Hang gliding championship about to begin

By THOMAS JENKINS
Staff Writer

The often sleepy airport at the McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark will jump to life this weekend, as the U.S. Hang Gliding Championship gets ready to make its week-long run into the history books.

Sponsored by the U.S. Hang Gliding Association and slated Sunday through Saturday, Aug. 12, the event will give area residents a chance to see the sport up close, according to championship organizer and director David Glover.

Glover

"In the morning people will be doing the ultralight and tandem instructional flying," said Glover. "That's because that's when the flying is the smoothest. The sun hasn't hit the ground and it hasn't heated up and the thermals aren't really going up yet. That will be in the mornings, from about 8 a.m. until 10 a.m."

"Take off usually won't occur before noon, unless it's just an unusual day. The hang gliders will go up between about noon and 1 p.m., and they will usually land back at the airport at about 3 p.m. or 4 p.m., depending on the course they are running."

In between the instructional flights — which are sponsored and coordinated by the USHGA members — and the competitive flights, area residents will get to witness a different kind of aeronautical spectacle pitting ultralight pilots against one another.

Dubbed the Prairie Pup Precision Pflour Plop, pilots will attempt to "bomb" a target on the ground with bags of flour from 10 a.m. until 11 a.m. each day of the championship, an activity the Big Spring skyline has seen before, according to Bobby McDonald, chairman of the local event committee.

"During World War II, when the bombardiers came here to train, they had no armaments to train with," said McDonald. "So they built a circle out where FM 700 is close to the hospital. It was really big. They would fly those airplanes and drop flour sacks. Hangar 25 Air Museum actually has a picture of that taking place."

"The name was designed by a committee, and it's a humorous way of saying they are going to target-drop flour sacks in front of the public from the ultralight. They will also compete for cash prizes on a daily basis."

Glover said he's expecting nearly twice as many pilots than last year for the competition, which is leading up to the 2007 World Championship, slated for Big Spring in approximately a year.

"The best pilots from around the world are coming this year to Big Spring," said Glover.

"Teams from Australia, Japan, Austria, Italy, France, Germany, Brazil, Canada, Mexico and others are bringing full teams to this year's event in preparation for the World Championship next year."

For more information on instructional flights — both with hang gliding and ultralights — call 264-2362.

County receives good news on jail upgrades during Austin meeting

By THOMAS JENKINS
Staff Writer

Howard County commissioners got a thumbs up from the Texas Commission on Jail Standards this week, as TCJS examined the county's progress in bringing its existing jail into state compliance.

According to Commissioner Bill Crooker, all four commissioners — along with local architect Phil Furqueron, Sheriff Dale Walker and Big Spring Fire Marshal Carl Condray — met with the state commission in Austin Thursday.

"The meeting went very well," said Crooker. "We were very pleased with the way it went, and the members of the commission seemed very pleased as well. They were happy to see all four commissioners attend the meeting, and they were very happy with the progress we've made in correcting the problems with the current jail."

Crooker said County Judge Ben Lockhart was unable to attend, due to health issues.

The problems that recently caught the state commission's eye — a door that swung the wrong way, lack of a stand pipe to provide water for firefighters and a faulty smoke evacuation system — are

Budget focus for HC board

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Howard College officials are shaping a budget very similar to last year with the added lure of a likely cut in the tax rate.

Junior college district trustees will learn about progress on the new budget when they hold a workshop and regular meeting Monday in the East Room of Garrett Coliseum.

The workshop will run from 8:30 a.m. to 11:45 a.m., while the trustee meeting begins at 12:30 p.m.

College President Dr. Cheryl Sparks said college officials have drawn up a preliminary budget very close, expenditure wise, to last year's package.

The preliminary budget features $21.8 million in expenditures, an increase

TOUGH FIRST DATE

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — A romantic date turned into a lesson in survival on an isolated stretch of river in Florida.

"It was like 'Survivor,'" said Jessica Lucarini, 26, who was on her first date with 28-year-old Michael Eckhoff when things went awry. Their jet ski broke down about 6 p.m., stranding them in mangroves on the bank of the Myakka River. They stumbled over branches in waist-deep water for hours until they found a patch of sand. They made a fire and shared sips of water until a helicopter spotted them at about 1 a.m. Despite the ordeal, "There will be a second date," Lucarini told The Herald in Bradenton.

BSISD looking for good year, fiscally speaking

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Fiscally speaking, it's still going to be a very good year for Big Spring Independent School District.

Just how much better, however, is still unknown. Property valuations for the district have increased about $143 million from last year, meaning that BSISD will collect much more tax money than the 2005-2006 fiscal year.

As with almost everything, however, there's a catch.

"The new figure includes quite a lot of contested valuations," said BSISD Business Manager Sandra Waggoner.

The biggest example of that comes from the district's biggest taxpayer, ALON Refinery is considering contesting about $67 million of its valuation, meaning that about $800,000 in potential BSISD tax revenue is currently up in the air.

The good news is that the district took a preemptive approach toward valuations when putting together its new budget.

"We were not counting on getting any of the refinery's contested valuations," Waggoner said.

Even if all the contested valuations go sour — at least, for the district — BSISD will still pull in significantly more revenue than last year.

"Even though we're adopting a lower tax rate than last year, we'll still gain about $100,000 in (local) revenue this year," Waggoner said. "That's because of higher valuations."

Coupled with that increase is a hike in state revenue because of recent legislation. Mix those two together and the school district is still sitting pretty, fiscally speaking.

With the extra money, school officials are planning on giving the green light to more than $1.8 million in "wish list" items — needed purchases that have been put off for years because of past budget constraints.

Those items include more than $328,000 in personnel salary increases, $315,000 for the technology department, $386,000 for buses and other vehicles, $202,000 to resurface the two main parking lots at Big Spring High School, $120,000 for bleacher repair at district athletic facilities and $95,000 to resurface the track at Blankenship Field.

Waggoner said district trustees also will consider adding air conditioning to Steer Gym when they hold a public hearing on the budget and tax rate Thursday at 5:15 p.m. in the high school board room.

Air conditioning the gym has been estimated to cost between $200,000 and $250,000.

Taxpayers also will face a lower tax rate from the district. Waggoner said the new rate tentatively approved by trustees is $1.434 per $100 valuation. She said $1.37 of that rate will handle maintenance and operation items, with the rest going toward debt service.

With sharply higher valuations, the lower tax rate will be a mixed blessing for property owners, Waggoner admitted.

"They won't see much of a tax break because of the valuations," she said, "but they would have had to pay a lot more if we didn't cut the tax rate."

Noticeable tax relief should arrive next year, when state mandates force the district to lower its maintenance and operation tax rate to $1.06 per $100 valuation, she said.

Trustees are scheduled to formally adopt the budget and tax rate when they meet Aug. 31.

JAIL

well on their way to being corrected, said Crooker.

"The problem with the door has already been taken care of," said Crooker. "The stand pipe and the smoke evacuation system are being worked on, and we're making good progress."

Crooker said TCJS officials were also very pleased with the county's resolve to hold a bond election in November to fund the design and construction of a new jail facility.

"We explained to them we had decided to hold a bond election in November, and they were very pleased with this," said Crooker. "We're expecting to make the official motion to call for the bond election during our Aug. 28 meeting, so we're not only making progress with fixing the existing jail, we're also making progress with building a new one."

The meeting with TCJS officials may have yielded a nod, but according to Crooker, the county isn't out of the woods yet when it comes to the jail facility.

"The smoke evacuation system is the most important aspect of this whole effort," said Crooker before the meeting. "TAC (Texas Association of Counties), which we have our insurance through, has told us they will void our liability coverage on the jail on Oct. 1 unless we've made concrete advancements in that area."

Consideration of a new jail facility began more than two years ago when commissioners identified jail overcrowding and non-compliance with state jail laws as an ongoing and long-term problem.

Earlier this year, commissioners voted 4-1 in favor of building a new 144-bed jail near the intersection of Interstate Highway 20 and U.S. Highway 87. Commissioner Gary Simer voted against the measure, citing size and location as reasons.

In an informal vote taken late last month, commissioners agreed to finance the new facility — which has yet to be given a firm price tag — through a fall bond election.

of roughly $100,000 from the previous year.

But because of increased valuations within the district, the college will be able to lower its tax rate — from its current 27.3 cents per $100 valuation to 24.12 cents — and still see an increase in its tax levy, Sparks noted.

Also Monday, trustees will begin learning just how much it will cost to address the district's infrastructure needs.

Officials with the architectural consulting firm of Freese and Nichols will present projected costs associated with building and systems repairs at the Big Spring campus.

With three other taxing entities in the county calling for bond elections this November, Sparks admitted that the college is searching for an alternative method to pay for these improvements — although nothing has been ruled out at this point.

"Our entire (facilities) master plan was designed to look at different funding sources for these projects," Sparks said.

In other business Monday, trustees will consider:

- The college's annual Legislative Appropriation Request, the district's formal application for state funds to cover the new school year.

Sparks said this year's

LAR will seek money to finance a new workforce training building on the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf campus, the first major step in SWCID's facilities master plan.

- Approval of the Howard College Tax Appraisal District budget.

- An annual evaluation of the college's core curriculum.

- Summer enrollment and contact hour figures.

- Bids and catalog and handbook changes.

Court records show day care owner accused in death had criminal record

BALCH SPRINGS (AP) — A day care center owner accused of trying to cover up the heatstroke death of a 4-year-old obtained a child-care license despite a criminal record that includes stabbing a woman, according to court records.

Blynithia Washington's theft history also did not disqualify her from opening the Dream House Learning Center and receiving about $1 million in federal funding, according to records.

"The licensing standards in this state are extremely low," said Susan Hoff, who heads the government contractor ChildCareGroup.

"When you have a really low ceiling like that, these things happen."

Washington, 40, is charged with causing the death of Jacob Fox, who was found by emergency crews at a park July 20 after Washington placed a frantic call to 911. She told police she found the child unconscious on the playground, but evidence suggests the boy died inside a sweltering van and was later moved.

Records obtained by the newspaper show Washington served probation for stabbing a woman in 1988 and has misdemeanor thefts of under $50.

The woman who handed Washington the knife in the stabbing was later shot to death in her presence, and a former boyfriend and one of her sons is in prison for separate killings.

State officials said they were not aware of the 1988 assault. The Department of Family and Protective Services, which issues child-care licenses, defended its background checks.

"I know that they followed the policy the way it's written and followed the laws the way they were written," spokeswoman Marissa Gonzales said.

Authorities suspect Washington used different names and birth dates to pass the necessary background checks.

Texas rules typically bar people convicted of violent felonies from working in child care centers, but even if officials had known of the 1988 assault, she may not have been disqualified because she completed deferred-adjudication probation.

Dear Friends,

Thank you so much for the beautiful and gracious outpouring of your compassion, love and prayers. The Callihan family definitely felt and continues to feel warmly "held" during this time. Some sent flowers, cards, food and some just offered a shoulder to lean on and we can't begin to express how much each gesture meant. We lost a special man that had very special friends.

Brother Snipes and Baptist Temple Family, words cannot express what you mean to us. Your outpouring of love and support is exceptional.

To the Coffee Gang, Ross loved each of you and we are so fortunate that he had friends like you to laugh with. He loved this time with you.

A word of thanks to the following in the Medical field that have been a great support to us: The Staff at Scenic Mountain Medical Center, Dr. Kup and Staff, Best Home Care, Home Hospice, the HEB Pharmacy staff and Professional Home Oxygen Service and finally Tawna Jacobs.

Sincerely,
Mildred Callihan and Family.

OUR VIEWS

Here's hoping the world's best think we're best

The brightly-colored wings in the sky over the McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark this next week will be a welcomed sight for quite a few Big Spring residents. The U.S. Hang Gliding Championship Open is being staged at the airpark, drawing some of the sport's best gliders to our community.

Competition in the week-long event sponsored by the United States Hang Gliding Association begins Sunday and will continue through Saturday, Aug. 12. Gliders will take off around noon each day and participate in what USHGA spokesman David Glover calls "three-dimensional yacht races in the sky."

While this marks the fifth consecutive year that a major USHGA event has been scheduled in Big Spring, it could well be the biggest that's ever been held here.

That's because this year's event and the four that have preceded it, are setting the stage for the 2007 World Championships, which will be held here in Big Spring.

As a result, Glover says the best pilots from around the world are here right now — teams from Australia, Japan, Austria, Italy, Germany, France, Brazil, Canada, Mexico...

They're here getting ready for next year's championships.

Spectators are welcome to show up at the airpark and take in the competitions. Concessions are available, but he suggested that spectators bring folding chairs, sunshades and coolers with drinks.

The gliders are in Big Spring because this area offers excellent natural qualities for hang gliding. This portion of West Texas has the geography and weather necessary for excellent soaring conditions.

While this is not the first time the USHGA has held an event in Big Spring, and obviously won't be the last, we want to make sure that we salute the local committee headed by Bobby McDonald. Each year this group has worked with Glover and other USHGA officials to ensure the pilots keep wanting to come back.

Furthermore, we here at the Herald want to welcome all the hang gliding participants to Big Spring. We hope you enjoy your stay here.

Not only do we look forward to what awaits us this week, but the prospect of next year's championships

As a matter of fact, we hope you all just keep coming back for many, many years to come.

We make no secret of our West Texas pride, nor our belief that Big Spring is the best place on earth to live.

We hope that our visitors this week come to believe there's no better place to fly.

A SMALL PRAYER

by K. Rae Anderson

You're not a new idea, Lord, You've always been there for us.
Thank You.

Amen

A musical trip down memory lane

Thomas Wolfe was wrong — you can go home again. The view just changes a bit, that's all.

I recently broke a long-standing vow and attended a high school reunion; a gathering of Big Spring High School Band members from the years 1970 to 1980, to be exact.

To put it kindly, my high school years aren't exactly treasured in memory, so for many years I've steadfastly avoided going to reunions. I reasoned that there was little or no use in dredging up memories best left forgotten.

This time, however, I decided to go. Mostly it was because there were some people I hadn't seen in decades who I truly missed over the years, and I wanted to re-make their acquaintance.

Plus it was for the band. The Steer Band. The Mighty Steer Band.

Those who recall those years remember that the BSHS band was more than a group of musicians who marched at halftime at football games.

Under the direction of Bill Bradley (and more on him in a little bit), the band was a 200-member strong entertainment machine. Sure, we marched at halftime, but we were just as likely to perform with kazooes as clarinets and trumpets. And we'd throw in fireworks shows from time to time.

In short, you never knew exactly what to expect from one of our shows — which I guess was one of the main attractions.

Then, there was Campus Review. For those of you who never saw CR, it was an annual show put on by the band that featured singing, dancing and jokes (mostly of the corny variety) in as professional a way as a bunch of teenagers could manage.

Which was pretty darned professional, if I do say so myself. Bradley wouldn't have it any other way.

Bill Bradley — what in the world can I say about Bill Bradley? That he was the most irritating teacher I ever had, yet he's the one I'll least likely forget? That he could be downright cold one moment and unexpectedly kind the next? That he made me want to strangle him, yet made me regret I never got to know him better?

Yep, that pretty much sums it up.

There are teachers who are more responsible for putting me on my eventual career path, and who I remember with nothing but fondness. But the simple fact is that no other teacher directly influenced me as much as Bradley. He pushed, cajoled, threatened and at times humiliated me — but he got more out of me than I thought was possible.

And isn't that what a teacher is supposed to be about?

Bradley believed that a band was supposed to be about more than just music. To be sure, he paid attention to the music side and ran us through the mill to get ready for various contests.

But to him, being in the band was also about having fun. Although, in the Bradley universe, having fun took a lot of hard work.

Preparing for Campus Review, for instance, involved nightly practices over a two-month period. Starting just after Thanksgiving break, we rehearsed our various song-and-dance routines until we were, quite frankly, sick to death of the whole idea. And forget Christmas vacation. That was the time we worked the hardest.

All that hard work had a purpose, though. By the time the curtain went up on CR in late January, we had everything down to a fine gloss. It was a slick, professional production that you had to constantly remind yourself was put on by a group of high school students.

The crowds always loved it — and I'd be less than honest if I didn't say we enjoyed the adulation.

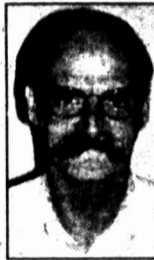

And it was all made possible by Bradley. That's why, at the reunion, Bradley stories predominated.

There was also the little matter of re-acquainting myself with some long-lost friends, which was fun. We laughed, dusted off old memories, caught up on lost time and recalled friends who are no longer among us.

I want to thank Cindy McGuire, Cindy Yater, Shannon Nabors and Lonnie Prater, who organized the reunion. I had a better time than I had any right to expect, folks.

There's just one little thing: Everybody at the reunion looked a lot older than the last time I saw them. How is that possible, when I'm still so young and handsome?

YOUR VIEWS

TO THE EDITOR:

We lost a much-appreciated life-long friend this week in the person of Col. John T. Moore whose obituary appeared in Thursday's (Aug. 3) Longview News-Journal.

John T. and I were classmates through the public schools in Big Spring where he was the drum major of the high school band.

In our sophomore year at Big Spring High School the classic movie "Romeo and Juliet" was brought to the Ritz Theater with the announced purpose of increasing the cultural development of the students of Big Spring High School. And while the price of a ticket was 25 cents — ordinarily your lunch money — it was worth doing without lunch to not miss an excused absence from school.

The Ritz Theater was filled with excitement and anticipation with homeroom teachers sitting first nearest the aisle to preserve order and the appropriate decorum for such an edifying experience.

The student body of Big Spring High School had never acted more appropriately until the move reached those famous lines spoken by Juliet from the balcony — "O Romeo, Romeo! Wherefore art thou, Romeo?"

This was the moment that John T. chose to leave his permanent, indelible mark on Big Spring High School, its faculty and students with a loud answer to Juliet's question that reverberated through the movie auditorium — "Heah I is!" It was bedlam among the student body and the remainder of the classical film was spent by the teachers attempting to quiet and control the students.

John T. was reprimanded, caused to make an appearance in the principal's office and the undertone of the faculty being that this was not only a young person who should be dismissed from school, but that it was easy to understand that such a person would never amount to anything in life.

If you read John T.'s obituary, you found out that he devoted the greater portion of his life to service in the U.S. Air Force. Among other duties, he was so respected by his superiors for his flying skills and military responsibility that he was given the assignment of flying various presidents of the United States in the first Air Force One jet.

I have often thought that President Harry Truman was the kind of man who would fully appreciate having Col. John T. Moore at the controls of his airplane.

And isn't it a shame that all those faculty detractors of Big Spring High School never had the pleasure of reading John T.'s obituary and knowing the accomplishments of a young man with a supreme sense of humor?

Unauthorized practice of law

LEWISTOWN, Pa. (AP) — A man with a criminal record masqueraded as an attorney for months after stealing the identity of a lawyer with the same name, authorities said.

Jeffrey P. Riddell, 40, of Hershey, has never held a law license in Pennsylvania, but claimed to be another attorney with the same first and last names, authorities said.

Riddell was jailed Tuesday and faces a charge of unauthorized practice of law. Prosecutor Stephen S. Snook said he also hopes to file identity theft charges.

Snook's suspicions started when he got a letter from Riddell on behalf of a defendant in a drug case in March. Written on the lawyer's stationery, the letter was threatening and "goofy," he said.

He ended up getting more letters from Riddell and almost daily phone calls. Then, when he saw Riddell at a hearing, Snook said he started getting very suspicious.

Snook and police believe Riddell assumed the identity of attorney Jeffrey A. Riddell after he had left the country and deactivated his law license with the state.

"Maybe he Googled his own name one time," Snook said. "Somehow he knew about him."

Jeffrey P. Riddell was being held on $50,000 bail. Snook said Riddell planned to represent himself in court.

Body of Houston murder suspect believed found

HOUSTON (AP) — Police in South Carolina believe they have found the body of a man suspected in the 2003 shooting deaths of four young people in suburban Houston.

Houston police determined Christopher Lee Snider, 21, had fled to Greenville, S.C., after having been told by family members that authorities were looking for him.

Police had identified Snider as one of two suspects believed to be responsible for the brutal slayings.

Tiffany Nichole Rowell, 18; Marcus Ray Precella, 19; Rachel Ann Koloroutis, 18; and Adelbert Nicholas Sanchez, 21, were killed in a south Houston home July 18, 2003. An autopsy report stated the victims were all shot multiple times and died from those wounds or a blow to the head.

Houston police said the motive for the crime was "the hunt for drugs and money."

Acting on a tip developed by Houston police that Snider might have committed suicide, authorities in Greenville used police dogs trained to find cadavers to search an area of the city early Saturday morning where he was last seen.

"This lead was developed by Houston Police investigators from a family member based on statements made by Snider in the past that would suggest suicide as an option," Greenville police said in a statement.

The search found the decomposed body of a man with the same physical description as Snider in a deep wooded area.

The cause of death will be determined through an autopsy, Greenville police said.

Snider was believed to have been staying with a woman in Greenville, whom he had met on the Internet.

Houston investigators went to Greenville late last month but came back empty-handed. They had first gone to Louisville, Ky., where Snider's parents live, to look for him.

Capital murder conviction upheld but death sentence to be retried

By The Associated Press

A federal appellate court has upheld the capital murder conviction of an Odessa man but acknowledges condemned prisoner Michael Dean Gonzales is headed for a new sentencing trial.

Gonzales, 32, was convicted of killing an elderly couple during the burglary of their home in 1994 and sentenced to death.

The Ector County laborer, identified in court documents as a member of a gang called "Homies Don't Play," is among a half-dozen Texas death row inmates to receive a new punishment trial because of testimony by Walter Quijano, the former chief psychologist for the Texas Department of Criminal Justice. At least three of them have had gone back to court for new punishment trials and received death sentences again.

The Texas Attorney General's Office in 2000 reviewed cases where Quijano cited race as among several reasons the defendant was a future danger to society. To impose a death sentence, a jury must decide if a convicted murderer is a future threat.

In June 2000, the U.S. Supreme Court overturned a death sentence in another Texas case because Quijano made what the high court said was improper race-based testimony during the penalty phase of a trial. The psychologist, who left the state agency for private practice, has testified as an expert witness in more than 100 capital cases, most often for the defense.

Ector County District Attorney Bobby Bland told the Odessa American in a story published Friday he didn't know when the Gonzales case would come back for retrial on the punishment.

"We've been ordered by the 5th Circuit Court, depending on the Supreme Court, to retry in a reasonable time," Bland said. "But, we can't do anything on it while it's in the appellate process. The appellate process has to run its course before we get the case back and retry the penalty phase."

In Gonzales' case, the New Orleans-based court said attorneys for the state "conceded that he is entitled to a new sentencing hearing."

But the panel, in its ruling this week, upheld his conviction, rejecting Gonzales' arguments that prosecutors withheld evidence about a blood test performed on him by police in the hours after his arrest.

The court also rejected arguments that police testimony incorrectly represented two teardrop tattoos on Gonzales' face as symbolizing the slayings of his victims. Gonzales said his trial attorney failed to point out to jurors that the tattoos could have multiple meanings.

"The tear drop tattoos on my face did not mean that I had killed two people," he said in an affidavit.

The appeals court, however, said expert testimony about tattoos "would not change the fact that Gonzales confessed" to a relative who worked at the jail where Gonzales was being questioned following his arrest.

"Nor would it refute the other substantial circumstantial evidence that he committed both murders," the court added.

Gonzales, who had previous convictions for burglary in Ector County and auto theft in Oklahoma, was convicted of the April 21, 1994, slaying of Manuel Aguirre, 73, and his wife Merced, 65, during a break-in at their Odessa home. Aguirre was stabbed 11 times. According to the court document, his wife had stab wounds "too numerous to count." A medical examiner testified the woman had been "basically butchered."

Gonzales, who lived next door to the slain couple, also argued in his appeal that his trial attorney should have demanded a mistrial after testimony from a police officer that Gonzales' mother would hide knives under a couch cushion in the house where he lived with his mother, wife and child because she feared he would kill them.

The trial judge, acting on an objection by Gonzales' attorney, ordered jurors to disregard the testimony as hearsay.

E. coli concerns force recall of 13,000 pounds of beef

LUBBOCK (AP) — Plains Meat Co. is voluntarily recalling 13,078 pounds of ground beef after federal inspectors found that the meat may be contaminated with E. coli bacteria.

The beef, which was sent to restaurants and distributors in Amarillo and Lubbock, was produced between Tuesday and Friday.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture said the potential hazard was discovered through routine testing. There have been no reports of illness, the agency said.

The recalled packages contain the establishment number "1429" inside the USDA mark of inspection.

Authorities say nearly 789 pounds of cocaine found in bus

LAREDO (AP) — A search of a commercial bus at an international bridge yielded nearly 789 pounds of cocaine hidden in the side panels, U.S. Customs and Border Protection announced Friday.

The cocaine has a street value of $23.6 million, the agency said.

The cocaine and the 2000 Mercedes bus were seized Thursday night at the Lincoln-Juarez Bridge.

A drug-sniffing dog and a gamma-ray imaging system scan helped lead to discovery of the bundles of cocaine, authorities said.

Customs spokesman Rick Pauza told The Associated Press that nobody was arrested, but that the investigation continues.

Passengers who were on the bus had to find another way of transportation, said Pauza, who declined to release the name of the bus operator or further specifics.

Man sentenced to life in prison on drunk driving charge

WACO (AP) — A man on parole after serving 10 years in prison for murder has been sentenced to life in prison after his fifth drunken driving conviction.

Jurors took less than two hours Wednesday to convict and sentence Lloyd Dean Clayton, 48, who was arrested in Waco while driving from his coastal home to avoid Hurricane Rita.

Clayton was tried on the charge as a habitual felon instead of a misdemeanor because of his criminal history. He faced a minimum of 25 years on prison, officials said.

According to authorities, he had been driving 40 mph on Interstate 35 and was weaving between lanes when he was pulled over Sept. 22. Police said Clayton said he could not take a sobriety test because he was drunk.

But Clayton's attorney, Stanley Rentz, said his client was exhausted, not drunk, after the trip from Bay City that included taking 60 to 70 senior citizens to Central Texas the night before.

Clayton was convicted of capital murder in 1981 but had his charge reduced in exchange for a guilty plea. He served 10 years but was then released on lifetime parole. He was convicted of four DWIs before his arrest in Waco, but state officials never revoked his parole, prosecutor Hilary LaBorde said.

"I think what the jury thought was, if anyone ever needed to have their parole revoked, it was him," LaBorde said.

Paramedics buy special stretcher for obese patients

LUFKIN (AP) — Citing a growing number of overweight patients, the Lufkin Fire Department has purchased a $10,000 hydraulic stretcher that can help transfer 400- to 500-pound people into an ambulance.

The purchase comes one year after a paramedic in this East Texas city suffered debilitating back and neck injuries lifting an obese patient, said Fire Chief Pete Prewitt. The paramedic underwent surgery twice for the injuries and might not be able to return to work, he said.

"There have been a number of injuries from lifting heavier people — at least half a dozen injuries in the last 18 months," Prewitt said.

With obesity on the rise nationwide, the department plans to get a hydraulic stretcher for each of its medical units.

The device, paid for with a state grant, costs double the price of a normal stretcher. The department plans to get one for each of its medical units.

Mother accused of not feeding 8-year-old for five days

GALVESTON (AP) — A woman remained in jail Friday after being accused of not feeding her malnourished 8-year-old son for five days, police said.

Latrice Bryant, 34, has been charged with one count of child endangerment although other charges are pending, police Officer Holly Johnson said. She is being held in the Galveston County Jail on a $10,000 bond.

The boy weighed 42 pounds when he and his 12-year-old sister were taken to the University of Texas Medical Branch on Tuesday. The girl was treated at the hospital and then placed in foster care. The boy is expected to make a full recovery and also be placed in foster care.

Bryant, who told police she had also not eaten, was arrested Thursday. She will undergo psychological testing.

Police said there was no food in the apartment and the electricity had been shut off. Bryant was a nurse's aide but had not worked in three years after a traffic accident.

"This is unacceptable and uncalled-for. There are so many resources out there," Johnson said.

The girl, who weighed 89 pounds, told police she remembered last eating on July 27.

"The little boy doesn't remember the last time he ate," Johnson said. "He's expected to fully recover. He's eating and able to keep food down. It's just sad."

Bryant was eligible for federal food assistance but had failed to reapply, Johnson said.

Child Protective Services visited Bryant in 2002 to discuss concerns about child care, said agency spokeswoman Gwen Carter.

After giving Bryant information about the importance of leaving her children with appropriate care, the case was closed.

CRAWFORD — With 6,000 National Guard troops deployed to Southwestern states, President Bush said Saturday he has fulfilled his pledge to help beef up border security and challenged Congress to give him legislation that will welcome more foreigners into the country.

Speaking in his weekly radio address, Bush said immigration reform can only be successful if the get-tough border security to keep people from sneaking in is combined with opportunities for more immigrants to enter the country legally.

"By passing comprehensive immigration reform, we will uphold our laws, meet the needs of our economy and keep America what she has always been — an open door to the future, a blessed and promised land, one nation under God," Bush said Saturday. He recorded the remarks Friday from his ranch near Crawford, Texas, where he is on a 10-day vacation from the White House.

Bush wants to provide more temporary worker permits for foreigners willing to take low-wage jobs and allow illegal immigrants working in the United States for some time to become citizens. But Congress has been unable to agree on such legislation.

Conservatives in Bush's party have stood firm against his plans and say the U.S. should instead strengthen security along the border to keep illegal immigrants out.

In an attempt to appease them, Bush announced in May that he would send 6,000 National Guard troops to the border by Aug. 1.

"The arrival of National Guard units has allowed the Border Patrol to move more agents into front-line positions, and this additional manpower is delivering results," Bush said in the radio message. "With the support of the National Guard, Border Patrol agents have seized over 17,000 pounds of illegal drugs and caught more than 2,500 illegal immigrants since June 15th."

Bush didn't mention that only about half of the troops assigned to the four states bordering Mexico are on duty along the border. Many are still in training, the Guard said Monday.

Bush said, "Rational and comprehensive immigration reform must begin with border security, and we have more to do." He said he asked Congress to fund increases in manpower and technology, including high-tech fences, motion sensors, infrared cameras and unmanned aerial vehicles to prevent illegal crossings.

But he said immigration reform must include four other goals to be successful:

• A temporary worker program.

• More ways for employers to verify whether workers are in the country legally.

• A path to citizenship for illegal immigrants already working in the country.

• Tools to help immigrants learn English and otherwise assimilate.

Black colleges diversifying by recruiting more Hispanics

ATLANTA (AP) — Squeezed by stiff competition for their traditional students, historically black colleges are making a push to recruit Hispanics.

While the country's Hispanic population is booming, the number of blacks is growing at a much slower rate and other colleges are doing more to attract them. Black colleges that want to shore up enrollment numbers are revising recruitment strategies to include more members of the nation's largest and fastest-growing minority.

The campuses are hiring Hispanic recruiters, distributing brochures featuring Hispanic students, and establishing special scholarships for Hispanics. At the historically black Texas Southern University in Houston, the school has started five Hispanic student organizations, including fraternities and sororities, to help make the campus more inviting.

"I tell them 'There's a place for you and a need for Latinos to be present on (historically black) campuses,'" said Nelson Santiago, a recruiter for the historically black Howard University in Washington, D.C. A native of Puerto Rico, Santiago talks to students about his experiences as a student at Howard, where he graduated in 2001.

Recruiters like Santiago and from other schools including the all-male Morehouse College in Atlanta are visiting predominantly Hispanic high schools and setting up booths at college fairs geared toward Hispanic students. Morehouse sends recruiters to high schools in south Florida, New York, east Texas and Los Angeles — areas with large Hispanic populations.

"Considering Latinos and African-Americans share a lot of history together that they don't realize, I think it's a good idea," said John Miranda, of Silver Spring, Md., one of 15 Hispanics enrolled at the 2,800-student Morehouse.

Miranda, the 21-year-old son of Brazilian immigrants, said he picked Morehouse because he was offered a full-ride scholarship funded by an Atlanta foundation that promotes the education of Hispanics.

Morehouse's goal is for at least 5 percent of its student body to be made up of Hispanics within five years. If its current overall enrollment holds steady, the school will need 125 more Hispanic students by 2011 to reach that goal.

While the idea has been greeted with open arms by the college's administrators, some students and alumni said they are mixed about actively recruiting Hispanics to historically black colleges.

"I do have concerns," said Earl Nero, a retired Atlanta businessman who graduated from Morehouse in 1974. "Since the college has determined they want to stay the same size they are, that would take away space from qualified African-American students."

But having other minorities attending a historically black college will help them get "a real life view about what black people are all about," Nero added.

Student James Travis, who is black, said having other students of other races on a historically black campus bothers him "a little bit" because it challenges the college's mission.

"It's supposed to maintain the historically black tradition," said the 21-year-old student from the Atlanta suburb of College Park. "I'll have to see how it goes before I see if I want to change the situation or not."

Still, educators say the nation's two largest minority groups are a natural fit on a college campus.

"They are both underserved communities when it comes to higher education," said Michael Lomax, president and CEO of the United Negro College Fund. "We have got to educate them so that we can have a competitive workforce in the 21st century."

The number of Hispanic students attending historically black colleges increased more than 60 percent from 1994 to 2004, while the number of black students grew by 35 percent, according to the U.S. Department of Education.

In the 1990s, Hispanics surpassed blacks as the nation's largest minority. The number of Hispanics in the U.S. grew by nearly 60 percent that decade, while the number of blacks grew 15 percent.

Draft U.N. resolution calls for 'full cessation of hostilities'

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United States and France agreed Saturday on a draft U.N. Security Council resolution that calls for a halt to the fighting between Israel and Lebanese Hezbollah guerrillas, but would allow Israel to defend itself if attacked.

The draft, sent to the entire Security Council for consideration, "calls for a full cessation of hostilities based upon, in particular, the immediate cessation by Hezbollah of all attacks and the immediate cessation by Israel of all offensive military operations."

Israel, backed by the U.S., has insisted it must have the right to respond if Hezbollah launches missiles against it. France and many other nations had demanded an immediate halt to the fighting without conditions as a way to push the region back toward stability.

The agreement broke weeks of deadlock as the U.N. Security Council had failed to take any significant action to stop the violence, primarily because of opposition from the United States, Israel's closest ally.

White House Press Secretary Tony Snow said the agreement will aid the peace process.

"What we're trying to do is lay in the foundation so that you can finally enact the provisions of U.N. Security Council Resolution 1559," said Snow, speaking from Crawford, Texas, where President Bush was vacationing on his ranch.

Resolution 1559, passed in September 2004, called for the disarming of Hezbollah and the extension of Lebanese government authority throughout southern Lebanon.

Illustrating the difficulty ahead in getting the sides to agree to a cease-fire, Mohammed Fneish, a Hezbollah member of the Lebanese Cabinet, said after the announcement that his group would stop fighting, but only if Israel removed all its troops from Lebanon. The draft resolution makes no such demand.

"If they stay, we will not abide by it," he told reporters.

Israel has said it wants to continue fighting for up to two more weeks to seriously diminish Hezbollah's military capability.

The full 15-nation Security Council was to meet later Saturday to discuss the resolution, and it was likely to be adopted in the next couple of days, U.S. Ambassador John Bolton said.

"We're prepared to continue to work tomorrow in order to make progress on the adoption of the resolution but we have reached agreement and we're now ready to proceed," Bolton said. "We're prepared to move as quickly as other members of the council want to move."

The resolution asks that Israel and Lebanon agree to a set of principles to achieve a long-term peace. One crucial element is an arms embargo that would block any entity in Lebanon except the Lebanese government from obtaining weapons from abroad.

That is presumably meant to block the sale or supply of arms to Hezbollah from Iran and Syria, believed to be the militia's main suppliers.

Other principles spelled out in the resolution include the disarmament of Hezbollah; the creation of a buffer zone from the U.N.-demarcated border between Israel and Lebanon up to the Litani River, which is about 20 miles north of the frontier; and the delineation of Lebanon's borders, especially in the disputed Chebaa Farms area.

The resolution would call for the current U.N. force in Lebanon, known by its acronym UNIFIL, to monitor the cessation in fighting. Once Israel and Lebanon have agreed to the series of principles, the Security Council would then authorize a new peacekeeping force for the region.

That force would "support the Lebanese armed forces and government in providing a secure environment and contribute to the implementation of a permanent cease-fire and a long-term solution."

That element was a victory for France. The U.S. and Israel had earlier insisted that there would be no deal without the immediate deployment of a new force, separate from UNIFIL.

In London, British Prime Minister Tony Blair endorsed the U.S.-French draft resolution, calling it "an important first step in bringing this tragic crisis to an end."

"The priority now is to get the resolution adopted as soon as possible, and then to work for a permanent cease-fire and achieve the conditions in Lebanon and Israel which will prevent a recurrence," said Blair.

Israeli Tourism Minister Isaac Herzog said the agreement was an "important development," but Israel will not halt its war against Hezbollah for the time being.

"We have to study the details of this draft. There's a lot in there," Herzog told Israel TV's Channel One. "The Israeli military continues to act in the meantime, without letup."

U.S. reinforcements take up positions in Baghdad

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — U.S. reinforcements sent to Baghdad to help quell violence took up positions in a restive neighborhood Saturday, while 17 people were killed across Iraq and two bomb blasts at a market wounded eight.

The 3,700 soldiers of the Army's 172nd Brigade moved in to bolster U.S. and Iraqi security forces already in the city.

Several Stryker armored fighting vehicles were seen Saturday in the mostly Sunni neighborhood of Ghazaliyah in western Baghdad. Iraqi police used loudspeakers to encourage residents to go about their business and reopen shops because the troops were there to protect them.

Dozens of people are killed almost every day in Iraq, mostly in sectarian violence between Shiite and Sunni extremists that has escalated since a Shiite shrine was bombed Feb. 22 in Samarra.

Baghdad has been the focus of much of the sectarian bloodshed, along with terror bombings and other attacks, raising worries about the stability of Iraq's new unity government.

Thursday, two top U.S. generals told a Senate committee that Iraq was in danger of sliding into civil war if the sectarian violence was not contained.

Adnan al-Dulaimi, head of the main Sunni alliance in the Iraqi Parliament, said Saturday that the country is in danger of falling into the "circle of a civil war."

Police found four decomposed bodies floating in the Tigris River near Suwayrah, 25 miles south of the capital Saturday, said Dr. Hadi al-Itabi, head of Kut Hospital morgue. Nine more bodies, shot and showing signs of torture, were found in various parts of Baghdad, police said.

Saturday's bombings occurred in Baqouba, a religiously and ethnically mixed city 35 miles northeast of Baghdad that has been the scene of frequent violence — both Sunni insurgent attacks on U.S. and Iraqi forces and reprisal killings between Sunnis and Shiites.

Cuban vice president says Castro recovering well

HAVANA (AP) — Cuba's vice president said Saturday that Fidel Castro is recovering satisfactorily from surgery and the communist leader sent his "fraternal greetings" to the people of Bolivia, Cuban state media reported.

Carlos Lage spoke in Bolivia on the way to the Sunday opening of a convention to write a new constitution for the South American nation, according to Cuban international news agency Prensa Latina, which offered no further details of his statement.

Neither of the Castros has been seen since Monday's announcement that Fidel, 79, had undergone surgery for intestinal bleeding and was temporarily ceding power to his brother Raul, the 75-year-old defense minister.

The island's communist government beefed up security, mobilizing citizen defense militias and asking military reservists to check in daily because of what it says are fears of a U.S. attack during Castro's health crisis.

The White House has insisted no such threat exists, with press secretary Tony Snow dismissing the suggestion that the United States would attack the island as "absurd."

The Communist Party daily newspaper Granma issued a front-page statement by the Association of Combatants of the Cuban Revolution expressing confidence that Castro would be back on his feet soon.

"We will continue working with the same revolutionary fervor that you taught us," the veterans' group assured Castro.

Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice implored Cubans Friday not to flee to Florida. Her message was being transmitted over U.S. government radio and television stations that are beamed to the island but have limited audiences because of Cuban jamming operations. The message was picked up on CNN and other major media, where some Cubans were more likely to see it.

Cuban Cabinet ministers said Castro was doing well and urged patience. In Guatemala, Cuban Health Minister Jose Ramon Balaguer told Radio Sonora Friday that Castro "underwent surgery from which he is recovering satisfactorily." Balaguer is a longtime Communist Party leader and physician named by Castro to watch over his pet health projects.

Patience pays off for Aikman

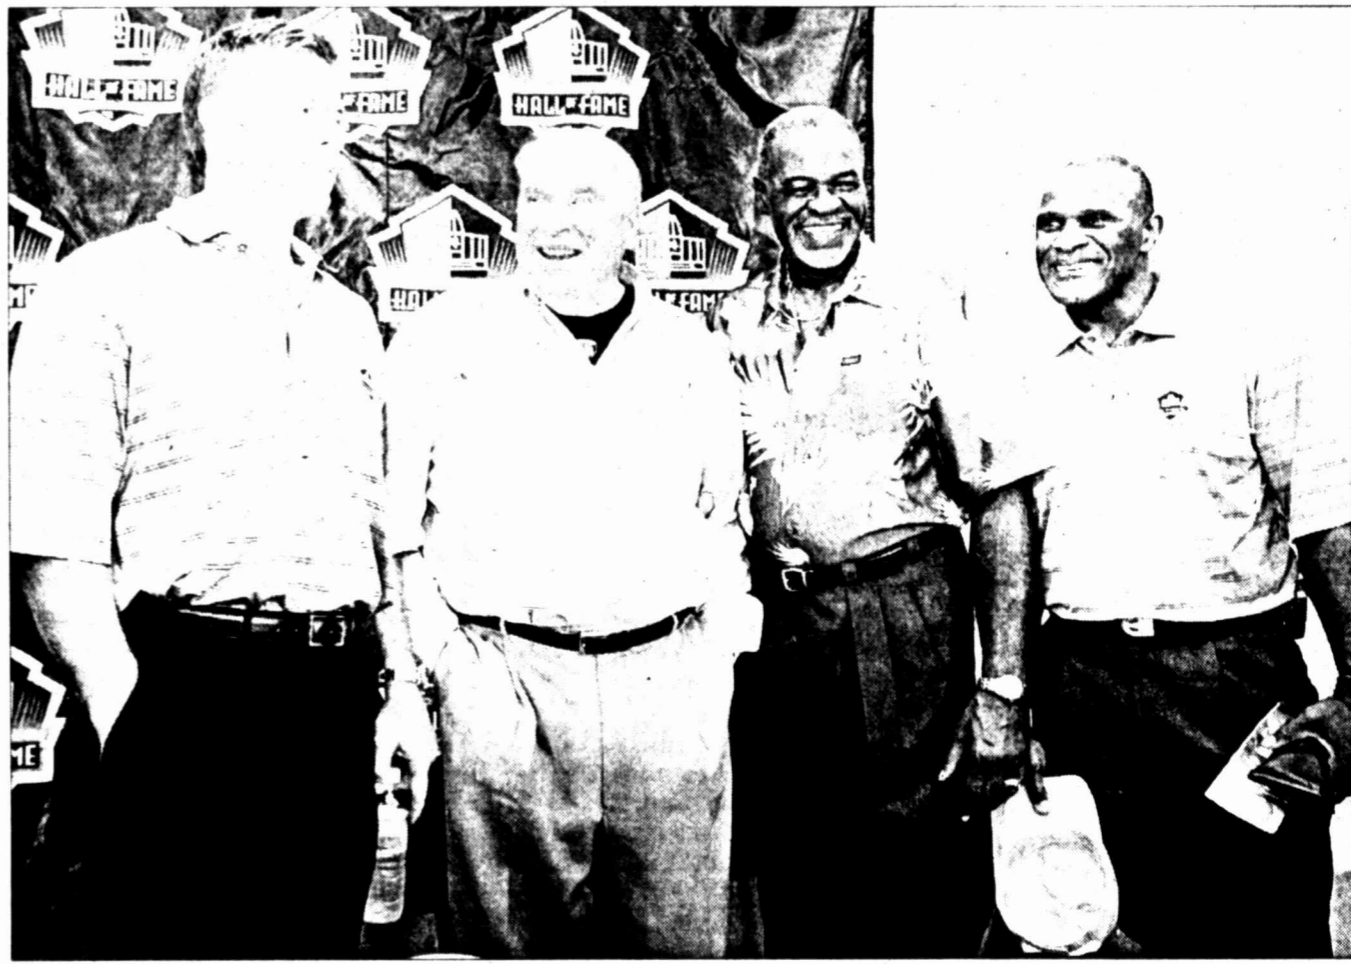

By TIM COLISHAW

The Dallas Morning News
CANTON, Ohio — He's the youngest of the six Pro Football Hall of Famers to be enshrined here on Saturday afternoon. But in his own way, Troy Aikman has come to realize his success provides a link to an era that began the year he was born.

Aikman, 39, was the last to speak at Friday's news conference. He listened at the head table for more than an hour as former coach and NBC broadcaster John Madden and ex-Cowboy tackle Rayfield Wright provided laughs. He heard quarterback Warren Moon provide perspective on his arrival as the first black quarterback in the Hall.

He watched Sara White, widow of former Eagles defensive tackle Reggie White, smile through her tears. And then there was former Giants linebacker Harry Carson, not quite bittersweet after once having asked his name be removed from consideration, but still muted in his response to what he views as a belated acceptance to the Hall.

As for Aikman, he was light, humorous and quite thankful for his first-ballot arrival in Canton. And he was thankful that the other Cowboys Hall of Fame quarterback, the man he is now partners with in their NASCAR enterprise, left the pro game a decade before Aikman arrived.

"I look at it now as though (our success) was a continuation of Roger's era," Aikman said of former Dallas QB Staubach. "I never did when I was playing. I certainly didn't when I was drafted."

"It had been 10 years since Roger had played before I came into the league. I'm thankful for because of the franchise, but yet not a lot of pressure because of the struggles the team had had."

Although the team went 1-15 in Aikman's first year, they won the Super Bowl in his fourth and fifth. You couldn't find a greater contrast between the two quarterbacks, who were once in-state rivals, entering the Hall on Saturday.

A&M-Commerce asking permission to contact Bomar

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Texas A&M-Commerce has asked Oklahoma for permission to contact ousted quarterback Rhett Bomar to discuss his possible transfer to the school.

Commerce officials confirmed Friday that they're interested in having the former Sooners starter play for the Division II school. Coach Bob Stoops dismissed Bomar and offensive lineman J.D. Quinn from the team on Wednesday for breaking NCAA rules by accepting compensation beyond the actual hours they worked at a Norman car dealership.

In response to media inquiries, A&M-

Commerce released a statement from Jim Johnson, director of athletics.

"First and foremost, like the University of Oklahoma, Texas A&M University-Commerce is an NCAA member institution firmly committed to following all NCAA rules and legislation," Johnson said.

"We are firmly committed to ensuring that we diligently educate our coaches, student-athletes and boosters on those rules."

"That said, we have sent a request, per NCAA legislation, to the University of Oklahoma asking permission to contact Rhett Bomar and to discuss the possibility of his transfer to A&M-Commerce.

"Until the release is returned to us, we have no further comment at this time regarding Bomar."

Bomar, of Grand Prairie, Texas, set an Oklahoma freshman record with 2,018 passing yards last season after taking over as the starter in Week 2.

Drug test sidelines Tour champ

Landis' title in doubt after 2nd positive result

By JEROME PUGMIRE

AP Sports Writer

PARIS (AP) — Floyd Landis was fired by his team and the Tour de France no longer considered him its champion Saturday after his second doping sample tested positive for higher-than-allowed levels of testosterone.

The head of France's anti-doping commission said the samples contained synthetic testosterone, indicating that it came from an outside source.

The second or "B" sample, "confirmed the result of an adverse analytical finding" in last week's "A" sample, the International Cycling Union said.

Pierre Bordry, who heads the French anti-doping council, said the lab that found higher-than-allowable levels of the hormone in both samples also discovered synthetic testosterone.

"I have received a text message from Chatenay-Malabry lab that indi-

Landis had claimed the testosterone was "natural and produced by my own organism."

Aikman won two Super Bowls by the age of 27. Moon entered the NFL at 27. His color was one reason he had to rack up titles in the Canadian Football League before being given an opportunity in the NFL.

Aikman went to America's Team. Moon went to Houston where at times Cowboys games would draw higher TV ratings than the Oilers.

Aikman was afforded the luxury of handing off to the league's all-time leading rusher. Moon was thrown into a space-age "Run and Shoot" offense that allowed him to pile up yards but never took hold in the league because of the lack of protection for the quarterback.

Moon left the Oilers when he was 37 and said the team's general manager, Floyd Reese, thought he was done.

"He was shocked that I played another seven years," Moon said.

"So was I."

With Wright, the six-time all-pro tackle, receiving his overdue enshrinement, half of this year's Hall of Fame class played all or most of their pro careers in Texas. It's a special day for the Cowboys, for black quarterbacks and for those who exercise patience.

Wright was eligible for the Hall for 22 years before the votes finally came in. This was Carson's 13th time on the ballot. And Madden retired from coaching 28 years ago at the impossibly young age of 42. He is going in as a coach, a broadcaster, a huckster, a video game entrepreneur — take your pick. He is going in as John Madden.

And while Madden has been something of a jack-of-all-trades in his adult life, he was inspired Friday by listening to Wright's tale of having been a basketball player in high school who thought he was getting a basketball scholarship to Fort Valley State in his native Georgia.

"I think Rayfield Wright has an interesting story, and I hope something comes out of this,"

Madden said. "Sometimes with kids, we plug 'em into something too young. We say, 'He's a baseball player, I don't want him playing football, basketball.' "Here's Rayfield Wright, he didn't play football till his senior year of high school. Here's Rayfield Wright, when he was a kid, he played basketball, and now he's going into the Pro Football Hall of Fame. I think there's a lesson there."

The Swiss-based team Phonak immediately severed ties with Landis and the UCI said it would ask USA Cycling to open disciplinary proceedings against him.

"Landis will be dismissed without notice for violating the teams internal Code of Ethics," Phonak said in a statement. "Landis will continue to have legal options to contest the findings. However, this will be his personal affair, and the Phonak team will no longer be involved in that."

Tour de France director Christian Prudhomme said Landis no longer was considered champion, but the decision to strip him of his title rests with the UCI.

"It goes without saying, that for us Floyd Landis is no longer the winner of the 2006 Tour de France," Prudhomme told The Associated Press in a telephone interview. "Our determination is even stronger now to fight against doping and to defend this magnificent sport."

Prudhomme said runner-up Oscar Pereiro of Spain would be the likely new winner.

"We can't imagine a different outcome," Prudhomme said.

If stripped of the title, Landis would become the first winner in the 103-year history of cycling's premier race to lose his Tour crown over doping allegations.

UCI lawyer Philippe Verbiest said Landis would officially remain Tour champion pending the American disciplinary process.

"Until he is found guilty or admits guilt, he will keep the yellow jersey," he said. "This is normal. You are not sanctioned before you are found guilty."

If found guilty, Landis also faces a two-year ban from the sport.

Despite the second positive test, Landis maintained his innocence.

Floyd Landis

strongest man at the Tour de France, and that is why I am the champion.

"I will fight these charges with the same determination and intensity that I bring to my training and racing. It is now my goal to clear my name and restore what I worked so hard to achieve."

Landis' urine sample was analyzed at the Chatenay-Malabry lab outside Paris.

The results of the second test came nearly two weeks after he stood atop the winner's podium on the Champs-Elysees in the champion's yellow jersey.

Landis' positive tests set off what could now be months of appeals and arguments by the American, who says the positive finding was due to naturally high testosterone levels. He has repeatedly declared his innocence.

"It's incredibly disappointing," three-time Tour winner Greg LeMond said by phone from the starting line at the Pan Mass Challenge in Sturbridge, Mass. "I don't think he has much chance at all to try to prove his innocence."

The tests were conducted on urine samples drawn July 20 after Landis' Stage 17 victory during a grueling Alpine leg, when he regained nearly eight minutes against then-leader Pereiro — and went on to win the three-week race.

The case is expected to go to the U.S. Anti-Doping Agency; the process could take months, possibly with appeals to the Court of Arbitration for Sport.

"It doesn't end here," said Landis' Spanish lawyer, Jose Maria Buxeda. "What matters is the concept. A prohibited substance has been found in the samples, but no immediate sanction comes into effect yet. The rider will defend himself."

Landis, a 30-year-old former mountain biker, says he was tested eight other times during the three-week tour and those results were negative.

Landis' spokesman Michael Henson confirmed this week that the rider had tested positive for a testosterone-epitestosterone ratio of 11:1 — well above the 4:1 limit.

Landis has hired high-profile American lawyer Howard Jacobs, who has represented several athletes in doping cases.

Jacobs plans to go after the UCI for allegedly leaking information regarding the sample testing.

Earlier this week, a New York Times report cited a source from the UCI saying that a second analysis of Landis' "A" sample by carbon isotope ratio testing had detected synthetic testosterone — meaning it was ingested.

Since the Phonak team was informed of the positive test on July 27, Landis and his defense team have offered varying explanations for the high testosterone reading — including cortisone shots taken for pain in Landis' degenerating hip; drinking beer and whiskey the night before; thyroid medication; and his natural metabolism.

Another theory — dehydration — was rebuffed by anti-doping experts.

"When I heard it was synthetic hormone, it is almost impossible to be caused by natural events. It's kind of a downer," said LeMond, the first American to win the Tour. "I feel for Floyd's family. I hope Floyd will come clean on it and help the sport. We need to figure out how to clean the sport up, and we need the help of Floyd."

2006 Property Tax Rates in Howard County

This notice concerns 2006 property tax rates for Howard County. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

	General Fund	Farm to Market/ Flood Control Fund	Special Road/ Bridge Fund
Last year's tax rate:
Last year's operating taxes	$6,179,299		$500,291
Last year's debt taxes	$101,647		$0
Last year's total taxes	$6,280,946		$500,291
Last year's tax base	$1,242,619,792		$1,250,727,500
Last year's total tax rate	$5.0546/$100	/ $100	$0.4000/$100
This year's effective tax rate:
Last year's adjusted taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property)	$6,269,843		$499,412
+ This year's adjusted tax base (after subtracting value of new property)	$1,514,410,363		$1,514,410,363
= This year's effective tax rate for each fund	$4.1401/$100	/ $100	$0.3297/$100
Total effective tax rate	$4.4698/$100

In the first year a county collects the additional sales tax to reduce property taxes, it must insert the following lines unless its first adjustment was made last year.

Sales tax adjustment rate	$ / $100
= Effective tax rate	$ / $100

This year's rollback tax rate:

Last year's adjusted operating taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property and adjusting for any transferred function, tax increment financing, state criminal justice mandate, and/or enhanced indigent health care expenditures)	$6,269,843	$495,890
+ This year's adjusted tax base	$1,514,410,363	$1,514,410,363
= This year's effective rate	$4.1401/$100	$0.3274/$100
x 1.08 = this year's maximum operating rate	$4.4713/$100	/ $100 $0.3535/$100
+ This year's debt rate	$0.0098/$100	/ $100 / $100
= This year's rollback rate for each fund	$4.5621/$100	/ $100 $0.3535/$100
This year's total rollback rate	$4.9156/$100

Statement of Increase/Decrease

If Howard County adopts a 2006 tax rate equal to the effective tax rate of $4.4598 per $100 of value, taxes would increase compared to 2005 taxes by $16,892

Woods, Quigley top Buick leaderboard

By LARRY LAGE

AP Sports Writer
GRAND BLANC, Mich. — Tiger Woods had nearly 29 hours off between the end of his first round and the start of his second at the Buick Open. Hopefully, he got some rest.

Woods was to play the final three holes of his second round early Saturday morning, then after a break of about four hours, he was scheduled to begin the third.

He birdied three straight holes to take the lead in the suspended second round, then Brett Quigley birdied the 18th hole after the horn sounded to move into a tie.

"We were running to finish," Quigley said. "We knew it would be three more hours of sleep, and we were pushing the group ahead of us from the 14th on."

Woods, 13 under for the tournament, was 7 under with three holes left in his second round when play was stopped because of darkness.

"I had a hard time reading the putt on 15," Woods said. "It was nice to actually be able to stop."

Quigley finished with a 6-under 66 and had an afternoon tee time with the leaders.

"I'd like to be able to play with Tiger," he said. "It's electrifying playing with Tiger."

Jeff Sluman and Bo Van Pelt were two shots back. They both finished the second round, with Sluman shooting a 67 and Van Pelt 66.

The tightly packed gallery mimics Tiger Woods as he stoops down to see below a tree after hitting out of the rough on the second fairway during the first round of The Buick Open at Warwick Hills Golf & Country Club in Grand Blanc, Mich., Thursday.

champion, Vijay Singh, first-round leader Mike Weir and Jim Furyk (68) were in a pack of nine three shots behind Woods and Quigley. Singh had five holes left and Weir had three to play in the second round.

The tournament was delayed 2 hours, 16 minutes Thursday morning because of stormy weather. A second delay lasted 1 hour, 36 minutes before play was suspended for the day because of unplayable conditions.

More than half the field was unable to complete the first round Thursday. Those unlucky golfers, including Sluman and Van Pelt, were back on the course early Friday and had a quick turnaround for their second rounds.

Sluman was surprised with his performance because he got just 3 hours of sleep before waking up at 2:30 a.m.

"I was exhausted starting the round," he said. "And the way I felt, I didn't know if I could play all 30."

Woods, playing in his first tournament since winning the British Open, started his second round about 29 hours after shooting a 66 on Thursday.

He had four birdies on the front nine and moved into the lead with birdies at Nos. 12-14 before paring the 15th when the horn sounded to suspend play.

Woods was long and straight off the tee on the front nine, using his driver only once, and his approaches were fantastic. His birdie putt lipped out at No. 2, and he missed some makable birdie putts, holding him back from a sensational round.

"As long as I can keep myself in position like that to make putts, that's fine," Woods said.

He was more erratic off the tee after the turn, but that didn't stop him from moving into the lead.

On the 340-yard, par-4 12th, Woods tried to drive the green but pulled his drive well to the left of the green and yelled, "Fore!" He hit an uphill chip to 12 feet, then made the birdie putt.

After a 15-minute wait on the par-5 13th tee, he went left again with his drive, landing on a muddy walking path. After consulting with a rules official, he took a drop off the path and drilled a low iron shot that rolled off the back of the green. He pitched to 8 feet and made the putt for another birdie.

He drove the 322-yard 14th and narrowly missed a 16-foot eagle putt before tapping in for his third straight birdie. Woods parred the 15th and was walking to the 16th when play was suspended.

Rangers slam Los Angeles

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Mark DeRosa's versatility has allowed the Texas Rangers to keep his bat in the lineup on a regular basis and enhance their chances of dethroning the Los Angeles Angels as AL West champs.

DeRosa hit his third career grand slam Friday night and the Rangers took over second place in the AL West from the Angels with a 7-3 victory. The 31-year-old utilityman, playing in his fourth full season, is the only player in the majors this season to start at six different positions. Three players did it last year, including the Angels' Chone Figgins.

"DeRo is extremely valuable to this team, to have a guy play as many positions as he does," Rangers center fielder Gary Matthews said. "He can realistically play anywhere on the field except catcher and pitcher. And if you give him a little time, he might be able to add catcher to the list."

"Not only do we need to get his bat into the lineup, but he gives us the opportunity to still keep certain people in the lineup because we can plug DeRo in at other positions."

Mark Teixeira, whose 12th-inning home run Thursday night gave the Rangers a 7-6 victory in the series opener, was walked his first three times up by John Lackey (10-7). The third one came in the fifth, preceding a single by Hank Blalock that loaded the bases with one out. DeRosa then drove a 2-1 pitch into the lower seats in the left field corner, giving Texas a 7-2 lead.

"We know how good Lackey is and how productive he's been this year. And to be able to catch him on an off night, it's big for us," DeRosa said. "I knew he was scuffling with his command a little bit and his pitch count was up, but he's also capable of putting you away at any time. I was just looking for something up that I could lift and put in the outfield. I was able to catch it clean and I got lucky."

DeRosa's eighth homer matched his career high from last season and sent Lackey to his second-fastest exit in 23 starts this year. It was only the third home run off the right-hander in his last 10 starts, and the second grand slam he has allowed in 873 1-3 career innings. The other was on June 10, by Seattle's Richie Sexson.

"The best thing that happened to us was Mark DeRosa's grand slam because we were able to separate the score a little bit," Blalock said. "I mean, you keep these guys close and they're real tough in the late innings with their offense and their bullpen — especially in this ballpark."

Vicente Padilla (11-7) allowed three runs and seven hits over seven innings, helping send the Angels to their third straight loss.

Houston finds way to win

By ANDREW BAGNATO
AP Sports Writer

PHOENIX — Houston starter Roy Oswalt gave up 12 hits. Closer Brad Lidge couldn't finish the ninth inning. The Astros left 15 runners on base.

And Houston still found a way to win a game it hopes will provide an emotional lift as it tries to defend its NL pennant.

Mike Lamb and Willy Taveras hit back-to-back home runs in the ninth inning to lead the Astros past the Arizona Diamondbacks 8-7 Friday night.

"It's one of those games where it's really important to win for our own morale, I guess," Lamb said. "It's tough to lose those games, especially when we're fighting for a playoff spot."

The victory left the third-place Astros 6 1/2 games out in the NL Central, and four back in the wild-card race.

It was a crushing loss for the Diamondbacks, who missed a chance to move into a tie with San Diego atop the NL West.

"That's real tough," Conor Jackson said. "It's a long game. Coming back from a double-dipper yesterday in Chicago and flying back, I think we were a little worn out today, but that's no excuse."

Chad Tracy tied a career high with four hits for Arizona. The Diamondbacks had 16 hits but couldn't overcome 10 walks by their pitchers, which tied a season high. Starter Miguel Batista issued seven walks.

"Maybe the worst I've ever done," Batista said.

The Astros liked their chances with Oswalt, who had owned the Diamondbacks. In his first five career starts against Arizona, he was 5-0 with a 0.95 ERA, the lowest ERA by any active pitcher against an opponent with a minimum of five starts.

In his last start, Oswalt beat the Diamondbacks on July 29, limiting them to one run in eight innings.

Oswalt's mastery vanished quickly Friday night. Every Arizona position player except Eric Byrnes had a hit by the third inning.

Oswalt gave up 12 hits and a walk in six innings, allowing four runs and striking out four. But he pitched well enough to leave with a 5-4 lead in the seventh inning.

"I thought Roy did a super job of battling tonight," Houston manager Phil Garner said. "Early in the game we were wondering the way they kept throwing hits up there, but he kept us in the ballgame."

Chad Qualls replaced Oswalt to start the seventh inning. Qualls gave up a leadoff single to Jackson before yielding Johnny Estrada's 420-foot home run into the swimming pool beyond the right-center field fence to put the Diamondbacks up 6-5.

Houston tied it in the eighth when Lance Berkman hit a 426-foot shot into the right-field seats off reliever Brandon Lyon.

"We had the lead going into the eighth and we gave it up," manager Bob Melvin said.

Opening lead — four of clubs.

A declarer is sometimes forced to resort to an educated guess when no other options are available. For a typical example, consider this deal where South got to four hearts and West led a club.

East took his A-Q and shifted to the jack of diamonds, presenting declarer with his first problem. South rejected the finesse and went up with the ace instead. He reasoned that if West had the king of diamonds, playing the queen would surely cost him the contract, while if East had the king of diamonds, the queen would still score a trick later on. Before making his final decision about the diamonds, declarer first cashed the A-K of spades and A-K of trumps. He then led the queen of spades and trumped it in dummy!

A low diamond from dummy came next, and when East followed with the ten, South decided to play West for the king. Accordingly, he played the deuce on the ten, rendering the defense helpless. Whether West started with the K-5 or the K-9-5, declarer could not lose more than one diamond trick.

In the actual case, if East's ten held the trick, he would be forced to return a spade or a club, allowing declarer to discard the queen of diamonds as he ruffed in dummy. Alternatively, if West elected to overtake the ten with the king, he would establish South's queen as the game-going trick. Of course, if West started with the K-5 doubleton, declarer's queen would also become good.

Once declarer decided to play West for the diamond king, the defenders had no chance. It is interesting to note that, along the way to the winning position, South avoided a major pitfall when he ruffed the queen of spades in dummy. Had he instead cashed the queen and then crossed to dummy with a trump, East would have been able to discard his ten of diamonds, and the contract would have gone down the drain.

PMAB ensures safety for all concerned

Program designed with staff and patient's in mind

ANDREIA MEDLIN

Special to the Herald

Facilities for the mentally ill have been given many colorful monikers.

Call them what you will, but taking care of the mentally ill is serious business. Employees of the Big Spring State Hospital find this out quickly — if not in new employee orientation or NEO, definitely once they begin their assigned job duties on the units.

In the early years of caring for the mentally ill, employee and patient injuries were commonplace. This was largely due to a lack of understanding of how to deal with aggressive behaviors.

Behaviors resulting of the illness and the possible effects of medication used to treat it makes treating psychiatric illness a challenge for all concerned.

Great strides have been made in the development of psychotropic medications and understanding the effects of mental illness on human behavior. The endeavor to help patients manage these behaviors has been arduous and incidents leading to physical restraint do still occur. To reduce the risk and improve the quality of patient care a set of guidelines was developed.

Employees of BSSH follow these strict guidelines on patient restraint as outlined by the Texas Department of State Health Services. TXDSHS regulates Big Spring State Hospital and nine other state hospitals.

In 1980, a set of techniques was developed at Rusk State Hospital called Prevention and Management of Aggressive Behavior, or PMAB.

Big Spring State Hospital Training Specialist Laylan Musick summarizes PMAB's intended use, "The thing about PMAB is that it is risk management with patient and staff in mind." The first year of implementation saw a 43 percent drop in patient restraint.

That same year, the number of employee injuries dropped 73 percent.

New employees are put through three days of intensive training as a part of NEO. A refresher is held every year.

The physical techniques learned are exhausting and very detailed. Each employee must demonstrate the techniques properly before they can pass the course and assume their job duties.

Everything from how to escort a patient who may be ill or disoriented, how to interact, and how to safely restrain an aggressive patient is covered. Because it is so intense, the physical training often overshadows what is perhaps the most important lesson in PMAB — communication.

Musick teaches new employees how patients at BSSH struggle with their illness — which is often ostracized outside the grounds of the psychiatric facility. This class illustrates what people who are suffering from mental illness go through on a daily basis, i.e., voices commanding them to do harmful things to themselves or others or the distortion of what is real and what is not.

By teaching new hires verbal skills, the possible escalation of a tense situation which may lead to an altercation or possible injury is deflected. According to BSSH Clinical Director Dr. Ba Han, keeping both the consumer and the employee healthy is paramount. "Safety is for the patient and for us," he said. Dr. Han went on to explain that restraint is used only as a last resort. "We realized over the years that verbal skills must be emphasized to avoid restraint," he said. Musick agrees, "Patients respond better to communication. The staff are here to assist."

Big Spring State Hospital clinical director Dr. Ba Han and social worker, Sheridan Anderson, participate in a role playing scenario as part of PMAB training. This part of PMAB helps improve communication skills.

The course begins with an exercise in role playing. Employees participate in scenarios that reflect common situations encountered in the daily lives of the patients, according to Musick.

The goal is to teach employees how to verbally avoid a possible physical altercation. This helps both the patient and the staff member decelerate a tense situation and also builds rapport.

"Most important are the people on the front line," said Dr. Han. Trust is key to the maintenance of a therapeutic environment. "Once you're in a restraint or are rolling around on the floor you've lost," he said.

The copyrighted program has changed very little since its inception, Musick explained. "This is only the third edition. Changes have been made to certain techniques that have become obsolete," he added.

At one time, the program included instruction on how to physically transport a patient. However, the hospital currently has a no lift policy which limits physically transporting a patient to situations of imminent danger. Musick said that the program is constantly being monitored by, "A hierarchy of instructors, master trainers, and facility experts from state hospitals and state schools who meet periodically."

By helping new hires understand mental illness and teaching them the techniques necessary to avoid injury to the patients and to themselves, the program's objective is met, according to Musick. "The objective of this is that it is designed with the patient in mind. That they can maintain dignity, respect, and participate in how to help themselves learn to express needs and concerns in a productive and non-aggressive way."

Finally, Dr. Han added that as soon as a patient is admitted, discharge planning begins.

"We try to get the patient to participate in treatment," he explained and expressed what he believes is the most important component of a patient's successful recovery, "Which is communication."

To contact Andrea Medlin call the Herald at 263-7331 or e-mail newsdesk@bigspringherald.com. Valerie Ullman Avery, Big Spring State Hospital public information coordinator, contributed to this story.

Our mission is to promote recovery from mental illness and a rapid return to community life by providing treatment, education and hope in a safe and supportive environment.

Weddings

Hollie Elaine Gibbs and Dexter Clayton Allred

Gibbs and Allred

Hollie Elaine Gibbs of Big Spring and Dexter Clayton Allred of Stanton were united in holy matrimony at 6 p.m. July 15, 2006, at Trinity Baptist Church in Big Spring with the Rev. Deral McWhorter of Gatesville officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Russell and Carlene Gibbs of Big Spring. She is the granddaughter of Bernice Gibbs and the late Cecil Gibbs of Knott and the late Carl and Pauline Hammack.

The groom is the son of Rusty and Melinda Allred of Stanton. He is the grandson of Homer and Torchy Swinson and Jack and Dorothy Allred of Stanton.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white strapless Cinderella gown designed by Mori Lee. Delicate silver floral beading decorated the fitted bodice with a scalloped neckline. Cascading silver beading flowed from a dropped waistline, accented with an oyster-colored satin sash, onto a multi-layer tulle skirt and repeated onto a chapel length train. A matching beaded veil and vintage tiara complemented the dress.

She carried a cascading bouquet of roses in two shades of pink, purple larkspur, white hydrangea, lavender stock, turquoise carnations and bells of Ireland. The bride held the bouquet on top of a white Bible that her mother had carried on her wedding day. She also carried a handkerchief embroidered by her deceased grandmother for something old and a handkerchief given to her by the groom's grandmother for something blue and new. She wore a silver bracelet borrowed from the groom's mother.

A reception was held following the ceremony in the Craven Annex. The bride's table was decorated with white tulle and fresh flowers. Purple beading and fresh flowers in purple, turquoise and hot pink trimmed the five-tier cake, which sat on white columns above a sparkling fountain.

A pina coloda cake decorated as a lake with a ski boat on top accented the groom's table.

Photos of the bride and groom were displayed, and a video of the couple played throughout the reception. Other displays included a candy table and a chocolate fountain. Guests were served a buffet meal.

Whitten family reburbs the former Super 8 Motel

By ANDREIA MEDLIN
Special to the Herald

Stay at Whitten and purr like a kitten.

Do you have friends or relatives coming in to town and just don't have enough room for them? That's no problem, the Whitten Inn is nearby.

Located next to Travelcenters of America where the old Super 8 Motel used to be, the recently purchased property has been given a facelift inside and out with customer service its main priority.

"Customers are greeted warmly and every concern is addressed," assures operations manager Larry Whitten.

With Whitten's rates and attention to customer care, visitors won't be left with empty pocketbooks.

"We try to give Hilton service on budget rates," said Whitten, who has been making the customer No. 1 for the 37 years he has been in the motel business.

The company decided to bring that philosophy to Big Spring. Although R o a r k - W h i t t e n Hospitality Limited usually specializes in distressed property, the Super 8 was a nice surprise.

"We like highway motels and distressed property. It fit perfect," said Whitten who found the existing property in good shape. "It was distressed financially, but it had been kept up pretty well."

The 150-room motel now has all the amenities comparable to its competitors. In every room customers will find a microwave oven, hairdryer, refrigerator, 25-inch television with cable and HBO, iron and ironing board. A large outdoor pool and meeting space are also available.

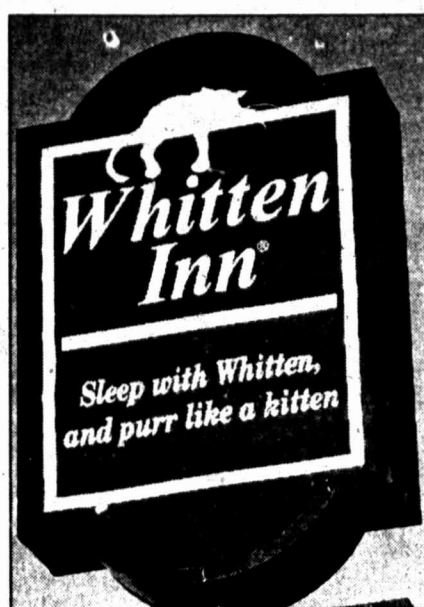

Attention to detail has been a priority in refreshing the motel.

"All soft goods (sheets, blankets and towels) have been replaced and the breakfast has been expanded. We now have a huge breakfast with hot and cold cereals, waffles, biscuits and gravy, coffee and juices," Whitten said.

If you are a late sleeper, the breakfast is available from 6:30 a.m. to 9 a.m., or if you don't want to travel far for a meal, the motel is conveniently located next to the Country Fare Restaurant. The restaurant owners proved to Whitten that the Big Spring area would be a promising investment.

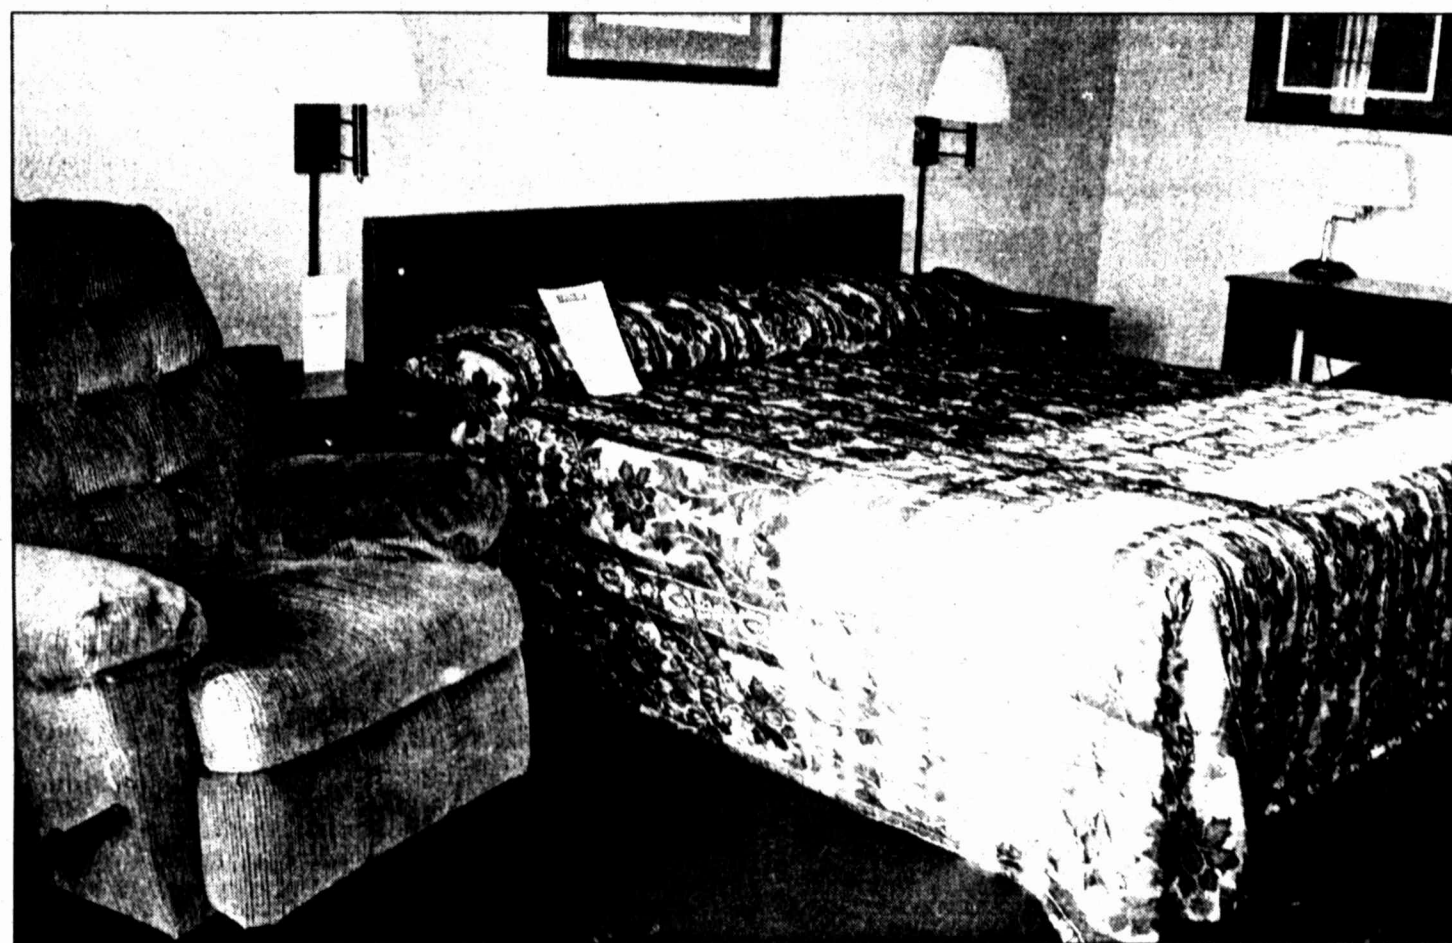

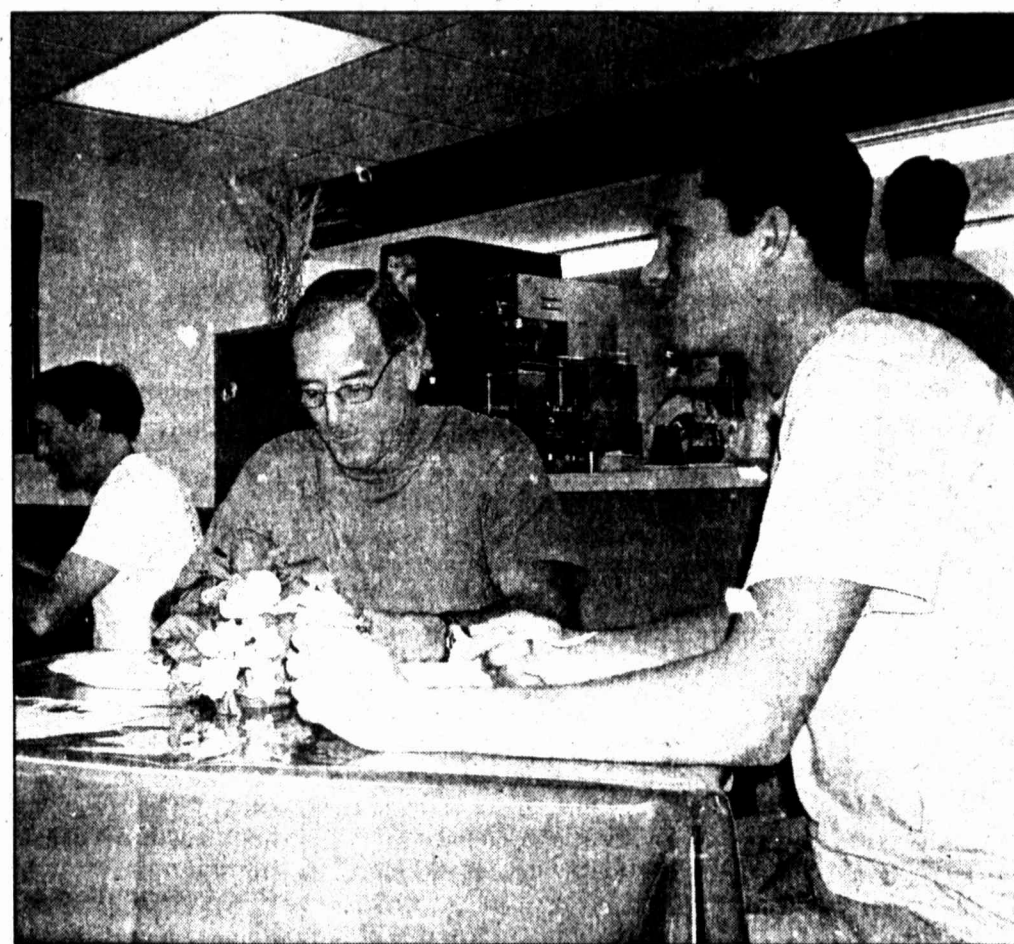

"The Griffin family (owners of the Country Fare Restaurant) were a good, clean, above-board family to work with," he

Alberto's moving to former No. 2 location on Gregg Street

Herald Staff Report

Alberto's Crystal Cafe, shut down for two weeks now after being in businesses 32 years in downtown Big Spring, is moving.

Sally Rodriguez is relocating the restaurant to the family's other location, Alberto's No. 2 at 300 N. Gregg.

Daughter Debbie Rodriguez said the move is being made because the family wants to downsize its business.

"The Gregg Street location is smaller and will be easier for mom to operate," said Debbie.

The motel is closely monitored and there are staff on the property around the clock.

Unlike other motel chains, Whitten said consistency in rates is part of taking care of the customer.

"Our rates are $59 to $69 a night. That means that you can stay in a bigger city for the same amount of money as in a small town."

Whitten Inn motels can be found across Texas and Oklahoma, including Arlington, Abilene and Oklahoma City with a new property opening soon in Kerrville.

The local motel is located at 700 West Interstate 20 exit 177.

Taxpayers and Wall Street winners in pension-rescue effort

WASHINGTON (AP) — Young workers, Wall Street, a couple of airlines and U.S. taxpayers could come out as winners in the pension changes made by Congress.

Some older employees, as well as truck drivers and construction workers hoping to retire early, might not fare as well.

The legislation passed by the Senate late Thursday and sent to the president will, if successful, prod companies to fund their pension plans properly and ensure that workers get the retirement benefits they deserve.

But the bill also reflects the reality that the traditional defined-benefit pension plan system is in decline, and the transition to new defined-contribution-style savings plans won't be easy.

Here's how some of the major players in the legislation may be affected:

EMPLOYERS

The 30,000 defined-benefit plans run by employers are now underfunded by $450 billion, and the bill requires plans to reach 100 percent funding levels in seven years. Seriously underfunded "at-risk" companies must contribute at an accelerated rate.

The American Benefits Council, which represents companies with traditional pension plans, said the bill was a "mixed bag," that promotes saving but could make funding requirements more unpredictable, giving plan sponsors thinking of freezing their plans another reason for doing so.

The council's vice president, Lynn Dudley, said the bill shifts saving responsibilities onto the individual by promoting 401(k) and other defined-contribution plans. "Defined-benefit plans were sacrificed in the process and for that we are disappointed."

Frank McArdle, manager of the Washington office of Hewitt Associates, a human resources consulting firm, didn't think the funding rules would of themselves contribute to more ditched plans. "We think in the end companies will figure out a way to work with them."

The Congressional Budget Office concluded that companies will actually contribute less to their plans over the next few years as the new funding rules are phased in, but will start making higher contributions in about five years.

Two companies pleased about the legislation are Delta Air Lines and Northwest Airlines Corp., which have filed for bankruptcy and have frozen their defined benefit pension plans. Delta intends to terminate its pilots' pension plan. Concerned that the two airlines would dump their plans, underfunded by a total of more than $10 billion, on the government, lawmakers gave them an extra 10 years beyond the seven years that other companies get to catch up.

"Delta will be in a position to preserve its pension plan covering 91,000 active and retired ground and flight attendant employees, thereby preserving their hard-earned benefits and preventing the U.S. pension system from being burdened with additional plan liabilities," Delta CEO Gerald Grinstein said in a statement.

Not quite as pleased were American Airlines and Continental Airlines Inc., the only major airlines with active defined-benefit plans. Unless they freeze their plans, entitling them to the full 10-year extension, on top of the seven-year payback time. Lawmakers from Texas, where the two airlines are based, said Congress shouldn't give advantages to one company over another. Of the 16 House Republicans who voted against the bill, 15 were from Texas.

General Motors and the UAW both came out in support of the bill after an earlier Senate provision that would have linked GM's low credit rating to pension funding obligations was removed.

WORKERS

The bill, while stabilizing a shaky system, does not ensure there will be a defined-benefit plan in a worker's retirement future. Half the workers in private industry have no pensions, and the legislation "doesn't do anything for that," said Karen Friedman, policy director of the Pension Rights Center.

A Hewitt Associates survey of 227 employers last year found 29 percent were very or somewhat likely to close participation in defined-benefit plans during the year.

The AARP said workers get shortchanged in a provision that adds legal certainty to cash balance plans, "hybrids" currently in legal limbo because of a lawsuit against IBM filed by employees claiming age discrimination. The bill, said the AARP's David Sloane, "may lead to discriminatory plan designs that stop or reduce benefits for older workers."

The Teamsters were also protesting "red zone" provisions that would reduce early retirement benefits for workers in seriously underfunded multiemployer plans. Critics say cutting already promised benefits is unprecedented, but UPS and some construction trade unions argue that they need more flexibility to restore health to these joint employer-union plans.

Experts agree that young workers in particular will be big winners from provisions promoting automatic enrollment into 401(k) programs. Research by the Investment Company Institute and the Employee Benefit Research Institute found that 401(k) participation rates among low-income workers would more than double, from 42 percent to 91 percent, under automatic enrollment plans.

The typical worker doesn't start saving through a company retirement plan until age 41, said Peter Orszag, director of the Retirement Security Project. Automatic enrollment "helps close the retirement savings gap."

The bill also encourages savings by making permanent a 2001 law allowing for increased annual contribution limits to individual retirement accounts, or IRAs. This would mainly benefit higher-income households.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

BY HOLIDAY MATHIS

The energy of the Leo sun can be naively inappropriate, like a boasting child, unconscious of how transparent his exaggerations are to the adults in the room.

Under this way-too-serious waxing Capricorn moon, the best thing to do is side with the child in your life, in your household and in yourself. Tell a tall tale and then, just for fun, believe it!

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Being a day late and a dollar short has landed you in hot water with your partner more than once. Making amends early may help to prolong your relationship.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). There's an old saying that goes, "If you don't make a decision in life, life will make it for you." It's never too late, or too early, to figure out what it is you really want and go for it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You're on the winning side of a deal, with a nose for where the money is. Go slow, and be mindful this afternoon — you're a little on the accident-prone side. The drama tonight is more fun to watch than be a part of.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). You're experiencing one of your seasonal moods — time to shed another layer of skin. Friendships that drain you and love relationships that make you feel anything but loving have got to go.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You've come down with a severe case of the happies for no particular reason. Pick up the phone and gather a few friends together while you're still contagious. Capricorn and Aquarius people are particularly good company.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You bring a touch of glamour and class to all proceedings. Wherever you go, you'll be enthusiastically received and, of course, invited back. The real question is, are you having a genuinely fun time?

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Travel. Short trips are just as effective as long ones. You experience what it's like to peer into another world. Your love life breathes again when you take a rest from thinking about it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). You won't be able to get away with anything at all now, so play it straight. Integrity ensures your success in a relationship. Though usually you help you stay cool tonight when the stakes will be high.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You hit your stride this afternoon — it's like you're dancing on the sweet spot of your life. (If, in fact, you're walking or lying down this afternoon, get up and dance instead.)

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-

Jan. 19). Intuition guides you through the day, though you'll find yourself doing the most illogical things! Months from now, you'll know why. Until then, stay in this peaceful, easy feeling.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Positive happenings in the financial arena are more than lucky. You've worked diligently to be in the right place at the right time for this reward. In romance, be bold. You can trust your game plan.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). You'll be inspired, and possibly tempted, by a sassy individual. This person could wind up your mentor. Also, children make you proud. Reinforce positive behavior every way you know how.

FORECAST FOR THE WEEK AHEAD: Everyone has talents. The extent to which these talents are developed often correlates directly to the degree of attention a person requires. Those who need a lot of attention will polish, practice and perform their way into the spotlight, while those who need only a little attention may be content to cheer, enjoy and celebrate. This is the time of year when, let's face it, we all need more attention. Which is why this week, under the bigger-than-life Leo sun, the world is a stage for the talent contest of a lifetime. If you don't know your talents, don't worry. Your talents know what they are. They'll be nudging you to get up and perform anyway, and through your performance, they'll magically surface. So, when you feel those inner nudgings, don't just sit there holding the karaoke list of life. Pick a song, and get up to the mic. I'm talking figuratively, of course — it's not just a time of year for singers. If sales is your game, jump in and make the cold call. Or, if something inside you says "try archery," then by-golly, get yourself a bow and arrow. Wednesday's full Aquarius moon is rife with wacky ideas to get you moving in your chosen direction.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: This is a shining era for divas like the incredible Whitney Houston, but that doesn't mean she has to glitter from the stage. "It's Not Right, But It's Okay" that this Leo lady took a break from the spotlight. Will she resurface with a new persona, like her soul sister Mariah (or should we say "Mimi")? This fall, Houston's stars suggest a winning shift in her: family life, bringing the kind of applause she thrills to.

Annie's Mailbox ®: Advice for those in need

Dear Annie: I have a problem with my sister, "Eva." She is my only sibling, and we live a half-hour away from each other. I love her, but she wants to spend way too much time with me, my family and friends.

Eva is a good person, but she has an obnoxious personality. She interrupts constantly, has terrible table manners and butts into every conversation. She has a way of inviting herself over frequently. If I don't have specific plans, she sees no reason why we shouldn't do something with her and her husband. Sometimes I am forced to lie simply because I don't want to be around her. We recently purchased a summer cottage, and now she has somewhere else to invite herself. She sees no reason why we shouldn't share the cottage.

Eva has friends of her own but prefers to hang out with mine. While my friends are gracious and don't complain, it's very uncomfortable for me. Even our own parents avoid her.

I don't want to hurt Eva's feelings, since she can't change who she is. On the other hand, my stomach is in knots whenever I have to spend time with her. And she drives my husband and kids crazy.

I am becoming less tolerant as the years go by. I work very hard and cherish my free time. I want to spend it with people whose company I enjoy, not with someone who annoys me and expects me to wait on her. I feel guilty and hate lying, but I'm losing sleep and patience. Any advice? — Going Crazy

Dear Going Crazy: Unless you want to tell Eva that she is obnoxious, intrusive, annoying and you don't want her around, you will have to continue to tell little white lies in order to spare her feelings. You can, of course, be a bit more honest and let her know you want private time with your husband and children and you hope she will understand and respect that. But there's no reason to feel guilty about saying, "Sorry, we're busy. Maybe another time." Repeatedly.

Dear Annie: I cannot believe the number of people who clip their nails in public. I have seen this done in airplanes and at church. Is it because one can buy a nail clipper attached to a keychain, and thus always have one at hand? Yesterday, in a coffee shop, a woman clipped her school-age child's toenails while the child lay on a bench. Please remind people that this is not OK. — Appalled in Connecticut

KATHY MITCHELL

Dear Appalled: This is NOT OK. It is gross and disgusting to clip your nails (or anyone else's) in public, and particularly so in a place where people are eating. We bet that same woman would have had a fit if someone else's toenail had bounced into her child's scrambled eggs. That coffee shop didn't have a restroom? Please, people, personal grooming is best done in private.

Dear Annie: This is for "Cramped and Poor in Ohio," who is sharing a room while four other girls have their own. College students need to learn math.

Each girl should pay for the square footage allotted to them. Measure the square footage of the entire house. Divide the cost (rent, utilities, etc.) by the square footage. The result is the cost per square foot. Then measure the common space (entry, halls, living room, dining room, kitchen, bathrooms) to determine shared space. Divide the shared space by six to give each girl the same square footage "ownership" of common space. Measure each bedroom. In the shared room, each girl gets half the bedroom space. Add each girl's bedroom space and proportionate share of common space together to get each girl's total space. Multiply each girl's total space by the cost per square foot, and that is each girl's share of the rent.

Difficult? For today's high school graduates, maybe. For those born in the first half of the last century, the calculation would be third-grade math. Love your column. — Carl Dear Carl: Thank you for making us feel young. Our brains are spinning.

Dear Annie: My brother began dating this girl, "Julie," about three years ago. Julie was bad news from the start. At first she dictated his entire life, and now she is physically and emotionally abusive. She actually says she has the right to hit my brother when he does something she doesn't like.

My brother's personality has completely changed during the time they've been together. In the past year, he has attacked and threatened me. I, too, have been in an abusive relationship, and I understand what happens in such circumstances. I have tried talking to my brother and my parents about it, but nothing helps.

I don't know what to do, because now I am afraid for my safety if I speak up. I want to move out of my parents' home to get away, but I do not have the money to live on my own because I am still in college. Help. — Afraid

Dear Afraid: You've been a good sister to try and get your brother out of an abusive relationship, but he isn't ready to be rescued, and you can't do anything about that. However, he should not be putting you at risk. Say nothing more to him about Julie or about his changed personality, and when he visits your parents, remove yourself from the premises. You also can contact the National Domestic Violence Hotline at 1-800-799-SAFE (1-800-799-7233) for more assistance.

Dear Margo

GOOD LUCK IN DISGUISE

Dear Margo: I have been in a three-year relationship and am struggling to let it go. Everything inside of me tells me he is the one I have waited for all of my life.

I am 30 and have never had a healthy relationship, so maybe I did it again. He's a few years older than I, so I assumed he was ready to settle down... but six months into the relationship he started to believe I was being unfaithful. I truly never was.

We worked that out (or so I thought) and ended up having a son together. Recently he left again, and I am lost. It has been almost four months, and I can't seem to shut down my feelings for this man. He put a wiretap on my phone to prove that I was cheating on him, accused me of sneaking out at night, etc.

I told him that maybe counseling was an idea, but he says psychiatrists are the ones who make people crazy. He says he has a recording of my infidelity, but that's impossible, since it never happened.

He is the one now out sleeping with assorted women and still accusing me. How do I convince this man how wrong he is? If that's not possible, how can I stop waiting for him to come home? — Truly Innocent

Dear Tru: For you to wish for his return is both neurotic and masochistic. Consider his departure a gift from the gods. Loath as I am to guess at medical diagnoses, the word "paranoid" does come to mind. Also "projecting," since he seems to be the one chasing around.

Regarding a wiretap, this is likely more made-up nonsense. As to your question about how to convince him he is wrong, it would be impossible, so give up on that one. I urge you to try and understand that you were not full of luck to have him walk out of your life, and that you surely could not have "waited all of your life" for a suspicious and punishing man.

And, oh, nail down the child support, for which he is responsible. — Margo, fortuitously

EXPELLING A 3-YEAR-OLD FOR THE "H" WORD?

Dear Margo: My 3-year-old was going to Sunday school, up until recently. One Sunday, he told his teacher, "I hate you." I'm still not sure why, but he was upset about something.

The assistant teacher took him out of class and explained to me what had happened. I told my son that that was not a nice thing to say, and he sat for a time-out until he was ready to apologize to his teacher.

A few days later, I received a call from his teacher, and she stated that the superintendent of the Sunday school felt that my child shouldn't come back because he was a bad influence on the other children.

In my opinion, inst. ad of hauling my child out of class, the teacher had a great opportunity to teach the 3-and 4-year-olds about the word "hate." He went through a phase where, when he got upset, he "hated" something.

Luckily, it has since passed.

What are your thoughts on expelling a 3-year-old for this? He never hit, kicked or swore; he just used the word "hate." Also, am I making too much out of this by deciding to switch churches? — Mom With a Sad Little

Boy
Dear Mom: I think removing a 3-year-old kid from a class for the toddler version of an insult is silly and ill-considered. I would venture a guess that the teacher is not terribly familiar with the psychology of 'little kids' behavior, and therefore overreacted. (Usually, it's the parents who get the "I hate you.")

As for switching churches, perhaps you could just get your son into a different Sunday school class. If the same thin-skinned teacher teaches all the classes, however, then maybe you will have to look around. — Margo, disapprovingly.

Kiss, Kiss... Bang, Bang

Shane Black's no stranger to buddy-action-comedy-drama, having written the screenplay for "Lethal Weapon" and "The Last Boy Scout," and with a resume that begins with these two films, it would certainly be hard for him to outdo himself. Right?

Wrong. "Kiss Kiss Bang Bang" may not have gotten the Hollywood-esque pump job many films saw in 2005, but it certainly would have deserved it.

After nearly a decade away from the business, Black re-emerged from his self-imposed exile in 2005 with the witty and mirthful "Kiss Kiss, Bang Bang," proving the best director for Shane Black's unique style of writing just might be Shane Black.

Touting big screen powerhouses Robert Downey Jr. ("Air America," "Gothika") and Val Kilmer ("Tombstone," "Heat"), you would have thought this movie would have gotten more attention during its run at the box office.

The stories of Shane Black often follow the same basic game plan: Two men, one older and one younger, are thrown into a strange mystery which is never quite as we are initially lead to believe.

The one time Black strayed from the formula, when he made his main protagonist in "The Long Kiss Goodnight" a woman, he suffered the worst reviews and lowest box office returns for any of his stories. And silly me, I thought that movie was great.

As wise men learn from their mistakes, and he's had nine long years to consider the ramifications of not sticking with the plan, Black has done the right thing and stuck with what he knows best. This, incidentally, is not a bad thing, as Black has proven to be one of the best writers in this town when it comes to things like male bantering, twisted action and self-referential breaking of that fourth window between film and audience.

Small time New York crook Harry Lockhart (Downey Jr.) is having a surreal couple of days — and I do mean surreal. After some late night Christ-

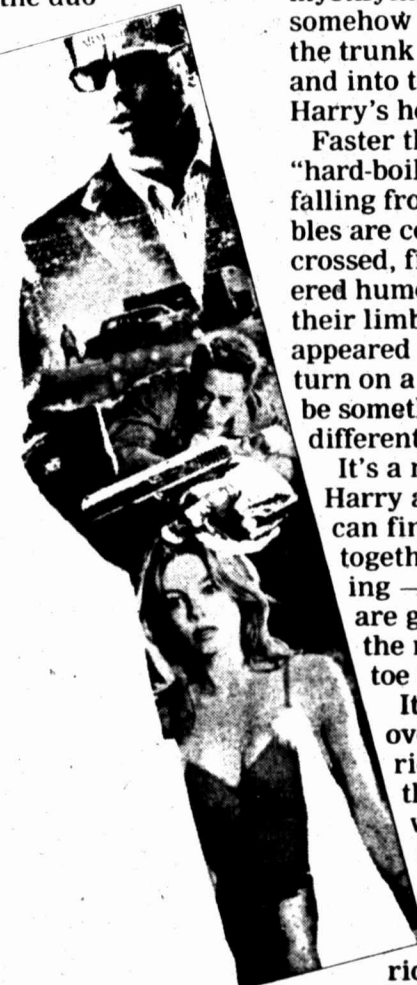

Diversions mas "shopping" at a toy store leads to the shooting of his partner and being surrounded by the police, the basically decent guy — who just happens to be a criminal — suddenly finds himself in the middle of a big-time audition for a major Hollywood production.

Next thing he knows,

Faster than you can say "hard-boiled," corpses are falling from the sky, doubles are continually crossed, fingers are severed humorously from their limbs and those who appeared to be one thing turn on a dime to actually be something completely different.

It's a mess, and unless Harry and Gay Perry can find a way to work together — and stop lying — both of them are going to end up in the morgue with a toe tag.

It's an absurd, over-the-top bullet-riddled action-thriller-comedy with its tongue stuck so firmly in cheek anyone taking even a second of it seriously should be immediately sent to a psych ward for observation.

To help with the audition, the producer sets him up with tough guy private eye Perry Van Shrike (Val Kilmer), affectionately known as "Gay Perry" to his friends, a ruthless and narcissistic detective charged with giving Harry firsthand knowledge of the street. He's fussy. He's nasty. He likes things a certain way — and gets brutally upset if they change.

He also doesn't like Harry, not in the least bit, smelling trouble on every works best when Downey and Kilmer are playing off one another, firing zingers left and right at a speed just a bit slower and less acerbic — and more contemporary — than those of Nick and Nora in the "Thin Man" series, working a real chemistry that is rarely seen in movies today.

It's a miracle these two even got cast in this film individually — with Downey's much-documented substance abuse problems and Kilmer's equally notorious on-set antics, which have been known to infuriate costars and directors alike — let alone together, but their teaming works wonders.

Black clearly understands the lineage between his story and those of the great detective novelists, from Raymond Chandler to Ross MacDonal and James Ellroy, writers whose heroes rarely solve a murder whose roots weren't sewn in the distant past.

Throw in a tragic family secret erupting in present-day murder, and the loss of innocence typified by Harmony, a farm girl who once arrived by bus to Hollywood with dreams of stardom in her eyes only to be trampled upon time and time again until she wakes up in her mid-thirties wondering what happened to her life, and you have the basics of a classic noirish story.

A good film is born from a good story, and Black's new Los Angeles yarn cleverly spins its tale with the best of them. "Kiss Kiss, Bang Bang" — whose title comes from a less-than-kind nickname given to James Bond by the Japanese media for two of 007's trademark actions, womanizing and killing — might never become a modern classic like "Chinatown" or "L.A. Confidential," but its blend of classic style and modern wickedness should thrill those who give it a spin.

Some might find the film a bit too clever for its own good, and laugh at some of the plot's inconceivable and very circumstantial twists, but most everyone else should have a rip-roaring time being in on the action. "Kiss Kiss, Bang Bang" is a truly unique experience not to be missed.

"Kiss Kiss Bang Bang" — 4 out of 5 stars

Biggest cinematic disappointment — "Bloodrayne"
Most exciting new album — Three Days Grace, "One-X"
