Running an airport can be a complicated business, with different types of aircrafts coming and going throughout the day and night.

So, what happens when you throw the U.S. Hang Gliding Association National Championship — which includes hundreds of take-offs and landings each day — into the mix?

Col. Jim Little, U.S. Air Force retired, said keeping the skies safe during the championship is easier said than done when you have larger aircraft — even jets — coming and going at the air terminal.

"Safety is our ultimate concern. Anything that looks like it might be a hazard is stopped at that point," said Little. "That's a key concern, both for the hang glider pilots and those of us operating the airport."

"We've worked it out so we don't have to keep anyone from landing or taking off here that needs to do so. We're launching on the north and south end of the field, and the taxiway that gives the planes access to the main runway is left open. So anyone that needs in or out can use that midfield taxiway and have access to both the terminal and Lone Star Aviation."

Little said one of the most important aspects of avoiding an accident during the competition is making sure pilots traveling through the Big Spring area are well informed.

"We issue notices to airmen that is published throughout," said

Little. "So anyone that's flying into Big Spring would normally check the notes to see what's happening at the airport. We also have an AWOS (Automatic Weather Observing System) system here that the pilots can dial in and pick up the frequency and find out what's happening here. So, any pilots flying out or coming in will know what to expect."

"There's always the chance that an aircraft may still be coming in uninformed, so when they radio us and let us know they intend to land, we advise them of the activi-

Budget bonanza

Administrators beam over financial package

By STEVE REAGAN

If silence is assent, people are well satisfied with Big Spring Independent School District's proposed budget.

District trustees held a budget and tax rate public hearing as part of their regular meeting Thursday evening and no one spoke either for or against the financial package.

While limited or no public comment is common at school district budget hearings, trustees and other district officials were disappointed at the lack of public input.

"We wanted to talk about this budget," Superintendent Michael Downes said.

The package, which features about $27.8 million in expenditures, is shaping up as a rare fiscal jewel for the district.

A unique combination of factors have conspired to make this budget one of the most memorable in recent school district history.

Increases in state aid and property valuations mean that the district will lower its property tax rate per $100 valuation and still collect more money than the previous year.

With that extra money, trustees will finance pay raises for all district personnel — including more than $2,500 in annual pay hikes for teachers — and a variety of other long-delayed renovation projects.

U.S. officials: it is safe to fly

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — A top White House counterterrorism official tried Friday to reassure the public that it's safe to fly even as she acknowledged that investigators weren't sure they had swept up all of the players in a thwarted plot to blow up airliners over the Atlantic Ocean.

"People ought to feel safe about traveling because of all the precautions we're taking," said Frances Fragos Townsend, President Bush's homeland security adviser.

Though British authorities have rounded up two dozen alleged plotters, Townsend did not rule out that more might be at large, and possibly in the United States.

"We are looking for connections between anyone in the United States and the plotters in the U.K., but we don't have any evidence that there is an active threat or cell here," Townsend said during a whirlwind round of interviews on the network talk shows.

More will be learned about the plot in coming days, White House officials say. In the meantime, the U.S. airline system remains on high alert, with tougher passenger inspections expected Friday.

Details continued to emerge about the alleged plot, which officials said they had been tracking for months. A congressman briefed by intelligence officials, who did not want to be identified because of the sensitivity of the investigation, said U.S. intelligence had intercepted terrorist chatter and British intelligence helped thwart the plot through undercover

MAKING GOOD ON A DEBT

PALM HARBOR, Fla. (AP) — William Fogarty just forgot to pay a parking ticket. When he finally realized it, the 86-year-old mailed in a money order — to pay a $1 ticket he got 60 years ago.

Fogarty got the ticket in Norfolk, Va., in May 1946. Soon after, he bought a $1 money order to pay the fine but forgot to send it in. About a month ago, he discovered a wallet with the money order inside. So he wrote a letter to the police department and included the money order.

"At my age, I don't want to owe anyone a dime," he told the St. Petersburg Times. Police said the money order won't be cashed but will be framed and displayed.

FLIGHT FESTIVAL COMING

Hangar 25 Air Museum will hold its first Big Spring Hang Gliding and Flight Festival on Saturday at the Hangar apron.

The festival will include limited plane rides from the U.S. Flight Academy, hang gliding rides, food and game booths, classic cars and plenty of vendors.

Several contest events are also planned, including a pet and owner look alike contest at 10:30 a.m., peanut spitting contest at 1 p.m., horseshoe pitching at 3 p.m. and various other entertainment.

It's not too late to sign up to show your talent. To do so, or for more information, contact Hangar 25 at 264-1999.

GASOLINE UP 2 CENTS

HOUSTON (AP) — The statewide average price of gasoline edged up 2 cents this week to reach $2.93 per gallon, AAA Texas reported Friday.

"Problems with the Alaskan pipeline, ongoing violence in the Middle East, and the latest threat to airline security have all added to the uncertainty in an already complicated fuel market," said Rose Rougeau, spokeswoman.

Corpus Christi had the lowest average price for self-serve regular, at $2.85 per gallon. Fort Worth had the highest average, at $2.93 per gallon. The national average is $3.03, up 3 cents.

Bidding Quiz

You are South, both sides vulnerable. The bidding has been:

South	West	North	East
1♥	Pass	2♦	Pass
2♥	Pass	2♦	Pass

What would you now bid with each of the following four hands?

1. ♠KJ64 ♥QJ9852 ♦AK ♦3
2. ♠832 ♥AK964 ♦J5 ♦K3
3. ♠95 ♥AQ8753 ♦AQ ♦Q102
4. ♠AJ ♥KJ7542 ♦93 ♦K86

1. Four spades. The value of a hand goes up and down as the bidding progresses. Take this one, for example. When you open the bidding, your hand is considerably better than a minimum opening bid. Although you have only 14 high-card points, the 4-6-2-1 distribution increases the value of the hand by two or three points, pending subsequent developments in the bidding.

When partner responds two clubs, your hand certainly does not improve and actually shrinks somewhat in value. The club response doesn't help your hand one bit, and about all you can count on at this stage is your 14 high-card points.

But when partner next bids spades, the situation changes again. Your hand is now worth an additional three or four points in distributional values, and you show this by jumping to four spades to inform partner about the improved nature of your hand.

2. Three hearts. Here you have no choice but to stick to your story that you opened with minimum values, since neither of partner's responses has helped you at all. Partner might go on, depending upon his hand, but you've done your duty by hoisting a red flag.

3. Three notrump. The two-heart bid on the preceding round was a slight underbid, and you now make up for it by jumping to three notrump. A two-notrump bid at this point would make it appear that you started with a bedrock minimum, which is simply not the case.

4. Three clubs. All you can do here is to indicate a preference for partner's first suit. You started with a relatively weak hand, and you have to bid weakly in order to try to slow partner down. If partner proceeds in the face of two signoffs, he does so at his own risk.

Tomorrow: Steppingstone to success.

expenditures — about $14.3 million — is targeted for instructional purposes. The next largest expenditure is for district operations (plant maintenance, transportation and food services), which will account for roughly $6 million.

The district's reserve fund — emergency operational money set aside in case of a sudden loss of state or local revenue — is projected to be $5.2 million, which would finance almost three months of normal operations at BSISD, said Business Manager

Waggoner.

District figures show BSISD will spend roughly $4,000 per pupil on instructional purposes this school year.

Formal adoption of the budget will occur later this month.

In other business, trustees: • Learned that the district will end the current fiscal year with a surplus exceeding $750,000. Waggoner said there were two reasons for the surplus.

"We budgeted that we would lose 100 students (during 2005-06) and we didn't. We came out pretty even with the previous year," she said. "And state funding is based on how many students we have ... so that amounted to about $500,000."

She added that the district received almost $300,000 in Medicaid reimbursements it was not expecting.

That surplus will be rolled over into the reserve fund, Waggoner said.

• Approved continuation of a program in which Big Spring provides disciplinary alternative education services for all three Howard County school districts.

• Approved continuation of an agreement between BSISD and Coahoma in which Coahoma High School students can attend building trades classes at Big Spring High School.

• Approved the hiring of Tami Martin as a special education teacher and coach at the high school; and Morris Pirtle as a teacher/coach at the high school.

TERROR

work. British authorities arrested 24 people Thursday based partly on intelligence from Pakistan, where authorities detained up to three others days earlier. More arrests were expected, an official said.

For the U.S. traveling public, already heavy security restrictions got even worse. Thursday night, British Airways banned carry-on bags from all flights between the United States and Britain. On Friday, passengers in the U.S. will be subject to a second security check at airport gates to prevent anyone from carrying onto planes liquids that could be used in an explosion, airline officials said.

Bush said the foiled plot showed the nation was "at war with Islamic fascists who will use any means to destroy those of us who love freedom, to hurt our nation."

"This country is safer than it was prior to 9/11," Bush said Thursday in Green Bay, Wis. "We've taken a lot of measures to protect the American people, but obviously we're not completely safe. ... It is a mistake to believe there is no threat to the United States of America."

The evidence uncovered so far shows the plot aimed to cause unprecedented casualties.

"The terrorists intended a second Sept. 11," Townsend said.

Bush's spokesman earlier had declared "it is safe to travel." The president urged Americans to be patient with the many inconveniences that will result from the increased threat level that the plot prompted him to approve.

The plot unfolded while Congress was on vacation, but that didn't prevent some lawmakers from engaging in the same partisan sniping that has poisoned much of the congressional session.

Ron Bonjean, communications director for House Speaker Dennis Hastert, R-Ill., said Democrats have voted against strengthening the intelligence tools "that saved the day" in the current plot.

West Virginia Sen. Jay Rockefeller, the top Democrat on the Senate Intelligence Committee, said Bush administration policies of the last five years "have done more to inflame extremism than to diminish it."

"The administration's record on homeland security is one of insufficient funding and mismanagement," he said.

Authorities said terrorists were only days away from carrying out the plan to blow up as many as 10 airliners flying from Britain to the United States.

SECURITY

ty and what they need to do to avoid the hang gliders."

Little said despite a rather wet start during the beginning of the week, the weather has been phenomenal.

"It's going great. Except for one day, we've had excellent weather," said Little. "Wednesday, the pilots saw some of the best flying weather any of them have ever seen. The thermal conditions were great and had a lot of people that made their goal for the day, which was a triangular pattern. Thursday they went out on more of a long distance goal toward Oklahoma. Of course, when they do those type of long distance goals they don't land back here at the airpark."

Little said the hang glider pilots seem more focused this year, most likely in preparation for the World Hang Gliding Championship, slated for Big Spring in 2007.

"This year has really been great in the number of participants that are here," said Little. "We have twice as many pilots as last year and 14 different nations represented, so it's a really colorful and fun group of people. They seem more disciplined in this event than they did last year, so it's been a little bit easier for me."

The U.S. Hang Gliding Championships will continue at McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark through Saturday.

For local residents that would like to see the sport first-hand, take-offs are slated tentatively from noon until approximately 2 p.m. each day, north of the airpark's Airport Terminal.

Pilots will spend several hours in the air before landing back at the airpark or another designated site.

For those a little more daring, tandem flights can be arranged between 8 a.m. and 10 a.m. each morning of the competition. Flights are also available after 5 p.m. For more information on tandem scheduling and costs, call 847-922-2824 or the Big Spring Air Terminal at 264-2362.

Four-way debate set for governor's race

AUSTIN (AP) — The fast-talking, cowboy hats, wavy hair and one-liners of the Texas governor's race will get jammed into a single room in October when the four main candidates gather for a one-hour televised debate.

Republican Gov. Rick Perry, Democratic nominee Chris Bell and independents Kinky Friedman and Comptroller Carole Keeton Strayhorn will square off Oct. 6 from 7-8 p.m.

The debate will be sponsored by Dallas television station WFAA. Station Manager Mike Devlin said it will also be carried live by Belo Corp. stations KENS in San Antonio, KVUE in Austin, KHOU in Houston and the TXCN cable network. He said a location for the debate has not yet been chosen.

Other stations outside those markets will be able to access a live feed for broadcast. It will also be available on the Internet on Belo-owned Web pages, Devlin said.

He said it will also be offered statewide for radio.

OUR VIEWS

We salute:

Each week, the Herald salutes individuals and groups from our community and area who have been recognized for special achievements or accomplishments.

We recognize these special people for working to help make our region a better place to live, work and play

This week we salute:

- All of the participants in the U.S. Hang Gliding Association Championship. We hope you are having a great time!

- Howard County officials and others who have worked hard on bringing the jail into state compliance. Your efforts received strong praise from the Texas Commission on Jail Standards.

- Big Spring City Council, on considering a no-smoking ordinance for public places. While we are not necessarily convinced our community needs such an ordinance, it is always good to have discourse on topics such as this.

- Howard College officials on their decision to hold off on a bond election this November, acknowledging the fact that yet another bond election this year — the county, city and Coahoma Independent School District are already planning ones — would be detrimental to everyone involved.

- Everyone who helped donate supplies or money to the Salvation Army back-to-school program. More than 300 Howard County children will be helped this year.

- The Keep Big Spring Beautiful organization for handing out free pocket ashtrays. We admire their efforts to help our community look better.

- The members of St. Paul Lutheran Church and pastor Wayne Frost, who got together earlier this week and served breakfast burritos to 120 hang gliders and their teams taking part in the U.S. Hang Gliding Association Championships at McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark.

A SMALL PRAYER

May we hear clearly Your will for our lives, Lord.

Vengeance from a Boy Named Sue

The year was 1969 and people heeded an escape from the mess of the day. Nixon was president and Vietnam was a full-blown muddle of chaos. Golda Meir became the prime minister of Israel and Yasser Arafat became the leader of the Palestine Liberation Organization. Eisenhower died after a long illness and Ted Kennedy's girlfriend died when he drove her off a bridge.

It was the year that the Beatles made their last public performance and Led Zeppelin released its first album. Mickey Mantle retired and the Boeing 747 made its debut.

It was a changing time and big messes tend to come with extreme change. Hurricane Camille was killing people in Mississippi while the Manson family was killing people in California.

Astronauts and scientists in Houston made a lot of noise as Apollo 11 touched down on the moon. Hippies and dopers made a lot of noise in upstate New York at a festival called Woodstock.

The bottom line is that 1969 was a turbulent year full of all kinds of messes and people needed an escape. One of the ironic places that millions of people ran to was a prison called San Quentin. That's right, because that's the year Johnny Cash released his infamous "Live From San Quentin" album that year and Texans couldn't get enough of it.

The Mud, the Blood and the Beer

I remember being little bitty and bouncing up and down in my grandfather's seat as we listened to a song called "A Boy Named Sue."

It was a masterpiece song that was really a poem about a man who wanted to kill his father for giving him a feminine name. When he finally catches up with his notorious sire the song goes like this.

"Well, it was Gatlinburg in mid-July

And I just hit town and my throat was dry,

I thought I'd stop and have myself a brew.

At an old saloon on a street of mud,

There at a table, dealing stud, Sat the dirty, mangy dog that named me 'Sue.'

Well, I knew that snake was my own sweet dad

From a worn-out picture that my mother'd had,

And I knew that scar on his cheek and his evil eye.

He was big and bent and gray and old,

And I looked at him and my blood ran cold

And I said, "My name is 'Sue!' how do you do! Now you gonna die!"

A Dish Best Served Cold

I am going to be very honest and tell you that the Texas part of me very much likes the idea of vengeance. If you bring a knife, I want to bring a gun. If you bring a gun, I want to bring a rolling Hummer with mounted twin 50s on top. If you can match that, I fully subscribe to pushing whatever button I have to that will make you and the sorry people that spawned you glow in the dark for several million years.

That's Texas. You do me wrong I will do you worse.

While that may be Texas and very much a part of my cultural DNA, it is not Jesus and it is also not something that is going to make me happy.

"Get-even-ism" is an idea that says you will feel better and sleep better once you exact your vengeance on the dirty mangy dog that named you Sue. It is also a lie.

It is amazing what people will do because they think it will make them feel better. They will gamble and lose their money, drink and lose their license, sleep around and lose their marriage.

The fact of the matter is that getting back at somebody does not make you feel better; it only makes you a thief.

For Official Use Only

Vengeance doesn't belong to us. It belongs to God and when we use vengeance, it's like using somebody else's car to drive around town. We call that hijacking.

Even if the circumstances dictate that you really need that car, if it doesn't belong to you, you are not allowed to take it away from the person it does belong to.

That's the way it is with vengeance. It doesn't belong to us and no matter what the circumstances, it's not OK to use it.

"O Lord God, to whom vengeance belongeth;

O God, to whom vengeance belongeth, shew thyself." — Psalms 94:1

So even if you finally ran into the man that named you Sue, I would encourage you leave the repaying to the Lord.

Vengeance doesn't work for us. It never makes us feel any better and it only creates more problems when we do

"Dearly beloved, avenge not yourselves, but rather give place unto wrath:

For it is written, 'Vengeance is mine; I will repay,' saith the Lord." — Romans 12:19

LIEBERMAN IS A DRAG ON THE PARTY.

Thoughts on a murder in Georgetown

He was a young political activist who had come to Washington, D.C. to volunteer in a presidential campaign and learn about political fundraising. He was 27, just starting out, a former student leader. His parents must have been very proud.

He was walking a friend home from the movies.

It's the neighborhood in Washington where my kids' dad and I courted, the neighborhood the Kennedys lived in, the fancy section called Georgetown. It was 2 a.m. when the three approached them, armed with a gun and a knife.

According to the police reports, he didn't fight back until they started to try to rape her. Then they stabbed him and slit his throat. She escaped unharmed.

Three men and one woman have been arrested. The woman was apparently driving the car in which they escaped. The youngest man is 15, but prosecutors have announced that he will be tried as an adult.

People in Washington are scared. It's one of those crimes. Of course, you'll hear that it's because of the race of the suspects (black) and the victim (white), and the location; and that's part of it. If that weren't enough, there's a local scandal because one police officer reportedly made a remark with racial overtones, telling local residents to be on guard against people who looked out of place. Most violent crime is intraracial, but this one wasn't. Most violent criminals commit crimes in their own neighborhoods; this group didn't.

But it's also the random, senseless nature of the violence. Why slice a person's throat open, kill him in cold blood, for no reason at all? It reflects a level of depravity so low as to take your breath away.

Who raises kids to think of life as so cheap, so worthless?

Is it drugs, or just the total denial of humanity?

People who kill like animals are not easily deterred by the prospect of future punishment, nor are they going to be promising prospects for rehabilitation when they are finally arrested and convicted. The four arrested here, if convicted, will likely spend life in prison.

But where are the next four?

In D.C., police are noting that criminals are traveling greater distances to commit their crimes, which is, understandably, increasing fears in sections of the city unaccustomed to evening gunshots. Once crime stops being local, it starts getting much, much scarier. Three recent shootings in Los Angeles haven't gotten the same kind of attention because they happened in South Los Angeles.

Yet even in the city often referred to as the Murder Capital of the United States for leading the homicide-rate rankings in recent years, murder rates are half what they were in 1990, when the title was richly deserved.

Overall, the national homicide rate has dropped close to the levels of the 1960s, although, obviously, major cities are more dangerous and some have seen a spike of late in killings.

But it almost doesn't matter what the numbers are. Crime is lurking as a major political issue, and the fear of crime takes its own economic and emotional toll, regardless of ultimate victimization.

What makes the issue so salient is not only the occasional story that grips a community, as the murder of Alan Senitt does, but the fear of terrorism that is with us every day. The concern with security, which is so paramount in our lives, cannot help but overlap from national security to personal security; the sense that we are not safe cannot help but contribute to a more localized fear.

So, hopefully, does the recognition that beyond the usual stupid debates about liberal vs. conservative, or big vs. small government, the only thing that really counts is effectiveness.

Abilene QB one of six players in ESPN reality series

LUBBOCK (AP) — Though not vying to be quarterback in Texas Tech's high-flying aerial offense this season, redshirt freshman Taylor Potts is still getting plenty of air time.

Potts is one of six Division I players appearing in the ESPN reality show "Summer House," which he said is about preparing athletes for what to expect when they get to college.

The Abilene High standout, who threw for 6,052 yards and 53 touchdowns in his last two years, was also recruited by Texas, Notre Dame and Michigan.

Joining Potts as contestants in the show are Jarred Fayson of Florida, Princeton's Cart Kelly, Cody Hawkins of Colorado, UCLA's Terrence Austin and London Crawford of Arkansas.

The players spent eight days in Chicago this summer filming the show, which airs Tuesdays on ESPNU, a channel that spotlights college sports.

Potts said he doesn't know how he was selected but after a phone call, producers flew to Abilene to interview him.

Chris Spielman, a former NFL linebacker, plays "house dad," Potts said.

The morning wake-up calls from Spielman were the worst, Potts said.

"He'd come in every morning yelling at us," he said. "He wouldn't yell anything bad, like he was mad at us. He just kept yelling to get us up. I didn't like that one bit."

Earlier this year, ESPN came to Tech to film "Knight School," a reality show featuring Hall of Fame coach Bob Knight and 16 students.

One, Tyler Hoffmeister, was selected to have a chance to walk on the 2006-07 team.

Young powers Rangers past A's

Michael Young of the Texas Rangers crosses home plate after hitting a triple that scores three and then makes it home on a throwing error by the Seattle Mariners at Ameriquest Field in Arlington Thursday. The Rangers won 8-2.

By STEPHEN HAWKINS

AP Sports Writer

ARLINGTON — Michael Young knew what the Seattle Mariners were hoping to do when they intentionally walked the batter in front of him. The Texas shortstop spoiled the plan.

Young hit a three-run double and then scored on an errant relay throw, and the Rangers won 8-2 Thursday night to move a game ahead of Seattle and out of last place in the AL West.

"Pitch to the really good left-hander ahead of me with runners on second and third and less than two outs, or bring in the guy from the bullpen who's a really good sinker-slider guy and shoot for the double play," Young said. "I would have done the same thing."

With Young standing on deck with one out in the seventh, Mariners starter Joel Pineiro (7-10) intentionally walked leadoff hitter Gary Matthews Jr. to load the bases. Julio Mateo then took over on the mound.

"If Mateo throws the ball the way he can, we have a good chance to get out of the inning," manager Mike Hargrove said.

Instead, Young hit a double into the left-field corner.

"Mike takes the emotion of the at-bat, like he's playing whiffle ball in the back yard," Rangers manager Buck Showalter said.

Young had already grounded into a team-high 22 double plays. But the three-time All-Star is also 7-for-9 with 18 RBIs when the bases are loaded this season, and 26-for-65 (.400) in his career.

Matthews ran through third-base coach Steve Smith's stop sign, prompting shortstop Yuniesky Betancourt's errant double-clutch throw that got past catcher Kenji Johjima and went into a camera well. That allowed Young to score as well.

An inning earlier, Mark Teixeira's three-run double put the Rangers ahead 3-2, and extended his on-base streak to 34 games. In other American League action, it was: Kansas City 5, Boston 4; Chicago 5, New York 4; Toronto 5, Minnesota 0; and Cleveland 14, Los Angeles 2.

In National League games, Houston beat Pittsburgh 5-2; Los Angeles topped Colorado 4-3; New York stopped San Diego 7-3; St. Louis defeated Cincinnati 6-1; Milwaukee beat Chicago 8-6 and Florida downed Washington 9-6.

Adam Eaton (2-2), who threw only 18 pitches in his start Sunday before being ejected, went six innings in only his fourth start for the Rangers since coming off the disabled list. He allowed four hits, including a pair of solo homers.

Parcells leaning toward starting Romo Saturday

By JAIME ARON

AP Sports Writer

OXNARD, Calif. — Bill Parcells says "there would be a pretty good chance" that Tony Romo will start at quarterback for the Dallas Cowboys in their preseason opener against Seattle on Saturday night.

The move has nothing to do with starter Drew Bledsoe and everything to do with evaluating Romo, who is going into his fourth season without having thrown a pass in a regular-season game.

"I need to find out what this guy can do," Parcells said Thursday. "We'll get everybody in tune. It's not like Bledsoe, 34 years old, needs to play a quarter Saturday night to make sure that he's ready for the season."

Romo is entrenched at No. 2 behind Bledsoe, ahead of Drew Henson. The team has discussed signing Romo to a contract extension, further proof of their commitment to him despite not having seen him perform in games that count.

"I know I'm inexperienced in the regular season, but I know about these (preseason) games," Romo said after practice Thursday.

"I'm excited and I'm ready to get out there and play, and with the first-team, it will be nice. You work so hard in these off-seasons to prepare yourself to play, you want to play. Now, the fun part begins."

Parcells has repeatedly talked about giving Romo plenty of time in the pre-season, and perhaps more than meaningless mop-up duty in the regular season.

"I certainly don't want to put Romo in a situation where Saturday night in Seattle is the defining moment," Parcells said. "I just want to get the guy into the game and let him run the team and see how it looks. That's really all I want to do."

Parcells stopped short of making a formal declaration because he hadn't spoken with his coaches.

Bledsoe said earlier this week he didn't mind having the night off, even if he would be playing in front of friends and family in his home state. Parcells' decision to sit Bledsoe could be partly due to new lead receiver Terrell Owens likely missing the game with a hamstring injury.

"I think if you ask any veteran that's been around for a while, we'd much rather see there be two preseason games then get into the meaningful ones," Bledsoe said. "If Bill decides Romo is going to go first, that's fine. I'll wait for another week."

Is that Lance? No, it's T.O.!

By JAIME ARON

AP Sports Writer

OXNARD, Calif. — Terrell Owens wore his new silver and blue uniform Thursday — just not the one for his employers, the Dallas Cowboys.

This one was for the Discovery Channel pro cycling team, Lance Armstrong's former squad, and he did it as part of a gag poking fun at all the time he's spending on the stationary bicycle.

Owens wore a silver cycling helmet, the jersey and sunglasses for about the first 15 minutes of practice Thursday. It was the eighth day he's been on the bike because of a sore left hamstring.

"Tour de Oxnard," Owens repeatedly said as he began pedaling, smiling wide the entire time.

Later, he called it "my little kickoff for the Tour de T.O. Comeback."

"I'm just trying to have fun, trying to make the most of pedaling on that bike every day," said Owens. "It gets boring. So it's something to get my mind off it."

After two vigorous post-practice workouts Wednesday, Owens still wasn't ready to resume catching passes.

IT'S GOOD FOR YOUR GAME

A window in your takeaway

By T.J. TOMASI
Universal Press Syndicate

Too many golfers ruin their swing early in the backswing by keeping their arms glued to their sides as they whip their hands directly inside the toe line (an imaginary line connecting the toes that also represents the body line).

Once your hands move inside your toe line during the takeaway, as this golfer's hands have, you'll have no choice but to find empty space for your hands and arms as they come back to the ball during the downswing, and that means shoving the club away from your body. This misuse of space produces the cut-across action so common to slicers.

Tour player Matt Davidson creates a window between his body and his trail arm to prevent him from turning the club head inside too quickly. Note how you can see a bit of light between his arms — light through the window. The key to your takeaway is keeping the hands moving along the toe line. Allowing the back elbow to float prevents the hands from moving inside.

Futures Tour player Jill Finlan-Scally demonstrates perfect form. At waist height, the left arm and wrist are still straight and the club is parallel with the ground, i.e., it has not been elevated by the wrist cock. From here, the arms swing upward and the club is set in position at the top of the swing by the fold of the trail elbow.

It's a truism in the golf swing: That which goes in and then up, must come out and then around. And that's exactly what happens when your hands swing quickly inside your toe line during the takeaway. When your elbow remains fixed to your side, your club will pivot around it, taking the hands inside the toe line, a difficult position to recover from.

A good way to prevent this from happening is to allow your trail elbow to float with the trail arm as the club head moves away from the ball, thereby opening a window between your trail arm and your side.

THE GOLF DOCTOR

Talent by the pound

The first salvo in the newest controversy in professional golf occurred last month when the Royal and Ancient, the governing body that controls the rules of golf around the world (except in North America, where the USGA holds sway), announced, "We support the introduction of drug testing in golf."

There are many who think that drugs are about to be a big problem in golf, but that's small potatoes compared to what might happen.

Suppose you could have a cell transplant that helped you play like Tiger Woods or Annika Sorenstam? Would the operation get you thrown off the tour? Could you play in amateur tournaments with the cells of a British Open champion in your body?

Bizarre questions, to say the least, but it could be possible. Kate Ruth Linton, writing in the Montgomery College Student Journal of Science and Mathematics (Volume 2, September 2003), recounts a fascinating case history:

"On May 29, 1988, a woman named Claire Sylvia received the heart of an 18-year-old male who had been killed in a motorcycle accident. Soon after the operation, Sylvia noticed some distinct changes in her attitudes, habits and tastes. She found herself acting more masculine, strutting down the street (which, being a dancer, was not her usual manner of walking). She began craving foods, such as green peppers and beer, which she had always disliked before. Sylvia even began having recurring dreams about a mystery man named Tim L., who she had a feeling was her donor.

"As it turns out, he was. Upon meeting the 'family of her heart,' as she put it, Sylvia discovered that her donor's name was, in fact, Tim L., and that all the changes she had been experiencing in her attitudes, tastes and habits closely mirrored (his)."

How could this be possible? Some authorities now believe that each cell in our bodies houses information unique to each individual — a history of information that transfers with the cell when it's placed in another body.

Linton continues: "One such scientist is Candace Pert, Ph.D., who studies biochemistry. Her findings helped support one belief which a growing number of scientists have now adopted: 'Every cell in our body has its own "mind" ... and if you transfer tissues from one body to another, the cells from the first body will carry memories into the second body.'"

Might there come a day when instead of taking lessons you simply have a cell transplant? If so, I'll have a pound of Tiger cells, please.

Car wreck fails to derail Fiese's career

By STAN AWTRY
Cox News Service

Atlanta — Two years ago, D.J. Fiese was more concerned with saving his life than he was with saving par. Now, his health fully restored, Fiese has been able to concentrate on restoring his golf game. And he's winning again.

Fiese, a former standout at Georgia State in Atlanta, suffered a near-fatal accident on June 23, 2004. While driving to a tournament in Savannah, Fiese lost control of his Ford Explorer, and it flipped four times. He nearly lost his left arm. Two metal plates, 18 screws and a bone-graft surgery later, Fiese is playing like his old self.

The return to form was evident recently when Fiese, a Smyrna, Ga., resident, won the NGA Hooters Tour's Buffalo Run Casino Classic in Oklahoma. He closed with a 64, finished 24 under, and won by four shots.

"I played flawlessly. I think the best round I have ever played as a professional," he said.

Getting back to that point wasn't easy. After the wreck, he spent nearly 12 months rehabbing three or four hours a day, then won the Touchstone Energy Open in June 2005.

Despite the win, Fiese had unknowingly made some slight alterations to his swing because of the injury. It has taken him most of the past year to eliminate those flaws and get back to where he was before the accident.

"If I hadn't been in that wreck, I don't know if I'd be where I am," he said. "I came back with a chip on my shoulder. I think I had something to prove."

Fiese also credits his coach, Tim Simpson, the former PGA Tour standout, and his teacher, Art Kraft. Fiese was in college when he met Simpson, who was in a neck brace following spinal-fusion surgery. The two hit it off and began working together. Simpson helped Fiese's mental game, as well as his mechanics. Simpson even caddied some for Fiese and helped him improve on course management.

It all came together again as Fiese persevered through the Oklahoma winds and heat for the victory. He won $20,468 and now ranks 17th on the earnings list.

"I'd practiced and prepared for that moment and was able to execute under the gun," he said. "All day I kept telling myself, 'One shot at a time.' It's very easy to get ahead of yourself out there." Fiese will continue to compete on the Hooters Tour through the end of the season. He will participate in the PGA Tour qualifying school's first round, either in Florence, S.C., or Durham, N.C., this fall. A year ago, he missed advancing to the second stage — where they hand out the Tour cards — by three strokes.

"It was great to win out there," Fiese said. "It would be nice if it got you something, but hopefully I can carry that over and build on it."

at least one type of cataract by 40 percent. The other two types don't appear to be affected by sunglasses.

Since eye damage is cumulative, exposure starts in childhood, and the more overall time you spend in the sun during your lifetime, the higher your chances of developing cataracts.

The three most important preventive strategies are:

- (1) avoiding exposure to the sun at midday when its effects on the eye are the strongest;
- (2) limiting the amount of time overall that you spend in the sun; and
- (3) wearing a high-quality pair of sunglasses and a wide-brimmed hat.

ASK THE PRO

Q: I see a lot of tour players on TV wearing sunglasses. Do you recommend them? -- T.L., from the Web

A: Yes, I do, but it has nothing to do with playing golf. One of the things that's so great about golf is that you're out in the sun. That's the good news. The bad news is that you've got to protect your eyes when you're in the sun or you're liable to get cataracts.

Researchers say frequent sun exposure can increase your chances of developing vision-obstructing cataracts later in life. Cataracts account for 50 percent of the cases of blindness worldwide, and surgery to correct them costs the Medicare system billions an-

Tomorrow's Horoscope

BY HOLIDAY MATHS

With the outer planets still retrograde and the moon shifting this weekend from wise Pisces to impulsive Aries, it feels a bit like the parental universe has left for the weekend, giving us over to the care of a teenage babysitter. The urge to horse around, play jokes, eat too much sugar and play loud music may be too strong to resist.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Beating yourself up over the littlest mistake has become second nature to you. Bad habits aren't always easy to break, but kicking this one will feel a lot better than kicking yourself.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). You're not working for money. You're working for a successful outcome for your company, your project, yourself. With this in mind, you'll make your mark. Capricorn and Virgo people are supporters.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You look forward to connecting with a special someone and have every confidence that your expectation of the relationship will be happily met. That's why tonight's events go so well.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Transformation requires power. How much? Enough to complete the change. So plug into new sources if you must, but don't give up now. You're more than halfway through. Keep going until you see the change.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). The stars are loving your largesse. Thinking huge has obvious benefits, too. If your attitude is big enough and your plans are big enough, your outrageous goals suddenly don't seem so outrageous at all.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Love is your area of expertise now. Apply yourself there and win. As far as your financial life goes, shiny things are everywhere, and yet, you've seen better. Hold out for the really primo merchandise at the right price.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). The stars suggest this is a day of extremes — or extreme feelings, at least. If you're not in the center of the drama, it seems to you that you're at the outer edge of the earth, where at least there's quiet.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). RE: status quo. The statistics and averages may point to the fact that you're doing fine. You're worth more than fine, and you know it. The brave thing is to ask for it. Consider a major purchase, like a new car or home.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You know better than to wait for things to happen. You're the reason and the cause of "things" happening. A relationship heats up when you create romantic situations. Expand your horizons: learn, travel or invest.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). The stars are loving your largesse. Thinking huge has obvious benefits, too. If your attitude is big enough and your plans are big enough, your outrageous goals suddenly don't seem so outrageous at all.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Love is your area of expertise now. Apply yourself there and win. As far as your financial life goes, shiny things are everywhere, and yet, you've seen better. Hold out for the really primo merchandise at the right price.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). The stars suggest this is a day of extremes — or extreme feelings, at least. If you're not in the center of the drama, it seems to you that you're at the outer edge of the earth, where at least there's quiet.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). RE: status quo. The statistics and averages may point to the fact that you're doing fine. You're worth more than fine, and you know it. The brave thing is to ask for it. Consider a major purchase, like a new car or home.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You know better than to wait for things to happen. You're the reason and the cause of "things" happening. A relationship heats up when you create romantic situations. Expand your horizons: learn, travel or invest.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). No matter how you did things before, this is a new day, and you could potentially become an entirely different person, with new habits and, it follows, new results.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Your open-minded approach to health brings healing. Medicine isn't magic, and magic isn't medicine, but the two could combine to inspire a miracle.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). No one has ever stood exactly where you're standing now, nor seen what you see in this moment. That's why different experts use the same information to draw vastly different conclusions. Your way is a good way. Believe in it.

WEEKEND LOVE FORECAST: ARIES: It isn't unreasonable to ask that your partner not criticize or tell you how to do things at all. TAURUS: Call the people you haven't connected with in a while — in an indirect way, it brings heat to your love life. GEMINI: A like-minded individual helps you unravel mysteries about yourself. CANCER: Your secret is safe, as long as you keep it. The hidden part of you is an attraction magnet.

LEO: Beautiful connections with fellow fire signs (Sagittarius and Aries). VIRGO: There's no bee in the room — that buzz you hear is people talking and thinking good things about you. LIBRA: You're successful in love when you take a "show, don't tell" approach.

SCORPIO: Sometimes, it's easy to forget that everyone is human, with weaknesses and needs. Love means tolerating this in a partner and in yourself. SAGITTARIUS: Romantic entanglement spurs creativity, but be careful. It's your heart on the line. CAPRICORN: Whether it's the gym, a hiking club or a cooking class, you'll meet others there with the same values as you. AQUARIUS: You're lucky in love when you base your fantasy life in reality, and vice versa. PISCES: Traditional expectations in the world of love get turned upside down.

COUPLE OF THE WEEKEND: In a Sagittarius/Cancer relationship, the main quandary is usually staying in versus going out. Sagittarius people are invigorated by travel and exploration, while Cancers are restored by creating a comfortable environment at home. What do they have in common? Passion. Both signs have oodles to lavish on the other person. A simple commitment to sharing and growing together is all they need.

Annie's Mailbox : Advice for those in need

Dear Annie: Both my boyfriend and I are over 40. He has two teenage children, and so have I. We plan to marry early next year, and I will be moving into his house because it's paid for and there are enough bedrooms for each child.

The problem is, his children are very lazy. They don't pick up after themselves, and the place looks like a tornado hit it. I figured when it got dirty enough, someone would clean it, but that never happens. Sometimes I go over there and want to faint.

I will not accept this slovenly behavior when their father and I marry. What can I do? Give me some ideas, please. — Not Domestic Help

Dear Not Domestic: First, don't come on like gangbusters. They will resent it and can make all kinds of problems for you. You need to develop a solid, loving relationship with these children, and it would be best if housekeeping did not become a major source of conflict.

You and your boyfriend should make a list of chores that are distributed equally among all members of the household. He should be primarily in charge of monitoring his children, at least initially. You can remind them, gently, that it's Child A's turn to do dishes, or Child B needs to pick up his clothes, but don't call them slobbers or yell about the mess. Check out the National Stepfamily Resource Center (stepfamilies.info) for more suggestions.

Dear Annie: My husband's parents and four younger siblings live in the same town we do. It's a close-knit family. Sometimes too close. We celebrate every holiday and birthday together, go to ballgames together and even vacation together. One doesn't go anywhere without the others. Sometimes we'd like to invite only his parents families about mental illness and helps them share their difficulties and experiences. It has been a great support and comfort.

My nephew was denied the type of treatment he needed and deserved for his mental illness. However, after he was charged with a crime committed while he was psychotic, they made sure to treat him — hospitalizing him in a state mental facility for the purpose of making him well enough to sentence him to death.

I urge any family member to check out NAMI and join the nation's voice on mental illness. Please get the word out about this great organization. — Angry Uncle

Dear Uncle: We have mentioned NAMI many times in this space, and we appreciate the opportunity to do so again. Mentally ill adults in this country often fall between the cracks, and this is a national scandal. The website is www.nami.org or call 1-800-950-NAMI (1-800-950-6264).

Dear Annie: My husband, "Harry," and I have been married for 11 years — it's a second marriage for both of us. Things were fine at first, but have gone downhill so quickly that I just don't know what to do anymore.

Harry has not come close to me for at least six years — I mean no touching, kissing, hugging, sex, nothing. We live in an area for seniors where we have everything in the world to do — play golf, swim, dance, do ceramics — yet Harry does not participate. Many of us are not athletic, but we ride in the golf carts, play in the pool, try our hand at shuffleboard, etc. Harry will not do any of these things. I go with the other couples, but I feel strange because I am the only one whose husband refuses to join in.

Any time I've tried to talk to him about it, he starts yelling and blaming everything on me. I am never right. I love Harry, and I want to stay with him. We go to church together, and the preacher speaks about the importance of married couples doing things together, but Harry never seems to hear the sermon. I tried to get him to see our minister, but he says the minister and his wife fight all the time. I have no idea where he got this information. My husband reads your column every morning and always has a comment, usually positive. Your help on this matter would be really appreciated. — Need Advice

Dear Need Advice: It's possible Harry is concerned about a physical ailment, or he may be depressed (or both). He believes if everyone will just leave him alone, he'll be fine. But when your marriage is affected, it's not fine, and it is likely to get worse. Ask your husband if he will get a complete physical and then go with you to a counselor outside your community. Ask him to do it as a favor to you, for the health of your marriage. And, Harry, if you are reading this — GO.

Dear Annie: You recently said one of the first uses of the word "callipygian" was by Thomas Pynchon in his book "Gravity's Rainbow." I remembered seeing the word as a kid, so I did some research in my Oxford English Dictionary and found that the word was used at least as early as the 1640s by Thomas Browne. Since Pynchon's book came out in the 1970s, you were just three centuries off. — D.W.M.

Dear D.W.M.: Thanks for the correction. My, how time flies.

This Date In History

Today is Friday, Aug. 11, the 223rd day of 2006. There are 142 days left in the year. Today's Highlight in History: Fifty years ago, on Aug. 11, 1956, abstract painter Jackson Pollock, 44, died in an automobile accident on Long Island, N.Y. In 1909, the SOS distress signal was first used by an American ship, the Arapahoe, off Cape Hatteras, N.C. In 1934, the first federal prisoners arrived at the island prison Alcatraz in San Francisco Bay. In 1942, during World War II, Vichy government official Pierre Laval publicly declared that "the hour of liberation for France is the hour when Germany wins the war." In 1954, a formal peace took hold in Indochina, ending more than seven years of fighting between the French and Communist Vietnam.

In 1962, the Soviet Union launched cosmonaut Andrian Nikolayev on a 94-hour flight. In 1965, rioting and looting that claimed 34 lives broke out in the predominantly black Watts section of Los Angeles. In 1978, chiefs of state and foreign dignitaries arrived in Vatican City for the funeral of Pope Paul VI. In 1991, Shiite Muslim kidnappers in Lebanon released two Western captives: Edward Tracy, an American held nearly five years, and Jerome Leyraud, a Frenchman who'd been abducted by a rival group three days earlier. In 1997, President Clinton made the first use of the historic line-item veto approved by Congress, rejecting three items in spending and tax bills. (However, the Supreme Court later struck down the line-item veto as unconstitutional.) Today's Birthdays: Former TV talk show host Mike Douglas is 81. Actress Arlene Dahl is 78. Rev.
