about that."

The last two stops were the Dragon China Buffet for some free late lunches, then back to H-E-B to fill gasoline tanks.

"We took care of more than 40 tanks of gasoline for the grateful citizens of Big Spring," Rich said.

The two wrapped up their spree in Big Spring Monday afternoon, but only to move on to another location.

"We were in San Angelo Tuesday, Monahans yesterday and now we're in Pecos," said Rich on the phone Thursday. "West Texas people are really great. We've been so impressed by how friendly everyone is."

Their next stop was to be Carlsbad, N.M., where the two were to headed for more "random acts of kindness."

"Good neighbors do little things to make people's lives easier and better," said Rich. "That's what Alltel is doing today, and that is what our wireless service does for our customers every day."

inventory management of hospital computers and computer software, Moughon said. "She also has saved the hospital thousands of dollars through her conscientious and detail-oriented work purchasing hospital educational materials and utilizing online resources."

"Ontiveros' consistent and creative style of interaction in the greenhouse has produced the highest patient attendance of any modality in the hospital's therapeutic patient work program," Moughon said. "He creates individual horticulture activities which engage patients at many different levels of attention and energy. Through this array of different therapeutic options he has facilitated consistent patient progress toward recovery."

Rios has greatly enhanced patient safety by redesigning the patient monitoring system for the Intensive Observation Unit increasing the amount of staff to patient supervision, he said. "She also has completed a nine-month period supervising two hospital patient care units and even during this period of extended workload she has continued her outstanding supervisory skills."

Moughon also recognized the 2005 Employees of the Year for each individual department who were announced throughout 2005: Melissa Adams, Activities Therapy Department Employee of the Year; Chris Lopez, LVN of the Year; James Clark, Mental Health Worker of the Year; Fuqua, RN of the Year; and Billie Prophet, Social Worker of the Year.

Longtime nurse Shirlene Sulatan also was commissioned as an officer into the Navy Nurse Corps by Rosa Mancha during the awards ceremony.

Employees receiving 5-year awards from Assistant CEO Jok Simons were: Sandra Baker, Derrick Boone, Rosemary Charlton, Petra Chavez, Sharon Filson, Joelda Garza, Shawn Harris, Matthew Martinez, Deanna Smith, Christina Vaughn, Molly Weber and Steven Weaver.

10-year awards: Roe Lynn Fuqua, Darla Heffington, Dr. Gabriel Durand-Hollis, James Leonard and Mique Yarbar.

15-year awards: Horace Atkinson, Corliss Brehm, Shirley Davis, Darlene Edwards, Zoe Herrod and Suzanne Pearson.

20-year awards: Luis Flores Jr.

25-year awards: Dolores Garcia.

30-year awards: James Freshour and Jessica Rubio.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR COMMERCIAL OIL AND GAS WASTE DISPOSAL WELL PERMIT

CJ Energy, LLC, P.O. Box 2812, Midland, Texas 79702, is applying to the Railroad Commission of Texas for a permit to dispose of produced salt water or other oil and gas waste by well injection into a porous formation not productive of oil and gas.

The applicant proposes to dispose of oil and gas waste into the SAN ANDRES FORMATION, FANNIE BOYD Lease, Well Number 7. The proposed commercial disposal well is located 16 miles Southwest of Garden City in the Sprabery Trend Area Clearfork field in Glasscock County. The wastewater will be injected into the subsurface depth interval from 3710 to 4950 feet.

LEGAL AUTHORITY: Chapter 27 of the Texas Water Code, as amended, Title 3 of the Texas Natural Resources Code, as amended, and the Statewide Rules of the Oil and Gas Division of the Railroad Commission of Texas. Requests for a public hearing from persons who can show they are adversely affected or requests for further information concerning any aspect of the application should be submitted in writing, within fifteen days of publication, to the Environmental Services Section, Oil and Gas Division, Railroad Commission of Texas, P.O. Box 12967, Austin, Texas 78711 (Telephone 512-463-6792). #4918 April 2, 2006.

Dear Margo....

Dear Margo: In college, I was friends with a girl who was more wild and crazy than the rest of us. After college, she moved out of state and we lost touch. Four years later, I found out she was in prison for a nonviolent crime.

MARGO HOWARD

I liked this girl as a friend, and although she had done something wrong, I felt bad for her. I began writing her without thinking of the post-prison consequences, and we stayed in touch for a few months.

On the advice of friends who were also friends with her, I stopped writing because I got worried that I was putting myself in a position I wouldn't want to be in once she was released. Well, my friends were right. I was the first person she called when she got out and moved back to our area.

However, at 32, my friends and I are different now and have too much to lose should we unknowingly get mixed up in one of her scams. Her boyfriend has also served prison time (he is a violent offender and currently on parole).

After my first conversation with her, I avoided her calls. I wouldn't be surprised if she has driven by my house. I also learned, in the single conversation we had, that she lied about her living arrangements.

I don't know how to handle this. Should I just tell her I am not comfortable with being her friend, or do I continue ignoring her calls? Of course, avoidance is the easiest route, but I'm not sure if it's the best. — Avoiding the Jailbird

Dear Avoid: In this case, the path of least resistance just puts off the inevitable. You need to have a conversation with her. There are times when resuming a friendship after a prison term is the right thing to do.

In this case, however, the boyfriend and the dishonesty about details indicate that your impulse to lop off the friendship is right. When you do speak, tell her you wish her well but you feel unable to pick up where you left off.

And you might add that your feelings are not necessarily based on her having been in the joint. Don't let her push for further explanations. — Margo, unsuitably

ATTENTION PROPERTY OWNERS
Property owners have certain rights that may reduce their property tax burden.

HOMEOWNERS
Persons who own their residence on January 1, 2006, may claim their home as a residential homestead. The filing of this document is only necessary if the homeowner has changed homesteads since January 1, 2005, or has become eligible for additional exemptions since last year. Homeowners may also defer the portion of the tax on their residence homestead if the value of the home was raised more than 5% above the previous year. Although the tax collection is deferred, interest continues to run on the unpaid portion of tax at a rate of 8% per annum and the deferred tax remains a lien on the property. To apply for the deferral, the owner should contact the appraisal district which appraised the property in question and complete an application.

DISABLED PERSONS
Persons who are disabled under Social Security law are entitled to additional exemptions on their residential homestead. Disabled applicants must apply with the appraisal district and furnish a determination letter from Social Security. Disabled persons now received all benefits on their home that are available to over 65 persons (see below)

PERSONS WHO ARE OVER 65 YEARS OF AGE
Persons who are over 65 years of age or disabled persons may file for additional exemptions and a ceiling on school taxes for their residential homestead if they become 65 during 2006. Over -65 persons should apply for this exemption at the appraisal district office in their area. Over -65 persons are also eligible to defer paying the tax on their residential homestead if they wish. The taxes continue to accrue during the deferral along with an interest rate of 8% annually, but no attempt will be made to force payment during the deferral. Details and an application may be obtained from any appraisal district or the State Comptroller.

DISABLE VETERANS
Persons who have been declared disabled by the Veteran's Administration are eligible for additional exemptions on property they own. The declaration letter from VA is mailed annually, but the appraisal district only needs a copy in the first year of eligibility or if the percentage of disability changes.

FARM AND RANCH OWNERS
Farmers and ranchers may be entitled to receive an alternate method of appraisal determined by the farm income to the property. This method is available to farms and ranches commercially raising crops or livestock or which are used as a wildlife habitat under State guidelines. An application for agricultural use value and additional information is available from your appraisal district. Re-filing is only necessary if requested to do so by the Chief Appraiser.

EXEMPTION APPLICATIONS
Exemption applications for all property tax exemptions including total exemptions for charitable, religious, and other total exemptions may be obtained from an appraisal district nearest you or through the State Comptroller's Office at 1/800-252-9121.

ATTENCION CONTRIBUYENTE DE IMPUESTOS SOBRE LA PROPIEDAD
Duenos de propiedades tienen ciertos derechos que pueden reducir sus impuestos

DUENO DE HOGAR
Usted califica para una exencion general, si es dueño de su hogar el día primero de enero, 2006. La solicitud para la exencion es necesario si el dueño de la residencia cambio de hogar efectivo Enero 1, 2005, o califica para exenciones adicionales desde el año pasado. Un dueño de hogar mayor de 65 años puede aplazar el pago de una porcion de sus impuestos si el valoracion de su hogar de residencia aumento mas de 5% que el valor del año anterior. Un aplazamiento de impuestos sin embargo, solo pospone su deuda impositiva. Se aplica un interes de 8 por ciento al año y se mantiene una garantia sobre la propiedad. Para aplicar por el aplazo, contacte al distrito de valoracion de su condado y complete la aplicacion.

PERSONAS INCAPACITADOS
Personas incapacitadas bajo la Administracion del Seguro Social califican para las exenciones de dueño de hogar. Personas incapacitadas deben aplicar con su distrito de valoracion con su prueba de dishabilitacion del Administracion del Seguro Social. Personas incapacitadas reciben todos los beneficios en su hogar igual que personas mayor de 65 años.

PERSONAS MAYORES DE 65 AÑOS
Personas mayores de 65 años o dishabilitados pueden aplicar para mas exenciones. Usted tambien obtiene un tope de impuestos para el total de sus impuestos escolares si usted cumple 65 años de edad durante 2006. Personas de 65 años o mas tienen que registrar una solicitud por la exencion en su distrito de valoracion en su area. Usted puede aplazar algunos de sus impuestos sobre su hogar de residencia si lo desea. Los impuestos continuan a pesar del aplazo con interes de 8% anual, pero no se hace esfuerzo de abrir un juicio hipotecario durante el aplazo. La Contraloria de Cuentas Publicas de Texas le podra dar mas informacion.

VETERANOS INCAPACITADOS
Usted puede calificar para una exencion de los impuestos sobre su propiedad. Debe tener documentos del Administracion de Veteranos que muestran el porcentaje de su incapacidad relacionada a su servicio militar. El distrito de valoracion solamente necesita documentacion el primer año de calificacion o se su tasa de incapacidad cambia.

TERRENOS AGRICOLAS O GANADEROS
La valoracion/tasacion que terreno agricola disminuye el valor imponible del terreno. Se valora el terreno basandose en su capacidad para producir cultivos, ganado, o vida silvestre en lugar de su valor en el mercado de bienes y raices. Obtenga un formulario de solicitud en la oficina local de su distrito de valoracion. El tasador principal puede requerir que usted someta una nueva aplicacion.

SOLICITACIONES PARA EXENCIONES
Copias de solicitudes se pueden conseguir en el distrito de valoracion mas cerca de usted o del La Contraloria de Cuentas Publicas de Texas, en el 1/800-252-9121. Tambien se incluye solicitudes para exenciones totales para organizaciones religiosas.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

BY HOLIDAY MATHIS

When the moon is in Gemini, she's a jabber-jaw, tittering on about anything and everything new and exciting. Mercury and Jupiter are also in a loquacious mood, so the cosmic conversation is a lively background buzz, zinging with featured sound bites we humans might pull out of the air to start up our own interesting exchange.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). The force field around you while you are sleeping or in a meditative state is very powerful — dreams are not only vivid, but they are also revealing in a very meaningful way.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). It would be wonderful for you, the great money spender of the zodiac, to cultivate numerous ways of making money. You can do so with less effort than you think. Get more information.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Take your time. Everyone's process is different, and yours can't be rushed now, or you'll regret it. Soon, something will surface that makes the right decision obvious.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Life is energy. The energy you invest in a project is your life. Make sure your project is worthy of the precious attention you give it. Will its successful completion favorably affect many people?

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You have an unencumbered channel of expression, and the ideas are clearly flowing. You might consider making a living at something entirely new. Pisces and Aries people are your strongest supporters.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). It's a fact that the smarter a person is, the more engaged he or she might be in things that less intelligent people find mundane. This could explain today's simple fascination.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You do your best work when you are emotionally distanced from a problem. Clear your head; get away. Humor heals! Give your brain a break, and shell out the bucks to see the latest comedy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). You're an excellent communicator. Relationships grow stronger because of your way with words. Also, it doesn't hurt that your attractiveness quotient is sky-high now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). A project lumbers on. Change your strategy so you can break the finish line faster. Also, being exclusively in control of the thing gets tiresome. Accept input from as many other people as possible.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Like the elephant, you never forget. If someone offends you once, he seldom gets the opportunity to do it again. Today, make an exception. You will be rewarded for offering a second chance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You're feeling strong, ambitious and powerful. In fact, you seem so ready to take on the world that most people are wary of challenging you. So take it on!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). When you believe in your creative projects and talents, you teach others how to believe in you, as well. Having a positive opinion of your ability is a necessary component of being an artistic visionary.

FORECAST FOR THE WEEK AHEAD: The second week of the Aries solar journey radiates all the freshness of spring. Spring is for frivolity and foolishness. The best part about the silliness you experience this week is that it leads straight to substantial success. So there's unseen intelligence in the "illness" called spring fever. And maybe there's a benefit to getting caught up in the tender, green attitude of youthful pursuits. Do you dare succumb to unjaded enthusiasm for once-tired projects? Are you brave enough to give in to an aggressive drive to create and grow? Mercury and Jupiter are in such an auspicious arrangement for most of the week that you need only voice your desire (preferably with all the jubilation of a kid declaring, "I want a pony!") and Jupiter, the Daddy Warbucks of the zodiac, wants to give it to you. Once you start joyfully sharing your wishes, watch providence move.

On Wednesday, Venus, the love goddess of the zodiac, enters the spiritual realm of Pisces. We understand this spiritual energy well, having just come out of the Pisces solar cycle. With Venus steeped in the ethereal, love takes on a soulful quality. Those looking for romantic partners may be very content in a mind-and-spirit connection that has little to do with physical attraction!

CELEBRITY PROFILES: Lovely and legendary singer/songwriter/performer, Emmylou Harris is one artistic Aries who not only realizes her inner creative vision, she lives it. With Mercury, Venus and Mars all in musical Pisces in her birth chart, Harris continually mystifies her fans with her lyrical gifts. I see a big recognition for her this upcoming year, either on a film soundtrack or a high-profile collaboration!

Annie's Mailbox : Advice for those in need

Dear Annie: I am 26, slender, and I have been told I am attractive. I put myself through college, and I have a wonderful job that I love. My problem? I have never had a relationship that lasted more than eight months.

I am very independent, and I like it. The last man I dated told me I was too independent for my own good and that it would keep men at bay. Of course, I tried to shrug off his comment, but I can't help thinking that maybe he's right.

Whenever I tell people I am single, they look at me with those sympathetic eyes and say, "Oh," and then they are even more surprised when I tell them I am not dating anyone. Obviously, they can't figure out why I can't find a partner.

I am happy with the person I am, but I am also lonely. Was that guy right? Am I too independent for my own good? — Happy but Lonely

Dear Happy: It depends on what he meant by "independent." Are you giving men the impression that you don't need them for anything? That you aren't going to compromise any part of your life to accommodate a man? Did he feel unwanted, unnecessary and unappreciated?

Men, as well as women, like to believe someone needs them and cherishes having them around. If you are treating your boyfriends like accessories you can do without, that could explain the comment — and yes, it could be keeping men at bay.

Dear Annie: Is it me, or is anyone else tired of kids trying to sell candy outside of grocery stores? They make me feel guilty for saying "no."

I don't mind the Girl Scouts, of course, but almost every day, I see a kid outside the local supermarket selling the same candy that is inside the store, but at a tremendously inflated price. They never have an adult with them, and I never know where the money is going. Is there some kind of loitering law about this? — Feeling Guilty in Southern California

Dear Guilty: Most of these kids are trying to raise money for school programs, and they often need permission from the store to set up shop there. If you ask, they will tell you exactly what the candy is for. If you don't want to make a donation, simply say, "Sorry," as you continue walking.

KATHY MITCHELL

Dear Annie: When I read the column about estranged elderly parents and children, I had to write.

My mother is not the least bit maternal. She was never nurturing or comforting. When I was growing up, if Mom did something motherly for me or my sisters, she complained she was being "taken advantage of." She was hard on us so we would be "strong." Often she was neglectful and abusive.

Now, as an adult, I can see that Mom has many good qualities, although being a mother is not one of them. Some people are just not meant to be parents. While my sisters have chosen to eliminate contact with Mom, I have re-established a relationship with her as a friend, although I still don't think of her as a mother.

For people who are in pain because of estranged relationships, I hope they will fill that void by volunteering at nursing homes, hospitals, homeless shelters or even animal shelters. There are so many lonely people out there. By mending someone else's broken heart, we can heal our own. — Unwanted Daughter, Self-Fulfilled Adult

Dear Daughter: What a wonderful suggestion — and your timing is excellent. We are carrying on the tradition that April 2 be set aside as Reconciliation Day, a time to make the first move toward mending broken relationships. It also would be the day on which we all agree to accept the olive branch extended by a former friend or estranged family member, and do our best to start fresh.

Dear Annie: I am 29 years old and the youngest of six siblings. My sister, "Jackie," who is two years older, revealed a couple of years ago that she had been sexually abused by our brother, "Jim," when she was 5 years old. The abuse lasted four years. Jim is seven years older than Jackie.

At the time she revealed this, Jackie told anyone and everyone, except Jim and his wife. Jackie's therapist told her to confront Jim in order to heal, so last year, she had a long talk with Jim. From what Jackie has told me, they had a really good conversation and Jim was willing to do anything — go to therapy with her, confront the family, etc. — to make sure she would get better. Jackie was very satisfied with his willingness to help her, but she told him there wasn't anything for him to do and that she was glad to finally be able to talk to him about it.

Jackie told Jim she didn't see the necessity of telling Jim's wife, but had no objection if he wanted to discuss it with her. As far as I know, Jim hasn't told his wife anything.

I don't know why I'm having such a problem with this, but I don't think it's right that our entire family knows about the abuse, yet Jim's wife is kept in the dark. My real concern is that Jim and his wife just had a baby girl, and I want to protect her. I've considered sending Jim's wife an anonymous letter, but then I think about Jackie, and I don't want her to be hurt anymore.

I think Jim is getting off easy by not telling his wife about his past. Please advise. — Stuck in Phoenix

Dear Phoenix: You may have cause for concern, but try not to usurp Jackie's authority to tell Jim's wife. Discuss it with your sister and explain that you worry about your niece, and that Jackie would never forgive herself if something happened that she could have prevented. It is a good sign that Jim is so willing to admit the abuse and get therapy, and we suggest she take him up on the offer.

Dear Annie: My co-worker, "Sue," monopolizes every conversation, whether it concerns her or not. She answers questions that are directed to me and butts in on issues that don't concern her. I've tried fighting back, but the effort seems futile.

Our manager and everyone else thinks Sue is wonderful since she organizes parties and sends funny e-mails. She is doing all these things while the rest of us work. I have 20 years in my job and cannot leave because my husband is disabled and I have a family to support. Please help. — Tired of Being Pushed Aside

Dear Tired: If everyone else thinks Sue is wonderful, you aren't going to make much progress complaining, so it would be best to learn some coping skills. Don't get into power struggles with Sue. When she butts in to your conversation, say politely, "I'm sorry, I think that question was directed at me," and then answer it before she tries again. Make sure you receive appropriate credit for your work and ideas, but otherwise remain as pleasant to Sue as possible.

Dear Annie: I am writing in response to the letter from "Concerned Grandparents," whose grandson says he has times when he "spaces out."

Please tell the grandparents that this could be a sign of petit mal epileptic seizures. Our daughter also had that kind of problem when she was 11. She eventually had a grand mal seizure, and that's how we learned she had epilepsy. The mother of that boy needs to have him seen by a neurologist. — Vermont

Dear Vermont: Another reader also suggested a neurologist, saying the boy could have a brain tumor. We hope the parents will have their son examined thoroughly.

The bidding:
South 1♥ West Pass North 3♥ East Pass
4♥

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

There are basically two ways for declarer to play this hand. One is right and the other is wrong.

Let's say West begins by leading three rounds of diamonds, declarer ruffing the third. South sees that he has two likely club losers and that his best chance for the contract is to try to arrange an elimination play, which may or may not succeed.

He therefore cashes the A-K of trumps, followed by the A-K of spades and a spade ruff, eliminating all the spades and diamonds from both hands. South then plays the ace and another club. When West wins the club with the queen, he is forced to return a spade or a diamond. This allows dummy to ruff as South sheds his other club loser, and the contract is made.

That's one way to play the hand. It's good, but it has a flaw: When South cashes the ace of clubs at trick nine, West, who has been observing the developments to this point, may be shrewd enough to drop his queen on it. Declarer then loses two club tricks and goes down one.

But declarer has a better method of play that is almost certain to succeed. Instead of telegraphing his plan of action so clearly, which allows an alert West to counteract it, South should disguise his intentions so that it will not be so easy for West to realize what is going on.

At trick four, declarer should lead a trump to the king and then play a club to the ace. It would be next to impossible for West to drop his queen on the ace at this stage. He is not in position, so early in the play, to read declarer's intentions.

From West's viewpoint, South may be planning to take a club finesse later in the play, so dropping the queen of clubs under the ace might seem suicidal to him. He is therefore far more likely to play low on the ace. If he does, he becomes subject to the elimination play and cannot later wriggle out of it.

Tomorrow: Famous Hand.

Steve Becker

Steve Becker, an award-winning bridge player and an acknowledged authority on the popular card game, writes "Contract Bridge," which appears daily in more than 200 newspapers nationwide.

The popular column, which is distributed by King Features Syndicate, first appeared in newspapers in 1956 and was created by Becker's father, the champion bridge player B. Jay Becker.

Steve Becker began collaborating with his father on the feature in 1982, taking over completely upon his dad's death in 1987.

The column has become a bible to bridge aficionados and has been voted a reader favorite over other long standing bridge columns.

Becker is not content to rest on his laurels. He remains active in contract bridge competition.

In June 1996, Becker and his brother, Michael, were on the same team that won the prestigious Reisinger Trophy, which is considered the premier event in the New York bridge calendar. Their exploits merited three columns by Alan Truscott in The New York Times.

The Reisinger is just one of many triumphs for the columnist, who compiled victories in the Goldman Pairs (1993) at the annual Eastern States Regional tournament in New York, and the North American Swiss Teams (1980) at the Fall North American Championships. He has represented New England seven times in the North American Open Pairs and Teams finals.

Becker was born in New York City. His father was recognized as one of the world's leading bridge players for more than 50 years, and Steve inherited a love for the game. While he was attending Queens College, his devotion to the game continued to grow, making him wish to pursue bridge professionally.

He began working as an assistant editor for the American Contract Bridge League in 1964, holding that position until 1970, when he was appointed executive editor of the ACBL's monthly publication, the Contract Bridge Bulletin, with a circulation of 200,000. He edited the magazine for three years before resigning his position when the organization moved from Greenwich, Conn., to Memphis, Tenn. in late 1972.

Becker has contributed to several books on bridge and has written extensively for bridge magazines. He also teaches bridge and runs duplicate bridge games in Fairfield County, Conn., and Westchester County, N.Y., operating out of his home in Connecticut.

Cheryl Ladd doesn't mind playing a grandma for new Hallmark movie

HOLLYWOOD — Some actresses refuse to play mothers, fearing they will be stigmatized by the "older woman" syndrome.

Cheryl Ladd, once known as the sexy younger sister on the classic TV series, "Charlie's Angels," has no problem with that. Not only does she play the long-time wife of casino boss James Caan in NBC's "Las Vegas," in her next project she fluidly ages from 50 to 75.

Portraying a tender grandmother in the Hallmark Channel's "Though None Go with Me," premiering April 8, was no sacrifice, says Ladd, still looking pert, petite and pretty with her champagne-colored shoulder-length hair and luminous eyes.

"I loved that," she says, "it was very freeing. It was only about the acting and only about the character. It wasn't about being glamorous, or thin enough or beautiful or any of those things. It was truly about this woman and her life. And it was so freeing to be able to go to work and realize I can eat whatever I wanted at lunch and didn't have to worry about fitting into my wardrobe or how I'll look in it."

Most of her life, Ladd has wanted to be an actress. And at 54, she says there's no dearth of roles. "As I get older the parts are more interesting and better. Not a lot of them out there, but they're out there if you look," she says, settling at a table in a restaurant here.

Dressed in a black suit jacket, form-fitting jeans, a printed scarf around her neck and sun glasses propped on her head, she may look like a California girl, but at heart she's still Cheryl Jean Stoppelmoor of South Dakota.

A kind of positive optimism has been with Ladd ever since she left her hometown at 18. She traveled the country with a band until the group broke up. Still with dreams of performing, she landed in L.A., where she stayed with a retired vaudeville family until she learned the ropes.

Her girl-next-door looks attracted ad companies and she was soon negotiating commercials for dog food, beer and cars. "During all the Laker games I would be the ARCO girl and do all these ARCO commercials," she recalls.

"I was teaching people how to conserve energy, how to tune up your car properly, how to select your tires and I was the ARCO girl. Six or eight I did for them. It paid my rent and my acting classes and gave me a chance to get on my feet."

Her very first job was as the voice of Melody in the cartoon "Josie and the Pussycats." "I did the 'Josie and the Pussycat' thing for three months and one of the young women songwriters became friends, and we got an apartment together. I had an apartment, $3,000 in the bank, a used Mustang car and I thought, 'It doesn't get any better than this,'" she grins.

Ladd was married for six years to producer David Ladd and had a daughter with him. But "Charlie's Angels" came along and threw her life into a maelstrom.

"The big mistake for me was that everybody said: you have to strike while the iron was hot. So besides the 15-hour-day, five days a week, nine months a year with 'Charlie's Angels,' plus all the wardrobe fittings, plus the publicity, during hiatus I'd record an album or do a movie-of-the-week. So I never had any downtime. I never had any real home, relax and enjoy the moment. In fact, during the period of time I was on 'Charlie's Angels' every one of us was divorced. It was just so much pressure on all of us that any marriage that had little problems in it, they were just so amplified because of the pressures."

In 1981 she married Scottish music producer Brian Russell, who had a 3-year-old daughter, Lindsay. Ladd's daughter, Jordan, was 4 1/2. "We raised the two girls together," she says. "Lindsay was so little she just thought everybody had two mommies."

She and Russell just celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary; Ladd extends her small right hand, displaying a glittering sapphire he bought her for the occasion. "What I liked about him was, when he was married, he was completely married - a good man," she nods. "And vice-versa. I felt the same way when I was married. I was married, no messing around, no hanky-panky. When we were both not married we looked at each other differently and had this old friendship together, and there were a lot of things about each other we liked and when that barrier was gone ..."

The secret to a lasting marriage, says Ladd, is "choosing the right person. And we moved out of L.A. 15 years ago. We live in the country - horse farms, vineyards in Santa Barbara County ... We moved up north and he designed our house. He's one of these guys who does whatever he sets his mind to."

Think you know an unforgettable character? Here's the chance for him to bask in his 15 minutes of fame. USA Network is on a nationwide search for the nation's most colorful characters.

Competitors can enter by logging on to www.showusyourcharacter.com to demonstrate, via video and photos, why they are unique by revealing personality, talents, distinctive ideas, wittiness, style, silliness, outrageousness, whatever.

Submissions may be made until April 28 and will be reviewed by a casting agency that will narrow the field to 30 finalists.

tives. The winner will be seen in a national on-air campaign on the network; featured on the silver screen on AMC, on Cinemark and Regal Entertainment Group's FirstLook movie pre-show and will get an exclusive Web series of his or her own, which will live on showusyourcharacter.com.

Filming has begun in Iceland for the second season of the wonderful kiddie series, "LazyTown," helmed by aerobic champ Magnus Scheving.

In its inaugural season on Nick Jr., the imaginative series ranked among the top five preschool shows on all of commercial TV. LazyTown airs regularly weekdays on Nick Jr. at noon (ET/PT) and weekends on CBS (check local listings).

The show features a red-headed moppet, a hyperkinetic good guy (Scheving) and a lazy, junk-food swilling baddie - all dynamic characters that even the grown-ups can enjoy. The show returns in May.

Denzel Washington is now in New Orleans filming his new movie, "Deja vu" with Tony Scott. He observes that the city is barely into the process of recovery. "It's a tale of two cities."

Most of the downtown district and French Quarter is intact. They still have wind damage, yet 80 percent of the town is ... I saw a great sign in the downtown that says, "Smile. Isn't that better?" They've been through a lot, especially when you ride around on Saturday. You see them doing whatever they can.

A lot of people are gutting the houses, back to the bones of the house, and letting it dry out. But there's nothing really to do until you can see if the levies will hold up. It's bigger than you can imagine, mile after mile."

'Ice Age: The Meltdown' leaves reviewer cold

The good news about "Ice Age: The Meltdown," is that the nut-nutty saber-toothed squirrel of the first "Ice Age" — the best, funniest thing in the movie — is back for the sequel.

He fights off Ice Age vultures and piranhas for his beloved acorn this time. He takes his lumps, Wile E. Coyote, fashion. He turns ninja, when need be. And his every wordless entrance and ignominious exit is a hoot.

The animation is much better, with convincing fur, more clearly defined water and no third-rate 3-D animated humans to clutter the look.

But otherwise, the movie has exactly the same flaws as its predecessor. It's a glacier-paced mastodon quest, just critters on the run — OK, slow, slow walk — from extinction.

Only a few of the jokes work. The one-liner friendly cast — Ray Romano as a woolly mammoth, John Leguizamo as a lisping sloth, Denis Leary as a bored saber-tooth tiger — has too little to say or do that's funny.

"Well, don't this put the 'stink' in 'extinction.'"

The ice is melting. The fear mongers are trying to cash in, but the naysayers are ignoring the obvious — "global warming." Manny the mammoth (Romano) is slow to catch on. But when he realizes the flood that's coming, he leads his herd (the tiger and sloth) to the promised ark — a gigantic tree trunk.

Manny has to endure the taunts of the other animals — "Haven't mammoths pretty much gone extinct?" And he has to wonder if

Along the way, they meet some Ice Age possums, at least one of whom appears to be a mammoth convinced that she's a possum. That would be Queen Latifah. And she's not hearing Manny's protests that they're the last of their species, that they need to, you know, hook up.

Her possum brothers (voiced by Seann William Scott and Josh Peck) are delightful studies in slapstick. Put them and the squirrel together and you've got a better movie.

Manny tries to hurry everybody along before the ice walls break and the prehistoric super-gators stalk them.

"There are continents moving faster than you."

Ellie (Latifah) keeps trying to make Manny more possum-like.

"Bravery is just dumb. You should try running away more."

Sid-the-sloth meets more of his own kind and has a "Toy Story"-"Madagascar" moment.

It's all very "Land Before Time," or "Ice Age" I, without the kids-lose-their-parents pathos.

You'll take your kids, yes. But don't be surprised if this one leaves them cold as you-know-what.

BIG SPRING HERALD

Fans drive energy level higher for Rustic Circle

HERALD staff report

Local alternative metal band Rustic Circle took top honors in its genre during the annual University of Texas at the Permian Basin Battle of the bands March 25, reeling in a third-place finish overall.

The band, which was formed in Big Spring several years ago, went up against other unsigned artists from all over the Lone Star State, and despite performing in bitter cold outdoor conditions, came away with a $200 prize.

"Man, you would never believe how cold it was," said the band's rhythm guitarist, Thomas Jenkins. "The wind was coming off the Mesa Courtyard on campus, which is huge, and cutting right through us while we were on stage. While we were doing our sound check we kept looking over at one another and laughing, it was so cold.

"We were just amazed at how many of our Big Spring and out-of-town fans came to see us perform. We had fans coming from as far as Austin to see us do a 30-minute set, and that's just amazing to me. It's kind of hard to comprehend at times."

Rustic Circle vocalist Rick Boiles said the pressure of the competition was pretty tough, but it paled in comparison to reaction from the fans.

"As we were waiting to take the stage for sound check, the crowd started chanting our name," said Boiles. "Oh my God, it was just an amazing thing. I got chills up one side of me and down another. We were all pretty pumped up for the performance, but hearing that from the crowd was just amazing."

Despite having been around several years and going through a number of different personnel changes, Boiles said being on stage is something he never gets tired of.

"There's just so much energy and adrenaline, it's really hard to explain unless you've ever been there," said Boiles. "Every show is different, and every crowd behaves differently. Sometimes the crowd is stand-offish and reserved, and sometimes they just want to get as wild and crazy as they can.

"It's such an amazing feeling to go up there and know they are there to see what we've crafted. They're here to hear the songs we've created. And that's a very personal thing for me because I write from my life. I write a lot of our songs about things that have happened to me and my family, and that's a very personal thing."

Boiles' son, Dcminick, who plays lead guitar for the group, said he wasn't sure what to expect before the show.

"There's a lot of nervous tension before a show. When it's a competition like that, there's a lot more on the line in your mind," said Dcminick. "In some ways, you just want it to be over so you don't have to keep wondering how you'll do. Sometimes you play these things and the judges love you, and sometimes they can't stand you. You just never know how it's going to go.

"The fans were just amazing. I was walking around before the show, and I was amazed at how many Rustic Circle T-shirts I saw in the crowd. Some of them are our hard-core fans, and they'll travel anywhere to see us play. But there were so many new fans, people we've only seen once or twice before. It just tells you you're doing the right thing, that your music is touching people.

That's a wonderful feeling."

"We've always been about the fans," said Jenkins. "A friend of mine told me one time, 'Don't talk about it, be about it,' and that's exactly what we've done. We've met a lot of other bands out there, both big and small, that are there to get a job done and go home, and we've never been like that. When we perform, we stay there until every autograph, shirt or DVD is signed. That's the least we can do. These men and women pay their hard-earned money to come see us play, and the very least we can do is meet them after the show and hang out with them for a little while.

"We've been on myspace.com for a while now, and when we ask people to add us to their friends list, we get all kinds of weird responses because they don't think we actually read their mail. We've even gotten a recipe for bread! And those people freak out when they get a message back and it's from one of the band members. They just expect us to be inaccessible because we're musicians, and we're not like that. I can say with a great deal of confidence we'll never be like that."

Drummer Garren Jernigan said the band's performance at UTPB showed him how much love the fans have for the band.

"When we went on stage, it was freezing," said Jernigan. "But you couldn't tell from the way the crowd was acting. They were just insane, chanting our name and getting the show going. It took a lot of guts for them to stand out in the cold all night waiting to see us. Even when we had to wait until after midnight to get the results, there were so many of them still there, ready to celebrate with us.

That's devotion."

Ron Meek, bassist for Rustic Circle, said he was impressed with the fans as well.

"I can't believe how crazy they got," said Meek with a laugh. "At one point I looked out into the crowd and there was a mosh pit going, and I was just amazed! When we finished the set and went to the front of the stage to throw some of our DVDs out to the crowd, they were still just as crazy."

With the UTPB battle under their belts, Jenkins said the band will have little time to enjoy the victory.

"We don't have a lot of time to sit around and talk about how great things are going," said Jenkins. "There's too much work to be done. We just released 'Walk Away,' one of our newest songs, and we're working on recording several others. Plus we have to continue to promote our DVD, 'Goin' All The Way,' which we now have for sale on our Web site.

"There's plenty of work to be done, whether it's performing and recording — or the dull side of the coin, which is the marketing and promotions. But there's rarely time to just sit around and bask in the glow," he added with a laugh. "We just want the fans to know we're doing this for them. It's our dream, but it's all about them."
