IT HAPPENED HERE OR NEAR— Memories of '88 Recalled By Writer

By E. E. DAWSON
The year of 1888, the eighth of my mundane experience, lingers in memory perhaps more than any of the others. Maybe some such experience is common to all folks; that is, that one year has more memories than any other.

To begin with, the year had some awfully vicious weather soon after it arrived. An aunt of mine was getting married, and of course we had to attend that phenomenal event. We were loaded into the farm wagon and transported the twelve miles to where auntie lived, and in due course the wedding occurred. That very night a terrific cold spell arrived. Snow and heavy rains flooded all the streams, then subfreezing weather that tied up all the roads and kept us there at Grandfather's home for days and days. Finally the clouds vanished and a bright new day arrived that gave us a chance to start home. But within a few miles we came to Chambers Creek, found it flooded still and the whole surface frozen. Dad put us kids and Mother out of the wagon and had us cross on the ice while he undertook to drive the team with the wagon across the swollen and icy stream. He did not make it. The team struggled as far as it could and Dad pulled the pin that enabled the team to drag the doubletree on to the south bank of the stream and up on the frozen bank.

We—that is Mother and the kids—walked about a mile to a country home and its men folks hurried back to the creek where Dad and the wagon and team were marooned. It took them all day to get the wagon out, and we went on home the remaining eight miles in the dark and finally reached our destination, awfully tired but happy to be home.

That was a wet year and farmers had to mud in their crops and cultivate the best they could be, between heavy rains. In midsummer boll worms began working on the cotton and reduced the yield to an awfully low level. Bad, bad year!

In the community where we then lived there was an old woman, "Miz" Hazard, who looked like a hag and had a reputation that was in keeping with her appearance. In her early womanhood, over the other side of the Mississippi River where she lived, she had a tilt with another woman and killed her. Peace officers pursued Mrs. Hazard and had her cornered at a big river. She jumped into the river and swam across to its west side, then made her way in various hazardous ways to Texas, married and had a family, then grew old. In keeping with the habit of many old folks in those days she visited in the homes of the residents of the community, and always spent several days, often a week, in a home, watched every moment of the time she was there by the members of the home in mortal fear.

The folks reasoned that if she killed one person she might at any moment go on another killing spree and kill some of the members of the family she was visiting. Ah, how Mother watched her and was afraid to hint to the old soul that she should go to her own home, lest the offended matron would murder the inhospitable soul that dared make such suggestion to her. I have sat and watched every movement of that old crone, frozen with fear, until I could scarcely move, for hours.

Some of the neighborhood women who loved to gossip about the old lady Hazard had to enlarge a bit on the story and told that she had swum across the Mississippi. To be exact, it was one of the main rivers of the state of Mississippi.

Our nearest neighbor was Sam Maner. His old father and mother lived with him—rather Sam and his family lived with the old folks, for the property was theirs. "Miz" Maner (I never heard the term Mistress or Misses, in all those days of childhood; it was always "Miz" when folks mentioned a married woman) was a gentle and lovable old soul, in high esteem. Old Man Maner was a queer character. In his journey from his Tennessee home to Texas, as in his young manhood, he had a sweetheart leaving that native soil headed for Texas with a caravan. Young Mr. Maner joined the caravan. But another man was in love with his beloved one and the two men fought and the lady in question met Mr. Maner in a quiet spot and said to him, "Kiss me quick and go." He did and never saw her again. But he probably saved his life by the act.

Now in his late years Old Man Maner began to write the story of his life, hoping to get the book published. He had great piles of manuscript about the place, and on every possible occasion he would go to a neighbor's house and read from his manuscript to the woman of the home, always maximizing with the scene of the scene of the time he met his sweetheart and she said so dramatically "Kiss me quick and go!"

He would come to our house and start reading to Mother before she got through with the morning's work. Not wishing to embarrass the old neighbor, she would sit restless for hours until finally she could stand it no longer, then say to him "Mr. Maner, you'll have to excuse me, I have to get dinner." Reluctantly and half ashamed the old man would fold his papers and leave.

Then in that year and in that community was the Woody family. A few days after we moved there, a member of the Woody family came to our house to borrow some soda. That started it.

Next day, or soon after, another one of the family came to borrow salt, or soap, or thread, or tools, or nails, or soda and salt and soap again. Not often did a day pass but what a timid member of that unhappy family knocked on the door asking to borrow. Mother was a gentle soul and always divided with them when they asked for a loan. Did they pay back what they borrowed? Alas, there is no record of such an action.

If you never had a borrowing neighbor like that, you may count yourself lucky!
Finally the year ended and we moved to another place, but the moving was in deep mud and across swollen streams and near impassible mud holes. Now memory retraces the things of that turbulent year.

Teen Topics... By Barbara

It seems like school is already in progress with the football boys practicing, the band practicing, and the cheerleaders hard at work. Everyone seems very enthusiastic about the arrival of September 4.

That date doesn't mean much to our ex-Seniors because Tarleton starts at a later date. From the looks of things more than half of that class will be going to Tarleton. Danny Reeves has decided to try old Tarleton for a year or so, along with Harold Hathcock, Doane Martin, and Mark McElroy (I think). It's the hardest thing imaginable trying to get information out of some of those characters. I asked Danny four times and I finally got Kathy Higginbotham to tell me.

The last time I heard Charles Yell say anything about college he was going to University of Texas. I guess he still is, so let's hope he doesn't get lost in all those other thousands of students.

Fay McFadden was here this past weekend. It is hard to believe that her wedding is a week away. Sounds like her future is a bright one and she is going to be tremendously happy.

Cathy Singleton from Ft. Worth was here for a very short (too short) visit on Sunday. Her family has a new car and just had to show it to Cathy's sister, Joyce Boyd. I don't blame them—it was a beauty!

Carol Carter from Dallas has been here for a week with her grandmother, Mrs. Couch. Carol is soon to be living in Whitney where she will be our basketball rival, but I told her not to worry about that because we would still be friends.

All the summer workers are home now and ready to go. Margaret Prater, Martha Paddock, Judy Ogle, Barbara Patterson, Kathy Higginbotham and Margaret Warren are all pretty glad to be home. I guess we all are.

This looks like a bright year for all of us to add to our years of remembrance. Of course this has certainly been a wonderful summer for all of us. I only wish you could have enjoyed my efforts at writing this column one-half as much as I have.

See you around. Be sweet!

IREDELL BAPTIST CHURCH IS SETTING FOR HANSEW-FOUTS WEDDING FRIDAY

The Iredell Baptist Church was the setting Friday evening, August 24 for the wedding of Miss Brenda Kay Hanshaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Hanshaw, and Joe David Fouts, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Fouts of Iredell.

Rev. Bobby Jack Parker of Fort Worth read the vows at 8 o'clock, before an arch of tapers flanked by baskets of gladiolas and pom-poms and tall palms. The bridal aisle was marked by aqua bows. Mrs. Elizabeth Ray, pianist, presented a prelude of nuptial selections and accompanied Mrs. Wayne Duncan as she sang "I Love You Truly" and "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life."

Larry Hanshaw and Tommy Clauch were candlelighters. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white silk organza. The rounded neckline and front panel were decorated with lace and veils. Her shoulder length veil fell from a crown of rhinestones and pearls. She carried a white orchid nestled in white carnations atop a white Bible. The bride carried out the traditional something old, new, borrowed, blue, and a penny in her shoe.

Coffee Time CHATTER

By HELEN OGLE

We have worked, rushed and scrambled things together this past weekend in order that you might receive a copy of the weekly news, and at the same time allow the News Review to enjoy a short vacation. We hope that you will bear with us on any goofs, errors and what have you and we'll catch up next week.

We have had several inquiries about the Labor Day holiday Monday, which most businesses will observe, but would like to remind you that we will be on duty and if you have news to report we will be happy to hear from you. And I wouldn't turn down any ads, should you have one.

And speaking of vacations, just ask Paul Neel how he lost his socks in Ruidosa. That may account for his digging up the alley this week.

If rocking chairs become the order at the bowling alley, its Watt Ross that says they have gotten him.

Elto Higginbotham wanting to drive to Fort Worth and have lunch with her daughter but decided that was a far piece to drive, just because you were hungry.

Ophelia Pfortner of Walnut Springs was a visitor in Hico this past week and said she wanted to say hello to everyone as she would go into confinement next week. Seems she was enroute to the dentist and you know those new fangle teeth are hard to get used too.

It was nice to visit with Mrs. Royce Hall this past week and she was wondering what happened to the paper the previous week. Sam she always looked forward to the news and reading the advertisements before coming into town to shop.

If Marvin Marshall refuses to buy you coffee, think nothing of it—seems he made the mistake of laying a fifty cent piece on the counter and some friends just happened to all want coffee.

It's always nice to visit with friends, but we hate to see former residents like Mr. and Mrs. Leighton Guyton and daughters of Kentucky just breeze in for a hello. And there's Tex Knudson who swears that the fire alarm didn't go off when he was trying to dial the bank.

If you need a hint for a change in the menu, just call Lucille Jacobs and she can give out several new tips that she has recently learned.

Well the hot weather has been the main topic of discussion the past several weeks, but even that's not enough to hamper the thought of a first dove hunt.

Well time's running out for press deadline, so see you next week.

COUNTY AGENT REPORTS

Cotton harvest is getting started, although slowly, and it could be that harvest will be over in a short time—not too much cotton
 but still many acres to go over.

At harvest time on this crop is one time that it will pay to be a little lazy. Staying out of the field in the morning until the cotton has dried will make quite a difference in the grade and also the way the cotton will gin. It is estimated that something like ten dollars a bale is the difference.

Early cotton stalk destruction is

Wheat growers will vote in a referendum August 30 to decide if marketing quotas will apply for the 1963 crop. The referendum was announced recently by Sec. retary of Agriculture Freeman in accordance with the present law
 which makes such action necessary when wheat supplies are more than 20 percent above normal.

The law directs that wheat
 acreage allotments are to be used each year but at least two-thirds of the voters in the referendum must favor quotas if they are to apply to the next crop. Approval of marketing quotas would mean:

1. In commercial wheat states
 all farmers with more than 15 acres of wheat will be subject to quota penalties on their "excess"
 except those who comply with the feed wheat provisions. The penalty rate would be 45 percent of the parity price as of May 1, 1963.

2. Growers who comply with their wheat allotments will be eligible for price support at the level announced, of not less than $1.82 per bushel on a national basis.

Disapproval of Marketing Quotas would mean:

1. Marketing quotas and penalties will not be in effect for the 1963 wheat crop.

2. Acreage allotments will be used to determine eligibility for price support.

3. The wheat price support rate
 will be at 50 percent of parity,
 or about $1.21 per bushel national average.
 Those who are eligible to vote
 are the farmers in the 39 wheat states who will harvest more than 15 acres of 1963 wheat as grain
 but those taking part in the 1962
 feed wheat program are not eligible to vote. Producers will receive official notice of their allot-
