

Grand jury hands down indictments

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Drug cases arising from a recent undercover operation by law enforcement officials resulted in several indictments being handed down during Friday's session of the Howard County Grand Jury. Half of the 22 indictments returned Friday were the result

Wilkerson of a joint undercover operation involving the Howard County Sheriff's Office and Big Spring Police Department, District Attorney Hardy L. Wilkerson said. About 30 total cases arising from the operation have been submitted to Wilkerson's office, he said. Also indicted during Friday's session was Kurt Daniel Stapleton, 30, of Liberal, Kan., on two third-degree felony counts of failure to appear. Wilkerson said Stapleton was scheduled to stand trial Monday on charges of possession of methamphetamine and possession of methamphetamine with intent to deliver — offenses which carried penalties of up to life in prison — but absconded sometime prior to the trial. The failure to appear charges each carry potential prison time of between two and 10 years and fines not to exceed $10,000. Many of the cases presented Friday were of a housekeeping nature, Wilkerson said.

"A lot of those men were in jail, so we needed to present the cases to the grand jury," Wilkerson said. "We'll probably have a more extensive grand jury sometime in early August." Other individuals indicted during Friday's session were: • Scott Vell Autry, 23, Howard

Housing authority gets boost; grants will help local programs

By THOMAS JENKINS
Staff Writer

Housing in Big Spring got a shot in the arm to the tune of $120,000 this week, as the Crossroads Housing Corp. and Big Spring Housing Authority landed a pair of grants that will fuel two ongoing projects. According to Paul Pryor, director of both agencies, his offices received a $20,000 partnership grant and a $100,000 grant, part of the Affordable Housing Program (AHP). "Both of the grants came from Federal Home Loan Bank out of Dallas," said Pryor. "To get the AHP grant, you have to have a local bank sponsor you, and First Bank of West Texas did that for us. Also, on the partnership grant, we were sponsored by Wells Fargo and First Bank of West Texas. "The partnership grant is a capacity building grant, which gives us more room to do different things. It will help cover some of our expenses for

"It costs approximately $20,000 for each home we renovate. So this grant will give us the funding to work on five to six more houses. We'll basically be able to just roll from one house to the next."

Tax free weekend

'Discount' shopping begins Friday, goes through Sunday

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Everyone likes holidays and not paying taxes — so folks should love the upcoming sales tax holiday. Texas' annual sales tax holiday, in which most clothing and footwear priced under $100 is exempted from sales and use taxes, will be held Friday through Sunday. Many area clothing and shoe retailers will participate in the annual event, which is expected to approach Christmas-season levels of sales. Information from the State Comptroller's office states that customers will receive the tax break on individual items, regardless of the total amount they buy.

For example, sales tax is not due if a customer buys six shirts priced at $99.99 each. But full tax is due on any item sold for $100 — the first $99.99 is not exempt, the information states.

There are exceptions, however. Clothing and footwear used primarily for athletic activities, such as golf cleats or football pads, are not exempt from sales tax. However, athletic wear which is also used for non-athletic activity (tennis shoes and baseball caps, for example) may be purchased tax-free.

Also excluded from the sales tax holiday are accessories such as jewelry and watches, items that are carried rather than worn (such as handbags and briefcases),

Tax exempt items

- Baby clothes
- Belts with buckles
- Boots - cowboy, hiking
- Caps/hats - baseball, fishing, golf, knitted
- Coats and wraps
- Diapers - adult and baby
- Dresses

Marie Austin Haralson

Marie Austin Haralson, surrounded by her five daughters, was gathered to her heavenly home July 13, 2006. As a mother, dedicated wife and truest of friends, she will leave a huge vacuum in our lives, but heaven has gained a beautiful new angel.

Marie was born July 28, 1923, in Electra, where she grew up and graduated from Electra High School in 1940.

While attending North Texas State Teachers College in Denton, she studied speech and education and was a member of the Phoureffs sorority. She received her Bachelor of Science there in January 1944.

On May 14, 1944, she married her high school sweetheart, Army Lt. Jack Haralson. After a short career in teaching, Marie dedicated her life to being the consummate wife, mother, homemaker and community member wherever Jack's chemical engineering career took them, from the deserts of West Texas and Saudi Arabia to the Pacific coastlines of Japan and California, and destinations in between.

Her favorite role as a corporate wife was being a tour guide to the many places they lived. Marie also enjoyed volunteering for numerous civic and charitable organizations and supporting her daughters' many activities.

Marie was preceded in death by her adoring husband, Cull Jackson "Jack" Haralson of Houston; her parents, William M. and Forest Gray Austin of Electra; and her brothers, Dr. Dale J. Austin of Lakeway, and Judge Russell D. Austin of Andrews.

She is survived by her sisters, Lois Mae Griffin of Sweetwater, and Billie Joy Owens and husband W.D. "Runt" Owens of Burkburnett; sisters-in-law, Anna Belle Austin of Lakeway, and Maureen Austin of Andrews; five daughters, Carole Jeanne Collins and husband Robert "Bob" Pasco Collins of La Marque, Nancy Lynn Condrey and husband William Victor "Vic" Condrey of Houston, Patricia Marie Haralson of Houston, Michele Leigh Haralson of Houston, and Melissa Katherine Rosandich and husband Daniel "Dan" Rosandich of Dallas; her grandchildren, Michael Corey Collins and wife Sarah of Webster, Lara Leigh (Collins) Beckham and husband Scott of Houston, Cliff Haralson Condrey and wife Georgina of Fort Worth, Clay Terrell Condrey and wife Melissa of Houston, William "Will" Lewis Condrey of Houston, Kristen Nicole Rogers of Chicago, Ill., and Rex Jackson Rosandich and Kellye Marie Rosandich of Dallas; and last, but not least, her first great-grandson, William Victor Condrey II of Fort Worth. Many special nieces, nephews and their families also survive Marie.

Our family wishes to express special thanks to her faithful, life-long friend, Ardath Grimes of Houston. Her presence and devotion will never be forgotten. Also, our heartfelt thanks go to the saints we knew as her caregivers, Colleen Robinson, Sheryl Manning, Detra Williams, Afuah Boateng and Kenosha Strain.

A memorial service will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 12, at Chapelwood United Methodist Church, 11140 Greenbay in Houston.

USO vols provide the last farewell, first hello to troops

ATLANTA (AP) — Cheers and applause erupt as Capt. Corinne McClellan reaches the top of the giant escalator that leads out into the main concourse of Hartsfield-Jackson Atlanta International Airport.

A pair of red-aproned USO volunteers, who led the applause with other people waiting to pick up arriving air passengers, walk up to McClellan and give her and other soldiers hugs before helping them find their way to the airport's USO lounge or their next destination.

"It's pretty cool. It's the last farewell before we get on a plane," said McClellan, 28, a member of the 181st Transportation Battalion based in Gloucester, Va., who was in Atlanta on a stopover before her deployment to Iraq.

Providing the last goodbye to deploying troops and the first hello to those returning from combat zones is all part of Operation R&R, an effort at the Atlanta and Dallas-Fort Worth airports by local branches of the United Service Organization, the 65-year-old nonprofit group famous for its star-studded shows that entertain U.S. troops abroad.

"We want to support the troops," said Mary Louise Austin, president of USO of Georgia, whose husband is an Army veteran of the Vietnam War. "It's the morale they need, to know that when they're far away from home in a strange land that the American people are behind them."

While the USO operates lounges for active-duty troops at 28 U.S. airports, the Operation R&R program takes that hospitality a step further for troops fighting abroad with volunteers giving out care packages and gifts, greetings and send-offs, smiles and encouraging words at two of the busiest airports for troop transports.

At the Atlanta airport, USO volunteers man a welcome booth most days and lead the applause for arriving troops. They gather troops who are ready to check-in for their departing flights overseas and march them through the airport's main atrium before cheering crowds. At Dallas, volunteers are allowed behind the security gates to salute troops as they board their flights.

"People want to show their support for the men and women serving in a combat situation," Austin said. The volunteer-run Operation R&R was started at the Atlanta airport in November 2003, shortly after the Pentagon approved rest-and-relaxation leave for troops fighting in Iraq and Afghanistan. The program was expanded to the Dallas-Fort Worth airport six months later. Under the program, the Georgia USO has provided hospitality to 438,000 troops while U.S.O.

Dallas/Fort Worth has helped 250,000 troops. The program operates off of donations from the public and corporations.

"Traveling for anybody can be, especially in this climate we're in, annoying and frustrating and overwhelming. Many service members come in from small towns where one (airport) terminal is all they have — they arrive in Dallas-Fort Worth and there's five terminals," said Rhenda White-Brunner, director of USO Dallas/Fort Worth.

"At a time when they are contemplating returning to combat, if we can take away that anxiety of 'My bags are lost' or 'I'm late', we're taking that off of them as they prepare to go to what they have to do," White-Brunner said.

The USO groups give troops departing overseas a care package that includes a durable toiletry kit, a phone card with up to 500 minutes and other items, such as granola bars, candy or gum, and magazines.

Troops also are given stuffed animals. USO of Georgia has spent more than $70,000 for 27,000 special "USO Hero bears," Beanie Baby bears dressed in service uniforms.

Software developer Claudia Ludlow, 51, of Alpharetta, Ga., volunteers for six hours each month for the USO as a troop greeter.

"You can tell the ones who have been there — they are all sunburned," Ludlow said, referring to those who have been to Iraq.

She said the troops are always glad to see the USO volunteers.

"They really like it, especially when they have come from war," said Ludlow, who works for defense contractor Lockheed Martin Corp.

The troops also are directed to the USO lounge, where they can get a bite to eat, watch some TV, check e-mail or even take a quick nap. (McClellan said she used the Atlanta USO lounge for the latter option.)

"It's the morale they need, to know that when they're far away from home in a strange land that the American people are behind them."

another grant application for the project, so we're making progress," said Pryor. "We're further along now than we've been before, so I'm really pleased with this."

"The transitional services would mainly be for the VAMC — 75 percent of those served have to come from there — and the remaining 25 percent is expected to be used for domestic violence cases. After going to the safe house, women will be able to stay at the facility while they learn a trade, that way they can get on their feet."

Pryor said the AHP grant will help fuel Crossroads Housing's Fresh Star Program, which takes old, dilapidated homes and renovates them for resale to low income customers.

"It costs approximately $20,000 for each home we renovate," said Pryor. "So this grant will give us the funding to work on five to six more houses. We'll basically be able to just roll from one house to the next."

While Pryor and employees from both local housing agencies get ready to make good use of the new funding, Pryor said they are also in the process of moving the Big Spring Housing Authority to a new location.

"We're going to move the housing authority — which has been located at 711 E. Third Street for years — into the same office as Crossroads Housing Corp.," said Pryor. "I serve as director of both organizations, and from a logistics standpoint, it just made sense to have both operations under one roof."

Pryor said the two organizations, which will be located at 201 N.E. Seventh Street, will share space, are expected to complete the move by Thursday.

OUR VIEWS

It's a shame we couldn't save a little on new jail

There, it's done. Well, almost. Howard County commissioners voted 4-1 in favor of putting a multi-million-dollar bond election before voters in an effort to finance a new jail facility during a special session of the court Thursday morning. They have until Aug. 29 to officially order the election.

That, of course, means the cost of building a new county jail is going to cost more than just the millions needed to build and furnish the new facility. Commissioners made it clear Thursday they recognize they'll not only have the cost of holding an election — granted, it's small potatoes compared to the cost of building a new jail — but will also have to spend a considerable amount of money contracting with a public relations professional to help them sell the public on the need to vote yes in November.

That seems such a shame on so many levels. Commissioners were faced with a tough choice — they could issue certificates of obligation to pay for the facility and risk a petition drive that would force them to get voter approval for using that financing tool, or simply put the matter before voters in the November general election.

Most counties are using certificates of obligation to finance similar projects, but the prospect of a petition calling for a bond election does make that option less appealing.

And since local residents have already begun circulating a petition, it's pretty clear the politically expedient thing to do on the part of County Judge Ben Lockhart and Commissioners Jerry Kilgore, Emma Brown and Gary Simer was to vote for a bond issue. Commissioner Bill Crooker stuck to his guns, saying he believes using certificates of obligation made more sense.

The question that there is a need to build a new Howard County Jail should be obvious to virtually anyone at this point. The mere fact that the county is having to virtually jump through hoops in an effort to keep state officials from closing the existing 50-year-old facility should tell any Doubting Thomases.

And Commissioner Brown says she doesn't "think this bond election will fail," and that "people know how badly we need a new jail."

We're not so certain. From what we've observed over the past few months, there is a faction in this community that will not only oppose building a new jail, but work tirelessly to defeat any bond issue. Why else would petitions seeking to force a vote on certificates of obligation be circulating?

Well, we'll go on record today saying from everything we've seen, there's no question that Howard County needs a new jail facility.

And while we still haven't seen final plans and know an exact dollar amount that will be needed to construct the new facility, we're not ready to start telling folks they need to vote for a bond issue.

Not just yet. But it's going to take something really strange for us not to eventually do so.

A SMALL PRAYER

by K. Rae Anderson

May we be bigger, Lord, than the things that bring us to anger.
Amen

Some things need explaining

Random thoughts while getting a haircut: You folks are going to think I'm a pig — and Lord knows, you may be right — but I just had to share the following tid-bit off the Associated Press wire:

NEW BRAUNFELS (AP) — As officials attempt to crack down on rowdy behavior during traditional summertime tubing river trips through the city, a San Antonio topless club is planning a tubing excursion featuring strippers.

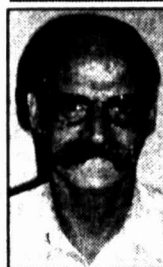

Trey Maddox, a manager at Palace Men's Club, said Sunday's excursion — during which men can pay $25 to join the strippers — isn't meant to fly in the face of the city's new rules.

"We're not hookers, dope dealers or Mafia thugs," he said, noting that the strippers will be appropriately dressed. "We're just coming to have a good time."

City Councilman Ken Valentine isn't so sure.

"I'm really disappointed that this is going to occur on Sunday, when people should be in church," he said. "I hope they behave themselves and keep their clothes on, but I'm not sure they will because strippers are trained to take off their clothes."

The New Braunfels City Council has been cracking down on rowdy behavior on the Comal and Guadalupe rivers in recent months, banning drinking devices known as beer bong, increasing the maximum fine for noise ordinance violations and prohibiting sound amplification between 10 p.m. and 8 a.m.

STEVE REAGAN

OK, Steve, be careful what you say here ...

First, any guy who shells out $25 to join the, uh, exotic dancers on this excursion has to be out of his mind. After all, what's the use of hanging around a bunch of strippers if they keep their clothes on?

I mean, I've hung around a lot of women who have been properly clothed, and it's hardly ever cost me $25. That's not counting one of my infrequent dates, but we're not here to talk about my pathetic love life.

But I'm not letting the councilman off easy, either. His comments make it sound like these poor women will be physically unable to keep their clothes on during the event. Poor things are "trained to take their clothes off," you understand. Makes them sound brain-washed.

I'm not going to make any comment about what kind of training that would entail, don't worry.

Third and (thankfully) lastly, I don't think anyone has much reason to worry about a bunch of naked women tubing on the Guadalupe River. I've experienced that in the past, and I'm here to tell you the water is cold under the best conditions — like if you're wearing Arctic survival gear.

Tube that river naked? Not going to happen.

It's time to update the Files of the Criminally Stupid:

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Some interesting items have been showing up in the potted plants at Wichita City Hall.

Since April, when the city installed a security checkpoint at the hall's front doors, guards have found several bags of marijuana and crack and other illegal goods in the potted plants, Capt. Joe Dessenberger said.

And it doesn't end at the plants. Police have found drugs, alcohol and other items stowed throughout City Hall, according to a report police gave to the city council Tuesday.

Among things found on both sides of the checkpoint: crack rocks, marijuana pipes and a bag of marijuana, an open bottle of whiskey in a man's bag and a woman carrying brass knuckles.

In the first 39 days of screening, City Hall security officers seized 3,457 prohibited items and detained 15 people, according to the police.

"We expected to be busy," Dessenberger said. "But not as busy as we've been."

It bears repeating: The sheer, rampant stupidity of drug users just leaves me slack-jawed.

What misfiring neuron in these bozos' brains convinced them to walk into City Hall carrying all manner of illegal drugs on their persons?

Someone please explain this to me.

"Honey, I have to go down to City Hall and pay that traffic ticket."

"OK ... but don't forget your crack pipe, dear!"

"Oh, thanks for reminding me!"

As an attorney friend of mine once said, the two most discouraging thing about these people is that they're old enough to vote and young enough to breed.

John Bolton must be confirmed

Why are Democrats — in the words of Sen. Christopher Dodd — promising a "bruising" battle over the confirmation of John Bolton as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations?

Bolton is serving under a recess appointment because Democrats twice filibustered a vote on his confirmation last year, preventing a full Senate vote. They were upset that Bolton had made disparaging remarks about the United Nations and that he was tough on subordinates. They were afraid he would alienate our allies.

Now they are sure he has done just that. Dodd said, "I'm sorry the administration wants to go forward with this. The problems still persist. Many ambassadors at the U.N. feel he hasn't done a good job there. He has polarized the situation."

There you have your answer. The liberals' opposition to Bolton lies in their attitude toward the United Nations, which they regard as a largely positive institution rightly frustrated with the arrogance of President Bush and the United States.

The New York Times made this very clear in a recent story on Bolton. The Times wrote, "The Bush administration is not popular in the United Nations, where it is often perceived as disdainful of diplomacy, and its policies as heedless of the effects on others and single-minded in the willful assertion of American interests. By extension, then, many diplomats say they see Mr. Bolton as a stand-in for the arrogance of the administration itself."

DAVID LIMBAUGH

Does the Times bother to refute this charge that Bolton and the administration are arrogant and unjustly alienate our "traditional allies"? Hardly. It's been one of the main critics of President Bush's alleged "unilateralism" in foreign policy.

Liberals don't like it one bit that Bolton sees his role as vigorously representing the national interests of the United States, just as every other U.N. ambassador advocates the positions of his own country. They don't support Bolton's efforts to reform the United Nations, a corrupt organization that has consistently mistreated the United States and made a mockery of human rights — a cause it purports to champion. They cringe when Bolton exposes U.N. hypocrisy, such as when he pointedly challenged Louise Arbour, the U.N. high commissioner for human rights, on his threat to charge Israeli leaders with war crimes.

They don't like Bolton's unambiguous defense of Israel's actions in response to Hezbollah's unprovoked attacks, in which they killed and kidnapped Israeli soldiers and shot missiles indiscriminately into Israeli civilian populations. They resent Bolton's rejection of the U.N.'s moral perversion in giving the terrorists a pass for their atrocities and portraying Israeli acts of self-defense as war crimes.

They shudder at Bolton's moral clarity, such as when he said, "I think it's important that we not fall into the trap of moral equivalence here. What Israel has done in response is act in self-defense. And I don't quite know what the argument about proportionate force means here. Is Israel entitled only to kidnap two Hezbollah operatives and fire a couple of rockets aimlessly into Lebanon?"

Bolton understands the nature of this conflict and its adversaries. Nothing could better characterize the respective warring forces than a recent cartoon depicting an armed Israeli soldier positioned protectively in front of a baby carriage while his terrorist enemy was holding his weapon behind a baby carriage.

As Bolton knows, it's hard to negotiate with savages of that mindset. That's why in an interview with Fox News' Brit Hume, Bolton dismissed Syria's requests for dialogue with the United States. Bolton told Brit, "Syria doesn't need dialogue to know what they need to do. They need to lean on Hezbollah to get them to release the two captured Israeli soldiers and stop the launch of rockets against innocent Israeli civilians." Exactly.

To put it bluntly, Republicans support Bolton's nomination precisely because of his clarity of thought and speech — and his unapologetic representation of America's interests. Democrats oppose him because they sympathize with the negative view of Bolton held by foreign envoys who have anything but the best interests of the United States in mind.

If it bothers you that we have a staunch defender of America's interests serving as our ambassador to the United Nations and believe, instead, that we should routinely subordinate our interests to other nations openly hostile to us and contemptuous of the very idea of human rights, then you, too, should join the liberal chorus against confirmation of this fine public servant.

Mother gets 80 years in daughter's smothering

FORT WORTH (AP) — A Keller woman was sentenced Friday to 80 years in prison over the 2005 smothering of her 11-year-old daughter.

Norma Jean Roberts, 50, was convicted Thursday of murder.

Roberts and her husband were divorcing and in a custody battle over their daughter, Kelsey, when the girl was found suffocated Aug. 5 at the home she shared with her mother.

Roberts had pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity.

The defense said Roberts was depressed and showed signs of mental illness.

Prosecutors said Roberts was manipulative and trying to get back at her husband, who filed for divorce earlier in 2005.

Detective fired over $8.40 in stolen paper goods

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Police Department has fired a detective accused of stealing $8.40 worth of toilet paper and paper towels from her patrol station, but the officer says her dismissal is related to a harassment complaint she filed against a colleague.

Senior Cpl. Stacey Wychopen, a 12-year veteran who investigated property crimes, was fired Thursday after investigators concluded she stole toilet paper and paper towel rolls three times last fall.

Four officers told investigators they saw Wychopen in the parking lot with bags or arms full of paper goods.

Wychopen told her supervisors she used toilet paper and paper towels once to clean up a spill in her city vehicle. She said the other two incidents didn't occur.

A telephone listing for Wychopen could not be found Friday.

In her internal affairs statement, she said she would never jeopardize her career over cheap paper goods. She accused her co-workers of colluding to lie about her because she filed a complaint against another officer.

In his statement to investigators, Senior Cpl. Roger Garcia said that wasn't the case.

"We saw what we saw," he said. Dallas police spokesman Lt. Rick Watson confirmed that Wychopen had filed a complaint but said he did not know any details.

He said she was fired for conduct that discredited the police department.

"She is a police officer, and she is supposed to uphold the law," Watson said.

Two teachers resign amid test-cheating suspicions

HOUSTON (AP) — Two teachers at a school once lauded by President Bush and Oprah Winfrey for spectacular marks by its poor black students have resigned after being accused of giving fifth-graders answers to tests.

Houston ISD officials said Sheryle Douglas, 55, and Shawn Manning, 39, admitted providing students the questions and answers to an earlier Stanford 10 Achievement Test as practice for this year's exam at Wesley Elementary School.

Scores from that test partly decide which Houston teachers get bonuses in the nation's largest merit pay program, which awards up to an extra $3,000 annually based on how students perform on standardized tests.

Douglas and Manning told district investigators they did not knowingly violate the rules. Douglas resigned in March and Manning left this week after the district moved to fire her.

The school, which was featured on Winfrey's show in the 1990s and was a gubernatorial campaign stop for Bush in 1994, has been the subject of cheating allegations before. Most recently was 2003, when former Wesley teacher Donna Garner told the school board that campus administrators expected teachers to give students answers.

"All these teachers are being scapegoats, but this is at the district level," said Garner, who still teaches in the district. "It's so big it's just out of control."

Lubbock joins other cities with mandatory water restrictions

LUBBOCK (AP) — Residents in this West Texas city will begin the first stage of mandatory water restrictions, joining nearly 200 municipalities limiting usage in a state that has never had a drier first six months of the year.

Across Texas, 197 of more than 4,500 public water suppliers have put restrictions on watering lawns and landscaping, according to the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality, which tracks the data.

Lubbock is almost 5 inches shy of normal rainfall amounts for just June and July, prompting city and county officials to encourage residents to pray for rain Sunday. Authorities are further leaning on people's faith by using an honor system for compliance.

"Once residents understand the need for conservation, they're willing to do their part," said Tom Adams, Lubbock's deputy city manager and water utility director. "What we want to do is avoid the daily watering with water running down the street."

While Lubbock is desperately dry, most of the cities and towns with restrictions are in northeast and central Texas.

Through Thursday, 126 suppliers had mandatory restrictions, and 22 of those prohibited all outside watering, commission spokeswoman Andrea Morrow said.

"I'm sure it's been worse and probably will be in August, but it's pretty bad now," she said.

Many cities and towns restrict when residents can water, allowing it between 6 p.m. and 10 a.m., when evaporation robs the least amount of the applied water. Some allow watering of lawns and landscaping once a week; others opt to allow residents to water two times a week.

Residents of the Dallas suburb of McKinney, which set a usage record of 45 million gallons Monday, could get a citation for violating the once-a-week watering restriction, city spokesman Steve Hill said. If a resident contests the fine and loses, the cost could jump from about $400 to as much as $2,000, he said.

While restrictions are aimed at reducing usage, millions of gallons of water have been lost from water main breaks. In McKinney, there have been 40 breaks in the past two months, public works director Hal Cranor said.

Demand is greatest during the permitted watering hours of 6 p.m. to 10 a.m., but that's not causing the breaks, Cranor said. The drought is.

"It's the movement of the ground," said Cranor, who's seen sidewalks drop as much as 3 inches because of dry conditions. "This is a problem you have in Texas."

AAA says Texas gas prices near all-time highs

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas retail gasoline prices were near all-time highs this week, according to the AAA Texas gasoline price survey released Friday.

The survey reported prices of regular self-serve gasoline averaged $2.92 per gallon statewide, up nearly 2 cents in the fifth straight week of increases in Texas.

Nationally, regular self-serve averaged $3.01 per gallon, also up 2 cents.

"Strong consumer demand for gasoline, tight inventories plus the ongoing violence in the Middle East have continued to keep crude oil prices above $70 a barrel," said AAA Texas spokeswoman Rose Rougeau.

The cheapest gas prices were found in Corpus Christi, where they averaged $2.83 per gallon, up 7 cents from last week. The most expensive gas in Texas was found in the Galveston-Texas City area, where it averaged $2.94 per gallon, unchanged from last week.

2006 Property Tax Rates in Howard College

This notice concerns 2006 property tax rates for HOWARD COLLEGE. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

Last year's tax rate:

Last year's operating taxes	$3,386,973.00
Last year's debt taxes	$0
Last year's total taxes	$3,386,973.00
Last year's tax base	$1,240,649,451.00
Last year's total tax rate	$0.27300 /$100

This year's effective tax rate:

Last year's adjusted taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property)	$3,380,976.00
+ This year's adjusted tax base (after subtracting value of new property)	$1,512,534,220.00
= This year's effective tax rate (Maximum rate unless unit publishes notices and holds hearings.)	$0.22353 /$100

In the first year a hospital district or city collects the additional sales tax to reduce property taxes, it must insert the following lines unless its first adjustment was made last year.

- Sales tax adjustment rate	/ $100
= Effective tax rate	/ $100

This year's rollback tax rate:

Last year's adjusted operating taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property and adjusting for any transferred function, tax increment financing, state criminal justice mandate and/or enhanced indigent health care expenditures)	$3,380,976.00
+ This year's adjusted tax base	$1,512,534,220.00
= This year's effective operating rate	$0.22353 /$100
x 1.08 = this year's maximum operating rate	$0.24141 /$100
+ This year's debt rate	$0.00000 /$100
= This year's rollback rate	$0.24141 /$100

Statement of Increase/Decrease

If HOWARD COLLEGE adopts a 2006 tax rate equal to the effective tax rate of $0.22353 per $100 of value, taxes would INCREASE compared to 2005 taxes by $8,406.

Schedule A - Unencumbered Fund Balances

The following estimated balances will be left in the unit's property tax accounts at the end of the fiscal year. These balances are not encumbered by a corresponding debt obligation.

Type of Property Tax Fund	Balance
Unencumbered Fund	0.00

Schedule B - 2006 Debt Service

The unit plans to pay the following amounts for long-term debts that are secured by property taxes. These amounts will be paid from property tax revenues (or additional sales tax revenues, if applicable).

Description of Debt	Principal or Contract Payment to be Paid from Property Taxes	Interest to be Paid from Property Taxes	Other Amounts to be Paid	Total Payment
	$0.00	$0.00	$0.00	$0.00
Total required for 2006 debt service				$0
- Amount (if any) paid from funds listed in Schedule A				$0
- Amount (if any) paid from other resources				$0
- Excess collections last year				$0
= Total to be paid from taxes in 2006				$0
Amount added in anticipation that the unit will collect only 0.00% of its taxes in 2006				$0
= Total Debt Levy				$0

Old friends recall Colorado killer as kind, 'protective'

By DOUG SIMPSON

Associated Press Writer

COUSHATTA, La. — Years ago, Vicki Woods felt comfortable leaving her young son and daughter with Robert Charles Browne. He baby-sat them, taught them to fish and held festive parties. Then, he suddenly vanished.

More than two decades later, Woods finally learned what became of him: Already serving a life sentence in Colorado for killing a teenager, Browne claims he killed an additional 48 people across the country, including three in Coushatta.

"I am so confused. I have no idea what's going on, except that I feel like I have lost a friend," Woods said.

Woods and others in this close-knit farming village in northern Louisiana where Browne grew up were stunned to learn of his confessions. If true, he would be one of the most prolific killers in U.S. history.

Browne said he shot

Browne

some of his victims and strangled others, in one case with a pair of leather shoelaces. He knocked out one woman with ether, then used an ice pick on her. He put a rag soaked in ant killer over another victim's face and stabbed her nearly 30 times with a screwdriver.

Colorado authorities said Browne, 53, claimed to have committed the killings between 1970 and his arrest in 1995. Investigators so far have been able to corroborate Browne's claims in six slayings — three in Louisiana, two in Texas and one in Arkansas, Colorado authorities said.

The family of the Arkansas victim doubts Browne's claim that he found Lisa Lowe in a bar 45 miles from her home and paid her for oral sex before killing her. Lowe's body was found in a drainage ditch in 1991. The cause of death was never determined.

Lowe's family said they would have known if she was a prostitute and that she could not have been that far from home since she had no car or driver's license.

Her mother, Shirley Winfrey, believes Browne fabricated the story, gleaming details about Lowe's disappearance from the Internet while he was in prison, for his own amusement or to bolster his ego.

"This man is bringing up a lot of pain for a lot of people," Winfrey said. "Awful, awful pain. So actually he is harming families all over again, whether he did it the first time or not."

Court papers paint a picture of a predator who loathed women and thought he was justified in killing them because they were cheating on their husbands and boyfriends — in many cases, with him.

Browne, who has been married six times, said he has been disappointed with women his whole life. "Women are unfaithful, they screw around a lot, they cheat and they are not of the highest moral value," he told investigators.

Browne apparently had at least one close female friend in Woods, now 50.

Woods said she never saw a violent side in Browne, who lived around the corner from her in the 1980s. Woods said she remembered Browne as funny and caring, but with one strange habit: without warning, he would look deep into her eyes, and declare, "You're my friend."

"He always said it that way. It was so weird," Woods said.

Browne told investigators he rarely if ever planned a killing, choosing his prey at random. He met his victims in everyday settings — a motel bar, a convenience store where he worked.

In a Coushatta restaurant on Friday, waitresses and customers chatted about Browne and one of the killings he confessed to: the 1983 death of 20-year-old Wanda Faye Hudson, who lived in the apartment next door to Browne's, in a house owned by his brother.

Browne told police he subdued Hudson with a chloroform-laced pesticide, then stabbed her to death with a screwdriver.

Browne later moved into that apartment with his then-wife. His brother couldn't find any other renters because they'd been scared off by news reports about the slaying, Woods said. Blood stains in the room were never completely cleaned up, said Billy Bamburg, Woods' 26-year-old son.

When Browne was asked about living in a room where such violence had occurred, Woods said, Browne replied, "Well, I'm not afraid of ghosts."

For most of her life, Tiffany Ivy has often wondered about her mother, Fay Aline Self, who vanished from a Coushatta rental cottage in 1983, and why she left.

Thursday, Ivy learned what could have happened. Browne claims he killed Self, 26, on a whim and dumped her body in a river.

"In the back of my mind, sometimes I thought, 'Well, maybe I don't want to know,' but now knowing, I can put closure to that, and I can finally say my goodbyes," Ivy, 24, now married and a mother, said Friday.

6 women shot, 1 fatally, at Jewish center in Seattle

SEATTLE (AP) — A man walked into a Jewish organization Friday afternoon and opened fire, killing one woman and injuring at least five others before he was arrested, officials said.

The gunman, who employees said claimed to be a Muslim angry at Israel, forced his way through the security door at the Jewish Federation after an employee had punched in her security code, said Marla Meislin-Dietrich, a co-worker who was not at the building at the time.

Staff members said they overheard him saying "I am a Muslim American, angry at Israel, before opening fire on everyone," Meislin-Dietrich said. "He was randomly shooting at everyone."

Police would not confirm the account. When asked if the suspect was a Muslim, Police Chief Gil Kerlikowske said at a news conference "you could infer that that was his background."

Naveed Afzal Haq was booked into jail late Friday for investigation of homicide and attempted homicide.

Haq, 30, previously lived in Pasco in southeast Washington, police said in a statement late Friday. The Seattle Times reported that Haq had lived most recently in Everett, north of Seattle, but police would not confirm that.

Haq had a misdemeanor lewd conduct charge pending in Benton County, near Pasco, where he was accused of exposing himself in a public place, his attorney, Larry Stephenson, told The Times.

Stephenson said he does not believe Haq had a job.

The shooting ended shortly after it erupted about 4 p.m. Employees fled the center as police officers charged to the scene and blocked off several downtown blocks.

The gunman turned himself in to a SWAT team just minutes later. He spoke with a 911 dispatcher, a phone call that led police to call the shooting a hate crime. Mayor Greg Nickels and Kerlikowske said officers were moving to protect synagogues and mosques around the city, but said there was no evidence of a broad threat.

"This was a purposeful, hateful act, as far as we know by an individual acting on his own," Nickels said.

Kerlikowske said officers were protecting mosques "because there's always the concern of retaliatory crime."

Authorities have been advising synagogues and Jewish groups to be watchful in the weeks since hostilities erupted between Israel and Lebanon.

The federation's Web site describes its mission as "to ensure Jewish survival and enhance the quality of Jewish life by meeting needs locally, in Israel and worldwide." It

Bush: Conflict in Middle East 'painful and tragic'

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush said Saturday that while the fighting in Lebanon is "painful and tragic," it also presents opportunity for change in the Middle East, a region that has "suffered decades of tyranny and violence."

Bush, in his weekly radio address, said he will work with allies to get a U.N. Security Council resolution mandating a multinational force in southern Lebanon, where fighting has raged between Israel and the Hezbollah militia.

"This approach will demonstrate the international community's determination to support the government of Lebanon,

"Transforming countries that have suffered decades of tyranny and violence is difficult, and it will take time to achieve. But the consequences will be profound — for our country and the world.."

—President Bush

and defeat the threat from Hezbollah and its foreign sponsors," Bush said.

The administration has insisted that any cease-fire come with conditions to address long-standing regional disputes, including the insistence by Israel that Hezbollah be disarmed — something the Lebanese government has been unable to do.

"An effective multinational force will help speed delivery of humanitarian relief, facilitate the return of displaced persons, and support the Lebanese government as it asserts full sovereignty over its territory and guards its borders," Bush said in his radio address.

Bush also said Iran "must end its financial support and supply of weapons to terrorist groups such as Hezbollah — and Syria must end its support for terrorism and respect Lebanon's sovereignty."

"This moment of conflict in the Middle East is painful and tragic, yet it is also a moment of opportunity for broader change in the region," said Bush. "Transforming countries that have suffered decades of tyranny and violence is difficult, and it will take time to achieve. But the consequences will be profound — for our country and the world."

Bush and British Prime Minister Tony Blair, meeting at the White House on Friday, said a multinational force should be dispatched quickly to stabilize the region. The makeup of a multinational force will be discussed at a meeting Monday at the United Nations.

But Bush has not given support to a call for an immediate cease-fire in the fighting between Hezbollah and Israel, something Arab and European leaders have been urging.

Bush has charged Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice with working on getting agreement on the makeup and mandate of an international force to stabilize the Israeli-Lebanese border and help the Lebanese army establish control over Hezbollah.

Amid heroin deaths, authorities debate drug that stops overdose

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - In the wake of more than 400 deaths nationwide from heroin laced with the painkiller fentanyl, some needle exchange programs are giving addicts prescriptions for a drug to keep on hand to halt an overdose.

The antidote — naloxone, which is sold under the brand name Narcan — can save the life of someone who might not call 911 for fear of prosecution, treatment providers say.

Even if a user does call, help can arrive too late.

"If people have to rely on paramedics, more often than not, the overdose is going to be fatal, just because of the amount of time for people to get there," said Casey Cook, executive director of Prevention Point Philadelphia, a nonprofit that runs the city's needle exchange program. The group recently began distributing naloxone prescriptions through a physician.

But others say naloxone is best administered by trained paramedics and that the prescription approach might appear to condone drug use.

"We don't want to send the message out that there is a safe way to use heroin," said Jennifer DeVallance, a spokeswoman for the White House Office of National Drug Control Policy.

Fentanyl — an opiate used legally in anesthesia and for some cancer patients — is cheaper than heroin and 80 times more potent than morphine.

That makes it an appealing additive for heroin distributors.

At least 150 fentanyl deaths have been recorded in the Philadelphia area, 130 in Chicago and 130 in Detroit.

John P. Walters, the director of the White House drug policy office, said investigators hope to learn whether a clandestine laboratory raided in Mexico last month was the source of much of the illegal fentanyl reaching the United States.

Making a difference at Big Spring State Hospital

Thanks to Mark and Stacie Barr and Doris Huijbregtse — our co-chairs for the Denim and Diamonds Gala — for leading a fantastic volunteer group. Their work ethic and inventive ideas made the 20th annual Gala our most successful to date.

The evening also would not have been possible without co-hosts Vicki and Eddie Cole, Leslie Elrod, and Mary Kay and Scott McLaughlin. Support from the Big Spring State Hospital staff was tremendous. I also tip my hat to each person who attended or donated funds. We are already searching for ideas for next year's Gala, which will be held April 27

BILLIE CHRISTIE-MORGAN

Big Spring State Hospital patients enjoyed refreshments and receiving gifts during their annual Summer Fun Day which celebrates and prepares patients for the hot West Texas sun.

Summer Fun Day Chairman Suzanne Markwell planned another outstanding party. And with assistance from volunteer Lucy Flores, who enlisted church youth volunteers, many new faces to the Big Spring State Hospital campus arrived on campus and enjoyed visiting with patients.

Numerous volunteers handed out plenty of bright new T-shirts, caps, and flip-flop sandals to patients. Volunteers Jo Beth Corwin and Cyneather Woodruff and staff member Max Ann Bowlin delivered Summer Fun Day to patients on the Medical Services Unit. Activities Therapy employees, workers from Food Services and Plant Management teamed up to sponsor a hot dog cookout for patients and staff. It has been extremely rewarding watching Summer Fun Day evolve during the past 18 years with the addition of new activities, new gifts and most of all, new volunteers.

Community volunteers Lucy Griffith, Ann Duncan, Robin Hallman and Lucy Flores worked long hours on the Volunteer Council Nursing Scholarship committee reviewing applications and preparing to make final selections for this year's nursing scholarships.

This year's scholarship was awarded to Big Spring State Hospital Direct Care Worker Chelsea Partlow, who will attend Howard College LVN School this year.

Memorial donations for the scholarship program may be made to the Volunteer Services Council, Big Spring State Hospital for the Nursing Scholarship Fund. The family will be notified of your tax deductible donation.

Volunteers Shirley Bodin and Dorothy Sheppard have done a great job working on Christmas Appeal letters.

Volunteers recently met with the Patient Needs Committee to evaluate recent activities and plan Christmas activities and the August 5 Optimist bingo game and hotdog cookout. This has been a volunteer favorite for more than 30 years.

The Chalet Resale shop continues to improve — most recently with the addition of space for donation collections at its Runnels and Second location. Special thanks to volunteer Ruth Nanny and Tommy Corwin for their diligent work in laying the groundwork for the new addition and enlisting additional volunteer help to keep up with the multitude of donations. Everyone is giving 100 percent at the resale shop. The shop is clean, the donations are overflowing, and the sales are wonderful. Volunteers are still needed. It's a great place for teenagers ages 15 and older to pitch in. Also it can be a great place for a service project for any group with a few hours to donate. Be watching for summer clearance sales. If you have some nice items and don't want to have a garage sale, bring them to The Chalet.

The Volunteer Services Council Board is taking a summer break but they continue to undertake special projects. We will meet in August for annual Board training.

It's not too late to take advantage of some of the Junior Volunteer opportunities at Big Spring State Hospital. Call 268-7536 for more information.

The bidding:

Pass 1♦ 1♠ 2♥
2♦ 3♥ 4♠ 5♥

Pass Redble

Opening lead — king of clubs.

The best players play well, but they don't play perfectly. Bridge is too tough a game for anyone to play without making mistakes from time to time, and the top experts are judged largely by their infrequency of error.

This hand was played in 1955 in New York in the match between Great Britain and the United States. When British star Terence Reese held the North hand, the bidding shown unfolded. His redouble following a highly competitive auction appears bold, but the result proved him right.

The American West led the king of clubs. Declarer, Boris Schapiro, won with the ace and played the king of spades, covered by East with the ace and ruffed. Schapiro then made 11 tricks easily, ruffing three diamonds in dummy and discarding one on the queen of spades. He lost two diamond tricks at the end, but made five hearts redoubled for a score of 1,250 points (including honors).

At the second table, with an American pair sitting North-South, the bidding went:
West North East South
Pass 1♦ 1♠ 2♥
2♦ 3♥ 4♠ 5♥
Pass 5♦ Dble 5♥

At this table, the opening lead was also a club, and again South had no trouble garnering 11 tricks. But the American pair, not having been doubled, scored only 750 points, so Great Britain gained 500 points on the deal.

A good case can be made for a trump lead by West at either table, which would have defeated the contract, but the fact remains that neither West came up with the killing lead.

Tomorrow: Famous Hand.

A fitting tribute

TEXARKANA, Ark. (AP) — No little hearses would do for Oliver "Buddy" Simpson.

Instead, the longtime trucker rode to his final resting spot at Harmony Grove Cemetery in a casket on the back of a flatbed diesel truck.

"I don't think Buddy would have approved of us making this much fuss over him," friend and colleague Perry Parker said at Simpson's funeral last week, "but I think if he heard the rumble of the trucks outside he would be OK with it." Simpson died July 18 of lung and bone cancer. He was 58.

Parker said Simpson was one of the most dependable truckers in the business. Parker also noted that Simpson had recorded 3 million miles without an accident — a designation for which Simpson received a fully equipped Peterbilt truck.

"He kept it looking brand new," he said.

Parker's tribute was followed by a recording of "18 Wheels and a Dozen Roses."

The annual Rose Magers-Powell Volleyball Camp will be held July 31-Aug. 2 at the Big Spring Junior High School gymnasium.

Registration will be from 8:30 a.m. to 9 a.m. Monday. Registration fees are $100.

Camp sessions for the 13- to 18-year-old players will be 9 a.m. to noon.

Softball touney set for this weekend

The first-ever Ball Busters co-ed softball tournament will take place at Cotton Mize Field inside Comanche Trail Park through Sunday.

The entry fee is $125 per team. There will be first, second and third place trophies awarded and T-shirts will also be given out as prizes.

New volleyball coach sets parent-player meeting

New Big Spring volleyball coach Amanda Whitaker has announced a parent-player meeting with anyone planning on being involved with the high school volleyball program this upcoming season.

The meeting, which is for high school students only, will take place Tuesday at the Athletic Training Center at 7 p.m.

For more info, call coach Whitaker at 325-864-1467.

Big Spring ISD sets dates for buying football tickets

Fans of the Big Spring Steers football team who have had season tickets in the past can begin purchasing tickets for the upcoming season at the Big Spring High School ATC.

Previous ticket holders have until Aug. 10 to purchase tickets. The general public may purchase tickets on Aug. 14.

Tickets can be purchased through Kay Cook at the ATC from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

For more info, call Cook at 264-3662.

Junior high football equipment hand out

Junior high football coach John Richard Sparks has announced that football players in seventh and eighth grade will be issued equipment Aug. 9-10.

The eighth graders will get theirs the first day from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. and the seventh grade will go the second day at the same time.

For more info, call 264-4135.

Former UT standout Ray Dowdy dies

BASTROP (AP) — Ray Dowdy, who played on Texas' national championship team in 1970 and was an All-SWC defensive tackle, has died. He was 56.

Despite receiving talent, don't expect an Air-Dallas

By Tim Cowlishaw

The Dallas Morning News

OXNARD, Calif. — New firepower in the Cowboys offense has Bill Parcells excited at the start of camp. Very excited.

The only question that remains is how much he plans to exploit it.

Terrell Owens, all other things aside, has been one of the NFL's best three or four receivers for six years. Jason Witten has emerged as one of the top five tight ends. A healthy Terry Glenn had a career high in touchdowns in 2005 and was 11 yards short of his career high in yards, too.

That's a lot of weapons for Drew Bledsoe to choose from.

On the other hand, no one really looks at the Cowboys' running game the way they did at this time a year ago. Visions of a 1,500-yard rushing season for Julius Jones were dancing through people's heads. Jones had finished his rookie season with more than 800 yards rushing in his last seven games.

But in 2005, Jones was plagued by injuries and ineffectiveness and saw his goal-line carries go to rookie Marion Barber.

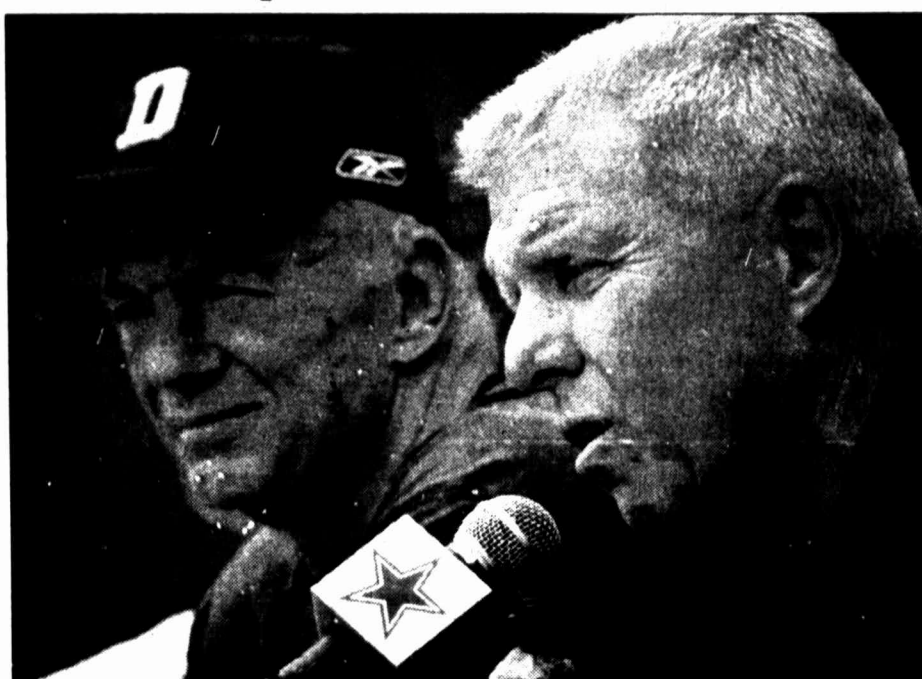

So clearly, the Cowboys have to come out throwing the ball all over the yard at Jacksonville on Sept. 10. Right?

Not so fast. This remains a Bill Parcells team. And although he once had Bledsoe throw nearly 700 passes in a season, such a thing is not the plan for 2006.

"I look at the changes in this league, but the team that won last year threw the fewest passes," Parcells said Friday. "Things don't change that much."

In a league that consistently alters the rules to increase the ARLINGTON — Newly acquired All-Star slugger Carlos Lee arrived in Texas and got a police escort to the stadium so he could play right away for his new team.

Only about 45 minutes after arriving in the Rangers clubhouse for the first time Friday, Lee stepped on the field and singled through the middle in his first at-bat. He had another single in his second at-bat.

Still, his debut wasn't nearly enough to keep the Rangers from extending their losing streak to five games with an 11-3 loss to the Kansas City Royals.

"It was a rough day out there. It's over. Let's see what happens tomorrow," said Lee, who finished 2-for-4. "The first at-bat, I just tried to hit the ball up the middle. I had a plan and executed it. They got me here to help."

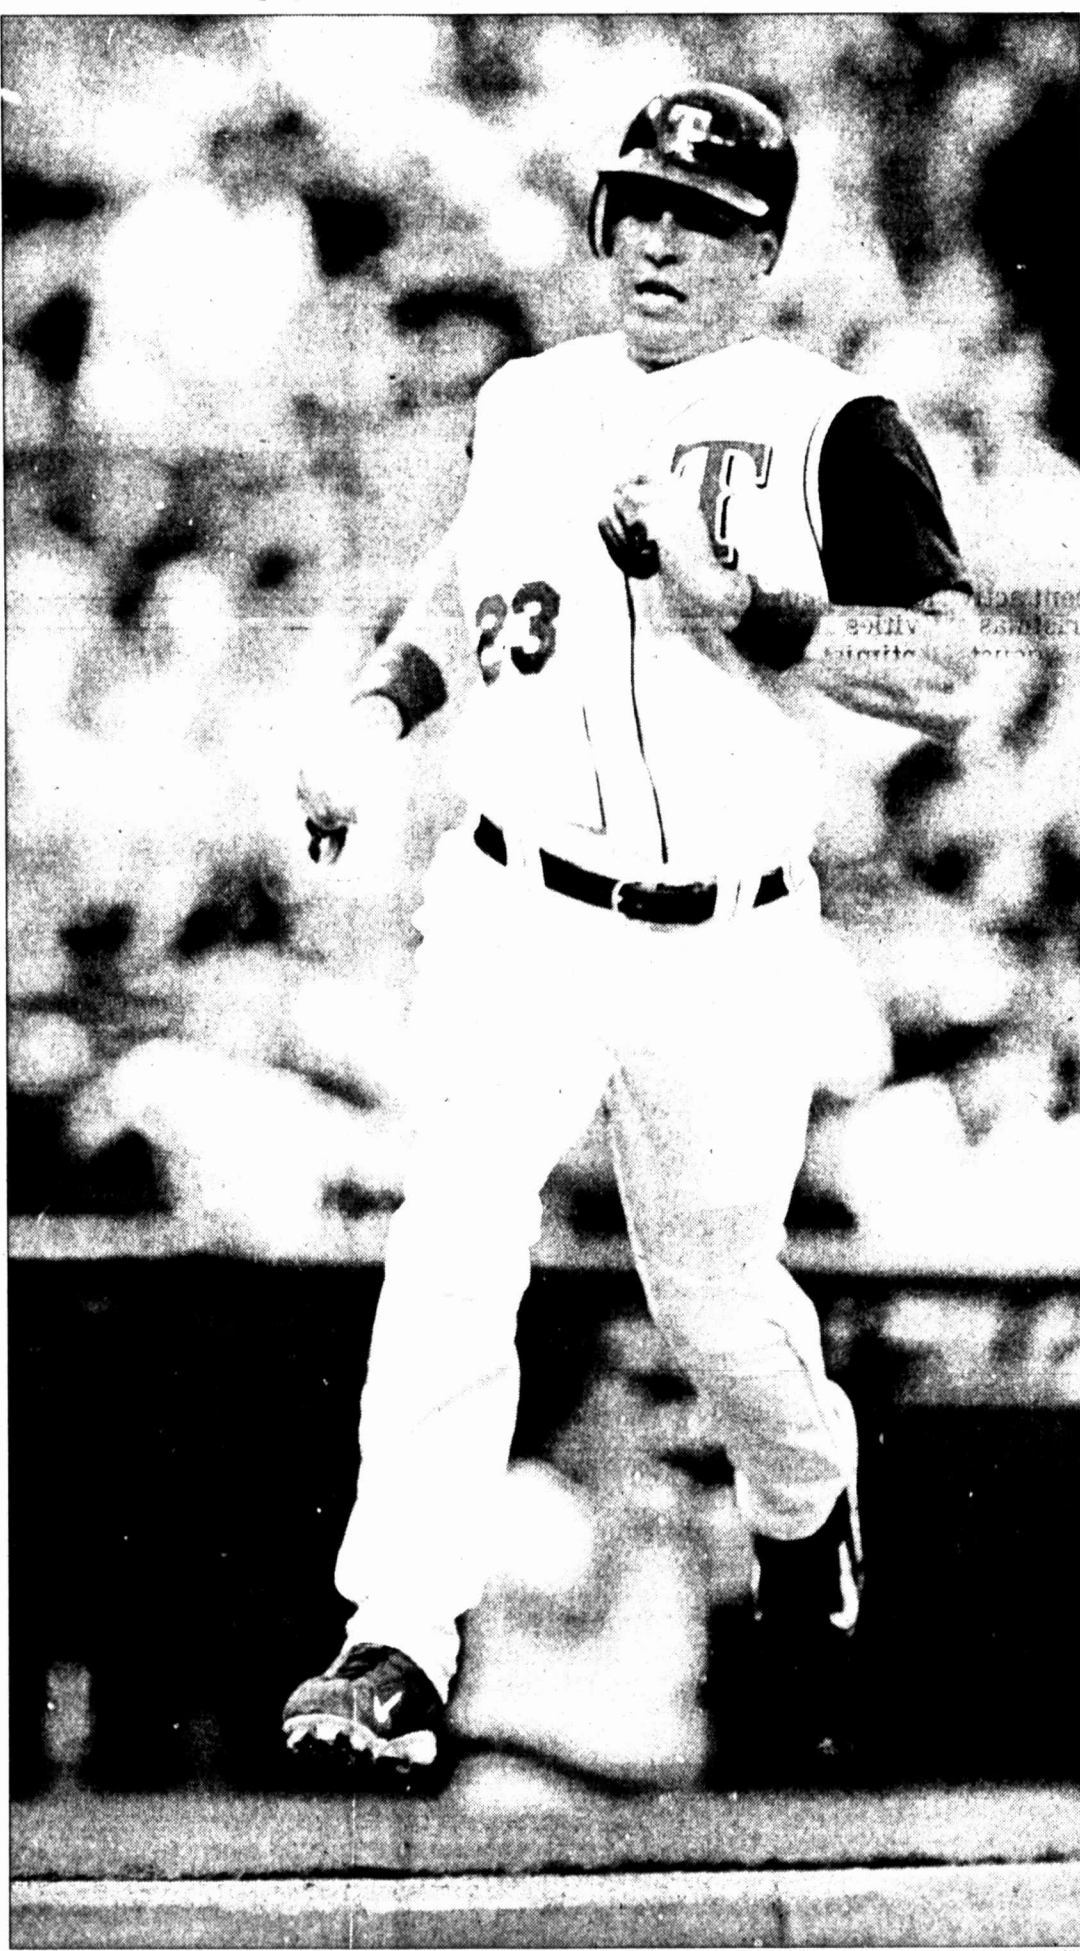

Lee, traded to the Rangers from the Milwaukee Brewers in a six-player deal earlier Friday, batted fourth as the designated hitter behind Michael Young and Mark Teixeira.

"Carlos got off to a good start after a hectic day," said manager Buck Showalter, who plans to use Lee primarily as an outfielder. "We've got a good idea about how Carlos will fit on our club offensively."

Mark Teahen had three hits, including a solo home run to cap Kansas City's five-run second and an RBI single that chased Vicente Padilla (10-7) in the fourth. Andres Blanco had a pair of RBI hits, and Emil Brown a two-run single.

Luke Hudson (3-3) struck out seven in six innings in his fourth start since being moved

Landis says he'll prove he's not guilty

By PAUL HAVEN

MADRID, Spain — His voice steady and his tone defiant, Floyd Landis vowed he would clear his name of allegations he cheated to win the Tour de France.

In his first public appearance since a testosterone imbalance showed up in a urine test and cast his title into doubt, the American cyclist said his body's natural metabolism — not doping of any kind — caused the result, and that he would soon have the test results to prove it.

"We will explain to the world why this is not a doping case but a natural occurrence," Landis said Friday from the Spanish capital.

Wearing a baseball cap turned backward and a white shirt with the name of his Phonak team, Landis lashed out at the media for characterizing his plight as a drug scandal and said he wanted to "make absolutely clear that I am not in any doping process."

Later Friday, Landis' personal physician sought to clarify the nature of the test result and the possible benefits of the hormone in question.

"He does not have a high level of testosterone. That's not been documented. He has a high ratio of testosterone to epitestosterone in his urine," Dr. Brent Kay said on CNN's "Larry King Live."

Kay said the test could indicate elevated testosterone or low epitestosterone, or some other factor — including handling or specimen contamination.

Webb holds off Wie on to win Evian Masters

By ERICA BULMAN

AP Sports Writer

EVIAN, France — Karrie Webb sank an 18-foot birdie putt on the 17th hole to hold off Michelle Wie and win the Evian Masters by a stroke Saturday, denying the 16-year-old from Hawaii her first win as a professional.

Webb's birdie at No. 17 gave her a two-shot lead, allowing her to play conservatively on the final hole, despite a birdie by Wie on the 18th. Webb finished at 16-under 272, one stroke ahead of both Wie (68) and 42-year-old Laura Davies (67).

Wie, who was a shot behind Webb after the third round, looked strong all day, and caught the Australian with an eagle on the par-5 ninth. She took sole possession of the lead after a birdie on the 11th.

But a bogey on the 13th hole cost her. She drove the ball into the bunker, and her next shot found the sand again. On her third stroke, Wie managed to get it onto the green, but her 30-foot putt veered 6 inches wide to the left, leaving her in a three-way tie with Davies and Webb.

Webb took the lead for good with a birdie on the 14th. She is now the only woman with three victories this season.

Wie ran into more problems on the 15th, when her tee shot went soaring into the spectator area, landing near the boundary's chain-link fence. She managed to hit the ball out onto the fairway. Her third stroke landed on the green, about 10 feet from the hole, but spun back about 35 feet. Her putt went 6 inches wide of the cup, though she ended up sinking her 7-footer for par.

Webb and Davies also parred

the hole.

Davies duffed her tee shot on the 16th, sending it only 60 yards, but on her next stroke got it out of the rough and onto the green, closer than either Wie and Webb, and saved par.

Webb sank an 18-foot putt on the 17th for the birdie, increasing her lead to two shots over Wie and Davies.

Though Wie finally mastered her tee shot on the 17th hole — where she had struggled all week — her putter failed her and she settled for par. Wie had bogeyed the hole on Friday.

COWBOYS

efficiency of the passing game, there are only two reasons not to throw the ball a lot.

One is because you don't have to. That would be the Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers to whom Parcells was referring. They attempted a league-low 379.

The other is because you can't. That would be the San Francisco 49ers with rookie Alex Smith under center and under fire last year. They threw the second fewest at 389.

The Cowboys strive for balance as most teams not located in Philadelphia tend to do. But doesn't a quick look at the roster suggest that this club needs to tilt things more heavily in favor of firing away this season?

Remember how explosive this team looked in that first meeting with the Eagles last season. The Cowboys opened up the offense with Glenn catching two touchdown passes from Bledsoe in the first quarter and running back Lousaka Polite catching another one in the second for a 27-3 halftime lead.

With Owens being a better version of a go-to receiver than Keyshawn Johnson, doesn't it make sense that the Cowboys go into attack mode on a more regular basis than they did last season?

Parcells didn't commit to any major philosophical changes in his opening news conference. This is about all he really said on the matter.

"Only a fool would not attempt to use the talent available."

But then he went on to say that Owens had a lot of work to do in adapting to an unfamiliar system. In 10 seasons with San Francisco and Philadelphia, Owens was featured in West Coast-style offenses, heavy on the passing game.

That is not the Cowboys' style. That is not Parcells' preferred style.

How Owens adapts to life as a Cowboy will be determined largely by how Parcells adapts to having Owens as his premier weapon.

This is new territory not just for Owens but for Parcells. He won two Super Bowls without an elite wide receiver. The Giants were built around defense, a running game and an efficient passing attack.

In that order.

Parcells has said that Owens won't be catching 100 passes in Dallas. That's OK. He's done that only once in his career.

But he did catch 80 or more for four straight years with the 49ers and 77 in 14 games with the Eagles in 2004. He needs to get 80.

And Glenn needs to get his 60. And Witten needs to get his 70. Others need to get fed, too.

In order for that to happen, Parcells and his collection of oddly titled assistants — Tony Sparano (assistant head coach, offensive line/running game coordinator) and Todd Haley (passing game coordinator, wide receivers coach) — need to open up the game plan.

Teams have to run the ball, that's understood. Owens' mere presence on the field takes one of the safeties out of the run defense.

But 17 teams threw more passes than the Cowboys in 2005. Unless this team has so many games locked away in the third quarter that all it has to do is run the clock, that shouldn't be allowed to happen in 2006.

into the rotation from the bullpen. The right-hander allowed two runs and seven hits, and is 2-0 with a 3.42 ERA as a starter.

"He hasn't had a bad start yet," manager Buddy Bell said. "A team in our position, we need to have good things like that happen for us."

The losing streak matched the longest of the season for the Rangers (51-52), who fell below .500 for the first time since April 28. Kansas City (36-66), with the worst record in the major leagues, won for only the fifth time in 17 games.

While still wanting to add pitching before Monday's non-waiver trade deadline, and hoping to make a run for their first playoff appearance since 1999, the Rangers got an impact bat for the middle of their lineup.

"We can't sit back and wait for the organization to go get players," catcher Rod Barajas said. "We have to take care of business ourselves, Carlos is a great acquisition for us. Now we have to start winning games, and then we can go from there."

Milwaukee traded Lee, who has 28 home runs and 81 RBIs, after it became apparent that the outfielder wasn't interested in staying there after this season when he can become a free agent. On Thursday, he turned down a four-year extension reportedly worth $48 million.

The Rangers sent reliever Francisco Cordero and outfielders Kevin Mench and Laynce Nix, and minor league left-hander Julian Cordero — no relation to Francisco — to Milwaukee. Minor league outfielder Nelson Cruz also went to the Rangers, and was added to their major league roster.

Kansas City went ahead to stay with its five-run second, when outfielders overran balls on consecutive plays. Still, all the runs were earned.

With two runners on and the score tied 1-1, Blanco was credited with an RBI double even though right fielder Mark DeRosa let the ball bounce under him. Center fielder Gary Matthews Jr. chased the ball down, and his relay throw was bobbled by second baseman Ian Kinsler for an error that allowed the second runner to score.

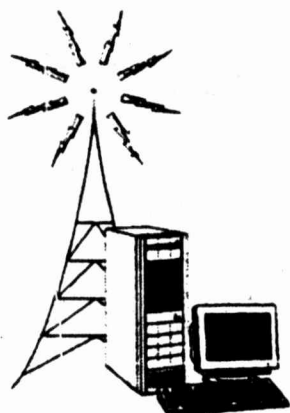

David DeJesus then grounded an RBI single up the middle, but charging All-Star Matthews missed the ball. It rolled to the wall and DeJesus scored on a three-base error. Teahen's 12th homer made it 6-1.

"It was an ugly night," Showalter said. Padilla allowed seven runs on a season-high nine hits over 3 2-3 innings. He lost consecutive starts for only the second time this season.

DeRosa had an RBI double in the eighth, only his third hit in 30 at-bats the last eight games.

Notes: The Rangers played their 1,000th game at Ameriquest Field, which opened in 1994, and are 548-452 at the stadium. ... Lee has a .349 career batting average (38-of-109) in Arlington, with eight homers and 23 RBIs in 28 games. ... Cruz struck out on three pitches while pinch-hitting in the ninth.

Displaced Animals Make Sanctuary Home

By ANDREIA MEDLIN

Special to the Herald

Melanie Gambrell, president of All Creatures Sanctuary and Rescue, and her husband Randy have rescued, rehabilitated and released or placed hundreds of animals since 1986. Although some may consider this a success, Melanie and Randy see it as a failure on some levels. "If people would take responsibility for their animals, we wouldn't have to do this," said Melanie. The Gambrells continue their efforts to protect their charges and hopefully make their world a little better. "We want to let people know that we are here," said Melanie.

At her speaking engagements and on her radio broadcast, "Pet Connection," Melanie educates people on the responsibilities of being a pet owner. "If people only knew how many animals we euthanize and how much it costs the city and county, maybe they would realize that it is more cost effective to be responsible," she said. Having the pet spayed or neutered and ensuring they have an identification tag will help the animal avoid having to stay in a shelter and have a better chance of getting home. Recently Melanie has developed a "Pet Patrol" for animals and owners who have been separated. The rescue also works with petfinder.com for adoption placement of domestic animals.

The organization also offers advice and assistance with human and wildlife encounters. As far as wildlife is concerned the animals are better off being left alone, according to Melanie. "Just leave them where they are," she said. "That baby deer (for example) probably has a mama waiting nearby for you to leave so she can get her baby."

Intervention should be limited unless the animal is in imminent danger, she explained.

The Gambrells are often called only after a wild animal that someone has taken in becomes a problem. "People think they are cute and adorable but, they don't realize that the animal will grow up to be mean and vicious," said Melanie. "Don't wait until the animal is a problem to call us."

The wildlife sanctuary is situated on 160 acres in the Coahoma area and currently is home to two emus, a llama, a steer calf named "Spot," a family of opossums, chickens and a dozen or so dogs. The feed bill alone be staggering. Only with the help of donations and volunteers who act as foster families are the Gambrells able to care for and rehabilitate the animals.

Currently, the animals being rescued are of the larger variety. "We are getting livestock primarily," said Melanie. "Mainly horses."

The hot weather and dry conditions aren't in the animal's or the owner's favor. If there is no rain, there is no vegetation for the animals to eat. "Because it's so dry people are not feeding their animals," said Randy.

Hay, a staple for the livestock, and food for the dogs, rabbits and the other small animals often is $400 to $500 a month.

While the wild animals are cared for until they can be placed, the domesticated animals are available for adoption. To adopt a dog, an application must be completed and there is a fee that includes a physical, spay or neutering, microchip identification and vaccinations. But before adoption can occur the dogs are kept in foster homes and more are needed.

There is a process for those who would be interested in housing an animal until "Spot" the steer gives Melanie Gambrell a friendly nudge. All Creatures Sanctuary and Rescue is holding a Phoneraiser to off set daily expenses for the care of the animals. Donations of ink jet cartridges and used cell phones will be recycled and refurbished. The sanctuary will be provided money for each item donated. For more information call Melanie or Randy Gambrell at 432-267-7387.

it can be placed. "We do a home visit first and they (the animal) must be kept inside," said Melanie.

This is necessary because the dog will need to be house trained. Also, more can be learned about its personality. According to the Gambrells this helps ensure that the animal can go to a home where it will have a greater chance of bonding with an individual or family.

Other dogs are given to a higher calling as Randy proudly recalled. "We had a Golden (retriever) that went to Omaha to be a therapy dog at Hospice With Heart. Another Golden went to Albuquerque." Foster families help offset expenses while area business have helped by supplying pens and cages.

All Creatures Sanctuary and Rescue is holding a Phoneraiser through September to help offset the costs of veterinary bills, feed for the animals and daily operations.

The Phoneraiser Fundraising Program will exchange money for each item collected. Cell phones and ink jet cartridges will be recycled in accordance with EPA regulations or refurbished and reused.

Items can be taken to Highland Animal Hospital, Dana Baker's Video, Christene's Cafe in Coahoma, Pretty Pets Bed and Bath, KBYG radio station, Texas RV Park of Big Spring, Dahmer's Antiques or Yesterday's News and Antiques.

Anniversaries

T.L. and Jeane Kennedy

Kennedys will celebrate 50th anniversary

T.L. and Jeane Kennedy will be honored with a 50th wedding anniversary reception at the Anchor of Hope Fellowship of Lake Belton.

Serving as hosts will be their sons and their families:

Tom and Donna Kennedy; Rebecca and Jonathan from Florissant, Mo

Lane and Kim Kennedy; Lindsey, Megan, Allison and Garrett from Rogers, Texas.

The couple were married Aug. 5, 1956, at Trinity Baptist Church of Big Spring by the Rev. Jack Power, then pastor of the church.

Mr. Kennedy pastored churches in Artesia, N.M., and in Texas at Edinburg, Port O'Connor, Kempner and Killeen before retiring from pastoral service.

He is employed by Scott & White Hospital in Temple as a chaplain and is owner of Kencraft Custom Woodwork. Mrs. Kennedy is a homemaker. Friends and family are invited to the "come and go" festivities from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Ben A. and Madeline Boadle

Boadles to celebrate 50th

Friends and family are invited to join the 50th wedding anniversary celebration of Ben A. and Madeline Boadle Saturday, Aug. 5, 2006, from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m., in the fellowship hall of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, 810 Scurry.

The celebration is hosted by the couple's family: daughter, Jacque Mauch of Big Spring; granddaughter, Stephanie Black and husband, Richard, of Dallas; daughter, Laurie Platte and husband, Roy, granddaughter, Holly and Alison Platte of Big Spring; son, Eugene Boadle and wife, Tanya, granddaughters, Jeanie Warren, Brittany Rowland and husband, Ricky, and great-granddaughter, Dani of Big Spring; granddaughters, Missy and Niki Boadle of Crane. The Boadle's oldest son, Miles, wife Dori, grandsons, Jason and Ben and granddaughter, Abbey of Booneville, Mo., were unable to come for the celebration but came earlier in the month. The couple has 10 grandchildren and one great-grandchild. Their oldest grandson Aaron is deceased.

Ben was born to parents W.T. (Bill) and Mona Henderson Boadle and is a lifelong resident of Big Spring. Ben graduated from Big Spring High School in 1949. He served nine years in the Texas National Guard and was discharged as a staff sergeant.

Madeline was born in Fannin County to Horace and Vergie Ford Miles. The family moved to Loraine where she grew up. Madeline graduated from Loraine High School in 1945.

The couple met and married while he was working for Texas Electric Service Company and she was working for the Empire Southern Gas Company. She later worked for Westex Oil Company. They married Aug. 29, 1956, in the College Baptist Church with the Rev. J.W. Bartlett officiating. This marriage was the first to be held in the church.

In 1987, both retired, Ben after working 35 years for Texas Electric Service Company and Madeline, who was executive director of the Westside Community Center.

The Boadles were members of Wesley Methodist Church for more than 30 years. They are now members of North Birdwell Lane United Methodist Church where they serve as officers and Sunday school teachers.

Ben serves as lay leader for the church. Madeline is active in United Methodist Women and has served on the local, district and conference level. They have both served as interpreters for the Redbird Missionary conference in Kentucky.

Both are members of the Howard/Glasscock Old Settler's Board, the Howard County Historical Society and the Sand Springs Lions Club. Ben was active in the American Little League where he served as a coach and manager. He worked with the Teenage League, Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts and Electric Credit Union.

Madeline served as a local officer and was state president of Church Women United. In 2001, she was named Texas Mother of the Year by the American Mothers and went on to represent Texas as she competed in Portland, Ore., for American Mother of the Year.

She served as an officer of the Washington P.T.A., worked for the American Little League and Brownies.

The rules for their long marriage are: "Love, Trust and Respect!"

Brandon Haile and Amy Greer

Greer and Haile

Lynn and Donna Greer and Wendell and Charla Walker are pleased to announce the approaching marriage of their children Amy Greer and Brandon Haile. The ceremony will be Aug. 12 at the Wind and Power Center in Lubbock.

Airsickness bags among new spots for airlines' ads

By INA PAIVA CORDLE
McClatchy Newspapers

MIAMI — Next time you frantically grab an airsickness bag in-flight, you may be greeted with a surprise — an advertisement. And that pillow or blanket you used to take for granted? Get ready to pull out your v...

US Airways, which already is putting ads on tray tables and napkins, is turning to airsickness bags as its next advertising canvas, starting in September.

Spirit Airlines is considering charging for pillows and blankets, which Air Canada already does in economy class on North American flights.

In the quest to boost revenue, carriers are increasingly finding new ways to bill passengers for services and earn money by selling ads on in-flight products.

"In an industry where the margins are as thin as they are and the competition is as tough as it is, the carriers get more and more aggressive in looking for ways to increase revenue — particularly if it is in manners that don't directly impact the passenger experience," said Webster O'Brien, vice president at aviation consultants SH&E in Boston.

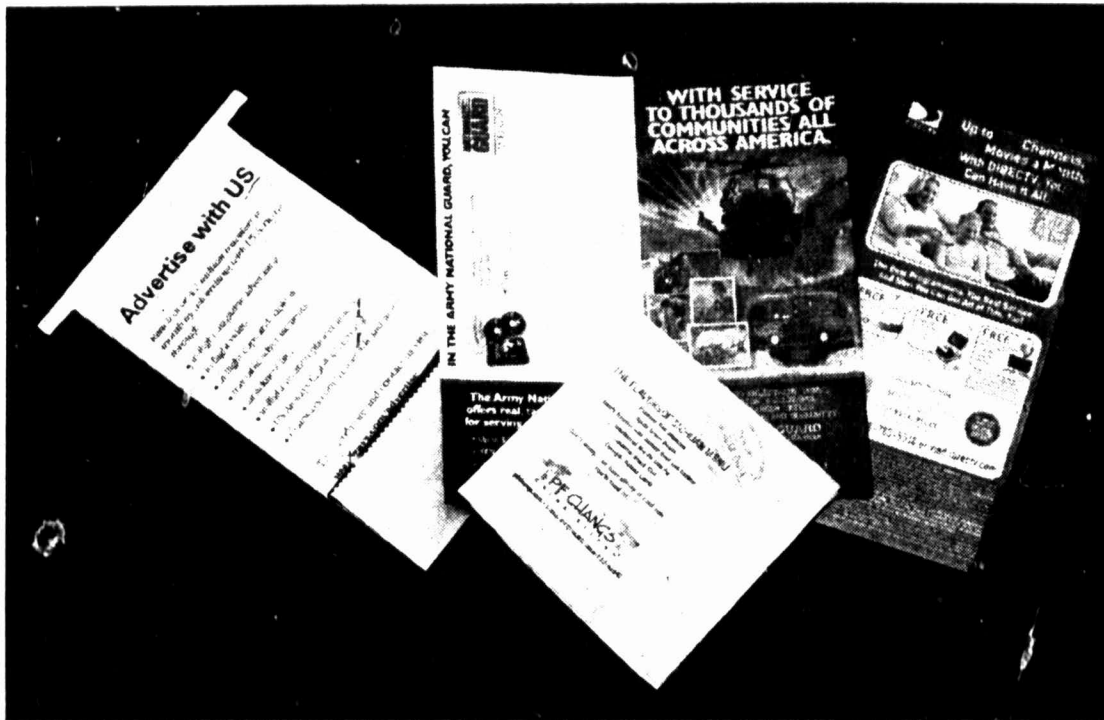

America West — now US Airways — likely has been the boldest among U.S. carriers at onboard ads, generating revenue or reducing costs through partnerships.

The airline's napkins sport ads from P.F. Chang's. Its ticket jackets urge passengers to sign up for the National Guard or DirectTV. Tray tables have dropped down to reveal ads for Mercedes-Benz, Bank of America or Verizon, and its video welcoming passengers onboard has touted tourism destinations Jamaica and Ireland.

"September 11 is what pushed us over the edge — in the 'desperate times call for desperate measures' category," said Travis Christ, US Airways' vice president of sales and marketing.

Ads have also appeared on seat-back cards, boarding passes and airport banners. Even airplanes' bathroom soap dispensers were designed by Dial, as part of a money-saving advertising partnership.

America West, which began selling onboard meals in 2002 and placing ads on tray tables in 2003, Airsickness bags will soon become the next advertising medium.

initially worried passengers would be offended. But, Christ said, "People are pretty understanding that we have to take steps to improve our finances."

Overall, the endeavors are expected to bring in more than $10 million this year, he said.

US Airways next could become the first carrier to enter the realm of the airsickness bag, when it replaces its standard white bags with ones that advertise on both sides. The carrier is also looking into potential partnerships for pillows, offering a retailer the opportunity to place its name on the items while cutting costs for US Airways.

Low-cost carrier AirTran Airways also has promoted ads, from Coca-Cola products on napkins and cups to Hertz coupons on seat-back inserts, said Tad Hutcheson, AirTran's vice president of marketing and sales.

In fact, onboard advertising, also used extensively by low-cost European carriers like RyanAir and EasyJet, is increasingly extending to traditional U.S. network carriers.

American Airlines, for example, has taken steps during the past 18 months to place onboard product advertising. Boarding passes at self-service kiosks have touted Diners Club, and ticket jackets advertise hotels.com.

"Now there is a structure in place where we are out there looking for these types of opportunities — looking for the nontraditional advertising, like cups, napkins, ticket jackets," said American spokeswoman Martha Pantin.

"It was established as a special project, and it has grown to be an important and growing source of revenue," she said, declining to provide a figure.

Over the years, selling items onboard has become common for U.S. airlines. In addition to meals and snack packs, it's standard to pay for alcoholic beverages in economy class, and often for headsets.

Spirit Airlines is exploring taking in-flight sales a step further, moving to sell pillows and blankets and possibly other consumer items, said Barry Biffle, Spirit's chief marketing officer.

The low-cost carrier will test-market pillow and blanket packs on select flights later this year, in preparation for making a decision by the end of the year, Biffle said.

Air Canada already began selling inflatable pillow and blanket packs for $2 in November. It's part of a companywide cost-saving maneuver to reduce onboard weight as a way to keep fuel costs down, said spokesman John Reber.

Spirit also is looking at new technology that allows shopping through a Wi-Fi hot spot onboard, Biffle said.

"As long as people are willing to pay for it, and it's part of their expectations, we're willing to do it," he said.

The concept, which would include having a server onboard for Internet service, requires regulatory approval, and is still in its infancy, Biffle said. Passengers could shop online and buy movies and games with their laptops. Spirit would charge passengers for movies or games, and earn commissions from online vendors for other items purchased.

Such moves are related to the "unbundling" or "a la carte" concept spreading through the industry, which analysts say could ultimately lead passengers someday to pay separately for their seat and each amenity they use. Other carriers are more cautious about advertising partnerships.

Some have concerns about promoting brands other than their own, as well as the administrative work involved, said O'Brien, the aviation consultant.

Southwest Airlines, for example, has stayed away from the bandwagon entirely. The low-cost carrier has received proposals from companies regarding onboard advertising but has chosen not to participate, said spokeswoman Brandy King.

Delta Air Lines' most notable onboard effort to date has been a partnership with Coca-Cola, which includes placing Coke's name on napkins, said spokeswoman Gina Laughlin.

And JetBlue Airways sells only upgraded headsets for $1, and so far, only at the gate, prior to boarding. But the low-cost carrier is looking into selling ads and exploring partnering with food and beverage companies, said JetBlue spokesperson Jenny Dervin.

"We're in business to make money, but not on the backs of our customers," she said. "We want to keep fares low, without interfering with the experience."

Cooperative Extension sets workshops

Texas Cooperative Extension will hold three RAWHIDE workshops the first week of August.

RAWHIDE stands for Ranching Aimed at Wildlife Habitat Improvement and Diversification of Enterprises. All three meetings will start with registration at 8 a.m. and end by 4 p.m. The program will be the same at each site, but the content will be tailored to that particular area.

Meeting dates, sites and contact numbers are:

— August 1, Ozona, (Crockett County Civic Center, 100 N. Medical Drive), 325 392-2721.

— August 2, Monahans, County Convention Center), 432 943-2682.

— August 3, Midland (Midland Extension Office located at 2445 E. Hwy 80 in Midland), 432 686-4700.

Ken Cearley, Extension wildlife specialist at Canyon, said the meetings are for those wanting to improve wildlife habitat and diversify into additional wildlife-related enterprises.

TOMMY YEATER

"We're trying to convey the idea that ranchers can indeed enhance the likelihood of maintaining their operations, long-term viability by making a few well-thought-out wildlife/livestock decisions," Cearley said.

Those decisions relate to stocking rate, grazing systems, and type and class of livestock grazed. The real goal here is to help give ranchers a renewed sense of hope for economic survival. The end result will likely be a more economically stable ranching business and healthier rangelands.

Program topics will deal with rangeland health, deer, quail and livestock interactions, brush management, rangeland economics, and the various conservation programs now available for landowners.

Individual registration is $15 until July 28 and $20 thereafter. Call to RSVP. The fee covers lunch and teaching materials.

For more information, call Cearley at 806 651-5760.

Tommy Yeater is the Cooperative Extension agent, agriculture, for Howard County. His office is in the bottom floor of the Howard County Courthouse. He can be reached at 264-2236.

Weddings

Silva and Hoenninger

Joel Hoenninger and Vanessa Silva were married April 22, on the beach of South Padre Island.

Vanessa is the daughter of Arturo and Marisela Silva of Brownsville. She is the granddaughter of Irma Macias and the late Gustavo Macias of Brownsville and the late Rose and Arthur Silva of Mexico City.

Joel is the son of Lt. Col. (ret) A.R. "Dick" and Donna Hoenninger of San Antonio, formerly of Big Spring. He is the grandson of the late Howard and Olga Reed of Big Spring and the late A.R. "Red" Hoenninger and Peggy Hoenninger of Phoenix.

Vanessa was given in marriage by her father. Natasha Silva of San Antonio served as her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Ivonne Owen of Brownsville, Diana Butler of Arkansas, Sonya Quarve of San Antonio and Maegan McGinnis of Austin. Vanessa's youngest sister, Andrea Silva of Brownsville, was the flower girl.

Joel's best man was Jason King of Austin. The groomsmen were Joel's cousin Mike Guzman of Big Spring and Joel's three brothers, Corbett Hoenninger of Houston, Rick Hoenninger of Phoenix and Robb Hoenninger of San Antonio. Ring Bearer was Gus Hammer, cousin of the bride.

Honorary flower girl was Kendra Kotara, cousin of the bride, and honorary ring bearer was Carl Hammer, cousin of the bride. Ushers were Amber Monse and Dustin Monse, cousins of the bride.

Joel Hoenninger and Vanessa Silva

Joel was born in Big Spring but lived in Arizona, Alabama, California, Hawaii, Virginia and Colorado before his Air Force father retired in San Antonio. Vanessa was born and raised in Brownsville but later lived in San Antonio where she and Joel met.

Joel is a graduate of Judson High School in San Antonio and attended San Antonio College. Vanessa graduated from Church Hill High School and received her bachelor's degree from the University of the Incarnate Word in San Antonio.

Following a honeymoon to Mazatlan, Mexico, the couple will reside in Austin.

Del Pruitt and Jones

Chelsey Latreaca Del Pruitt of Sonora and Jacoby Curtis Jones of Big Spring were married June 11, 2006, at the Coahoma Methodist Church.

Officiating were Gene Hudgins, youth minister of First United Methodist of Dalhart and Donita Lea, pastor of Coahoma Methodist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Roger and Destry Johnson of Sonora and granddaughter of Donna and the late Del Pruitt of Denver City.

The groom is the son of Jack and Kenda Jones of Big Spring and the grandson of Mary and the late Jack Jones and the late Kenneth and Sue Born of Big Spring.

Given in marriage by her stepfather and brother Chance Pruitt, the bride wore a white strapless A-line gown with fitted jeweled bodice. The bodice extended into a chapel-length train. The shoulder-length veil hung from a silver tiara headpiece embellished with rhinestones.

She carried a round bouquet of pink and champagne colored roses with pink and green foliage accents, finished with pink and champagne satin ribbons with pearls and crystal accents throughout.

The maid of honor was AshLee Romines of Denver City. Other attendants were Lauren Hudgins of Canyon; Anna King of Big Spring, sister of the groom; and Megan Maxwell of Sonora. The flower girl was Ashton Beach, niece of the groom.

The best man was Josh Bishop of Big Spring. Other groom's men were Garrett Honea of Big Spring, Josh Lilly of San

Tomorrow's Horoscope

BY HOLIDAY MATHIS

Venus is nurtured in the mother dome of Cancer, and Uranus explores the mystical Pisces realm — each informs the other with whispers of what it's like to move inside different kinds of love. The love of a mentor, a mother, a moonbeam. You may be touched by an affection completely unique and unrepeatable. Savor it.

HOLIDAY MATHIS

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Not even a confident Aries like you can be 100 percent certain at all times. Presently, you may not know where you're going, but don't let it stop you. There's a fine line between being lost and investigating alternative directions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). The world seems to know to beware of the thinkers on the planet — which is why they're looking out for you. Expect to encounter resistance. With gentle persistence (the key word here is "gentle"), your ideas will finally prevail.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Things have been so hectic lately! You've barely had a chance to catch your breath, no less catch up with your friends. Bring balance to your life by picking up the phone for a long overdue conversation.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Your mission is simply to evolve. So you can relax. Just as children don't will their limbs to grow, you don't need to will your intellect to sharpen or your relationships to mature. These things just happen for you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Everyone has skeletons in the closet, but not everyone has bodies in the freezer. (A metaphor, hopefully.) Your ability to accept someone's past may hinge on just how long ago this said "past" actually occurred.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept.

22). Your timing could not be sweeter, but your real genius is in recognizing a thick slice of luck when you see it and following through with your usual attention to detail.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). The planets point to you being externally focused. It could be the day you join a gym, sign up for a little nip-tuck or go for hair extensions. Before you embark, consider what you can do for your inner beauty. It's cheaper.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Yes, you're widely, impressively, brilliantly accomplished, but the stars caution you to avoid the Jack-of-all-trades (master-of-none) syndrome. Delegate what's out of your expertise to someone who needs the work.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Some carry a rabbit's foot, others wouldn't dream of going to a job interview without wearing their lucky tie. Jupiter-ruled, good fortune is yours without the props. Your positive outlook is the only talisman you need. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You're a witness. You didn't mean to be or want to be, but now you are. What to do with your accidental knowledge is the question. Turning it into a secret and carrying it around is an option, but it'll get awfully heavy!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You're poetic, romantic and prolific. Words of love roll easily off the tongue, or out of the pen if you prefer. Also, every song on the radio seems written just for you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). You're, quite discreetly, the life of the party. You don't dance on tabletops or don a lampshade on your head, but your genuine warmth and natural ability to put anyone at ease makes you a welcome guest wherever you are.

FORECAST FOR THE WEEK AHEAD: Bouncing around on this big blue earth-ball can feel precarious this week, as our three outer planets travel retrograde. Some of us may wonder how much we matter — are we really connected to the rest of the universe? Is it true that the flap of a butterfly's wing could cause a tidal wave on the other side of the world, or is it truer that the whole of humanity is an inconsequential blip on the galactic radar? First of all, it may help to keep in mind that "retrograde" is never really backward. The planets don't suddenly reverse direction. It's only a perception from our earthly standpoint.

Speaking of perception, it's the difference between big and small, light and darkness, success and failure — point of view is everything. Use ruling Leo's solar energy to embrace an optimistic and expansive take on life. Since your value of yourself, your relationships and your possessions is, for the most part, self-determined, this is the perfect week to go for high numbers, big love and outrageous, limitless determination to improve. The Leo sun's favorite hobby is exaggeration. Oddly enough, though, what starts as an exaggeration often proves to be an accurate assessment.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: Whether smiling through a media storm or making a fantastic soufflé, Martha Stewart enjoys being the best at what she does. She also loves to demonstrate how you can be the best, too. I see another book from Stewart this upcoming year — this time, it'll be a more practical how-to guide encouraging women to succeed as women, not just as domestic goddesses.

Annie's Mailbox ®: Advice for those in need

Dear Annie: I read the letter from "Bossier City, La.," asking for excuses women give for not having sex with their husbands.

Nowadays, most women work 40-plus hours a week, then come home and cook, clean and take care of kids. Why shouldn't we be "too tired" for sex? My husband and I try to have sex at least three times a week in spite of our schedules. I love him dearly, and he knows it. I don't look for excuses to NOT have sex, because I have a very understanding husband. "Bossier" needs to mind his own business. — Need Eight Hours of Sleep in Kentucky

Dear Kentucky: We're sorry to say, we heard a lot of excuses from a lot of readers. See how yours measure up:

From Hainesville, Ill.: Some years ago, my wife and I were in front of the TV in our den and I began to get amorous. She said, "Let's stay up and watch the late movie. I'm too tired to go to bed."

Michigan: At first, sex was uncomfortable. Then it became painful. My husband thought I was rejecting him. A checkup revealed that I had uterine cancer. I had surgery, and all is well. Ladies, PLEASE check with your doctor if you are experiencing pain during sex. It could save your life.

New York: My wonderful husband thinks it's funny to pass loud and odorous gas. It completely turns me off, and he knows it. He has no gastrointestinal problems. He's just a little too proud of something that should be saved for the guys.

Jacksonville, Fla.: Years ago, I tried the "not tonight, I have a headache" excuse. My husband promptly replied, "I promise not to touch your head."

Louisville, Ky.: Fourteen years ago, my wife's response to a request for intimacy was, "God gave you two perfectly good hands." We live like brother and sister. When the kids turn 18, I'm sure we're done.

New York: Why don't I want sex this morning? Honey, I've asked you before to brush your teeth. Your mouth is foul and sticky, especially after chewing tobacco the night before. I was quietly insulted the first few times. Now I'm turned off. Midwest: I will tell my husband that I already showered and don't want to waste water and spend time doing my hair and getting dressed again. It usually works, and he only needs to wait a day at the most.

Michigan: I recently purchased new bedding. The first night we used it, I was really not in the mood, so when my husband tried to be intimate, I said, "Not tonight, dear. The sheets are brand-new."

Louisiana: It has been five long years since I have had sex with my husband. I told the jerk straight up, "I don't trust you, and I don't want to have sex with you." It's lonely, but I am disease free. He isn't.

Dutchess County, N.Y.: The first thing I hear when I walk in the door is my husband calling out from the couch, "Start dinner." I accompany him to the lumberyard and the bank because he wants me to keep him company. Then I hear a ton of bunk when the dishes aren't done or the laundry isn't folded. Do you think I really need an excuse for not wanting to have sex? I have two words, and they are not "Good night."

Chicago: I find it impossible to cuddle up with someone in the dark when that person has been treating me like poop all day.

California: My husband is a smoker. The odor cannot be washed off at the end of the day. It gets into the pores of his skin. Sex is suffocating.

Elkhart, Ind.: Reasons my wife has recited: "I'm too tired." "I have a headache." "I'm not in the mood." "It's too early." "It's too late." "It's the middle of the day." I'd be sexually excited just to hear a new excuse.

Illinois: We share no intimacy out of the bedroom. That 50 pounds of extra flab doesn't arouse me. And mostly, it is not sexy to be addressed as "Mom" in bed.

Dear Annie: My husband and I regularly get together with a few other couples in a sort of "dinner club." I consider these people my dearest friends.

My daughter, "Mary," is getting married next month, and several weeks ago, "Lois," one of the women in the group, said, "Tell Mary to look at the last weekend in July, because we (the dinner club) would like to honor her with a shower."

Mary was thrilled, but we heard nothing more. Finally, I asked Lois if she still wanted Mary to have a date for a shower. She replied, "Oh, yes!"

and said she simply hadn't had a chance to talk to the others, but she'd get back to me. It's nearly August, and I haven't heard another word about it, although we all have met for dinner in the meantime.

Since then, another dear friend (not associated with the dinner club) asked to host a shower for Mary, and we set the date. When the dinner club met again, one of the men gave a toast to the upcoming wedding. It was then that I invited all of them to the new shower. They enthusiastically said they'd love to come.

Shouldn't Lois have said something to me if her plans went awry, instead of acting like the conversations never took place? Quite frankly, I am very hurt, as is Mary. How do I get over this? — Puzzled

Dear Puzzled: Either Lois is all talk, or she couldn't get the other members of the dinner club to cooperate. Of course she should have told you that the plans fell through, but the fact is, no one is obligated to host a shower for the bride. Try to forgive your friends, but in the future, take their offers with a grain of salt.

Dear Annie: I had to write about the letter from "Burned Twice in Florida," whose husband was hiding drugs in her house. Your advice was on the money about the possibility of losing her children, but she needs to get herself and her kids out of that house now.

I am a felony probation officer, and my caseload is full of drug users and innocent spouses like her. If the police search her house and she is there, she will be charged with possession. All she has to do is be present and a resident of that household, and they will charge her. — P.O. in Atlanta

Dear Atlanta: You weren't the only reader who pointed this out. We hope "Burned Twice" will consider her options carefully.

Finally off the shelf...

Ringer turns out to be a lot of fun. Go figure!

Who would be crazy enough to bring in a cast of mentally challenged athletes to film a movie about putting the fix to the Special Olympics?

Ex Jackass compatriot Johnny Knoxville, that's who.

I have to admit, up front, that this movie sat on my shelf for many weeks before I finally broke down and popped it into the DVD player. My exact thought at that moment was simply, "I really need a movie to rip in my weekly column."

Remember when your mother told you to never judge a book by its cover? She was right.

I know I'm going to be buried under an avalanche of calls, letters and e-mails for saying this, but "The Ringer" may very well be my feel-good movie of the year.

Let's start with the story.

Johnny Knoxville ("The Dukes of Hazard," "Walking Tall") stars as Steve Barker, an ordinary schmuck who dreams of making it in the corporate world but lacks the killer instinct. When he does manage to get a promotion, his first task is to fire the friendly janitor for the sketchiest of reasons.

Instead of canning the guy, Steve winds up hiring him to do the yardwork at his apartment complex. When the guy loses his fingers in a lawn-mowing accident, Steve is on the hook for $28,000 in medical bills and turns to his sleazy Uncle Gary, played by Brian Cox ("X-Men 2," "The Ring") for help.

Unfortunately, Uncle Gary owes sixty large to his less-than-patient bookie and is in no position to help

— not that he would, of course. However, Gary has a brilliant idea. The bookie is an enormous fan of the Special Olympics, especially one champion whom he describes as "the Deion Sanders" of the mentally challenged.

Since Steve was both a track star and an aspiring actor in high school, he will pose as a developmentally-disabled athlete and win the tournament because of his superior skill, allowing Gary to clean up by betting against the champ.

OK, if you're like me, you've kinda got the creepy crawlies at this point. Let's be honest with ourselves, because there's nothing noble — or even entertaining — about this scheme as it stands in my little synopsis.

Hearing that premise, many of you are probably expecting a lot of tasteless scenes of Knoxville running around drooling and spazzing out in an effort to pretend that he is mentally challenged — no doubt while "normal" people pretend not to notice — until he has a last-minute change of heart to condescendingly remind us that these special people are indeed people too.

That was my assumption, I admit it! However, I was extremely surprised to discover that the film was a lot more clever than that.

For starters, his ruse is discovered almost immediately by some of his fellow competitors. The twist is that they want him to stay and continue the scam in order to beat the egomaniacal five-time champion that they are sick and tired of losing to.

Additionally, he quickly learns that many of the participants are genuinely good and that he will actually have to put in a lot of training to get up to snuff.

It is also a lot funnier than it sounds. After a rough opening ten minutes, virtually every scene contains at least one or two good-sized laughs and for once, the trailer doesn't give away the best gags. We've seen the bit in the trailer where Knoxville confesses to a priest and get slapped around by him in response, but there is a final payoff later on that is genuinely inspired.

Against all odds, Knoxville, perhaps the only personality working in Hollywood today who could play such a role and seem perfectly suited for it, is reasonably amusing and engaging under the circumstances.

There is a range of comedic styles on offer in the film. Knoxville is perhaps best known for his physical exploits on Jackass, so slapstick certainly rears its ridiculous head, as does some quite impressive stunt work.

However, the character interaction is where the real comedy lies, and Knoxville is sometimes the hub of the joke, or sometimes the straight man for them, an alteration that is superb because it allows some of the ensemble members to take centre stage.

Brian Cox is absolutely hysterical as his heartless cohort. Cox is usually seen in more serious fare, and perhaps he's the only dramatic actor who could possibly deliver a line like "Since when did 'tard' become politically incorrect?" with enough genuine guile that it sounds like something a person — albeit a monstrous one — might actually say.

What could have made this film so dangerous is if it were seen as mocking the Special Olympics, or people with handicaps in general.

The script, penned by Family Guy writer Ricky Blitt, avoids this in two very clever ways. First of all, he ensures the handicapped characters — some of whom are actually played by disabled actors — are well-rounded and funny in their own right.

Secondly, he isn't afraid to make the disabilities prominent — not in a freakshow sort of way, but in a way which would prevent an audience from being judgmental about them. This works so well that while we have a few laughs at Steve trying to fake a disability, the majority of the humour comes from his interaction with the disabled characters, and it's not because of what they are, but because of who they are, and just how funny they can be.

The film almost entirely avoids the sentimental Band-Aids that most comedies have, principally because the comedy and the serious issues are already infused into the story. The way the characters develop and the relationships change is fantastic — and a little moving — but this too is woven into the film so it doesn't become too forced and artificial.

It's very telling that the Special Olympics have given this film their blessing, and it's not hard to see why. "The Ringer" has taken a serious topic and made a riot of a comedy out of it, without being offensive to a group of people so used to being the target of ridicule.

What I first viewed as an atrocity turned out to be a big screen gem. Go figure.

Thomas Jenkins, a South

Doyce Reed:
A fixture at the Spring City
Senior Center

Special Supplement to the Big Spring Herald

Doyce Reed:

At the Spring City Senior Citizens Center good things do come in a small package

All of us know someone that reminds us of the adage reminding that "good things come in small packages." For many of this community's senior citizens, one of those just happens to be Doyce Reed, who is somewhat of a fixture at the Spring City Senior Citizens Center.

On June 28, Reed celebrated her 81st birthday. So it seemed a good time to ask her to share some of her memories.

Nobody tells their own story better than themselves. As a result, this is her story:

"My maiden name was Purvis. I grew up in a small community just south of Putnam, called Atwell. I was the seventh child of a family of eight — six brothers and one sister. I graduated from Cross Plains High School in 1943 and went off to Howard Payne College in Brownwood that fall. I lived in a one-room apartment with my sister and her husband. They were determined for me to get an education, too. They left Brownwood before I did and went into the ministry. Soon I was tired of school and I left also.

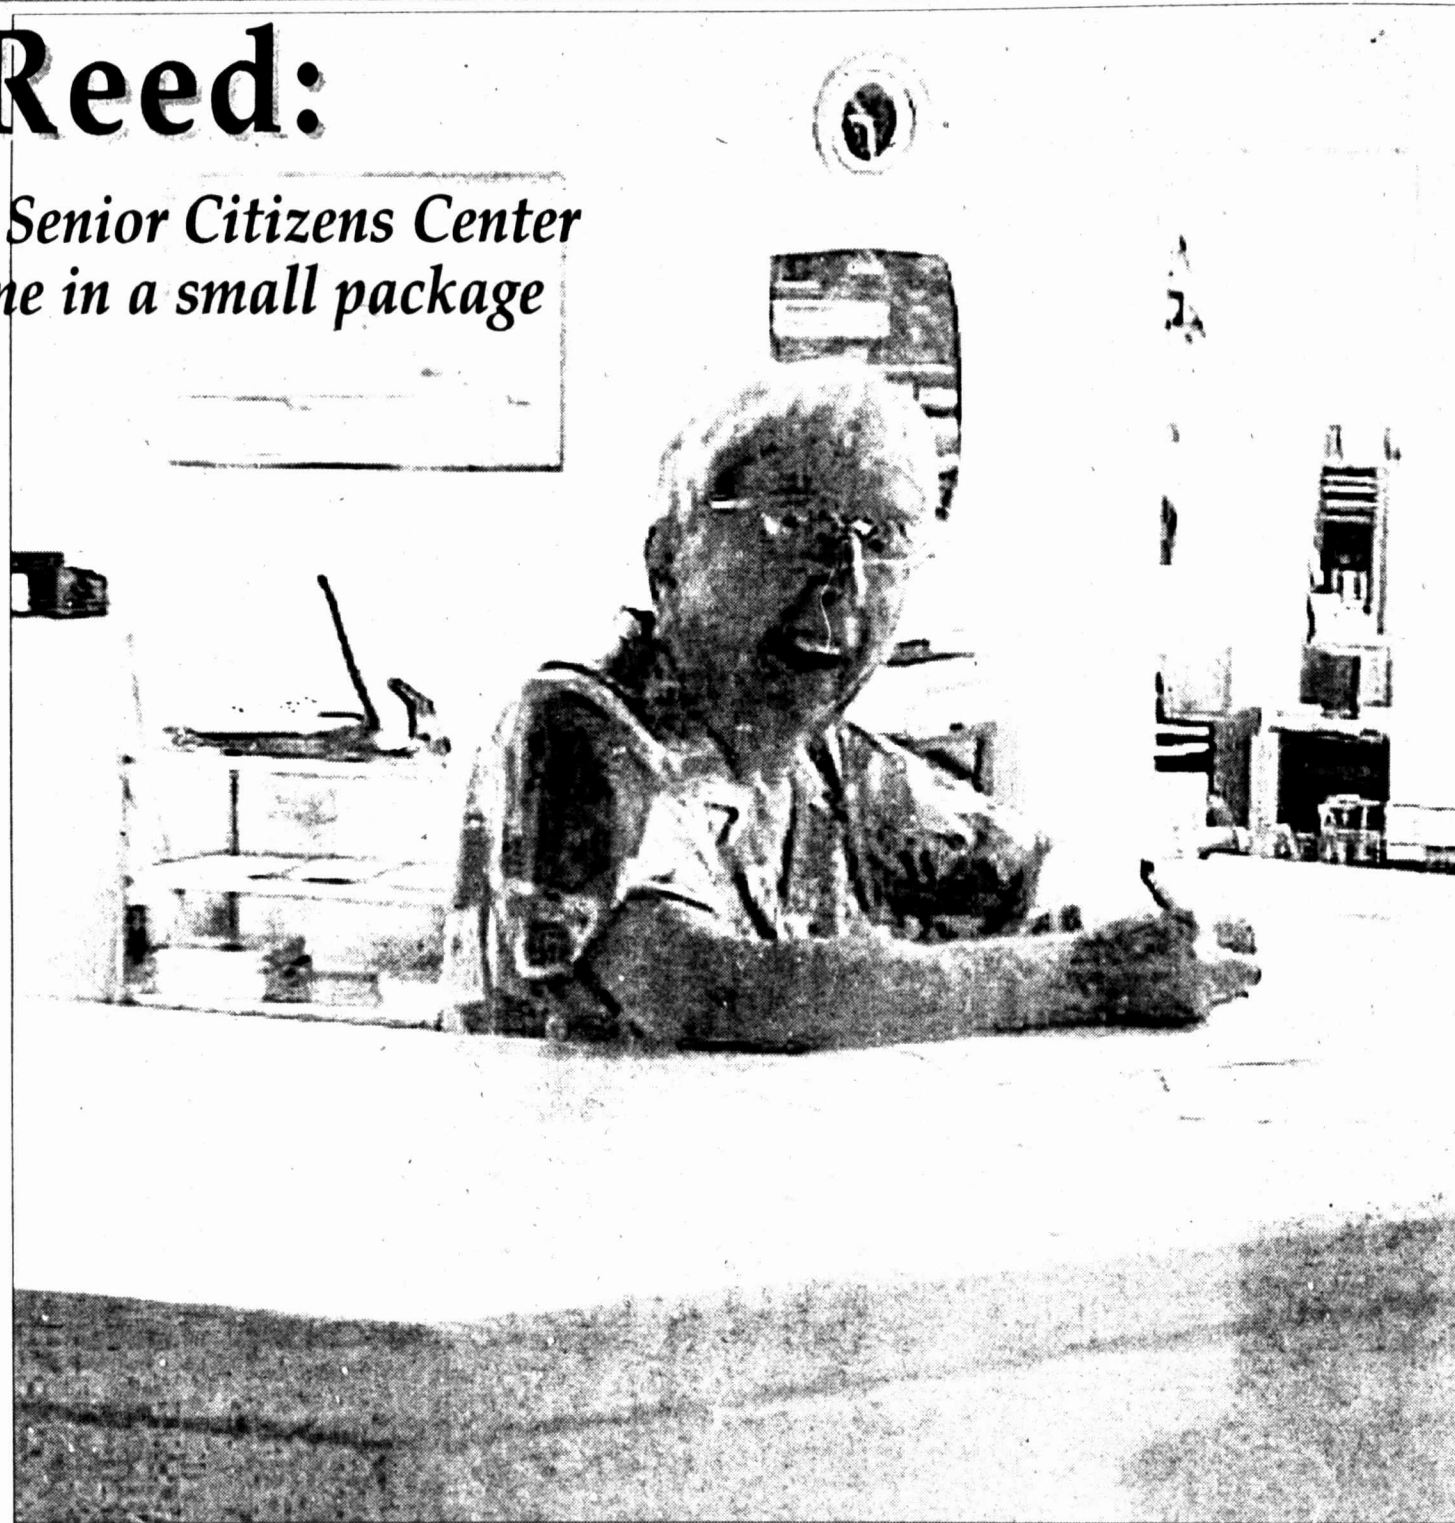

"I applied for a teaching job near my home and stayed there two years. I heard about an opening at Elbow, but... Oh, that was too far from home. Knowing I needed a job, I applied and was hired. It was there at a Halloween carnival I met my husband, Clifton Reed. We started dating the following January. We were married in April of that same year. I had always said I would never marry a farmer but that is just what I did.

"As soon as school was out, I quit teaching and started a family. We had three boys and three girls.

"Life was hard on the farm back in the '50s, but with the Lord's help, we made it. I think we are all better people as the result of it.

"In 1960, Clifton got a job with Cabot and that saved our lives. He retired in January, 1978.

"Our children were growing up and leaving home. When they had all gone, my husband became ill. He lived about four more years. After he passed away in the early part of 1984, I found myself alone and very lonely."

And that's when the Spring City Senior Citizens Center became a part of Reed's life. It became a large part of her life, in fact, but nothing in comparison to the impact she's made as a volunteer at the center.

"Knowing I don't make friends very quickly, I finally got up the courage to go out to the Senior Citizens Center," she recalled. "To my surprise, I became a part of it more quickly than I thought possible.

"Every time someone asked for volunteers, I would come forward. First, I handed out napkins at the beginning of the serving line. Next, I was asked to sit at the front door to greet the people as they entered the center. When the director found out that I would do most anything within reason, she asked me to help with bingo every Tuesday and Thursday. I have been doing both for close to 15 years.

"Some 12 or 14 years ago, Al Tidwell asked me if I would wrap silverware. Of course, I added that to my list. Many times I would go out early to get it all done before time to begin my job as greeter.

"Several years ago, I helped start a library at the center and have taken care of it for the past three or four years. Just about six weeks ago, I was asked to prepare the bingo prize bags. Naturally, I accepted.

"So now you have my story and I

Reflections:

Hospital's geriatric psychiatric program part of $1.5 million in renovation effort

In its continued effort to meet the medical needs of the people in this area, Scenic Mountain Medical Center recently completed its latest remodeling project. Scenic Mountain Medical Center offers a specialty healthcare service for older adults. The Reflections Unit is a geriatric psychiatry program located on the fourth floor of the facility. Patients from all over West Texas come for treatment of mental illnesses that make everyday life challenging.

According to his report on mental health, the U.S. Surgeon General wrote, "a substantial proportion of the population 55 and older — almost 20 percent of this age group — experience specific mental disorders that are not part of "normal" aging." Research that has helped differentiate mental disorders from "normal" aging has been one of the more important achievements of recent decades in the field of geriatric health. Unrecognized or untreated, however, depression, Alzheimer's disease, alcohol and drug misuse and abuse, anxiety, late-life schizophrenia, and other conditions can

The unit, will hold an open house from 4 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. on Thursday, Aug. 17, as part of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce's Business After Hours program.

Senior Circle:

Health and wellness organization offers numerous benefits

Senior Circle, sponsored by Community Health Systems, is a health and wellness organization that provides its members with travel, exercise classes and a variety of social opportunities.

"Membership in Senior Circle provides a number of benefits, including local merchant discounts as well as a good discount program with the hospital," said Anita Cline, Scenic Mountain Medical Center's advisor for Senior Circle.

Some of those benefits include a free upgrade to a private room for any hospitalized Senior Circle member, as well as three free meals a day for caregivers of hospitalized members.

Q&A: Exercise and prostate cancer

By Jim Evans

DEAR JIM: At 65, I have recently been diagnosed with early prostate cancer. My doctor has recommended a "wait and see" attitude until considering any conventional treatment. At the same time, he has suggested that I reduce the fat in my diet and begin an exercise program to slow - or possibly even reverse - its progression. I know I'm a little overweight, and I'm not real big on exercise, but this course of action seems a little too "way out" to me. I'm tempted to just have the necessary surgery and move on with my life rather than wait for the other shoe to drop, so to speak. DOUBTING TOM IN TEMECULA

DEAR TOM: I'm sure I don't have to tell you that prostate cancer is the most common cancer for men - the second deadliest following lung cancer - according to the American Cancer Society and is more prevalent in men over 65. However, since it is a very slowly progressing form of cancer, it is not unusual to delay conventional surgery or radiation (or hormone) treatment.

This period of waiting is typically called "watchful waiting."

It is also not unusual to seek alternative ways to control prostate cancer, and your doctor seems to be up to date on the latest research.

According to a study released by the University of California, San Francisco (Journal of Urology, September 2005), and reiterated by Dr. Dean Ornish, clinical professor at the University, "Changes in diet and lifestyle that we found in earlier research could reverse the progression of coronary heart disease may also affect the progression of prostate cancer."

What changes, in particular? Diet changes were, perhaps, the most inflexible with an almost total emphasis on vegetables, fruits, whole grains, legumes, and soy products supplemented by fish oil, selenium, and vitamins C and E. And, of course, good old-fashioned exercise in the minimal form of at least walking for 30 minutes a day, six days a week was part of the equation.

The study also mandated 60 minutes of stress management daily - yoga, for example.

Some participants in the study group dropped out because, they said, the diet and lifestyle changes were too difficult to follow. Too bad, because after the first year, the PSA average PSA levels for participants who followed the recommended regimen decreased by 4%, and NONE required any treatment due to prostate cancer progression.

In contrast, the control group, which did not follow the regimen, showed an average increase of 6% in PSA level and several of its participants required conventional prostate cancer treatment.

So, should you follow your doctor's advice? That's up to you. You should probably get a second opinion anyway, but it sounds like your current doctor is pretty progressive and knows the right course of treatment for you - that is, if you're not too stubborn to admit it and make the necessary changes in your daily life.

Just because you're 65 doesn't mean you can't teach an old dog (that's you, my friend) new tricks and learn to live a healthier lifestyle.

Jim Evans is a 38-year veteran of the health and fitness industry and a nationally recognized consultant on fitness for seniors. He is chairman of the advisory council for Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) in San Diego County, Calif., and host of a popular radio talk show "Forever Young" which focuses on issues of health, fitness, and quality of life.

But there are downsides to the modern grandparent-grandchild relationship too.

The stereotypical Boomer spent a lifetime working long hours and many plan to do so well into their 60s, leaving them busy with their own lives and careers. An increasingly transient population means that more grandparents live far from their grandchildren. And even those grandparents who most want to be involved often find it difficult; today's grandparents are the first generation of grandparents who in large numbers still have living parents, many of whom need as much or more care, monitoring and financial assistance as grandchildren.

In a nutshell, Baby Boomers — the oldest of whom turn 60 this year, the youngest of whom are in their early 40s — are redefining grandparenting as profoundly as they altered almost every other facet of American culture, from marriage and the workplace to politics and technology.

"We're the invention generation," said Christine Crosby, 59, a grandmother who two years ago launched Grand magazine, targeting Baby Boomer grandparents. Crosby pointed out how her generation had not only invented but embraced a litany of life-changing technology, from the Internet to the BlackBerry.

"We feel that we can reinvent anything in our own image, and right now we're doing that to grandparenting," she said.

But embracing their new role as grandparent bucks against another key Baby Boomer characteristic: a desire to feel young. And many Boomers are finding themselves unsure exactly how to morph into that grandparent role.

A chat room comment on one Web site — AgingHipsters.com — sums up the identity crisis: "I cannot be a grandparent," the entry practically moans. "I don't know how to make a strudel, I don't own a hairnet, and my stockings are never rolled down to my knees. I can't crochet, play mah-jongg or speak Yiddish. How could people as young and hip as we Boomers turn into grandparents?"

True to their reputation for being entrepreneurs, many Boomers are going so far as to turn grandparenthood into a full-time career.

Crosby, who previously edited small, regional magazines, founded Grand after her first grandchild was born and she realized there was no magazine on the market that targeted the burgeoning social niche of grandparents. Zullo and his wife, Kathryn, both North Carolina authors, put other work aside to pen "The Nanas and the Papas: A Boomers' Guide to Grandparenting." Hamilton, 61, the Tennessee grandmother who stilt-walks with her grandchildren, opened a company to manufacture her stilts, an enterprise so successful that toy giant FAO Schwarz signed on to sell them.

Whatever their career, Boomers are busier than virtually any generation of grandparents before. An AARP study released earlier this year found that nearly 70 percent of Americans ages 50 to 64 remained at work. About 80 percent of Boomers expect to work at least part time during retirement, according to the AARP findings.

"There is a fair number of disconnected grandparents out there," said Allan Zullo, 58. "Some of them are just so self-involved that they don't make time for much else. Secondly, a lot of them didn't make much time for their own children, and therefore they don't have good relationships with their grandchildren's parents."

But Dr. Arthur Kornhaber, a psychiatrist who has been studying the grandparent-grandchild relationship since the 1970s, is beginning to notice that as the notoriously workaholic Baby Boomers age, they start to realize how much they have sacrificed to advance their careers, make money and travel the globe.

"I see that with grandchildren, they suddenly realize they have another chance at things," said Kornhaber, who also is president of the Foundation for Grandparenting. "They start to grow out of their narcissism, out of their whole 'me' thing. They begin to realize that transmitting their minds and talents and souls to children — their grandchildren — is what immortality is really all about."

At 73, Kornhaber looks as an outsider at this generation of grandparents he writes about in a new book called "The Grandparent Solution." He encourages them to be philosophical about their new role in a way they perhaps have not been about any role before.

today has given us a nation of vital, healthy grandparents like we've never had before," he said. "What do we do with that extra time? Do we work? Vacation? Or do we achieve a better balance in our life by realizing that our grandchildren, particularly in these times, need us?"

Some grandparents are certainly answering that call. According to U.S. Census numbers, more than 5 million grandparents are raising grandchildren, but experts like Kornhaber suspect that number may actually be as high as 8 million. These grandparents essentially are taking on a second parenthood due to the fallout of their children's divorces, financial problems or, increasingly, drug addictions, Kornhaber said.

Marketers are taking notice of these Baby Boomer grandparents. Retailers have begun targeting Boomer grandparents, using pop hits from the 1950s and '60s in commercials and reviving old-fashioned toys such as the Sock Monkey and the kazoo.

It's working. By some estimates, U.S. grandparents spend $30 billion a year on their grandchildren — but not just on fancy toys.

"I think one of the things that is really a trend among Boomer grandparents is that we are interested less in buying our grandchildren toys than we are in buying them experiences," Zullo said. "Where grandparents once spoiled kids with toys and candy, now we prefer to pay for ski trips, dance lessons, outings to the Museum of Science and Industry."

Yet for all the changes being seen in grandparents today, many Boomers still feel as though they are struggling to hit their stride in the new role. Because the life expectancy of previous generations was shorter, many Boomers got limited — or no — time with their grandparents, and many have little firsthand knowledge of how a grandparent should look and act.

All this new-grandparent anxiety has led to a burgeoning self-help industry. In just two years, Grand magazine has increased its circulation to 100,000. Blogs, chat rooms and Web sites devoted to the topic — such as grand-boomers.com — are multiplying. Summer camps are adding grandparent-grandchild weeks.

"When my wife and I found out that we were about to be grandparents in our late 40s, we said, 'What do we know about grandparent-ing?'" Zullo said.

Even the title of grandparent seems to throw Boomers for a loop. Boomer grandparents have been opting to have grandchildren call them by younger-sounding, more informal titles such as "Papa," "GG," "Bubbe" or "Nanny."

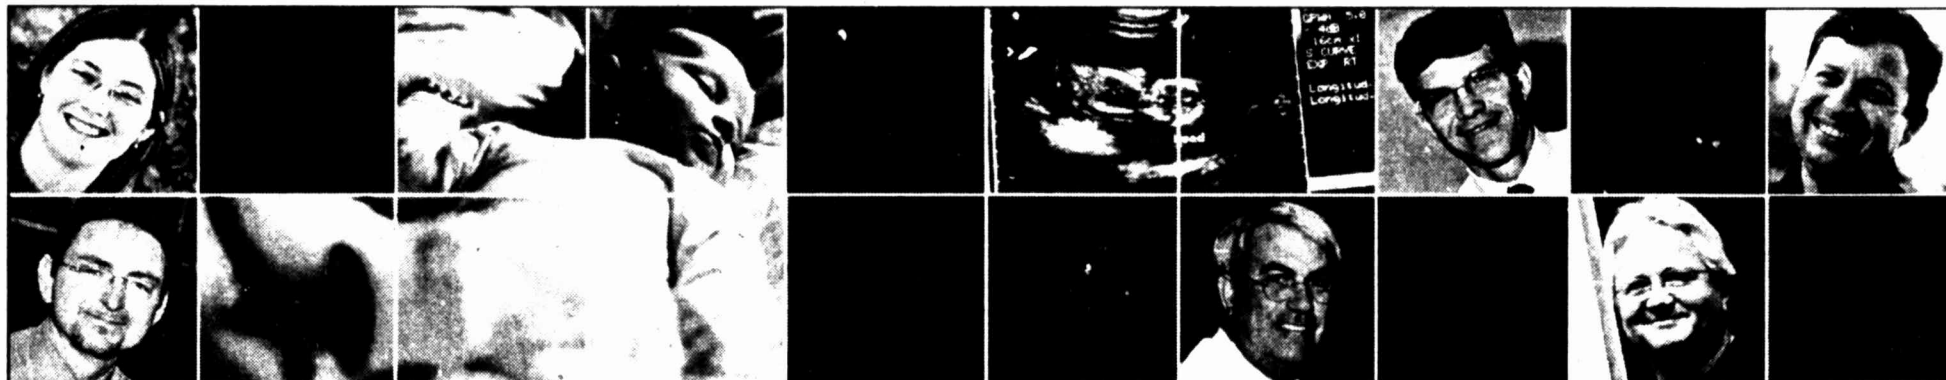

"Our peers are the ones who have spent God knows how much money on Botox and plastic surgery," said Zullo, whose grandchildren call him Papa and his wife Nana. "Having someone call you 'Grandma' or 'Grandpa' can seem to negate all that."

Grand, Crosby's magazine, has gone out of its way to make being a grandparent more glamorous to Boomers. The magazine's cover routinely features grandparents who defy the stereotype of the old, gray-haired person in a rocker: Goldie Hawn. Sylvester Stallone. Billy Crystal. Last year, the magazine named Harrison Ford the "sexiest grandparent in America."

Although Boomers may belong to a generation that has embraced everything from plastic surgery to new-age medicine to cryonics in a bid to live forever, experts such as Kornhaber hope that very part of the Boomer psyche can be taken advantage of to make them even more active as grandparents.

"The real question will be, how can we make this a role that gives meaningfulness to old age in a society that doesn't currently have much use for old age?" he said.

"Our members who are hospitalized are really the VIPs in the hospital. I am able to visit them every day and I also provide small services for their families, like checking on them outside of visiting hours if they're in the intensive care unit," she said.

For well Senior Circle members, the list of opportunities reads like a social event calendar.

"We go to plays and movies and we have exercise classes and we play games like bingo and we have pot luck dinners and birthday parties.

A total of 75 facilities with more than 55,000 members nationwide are represented by Senior Circle.

"We also travel and members get discounts on tours. We take day trips and holiday site-seeing tours and I take a group to New Mexico once a month," she said.

Discounts with merchants in Big Spring is another member benefit, and members include seniors from Crane, Westbrook, Snyder and San Angelo.

Membership has grown from about 200 three years ago to more than 560 now, with new members added almost daily.

"There really are a lot of benefits to joining," she said.

Cline writes and distributes a newsletter that gives members a variety of information from introductions to new physicians in town to helpful hints for staying cool in the summer and warm in the winter, she said.

A national magazine for Senior Circle members is also included in the $15 annual fee. A total of 75 facilities with more than 55,000 members nationwide are represented by Senior Circle.

"We promote health and wellness and activity and involvement," Cline said.

One member, she said, is so involved with the organization that she has turned down her children's request to move closer to them. And another member, who recently suffered the loss of a spouse, told Cline that Senior Circle had saved her life.

"Those types of people and those situations and experiences are what makes this job worthwhile for me. I love helping people and I really love all kinds of people and this job was sent to me by God," Cline said.

have enjoyed every minute of it. The Senior Citizens Center is as much a part of me as life itself and I sure would hate to be without it. I wish all seniors in this community would come out and join us. You will find new friends waiting to become part of your life, just as I found them."

Doyce credits her upbringing with teaching her what is most important in life. She did not like school and says she regularly told her father, who she remembers as "strict," that she "believed she'd turn in her books today."

He always assured her she'd "go back and get them tomorrow" if she did.

She never did.

Strict he may have been, but Doyce learned not to quit. It's a lesson she remembers today.

On Feb. 10, 2005, Doyce suffered a major injury to one leg. Doctors inserted a rod to mend the injured leg and said she would never walk again.

They didn't really know her, though.

She returned to the Senior Center in April using a walker. By June, she was walking on the damaged leg, performing all her usual volunteer duties.

Reed knows how to handle adversity.

Her faith in God is strong and brings her great joy and comfort. She is an avid reader and she loves gospel music. She enjoys "doing" for others and has made several afghans for family and friends.

Though she says she is still shy, now days she actively seeks out new friends.

Doyce Reed is indeed one of those "good things that come in small packages." That's because the frame is small, but the spirit is indomitable.
