The Elementary School figures are higher than the previous year, with high school enrollment being considerably less.

Tigers Face Aledo In Season Opener Friday

SEASON FOOTBALL TICKETS ON SALE

Season tickets, good for all the Hico Tiger home football games, were placed on sale this week by school officials.

The tickets will entitle the purchaser admittance to six games which will be played at the local stadium. Prices are 3.75 for adults, and $1.25 for students, which is a discount of the price of one game.

Tickets may be secured from any member of Hico Civic Club.

Hico will lift the lid on the 1959 football season tonight, Friday, when the Tigers journey to Aledo for an 8:00 p.m. encounter.

Head Coach Jack Barnett will carry a squad numbering only 18 for the first game.

Workouts tapered off to one-a-day this week with the beginning of school, after two hard weeks of conditioning at two-a-day pace. Most of the regulars who are counted on to log the most playing time this season will be available for the game tonight. However injuries have stripped two men from the squad who were counted on. Iva Aikman, a stout defensive boy, and Mike Lackey will be sidelined for the first contest. Aikman is a squadman of two years ago, and didn't play last year. The same applies to Lackey, who sat out the last campaign after surgery. He received a face cut last week in a scrimmage session with Dublin.

Coach Barnett will field an all-lettermen team in the first go-round. However, two lettermen who are seniors this year and who had been counted on for full-time duty are not out for the team, Ronnie Koonsman, who was a top blocker and offensive player last season, and Wayland Wooton, No. 1 center last year, are not listed on the team. Both worked through the summer months, and haven't attended practice sessions.

The probable starting lineup as released by Barnett is as follows:

- Left End—Shelly Hooper
- Left Tackle—Lee Blue
- Left Guard—Royce Samford
- Center—James Jordan
- Right Guard—Mitchell Mayfield
- Right Tackle—Fieldon Haley
- Right End—Pat Lackey
- Quarterback—Alan Hedges
- Halfback—Doyle Crews
- Halfback—Neil Ellis
- Fullback—Bobby Boone

All of the above starters are lettermen, and all are in good condition with the exception of Jordan who is still favoring a bum knee received on the opening kickoff with Aledo last season.

A hard game is expected tonight, with Aledo looking back to the 25-0 pasting they received at the hands of the Tigers last year.

Fans who plan to attend the game have two possible routes to take. One is by way of Weatherford, and the other is a farm to market highway from Cressen to Aledo.

Game time is promptly at 8 o'clock.

After the first outing the Tigers will return home for a three-game stand, beginning with Boyd on September 11.

Music Company Representative to Meet With Local Parents

Terry Randolph, local school band instructor, announced this week that Jed Tarver, representative of C. S. Music Company of Fort Worth, would be in Hico Friday, September 4, immediately after school is dismissed for a demonstration of musical instruments.

Parents of band members and prospective members are urged to be present. Mr. Randolph stated that instruments could be either rented or purchased from Mr. Tarver.

The representative will meet with parents and students at the band hall.

CORRECTION

In the building story last week it was reported that the Odiss Hills were building the new home in the Hillcrest Addition. It is Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hill who are building the four-bedroom home.

In a few weeks the News Review plans a follow-up on the local building programs, and would appreciate any projects called to our attention which we might overlook.

G. E. Holladay Has Top Producing Cow in Holstein Association

Battleboro, Vt. (Spl.)—The Holstein-Friesian Association of America has announced the completion of an outstanding official production record by a registered Holstein cow owned by G. E. Holladay of Hico.

Bosque Dandy Margo 3635288 produced 15,357 pounds of milk and 599 pounds of butterfat in 365 days on twice daily milking as a 5-year-old.

Texas A & M College, working in close cooperation with the national Holstein organization, supervised the weighing and testing of production as a part of the Herd Improvement Registry program.

This official testing program, commonly referred to as HIR, provides continuing lactation and lifetime production records on every cow in participating registered Holstein herds.

HOME FROM EASTERN STATES

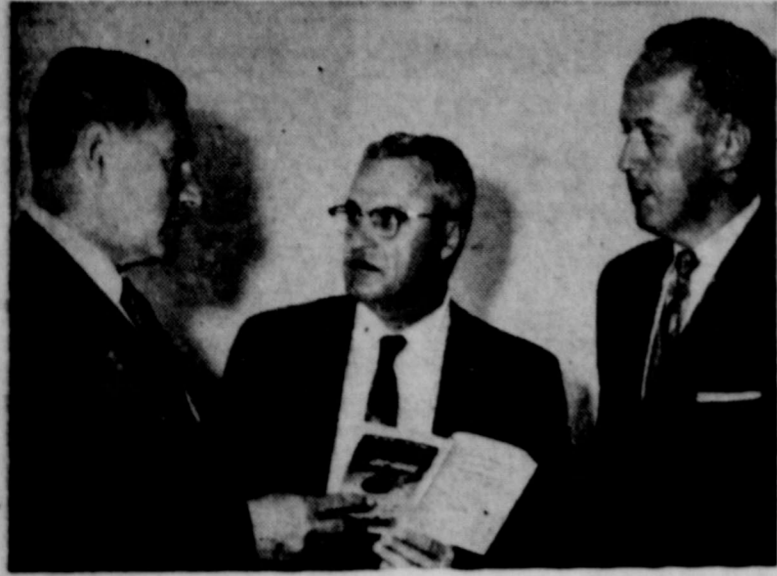

Mr. and Mrs. G. K. Lewallen and children returned home last Thursday following a two-month tour of the Eastern States. Mr. Lewallen makes the trip every year with his western apparel and attends the Fairs in the East.

They also visited in New York with Mrs. Lewallen's relatives.

FIRST STEPS—The first steps toward an education were taken this week by 31 first grade students in Hico Elementary School. Shown here walking toward their first day in a classroom are Charles Golightly and Devonna Scott, who are being greeted by first grade teacher Mrs. R. E. Jackson. Charles is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Golightly, and Devonna is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Von Scott.

THAT'S WHAT THE RULE SAYS—Popular Houston football announcers Kern Tips (left) and Alec Chesser (right) discuss 1959 rule changes with Howard Grubbs, executive secretary of the Southwest Conference. The occasion was an announcers seminar held in Dallas. Tips heads the Humble Company's staff of 23 play-by-play announcers who will describe all Conference games this season. Starting September 19, the oil company will sponsor some 50 broadcasts, 13 live telecasts, and a Sunday afternoon videotaped Southwest Conference "Game of the Week."

Humble Will Again Give Full Coverage of SWC Football

The most comprehensive coverage of football ever attempted in the Southwest will be broadcast and telecast this season by Humble Oil & Refining Company.

The Humble coverage includes live telecasting of a major college football game each Saturday afternoon, 89 radio broadcasts and 11 telecasts of videotape recordings of Southwest Conference contests.

Humble will co-sponsor NBC's live telecasts of football games as permitted by the NCAA, and will sponsor three live telecasts of Southwest Conference games, a total of 13. All games played by seven Southwest Conference members, Texas Western University, the University of New Mexico, Arizona State University and the University of Arizona will be broadcast over the radio.

Announcers and broadcast supervisors will travel thousands of miles to the site of each game to bring on the scene descriptions. One announcer will even travel to Honolulu where he will describe the University of Hawaii-Arizona State University game to fans some 3000 miles away in the Grand Canyon State.

More than 180 radio and TV stations will be used to cover over a hundred urban and rural areas in cities and towns in the Southwest. The leased lines, coaxial cable, microwave and overseas broadcasting systems required would be enough to stretch two-thirds of the way to the moon.

To originate football broadcasts, Humble has a staff of 23 top-notch announcers, many with years of experience. Kern Tips of Houston, head of the staff, has been describing games for 24 years; Ves Box and Eddie Barker of Dallas and Dave Russell of Beaumont have been on the circuit more than 10 years. These announcers are thoroughly trained to give good accounts of the games. Each year they attend a seminar conducted by Tips and a Southwest Conference football coach. At the seminar they discuss new rule changes and all types of play likely to be seen during the upcoming season.

Incidentally, these announcers "talk a lot of words" about football. Alec Chesser of Houston, Tips' color announcer for a number of years, once did some figuring. He estimated that Tips speaks some 264,000 words about football over the air each season. What do listeners think about the football coverage? One year Humble asked for an opinion. Cards and letters poured in by the thousands to give a resounding endorsement.

In fact, a recent survey showed that on a busy football weekend, well over 1.5 million people tune in to the radio or television broadcasts. This same survey says that most men will tell you that they listen to at least one or two games a season, and that about 40 percent listen on at half of the Saturdays.

When the season starts September 19, football fans in the Southwest know—if they can't go to the games—Humble will bring the games to them!

No Colds All Winter After Adjustments

Every day upon awakening from her bed this little six year old girl found her nose stopped up, and a sneezing and coughing spell. This would repeat her sometimes to the point of being unable to breathe. During every winter her throat was sore and she had to be kept in bed. Her appetite was poor and she gained of leg aches. Her mother had tried everything she could but nothing seemed to build up the little girl's resistance so she could play like other children. Upon reading these columns, she began to reason from cause to effect and then decided to take the little girl to the Stephenville Chiropractic Clinic to see if we could locate the cause. We did locate the cause. In fact we were so successful in locating and correcting the cause, that she now goes through an entire winter without a single cold or sore throat and even goes outside when its cold.

Funeral Services Held Last Friday Afternoon For Lee Adams

Our hearts were made sad Thursday of last week as news was circulated that Lee Adams had passed away at the Hico Hospital about noon. Lee had been in ill health for several years, but remained with his farming duties until about a year ago. All that loving hands could do was administered to him to no avail.

Lee, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. I. N. Adams of Fairy, was born on Feb. 11, 1892 at Ballinger. He had resided in the Fairy community at the Adams homestead place most of his life. After his marriage on Nov. 19, 1911 to Miss Fannie Truitt of Hico, he and his wife resided at Lamkin for a time. When his father was no longer able to carry on his farming activities and moved to Hico some time ago, Lee and wife moved to the Adams homestead northwest of Fairy where they had since resided, until the past several months which they spent at the home of his stepmother, Mrs. Lennie Adams of Hico in order that they might be near medical care.

The deceased was a classmate of the writer, having known him for fifty-six years. He was one of the outstanding citizens of our community. He was law-abiding, fair and honest in his dealings with his fellowman. He will be greatly missed from the community.

Lee was the last of his immediate family to pass away. His parents, two brothers, Ellis of Fort Worth and Jessie, address at death unknown and a baby sister having preceded him in death. He was a member of the Fairy Baptist Church having been baptized in the summer of 1953, and was active in church attendance until his health failed.

Funeral services were held at the Fairy Baptist Church Friday afternoon, Aug. 28, at 3 o'clock, with Rev. McGee of Fort Worth, pastor of the church, and Rev. D. L. Barnes of Hico officiating. The song service was by local talent and directed by Audie Clark. Two songs, favorites of the deceased, "From the Cross to the Crown," and "How Beautiful Heaven Must Be," were used. The beautiful floral offering bore tribute to the life of the deceased. Burial was in Fairy Cemetery under the direction of Barrow-Rutledge Funeral Home. Lee is survived by his wife, Mrs. Fannie Adams, presently of Hico, a number of nieces, nephews, cousins and others to mourn his passing. We extend deepest sympathy to his bereaved wife and other relatives.

A loved one from our midst has gone; We'll see his face no more. We'll miss his presence all along until we meet on that fair shore. He's gone where all the true and blest go when this life is over, and some sweet day he'll wake, rest, and we'll meet to part no more.

The toils of life have ended, suffering and pain are over. The Soul of God has ascended, where we'll meet on that beautiful shore.

Mrs. Louis Abel and Mrs. Dorman Vance of Grand Prairie were here to attend the gift shower honoring their sister, Miss Gwen Jackson Saturday. Mrs. JoAnn Haile, of Fort Worth and Mrs. W. P. Seymour, mother of the prospective bridegroom, also attended.

The Lanham homecoming, held at the Lanham Methodist Church and tabernacle Sunday, was a great success. Some 150 were in attendance at Sunday School and church services Sunday morning, which were conducted by Rev. Wesley Jones and J. W. Sellers. Some 250 guests registered during the day. A bountiful basket lunch was spread at the noon hour. An arranged program of singing by the young folks and others was held in the afternoon. Grandmother Hovey, presently at Houston with her daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Smith, is the only living charter member of the church. She was wired flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Bud Turner of Jonesboro and her sister, Mrs. Pearl Wilson visited Sunday in the E. M. Hoover home. The ladies are cousins of Mr. Hoover, being the daughters of the late Halie Hoover and wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Waynand Allison and family of Baytown were visiting Monday in the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edd Allison. They were here during the week end to attend the Allison reunion held Sunday at a Glen Rose park.

Word received today, Tuesday, from our sister, Mrs. Myrtle Enger of Brady, informed us that the illness of her son-in-law, Lester Smith was now thought to be due to paint poison. He is still ill, but some better.

Our telephone system was dead again Monday afternoon due to receivers being left off the hook. After an hour of worry trying to get a call through to Hico we drove to Fairy and made the call on another line. This is sure getting to be a wearisome situation. It does seem to us that parents would be more observant and see that the receiver on their telephone is in place. This situation could mean delay in death calls and such like.

We have made seven trips across this big house of ours to the telephone to try and call a neighbor today, Tuesday for information only to get a busy signal each time. As for this scribe, give me the old-fashioned type telephones. I hope to see them back in existence some time. We were not the only one who experienced this worry as others on the line had also tried to make calls. But we only got far enough to hear some radio or television going and children talking in the home.

The middle section of the cemetery was mowed Saturday. Also all lots in that section and some on the east section that are on the list of donors were worked.

While at the Adams funeral Friday afternoon we were handed $5 by Cone Patterson of Grand Prairie, $5 by Mr. Frank Hanes of Hico, and $2 by Mrs. Addie Adams of Stephenville. As we unfolded the $5 bill handed us by Mr. Rutledge we remarked that it was very nice of him to give us such a nice donation since he has no relatives buried here. In so many words he said it was nice to be able to render his services on clean ground. Mr. Hanes also has no relatives here but makes his regular donation and we want to thank both he and Mr. Rutledge for their thoughtfulness, and also to the

Fairy Schools Open Tuesday Morning

Our school opened Tuesday with good attendance of both pupils, parents and visitors. Again, due to this week's news writing which always falls on Tuesday, we missed the opening. Most youngsters appeared eager to get back in the school room, but we fear this eagerness will soon wear off. We hope to have a successful term.

Miss Jackson Honoree At Miscellaneous Shower Saturday

A miscellaneous shower honoring Miss Gwen Jackson of Grand Prairie, bride-elect of Ernest Seymour of Grand Prairie, was held Saturday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Brummett, with Mrs. Brummett, Mrs. Herman Sills, Mrs. Coyt Clark, Mrs. J. E. Blakley serving as hostesses.

A color scheme of pink and white was carried out in the decorations. Gifts were displayed in the bedrooms of the home. Many nice and useful gifts were received.

Refreshments of delicious fruit punch nuts, mints and pink decorated white cake squares were served to forty or more guests.

Miss Jackson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Jackson of Fairy, will be married September 12 at the Burbanks Gardens Church of Christ in Grand Prairie.

IT HAPPENED HERE OR NEAR—

Antics of a Road Runner

By E. E. DAWSON

Road Runners are about as common as grasshoppers in this country these days. Like the Armadillos, they have invaded Texas from Mexico during my lifetime. As a boy I never saw an Armadillo and only a few Road Runners. Now between our home and Hico I see from one to three Road Runners every day, and each always near the same places. And there are some things you can bet on about them. If one is on the left side of the road, Mr. Road Runner will cross to the right side of the road just ahead of you, or if he is on the right side of the road as you approach him he will cross to the left side. You see a good many along the highways that have been killed and it is safe to say they all got killed at that practice of crossing the road in front of speeding cars.

A Road Runner has been around our place for years and we get a peep at him almost daily. Often he comes into the yard and is not too much afraid of us that live here. He put on a circus act one day last week that was a thriller. The two cars of our two sons were standing out in front of the house, and, as I sat in a chair in the yard,

Mr. Road Runner showed up and hopped on the hood of one of the cars and saw himself reflected in the windshield. He sought to attack that other bird, or maybe he thought it might be a possible mate. At any rate he tried over and over again for a quarter hour to get into the car where he envisioned the rival or possible mate. He went to each glass of the car and tried to break in. The glasses were all up in expectation of rain, so he did not make it.

Then as he hopped on the hood of the other car he saw a new rival: it was in the rear-view mirror on the left front fender. As he espied his reflection he bristled and attacked, only to find the other bird was not there. He backed off and tried it again. No luck. Then he rushed to the mirror and leaped over it, evidently expecting to find the bird behind the mirror. Again he was disappointed. Then he slid down the hood, feathers all bristled, suddenly stopped in front of the mirror, and craned his head around quickly, thinking to see his rival back of the mirror.

These antics kept up a quarter hour. Then he settled down in front of the mirror to think it out, turning his head as a thinker will. But it was with no luck. Finally, he gave it up and hopped off the car and sought the brush again, baffled. It was a real circus and gave me amusement for a good half hour.

The Road Runner has several names. He is a Paisano in the southwest, and the story is that a newly arrived Mexican saw one soon after he reached Texas soil cause" why the injunction should not be issued. Because most injunctions deal with immediate problems, the court hears the merits of such a case in a very short time.

After the temporary injunction is issued, a "permanent" injunction may be obtained or either party may start a lawsuit to settle the problems which the temporary injunction has cleared up for the moment.

If the court grants an injunction, it must be served on the defendant to be effective. Then if he disobeys the order, he is disobeying the court and is subject to a fine or a jail term for "contempt of court."

"Mandamus" is a special remedy used to right wrongs or enforce proper action by a public officer.

When we elect public officers to work for us, we place a great deal of authority in their hands. Sometimes they fail to do their lawful duty. One way to make a government official do his job is to ask the court for a writ mandamus.

Suppose you have applied for a permit to build a house under a city building code. You submit your plans which meet all the requirements of the code but the proper official won't give you the permit and you can't get one elsewhere. You can then ask the court for a writ of mandamus and if you were right and the building official had no grounds for refusal, the court will order him to issue the permit.

Before the court will issue such a strong command as this, the officer must have refused to do his clear cut legal duty—not something that he may or may not have to do as part of his job.

and said, "Hello there, Paisano" which in Mexican means "Countryman." He was known as a Mexican Pheasant in the area in which I once lived. And he is often called a Chaparral Bird in many sections.

The Road Runner has a reputation in the southwest as an inveterate enemy of rattlesnakes. He tries to kill one whenever he finds it. A road crew out in Reeves County reported to me some years ago a dramatic incident they saw one morning as they traveled along their section of road as it ran along the foot of the Barilla Mountains. Out in the middle of the paved highway was a battle between a Road Runner and a rattlesnake. The driver of the truck that carried the crew and its equipment stopped the truck and they all watched the battle. The rattler was coiled with a good portion of him above his coil, his mouth open hissing and his rattle going at a furious rate. The Road Runner was circling the rattler and the rattler was doing his best to keep his eyes glued on the bird. But he got tired and for an instant stopped turning his head and the Road Runner hit him a resounding blow on the back of the head. Mr. Rattler went into action again perhaps realizing he was in a death struggle. But he just could not keep up that herli turning always, and every time he hesitated an instant the Road Runner struck with everything he had on the back of the snake's head. It continued for a dozen minutes, and then the Road Runner landed a heavy blow on the rattler and the snake's head fell limp on the pavement. The Road Runner stood over him pecking at the limp snake's head until he was satisfied that it was dead, and then sauntered off into the bushes behind the mountain's base.

31 Persons Expected to Be Killed During Weekend

Austin, Sept. 2—The Director of the Texas Department of Public Safety announced today that 31 persons are expected to be killed in Texas traffic accidents during the three-day Labor Day weekend.

Col. Homer Garrison Jr. said the official prediction—which is seldom far off—should "serve as a challenge to all Texans to make a concerted effort to stem the tide of highway tragedy next weekend."

He pointed out that during the Labor Day weekend last year there were 30 traffic deaths, one more than the Department had predicted. He noted, however, that the forecast for the 1959 Fourth of July holiday—26 fatalities—turned out to be accurate.

"We would like to make a special appeal to the citizens of Texas to consider the facts about holiday driving and do their utmost to reduce the tragedy of death, suffering and economic loss next weekend," Garrison said.

"Department of Public Safety Patrolmen and all other law enforcement officers in our State will do everything in their power to make the streets and highways safer by removing lawless drivers—but the statistics prove the main job is up to the individual behind the wheel."

He cited the following facts and figures on last Labor Day weekend, compiled by N. K. Woerner, Manager of Statistical Services:

Of the 30 traffic deaths in the State, 26 occurred in rural areas as the result of 18 accidents.

Ten of the 18 rural fatal accidents involved drivers who had been drinking.

Two of the three rural fatal pedestrian accidents involved pedestrians who had been drinking.

Seven of the 10 drivers who had been drinking in rural fatal accidents were exceeding the legal speed limit.

Thirteen of the 18 rural fatal accidents involved only one motor vehicle.

In 12 of the 13 rural fatal accidents involving only one car, the drivers had no "other driver" to blame. In the other case, a pedestrian victim was at fault.

"Perhaps the most significant thing in the analysis of last year's Labor Day statistics is that in every rural fatal accident, at least one violation was apparently a contributing factor," Garrison said.

"So it might follow that if we can stop the violations, we can stop the death and destruction on the highways of Texas."

The Public Safety Director said some 125 additional patrolmen from the Department's other uniformed services will augment the Highway Patrol force during the three-day "Operation Holiday" beginning at 12:01 a. m. Saturday, September 5, and ending at 11:59 p. m. Monday, September 7.

Student Guidance: What Does It Really Mean?

EDITORS NOTE—This is the first of a series of articles dealing with vocational guidance released by the National Foundation for Student Guidance to weekly newspapers throughout this state. The purpose of this series is to acquaint the parents of the youth of this nation with the pressing need for understanding and providing adequate vocational guidance to the students of American schools.

The author of the series, Dr. Edward C. Roebler, is widely known in this field. He is Professor of Education at the University of Michigan. He has written numerous articles and books dealing with this problem for various publications.

The National Foundation for Student Guidance is a non-profit organization dedicated to creating a better understanding of the need for vocational guidance throughout the United States.

By Dr. Edward C. Roebler

Just exactly what is vocational guidance? Don't be embarrassed if you don't know the answer. The truth of the matter is that probably the majority of the parents of school age children in this country are in the same boat as you.

Frankly, insofar as the overwhelming majority of American educators is concerned, this is not a good situation. You need to know about vocational guidance and what it means because you owe it to your children to know.

Basically, vocational guidance is simply this; a service provided through our school systems to assist pupils in making intelligent decisions regarding subjects which will prepare them for their life's work. You've heard the saying about a "square peg in a round hole" and it is unfortunately true that too many human beings find themselves in this predicament when it is too late to do anything about it, or when it means giving up seniority or financial security in order to shift occupations.

As a result, it is undoubtedly true that fine talents are wasted because young men and young women aren't doing that for which they are best fitted or in which they are most interested.

At the risk of oversimplifying the problem, let's say that the primary function of vocational guidance is to prevent any square pegs from getting in round holes.

When grammar school youngsters are asked, "What do you want to be when you grow up?" The most popular answers are always locomotive engineers, policemen, nurses, movie stars, doctors, forest rangers, firemen, and maybe bus drivers; but these answers are dream answers. In just a few short years some of these same youngsters may be thinking seriously about engineering, education, journalism, banking, law, medicine, or business administration.

In every high school of America there are young men and young women who are perplexed about their future, their educational and vocational plans,

We owe it to our youth and to our country to do everything we can to see that the native talents of American youth are steered in the direction which will best serve mankind as well as the individual.

Let's take a look, for example, at Bill. He could be in any high school in America. What's on Bill's mind? For one thing, he is wondering whether he will ever amount to anything. Like everyone else he wants to be somebody—nothing extra special but a regular guy with a regular job living a respectable life. Bill wants his share of the future. He wants a chance to develop some special skills and to get those things which we in America take for granted.

It all sounds quite simple to those of us who have already made a place for ourselves in the world of work. To Bill, however, it is not quite so simple.

Bill is wondering about a lot of things. Should he go to college? He'll need help. Perhaps his family would have to give up all its savings. And what about his brother and sister? They will need help, too. Or, after high school, should he take some special training? Should he follow his Dad's trade or strike out on his own?

Dad could help him get started, sure, but maybe Bill isn't sure he wants to do what Dad has done all his life.

There's nothing wrong with Dad's job, but Bill wants to do something with electronics— at least he thinks he does.

What about chances for finding a job in that field? And how about the armed services? He might be able to get some special training if he enlists. How much choice would he have?

And so it goes. Lots of questions. Where are the answers? Professional guidance is the answer.

If Bill were the only one with such questions, there would be no need for vocational guidance. But the case of Bill can be multiplied many times, and in addition there are all the Marys and other young women who also have special problems in career planning.

Bill and Mary need special help in planning for and gaining a foothold in a career.

Actually, there are many reasons why Bill and Mary find today's decisions rather difficult—perhaps even more confusing than the choices which faced their parents only twenty years ago. A few more examples of the challenges and obstacles which confront the Bills and the Marys might help all of us understand more clearly the increasing need for vocational guidance not only in the large schools but also in every one of the small schools.

Jack will soon leave high school, having earned top honors in his class. He would like to try for a medical degree some day, but he realizes it will take at least eight years of college work. Jack is wondering whether he has what it takes to get good marks in college. What would he do if he found, after a couple of years in college, that he couldn't do the work well? He would also like to know whether to go to a small college or a big university. Because his scholarship will not cover all his expenses, he would like to know how to earn part of his way. Or would that affect his marks and thus stop him from being accepted at a medical school? What would he do if he were not accepted?

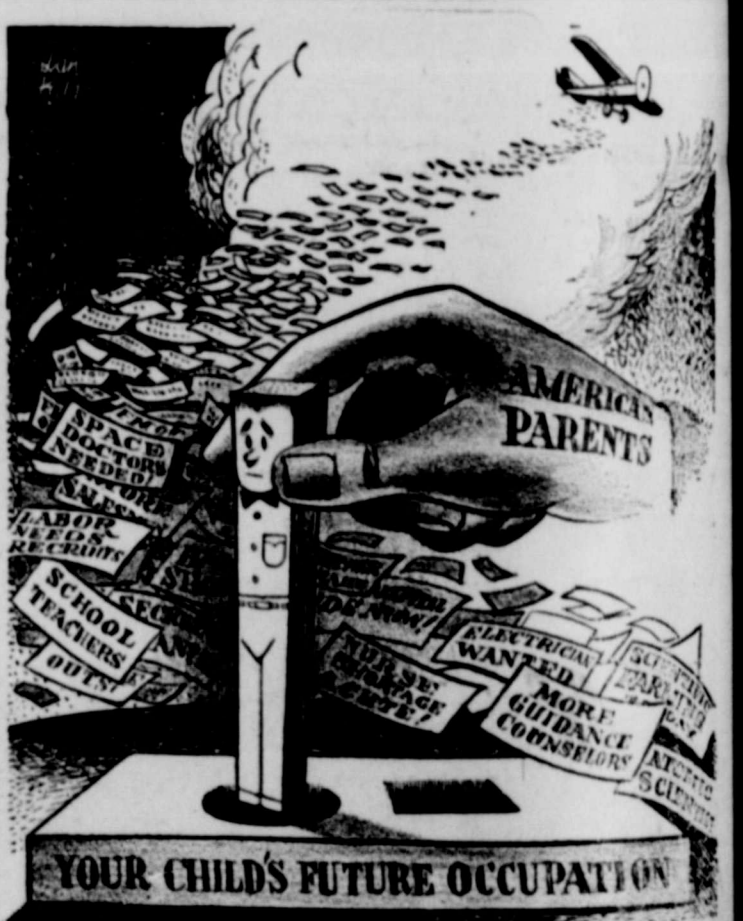

Jack also knows that there are many who would like to get into these schools and that there are not enough places for all of them. What else could he do for a living? Maybe something in biology, chemistry, or pharmacy?

Jill is a tenth grade student in a large school. She has made average marks but has had special difficulties with English. Currently she is undecided about whether to drop school as soon as she is sixteen. She is wondering what kinds of work she can find if she leaves school. How does one go about finding a job? Does a high school diploma make any difference in finding jobs? If she decided to stay in school, which ones of the many courses should she take? For a change, she would like something which interests her. Of course, if she "sticks it out," how can she do better work in English?

Jim is not interested in a college degree. But he wants a trade of some kind, some work where he can build or repair things. He is not sure as yet what trade to enter. In or near his home town are three kinds of schools, a trade school, a technical school, and a college offering a two-year course. There are also several industries with apprenticeship programs. He is wondering whether to go to one of these schools, to start an apprenticeship as soon as he graduates, or to begin learning a trade in one of the armed services. What is best for him?

Ron dropped school when he was sixteen. Since that time, he has held several "dead end" jobs. Each one paid enough to live on, but none of them offered him a chance for promotion or learning any special skill. Whichever way he turns he learns that the "good" jobs require at least a high school education. At the present time he is waiting to be drafted and feels sorry for himself, not sure what to do while he waits, Ron needs guidance desperately.

Industrialization in America

"The Square Peg in the Round Hole"

has brought about an increasing number of occupations—probably more than 40,000 at the present time. Technological changes have been taking place at such a rapid pace that forecasting occupational trends has become a hazardous occupation. Twenty years ago there was no such person as a space doctor. Today we cannot predict how many will be needed in the next twenty years.

Farming has become so highly mechanized and scientific that fewer farmers can feed more people.

Refrigeration has changed the transportation of foods, such as oranges from crates to cans.

The influences of American inventiveness upon jobs is endless. Young people today must aim at a "moving target" for the world of work does not stand still. They have to learn to aim at and adjust to as many foreseeable changes as possible— quite a task for even an expert on the subject.

As America becomes involved in a struggle for survival it is essential that every person develop his talents as much as possible. As a nation it is impossible to depend upon sheer numbers in the population for survival but rather upon ingenuity and an ability to outproduce unfriendly nations. Our young people are the hope of the future. They will be "pressured" to do this or to do that. Recruitment for various occupations may influence someone to enter an occupation for which he is not suited and where he is not as productive as he might be.

Somewhat the Bills and Marys must work their ways through the maze of opportunities, blind alleys, and obstacles. They can be helped in an organized manner. This is vocational guidance.

An organized approach to vocational guidance is already present in some schools throughout America. In these schools Bill and Mary are helped to find various kinds of information about themselves and possible opportunities. Some of the information is given to them individually, as they need it, or in groups, such as regular classes, home-rooms, or occupational planning courses. In addition, counselors and teachers with special skills, counsel and talk over with the students how they can best use their talents in relation to different kinds of training and occupational requirements. Because young people grow and change with new experiences, they find these services available to them all through high school. Many who see the value in helping young men and women "get a good start" in the world of work hope that every young American can have an opportunity to receive adequate vocational guidance in his high school, regardless of its size or location.

$12.95 TIRES ARE NOT FOR TURNPIKES

READ THE FACTS BEFORE YOU BUY!

- High speed driving on super highways demands stronger, safer tires than anyone can sell for $12.95.
- B.F. Goodrich makes economy tires that give outstanding service. But they're designed for normal city and country driving, not for long periods at sustained high speeds on turnpikes, throughways and freeways.
- "Testing" a low-price tire on a turnpike doesn't necessarily make it safe for day-in, day-out performance under bruising, pounding conditions.
- Turnpike tires call for the strongest materials, toughest plies, painstaking design and construction. Raking life and property on anything less is sheer folly. High-speed tires can't be built for $12.95.

STRIP CROPPING PAYS OFF Can a farmer afford to plant one-fifth of his peanut land in a strip crop each year and all of it in winter cover? A number of Tex.

as farmers say "yes", for years of peanut farming experience have provided them with the answer.

Today strip cropping and winter cover cropping are as much a part of the farmers' operations as is planting peanuts. The strip pattern consists of two rows of common sudan and eight rows of peanuts.

After harvest, Abruzzi rye is drilled on the eight rows of peanuts for winter cover.

Peanut yields through the years prove the wisdom of such planting. In 1958 one farmer made 49 bushels per acre, and has averaged 30 bushels as an overall average. This includes the low yield of 13 bushels in 1956, an extremely dry year. He does not use irrigation.

A brisk norther in April proved the farmer's strips and cover were effective against wind erosion. Not a grain of sand was moving from his farm, while the 35-mile-an-hour wind was turning the topsoil of an unprotected field nearby into a blinding dust storm. Good farmers always have a system of farming. They are quick to change their systems of farming to incorporate new cultural and management practices to take care of their top soil so they have more economical production. This farmer is no exception. For example, he has been seeding his cover crop of rye after the peanuts were combined. He now plans to seed the rye prior to raking the nuts. Then the raking will cover the rye and permit it to get an earlier start. This will save one trip over the land. In general, this is his present operation:

- 1. Seeds rye for cover. 2. Returns peanut tops to the soil with spreader on combine. 3. Leaves the strips and rye cover on the land until late spring in order to have a dense growth of rye where the peanuts grew. This protects the soil during a critical period and is used as green manure. 4. Shreds strips and cover crop around May 1. 5. Disk-harrows land twice, each disking perpendicular to the other. 6. Beds shallow with sweeps. 7. Plants peanuts and sudan strips at same time. Strips are planted on different rows each year.

Congress Passes Conservation Measure of Natural Resources

By OMAR BURLESON, M.C.
17th District, Texas

Washington, D. C.—When thinking of conservation we usually think first of soil and water. Soil and water are first in conservation and are basic to all other measures and efforts dealing with it.

However, the conservation of natural resources includes many things, such as the forest, and even the birds and the bees.

An unusual conservation measure has just passed Congress. It prohibits the wanton destruction of wild horses in several of the Northwest States where they are still to be found.

During recent years hunters of wild horses have used airplanes and other noise-making devices to flush the horses out of the hills down into the flats where they can be roped from a jeep and, in some cases, shot.

The use of horsemeat for cat and dog food has apparently become a big business. The wild horses in Wyoming, Utah, Nevada and parts of Idaho are not caught for domestic purposes, but for the meat factory.

The bill just passed would prohibit the destruction of wild horses by these methods. Like the buffalo and the prairie dog, they are rapidly being destroyed.

The destruction of predatory animals for conservation purposes has become a local issue in many places. Not everyone has been aware of the dispute between those who want coyotes destroyed because they catch their chickens and those who have hounds and like to hunt.

The present day generation may not be aware of the campaign against the prairie dog—the little monster who is immaculately clean and keeps his floor swept free of growing crops, grass and shrubs.

Only a few years ago these chubby little animals numbered in hundreds of millions in Texas, Colorado, Utah, New Mexico, Arizona, Nebraska and the Dakotas. He is not found anywhere in the world except the Great Plains of the United States.

In the days when a prairie dog town covered 50 or more acres on the Burleson farm in Jones County a one-boy campaign was constantly waged to keep the Father and older brothers from destroying the prairie dogs by poisoning.

The method of poisoning was, to me, ingenious. Liquid carbon monoxide (commonly known as high life) was soaked into a certain substance for conveyance, rolled in the hole, dirt packed on top of crossed sticks and soon created a gas which killed these chatty, sociable and comic little creatures unless they got air.

Creeching and crawling along behind a five-year old boy would pull the sticks out and let the dirt roll down, as the father and older

COUNTY AGENT REPORTS

By E. B. LAWRENCE

For the past several years, the Shive Grange has been entering the Community Service Contest sponsored by the National Grange. Monday they mailed to the State Grange office, their report for this year's community service project.

The Shive Grange has won the state contest once, placed second once or twice, and third two or three times. The contest is just what the name implies, Community Service. This year the Grange took as its major project, the construction of a fire hall for the fire truck the community purchased some two years ago. The building is just about complete at this time.

Their big problem was getting the project financed. To do this they had two barbecues. One was in February and the other one was in July. Goat was barbecued in February and chicken in July. As a result of these two, just about enough money was made to pay for the expense of constructing the fire hall.

The Shive community has a volunteer fire department that consists of people who belong to the Grange and many who do not. They also sold fire extinguishers and I understand that they sold a total of 80. If 80 farm homes have them, and along with their fire fighting equipment, the community should have pretty good fire protection. The organization also undertook to repaint and repair the farm and road markers they put up around the community a few years ago.

In doing this community service brothers went to the next hole. This was conservation of the prairie dog, but not exactly recommended as a method to conserve growing crops and to permit the proper use of the land.

Fish, fowl and wildlife which are protected by the game laws and sanctuaries are a tremendously important part of conservation. More stringent methods are going to be needed because the number of wild game and fish are becoming fewer and fewer.

This year, by reason of the disturbance by human development of the nesting places of ducks, the numbers are less by approximately one-third. As a result most states will reduce the hunting period and also the bag limit.

Not only is the reduction in wildlife a concern of the sportsman, but the unbalancing of nature becomes important.

People used to kill owls and hawks. The fewer owls and hawks, and even snakes, the more mice, rats and other rodents. The fewer foxes, the more crows, and so on.

Conservation is a big business and is becoming more so as time goes on.

It behooves all of us to take an interest in it, even if we are not a hunter or fisherman, but simply live beside the road.

work, the Grange members worked a total of 4,781 hours. There are a total of 78 members in the organization. This means that each member worked 62 and a half hours. If figured as 8 hours to a working day, then each member has put in just a fraction under eight days. And all this work has gone to the improvement of their community.

According to Fred Elliott, extension cotton work specialist, good harvesting of cotton can mean as much as $23 per bale more for the grower.

Elliott suggests that enough seed cotton should be taken to the gin to make a 500-pound bale of lint cotton; pull or strip only after dew or rain has dried off; do not tramp seed cotton in trailers; keep mechanical harvester in good condition; carry only dry cotton to the gin.

The plant and animal residue that we return to our soil is actually an unseen laborer in our fields. This residue is called organic matter.

Organic matter helps us in many ways. It helps hold erosion down by letting rainfall penetrate the soil rather than run off. It absorbs moisture and holds it in the root where plant roots can get it.

Organic matter allows air to get in, too, and helps hold plant foods where plants can make the best use of them. One way organic matter helps us that we often overlook is that helps the soil warm up in the spring. This gives an extra day or two head start and sometimes two days can mean the difference between profit and loss.

Why not carry home some of those cotton burrs and put them on your fields rather than leaving them at the gin to be burned?
