On August 18, during a battle in which he was shot in the upper lip, O'Brien fell with his damaged airplane from a heighth of 18, 000 feet. O'Brien says he cannot explain why he was not killed. When he regained consciousness he was in a German hospital.

Later the lieutenant spent three weeks a prison camp at Courtral before he was started for the interior of Germany. There were three other of Germany. There were three other prisoners under a strong guard in his compartment when O'Brien, as a ruse had the window opened by complaining of the smoke.

The train was now sixty miles in side of Germany and traveling at 30 miles an hour. But O'Brien decided to take a desperate chance. He jumped from the train, skinned the whole side of his face, reopening the wound in his lip and losing consciousnes. It was about four loclock in the morning and the darkness shielded him. When he recovered he was lying in a field.

Narrowest Escape

But his narrowest escape was reserved for his last day as a fugitive when he could see Dutch territory. To circumvent the charg ed wires O'Brien built a bridge in a nearby wood and threw it across the wires but it broke under his weight and O'Brien received a shock which he says he can still feel. When he recovered he dug with his bare hands a tunnel under the wires and although it was slow progress, after several hours he had a hole big enough to crawit through which he did unobserved. He then hunted up a Bratish consul and arranged for transportation to London.

London, Nov. 29.—Lieutenant Pat rick O'Brien of Momence, Ills., south of Chicago, the first American member of the British flying corps to escape from Germany, has arrived in London. O'Brien eluded his captors by jumping from the window of a speeding train. He then became a fugitive for 72 days and as his goal was within sight, narowly escaped electrocution from the charged wires along the Holland frontier.

Behind British Lines in France—fluence of the Arde and Plave Rivers, There is a certain brave battalion the town of Belluno, whose history in the British army which is known throughout the length and breadth of the line as "The Ferrets." The nickname was given them first of all from Venice. because of their success in dealing with the rat nuisance in their section of the line and the soldier who had most to do with combatting the rats is known from Dunkirk to St. Quentin as "O. C. Rats,"—the initials being the regular British army ábbreviation for "officer commanding."

The rats were probably worse in this battalion's section of the line last winter than anywhere else in Flanders, and many were the devices tried against the little enemy. Traps of all kinds were tried. Rat deyouring dogs were brought up, but in vail. A cat with a tromendous reputation in the French villages was purchased and did well at first, killing four rats in twenty-four hours and intimidating many others. Therewere, the battalion made much of the upon the battalion made much of the victorious animal, to its undoing, for it adapted itself as if by instinct to the life of a regimental pet, that is, it ate as much as it could of the men's rations, took the warmest corner available, and quit work Finally the battalion staff held a War Council, and dispatched one of ts number to London to bring back three or four good ferrets. In the trenches, the ferrets were an object of great interest. Private Thomas Merryweld emerged from obscurity and was assigned to take scirity and was assigned to take charge of the newcomers. From that day forward he was known to the army as O. C. Rats. He took his duties seriously, and immediately went into action against the little enemy that had been stealing food off the tables, running over officer's faces at night, chewing even the laces from men's boots.

The ferrets and their "O. C." put up some great hunts. There were moments of great excitement when the rats bolted wholesale before the new attack and were clubbed to the the state of the s death in the trench by the enthus-lastic men. There were also mom-ents of breathless anxiety, when one of the prectous ferrets emerged from a bolt hole somewhere below the barbed wire and was reported steer-

Little by little the art of rat hunting was learned by the whole battalion. Men became wise in ferret lore, cunning in interpreting the noises of an underground struggle between the antagonists. The rats have ever since given that section of the battle zone a wide berth and the fame of the winter's successful anti-rat offensive is known to all the anti-rat offensive is known to all the

NATION VERY FULL

VALUE OF ALL CROPS FOR YEAR PAST -6,500,000,000 OVER 1916.

More Than Twice Value of Any Year Prior to 1916 Represented by Products Already Marketed.

By Associated Press.

Washington, Nov. 25.—Thanksgiving Day Iinds America's horn of pienty with new high record fullness. Responding to President Wilson's appeal and the needs of a wartorn world American farmers produced a gross total of $2,000,000,000 worth of farm products, equalling in value the nation's total expenditures in one year of war.

The total value of all crops, animals and animal products, is $6,500,000,000 greater than last year and more than the combined value of any two pre-vious years. There were record crops of corn. oats, rye, white and sweet po-tatoes, tobacco and beans.

The principal farm crops will reach more than 12,000,000,000 in value, minor crops $2,000,000 and animals and animal products including butter cheese and eggs about $6,500,000,000 This year's values are based or preliminary production estimates and prices paid to producers. Nov. 1, as reported by the department of agriculture. An official estimates of the principal farm crop values will be made by the bureau of crop estimates on the comber 112 on December 11.

Corn, the country' greatest crop, accounts for about one third of the in creased total farm products value of this year. It is estimated at about $4,659,000,000 compared with $2,296, 000,000 last year. $1,723,000,000 in 1915 and $1,577,900,000 the average for the five years. 1910-14. In point of quantity corn this year saw its large-cest production being 66,000,000 bushquantity corn this year saw its largest production being 66,000,000 bushels more than the 1912 record crop. 608,000,000 bushels more than last year and 459,000,000 bushels more than the 1910-14 five year average.

Next in point of value comes cotton with a crop valued at about $1,981,000,000 accounting for more than one tenth of the year's' total value increase. Of that amount $1,645,000,000 is estimated for lint and $236,000. 000 is estimated for lint and $336,000,000 for seed. Cotton lint last year was valued at $1,080,000,000 and seed at $278,000,000 while the five year, 1910-14 average value was lint $275,000,000 seed $128,000,000.

Production this year is about 600,000 bales larger than last year and 2.840,000 bales smaller than the 1910-14 five year average.
