

Bush: Path to victory will require more sacrifice

By JENNIFER LOVEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A day after a Pentagon report described spreading sectarian violence and increasingly complex security problems in Iraq, President Bush painted a rosier picture.

"Our commanders and diplomats on the ground believe that Iraq has not descended into a civil war," Bush said Saturday in his weekly radio address. "They report that only a small number of Iraqis are engaged in sectarian violence, while the overwhelming majority want peace and a normal life in a unified country."

The president acknowledged "a bloody campaign of sectarian violence" and the "difficult and dangerous" work of trying to end it.

"The security of the civilized world depends on victory in the war on terror, and that depends on victory in Iraq, so America will not leave until victory is achieved."

—President Bush

Friday, the Pentagon reported that death squads increasingly targeting mainly Iraqi civilians heighten the risk of civil war. The report, the latest in a series required by Congress, also said the Sunni-led insurgency "remains potent and viable." "Conditions that could lead to civil war exist in Iraq, specifically in and around Baghdad, and concern about civil war within the Iraqi civilian population has increased in recent months," the report said.

A growing number of members of Congress are calling for either a shift in the Bush administration's Iraq strategy or a timetable for beginning a substantial withdrawal of

Prime time principals

Big Spring High School's Ritchey, Tannehill are tops of year in Region 18

By STEVE REAGAN

Staff Writer

Big Spring High School's top two administrators recently learned they were tops in this region, as well.

Principal Mike Ritchey and Assistant Principal Tim Tannehill were recently named Principal of the Year and Assistant Principal of the Year, respectively, by the Region 18 Educational Service Center.

Region 18 covers a wide swath of West Texas, including Midland, Odessa and El Paso.

The award was presented to the duo for their work during the 2005-2006 school year.

"The district congratulates Mr. Ritchey and Mr.

Ritchey

Tannehill

Tannehill for their awards," said Michael Downes, superintendent for Big Spring Independent School District. "We feel this is further affirmation of the great job being done by the faculty and students at Big Spring High School."

Ritchey and Tannehill both came to BSISD as teacher/coaches in the mid-1980s and served in

Classical ballet offered through community ed

By CINDY SMITH

Special to the Herald

For many individuals in the Big Spring community, a reference to dance brings to mind funky costumes, modern music and jazz, tap and hip-hop. But ask Eulaine McIntosh and she may start talking about classical ballet — one of the backbones of modern dance and a class she will be teaching through the community education course offerings at Howard College.

McIntosh and her family are recent transplants from the Fort Worth area where she was very active in teaching young students various forms of dance. Her list of credentials is long and impressive, yet her love for "all things dance" is what captures your attention first.

The classical ballet class is new to Howard College Community Education and is an attempt to bring back the basics of dance and teach the younger student age 9 through 12 the basic understanding of dance and how it strengthens the body and mind through discipline. Classical ballet is the oldest form of original dance that is still in American culture. "It is a physically demanding form of dance but once you learn it, you can do any other dance with much more ease," said McIntosh. "It helps the student to gain more control over their bodies and develop their coordination to a higher level."

JOHN LASHES BAJA

CABO SAN LUCAS, Mexico (AP) — A weakened Hurricane John lashed the main city in the southern part of Mexico's Baja California peninsula with fierce winds and rain early Saturday after sparing the tourist resorts of Los Cabos a direct hit.

John was a Category 2 storm with 100 mph winds when it struck land near isolated hamlets northeast of Los Cabos Friday night, but the National Hurricane Center in Miami said it had slipped to Category 1 status with winds near 85 mph Saturday morning.

It was centered about 10 miles north-northwest of the state capital of La Paz — a city of more than 150,000 people.

UPCOMING ACTIVITIES

A ribbon cutting will be held at 10:15 a.m. Wednesday, at Papa Georgio's Pizza, 2602 S. Gregg.

The event is sponsored by the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce and Ambassadors. Everyone is welcome.

Kaki Morton, physical therapist, will be honored with an open house at Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center from 4 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. Thursday. Tours will be given of the facility and refreshments will be served.

DANCING FOR FIREMEN

Dancing for firemen? You bet! Four Way Gin will be the site for the annual Lenorah Volunteer Fire Department dance and barbecue, set for Saturday, Sept. 23.

All funds raised at the event — admission is by donation — go to help the volunteer fire department. LVFD Fire Chief Dusty Wells said they are expecting 300 to 400 people at the fund-raiser, which begins at 7 p.m. with the serving of brisket and continues with the dance from 9 p.m. to midnight. He said the department normally responds to 30 fires by this time of the year, but has been called out 58 times already in 2006.

World briefs

Weakened Ernesto drenches Mid-Atlantic

BALTIMORE (AP) — Disrupting the start of the Labor Day weekend, Ernesto drenched the Mid-Atlantic region, cut power to more than 400,000 customers and forced evacuations as it weakened to a tropical depression.

Flash flood watches were posted early Saturday for Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York. Flood warnings were issued for North Carolina, Virginia, Pennsylvania, Maryland and the District of Columbia.

Ernesto was blamed for at least five deaths in Virginia and North Carolina, where it swirled ashore late Thursday as a tropical storm, a day after severe thunderstorms had already drenched the region.

Eastern North Carolina got 8 to 12 inches of rain, while southeastern Virginia measured up to a foot. Seven inches fell in Worcester County on Maryland's Eastern Shore, and a wind gust of 61 mph was recorded in Ocean City, said Ed McDonough, spokesman for the Maryland Emergency Management Agency.

Italian troops arrive in Lebanon

TYRE, Lebanon (AP) — Italian soldiers poured into Lebanon on Saturday, part of the first large contingent of international troops dispatched to boost the U.N. force keeping the peace between Israel and Hezbollah guerrillas.

Around 150 Italian marines wearing blue berets arrived in the Mediterranean port city of Tyre aboard a wave of gray U.N. helicopters. Their first task was to secure two beaches where the remainder of an 880-strong battalion of soldiers will land over the weekend. High waves delayed the deployment, though, and some vehicles and equipment were diverted further south to Naqoura. Another 200 Italian troops are expected Sunday in the capital, Beirut.

The commander of the U.N. Interim Force in Lebanon known as UNIFIL, French Gen. Alain Pellegrini, said the expanded peace-keeping mission marked a break from the past.

"We have to forget the previous UNIFIL. The previous UNIFIL is dead and the new one is very different," Pellegrini told reporters. "It is strengthened with stronger rules of engagement. We will have more people, more equipment. We have the possibility to use force to implement our mission."

International troops have been slow to arrive in Lebanon since an Aug. 14 cease-fire ended 34 days of fighting between Israel and Hezbollah, in part because it took time to work out the troops' mandate.

London police arrest 14 in anti-terrorism raids

LONDON (AP) — Fourteen people were arrested in London overnight on suspicion they were involved in training and recruiting for acts of terrorism, police said Saturday.

Police said the arrests were not linked to last month's alleged plot to bomb U.S.-bound passenger jets or to the July 2005 attacks on London's transport network.

Twelve suspects were arrested at a Chinese restaurant in south London that caters to Muslims, the British Broadcasting Corp. said.

About 40 officers raided the restaurant shortly after 10 p.m. Friday, when it was packed with diners, the BBC said. Police would not comment on the report but said the raids followed months of surveillance and investigation.

They said the arrests stemmed from an investigation into terror training and recruitment but declined to elaborate.

Prime minister meets influential cleric

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki met with Iraq's most influential Shiite cleric Saturday, while attacks killed 13 Pakistani and Indian pilgrims south of the capital and three bombings left six people dead.

Maliki traveled to the Najaf, 100 miles south of Baghdad, to meet with Grand Ayatollah Ali al-Sistani.

In July, al-Sistani was credited with restraining the majority Shiite community from widespread retaliation against Sunnis following horrific attacks on Shiite civilians.

Maliki's meeting came two days after a barrage of coordinated attacks across mainly Shiite eastern Baghdad killed 64 people and wounded 286.

The bloodshed came in a violent week that saw hundreds of Iraqis killed, and came despite a massive security operation in the capital that has targeted some of Baghdad's most problematic neighborhoods.

Friday, the defense ministry said security forces would expand the crackdown into the eastern parts of the capital, including Shiite militia strongholds.

American forces.

But Bush, repeating nearly word-for-word the message of a speech earlier this week in Salt Lake City, said, "The security of the civilized world depends on victory in the war on terror, and that depends on victory in Iraq, so America will not leave until victory is achieved."

He added, "The path to victory will be uphill and uneven, and it will require more patience and sacrifice from our nation."

The president's radio remarks are part of a new White House offensive to build support for the Iraq war and for Republicans in the fall elections. This series of speeches was launched Thursday, with an address before an American Legion convention, and is to culminate Sept. 19 with remarks before the U.N. General Assembly.

The next speech is set for Tuesday, when the White House is bringing representatives from countries that have suffered terrorist attacks to populate the audience and emphasize the global nature of the enemy.

Bush often ticks off a list of recent attacks to demonstrate that the world should be united against Islamic militants who share a purpose, if not a common network. He often says various factions of terrorists — such as Sunnis who swear allegiance to al-Qaida, Shiites who support groups such as Hezbollah, and "home-grown" terrorists with local grievances — belong under the same umbrella, even though many terrorism experts disagree.

The president plans to expand on this description Tuesday before the Military Officers Association of America, said White House spokeswoman Dana Perino. Bush will describe how Islamic militants think, what they have said about their aims and why the world should take them seriously, Perino said.

that capacity before moving into administration.

Ritchey was assistant principal at BSIS for several years before being named to the top spot in 2001, the same year Tannehill became assistant principal.

"I was very surprised (by the award). I didn't even know I had been nominated," said Tannehill, who is in his 19th year with the school district. "I feel very surprised and very honored by the award."

"I think Tim is more deserving of this award than I am," said Ritchey, who joined BSIS in 1985. "But I'm very honored to be recognized. There's a lot of good school districts in this region."

"This is more of a compliment to the staff at the high school," he added. "There's a lot of positive things happening there, and they certainly wouldn't happen without the staff, so I give all the credit to them."

dance and theatre, have provided the foundation for McIntosh to build a successful adventure in teaching.

Previous instructing experience through dance studios in Fort Worth also give McIntosh the experience she brings to the table as an expert in many forms of dance. Additionally, she was a founding creator of "Leap of Faith," a non-denominational liturgical dance company which performed "Dances of Faith" and is still active in Tulsa, Okla.

McIntosh understands the world of dance is ever-changing and sees the importance of teaching basic concepts to students who possess an interest in learning dance. "I want to help the students develop a passion about dance, and have fun doing it," she says. She will not only develop their bodies but their minds as well through creative ways of teaching dance history. Her intent is to help the students learn how even the most famous of prima ballerinas learned and continually practice the very same steps being taught to them by McIntosh.

McIntosh is a huge supporter of the fine arts and culture within the community. In her short time in the Big Spring community, she has become active in volunteerism through Isaiah 58 and is very interested in the Symphony Guild. She is teaching college credit classes at Howard College and is slated to choreograph "The Fantastics," a Howard College production that will open in October.

If you are interested in enrolling in the Classical Ballet Community Education class, contact Chandra McBee at (432) 264-5131. Cost for the course is $65 per month and shoes are included. Classes begin Tuesday, Sept. 5 and will be held in the Performing Arts building weekly from 4 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesdays through June 5, 2007.

OUR VIEWS

Let us all help in reaching lofty United Way goal

Another campaign kickoff luncheon has signaled the start of the 61st annual drive for United Way of Big Spring and Howard County. This is an effort everyone can get behind because it benefits us all.

More than that, it's a campaign we all have to support if it is to reach its $300,000 goal.

While that figure seems lofty in the wake of last year's drive failing to reach the same goal, the same fate the previous year's drive suffered with a slightly smaller target of $275,000, we should all take a moment to really consider what State Sen. Kel Seliger, the kickoff luncheon's speaker said about the United Way in his brief remarks last week.

Donating to the United Way was not only the "humanitarian thing to do," he told the audience, it's the "economically responsible" thing to do.

The key, of course, is for all of us to help. If we all give a little, that goal will be achieved and our community will be the better for it.

The few dollars each of us gives to United Way goes a long, long way. Through scouting, the YMCA, Boys Club after-school programs and the like, children learn teamwork, responsibility and the value of participation.

Programs such as Victim Services give those who have suffered emotional and physical trauma a source to turn to, new hope and the ability to carry on with productive lives. The American Red Cross helps us in times of disaster, whether it be in the aftermath of a hurricane or a house fire.

The Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center helps us recover from physical setbacks and get back on our feet again.

And the Salvation Army, always there with a helping hand in times of disaster, also provides school supplies, coats and shoes for those who don't have them; food for those who are hungry; Christmas for those who would not otherwise share the joy and peace of the holiday season. In short, it helps those who are having a tougher time of it and need a warm, caring hand to help them back up again.

So many lives are touched by these non-profit organizations and the others United Way serves — the Council on Aging, Howard County Humane Society, Isaiah 58, CASA of west Texas, Northside Community Center and the Westside Community Center and Westside Day Care Center.

All told, the 15 agencies ensure that someone in our county who needs help can get it with dignity and pride.

Those few dollars each of us contributes keep our neighborhoods safer, helps ensure some children get an education and offer single parents a step up to self-sufficiency.

This is not charity. It is seeing to the well being of an entire community.

And remember, many of those who need our help today will be among our leaders tomorrow. That is the goal — to provide the means for everyone in our county to have an equal chance to become a productive part of society.

Please, let's all do our part.

Is he a nice guy? Just ask him

Random thoughts while remembering how to cover sports: From the "I'm a nice guy ... just ask me" department comes the following news item:

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) — A city council member and mayoral candidate admitted he has anonymously praised himself in comments posted on a newspaper's Web site.

The Post-Bulletin newsroom doesn't regularly check identities of online users, but a reporter noticed similarities in the way a user named "127179" writes and Pat Carr talks.

Some of the dozens of messages posted by "127179" since November found notes of praise for Carr, while some attacked officials who voted differently from him.

For example, in a comment posted Sunday that answered a critical comment from another reader, Carr wrote: "Pat Carr has done nothing but stand up for the silent majority." A comment posted Friday said: "People that run him down are special interest groups and insiders that Carr exposes."

Carr acknowledged Monday that he wrote all past comments except one, which he said was written by a friend visiting his office.

"If people want to trash me, I have the right to stand up and defend myself," he said. "I stand by what I said."

STEVE REAGAN

Managing Editor Jay Furst sent messages to Carr in April and July, warning him that if he continued to post self-congratulatory or misleading comments, the newspaper might choose to report on it.

I know this is kind of silly, but it still bothers me a bit.

Mr. Carr certainly has a right to defend himself, but why doesn't he just do so in an upfront manner? Is he so desperate for support that he has to resort to anonymously pumping himself up, so to speak?

And his comment defending his actions certainly was disingenuous.

"I stand by what I said," can also be construed to read, "I was sneaky and underhanded, and by gummy, I'm proud of it."

Yeah, I want this guy on my city council.

And let's take this to its logical conclusion. If we give people like Mr. Carr a free pass on this kind of activity, what's to stop others from getting into the act.

Why, there could be advertisements in the Herald saying something to the effect of:

"I believe Steve Reagan is an outstanding columnist" (signed) Joe Smith.

OR
"Reagan's columns are always the highlight of my day" (signed) Jane Smith.

On second thought, maybe this isn't a bad idea.

At least some criminals have a sense of humor, as attested by the following:

YOUR VIEWS

If I want to smoke that's my business. If a place of business does not want my business, that's their business. The city council needs to stay out of our business.

TO THE EDITOR:

I have lived in Big Spring since 1956. My first impression was not very good. I say that because I come from a very small town, Roby, and got spoiled there.

We were the only Hispanic family there and we were not treated different in any way and helped in any way as needed, just like one happy family. But here I noticed the moment I moved here that there was a lot of discrimination.

There's been some improvement, but not enough to be bragged about.

At this present time I have noticed it's among the businesses — not as a personal thing as race. Instead, the issue is about the jail.

There's a lot of talk about it and it seems this city thinks of the northside as a good place (for a jail), not knowing how people think. I too have been asking myself, why on the northside? I've always thought that a jail should be close to the courthouse, not across town.

The location that's been chosen, and I say chosen because I did not hear it has been voted on, is home to many elderly like myself. We live on the northside, what's wrong with that? But let me tell you there are also small and school-age children.

There's plenty of empty buildings around near the courthouse just standing there. Why can't they offer a price for them and be near the courthouse? Or, how would you like to live next to a jail, hearing all types of sirens and commotion?

Also, if when an inmate escapes, as it has happened before, I'm sure the northside has a lot of empty houses an escapee could hide in. If that was one of your houses, I'm sure you wouldn't like to see that happen, or am I wrong?

And since Howard County doesn't have a female facility, the present jail floor could be fixed for that purpose. No? Or better yet, make or build a new bigger courthouse and add a new jail plus female facilities.

I can tell you of one place that I've seen is the one in San Angelo.

As for plumbing, sewer connections needed, well what's the problem? This city has plenty of plumbing business that could be of help.

As for expenses, things have to be done regardless. Besides, we all pay taxes. Don't make it sound like the expense is coming out of one pocket.

People consider the Northside as a bad criminal spot. They're wrong. Crime is all over town. Here we're talking about the jail issue. People like the commissioners and anyone involved should go out and talk to all citizens on the northside and find out how each one feels.

I hope this issue will be settled soon, being elderly, I won't be here forever. But I want my family to grow up in a good city and be proud of it.

TO THE EDITOR:

People today are so busy minding other people's business they don't have time to sweep their own doorstep. While many of us are praying and weeping over our military fighting for our freedom, others are petitioning and raising Cain and trying to remove the freedom of their friends and neighbors.

Freedom, according to the dictionary, is liberty — particularly privileges of doing, enjoying or using something at will; independence.

Example. When my family and I joined the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, we were ridiculed, shunned and told we were not Christian. And it was rumored that we did not believe in Jesus Christ and worshipped a man named Smith.

Reason being was our religious belief if refraining from coffee, tea, alcohol and tobacco. Not because they offended anyone like second hand smoke, but we considered the body a temple and was to be taken care of health wise. So as a religious body we are obedient to this teaching.

People at that time had coffee pots going 24 hours a day, and had caffeine hangovers from drinking it. Later it was pointed out it was not good for you. Tea has tannic acid in it which is used for people who have been severely burned. Everyone knows the results of alcohol and smoking.

I drove the band kids to the football games for 20 odd years, and I watched them from the bandstands as the football coaches walked the sidelines and spit snuff all up and down the lines and I gagged as the football boys were tackled and wallowed where these coaches walked and spit.

Did you ask your coaches to stop dipping and spitting? Were your young Steers in an unhealthy atmosphere on the ground? Or were you more engrossed in the scoreboard? I had young boys who often got reprimanded or had to walk for spitting snuff on my bus floor or the shoes of someone who sat near them. And many jeans had a pocket worn out before the rest of the pants, thanks to a snuff can.

DULUTH, Minn. (AP) — Punsters might say the West Duluth police substation is going to pot.

A dozen marijuana plants, a few as tall as six inches, were found growing in a planter near the substation's front door. City Gardener Tom Kasper estimated they had been growing for about three weeks.

"The only thing I can say is somebody has a sense of humor," said neighborhood supervising police Lt. John Beyer.

Beyer noted that he, his police officers and the public use the back door entrance to the police station. The front door is just off a busy street and is usually locked.

Beyer said the plants would be placed in a paper bag and destroyed with other confiscated drugs.

I'm not going to defend the use of illegal drugs, but you have to admit this is kind of funny.

If nothing else, you have to appreciate the sheer gall it took for someone to pull off this stunt.

I would have never had the guts to pull something like this off. Then again, figuratively tweaking the noses of police never seemed like a particularly smart thing to do to me.

Of course, if this someone ever gets caught, the laughter you hear will probably come from the police.

I do not smoke and I agree, it is an unhealthy practice. The fumes from the refinery, the chemicals used in mosquito control, our dumpsters, marijuana odors and liquor are also unhealthy practices and offenses. We must sweep our own door steps before we can tell others what they can and cannot do. If we are offended by their practice, I hope we are wise enough to control our own practices.

I have three habits that unfortunately have been pointed out to me and forbidden by highest officials of our land. Prayer, scripture reading and going to church. These offended someone; am I to give up my habits to suit them? No prayer in school, no prayer at football or other sport games, religious monuments to be destroyed, moved or taken out of governmental buildings. Where does it end?

I hope our leaders and citizens can use wisdom in their demands and ask how long it will be before someone decides to take offense at what you are doing; start petitions, or newspaper articles, or rumors that will stir up problems for you.

When a city gets to be perfect, it gets translated.

Unusual Texas governor's race accelerates on Labor Day

By KELLEY SHANNON
AP Political Writer

AUSTIN — If you haven't gotten a full taste this summer of the venom in the Texas governor's race, you'll soon get a bigger dose.

Two hard-charging rival state officeholders, a low-key but tenacious former Houston congressman and a cowboy-clad, anti-establishment Hill Country humorist and mystery writer are starting to fight for votes in earnest. That means an onslaught of television commercials.

Based on past Texas gubernatorial races and the rhetoric of this campaign, expect the ads to be nonstop and, eventually, negative — especially between the big-spending candidates, Republican Gov. Rick Perry and independent Comptroller Carole Keeton Strayhorn.

Television ads cost about $1 million per week to blanket Texas. The Perry and Strayhorn campaigns view TV ads as essential to spreading their respective messages in this state of 22 million people.

"Running for governor here is like running for president of a small country," said Mark Sanders, spokesman for Strayhorn. "Most voters will never meet the candidates that are running for governor. They will see them on television in ads."

Democrat Chris Bell and independent Kinky Friedman have far less campaign money than Perry and Strayhorn and say they will run some ads at selected times this fall. Libertarian James Werner also is running.

Predicting how the ad war will play out isn't easy, what with four well-known candidates and the winner possibly pulling in less than 40 percent of the vote, say Republican and Democratic operatives from the 2002 governor's race.

Well-funded candidates may have an incentive to advertise at high intensity and with more negative commercials to try to diminish an opponent's support, said Glenn Smith, who ran the gubernatorial campaign of Democrat Tony Sanchez four years ago.

"While a lot of people say they don't like negative ads, they work," he said.

But the campaigns need to tread carefully; the fallout could send a voter elsewhere, said consultant Ray Sullivan, the spokesman for Perry's 2002 campaign.

"You could have a pox on both their houses and supporters move to another candidate," Sullivan said.

Education, border security and job creation are likely to be some of the subjects of Perry's ads, said Sullivan, who still has close ties to the governor but is not on his payroll.

Look for Perry's opponents to emphasize education and health care and put down Perry's plan for privately run highways, Smith said.

Strayhorn's first commercial airs Monday, though her campaign officials wouldn't reveal any details. Perry's spokesman wouldn't divulge details about his ads, either.

"They'll start soon,"

Friedman

Perry campaign spokesman Robert Black promised. "Stay tuned."

Once the ads get going, Strayhorn and Perry are expected to run them constantly until the Nov. 7 election. Both sides say they expect each other's ads to be mean-spirited.

"I think Texans need to be very prepared for Carole Strayhorn, particularly, to run a very negative campaign. I mean, she has spent the last year essentially trying to tear down this state and all that Texas has accomplished, and the governor," Black said.

Perry will run a positive race, but will defend himself if necessary, Black said.

"From Rick Perry I guess we're going to see exactly what he's promised, and that is a bloody, brutal campaign," Sanders said.

The Perry-Sanchez campaign in 2002 was filled with bruising ads from both sides. One of the most notable was Perry's ad that tried to connect Sanchez to murderous Mexican drug smugglers through Sanchez's defunct Laredo savings and loan. Authorities never accused Sanchez of wrongdoing.

Perry will again use Austin-based Weeks & Co. Strayhorn has hired Alex Castellanos of National Media Inc. of Alexandria, Va., who has done work for President Bush and has been hired by California Republican Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger.

Both candidates ran ads reintroducing themselves to viewers at the beginning of the year, and Perry ran an ad promoting the success of a spring special legislative session on school funding and property taxes.

Bell aired an ad in a few television markets this summer in which he urged Texans to "think big" to improve schools and advance the state's economy. The commercial featured a larger-than-life Bell looming over the Alamo, sitting on the Texas Capitol and standing in Palo Duro Canyon.

Bell and Friedman each had less than $1 million in campaign cash on hand as of June 30, the end of the latest six-month reporting period. Perry had the biggest bank account with about $10 million, compared with about $8 million for Strayhorn.

The ads aren't all voters will see. Nationally over the past few election cycles there has been more attention paid to a "serious, energetic ground game" to supplement TV ads, said Daron Shaw, a government professor at the University of Texas at Austin who researches campaign advertising.

In Republican-dominated Texas, the GOP ground organization gives Perry an advantage, said Shaw, who has consulted in the past for the Perry campaign.

Texas has about 20 media markets ranging from the small in Sherman and Harlingen to the large in Houston and Dallas. Cable television allows for more targeted ad buying aimed at particular demographic groups.

Bell said recently that his major ad push would come in October, although, like Perry and Strayhorn aides, he didn't want to discuss strategy.

Smith, the Democratic strategist, said the wild card in the race is Friedman, the writer and musician whose effect on other candidates is unclear.

The unconventional Friedman camp taped commercials at Friedman's ranch near Kerrville this past week and has enough money for two weeks of TV advertising this fall, campaign spokeswoman Laura Stromberg said. Some of that money will come from a $350,000 fundraising concert Jimmy Buffett is performing Sept. 19.

When his ads do appear, they won't have to run too many times for his message to sink in, Stromberg said.

"It's Kinky," she said. "They'll be unforgettable."

north of the city, when the city owns lots of land at the old air base.

It seems (it would be) something like $170,000 plus real estate fees to purchase land off Highway 87. And I can see no logical reasoning for such expenditure or location.

I also haven't seen an estimate of cost to turn both the second and third floors of the courthouse into jail space; and relocate any offices into the basement of the old post office or some empty building downtown.

I think taxpayers would appreciate hearing other options before voting on any size jail.

CLIFFORD HALE
BIG SPRING

TO THE EDITOR:

I am against the smoking ban because I think the city council has no business telling businesses how they are to be run. After all, they are what have made our town for the most part for several years.

We seldom get new businesses, and when we do, the city council comes up with something to discourage them.

Let each business decide for themselves if they want smoking or not. Then if the citizens do or do not go there, it's their choice — rather than catering to the chosen few that are always wanting new ordinances on the books.

I think this smoking question has been run into the ground. Sure, smoking kills, but so does alcohol, drugs, guns, cars, etc.

And to compare us to Lubbock or even Midland or Odessa — there is no comparison.

What's the difference between bars and restaurants? That's about all they're targeting anyway, because most other businesses are non-smoking already.

Do they just figure they're killing themselves with alcohol anyway, so they can go ahead and smoke, too?

What about the truck stop restaurant? Don't you think they enjoy having a cup of coffee and a cigarette while they are taking a break from the road, or should they just go in to the bar and have a mixed drink instead?

I just think the city council needs to butt out and concentrate on how they can better our town besides getting rid of the smokers. Most of the businesses have been in business longer than you people on the council and have apparently made pretty wise choices. So, why don't we just let them keep running their own businesses and the council stay out of it?

Manhunt widens in search for suspect

Authorities say suspect's disdain for law enforcement is well known

CASSADAGA, N.Y. (AP) — For months, authorities in western New York scoured hunting campsites, stopped traffic and questioned acquaintances in a search for an escaped inmate with the skills of a seasoned outdoorsman.

Friday, the manhunt intensified after authorities said two participating troopers were ambushed by a sniper hiding in the woods. Seventy-five additional troopers were called up to help as the pair lingered in critical condition.

Police believe the gunman was Ralph "Bucky" Phillips, who escaped from jail in April and may be traveling between Pennsylvania and western New York, said State Police Superintendent Wayne Bennett. Since his escape, Phillips has been suspected in the wounding of another state trooper, numerous burglaries and the theft of a gun shop.

"We are not looking for a shootout. That's not the way we want this to end," Bennett said. But he also warned Phillips that "We have long memories. We don't forget. We are patient. ... Don't stop to look over your shoulder because we'll be there."

There is a $30,000 reward for help leading to the arrest and conviction of Ralph "Bucky" Phillips.

The five-month manhunt has turned Phillips into somewhat of a local amusement here, sometimes frustrating police. A restaurant offered a "Bucky Burger" and some bars in the area sold T-shirts with sayings such as "Got Bucky?"

Phillips, 44, broke out of the Erie County jail on April 2 by using a can opener to pry open a 2-by-2-foot opening in the kitchen ceiling and escaping through the roof, police have said. He was serving 90 days for a parole violation.

Since then, he has helped himself to food, clothes and guns from unattended homes and hunting cabins in western New York, and is believed to have stolen about 15 cars, police said.

He is also wanted in the June 10 shooting of Trooper Sean Brown, who survived after being shot in the abdomen as he approached a stolen car near Elmira.

But after the latest shootings, some Chautauqua County residents were growing less amused.

"In the beginning, it was 'Ha, ha.' Now it's scary, and I just wish it was over," said waitress Dawn McCarthy.

Troopers Joseph Longobardo, 32, and Donald Baker Jr., 38, were shot Thursday while staking out the isolated hilltop home of Phillips' former girlfriend, Kasey Crowe, who is among those accused of aiding the fugitive. So far, six people have been arrested on charges they helped give Phillips cover.

One trooper was hit in the back with a bullet that penetrated his bullet-resistant vest, Bennett said. The other was shot in the thigh and suffered massive blood loss from a severed artery.

The troopers never saw it coming, Bennett said, and did not return fire.

At a bail hearing for Crowe on Friday, a state police investigator testified that a search of her house after the shootings turned up night-vision binoculars and a two-way radio, along with pizza crusts and beer cans that will be tested for Phillips' DNA.

Investigator Gary Colon also testified that a 10-year-old boy said he saw Phillips at Crowe's home Aug. 20. Phillips shot a deer with a handgun through a window, then went out and skinned it, according to the child.

Crowe was charged last week with hindering prosecution for allegedly helping Phillips, and prosecutors said she has continued to help him. A Chautauqua County judge jailed her Friday afternoon and increased her bail to $100,000 from $10,000.

Family and friends said Phillips, while a career thief who had spent nearly half his life in jail, had never before been violent and would not shoot a trooper.

A reward for help leading to his arrest and conviction — increased to $25,000 from $50,000 on Friday — has gone uncollected.

Authorities say his disdain for police was well known. Sheriff's officials said he left a note for officials when he was released or transferred from the Chautauqua County jail several years ago, threatening "to splatter pig meat all over Chautauqua County."

The April jailbreak also wasn't Phillips' first, and friends said he was determined not to go back. A "Wanted" poster warned that Phillips had threatened "suicide by cop."

Crew of Atlantis returns to Florida in preparation for Wednesday launch

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Four days after evacuating the Kennedy Space Center with Tropical Storm Ernesto approaching, the space shuttle Atlantis' six crew members flew back to Florida on Saturday to prepare for a Wednesday launch.

As Atlantis' crew took off from Florida in training jets on a trip back to Houston last Tuesday, they watched from the air as the space shuttle crawled off the launch pad on a journey back to an assembly building for shelter, said Brent Jett, Atlantis' commander.

Midway through the four-mile journey, NASA managers reversed themselves and decided to return the shuttle to the launch pad once Ernesto's intensity was downgraded. The reversal gave NASA an opportunity to launch Wednesday, rather than several weeks later.

"I think all of us thought we were going to be spending a little while in Houston," Jett said Saturday after returning to the Kennedy Space Center. "I think we're all really happy that just four days later we're back here and we have a shot at this launch window."

By the time Ernesto reached the Kennedy Space Center on Wednesday night, the storm had been downgraded to a tropical depression, and peak gusts at the launch pad reached 44 mph, well below the 79 mph threshold that requires the shuttle to be moved indoors.

Engineers inspecting Atlantis the next day found three areas of minor foam damage on the shuttle's external fuel tank: a three-eighths-inch long cut in the middle of the liquid oxygen tank, an inch-long scratch near where the tank connects to the solid rocket boosters, and a missing lump of foam from the liquid hydrogen barrel.

The first two scratches were expected to be easily repaired, and the missing foam will not need to be replaced, NASA officials said.

Any kind of foam insulation problem on the external tank is a major concern for NASA engineers since foam falling off the space shuttle Columbia's external tank during liftoff struck the spacecraft's wing, allowing fiery gases to penetrate and kill its seven crew members while returning to Earth in 2003.

Since then, NASA has redesigned the external tank to minimize foam shedding.

Atlantis will deliver a 35,000-pound, $372 million addition to the half-built international space station during the 11-day mission. Four astronauts will take three spacewalks to resume construction on the orbiting space lab, which stopped being built 3 1/2 years ago after the Columbia accident.

NASA and its international partners hope to finish the space station during 14 other shuttle missions by 2010 when the cargo-carrying vehicles are retired.

Atlantis originally was set to blast off last Sunday. The launch was delayed after a lightning bolt struck the launch pad, requiring engineers to check out Atlantis' systems to make sure there was no damage. Then Ernesto blew through Florida.

Atlantis crew member Steve MacLean of the Canadian Space Agency called the delays "a dancing shuttle two-step."

Friends, colleagues protest stripped planet status

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (AP) — Size doesn't matter.

That was the message as friends and colleagues of the late Clyde Tombaugh, the astronomer who discovered Pluto, gathered on the New Mexico State University campus to protest the International Astronomical Union's recent decision to strip Pluto of its status as a planet.

About 50 students and staff members turned out Friday for the good-natured challenge. Some were wearing T-shirts and carrying signs that read "Protest for Pluto" and "Size Doesn't Matter."

Tombaugh's widow, Patricia, and their son, Al Tombaugh, also participated.

NMSU astronomer Bernie McNamara told the crowd that textbooks shouldn't be rewritten.

"Why not? Because the debate is not over," McNamara said.

The IAU determined last week that a planet must orbit the sun and be large enough to assume a nearly round shape, as well as "clear the neighborhood around its orbit." Pluto's oblong orbit overlaps Neptune's, which led the IAU to downsize the solar system to eight planets from the traditional nine.

Seminary rejects pastor's sermon on speaking in tongues

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A Southern Baptist seminary's decision not to post a Webcast of a pastor's sermon that refers to speaking in tongues has drawn criticism from believers who say the move restricts differing opinions in the nation's largest Protestant denomination.

The Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary said it would not post audio and video recordings of the Rev. Dwight McKissic's Tuesday sermon because he describes experiencing a "private prayer language" while he was a student at the seminary.

McKissic, a seminary trustee and pastor of Cornerstone Baptist Church in Arlington, Texas, said he sees no reason for a Southern Baptist Convention panel to ban missionaries from speaking in tongues in private, as well as in public.

Dissenting bloggers in the denomination — who were given some credit for propelling little-known Rev. Frank Page to election as president of the convention in June — have previously criticized the ban on tongues and say leaders need to be more open to differing viewpoints.

The Fort Worth seminary began producing the streaming video of its chapel services on Aug. 24. But the seminary issued a statement on Tuesday that said it would not post "materials online which could place us in the position of appearing to be critical of actions of the Board of Trustees of sister agencies."

The statement also said the seminary would not video-stream the sermon "lest uninformed people believe that Pastor McKissic's view on the gift of tongues as 'ecstatic utterance' is the view of the majority of our people at Southwestern."

The statement refers to trustees of the SBC's International Missions Board, who voted in November to bar missionaries from using a "private prayer language," or speaking in tongues in private. Previously, missionaries were discouraged from speaking in tongues publicly, but their private prayer was not monitored.

The practice is common among Pentecostals, whose spirited brand of Christianity is spreading in the United States and rapidly through countries where Southern Baptist missionaries work. But many conservative Protestants reject the practice. Bill Leonard, dean of Wake Forest University's School of Divinity, said a younger generation of clergy and laity — including some of the denomination's bloggers — generally conform to SBC doctrine but oppose "autocratic methods" of conservative leadership that have controlled the Nashville-based denomination for more than a decade.

"The seminary's action is perhaps further evidence to them (bloggers) that those who do not conform will ultimately be silenced," Leonard said. "Blogs, however, cannot be so easily controlled. The moderates and liberals are long gone but the desire for control continues."

McKissic sent a letter to seminary president Paige Patterson after the school's refusal to post his sermon. He said the school had a right to take the action, although he believed speaking in tongues was a valid practice backed by both the Bible and many Baptist pastors and scholars.

McKissic said Friday that the International Missions Board has taken a stand on the tongues issue, but the SBC as a whole needs to, as well. "I thought it was unnecessary censorship," McKissic said. "I do respect their authority and it was in their purview to make that decision. But they (SBC) need to take a position, cause right now they treat us like we don't belong. I think we need an open discussion and debate and reach a consensus on where we stand. I hope this begins a serious dialogue as to what our position would be."

Soon after the IMB's vote last fall, bloggers jumped into the debate — the most notable being Wade Burleson, a pastor from Enid, Okla., who opposed the ban on speaking in tongues privately and criticized the way SBC leaders handled dissent within the IMB after he joined the panel.

Burleson was reprimanded by board members for writing about the board's internal debates on his blog and threatened with removal.

The action stoked a desire for change by Burleson and other bloggers, who threw their support behind Page — the surprise pick for president who defeated two better-known members of the conservative SBC leadership.

Burleson and other bloggers weighed in immediately after the seminary's actions Tuesday, with many saying the issue is not whether most Southern Baptists agree with McKissic's views but whether his sermon can be viewed by the public.

"We do not need to fear information in the SBC," Burleson said. "We do not need to worry about what others will think if they hear opinions that are different than the status quo. Truth has no enemies, and we are not harmed by an environment where people can speak their convictions freely without fear of reprisal or censure. In fact, in that kind of environment, we will prosper."

Ruling clears way for lawsuits over tribal housing

BROWNING, Mont. (AP) — Candice LaMott calls the house she inherited from her mother "poison."

There's black mold under the sink, holes in the walls and a foundation made of chemically treated wood, conditions she believes are responsible for illness in her family and even her mother's death.

"When she got this house, she just thought it was a mansion," LaMott said. "She didn't care that the wood was going to kill her."

LaMott is one of a number of low-income Blackfeet tribal members who sued the tribe's housing authority and the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development in 2002 to have their houses, which were built in the late 1970s, replaced.

U.S. District Judge Sam Haddon dismissed both lawsuits in 2004, saying the tribal authority had sovereign immunity. But a recent ruling by a panel of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that reinstated the lawsuit against the tribal authority is giving plaintiffs hope.

The ruling said the Blackfeet tribe waived any claim to sovereign immunity in the ordinance that created the tribal housing authority. It is drawing attention throughout Indian Country because identical language is present in the founding documents of most tribal housing authorities nationwide.

About 150 houses on the Blackfeet reservation were built in the 1970s with wooden foundations that were treated with arsenic and other toxic chemicals as preservatives. The plaintiffs allege that the use of the wood foundations caused their homes to deteriorate, and that the conditions of the homes have caused severe health problems, including asthma, kidney failure and respiratory problems. LaMott's mother, Dorothy, died of kidney failure about five years ago.

The families purchased or leased the homes through the HUD Mutual Help and Homeownership Program, which was designed to address housing needs of low-income American Indian families.

To be eligible for federal grants, the tribe had to form a housing authority charged with alleviating the shortage of "decent, safe and sanitary" housing.

The housing authority's attorney wants the full appeals court to hear the matter and may go to the U.S. Supreme Court. American Indian legal experts say the decision conflicts with those by other courts and could have unintentional consequences for all tribes.

"I would say the vast majority of housing authorities have that law on their books," said Richard Guest, a staff attorney with the Native American Rights Fund in Washington. "It's that ordinance and that language that is the concern because that was boilerplate, it was standard. HUD required tribes to adopt that specific language or they wouldn't get federal funding."

Raymond Cross, a University of Montana law professor, said the ruling opens federal courts up to hearing cases that typically would be heard by state or tribal courts, and opens tribal housing authorities up to lawsuits from both tribal and non-tribal members.

Housing authorities

often contract with non-Indian entities, so the waiver of sovereign immunity means the authority could be sued by any person or group that it does business with, Cross said.

Battle with polio re-emerges

By HENRI BRICKEY

Lubbock Avalanche-Journal

LUBBOCK (AP) — At 68 years old, Alma Studer-Herod thought her battle with polio was over 50 years ago.

Then, in 1985, signs of the crippling disease began to show again. Today, Studer-Herod can barely walk to her car.

She is one of the thousands of Americans struggling with post-polio, a phenomenon that baffles many medical experts.

Until the mid-1950s, polio was one of the most dreaded diseases in the United States. Symptoms ranged from fever to muscle weakness to paralysis. Many died from polio, mostly children.

Then, in 1955, the polio vaccination was created, and the nation let out a collective sigh of relief. Polio would do no more harm.

Or so everyone thought. More than 50 years later, the disease is back in a different way.

The condition is known as post-polio or post-polio syndrome.

Dr. Lauro Halstead, a polio survivor and expert on post-polio syndrome, compares post-polio victims to "wounded veterans from some forgotten war."

Symptoms of post-polio typically don't appear for 15 or 20 years after the person has recovered from the initial bout with polio.

The symptoms often start subtly with feelings of general weakness and fatigue. Gradually, the symptoms worsen and may include muscular pain and eventually muscular atrophy.

Medical experts say the condition is caused by the accelerated aging of nerves that were damaged by the polio virus decades earlier.

For Studer-Herod, the second phase of the disease is harder than the initial battle.

"We struggled for years as children to regain our independence, and now all of a sudden you can't step up onto a curb or climb the stairs," Studer-Herod said.

As a child with polio in the 1940s, Studer-Herod's treatment was paid for by the March of Dimes, a charity that was invented to provide support to polio victims.

"It's still not well-understood. I wish someone would come forward who knows more about post-polio. There is a real need in this area."

—Dr. Jane Scott, Lubbock family practitioner

More than half a century later, Studer-Herod and other post-polio victims don't have the support network that was around when they were children. Many have a tough time even getting medical treatment.

When Studer-Herod told her local doctor, whom she had used for 40 years, that she was experiencing polio symptoms, he shrugged it off. "He told me that I'm part of a dying breed, and that once I'm gone polio will finally be gone for good," Studer-Herod said.

Eventually, Studer-Herod's quest for a physician knowledgeable of post-polio took her to New Jersey, home of Dr. Richard L. Bruno, chairman for the International Post-Polio Task Force and Director of the Post-Polio Institute.

Since then, Studer-Herod has found a local doctor who is more understanding of post-polio.

She isn't the only local who had trouble finding a doctor to treat her post-polio.

In 1952, Anne Atwood was 3 years old when she was diagnosed with polio.

Like Studer-Herod, Atwood eventually recovered and resumed a normal life.

Then the symptoms began to return when Atwood was in her 30s. When she told her doctor that she was experiencing post-polio symptoms, she was told there was no such thing.

"He told me all this was a figment of my imagination," said Atwood, who today wears leg braces, carries a cane and cannot leave her home without assistance.

Eventually, Atwood ended up in the office of Dr. Jane Scott, a family practitioner in Lubbock.

Scott, who suffered from polio as a child, could relate to how Atwood was feeling. At 4 years old, Scott came down with polio and had to wear a crutch until she was 13.

Scott eventually regained control of her legs. But last year Scott once again began using a crutch.

Like other locals, Scott couldn't find anyone in Lubbock with knowledge of treating post-polio. She ended up in Houston for treatment.

"It's still not well-understood," Scott said. "I wish someone would come forward who knows more about post-polio. There is a real need in this area."

Post-polio victims in Lubbock are forming a support group to help each other.

"We are not looking for a pity party," Studer-Herod said.

Much of the support group's activity will focus on advocating for increased awareness of post-polio syndrome and how to find the best treatment available.

U.S. takes bronze at world championships

SAITAMA, Japan (AP) — Stuck in yet another bronze-medal game they never planned for, Dwyane Wade and his teammates could have come out with a lackluster effort.

Instead, Wade treated the game as if it were the NBA finals. Then he played like it.

Wade scored 18 of his 32 points in the fourth quarter, helping the United States pull away for a 96-81 victory over Argentina on Saturday night in the third-place game at the world championships.

Playing one night after a 101-95 loss to Greece ended their title hopes, the Americans delivered a strong performance and avoided leaving the championships empty-handed for the second straight time. They finished sixth in 2002.

After collecting their bronze medals, LeBron James and Chris Paul threw their sneakers into the crowd of more than 16,000 at Saitama Super Arena.

Tiger takes lead early in bid for fifth straight

NORTON, Mass. (AP) — Tiger Woods bent over and grabbed his knees, thinking his 3-wood that clipped the top branch of an oak tree had trickled down from the green and into a hazard.

Once he realized it was in a bunker, it changed his outlook and put him in a spot that is becoming routine.

Woods got up-and-down from 90 feet for a birdie on the par-5 18th hole Friday, giving him a 5-under 66 and a one-shot lead in the first round of the Deutsche Bank Championship. It was the 10th time in his last 16 rounds he has been atop the leaderboard.

Aaron Baddeley, playing in the same group as Woods, stayed with him most of the day until having to lay up on the 18th. He made par for a 67, joining Bob May, Justin Rose, Joe Ogilvie and Australian rookie Nathan Green.

Buffs open with one-sided win over Kermit

By JEFF LANE

Special to the Herald

FORSAN — The Forsan Buffaloes began the 2006 football season in high fashion Friday night, defeating the Kermit Yellowjackets 26-6 at Buffalo Stadium.

Head Coach Tommy Thompson said the win could not have come at a better time.

"Any win is a good win, but for us this really meant a lot to open the season this way," said Thompson. "It was a great team effort, from our young guys to our seniors. We seemed to learn some lessons from last year."

Both teams came out with some apparent opening night jitters as the offenses had a hard time getting on track early.

But the Buffaloes got it working on the last drive of the 1st quarter when they started a 10 play drive that carried over into the 2nd and led to the games first TD.

Wesley Newcomb scored from 7 yards out at 11:18 in the 2nd quarter to put the Buffs up 7-0 and gave them a lead they would not lose.

Newcomb would end the night with 3 TDs and 126 yards on 14 carries.

The Yellowjackets only score of the night came in the last second of the first half, but not without a gutsy attempt at a goal line stand from the Buffaloes.

It took Kermit four tries from the Forsan 3-yard line to finally put points on the board. The only real scare they gave the Buffs all

Steers battle back but come up short

The Big Spring Steers and Odessa Bronchos really must learn to play a boring football game some day.

In what is becoming an annual rendition of "Last Man Standing," the Steers and Bronchos traded points, big plays, mistakes and hard hits all evening Friday at Memorial Stadium.

And, of course, it had to come down to the wire.

Like last year's game between the two teams, the Bronchos built a big lead. Also like last year, the Steers stormed back and had the ball late with a chance to tie.

Unfortunately for the Steers, the script ended the same for the second year running, as Odessa hung on to take a 36-28 victory over Big Spring in the season opener for both teams.

Big Spring head coach Tim Holt believed before the game that mistakes would be the determining factor in the contest, and that was definitely the case Friday. Both squads made a bushful of errors, but the Steers' miscues proved to be the costliest.

A three-minute stretch in the second quarter proved especially damaging to the Steers' hopes.

After OHS tied the score at 14-all with 8:27 left in the half, the Steers fumbled away the ensuing kickoff, giving the Bronchos possession at the Big Spring 15. Two plays later, Malcolm Hunt scored from two yards out to give Odessa a 21-14 lead.

On the next drive, Ryan Tannehill's pass to Scott Fankhauser was intercepted by Odessa's Michael Herrera, giving Odessa the ball at the Steers' 13. Hunt again did the scoring honors two plays later, this time from five yards out, giving the Bronchos a 28-14 lead with 5:21 left until intermission.

Big Spring stormed back, however, marching 81 yards in 11 plays. The key play of the drive was a 38-yard rainbow from Tannehill to Fankhauser that gave the Steers a first-and-goal at the Odessa 7. Three plays later, Tannehill connected with Giorgio Taylor from 5 yards out to cut the deficit to seven points heading into halftime.

Bulldogs dealt loss in hard-fought opener

By DAVID THOMAS

Special to the Herald

COAHOMA — Opening the season with a good fight proved not to be enough for Coahoma's Bulldogs, as they suffered a loss to Reagan County's Owls.

The Bulldogs took the opening kickoff and moved the ball to their own 48 yard-line before having to relinquish control of the ball.

And for much of the first half that was Coahoma's highlight, as the first two quarters proved to be a difficult battle for the Bulldogs, as the Owls' penetrating defense swarmed in for sacks and continually shut down the home team's attack.

Injuries plagued both teams with several players forced to leave the field. In the end, the Bulldogs received the brunt of the damage, especially when running back David Rodriguez suffered a dislocated elbow in the second quarter while taking the ball up and over several Owls defenders at the Reagan County 27.

Trailing 18-8 at the half, the Bulldogs began to rally and by the end of the third quarter, the Bulldogs had managed a couple of touchdown drives against the Owls' defense, trimming Reagan County's lead to 25-22.

Unfortunately the Owls continued to hold their ground and then sealed their victory in the final two minutes.

Despite the loss, Bulldogs head coach Ken Cates was pleased with his team's showing.

"I'm thrilled to death how we played to the end," Cates said. "We played hard, but a lot of early mistakes hurt us. We had some injuries, but the rest of the players picked it up and were pulling hard right to the end."

Cates said he was pleased with the play of quarterback Blaine Kerby, as well as that of fullback P.J. Daylong, who came in to replace teammates that had been injured and "picked up a lot of the slack."

"We need to improve on some of the fundamentals of tackling, but we still have a good team and we're definitely going to improve," Cates added. "We'll be back on the line Monday preparing to face Roscoe next Saturday in Sweetwater."

Owls head coach Glen Dunnam said he was just pleased to have survived with the win.

"It was a tough game — hard path and putting the Buffs up 14-6.

"That was a huge, huge play for us. They had a good drive going just pounding us with the running game," said Thompson. "That play swung the momentum in our favor and completely knocked the wind out of their sails."
Riding high from that exciting play, the Buffs forced a 3 and out and scored 3 plays later as Newcomb found pay dirt again, this time from 47 yards out.
Both teams had stalled drives before CB Mark McKiski intercepted a pass and gave Forsan possession at the Kermit 27 yard line midway through the 4th quarter.
The Buffs wasted no time as they handed the ball to Newcomb who followed his blocking 27 yards to the end zone to stretch the Forsan lead to 26-6 with just under seven minutes to play.
The Buffs defense forced Kermit into one more 3 and out and took control with 5:05 left to play and were able to run the clock out with two, big 4th down conversions on the final drive.
Coach Thompson praised his defensive line play from Derrick Colegrove, Blake Grantham and Brandon Morrow.

"Our defensive line help up very well," Thompson said. "We also had some great plays by (Cody) Frietag in the middle and some big time hits from Adam Bailey."
Thompson also gave his offensive line high marks as they handled a Kermit defensive line averaging 200 pounds across the board.
"The offensive line really stepped up tonight, really focusing on their assignments," the coach said. "Our running game hadn't been real strong in our scrimmages, but James Marlow and Grantham really anchored the line and helped open some holes."
Special teams also made an impact for the Buffs and Thompson said he was pleased with the kicking duties of Seth Johnson, who averaged 28 yards on 4 punts and hit 3 of 4 PATs.
The Buffaloes will have a short week next week. With the Monday holiday, they'll have one less day to get ready to take on Seagraves' Eagles, who they'll face on the road Friday at 7:30 pm.

"Coahoma was tough," Dunnam added. "They battled us, fought back in the second half."
"They definitely didn't quit," the Owls coach continued. "This was a tough win."

T.O. a hit in his Dallas debut; concern shifts to Vanderjagt

By JAIME ARON
AP Sports Writer

IRVING — Seeing Terrell Owens run full speed through several routes in a preseason game eased many of the Dallas Cowboys' concerns about his hamstring.

Good thing, too, because Mike Vanderjagt just gave them something else to worry about.

Vanderjagt missed kicks of 32 and 33 yards in overtime of the preseason finale Thursday night, leaving the Cowboys in a rare preseason tie, 10-10, with the Minnesota Vikings, and perhaps wondering what happened to the most accurate kicker in NFL history since they gave him millions this spring.

"Two point-blank field goals for the win and couldn't make those," a seething coach Bill Parcells said afterward.

While Owens was the higher-profile addition this offseason, Vanderjagt has been viewed by many as more important. His 87.5 percent career success rate was supposed to make him Mr. Reliable for Parcells, something the coach needed after seeing three kickers combine to cost Dallas a chance at three more wins last season.

But Vanderjagt has been fighting a groin problem most of the preseason. It limited him in practices, kept him out of two games and presumably was to blame for how bad he often looked when he did kick.

Parcells wasn't buying the injury as an excuse for the overtime misses, not after Vanderjagt hit a 22-yarder at the end of the first half, kicked off to start the second half and made an extra-point with 17 seconds left in the fourth quarter.

In fact, Parcells' desire to get Vanderjagt more work had to be the reason he violated the coaching code by not going for two to settle the meaningless game in regulation.

"He kicked all week and he looked fine to me in warm-ups," Parcells said. Vanderjagt didn't blame the groin or anything else.

"I don't have an answer," he said. "I missed two field goals I should have made. ... It was a bad day at the office. Now I have to figure out why."

Vanderjagt has said he's a slow starter every season. He wanted to break that habit this year, in part to make the Indianapolis Colts regret letting him go. That drive may have worked against him, leading to the early case of the shanks then the injury while trying to correct the flaw in his Mistakes again hurt the Steers in the third quarter, as two muffed punt snaps led to a safety and another Hunt touchdown run, giving Odessa a 36-21 lead with 17 minutes left in the game.

But, once again, the Steers just refused to die, climbing back into the contest late in the fourth.

Big Spring put together another lengthy scoring drive, marching 59 yards in 14 plays. Taylor again did the scoring honors, tallying on a reverse from a yard out with 3:30 remaining to bring the Steers within eight of the lead.

Fankhauser gave the Steers excellent field position for their final drive when he rushed in from the left side to block Travis Austin's punt attempt, setting Big Spring up at the OHS 41 with less than 2 minutes to play.

Chayson Holt gained 21 yards on a counter play to give Big Spring a first down on the Odessa 20, but the drive stalled there, and Tannehill's fourth-down pass to Brandon Ontiveros in the end zone fell incomplete, giving OHS the ball and the game.

"You've got to tip your hat to Big Spring," said first-year OHS Head Coach Ron King. "They did a whale of a job competing against us. I told the kids at halftime that this team was going to come back on us, and they did."

Holt wasn't about to claim a moral victory, but was proud of his team's resilience.

"This is going to be a good football team," he said. "They made some mistakes in the first half that made it a ball game ... but that'll happen sometimes."

"You've got to hand it to the kids," Holt added. "They had everything go wrong in this game, and they still had a chance to tie the game there at the end ... We just made too many mistakes to win."

The Steers return to action Friday when they host San Angelo Central at Memorial Stadium. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

Some players beg question: 'What was I thinking?'

By JOHN McFARLAND
Associated Press Writer

It's too early to tell if the Cowboys will regret acquiring Terrell Owens, but some fantasy players already are having second thoughts.

Sure, he'll rack up some big fantasy numbers, but only if his hamstring's better. And if his quarterback doesn't start hating him. And if he doesn't alienate his coaches. And if his team doesn't fire him. And so on.

Owens is the prime example of the player so talented you have to draft him, but who carries so many red flags that you just may end up uttering those four dreaded words: "What was I thinking?"

In fact, thanks to his volatile history and a pre-season spent riding a stationary bike and sleeping through team functions, Owens has been named to the first team of the 2006 Preseason What Was I Thinking Team.

While this team was only invented to provide warning signs of potential busts, the inexplicable fantasy flop is real. Every year a handful of stars tank on opening day and go on to sub-par seasons, and in hindsight there was usually good reason to steer clear of them.

How about Daunte Culpepper starting last year with three interceptions, two fumbles and zero touchdowns? Sure it was stunning, but at the same time he was playing without Randy Moss on his team for the first time in his career.

What about Jamal Lewis' big 48-yard opener last year? Kind of shocking then, but he also was coming off injury and playing in a bad offense. (Not to mention a little time behind bars.)

And don't forget Ahman Green's 58-yard debut in 2005. Surprising given his five 1,000-yard seasons before then, but in retrospect he was a high-mileage back on a bad, aging team.

Who will make you ask yourself what you were thinking this year? Of course it's impossible to say for certain, but it's always fun to take a wild guess.

So here are my top players who should be stars but who still make you worry just enough to make the 2006 Preseason What Was I Thinking Team:

FIRST TEAM

Carson Palmer, QB, Bengals. He's coming off a 32-touchdown season, is surrounded by weapons and looked like his same old self in his preseason debut. Then again, if his shredded knee twists or lands the wrong way just once you may find yourself starting Anthony Wright or worse.

Clinton Portis, RB, Redskins. He's logged three 1,500-yard seasons in four years and is in the same scheme Priest Holmes and Larry Johnson went nuts with in Kansas City. Then again, he may not return from his shoulder injury soon, may re-injure it or may lose coveted goal-line carries to human bowling ball T.J. Duckett.

Edgerrin James, RB, Cardinals. He's been a statistic machine his whole career, grinding out big yardage, getting the goal-line carries and catching a lot of passes. Then again, he's a long way from Indianapolis.

Preseason fantasy football rankings, with last year's statistics and comments:

QUARTERBACKS

1. Peyton Manning, Indianapolis: 3,747 yards, 28 TDs, 10 INTs. He's a no-brainer as the top quarterback and should be passing even more now that Edgerrin James is gone.
2. Carson Palmer, Cincinnati: 3,836 yards, 33 TDs (1 rushing), 12 INTs. Passed his first pre-season test with flying colors, though knee will be a concern all season long.
3. Tom Brady, New England: 4,116 yards, 27 TDs (1 rushing), 14 INTs. Less reliable running game means Brady should throw more. The way he spreads the ball around, it doesn't really matter that you've never heard of his receivers.
4. Jeff DeHaven, Carolina: 3,421 yards, 25 TDs (1 rushing), 16 INTs. Has thrown 53 touchdown passes the past two seasons. Keyshawn Johnson will help, but Steve Smith's injury woes starting to be a concern.
5. Donovan McNabb, Philadelphia: 2,507 yards, 17 TDs (1 rushing), 9 INTs. McNabb's slumped down, playing in an offense not terribly interested in running the ball and eager to show he's good about T.O. Addition of Donnie Stallworth will help.
6. Daunte Culpepper, Miami: 1,564 yards, 7 TDs (1 rushing), 12 INTs. It was easy enough to find open receivers with defenses focused on about Shaun Alexander. Free-agent Nate Burleson could make it even easier.
7. Eli Manning, NY Giants: 3,782 yards, 25 TDs (1 rushing), 17 INTs. Hard to tell which quarterback you'll get, the one who had 12 touchdowns and four interceptions in his first six games or the one who had four TDs and 10 interceptions his final six.
8. Marc Bulger, St. Louis: 2,297 yards, 14 TDs, 9 INTs. Maybe a little overrated, considering he's never played 16 games or had more than 22 touchdowns. But more balanced scheme could help.
9. Drew Bledsoe, Dallas: 3,639 yards, 25 TDs (2 rushing), 17 INTs. Cowboys might want to re-sign him on the free market. Still, the Dallas line and Bledsoe's traditional late-season nosedives are worrisome.
10. Steve McNair, Baltimore: 3,161 yards, 17 TDs (1 rushing), 11 INTs.
11. Michael Vick, Atlanta: 2,412 yards, 15 TDs, 13 INTs, 97 rushing, 6 TDs.
12. Kurt Warner, Arizona: 2,713 yards, 11 TDs, 9 INTs.
13. Ben Roethlisberger, Pittsburgh: 2,385 yards, 17 TDs, 9 INTs.
14. Brett Favre, Packers: 3,881 yards, 20 TDs, 29 INTs.
15. Chris Simms, Tampa Bay: 2,035 yards, 10 TDs, 7 INTs.
16. Aaron Brooks, Oakland: 2,882 yards, 13 TDs, 17 INTs.
17. Drew Brees, New Orleans: 3,576 yards, 25 TDs (1 rushing), 15 INT.
18. Jon Kitna, Detroit: 99 yards, 0 TDs, 2 INTs.

RUNNING BACKS

1. Shaun Alexander, Seattle: 1,880 yards rushing (5.1 per carry), 27 TDs, 78 carries, 10 TDs. Even without departed guard Steve Hutchinson, reigning MVP should continue freshen way with another 200+ scores.
2. Larry Johnson, Kansas City: 1,750 yards rushing (5.2 per carry), 20 TDs, 343 carries rushing. TD. Maybe even the top pick, but there are concerns about the Chiefs' line and loss of fullback Tony Richardson.
3. LaDainian Tomlinson, San Diego: 1,464 yards rushing (4.3 per carry), 18 TDs, 370 yards rushing. 2 TDs. Even if new QB Philip Rivers can't keep defenses honest, LT should benefit from more dump-off passes.
4. Tiki Barber, NY Giants: 1,860 yards rushing (5.2 per carry), 9 TDs, 530 yards rushing. 2 TDs. Whatever happened to all that "Tiki's too small" talk? I'll fall for it every year and rank him too low, even though he's averaged 1,500 yards and 13 scores the past two seasons.
5. Rudi Johnson, Cincinnati: 1,458 yards rushing (4.3 per carry), 12 TDs, 216 yards receiving. With Carson Palmer looking healed, straight-ahead runner should once again find plenty of big holes.
6. Clinton Portis, Washington: 1,516 yards rushing (4.3 per carry), 11 TDs, 216 yards receiving. TD. Pass. Even with the injury you have to take him high. Just grab Ladell Betts and/or T.J. Duckett to back him up until he returns.
7. Steven Jackson, St. Louis: 1,046 yards rushing (4.1 per carry), 8 TDs, 320 yards receiving. 2 TDs. He's got more touches now than the Rams will treat the run as more than a gimmick.
8. Carnell "Cadillac" Williams, Tampa Bay: 1,178 yards rushing (4.1 per carry), 6 TDs, 81 yards receiving. After going for 126 or more yards in his first three games, his slashing, punishing style wore him down a bit.
9. Ronnie Brown, Miami: 907 yards rushing (4.4 per carry), 4 TDs, 232 yards receiving. TD. With the Ricky Williams job share done and a real QB, his stats could double.
10. Edgerrin James, Arizona: 1,506 yards rushing (4.2 per carry), 13 TDs, 337 yards receiving. TD. It's only preseason, but that 3 yard on seven carries is a bit scary. Hate to rank him this low, but these are the Cardinals, not the Colts.
11. Willis McGahee, Buffalo: 1,247 yards rushing (3.8 per carry), 5 TDs, 178 yards receiving. He underwhelmed last year, in part because Buffalo didn't have a quarterback. Good thing Buffalo went out and got... oh, never mind.
12. LaMont Jordan, Oakland: 1,025 yards rushing (3.8 per carry), 9 TDs, 563 yards receiving. 2 TDs. He should continue to be the workhorse for offenses that hasn't looked so hot.
13. Willie Parker, Pittsburgh: 1,202 yards rushing. TD. This ranking might seem a bit high, but I just have a feeling this will be a big year for the perpetually injured Foster. Also get backup DeAngelo Williams, in case I'm way wrong.
14. Chester Taylor, Minnesota: 487 yards rushing. 0 TDs, 292 yards receiving. TD. He could be the perfect fit in the Vikings' conservative offense, with plenty of carries and receptions. Has been very stoppable in the preseason, though.
15. Reuben Droughns, Cleveland: 1,232 (4.0 per carry), 5 TDs, 369 yards receiving.
16. Kevin Jones, Detroit: 1,416 yards rushing (5.1 per carry), 3 TDs, 220 yards receiving. TD.
17. Julius Jones, Dallas: 993 yards rushing (3.9 per carry), 5 TDs, 218 yards receiving.
18. Reggie Bush, New Orleans: Rookie.
19. Brian Westbrook, Philadelphia: 617 yards rushing (4.0 per carry), 3 TDs, 616 yards receiving. 4 TDs.
20. Frank Gore, San Francisco: 608 yards rushing (4.8 per carry), 3 TDs, 143 yards receiving.
21. Jamar Lewis, Baltimore: 664 yards rushing (3.6 per carry), 5 TDs, 109 yards receiving.
22. Corey Dillon, New England: 733 (3.5 per carry), 12 TDs, 181 yards receiving. TD.
23. Mike Bell, Denver, Rookie.
24. Dennis Rhodes, Philadelphia: 255 yards rushing (3.3 per carry), 0 TDs, 147 yards receiving, 0 TDs.
25. Fred Taylor, Jacksonville: 787 yards rushing (4.1 per carry), 3 TDs.
26. Jamal Lewis, Baltimore: 906 yards rushing (3.4 per carry), 3 TDs, 191 yards receiving. TD.
27. Wali Luny, Houston, Rookie.
28. Thomas Jones, Chicago: 1,335 yards rushing (4.3 per carry), 9 TDs, 143 yards receiving.
29. Dominic Rhodes, Indianapolis: 118 yards rushing (3.0 per carry), 4 TDs.
30. Joseph Addai, Indianapolis: Rookie.
31. Laurence Maroney, New England: Rookie.
32. DeAngelo Williams, Carolina: Rookie.
33. Duane Carter, New Orleans: 395 yards rushing (3.6 per carry), 3 TDs.
34. Tatum Bell, Denver: 921 yards rushing (5.3 per carry), 8 TDs.
35. T.J. Duckett, Washington: 380 yards rushing (3.1 per carry), 8 TDs.
36. Jovan Blawie, NY Jets: 581 yards rushing (3.3 per carry), 3 TDs.
37. Kevin Barlow, NY Jets: 581 yards rushing (3.3 per carry), 3 TDs.
38. Chris Brown, Tennessee: 851 yards rushing (3.8 per carry), 5 TDs, 327 yards receiving, 2 TDs.
39. Mike Anderson, Baltimore: 1,014 yards rushing (4.2 per carry), 12 TDs, 212 yards receiving, 2 TDs.
40. Cedric Benson, Chicago: 272 yards rushing (4.1 per carry), 0 TDs.
41. Steve Smith, Carolina: 1,583 yards receiving, 13 TDs (1 rushing). Hamstring's maybe a little scary at this point, though the Panthers say he's fine. Stats could go up with the arrival of Keyshawn "Throw Steve The Dam! Bear" Johnson.
42. Torry Holt, St. Louis: 1,331 yards receiving, 9 TDs. He's a lock for 1,300 yards and 10 scores every year, and Scott Linehan's more balanced offense shouldn't change that.
43. Chad Johnson, Cincinnati: 1,432 yards receiving, 9 TDs. Value falls if Carson Palmer's knee doesn't hold up, but he should be fine regardless based on his preseason contribution to catch Anthony Wright's not-so-accurate passes.
44. Marvin Harrison, Indianapolis: 1,346 yards receiving, 12 TDs. Isn't this guy supposed to be old and smallish? He's gone seven straight years with at least 1,100 yards receiving and 10 touchdowns.
45. Reggie Wayne, Indianapolis: 1,055 yards receiving, 5 TDs. Numbers were down last year, but Colts could be passing more. And he's been a TD machine during the starters' brief preseason appearances.
46. Larry Fitzgerald, Arizona: 1,409 yards receiving, 10 TDs. Edgerrin James could eat up some of the 200 catches Fitzgerald and Boldin had last year, but he could also help them get open.
47. Anquan Boldin, Arizona: 1,402 yards receiving, 7 TDs. See above.
48. Randy Moss, Oakland: 1,005 yards receiving, 8 TDs. He's apparently healthy physically. Whether he can stay right mentally with the arrival of Aaron Brooks throwing to him is another story.
49. Chris Chambers, Miami: 1,118 yards receiving, 11 TDs, 93 rushing. He just might be a poor man's Randy Moss for Daunte Culpepper. Make even a middle-class man's Randy Moss.
50. Terrell Owens, Dallas: 783 yards receiving, 6 TDs. Dallas coach Bill Parcells forbids players to play on Sundays if they don't practice. In an apparently unrelated story, T.O.'s hamstring is feeling much better with the regular season just days away.
51. Plaxico Burres, NY Giants: 1,214 yards receiving, 7 TDs. He clicked with Eli Manning, and his numbers would be even better if Manning's aim were better.
52. Roy Williams, Detroit: 687 yards receiving, 6 TDs. Strange how the Lions only draft receivers, but Williams is the only decent one of the bunch. Jon Kitna should help, even with the double-coverage he'll see.
53. Hines Ward, Pittsburgh: 975 yards receiving, 11 TDs. The hamstring's a concern, especially since it flared up again once he returned in the preseason. But he should somehow get his numbers like he does every year.
54. Jason Walker, Denver: 27 yards receiving, 0 TDs. Walker appears to be recovered after missing almost all of last year. In his last full season in Green Bay, in 2004, he had 1,382 yards and 12 touchdowns.
55. Santana Moss, Washington: 1,483 yards receiving, 9 TDs. Big numbers, but he ended the year with only one 100-yard game in his last 10 regular-season games. And Mark Brunell has never put together two straight 20-TD seasons.
56. Derrick Mason, Baltimore: 1,073, 3 TDs.
57. Donald Driver, Green Bay: 1,321 yards receiving, 5 TDs.
58. Darrell Jackson, Seattle: 482 yards receiving, 3 TDs.
59. Andre Johnson, Houston: 686 yards receiving, 2 TDs.
60. Joey Galloway, Tampa Bay: 1,287 yards receiving, 10 TDs.
61. Lee Evans, Buffalo: 743 yards receiving, 7 TDs.
62. Joe Horn, New Orleans: 684 yards receiving, 1 TD.
63. Tony Glenn, Dallas: 1,136 yards receiving, 7 TDs.
64. Matt Jones, Jacksonville: 432 yards receiving, 5 TDs.
65. Antonio Bryant, San Francisco: 1,009 yards receiving, 4 TDs.
66. Brayton Edwards, Cleveland: 512 yards receiving, 5 TDs.
67. T.J. Houchmandzadeh, Cincinnati: 966 yards receiving, 8 TDs (1 rushing).
68. Donnie Stallworth, Philadelphia: 945 yards receiving, 7 TDs.
69. Keyshawn Johnson, Carolina: 839 yards receiving, 6 TDs.
70. Michael Clayton, Tampa Bay: 372 yards receiving, 0 TDs.
71. Laveranues Coles, NY Jets: 846 yards receiving, 5 TDs.
72. Antwan Tomer, NY Giants: 684 yards receiving, 7 TDs.
73. Reggie Brown, Philadelphia: 571 yards receiving, 4 TDs.
74. Nate Burleson, Seattle: 328 yards receiving, 1 TD.
75. Joe Jurekovic, Cleveland: 694 yards receiving, 10 TDs.
76. Rod Smith, Denver: 1,106 yards receiving, 6 TDs.
77. Isaac Bruce, St. Louis: 625 yards receiving, 3 TDs. Another senior citizen, but he's just two years removed from a 1,292-yard season.
78. Marty Booker, Miami: 686 yards receiving, 3 TDs. Culpepper and extra coverage for Chambers should spell improved numbers.
79. Drew Bennett, Tennessee: 736 yards receiving, 4 TDs. His 1,200-yard season of two years ago sure looks like a fluke now, but he has great chemistry with Billy Volek.
80. Delon Branch, New England: 998 yards receiving, 5 TDs. Snag him if he's still around in this late, as he'll either and his holdout or land with another team. (Move him way up the list if the Pats reach a deal with him.)
81. Reggie Calverly, New England: 352 yards receiving, TD. He may be the only New England receiver you'd recognize, although because he's not a tight end and Tom Brady may not throw to him very often.
82. Mark Clayton, Baltimore: 473 yards receiving, 2 TDs. He was polished as a rookie last year and now has the benefit of a quarterback. But Mason and Todd Heap may hog the catches.
83. Jerry Porter, Oakland: 942 yards receiving, 5 TDs. He's disgruntled and down on the depth chart, so take him low.

Terrell Owens, WR, Cowboys. In the five seasons before the Eagles fired him last year, he went over 1,000 yards and averaged 13 touchdowns. Then again, he's been hurt, has hardly practiced in his first non-West Coast offense and has a special gift for agitating those around him.

Steve Smith, WR, Panthers. Yes, I know it's blasphemous and maybe not too smart to question everyone's top-ranked receiver. But you do have to worry about the hammy and toe problems, considering he does have an injury history.

SECOND TEAM

Daunte Culpepper, QB, Miami. He's got a cannon for an arm and accounted for 98 touchdowns the three seasons before he got hurt last year. Then again, he tore three knee ligaments, won't be the running threat he once was and won't have the luxury of picking apart defenses triple-teaming Randy Moss.

Willis McGahee, RB, Bills. Overall his numbers the past two years are impressive, and he's looked great in the pre-season. Then again, he didn't have a rushing TD in nine of his last 10 games in 2005 and defenses will collapse on him until a QB makes them stay honest.

Chester Taylor, RB, Vikings. He's the center of the Vikings offense, and some have even called him "Little Priest" because like Holmes he became a starter after years as a Ravens backup. Then again, it'd be nice to see him surpass 2.8 yards a carry in the pre-season.

Joey Galloway, WR, Buccaneers. He was huge last year, with nearly 1,300 yards and 10 scores. Then again, he was mediocre or worse the six years before that. And he'll be 35 this year.

Darrell Jackson, WR, Seahawks. A lot of people remember him going over 1,000 yards three of the four seasons before missing most of last year. Then again, we haven't seen him this pre-season and he leads a receiving corps once infamous for dropping the ball.

HONORABLE MENTION

Eli Manning, QB, Giants. Tons of upside, but sometimes struggles to find the broad side of a barn.

Tiki Barber, RB, Giants; Warrick Dunn, RB, Falcons (tie). Tiny 31-year-olds have no business putting up the stats these guys do.

Reggie Bush, RB, Saints. What if Deuce McAllister still has something left? What if Bush isn't so outlandishly fast against Hines Ward, WR, Steelers. He's got the bad hamstring, and he also has the odds-defying streak of five straight good receiving years in a run-first offense.

Javon Walker, WR, Broncos. A lot of people see him as this year's Steve Smith, but is he truly back from injury? To repeat the disclaimer, these players will more than likely be stars.

The odds are, though, that in just a few short days at least a few will make you ask the dreaded question.

Indians extend win streak to four at Rangers' expense

By The Associated Press

In the end, it turned out to be a good night for the Cleveland Indians.

They stretched their winning streak to four games, and then they got some good news from the trainer's room when they learned that slugger Travis Hafner didn't break his right hand, as had been feared.

Grady Sizemore went 3-for-3 with a homer and Jake Westbrook pitched seven strong innings to help the Indians beat the Texas Rangers 7-2 on Friday night.

The Indians got a scare in the eighth inning when Hafner left the game after he was hit on the hand by a pitch from Rangers left-hander C.J. Wilson.

X-rays were negative and Hafner is listed as day to day.

"We'll see how he feels tomorrow," Cleveland manager Eric Wedge said. "We were all worried that it might be broken. He was pretty upset."

Hafner had an ugly bruise on the back of his hand after getting plunked with the bases-loaded pitch. Hafner left the clubhouse without talking to reporters.

It was Hafner's 110th RBI of the season as a designated hitter, breaking the club record of 109 at that position set by Andre Thornton in 1982.

Hafner has club-high totals of 117 RBIs and 42 homers.

The Indians know they'd be in trouble without Hafner.

"You hate to say you have to rely on one guy but he's been an anchor in this lineup," Sizemore said. "He's a guy who comes through in the clutch."

In addition to his 21st homer, Sizemore added two doubles, walked twice and drove in two runs for Cleveland, which has won eight of nine.

In other AL games, it was: Boston 2, Toronto 1; Detroit 9, Los Angeles 0; Tampa Bay 2, Seattle 1; Kansas City 7, Chicago 5; New York 8, Minnesota 1; and Oakland 5, Baltimore 4.

In the National League, it was: New York 8, Houston 7; Los Angeles 6, Colorado 3; Cincinnati 6,

San Diego 2; St. Louis 3, Pittsburgh 1; Florida 3, Milwaukee 2; and Chicago 6, San Francisco 2. Arizona against Washington and Atlanta at Philadelphia were both rained out by remnants of Tropical Storm Ernesto.

The Indians have been out of the AL Central and AL wild-card races for months, but the recent surge is a positive sign for the future.

"It's not an easy road to get into the playoffs," Sizemore said. "We definitely had the talent. It's an opportunity missed. We have to build for next year."

Westbrook (12-8) won his third straight start, giving up two runs and seven hits. He struck out six and walked two to help the Indians pull within five games of .500 (64-69) for the first time since July 7.

The Indians had eight baserunners in the first two innings against Vicente Padilla (13-9) as Cleveland provided Westbrook with a 4-1 lead.

Padilla threw 112 pitches in 5 1-3 innings, allowing six runs and eight hits. He struck out five and walked three.

"(Padilla) came back to give us five-plus innings," Rangers manager Buck Showalter said. "He takes the ball every fifth day and has a chance to win 15, 16 games. What's not to like?"

Ian Kinsler homered for Texas, which has lost seven of 11.

The Indians put five runners on base in the first inning and took a 3-0 lead on RBI singles by Victor Martinez, Ryan Garko and Jhonny Peralta.

Texas countered with a first-inning run on Carlos Lee's RBI single but the Rangers left the bases loaded when Kinsler took a called third strike from Westbrook.

Westbrook had his sinker working as Texas had 13 groundball outs in the seven innings.

"The last time I pitched against them in April, they were real aggressive," Westbrook said. "So I thought I had to mix it up a little more this time. After the first inning, I went back to my sinker. I was able to get them to hit the ball on the ground."

Cleveland stretched its lead to 4-1 in the second on Sizemore's homer, but Kinsler's 10th homer in the fourth pulled Texas within 4-2.

Andy Marte's RBI double in the sixth knocked out Padilla, and Sizemore greeted Ron Mahay with a run-scoring double.

Mets 8, Astros 7

Tom Glavine pitched for the first time in a few weeks after being sidelined by a blood clot in his pitching shoulder. He didn't get the win, but he was pleased with the outing.

"Right now my goals are simple, I just want to feel good and come out of the game feeling good and that happened tonight so that's good," said Glavine, who remained at 287 career wins.

Glavine threw 93 pitches, 52 for strikes and allowed seven hits and six runs while striking out five. It was his first start since he yielded three runs over seven innings in a loss at Philadelphia on Aug. 16.

The NL East-leading Mets should be encouraged by the 40-year-old two-time Cy Young winner's return to the mound as they gear up for the playoffs, even if it was less than stellar.

He said he hasn't felt the coldness in his left ring finger that led to his absence in almost a week.

"I'm very excited about Glavine tonight," manager Willie Randolph said. "I said before the game, win or lose, it will be good just to see him out there healthy."

The game was tied at 6 when Jose Valentin's hit to the corner in left off Russ Springer (1-1) scored David Wright, who had three RBIs. Endy Chavez followed with an RBI single to extend the lead.

The loss ended a season-high six-game winning streak for the Astros, who are looking to make a push for the playoffs.

Guillermo Mota (1-0) got the win for the Mets and Billy Wagner pitched the ninth for his 33rd save in 38 chances. He gave up an RBI single to Craig Biggio.

DALLAS

stroke.

But Vanderjagt remains confident, pointing out that he was 1-for-3 in the 2003 preseason, then made all 37 of his kicks in the regular season.

"I've shown I have the ability to turn it up when it counts," he said.

The Cowboys already have given Vanderjagt a

$2.5 million bonus as part of a three-year, $5.4 million contract. Now they're likely to invest a roster spot in a backup, Shaun Suisham, who can handle kickoffs and, if necessary, field goals, which was something Parcels really wanted to avoid.

The bigger concern that's starting to build is whether Vanderjagt lost his touch.

He ended last season by horribly shanking a 46-yard field goal that would've sent a playoff game into overtime for Indianapolis. Add his makes and misses over two preseason games in Dallas and he's in a 2-for-5 rut, botching the three most important kicks.

Could he still be rattled by that playoff miss?

"I don't buy into that for one second," Vanderjagt said.

It's got to be something, though, and callers to sports-talk radio shows in Dallas spent most of Friday trying to figure it out. After all the antacid tablets chewed by Cowboys fans because of kickers last season, it's understandable why they have little tolerance for a guy once labeled an "idiot kicker" by former teammate Peyton Manning.

Imagine that: A kicker dividing folks, not T.O.

There's no telling whether Owens was jealous or happy to be out of the line of fire. Yet it's safe to say he and everyone else in the organization were relieved that he got in 19 preseason snaps, plus his first appearance in Texas Stadium as a member of the home team.

Owens got a standing ovation when he entered, with fans staying on their feet in anticipation of his first catch. It came on his second series, a 6-yard gain on a sideline route from Tony Romo. Romo threw wide of Owens in the end zone later that drive, saving his first touchdown — and TD celebration — for a game that counts.

"I know the reason I'm here is to help catapult this team into the playoffs and obviously the Super Bowl," Owens said. "Everyone wants to see 8-1 on the field. I want to be on the field. It's unfortunate I got hurt during training camp. Right now I am feeling good. I just have keep up with the rehab, and I'll get better."

LEGENDARY Southern-Style BARBECUE

Adds Spark to End-of-Season
Cookouts

FAMILY FEATURES

“Barbecue” is a word that, when uttered, makes mouths water and keeps folks tending pits and grills for hours at a time. But with little time left for optimal outdoor cooking this season, how do you turn up the heat and ensure your next barbecue is the best of the bunch?

Although the “world’s best” barbecue is perhaps the most feuded-over food claim, it’s hard not to think of the South in connection with best-of-class barbecue.

Southern barbecue, with its time-burnished, rich tradition of cooking meat slowly over a wood fire, offers a distinctive style and unique flavor. Great pitmen come from the South, and many great barbecue showdowns take place in the South, like the Jack Daniel’s® World Championship Invitational Barbecue Contest held annually in Lynchburg, Tennessee. And while the definition of “best barbecue” varies from region to region, there are a few standard Southern barbecue traditions that hold true throughout the entire Southern barbecue belt and beyond.

For one, barbecue in the South usually means pork, but there are a few exceptions; beef is most often the meat of choice for Texas barbecue, and mutton is used in parts of Kentucky.

Another sticking point for Southern barbecue is the sauce. Most would agree that bathing your barbecue with a perfectly seasoned, balanced sauce makes the difference between ho-hum and sublime.

Many sauces contain ingredients such as molasses, brown sugar, tomato paste, Worcestershire sauce, cider vinegar, black pepper, onion, celery, garlic, mustard, cayenne pepper, vegetable oil and salt, with some variations. And while there are some true Southerners that would take issue with any barbecue sauce that’s simply not their own, there are a few bottled sauces that can make your celebration simpler while still holding true to Southern barbecue traditions.

Jack Daniel’s® Barbecue Sauce, for example, is a welcomed Southern guest at any barbecue just burning to make a good impression. Whether it’s the sweet and spicy flavor of Original No. 7 or the genuine wood-smoked flavorings of Tennessee Hickory, Jack Daniel’s Barbecue Sauce offers the flavor of the famous Jack Daniel’s Whiskey with just the right amount of Southern hospitality to please everyone.

Yet another long-standing tradition at Southern barbecues are the sides and accompaniments. Some of the most popular items used to complement a traditional barbecue meal include old standards such as cole slaw, baked beans and hush puppies. However, modern-day Southern cooks are more willing to welcome a wider array of accompaniments, including something as delightful as bacon-wrapped barbecued shrimp.

So, light the grill, hum a few bars of the “Tennessee Waltz” and get ready to go out of the season in style — Southern barbecue style, that is. Try these tempting recipes or visit www.JackDanielsSauces.com for ideas on how to inspire your own barbecue specialty. Let’s get to eatin’!

Bacon-Wrapped Barbecued Shrimp

- 1-1/2 cups Jack Daniel’s® Barbecue Sauce
- 1 tablespoon garlic powder
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 pound peeled and deveined shrimp
- 1/2 pound pepper bacon (or preferred bacon)

Cut bacon slices in half. Cook bacon partially (should not be crisp). Prepare grill.

Combine barbecue sauce, garlic powder and lemon juice; pour half of mixture into separate bowl for use later. Dip shrimp into remaining sauce to thoroughly coat. Wrap each piece of shrimp with 1/2 piece of bacon. Place on skewer (leave small space between pieces). Brush grill with vegetable oil, place skewers on hot grill and baste with remaining sauce. Grill approximately 4 to 6 minutes.

Makes 4 servings

Southern-Style Cole Slaw

- 1/4 cup Heinz Apple Cider Vinegar
- 2 tablespoons dark brown sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon celery seed
- 1/2 teaspoon ground turmeric
- 1/4 teaspoon ground ginger
- Pinch of ground allspice
- 3 ounces red onion, finely diced
- 6 ounces green cabbage, coarsely chopped
- 4 ounces cucumbers, peeled and seeded, coarsely chopped
- 3 ounces red pepper, coarsely chopped
- 2 ounces green pepper, coarsely chopped
- 3 tablespoons olive oil

In medium saucepan, bring vinegar, brown sugar, celery seed, turmeric, ginger and allspice to simmer on medium heat.

Stir in onion, remove from heat and allow to stand 5 minutes to cool. Meanwhile, toss cabbage, cucumbers and peppers in mixing bowl. In another bowl, whisk olive oil into cooled vinaigrette mixture.

Pour mixture over vegetables and toss to coat. Season with salt and pepper to taste.

Makes 4 servings

Country-Style Ribs

- 1-1/2 cups Jack Daniel’s® Honey Smokehouse Barbecue Sauce, divided
- 1-1/2 cups Jack Daniel’s Hickory Brown Sugar Barbecue Sauce
- 3 pounds country ribs (boneless pork)
- 1/2 cup water
- 1/4 cup soy sauce
- 1/4 cup honey

Set aside 1/2 cup Honey Smokehouse barbecue sauce to use on cooked ribs.

Place ribs in 4-quart saucepot. Combine remaining ingredients and pour over ribs. Cover and simmer 1 hour or until tender. While cooking, prepare grill.

Remove ribs from sauce and discard liquid. Grill 15 minutes or until browned. Brush on reserved sauce to finish ribs.

Makes 4 servings

Backyard Brawl Baked Beans

- 4 slices thick-sliced bacon, chopped
- 2 cups chopped onion
- 1/2 green pepper, chopped
- 2 garlic cloves, chopped
- 2 (16-ounce) cans Heinz Vegetarian Beans, drained and rinsed
- 1/3 cup molasses
- 1/2 cup Jack Daniel’s® Spicy Original Recipe Barbecue Sauce
- 1/4 cup packed brown sugar
- 1 tablespoon Lea & Perrins Worcestershire Sauce
- 1 teaspoon dark brown mustard
- 1 tablespoon dry mustard
- 1 tablespoon Heinz Apple Cider Vinegar
- 1/4 tablespoon Liquid Smoke, or to taste
- Salt and freshly ground black pepper

In heavy pot, cook bacon over medium heat to render fat. Add onion, green pepper and garlic, and cook until vegetables are soft, about 5 minutes.

Stir in beans, molasses, barbecue sauce, brown sugar, Worcestershire sauce, brown mustard, dry mustard, cider vinegar and liquid smoke. Simmer, uncovered, until rich and thickly flavored, 10 to 15 minutes, stirring with wooden spoon. Season to taste with salt and pepper.

Note: May also place beans in baking dish and bake in preheated 350°F oven about 30 minutes.

The bidding:

Opening lead — four of spades.
Selecting the best opening lead on a hand can often be a very frustrating exercise. Probably more games, slams and part-scores are won or lost as the consequence of an opening lead than because of any other factor. The chief reason for this is that it's much easier to defend perfectly when you see 26 cards rather than only 13.
Consider this deal from the 1981 World Team Championship match between Pakistan and the United States. At the first table, the Pakistani North got to four diamonds as shown and made the contract for a score of +130 when the U.S. East led a spade instead of a heart. (West's two-diamond opening had conventionally indicated a minimum hand containing five hearts and four spades.) The bidding was much more spirited when the same hand was played at the second table. With Jeff Meckstroth and Eric Rodwell sitting North-South for the U.S., the bidding mysteriously went:

West North East South
1♥ 3♥ Dble 3 NT
Pass Pass Dble Pass
Pass Redble
The unusual three-heart bid by Meckstroth was also conventional, showing a long, solid minor suit and inviting partner to bid three notrump if he had a heart stopper. Rodwell dutifully bid 'three notrump, which was in turn doubled and redoubled, and the outcome now depended on the opening lead.
In practice, West chose a spade lead, and declarer quickly ran off nine tricks to score 750 points. But if West had elected to lead a club, three notrump redoubled would have gone down six — 2,200 points — and North-South (instead of East-West) would have wound up grasping their teeth.

Alberto's reopens in familiar spot, set to serve Big Spring area again

By ANDREA MEDLIN

Special to the Herald

The long wait is finally over. Alberto's Crystal Cafe has reopened its doors and, in a sense, come home to its original site — 300 N. Gregg.

Owner Sally Rodriguez had to close the restaurant's downtown location several weeks ago due to a natural gas leak. The opportunity was taken to downsize and move to the family's other restaurant, Alberto's No. 2, which had been closed since 2000.

The smaller restaurant sits next door to where the Rodriguez family had their first establishment and what is now the parking lot of the Spanish Inn.

The smaller restaurant will mean more personal service and, according to daughter Debbie, will help mom out, too.

"The Gregg Street location is smaller and will be easier for mom to operate," Debbie said.

Much to the dismay of the family, Sally has no plans to retire.

"I can't just sit and twiddle my thumbs," she explained. "And I'm not interested in traveling."

One thing the family will be doing is working to have a historical marker erected at the site of the original store at 120 E. Second.

The move to Gregg Street won't change the menu, with Mexican dishes being the main fare. The restaurant will serve fajitas, enchiladas, tacos, chile rellenos, burritos as well as American food.

Sally welcomes the new challenge and happily anticipates many more years cooking for her customers.

"Although Big Spring has lost a lot of its population I'm still proud of it and it has done a lot of good for me, not only as a business person, but as one who has progressed here," she said. "Besides, every day is different. You never have the same day every day."

Restaurant hours are 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. and 5 p.m. to 8:30 p.m., Tuesday through Friday and 11 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. Saturday.

A grand opening will be held from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Sept. 12 and continue from 5 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Cake and punch will be served and the public is welcome.

Special to the Herald

Martin County and Glasscock County 4-H are making preparations for participation in the 31st Annual Permian Basin Fair & Exposition on the grounds of the Ector County Coliseum.

Fair dates are Sept. 8-16. This year's theme is "Come 'N Get It — the excitement of the 2006 Permian Basin Fair."

Lee Howard of the Martin County Extension Office anticipates at least eight students from the Grady and Stanton school districts will show their steers and goats. Rebell Royall of the Glasscock County Extension Office anticipates at least the same number of students from Garden City ISD.

Steers and heifers will be on display in Building "D" on the first weekend of the fair and market goats will be in Building "E."

Judging of the steers and heifers will take place Sunday, Sept. 10, beginning at 8:30 a.m. in the Outback Arena. The goat show will be held in the show ring in Building E at the same time

Classification Conference set

A Texas Steer Classification Conference is scheduled Sept. 13 at the Heart O' Texas Fair Complex in Waco.

The conference will give Extension county agents, agricultural science teachers, breed associations and other industry personnel updated guidelines for each of the 15 breeds recognized at state shows, organizers said.

The updated guidelines will be developed prior to the conference during a closed workshop session Sept. 12.

"We're encouraging anyone interested in learning more about the guidelines set during our workshop to attend the conference and learn more about classifying," said Dr. Jim Mazurkiewicz, state coordinator for the Texas Show Steer Industry and director of the Texas Agricultural Lifetime Leadership program.

"We intend to have live cattle for demonstration and will video the educational activity. Our goal is to provide each Extension county office and ag science classroom with a copy of the video for teaching purposes."

The morning session will include an introduction of the workshop contributors, followed by breed guideline and photo presentations. The afternoon session will feature live cattle demonstrations.

Fifteen cattle breed associations and all major Texas livestock shows are supporting the updated classification effort, Mazurkiewicz said.

For more information, call (979) 845-1554.

Tommy Yeater is the Cooperative Extension agent, agriculture, for Howard County. His office is in the bottom floor of the Howard County Courthouse. He can be reached at 264-2236.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

BY HOLIDAY MATHIS

The opposition of Mercury and Uranus is the kind of astral alignment that would, in more romantic days, inspire men to dual one another. These days, it could merely inspire a lively and enlightening argument. The moon in Capricorn only makes our reasoning stronger — emotions needn't be worn on sleeves to be strongly felt.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). There's more than one special person in your world. You're sharing your life with a wide variety of chosen friends, colleagues, loved ones and acquaintances who all seem willing to fight for your attention now.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Your own stern sense of responsibility comes on strong. It feels like you're the only one with a 12 a.m. curfew, while your friends are free to roam until dawn. Take heart — all the fun happens before midnight, anyway!

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). If you're not getting what you need out of someone, you're tempted to believe you're in a mediocre match-up. Not necessarily true! Be more specific about what you want. Others do all they can to deliver.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Changes are coming. So what about that room in your heart you've been meaning to redecorate? Get it ready so a new person can move in. (The "new person" in question is a fabulous future version of you.)

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Being too permissive of others could set up a dynamic you won't want to sustain. Instead of telling someone to "help yourself," it's better to load up his or her metaphorical plate with the appropriate serving.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Spiritual people are all around you — the ones who forgive and forget, who minimize the flaws and maximize the attributes and potential they see in others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Somehow you find a way to be judicious, weighing all of the options, without being judgmental — that is to say, condemning what you don't believe in. Your warmth is help to the helpless.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Must people serve a purpose in your life in order to warrant your love? Of course not, but you do seem to find more time and attention for the ones who give back in a significant way.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Usually, you rebel against logical life by embarking on a Sunday adventure. But things have been so surprising, hectic and illogical lately that the best way to rebel may be to stay home and do very little!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Listening to a new kind of music or doing someone else's job can be just as mind-expanding as an excursion out of town, as long as the activity is taken on in the spirit of enthusiasm and willingness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). If you need an excuse to splurge, you find it. Maybe friends and family don't totally approve, but they're not in your shoes. The stars also point you toward a romantic reconciliation.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). A limitation is lifted. It feels like you just quit your diet, removed your belt and sidled up to an all-you-can-eat buffet. Somehow, the thing you wanted to do is slightly less enticing now that it's far gone.

FORECAST FOR THE WEEK AHEAD: Pluto, being so far from the center of our solar system, is like a distant relative who deeply appreciates e-mails, letters and home videos of what the folks back home are doing. This week, it's Pluto who sends news to us. The message is, "I have gone direct." In other words, after five months of being perceived from our point of view as traveling backward, the madness ends. It's all about flying straight now. The affect is felt profoundly, but at unexpected times. Pluto represents what can't be explained. It's that awesome power that's difficult to harness since its arrival seems beyond our control. Pluto likes to assert its presence in the manner of Superman swooping down to hold a bridge together to save the passengers on a bus who find themselves in the heart of a calamity. This week, the calamities and bridges of your personal life, though important to you, are small in the scheme of things. A phone call not returned, a mishap on the job or something ruined in the dryer doesn't exactly fall under Pluto's realm of interest. Even so, such situations may inspire you to call on your higher self. In a sort of planetary "legal loophole," calling on your higher self is definitely in Pluto's dominion. You're powerful when you do so often!

City ban urged on baggy pants

By JAMIE STENGLE

Associated Press Writer

DALLAS — A Dallas man has had it with baggy pants that overexpose, so he wants the City Council to look into a ban on wearing the oversized trousers that often slip so low as to show underwear.

Ron Price, a Dallas school board member, has asked the City Council to look at strengthening the law to give citations to those who expose their underwear.

"I think it's disrespectful, it's dishonorable and it's disgusting," said Price, who made the recommendation last week to the City Council. "I have no problem with the top of your Hanes label being shown. My problem is when grown men walk about the city with pants below their buttocks."

Council members have asked the city attorney to look into the issue. City Attorney Tom Perkins said this week he's investigating the legalities and will report back to the council.

But experts say that such a law might not hold up, so to speak.

It would be too vague, said Robert Jarvis, constitutional law professor at Nova Southeastern University in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. He said that for a criminal law to be constitutional, a person of average intelligence must know what's being prohibited.

"Who's to say how baggy pants can be before they're 'baggy pants,'" he said. "There's just no way to regulate these things."

Some Dallas City Council members are raising concerns about police attention being diverted to fashion instead of crime.

"It doesn't make a lot of sense to me that we are discussing banning baggy pants — we have important crime and public safety issues to be concerned with," said council member Angela Hunt.

"My problem is when grown men walk about the city with pants below their buttocks."

Council member Gary Griffith said he does not favor "taking policemen and women off patrol to track down and chase young people on how they're dressing. That's not the right use of our police force."

Such proposals haven't made it too far in recent years. In Virginia, the Senate dropped a bill last year the would have fined those with pants so low their underwear was exposed. A similar bill from a Louisiana state representative failed to pass in 2004. And such proposals haven't fared well at the city level either.

"This is one of those areas where the legal battles have been fought, and we know what the answer is," Jarvis said.

Lisa Graybill, legal director ACLU of Texas, called such a ban a "distraction."

"It's certainly difficult for me to imagine that it would stand up," she said.

Price said the underwear issue came up after he took some elderly women to dinner and a group of men walked by with their pants so low their underwear was on display.

"I just feel that it's so disrespectful to our senior citizens, especially to women..." he said.

He said that in the Dallas school district, most schools require students to wear uniforms and students also must wear belts and tuck in their shirts.

"In the city it's a different deal," he said. "I'm asking the city to do something about it. If the city decides law enforcement, so be it."

School districts have a fairly wide discretion to set dress codes, said Naomi Gittins, staff attorney at the National School Boards Association.

For school districts, a dress code rule must be somehow related to the education mission. For instance, a district could show that in their area baggy pants are associated with gang membership and ban such apparel, she said.

Baggy, drooping pants got their fashion start with hip hop music, and then mainstream designers started producing them, said Mary Ruppert, assistant professor of fashion at Stephens College in Columbia, Mo.

A recent trip to a North Dallas mall showed lots of super baggy pants, but they were paired with long T-shirts so no underwear was evident.

Trip Dalrymple, 18, of Dallas, wore extremely loose pants, but his shirt was also very long. He said that if someone's look includes showing their underwear, it's just a matter of style, not something that should be banned.

Besides, he said, he wouldn't want to get fined if his pants slipped.

Kendall Beck, 26, of Dallas, was wearing low pants, but his shirt was also long and tucked in. He said that he agreed with the proposal that people should be fined for showing their underwear.

"You've got to be presentable," he said. Besides, showing underwear with super baggy pants is a look that's "played out," he said.

Ruppert, for one, agrees.

She said the current fashion pendulum is swinging heavily in another direction this fall: super skinny pants for both men and women.

Williams set to 'pimp' on HBO

How can you review a performance by a stand-up comic when about 99 percent of what the man says isn't suitable for publication?

That's the question I was faced with as I sat down to review "The Pimp Chronicles Part 1," the new HBO special shot in Atlanta, Ga., from actor and comedian Katt Williams, set to air Sept. 16.

When the DVD copy of the performance crossed my desk, I didn't really think much of it. From time to time, promotion companies will send me CDs and DVDs in hopes I'll review them, but for the most part, only a few of them meet the rather weak criteria I have before I'll pop something into my player.

So imagine my surprise when I sit down to watch the performance at 2 a.m. — there's no way I'm going to let my 6-year-old daughter watch anything with the word pimp in the title — and get a blast from the past.

Katt Williams co-starred in "Friday After Next," an installment in the Ice Cube driven movie series that gave Chris Tucker one of his biggest breaks, as the pimp-oliscious player Money Mike.

Surely one of the funniest on-screen characters I've ever seen, I can remember watching that film and saying to myself, "That guy is going to hit it big."

I may very well have been right.

Williams, who makes his way onto the stage wearing a fur coat twice the size of his 5'5" tall frame and a LA-style cowboy hat, not to mention accompanied by a slew of beautiful women, is the personification of the stereotypical pimp in this special.

Complete with permed hair and a healthy swagger, Williams' special features appearances from Hip Hop icons like Snoop Dog, Lil Jon and Andre 3000, not to mention some help from fellow comedian and actor Anthony Anderson ("Exit Wound," "Scary Movie 4").

Not that Katt needs any help. The man is a comedic wonder.

And much like one of his biggest influences — the late, great Richard Pryor — Williams tells the audience up front they had better be ready to laugh at themselves and others or it's going to be a long night.

"All of those comics delivery is based on physicality or a high thought process," said Williams. "I want to make sure that what I'm talking about is smart, not just delivered in a stupid fashion. That's the goal."

Williams certainly succeeds, bring some rather poignant ideas concerning the war in Iraq to the stage.

form look like? Don't worry, I'll wait," Williams tells the audience during his special. "You don't know what it looks like 'cause you haven't seen one! We're killin' people in sweat pants, sandals and cowboy hats!"

As for his "pimp persona," Williams isn't the least bit shy to share his take on the recent success he's enjoyed.

"People always ask me 'You Pimpin'?' Then where are your hoes?" Dude, I'm a millionaire," said Williams. "I'm not pimping hoes, I'm pimping scenarios! It's pimping none the less. 890,000 ring tones at 70 cents a piece. You think that ain't pimping? Do the math!"

In addition to his work as a comedian and Hollywood actor, Williams has made numerous appearances on Nick Cannon's runaway MTV success, "Wildin' Out."

"It's been excellent. Outside of the ratings, everybody knows its one of the highest rating shows MTV has had," said Williams in a recent interview. "Aside from that, its an opportu-

For 'Invincible,' Mark Wahlberg didn't have to stretch it much

By DANIEL FIENBERG

Zap2it.com

Mark Wahlberg didn't have to stretch to play Everyman-turned-NFL player Vince Papale in Disney's new sports drama "Invincible."

Before he was a B-list rapper and later an A-list actor, Wahlberg had his own well-documented struggles, dropping out of school, spending time in prison, getting down with the Funky Bunch. Those experiences prepared him to embody Papale, who went from the unemployment line to the Philadelphia Eagles in 1976 thanks to an open tryout and a lot of determination.

"South Philly and Dorchester are not much different except that maybe except for row houses you have triple-deckers," Wahlberg reflects. "And instead of maybe a Fenway Frank you have a cheesesteak. It's very similar, blue collar, hard-working, regular types of guys."

Since Wahlberg's Patriots don't share an NFL division with Papale's Eagles, the actor didn't have to feel guilty about slipping on the green-and-white football duds. Plus, he had history on his s

"We had just beaten them in the Super Bowl the year before, so it wasn't a big deal," Wahlberg laughs. "But I did become an Eagles fan and really the reason behind that was because they are so loyal, so passionate about their team. And that's who Vince Papale was. He was a fan of the Eagles, so when he went out there, he played so hard because he was trying to help the Eagles win. That's what it was. He wasn't trying to make the team for himself, he was trying to make the Eagles better."

Coming to "Invincible" off of working on Martin Scorsese's upcoming "The Departed," Wahlberg admits that he wasn't in game shape, but he worked hard to keep up with the film's football-playing extras. There's no movie magic used when an opposing blocker blasts Wahlberg clear off the screen in one shot.

"It wasn't as bad as it looks," Wahlberg says. "Everything was bruised and banged up. The bigger hits in the movie were actually the ones that didn't hurt as much, a lot of clean hits. There were a couple of days where I wanted to kind of quit or tell them to take it easy, but I came in saying I wanted to be one of the guys trying to make the team like Vince was. So, I had to earn the respect of the real football players and just tough it out."

Wahlberg had the advantage of having Papale on set regularly to give advice, as this marked Wahlberg's second time playing a real person.

"The only other time I had experience that was in 'The Perfect Storm' and obviously it was an extremely sensitive subject because of the tragic loss of all those guys," he says. "But with Vince, he was just so happy to get the movie made and I mean, I swear to god, it didn't matter if Jackie Chan was playing him. He would have been happy. I swear to god, he was just so happy the movie was being made."

But impressing Papale wasn't Wahlberg's only responsibility. Papale's story belongs to the fans of Philadelphia as much as to the man himself and those are the same fans who pelted Santa Claus with snowballs and J.D. Drew with batteries, making them high on the list of people you'd rather not disappoint.

WILLIAMS

nity for me to do something that helps a dude that's pretty much in a lane by himself, like me. As far as Nick goes, all the dude had to do was call me and say 'Look I'm thinking about doing this show and it'd be cool if you got on board with it.'"

If you think Williams is wild when he hooks up with Cannon, just wait till you see what he does with his own HBO special.

Showing his brash nature, he makes absolutely no excuses for his style, language or subject matters during the show, touching on everything from drug use to my personal favorite, Michael Jackson.

"If you come over to my place, there are certain things there to make the ladies comfortable," Williams says. "I like the ladies and I want them to be comfortable. If you were Michael Jackson and you were trying to make a bunch of kids comfortable, what would you have? An amusement park? Animals? Video games?!"

"We've known Michael was that way for a long time! People don't just say things about you for 20 years without it being true. If people have been callin' you a crackhead for 20 years, you're smokin' crack! Whitney (Houston) done smoked her kneecaps off and we're still in denial!"

OK, so that's the toned down, cleaned up and semi-politically correct version, and it's not nearly as funny when it's read aloud, but I'm sure you get the point.

And while Williams' act is just entertainment, he tries his best to leave the audience with some very serious matters to think about.

"All I'm saying is you have to live your life. You can't be worried about who's hating on you," he said. "Ladies, if you have 14 haters hatin' on you, you need to find a way to get that up to 16 before the summer! Guys, if you have 20 haters hatin' on you, you better get that up to 20! That's what haters do! That's their job, to hate on people!"

While this HBO special certainly isn't appropriate for the little ones — or anyone who gets easily offended by matters of race or modern profanity — it follows in a long line of other Home Box Office hits including those from Dave Chappelle, Carlos Mencia, George Carlin and Martin Lawrence.

Telling it like it is, Williams moves seamlessly from one subject to the next in a high energy fashion, forcing the audience to not only laugh, but to think about what he's saying.

Kudos to Williams on the effort. It's well worth the price of HBO.
