

Life of A Dairyman's Wife Told In Amusing Story

following story, reprinted from Hoard's Dairyman magazine, pretty well sums up the industry, and is being reprinted in the interest of readability.

By EDITH LONG

Upon a time away back in the year, sweet past, we were plain farmers — potatoes, and what-have-you farming. Nobody bothered with cows.

Somebody bothered with cows in this area then, except for a few who supplied the family with cream, butter.

Somebody began creeping into our section (northern part of the county) and my husband had the idea of getting a herd of cows. I thought he was crazy. I may have even said that it made any difference.

Somebody else, when going to the dairy business, must be improving and fixing up his barn, that is if he has a barn left over from horse days, as we did. That fellow can remodel for the life of his life and still have a way ahead in the far distance. That is one job that is never completed.

Of course, if he is fortunate enough to be building a nice, modern barn from the ground up, he is one of the blessed, aside from the fact that he should have his head examined for going into dairying in the first place.

So our stable was remodeled, a milk house built, the inspector came and scratched his nose and suggested a few more improvements—and we were in the dairy business.

Became Involved Myself.

Everything would have been fine if we had just let the matter stop there, but I didn't realize that—then. One morning I went to the barn to watch this operation in motion—that's the trouble with having house, shed and barn all connected. If I'd had to wade through a foot of snow, or even go outdoors at all, things might have been different. So, since I was already in the barn, I may as well lug the pails of milk to the milk house and dump it in the cans, mightn't I? And since I was already there, I may as well stick around and wash up the equipment afterward, mightn't I? That started it.

Pretty soon I was getting up early every morning, donning my dungarees and accompanying hubby to the barn. I didn't mind, it was sort of company, we could talk without interruption, and our two young sons snoozed on. (We didn't breakfast until after milking and the furnace was automatic, so there was no fire to worry about).

So we milked our herd of 10 or 12 and gradually acquired more cows and more land, enlarged the stable, put in more cows, and before you could say "Jack Robinson" there we were up to our necks in work! That's one thing about cows, they must be milked twice a day, every day, no vacations with pay, no time and a half for overtime, and no time off for good behavior. No sir, cows is cows and you just stick with 'em brother, until death do you part.

With the dairying business came the influx of cattle dealers, those thoroughly enjoyably gentlemen without whom this business could never survive. Where else could we dispose of surplus calves, unwanted culls, or just plain baloney?

Thus was dickering born, and I discovered that most husbands and all cattle dealers get a whale of a lot of fun out of buying, selling, swapping, boasting and lying—cows. To be really good at it, you have to be able to look your best friend straight in the eye and lie like a sinner. A cow might be so finical she will kick your hat clear off the minute you step in beside her, and give no more milk than a billy goat, but her owner will swear she is as sound as a dollar. These people work on the theory that you buy with your eyes open, the fact that a cow is as ornery as the proverbial mother-in-law is just one of the minor tragedies of life. If somebody sells you a cow and you take a good lacing on her, you just chalk it up to experience and watch your chance, sooner or later you get even by sticking him with a real lemon.

To me, all cows look more or less alike, but my husband remembers each and every cow that ever stepped a hoof in our barn, even back 10 years. He could tell you where most of them were bought, how much he paid, who got her from him, when, and if, she was due to freshen, and the sex of her last several calves. I don't consider any of this any great importance, certainly not enough to remember it, let alone digest the knowledge, but I respect his ability to pin down the character, looks, and ancestry of so many cows.

Teaching Calves to Drink.

And then there are the calves! Calves are a necessary evil, for in order to give milk in the first place, of course a cow must first have a calf. Teaching new calves to drink has become the job for which I am unanimously elected, partly because I apparently am the only one with patience, knack and wit to do it, and the other reason being that nobody else wants the job. Besides, if they don't drink, I'll break their blasted necks!

Just let me take a bath and put on a clean dress and someone or the other of our bovine world is sure to have a calf. How they pass along the information that I am cleaned up, I will never know, but they do it. Let me stay in dungarees all day and nothing happens.

In my opinion no dairy farmer has any business raising calves; if he is in the business to sell milk, let somebody else raise the replacements. That is my opinion.

We raise all our choice heifers, some not so choice, and now and then a bull calf. We do not raise them to eat. I'd as soon eat one of my own family. When they leave here they leave walking on all fours (or being dragged, pushed or lugged; calves positively will never go anywhere you want them to go), while we buy our meat from the meat counter just like everybody else.

So, now that the calf is here, he has to eat. There are more opinions on how this should be done than there are calves. Nature provided a way of course, but I do not approve of this method; like many other things of nature, I think it can be improved.

My way, and incidentally, I believe this is the right way, is to take the calf immediately away from the mother. Cruel, maybe, and maybe the experts don't think this is the right thing to do, but the experts are not in the dairy business, I notice. So teach the calf to drink right from the first; he is going to have to drink when he grows up; why confuse him with unnecessary preliminaries?

So now we are ready to start teaching the calf to drink. Clean dress and all. If this is a very recent calf, he is naturally slightly damp, but damp or sopping wet, it's all the same, you can make up your mind that you have a fight on your hands. Better pull on rubber boots, or least you'll end up with clean socks. Maybe.

Ready for the Battle.

We get the calf up against a solid wall of some sort, preferably concrete, backed into a corner, holding him firmly there with hip and knee. Let him see right off who's boss. Holding the pail of colostrum in one hand, shove his head down into the pail with the other hand, which immediately goes against his grain for he was born with the instinct to raise his head upward when eating, so the fight begins. (What do you care if you get a little milk in your boots?)

You will then see that you've got to help him along after all, so place the hand on his nose; you may even have to put a finger in his mouth to get him started. This rouses his interest and he gets one taste which makes him very excited and he feels mighty as a lion and begins acting like one. I would like to state right here that though baby calves do not have upper teeth, they do have lower ones and they are sharp as needles. I have several chewed off stubs of fingers to prove it. And it does not (Continued on Page 4)

June Dairy Month Being Observed

June Dairy Month this year celebrates its Silver Anniversary, and local dairymen are joining with national and state leaders of the huge industry in observing the occasion.

Dairying in the Hico area, which embraces three counties, is definitely one of the leading factors in the economy of each and every person here.

In Hamilton County there are 14 dairies, with nine of these located in this immediate area. In the trade territory there are more than 20 such operations.

E. A. Black, who has one of the largest operations in the area, is president of the county association and has worked diligently towards promoting the special month set aside for the observance.

MILK DELIVERY, 1927 VERSION—In 1927 farmers in this area had to line up to deliver their milk to the local creamery and cheese factory, as can be attested by this picture. Farmers flocked into town to deliver their weekly cream collection to the local plant, which manufactured cheese, butter and ice cream. Dairying has been a source of revenue in this section for many years, and has been the backbone of the town's economy for the past several years.

CLAIRETTE REUNION SCHEDULED JUNE 3-4

The annual reunion of former students in the Clairette and Alexander schools will be held Saturday night, June 3 and Sunday, June 4, at the Clairette Community Center.

Sponsors of the reunion urge all former students in the schools to attend the reunion, and to bring a basket lunch for Sunday.

Former students are reminded to tell others and urge that they attend. Those who have musical instruments are asked to bring them Saturday night for entertainment.

The 1960-61 school term closed Friday night, May 26 when 22 seniors graduated from Hico High School. Three boys in the class are from Clairette, Bobby Boone, Fieldon Haley and Mitchell Mayfield. Haley and Mayfield started to school together 12 years ago. Bobby moved here from San Angelo and started with them in the fourth grade. One year, 1958, there were 32 in the class, another year there was 38. Some moved away and several girls got married. We wish to congratulate each member of the class and wish them a successful life.

Below is a poem in memory of the class, written by Mrs. Lucile Mayfield, Clairette correspondent. The Senior Class of May 26, 1961 have closed their book.

And said goodbye to all the kids and Superintendent O. C. Cook. To all the teachers, and their ball coaches, Mr. Henry and Mr. Barnett.

The school will extend to all these kids a welcome back.

Where they had their battles, a lot of laughs and fun.

Now the class will realize, its time to get on the run.

Some will marry and go to work, while others will remain in school.

To plan a career, where they can toil in the shade where it's cool.

In a few years they will have a class reunion in Ole Hico.

They will smile and greet each other with a warm Hello.

These kids then will talk about their ex-teachers, parties and schoolmates.

What girl or boy they went with on their first dates.

They will talk about the ball teams, how bad they wanted to win their last game.

And talk about those who won crowns, trophies, scholarships and plaques of fame.

Members of the senior class, their teachers, parents and friends went to Bluebonnet Country Club following the graduation exercises where Mr. Harold Walker showed movit films made of the class on their trip to Mo. Ranch.

Several from here attended the elementary graduation exercises Thursday night at Hico. Two Clairette boys were in the class, James Crews, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Carr and Charles Erick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Reed and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Roberson. Charles was valedictorian of the class.

Everyone was happy to get the much-needed rain last week. Over one and a half inches fell here during the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Boone and Bobby were in Bryan Saturday to attend graduation exercises at A & M. Their son-in-law, Fred Wilson, was a member of the class.

Thought for the day: Those who scatter kindness with one hand, gather with two, not always in coin but in kind, nothing multiplies as much as kindness.

More voters turned out Saturday to vote in the special election than was expected.

TYPICAL DAIRY SCENE—Holsteins lined up waiting their turn to be milked is a typical dairy scene in this area. The procedure is repeated twice daily, and no one has to summon the cows for the ritual. This particular picture was made at the dairy of Joe Knapp south of town. Dairying has been the backbone of the economy of Hico these past several years, dumping several thousand dollars a month into the community.

GREAT NEPHEW OF MRS. OWEN KILLED

David Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Jones of Turnersville was killed instantly on the night of May 20 between Gatesville and Turnersville. Young Jones was 17, and was a great-nephew of Mrs. J. P. Owen of Hico.

Funeral services were held at Turnersville Methodist Church Monday afternoon, May 22, at 4 o'clock.

Mrs. J. E. Burleson of Coleman visited during the weekend in the home of her daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Randals, Barbara and James Hord.

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Joe McGlothlin and children of Odessa visited Wednesday in the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Wright.

DAIRYMAN'S WIFE—

break all the bones in your foot to have a calf jump on it; it only paralyzes it for a day or two.

Now that the battle has really started you are holding the pail with one hand, the calf's head down with the other, and with the other eight hands, you shove, push, poke, smack, pound, pull and prod. Nine times out of ten he isn't going to drink anyway at the first try but get a lot of healthy exercise and maybe the calf has some fun. By the second or third try he will certainly take to drinking; he has to or starve to death, and he isn't planning to starve.

By now we had acquired a sizeable herd which in turn gave good-sized quantities of milk and we were getting to be very unpopular with our route man who daily came to pick up the milk. We had found it necessary to install two milk coolers so now there was just barely enough room in the milk house to go in, turn around, and come out, so by the time he had boosted 15 or 16 ten-gallon cans up into his truck, the feeling of brotherly love toward your fellow man had worn pretty thin. But all this was soon to be corrected with the advent of the tin menace—the Bulk Tank.

The bulk tank is a marvelous invention, quite certainly dreamed up by some man who has spent long hours hoisting 10-gallon cans of milk up into a milk cooler or milk truck. Now we were able to strain the milk directly into this huge affair, which when full holds 500 gallons, and contains a big paddle in the middle which continuously stirs the milk while the motor is running.

When we first had the tank installed all the kids were wild to wash it. They could hardly wait for the milk man to come and drain the thing so they could get on with it, and I'll admit I found it rather fun to wash too, the first time or so. But like all good things, the fun soon wore off for everybody and I was allowed to wish it every day!

Takes Lots of Cows.
In any business, the size of the profits depends on the size of the output. Obviously, goods manufactured on a large scale can be manufactured much more cheaply. At least that is what one of my teachers tried to pound into our heads in business administration when I was in school. So the same rule applies to the dairy business, only on a slightly different scale, the more cows in production the larger the milk check.

Naturally the fellow who milks 30 cows is going to make more money than the little fellow who milks only 10, and if it is a family project such as ours, then it all stays in the family anyway, though everybody has to have a small slice of the profits and the more slices, the less profit for the operator—not that any of us worry about that. He got us into this; let him worry about his own profit!

Unfortunately, cows eat, the electricity has to be paid for, huge quantities of water are necessary and if the well goes dry—well, let's not go into that! So, the more cows milked, the bigger the milk check, the bigger the feed bill, the bigger the electric bill, the bigger slice all the kids want—it all dovetails nicely into a fine big headache. A family can certainly make a living in the dairy business, but there won't be any Cadillac in the garage, nor any spare time, any energy, any ambition, or much life; but, of course, you do have lots of cows!

As I glumly think over our long siege with cows, I often ponder over the curious fact that the only real good arguments we have ever had involved cows. The only real trip we ever went on was to see—you guessed it, cows. Any time anything at all goes wrong around the farm we do not lay it on the Republicans; we lay it on the cows. If all the cows in our life are lined up, one behind the other, I hope I am in a car headed the other way. Somebody else can milk 'em!

Coffee Time

CHATTER

By HELEN OGLE

A blank sheet of paper and an empty typewriter can be the biggest items in a newspaper office, when it comes time to fill an allotted space called a column. It's hard to sit down and peck out news or chatter about people when your mind is just plain blank, and that being my fate makes the attempt almost futile this week.

As I have said before we are opposed to holidays (those days adapted for a special occasion and a day of exemption from labor or work) but we do envy all the people who are privileged to observe them. It's really not bad working, just that we find ourselves left in the midst of a ghost town.

It must have been a day for sleeping at the Ray Cheek home as I received more yawns than news from Lou Dell. And that was at 10 a.m.

Call it fun if you like, but it's just plain work playing baseball, says Louise Blair who enjoyed entertaining her nieces, Ellen and Catherine Blair of Waco.

For the 25th consecutive year, June has been set aside as Dairy Month, and this year dairymen are observing their Silver Anniversary. This issue of the News Review is devoted to our local dairymen and I think you will enjoy reading one story in particular, entitled "I'm a Dairyman's Wife." We enjoyed the story and understand that it pretty well sums up life on a dairy farm.

J. B. and Ada Woodard are happy to salute our local dairymen, but said they can tell you a much better chicken story.

As I concede to this space each week, let's head for the press with this: "We should all be concerned about the future because we have to spend the rest of our lives there."

A Tribute to Our Local Dairymen . . .

FAIRY

By MRS. EUNICE DANIEL

We were sorry to learn of the passing of Mrs. Melissa (Will) Nelms, who passed away Saturday at the home of her daughter in Stephenville. Funeral services were held Monday at 2:30 p.m. at the Church of Christ at Duffau, with burial in Duffau Cemetery. Mrs. Nelms was a long-time friend and acquaintance of our parents when we lived at Duffau around 1897 to 1904. She was preceded in death by her husband a number of years ago. Our sympathy is extended to the family and other relatives at this time of deep sorrow.

We regret to learn that Mr. Maurice Fields is still a patient at the Hico Hospital following recent surgery. We hope he will soon be improved sufficient to be released from the hospital. The Fields formerly resided in this community and still own their farm here. They moved to Waco, but were presently staying at the home of their daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Lowry of near Hico to be near the hospital.

The writer and sister, Mrs. E. M. Hoover were called to the bedside of our mother, Mrs. A. L. Newman Sunday morning. She was rushed to the Hico Hospital where she is now a patient. Her condition is improved at this writing.

The writer was in Dublin Sunday afternoon to meet our sister, Mrs. Myrtle Enger of Brady who came in to be with her mother. While waiting for the arrival of the bus we visited in the home of our daughter, Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Allison.

Farmers would surely like to see some fair weather for a while now in order that they might complete the grain harvest. Many had grain windrowed when the rain came.

The rain was fine on row crops and gardens, as we were needing rain badly.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Porterfield and Billy Marvin are in Scotts Bluff, Nebraska, where Marvin is conducting a revival.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Blakley were in Fort Worth Saturday. They carried their mother, Mrs. J. L. McCoy to the home of her daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Licett where she will visit a while with them and other children in Fort Worth and Dallas.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hanes and Mike and his mother, Mrs. H. H. Hanes of Jonesboro were in Dallas Monday to attend commencement exercises at SMU for their son-in-law, Bobby Drew, who was a member of the graduating class.

Weekend and Memorial Day visitors in the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie New were Mr. and Mrs. Truett New and family and Miss Anita New of Fort Worth, and Mr. and Mrs. Leon New and family of San Benito.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Guinn are maternal grandparents of a new grandson, born last week to Mr. and Mrs. Darwood Brooks of Fort Worth.

Miss Patsy Whitaker, who is attending school at Tarleton State College, spent the weekend and Memorial holiday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Whitaker.

Misses Anelle Gleason and Patsy Bullard, who have been attending school at Denton spent the weekend and Memorial holiday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Gleason and Mr. and Mrs. Justin Bullard and families.

Mr. and Mrs. Hobert Proffitt had as guests Sunday, his brother and wife Mr. and Mrs. Ray Proffitt of Cleburne, and his sister,

Mr. and Mrs. Jess Hickman of Gustize. All attended church at Fairy. They were expecting another brother and wife to come in by noon also. The get-together was in honor of Hobert's birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hartgraves and Lynda of Hamilton visited a while Sunday night in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hanes and Mike.

Mrs. Calvin Anderson and son, Joe Mack, of Arlington visited during the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Driver. Mr. Anderson joined them on Monday evening and visited through the Memorial Day holiday and also visited his mother, Mrs. M. C. Anderson of Hamilton and other relatives.

Work at the cemetery was completed last Saturday at noon, but with the recent rains the lots will soon have to be worked again.

Our sincere thanks to the A. J. Miller family for a donation of $10 for the Fairy Cemetery Association, received Monday by mail.

Birthdates for June which we have are: June 5, Mrs. D. E. Allison of Dublin; June 10, H. O. Richardson; June 14, Carolyn Sellers; June 2, Mrs. T. L. Betts of Hico; Wayne Pittman of Dublin, June 23, and Karen Pittman, June 16; Mrs. Nelly Williams of Fort Worth, June 15.

Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Richardson and Jerry visited Sunday afternoon in the home of her sister, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Adams of Hamilton.

Joe Elder and wife of Waco visited in the home of his sister, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Blakley, and Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Jones during the weekend.

A family reunion of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Elder will be held Sunday, June 11 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Jones of Hico. A basket lunch will be served at noon. A cordial invitation is extended to friends and relatives to attend.

This is the official picture of Bonnie Sue Houghtaling, the American Dairy Princess for 1961. 18 year old Bonnie Sue of Swan, Iowa, will travel over 100,000 miles representing some million dairy farmer members of the American Dairy Association on behalf of milk and milk products. Bonnie is 5 ft. 4 in. tall, weighs 123 pounds, has light brown hair and blue eyes. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Houghtaling, operate a 210 acre farm and have 35 Holstein cattle in their dairy herd.

A good crowd attended services Sunday morning. There were many visitors present. We are always glad to see a good crowd for Sunday School, but we are getting in a rut in our attendance. We are trying to have more than 48 in Sunday School. Why don't you make plans to attend next Sunday?

The regular monthly business meeting will be held this Sunday night. Be sure to attend the meeting to hear the recommendations from the board of Deacons.

Rise and Development of the Dairy Industry

The Entire Month of June is Set Aside To Pay National Tribute To This Industry

HERE ARE SOME INTERESTING DAIRY FACTS TO KNOW:

- Dairying is one of the largest sources of revenue in Hamilton, Bosque and Erath Counties, and throughout the United States.
- Dairying brings over three-fourths of a million dollars a day to American farmers.
- More than 45,000,000 quarts of milk are consumed daily in the United States.
- Milk and its products are produced and distributed under the strictest sanitary health regulations.
- Dairy products supply our most vital needs: calcium and phosphorous for the teeth and bones; proteins for tissue; sugar and fats for energy; vitamins for health & well-being.

At today's prices milk is the biggest bargain in food, and refreshment, too! Even if milk cost you twice as much, it would still be more in food, more in refreshment, more in health provider, than you get for your money any other way.

COUNTY AGENT REPORTS

By E. R. LAWRENCE

June is Dairy Monh. We do not have many dairies here in the county but those we do have are of the most modern design and are equipped with the most modern equipment available.

Dairymen of the county are all producing Grade A Milk and this is the highest grade that can be produced. Too, they are producing one of the highest quality products that goes on the market for human consumption.

With the type of operation carried on, milk goes directly from the cow to large bulk cooling tanks. From these tanks it goes to the milk plant for preparation for market. At no time is the milk exposed to the air and has very little chance of picking up any kind of foreign matter or contamination.

Any of the dairymen would welcome a visit to their place at any time. Generally they start milking in the afternoon around 4:30 or 5:00 o'clock. Why not pay a visit to one of them and see their good dairies, sample some of their milk and make an inspection of their plants. They are proud of their industry and well, they should be.

—ERL—

The following quotes describe milk as a food and comes from Cornell Home Economics Bulletin entitled "Milk." How to buy, store and use it, by Gertrude Armbruster, Mable Doremus, and Grace M. Foster. "Milk is more than a beverage," says the authors. "Milk is an excellent food. It is one of the best sources of calcium which is needed for building strong bones, teeth and blood; it is also needed for the clotting of blood and for the normal action of the muscle. Milk is especially important as a source of riboflavin, too. Riboflavin (B2) is needed for growth, for healthy eyes and skin, and to help prolong the vigor of youth. The protein in milk, like other protein from animal sources, is of high quality. Protein is important for the building and maintaining of body tissues. Diets which are generous in milk are seldom inadequate in calcium and riboflavin; diets low in milk are seldom adequate without special planning. Milk is a bargain in terms of calories because when you spend money for milk you get, in addition to calories, important amounts of protein, riboflavin and calcium. One glass of milk provides 165 calories. A glass of skim milk or buttermilk contains 90 calories. Drinking milk between meals can be a saving in calories because it curbs your hunger and prevents you from over-eating at mealtime. A glass of whole milk has a staying quality which helps to prevent you from having a worn-out feeling before the next meal—a real saving in frayed nerves and morale.

—ERL— Dr. Charles H. Mayo, late distinguished surgeon at the famous Mayo Clinic said, "Considering its cost per pound, milk offers more food for the money than any other food material available."

—ERL— With so many men having ulcerated stomachs, I have often wondered why some, or most of them, don't take a "Milk Break" rather than a coffee break. I really believe if we all did this we would feel better and be more able to make the day easier. Too, this would help consume large quantities of a product that is produced here in the county and is not imported from foreign countries. So, why not substitute a glass of good milk for that cup of coffee for a week and see if there isn't a difference.

HOOKING THEM UP—Joe Knapp, perhaps the youngest dairymen in this area, is shown as he started an afternoon's work one day last week. Knapp, who has been in the business since last September, is currently milking 74 cows. Milking procedure alone requires about eight hours each day (to be exact Joe said it took four hours in the morning and three hours and 45 minutes in the afternoon). Typical of many farmers, dairying has meant a chance to get started in private business on his own for Knapp.

MODERN EQUIPMENT—Most dairies in this area feature the latest in modern equipment. Shown here is the automatic washing unit at the farm of E. A. Black. That's Mr. Black's son standing near the equipment. The operation at this place is truly a family affair, with all members helping out when milking time comes.

IT HAPPENED . . .

HERE OR NEAR

By E. E. DAWSON

In the year 1886, when I was just under six years of age, we were picking cotton, over in Hill County, where we then lived. Dad picking, and brother and Mother grew thoughtful and all but ceased and I listened. He said, "Today, twenty years ago the war ended." On that day of the close of the Civil War, Dad was just under ten years old—he was born in 1856. I cite this fact in order to tell some things in that connection.

I was a rather young cotton picker. Less than six years old, but dragging a sack and picking on the outside of one of Dad's two rows of cotton that he was picking. I was not doing that work willingly. It was the way of the land to have kids go to work early in life. When Dad weighed his forty-pound bag of cotton, mine was also hung on the scale and if I had less than ten pounds I got a lecture on laziness. If I had a good ten pounds, I was praised a bit—just a wee bit!

Now my Dad came from Northeast Missouri, from near Hannibal, which is on the Mississippi River that separates Missouri from Illinois. My Mother came from Southwest Georgia. Their marriage was just ten years after the civil war. In those days we never heard the term "civil war"—it was always just "the war." My grandfathers lived within a few miles of each other, though they never visited each other. Their war talk was the same in the terms used. Each spoke of the contestants in the war as "Rebels and Yanks," never as Confederates and Union forces. In fact I never heard anything but Rebels and Yanks until I started to school and began in my thirteenth year to study history.

My Georgia-born grandfather was not a soldier in the war because he was a cripple. But they used him just the same, making him wash bullets. That is, bullets recovered from dead soldier's bodies. Not a very entrancing job, I imagine. My Missouri grandfather was not a soldier either. Whether incapacitated, or for some other reason, I am unable to say. But since Missouri was in a much disturbed area with its citizens almost evenly divided on the national issue, I am of the opinion that Grandfather was engaged in some activity protecting the homes and women and children of the men who did go to war. I have wondered just what Grandmother's influence might have been. She was reared in Philadelphia and with a great number of her family had immigrated to Missouri when it was a part of the Great West beckoning to the people of the eastern sections. She was of a historic family, the same as General Wade Hampton, and she may have had a strong Yankee conviction that affected her husband.

Now when my Missouri-born Dad and my Georgia-born Mother got together there were a lot of differences that had to be eventually bridged over. They both said Rebel and Yankee, but a lot of other terms differed widely. Mother usually dropped her "r's" and Dad accented his. Dad never used the word "tote" while Mother regarded it as an essential term. Mother had always known negroes intimately, while Dad had rarely seen one except when he went to Hannibal for the family supplies. My Georgia grandfather, always grew yams and collards. My Missouri grandfather scorned collards as fit only for pigs and negroes, and he grew sweet potatoes, which were not much sweeter than pumpkins. We always loved to go to see Grandfather Georgia because we liked collards (and I do to this day), and when Grandmother baked those yams in her oven they were fit food for a king.

Thus difference of origin affect a lot of things and habits as well as speech. In our day with radio and television and a closer mingling of our citizenry, differences of pronunciation and accent are disappearing as well as ideas concerning a lot of things that used to be so definitely provincial. Maybe we are growing up as a people.

DAIRYING IS . . .

Big Business!!

Let there be no doubt about it! Hico's Dairy Industry is mightily Big Business! And it is a real pleasure for us to congratulate these Dairy Farmers during June Dairy Month.

Without the dairy cow America would be without about one-fourth of its present food supply. Dairy herds on the farm account for some 120 BILLION pounds of milk used in the fluid form and for manufacturing dairy products; 40 per cent of the nation's beef, and 70 per cent of its veal.

To Hico's Dairy Industry, we say "More Power to you!" Let's all observe Dairy Month!
