WILSON WARNS CENTRAL POWERS AMERICA HAS JUST BEGUN TO FIGHT

Russians Declare State Of War To Be At End; To Demobilize

UKRAINIANS SIGN SEPARATE PACT; DOLSHCHIKOVI AGREE TO CEASE WARFARE

By Associated Press
Amsterdam, Feb. 11.—Russia has declared the state of war to be at an end and has ordered the demobilization of Russian forces on all fronts, according to a dispatch received here today dated Brest-Litovsk on Sunday.
The dispatch follows:
"The president of the Russian delegation at today's (Sunday) sitting, stated that while Russia was desisting from signing a formal peace treaty, it declared the state of war to be ended with Germany, Austria-Hungary, Turkey and Bulgaria, simultaneously giving orders for complete demobilization of Russian forces on all fronts."

FORMAL PEACE CONCLUDED WITH THE UKRAINIANS

By Associated Press
Amsterdam, Feb. 11.—A dispatch from Brest-Litovsk giving the details of the conference at which the peace treaty between the Central Powers and the new Ukrainian republic was signed has been received here. The dispatch follows:
"It was possible to announce at the beginning of the last phase in the negotiations, that the basis for the conclusion of peace between the quadruple alliance and the Ukrainian people's republic had been laid. The return of the delegation to Brest-Litovsk negotiations on this basis were continued. Thanks to the energetic and untiring work of all commissions and thanks to the spirit of conciliation inspiring all parties agreement on all points was established so that the final drafting of the treaty and the signature could be carried out. Owing to the technical difficulties connected with the five treaty texts it was not possible to hold a formal signing and affix signatures until the early morning hours of Saturday.
Von Kuehlmann, opens meeting
"Dr. Richard von Kuehlmann, German foreign minister, as president, opened the sitting shortly before 10 o'clock in the morning with the following speech:
"Gentlemen, none of you will be able to close his eyes to the historical significance of this hour. The representatives of the four allied powers are met with the representatives of the Ukrainian people's republic to sign the first peace treaty in this war. This peace, signed with your young state, which has emerged from the storms of the great war, gives special satisfaction to the representatives of the allied nations. May this peace be the first of a series of blessed conclusions; peace blessed both for the allied powers and for the Ukrainian people's republic, for the future of which we all cherish the best wishes."
"The president of the Ukrainian delegation replied:
"We state with joy that from this day peace begins between the quadruple alliance and Ukraine. We came here in the hope that we should be able to achieve a general peace and make an end of this fratricidal war. The political position, however, is such that not all of the powers are met here to sign a general peace treaty. Instead of the most independent love for our people and recognizing that this long war has exhausted the cultural national powers of our people, we have diverted ourselves to our strength to do our part to bring about a new era and a new birth. We are firmly persuaded that we conclude this peace in the interests of our democracy and that this peace will contribute to the general termination of the great war. We gladly state here that the long, hard labor performed with success and that we have attained a democratic peace honorable to both parties. From today the Ukrainian people's republic is born to new life and it enters as an independent state, the circle of nations. It ends war on its front and it will see to it that all of the powers which in it lie, will rise to new life and flourish."
"Dr. von Kuehlmann then invited the representatives to sign the peace treaty. At one minute before two o'clock, Dr. von Kuehlmann, as the first signatory signed a copy of the treaty prepared for Germany and by 2:20 o'clock all of the signatories appeared."
The peace is entitled:
"A Treaty of Peace between Germany, Austria-Hungary, Bulgaria and Turkey on one part and the Ukrainian People's Republic on the other."
The preamble states that the Ukrainian people, having in course of the present war, declared themselves to be independent and expressed a wish to restore peace between itself and the powers at war. That Russia desired "to take first steps toward lasting world peace honorable to all parties, which shall not only put an end to the horrors of war but also lead to the restoration of friendly relations of peace between the political, economic and intellectual life."
Names of Negotiators
The names of all the plenipotentiaries engaged in the negotiations are then set forth and they are declared to have reached an agreement on the following points:
"Article I.—Germany, Austria-Hungary, Bulgaria and Turkey on the one hand and the Ukrainian People's Republic on the other declare that the state of war between them is at an end. The contracting parties are resolved to live in peace and friendship with one another."
"Article II.—Between Austria-Hungary on the one hand and Ukrainian

CENTRAL POWERS NOW SEEK PEACE WITH RUMANIANS

UKRAINIAN REPUBLIC GIVES AUTHORITY FOR DEVELOPING MINERAL LANDS

The war situation of today is summarized by the Associated Press as follows:
While engaging in the daily increasing military activity in Belgium, France and Italy, the Central Powers are pushing their diplomatic advances in the smaller enemy countries with the view, it is believed, of forcing the Bolshevik government of Russia to accept a separate peace. The new Ukrainian people's republic, which however, the Bolshevik leaders at Petrograd declare not to exist, has made a peace agreement with the quadruple alliance, which in the meantime holds the threat of military power over Rumania to force a similar pact with that country. On February 6, Field Marshal von Mackensen is reported in German newspapers to have given the Rumanian government four days in which to enter peace negotiations with Germany. This time limit has expired, the Rumanian cabinet has resigned as a consequence of the ultimatum and the Germans are reported to have repaired the oil wells in Rumania, which the British damaged just previous to the Rumanian retreat.
The new Ukrainian republic, according to a Stockholm report, is said to have granted to the Central Powers full facilities for the development of mineral lands in return for a large loan and the addition to her territory of a large part of eastern Galicia. On this phase of the agreement, the Rumanian government is reported to have expressed its opposition to a separate peace between the Ukrainian state and the quadruple alliance. London having received no news from the Ukrainian capital to explain the Ukrainian action.
In France where the American forces have engaged the enemy in minor encounters, the violence of artillery action is daily increasing. On both sides of the Meuse and in the Vosges the French and German armies are engaged in artillery duels, while frequent enemy raids on French positions are reported, the most recent in the region of Bourguignons having fallen.

PEACE IMPOSSIBLE AT THIS STAGE, IS TAFT'S ASSERTION

HE SPEAKS IN ARMY CAMP

By Associated Press
Fort Riley, Kan., Feb. 11.—The part which Americans must play in the war was discussed here today by ex-President Taft in the first of a series of addresses which he is to make at training centers in the central department of the army under Y. M. C. A. auspices. Mr. Taft arrived here from Camp Pike and was escorted to the camp by a large number of soldiers. He said, in part:
"The war has not been won. Germany is in possession of Belgium and part of France. She holds Serbia and Rumania, Poland and the Baltic Provinces of Russia. Peace now, even though it be made on the basis of the restoration of the status quo, would mean a permanent annihilation of the world. It would be a failure to achieve the great purpose for which the Allies have made heartrending sacrifices. It would mean a continuance for the next war, and this war would have been fought in vain."
"He who proposes peace now, therefore, either does not see the stakes for which the Allies are fighting, or wishes the German military autocracy still to control the destinies of all civilized nations. Those who favor permanent world peace must oppose with might and main the proposals for peace at this stage. It is the solemn duty of the Allies to fight for a principle of maintenance of civilization. If they do not achieve it, they have sacrificed the flower of their youth and mortgaged their future for a century. They must stand firm, whether they conquer it. When they do so, it will be permanent. Otherwise they fail."
"Germany alone is responsible for this war. She led on in the attempt to rule the world that she might rule it. She promoted therefore the armament of other nations. Her system was followed by other nations, whether they other countries in pure defense of their peace and safety."
"Intrigue and Dishonor
"The German honor, which has characterized the German military policy of Germany. The rules of international law have been cast to the winds. The murderous submarine has attacked every neutral vessel. The enemy and drowned their officers, their crews and their passengers, men, women and children. They have been pursued against enemy commercial vessels, but also against neutral commercial vessels. We find a particular form of aggression in the seizure of the German liner, the Arcturion, a neutral ship, by a German submarine. The German diplomat telegraphing from Berlin, advised that the Arcturion was being used against the vessels of the neutral power. It leaves no trace of the attack, and he fell to the murder of the crew must be complete—dead men tell no tales."
"Having violated the neutrality of Belgium to that country and its obligations to that country and its people, it is now enslaving them by taking them from Belgium and enforcing their labor in Germany. This is a violation of the laws of international law, and is in defiance of the plainest principles of justice and honor. All these things are done for the sake of the rule of Germany in its desperate desire to rule the world. It has allowed no consideration of humanity or decency or honor to prevent its use of any means which in any way will help it to accomplish its military purpose."
To Make World Safe
"President Wilson says the allies are fighting to make the world safe for democracy. Some misconception has been created on this head. The allies are not struggling to force a democracy of government on Germany. If the German people continue to wish an Emperor, it is not the purpose of the allies to require them to have a republic. Their purpose is to end the military policy and foreign policy of Germany that looks to the maintenance of a military and naval machine, with its hair-trigger reputation for aggression against her neighbors. If this continues, it will entail on every democratic government the duty of maintaining a similar armament in self-defense, or what is more likely, the duty will be wholly or partially neglected. Thus the policy of Germany with her purpose and destiny will threaten every democracy. The political conduct which it is the determined purpose of the allies as interpreted by President Wilson, to change."
"How is the change to be effected? By defeating Germany in this war. The German people have been very loyal to their Emperor, because his leadership accords with the false philosophy of the state and German destiny which they have been indoctrinated and poisoned. A defeat of the military machine must open their eyes to the hideous futility of their political conduct. The German government will then be changed as a matter of time."

FORT WORTH CAMP TO BE ADVANCED FLYER'S SCHOOL

By Associated Press
Fort Worth, Tex., Feb. 11.—Lieut. Colonel Roscoe announced today, following his visit to Washington that as soon as the royal flying corps returns to Canada in April, the Americans will take over all the fields here and convert them into advanced stations. Pursuit squadrons will be assembled here from all parts of the country. The field will be enlarged to accommodate the new instruction courses. It is said this will be the largest advanced flying school in the United States.

Greater Activity Is Reported in Lorraine, Statement Declares

By Associated Press
Brienne, Feb. 11.—Increased activity in Lorraine and the Vosges is reported today by the war office. (The Americans are in Lorraine.)
In Flanders there were violent local engagements. The announcement follows:
"reconnoitering advances by the British at many points in Flanders and Artois led to violent engagements, especially near Warneton and east of Armentieres. We took prisoners."
"Army group of Duke Albrecht: In Lorraine and in the central Vosges fighting was revived in the afternoon. We brought in prisoners as a result of raids south of Embarras, near Senones and on the Buchenkopf."
"Italian front: There was lively artillery fighting on the Sette Comuni Plateau."
Escaping Prisoner Falls From Roof; He Meets Death
By Associated Press
Miami, Okla., Feb. 11.—In a jail break Sunday night, two prisoners succeeded in reaching the roof of the jail and used blankets for making a rope. One of the prisoners, Charles Crow, held in jail for violating the prohibition law, succeeding in alighting the rope in safety and made his escape.
Henry Seala, who was in jail charged with threatening his wife with a gun, fell from the roof, a distance of forty feet, and was killed. Just as he swung himself over the cornice, the blanket rope broke and he fell to the pavement. He lived about ten hours.

VON HERTLING AND CZERNIN ARE GIVEN ANSWERS TO RECENT PUBLIC SPEECHES

By Associated Press
Washington, Feb. 11.—President Wilson, appearing unexpectedly before congress again today, replied to the recent speeches by Count Von Hertling, the German chancellor, and Count Czernin, the Austria-Hungarian foreign minister, by reminding the statesmen of the Central Empire that peace can be discussed only on a basis of permanency and essential justice and broadly warning the people of the central empires that the participation of the United States in the war for emancipation of humanity has only just begun.
Plainly the president warned the German military autocracy that there was to be no pausing in the mobilization of America's military resources, now steadily on their way to the battle fronts, and that if peace is to be discussed it would have to be on a basis of sincerity. Otherwise, the president made it plain there was to be no turning back until military autocracy was crushed by force of arms.

Count Czernin Restrained

Count Czernin's speech the president however, the president characterized but he considered the Austrian foreign minister restrained by the embarrassment of Austria's alliance and the dependence on Germany.
"Count Czernin," said the president, "seems to see the fundamental elements of peace with clear eyes and does not seem to obscure them."
Chancellor von Hertling's speech "The aim of the German chancellor as 'very vague and confusing,' and full of equivocal phrases," leading nowhere clearly.
As judged from his speech, the president thought, evidently was to secure a peace advantageous to the aims of the German military autocracy and to secure to the international community to make it secure.
"Hertling's Peace"
Count Hertling, the president declares, evidently was seeking quiet as was made at the Congress of Vienna.
"What is at stake now," says the president, "is the peace of the world. What we are striving for is a new international order based upon broad and universal principles of justice—no more peace of shreds and patches. It is possible that Count von Hertling is in fact living in his thought, in a world dead and gone."
There was a test, the president said which would show whether it was of an avail to go on exchanging peace views, and it could be made by applying the following principles:
The Principles
"1.—Each part of the final settlement must be based upon essential justice to be important and the essence of a permanent peace."
"2.—Peoples and provinces are not to be bartered about like chattels to establish a balance of power."
"3.—Territorial settlements must be for the benefit of people concerned and not merely adjustment of rival states' claims."
"4.—Well defined national aspirations must be accorded all possible satisfaction."
"A general peace upon such foundations can be discussed," said the president, "if it is not to be a peace secured by force of arms but to go on."
These general principles, the president said, have been accepted by everyone except the military autocrats of Germany.
General Peace
"A general peace," said the president, "is not to be secured by force of arms. Until such a peace can be secured we have no choice but to go on."
The address plainly, while spoken to the house, was not addressed to it. It was addressed to the chancellors of Germany and Austria and others," said Republican leader Mann.

WAGE INCREASES OF TEN PER CENT ASKED OF ROADS

By Associated Press
Washington, Feb. 11.—Wage increases of ten per cent with a minimum wage of $3.50 were asked of the railroad wage commission today by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers through Timothy Shea, acting president. In reiterating demands made on the railroads last week, Mr. Shea said they were "no moderate" that the strikers expected them to be readily granted.
The firemen also asked for time and a half for overtime work, completion of a minute basis, which they said they hoped would reduce overtime work by imposing a penalty on it.

COLONEL ROOSEVELT CONTINUES TO IMPROVE
By Associated Press
New York, Feb. 11.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt's condition continues to improve. It was stated at Roosevelt Hospital early today. He passed a comfortable night and his physicians believe that his recovery is merely a matter of time.

TEXT OF PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS IS GIVEN TO PUBLIC COMPLETE

By Associated Press
Washington, Feb. 11.—President Wilson spoke as follows:
"Gentlemen of the Congress: On the eighth of January I had the honor of addressing you on the objects of addressing you on the objects of the war as our people conceive them. The prime minister of Great Britain had spoken in similar terms on the fifth of January. To these addresses the German chancellor replied on the 24th and Count Czernin for Austria on the same day. It is gratifying to have our desire so promptly realized that all exchanges of view on this great matter should be made in the hearing of all the world."
Count Czernin's reply which is directed chiefly to my own address on the 8th of January, is uttered in a very friendly tone.
No Private Reports
He finds in my statement a sufficiently encouraging approach to the views of his own government to justify him in believing that it furnishes a basis for a more detailed discussion of purposes by the two governments. He is represented to have intimated that the views he was expressing had been communicated to me before hand and that I was aware of them at the time he was uttering them; but in this I am sure he was misunderstood. I had received no intimation of what he intended to say. There was, of course, no reason why he should communicate privately with me. I am quite content to be one of his public audience.
Count von Hertling's reply is, I must say, very vague and very confusing. It is full of equivocal phrases and leads to it is not clear where, but it is certainly in a very different tone from that of Count Czernin and apparently of an opposite purpose. It confirms, I am sorry to say, rather than removes, the unfortunate impression made by what we had learned of the conference at Brest-Litovsk. His discussion and acceptance of our general principles led him to no practical conclusions.
Sticks to Generalities
He refused to apply them to the substantive items which must constitute the body of any final settlement. He is jealous of international action and the international council. He accepts, he says, the principle of public diplomacy but he appears to insist that it be confined, at any rate in this case, to generalities, and that the several particular questions of territory and sovereignty, the several questions upon whose settlement must depend the acceptance of peace by the 22 states now engaged in the war, must be discussed and settled, not in general council but severally by the nations most immediately concerned by interest or neighborhood. He agrees that the new should be free but looks askance at any limitation to that freedom by international action in the interest of the common order. It would, he would, be obliged to see economic barriers removed between nation and nation, for that could in no way impede the ambitions of the military party with whom he seems constrained to keep on terms.
Limitation of Armaments
Neither does he raise objection to a limitation of armaments. That matter will be settled, he thinks, by the economic conditions which must follow the war. But the German colonies, he demands, must be returned without debate. He will discuss with no one but the representatives of Russia what dispositions shall be

Former Sultan Dies From Inflammation of Lungs Is Reported

Amsterdam, Feb. 11.—The death yesterday of Abdul Hamid, former Sultan of Turkey from inflammation of the lungs, is announced in a dispatch received here today from Constantinople by way of Vienna. A state funeral will be held.

RUSSIA FORMALLY STEPS OUT OF THE WAR
Russia steps formally out of the war by act of the Bolshevik government, which seized the reins of power in Petrograd last November and since immediately began peace negotiations with the Central Empire. Authority of this government seems virtually unquestioned at present in northern Russia and the Teutonic powers have already assured the cessation of hostilities.

made of the peoples and the lands of the Balkan provinces—will be one but the government of France "the conditions" under which French territory shall be evacuated, and only with Austria what shall be done with Poland. In the determination of all questions affecting the Balkan states he refers as I understand him to Austria and Turkey, which states with the agreement to be entered into concerning the non-Turkish peoples of the present Ottoman empire, to the Balkan authorities themselves. After a session, by individual barter and concession, he would have no objection, if I correctly interpret his statement, to a league of nations which would undertake to hold the new balance of power steady against external disturbances.

Not Worth Securing
It must be evident to every one who understands what this war has wrought in the opinion and temper of the world, that no general peace, no peace worth the infinite sacrifices of these years of tragical suffering can possibly be arrived at in any such fashion. The method of the German chancellor proposes, is the method of the congress of Vienna. We cannot and will not return to that.

What is at stake now is the peace of the world. What we are striving for is a new international order, based upon broad and universal principles of right and justice—no mere peace of shreds and patches. It is possible that Count von Hertling does not see that, does not grasp it, is in fact living in his thought in world dead and gone? Has he utterly forgotten the Reichstag resolutions of the nineteenth of July, or does he deliberately ignore them? They spoke of the condition of a general peace, not of rational acknowledgment of arms between state and state. The peace of the world depends upon the just settlement of each of the several problems to which I adverted in my recent address to the congress. I, of course, do not mean that the peace of the world depends upon the acceptance of any particular set of suggestions as to how it is in which these problems are to be dealt with.

Affect Whole World
I mean only that those problems each and all affect the whole world; that unless they are dealt with in a spirit of unselfish and unbiased justice, with a view to the welfare, the natural connections, the racial aspirations, the security of mankind and peace of the peoples involved, no permanent peace will have been attained. They cannot be discussed separately or in corners. None of these resolutions, a private or separate interest from which the opinion of the world may be shut out. Whatever affects the peace of mankind and peace of mind settled by military force, if settled wrong, is settled at all. It will presently have to be reopened.

Speaks for the World
Count von Hertling not aware that he is speaking in the court of mankind, that all the awakened nations of the world now sit in judgment on what every public man, of whatever nation, may say on the issue of a conflict which has spread over every region of the world? The Reichstag resolution of July frankly accepted the decisions of that court. There shall be no annexations, no contributions, no punitive damages. Peoples are not to be handed out from one sovereign to another.

an international conference or by an understanding between the antagonists National aspirations must be respected, peoples may now be dominated and governed only by their own consent.

Self-Determination.
"Self-determination" is not a mere phrase. It is an imperative principle of action, of every issue any henceforth ignore in their peril. We cannot have peace for the asking or by the mere arrangements of a peace conference. It cannot be pieced together out of individual understandings between powerful states. All the parties to this war must join in the settlement of every issue any where involved in it because what we are seeking is a peace that we can all unite to guarantee and maintain. Every item of it must be submitted to the common judgment whether it be right and fair, an act of justice, rather than a bargain between sovereigns. The United States has no desire to interfere in European affairs or to act as arbiter in European territorial disputes. We should demand no advantages, no internal weakness or disfavor to impose her own will upon another people.

Ready to Be S'own.
She is quite ready to be shown that the settlement she has suggested are not the best or the most enduring. They are only her own provisional sketch of principles and of the way in which they should be applied. But she entered this war because she made a partner, whether or not in the sufferings and indignities inflicted by the military masters of Germany, against the peace and security of mankind and the conditions of peace will touch her as nearly as they will touch any other nation to which is entrusted a leading part in the maintenance of civilization. She cannot see her way to peace until the causes of this war are removed, its renewal rendered as nearly as may be, impossible.

Disregard of Rights.
This war had its roots in the disregard of the rights of small nations and of nations which lacked the union and the force to make good their claim to determine their own allegiance and their own forms of government. The Covenant must be entered into which will render such things impossible for the future; and those covenants must be backed by the united force of all the nations that love justice and are willing to maintain it at any cost.

Must Be Consistent.
County von Hertling wants the essential basis of all the common industrial life to be safeguarded by common agreement and guarantee but he cannot expect that to be conceded him if the other materials to be secured by the articles of peace are not handled in the same way as items in the final accounting. He cannot ask the benefit of common peace in the one field without according it in the other. I take it he granted that he sees that separate and selfish compacts with regard to trade and the essential materials of manufacture would afford no foundation for peace. Neither, he must rest assured will separate and selfish compacts with regard to provinces and peoples.

Fundamental Elements.
Count Czerain seems to see the fundamental elements of trade with clear eyes and does not seek to obscure them. He sees that an independent Poland, made up of all the indisputably Polish peoples, and the contiguous to one another, is a matter of European concern and must of course, be conceded in that Belgium must be evacuated and restored no matter what concessions that may involve and that national aspirations must be satisfied, even within his own empire. In the common interest of Europe and mankind, if he is silent about questions which touch the interest and purpose of his allies more nearly than they touch those of his own country, he is applying them, he naturally feels that Austria can respond to the purpose of peace as expressed by the United States with less embarrassment than could Germany. He would probably have gone much further had it not been for the embarrassment of Austria's alliance and of her dependence upon Germany.

After all the test of whether it is possible for the entire government to go any further into this comparison of views is simple and obvious. The principles to be applied are these:
First, that each part of the final settlement must be based upon the essential justice of that particular cause and upon such adjustments as are most likely to bring a peace that will be permanent.

Second, that peoples and provinces are not to be bartered out from sovereignty to sovereignty, as if they were mere chattels and pawns in a game, even the great game, now forever discredited, of the balance of power; but that:
Third, every territorial settlement involved in this war must be made in the interest and for the benefit of the populations concerned and not as a part of any mere adjustment or compromise of claims amongst rival states; and that:
Fourth, that all well defined national aspirations shall be accorded the utmost satisfaction that can be achieved without introducing new or perturbing old elements of discord and antagonism that would be likely, in time, to break the peace of Europe and consequently of the world.

General Peace
A general peace erected on such foundations can be discussed. Until

Are You Slowing Up? Nerves Shattered? Liver Inactive?

IF SO, HERE IS THE REMEDY: PEP SYSTEMIC PILLS.
The Miller Drug Store will supply you with a bottle of these wonderful pills. If, after taking an inventory of yourself you find you are "slowing up," your nerves shattered, liver inactive, poor blood supply, treatment began now will show you astonishing results.

The formula of these pills have been prescribed by noted physicians for many years and is of the disposal of any ethical physician for his approval upon request. The iron used in this preparation is conceded by the medical world to be the most assimilable form of iron salts—namely, Protocarbonate of Iron and more often termed "Miller's Mass." Any intelligent pharmacist or physician will tell you that this form of iron will not upset the stomach or discolor the teeth. This form of iron is reinforced by other powerful reconstructive tonics, combined with liver stimulants and nerve tonics, which make up a tonic with a similarity, combining three tonics in one, LIVER, BLOOD and NERVES. Until PEP SYSTEMIC PILLS were introduced on the market you never have had the opportunity to buy a tonic that gives such gratifying results.

The enormous repeat business is how the distributors account for their product scoring such marvelous results and meeting with such popular favor. Testimonials and praise is being received "dail" from ones who have tried them. If you are languid feel yourself slowing up with your duties, your system run down, your nerves shattered, are needing a good strengthening tonic, it is up to you to buy a bottle NOW, and don't neglect yourself any longer. They can be had at the Miller Drug Store and other druggists. Accept no substitute for these pills—Advt.

Such a peace can be secured we have no choice but to go on. So far as we can judge, those principles that we regard as fundamental are already everywhere accepted as imperative except among the spokesmen of the military and annexationist party in Germany. If they have anywhere else been rejected, the objectors have not been sufficiently numerous or influential to make their voices audible. The tragical circumstances is that this one party in Germany is apparently willing and able to send millions of men to their death to prevent what all the world now sees to be just.

Never Can Turn Back
I would not be a true spokesman if I did not say once more that we entered this war upon no small occasion and that we never can turn back from a course chosen upon principle. Our resources are in part mobilized now and we shall not pause until they are mobilized in their entirety. Our armies are rapidly going to the fighting front and will go more rapidly. Our whole strength will be put into this war of emancipation—emancipation from the great and atemporal master of selfish groups of autocratic rulers—whatever the difficulties and present partial delays. We are indomitable in our power of independent action and can in no circumstances, consent to live in a world governed by intrigue and force. We believe that our own desire for a new international order, under which reason and justice and the common interests of mankind shall prevail is the desire of enlightened men everywhere. Without that new order the world will be without peace and human life will lack tolerable conditions of existence and development. Having set our hand to the task of achieving it, we shall not turn back. Utters No Threat.

I hope that it is not necessary for me to add the no word of what I have said is uttered as a threat. That is not the temper of our people. I have spoken thus only that the whole world may know the true spirit of America—that men everywhere may know our passion for justice and for self government is no mere passion of words but a passion which once set into action must be satisfied. The power of the United States is a menace to no nation or people. It will be used only for aggression or the aggrandizement of any selfish interest of our own.

It springs out of freedom and is for the service of freedom.

Fight for America
"But now we are at an anger point England and France and Russia since 1914 have been fighting the battle of the world and fighting for us in America. The three years or more of war have drained their vitality, strangled their credit, exhausted their man-power, subjected many of their non-combatants to suffering and destruction; and they have the war weariness which dulls the earlier eager enthusiasm for the principles at stake. Now specious proposals for peace are likely to be made alluring to the faint-hearted, and most powerful in the hands of the traitors."
"We have, for the first time in the history of our republic, begun a war right. We have begun with a conscription law which requires service from men of certain age from every walk of life. It is democratic in principle, and yet it offers to the government the means of selection so that those who shall be sent to the front may be best fitted to represent the nation there, and those best able to do the work in field and factory essential to our winning at the front, may be retained. We have adopted a merit system of selecting from the intelligent and educated youth of the country, the company officers of an army of a million and a half of two million that we are now preparing."
"The lessons of the three years of the war are being learned and applied in our war equipment and in our manufacturing, by new construction, the submarine destruction of commercial transports. Food conservation is provided for. But, of course, it takes

One gallon of ice cream, therefore, represents 1.8 gallons of milk.

By comparison—U. S. Dept. Agriculture—
1 qt. sweet milk equals 11 ounces sirloin steak;

Therefore one quart ice cream equals 20 ounces sirloin steak; 22 ounces round steak; 15 eggs, 19 ounces of fowl.

The ice cream manufacturers of Texas in convention at Dallas, Dec. 4, 1917, agreed and signed Hoover pledges to save one third of the sugar formerly used, notwithstanding we are allowed 80 per cent. We are using other sweetening. This will give the government nearly 50 cars of sugar from Texas.

time for a hundred million of peace lovers and non-militarists to get ready however apt, however patriotic, however determined. TWO ARE KILLED AND THREE HURT RESULT OF WRECK

CONDUCTOR MCGUIRE AND BRAKEMAN BROWN DIED ON NORTHWESTERN.

CAUSE NOT DETERMINED

Lofton, Brashear and Parker Are Reported in Serious Condition at Hospital at Mangum, Okla.

Conductor C. B. McGuire and brakeman W. F. Brown, of this city, are dead, and E. R. Lofton, J. R. Parker, and J. E. Brashear, trainmen, are lying in the hospital at Mangum, suffering severe injuries, as the result of a rear-end collision of two freight trains on the Northwestern line, which occurred about 4:30 Sunday morning. The cause of the collision had not been determined this morning. Both bodies were brought here immediately, that of Mr. McGuire going to his old home in Victoria today, and that of Mr. Brown to be buried here tomorrow.

Critical Condition. Engineer A. B. Tevis, who brought his passenger train along a few hours after the wreck, stated that Engineer Lofton had sustained a crushed chest and was otherwise badly bruised. He was reported last night, Mr. Tevis said, as in a very critical condition; but the superintendent of the line received word this morning that he was improving. Fireman Parker had his leg taken off above the knee, and brakeman Brashear was reported to be in a critical condition, but otherwise unharmed. It is a curious circumstance of the wreck that the men killed were in the second caboose, while those in the first caboose, though receiving the first impact of the collision, escaped with their lives. Both cabooses are reported as utterly destroyed, engine 558 burned, and a car of coal smashed.

McGuire Fifty Years Old. Conductor McGuire was fifty years old last July, and is survived by a widow and two nephews—Edgar, Sheldon, with the American navy in English waters, the other, Charlie, in San Diego, Cal. He was born at Parkville, Mo., and was a member of the Baptist Church at Tyler, Tex. The body will be sent to Victoria this evening.

W. F. Brown, thirty-two years old, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Brown, 1108 Fourth St., city, and was born at Whitney. He is survived by his young wife and a member of the young nine years last Thursday—both his parents, three brothers, one of whom, Emmett, is now on his way here from Camp Lewis in Siberia. The burial will take place tomorrow.

For Itching Torture

There is one remedy that seldom fails to stop itching torture and relieve skin irritation and that makes the skin soft, clear and healthy.

Any drugstore can supply you with zemo, which generally overcomes all skin diseases. Acne, eczema, itch, pimples, rashes, blackheads, in most cases give way to zemo. Frequently, minor blemishes disappear overnight. Itching usually stops instantly. Zemo is a safe, antiseptic liquid, clean, easy to use and dependable. It costs only 35c; an extra large bottle, $1.00. It will not stain, is not greasy or sticky and is positively safe for tender, sensitive skin.

SAILOR SCHOOLS AND CAMOUFLAGE

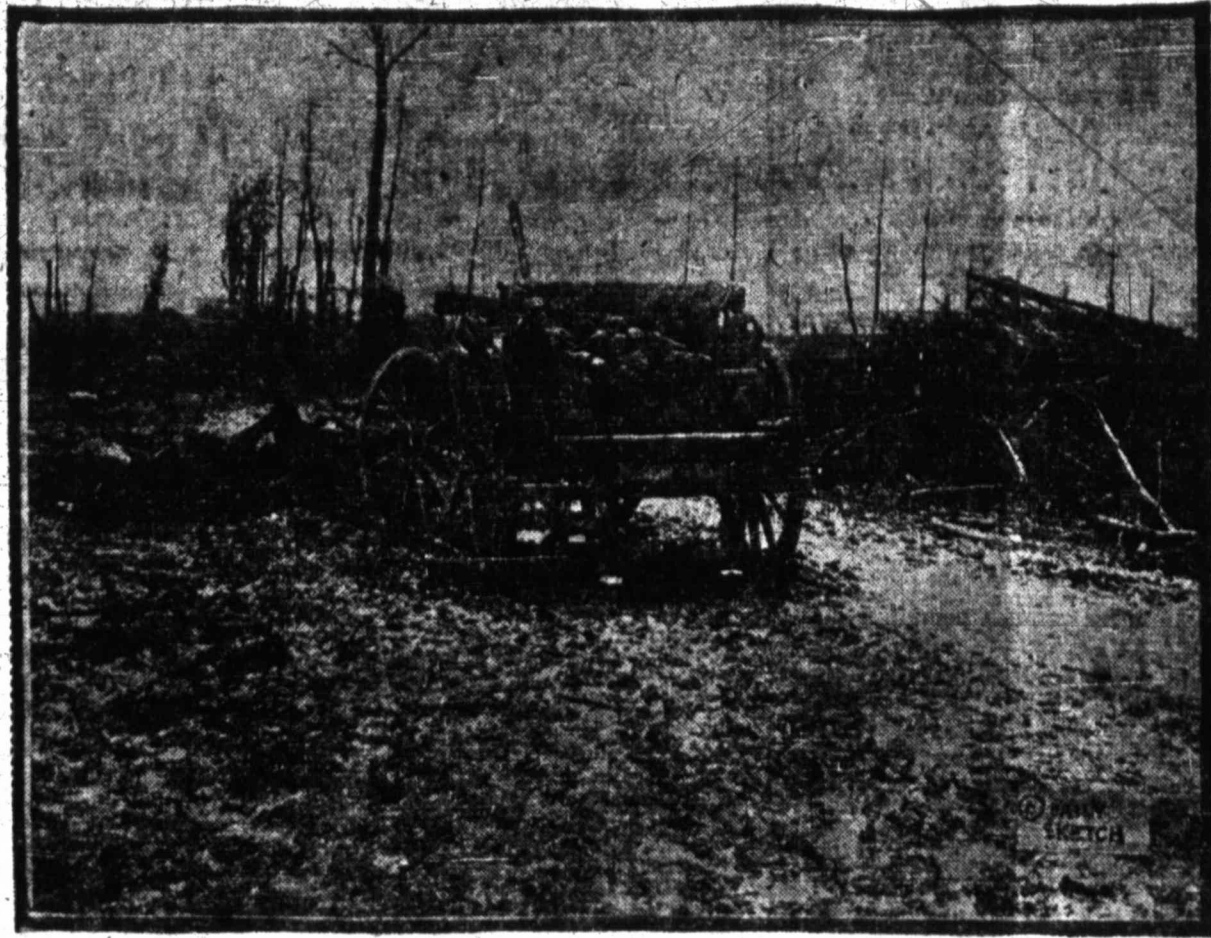

By GEORGE T. BYE. London, Feb. 10.—Seven American correspondents, myself included, returned this morning from an excursion by special sleeping car and boat to the principal naval training station of Great Britain, just before rain time last night, when our naval escort had left us. John F. Parkinson of the Associated Press suggested that we summarize our chief impressions.

"What stands out most prominent to me," he began, "is that every morning at 5 o'clock, seven days a week, upon every training ship and at the barracks ashore, every sailor scholar and every instructor, every man and officer assembles to sing 'God Save the King' and 'The Star Spangled Banner,' one right after the other. This 1917 regulation of the station strikes me as being of far more consequence than anything else we saw or heard."

This same view was held by Stuart Sessions of the Christian Science Monitor and C. W. Weiler of the London bureau of the New York Sun. Democratic Principles.

Valentine Wallace, representing the Chicago Daily News, said he was

WAR'S GRIM HARVEST "SOMEWHERE IN NORTHERN FRANCE."

In the midst of the desolation of war in the fields of Northern France lie dead a German gunner and his horses, all victims of a single high explosive shell.

Impressed most by the democratic nature of the training, by which any boy might rise to any height in career in the British Navy if he but showed aptitude and interest. Walter Hackett, American play writer, echoed Mr. Wallace. He hoped the American Navy had the same democratic foundation by which promotion was based alone on merit. Chair Price, of an American news paper syndicate, was impressed most by the thoroughness of the elementary training by the emphatic repetition of the most important lessons every day after day until drummed into every boy. He also saw a fine show of democracy in the way it was left to each boy to choose his own branch of service.

When it came around to my turn, I told them I was going to be honest if a bit out of line—that the biggest revelation of the visit to me was the sight from the bridge of one of the training ships of a crazily painted hulk steaming past us and out to the open sea, a camouflaged warship flying the flag of the United States. How we cheered when we saw our own countrymen putting the decks in readiness for instant action, even adjusting depth bombs to their chutes, for this ship of ours evidently was going out on a hurry call and would be in the thick of the submarine jungle in a very few minutes.

And now varied were our impressions of her gaudy profile when she was at a little distance, seeming at times to be anything from a blue lobster with yellow rings, eating a pink banana, to a lemon-colored wheel carrying a scarlet umbrella and trying to dodge an aura of pink, blue and grass-green lightning.

Later on we saw scores of camouflaged ships moored near together, some of the American Navy but most of them British, a silly jabbardoozy fleet that suggested to one of our party a gallery exhibition of a lot of drunken coast-guarders. It was quite like the panorama of a dream I had after visiting Coney Island one night and dining there on pickles, frankfurters, pop corn and ice cream.

About the only ships in the great harbor that were not in bewildering jags of flashy color were the training vessels which we visited and one ship of the Russian Navy, flying the Russian flag, which all of us studied thoughtfully. We wondered if a stranger were in command of her and her officers in iron. Not a soul appeared in sight though smoke was coming from her stacks. British officers said they knew nothing of the ship excepting that she continues to receive coal and supplies.

Fort at Daybreak. We reached the seaport at daybreak of a murky morning. Though it was raining fitfully we decided to have a walk to a high point commanding a view of the harbor before breakfast. A considerable fleet was at anchor or slowly moving about in the outer basin, and there was an energetic flashing of masted signals, lights by which flagship messages were relayed to ships out of sight of us.

A lieutenant commander and lieutenant of the Royal Navy met us at 9:30, and we were at once on our way out in the harbor in the fast little steam pinnace belonging to the commodore in charge of the training service.

Some of the training is done ashore, but by far the most classes are held on board several clusters of old ships, some of tenderest historical connections. There were two that might have seen duty in the American Revolutionary War, although they were fairly antiquated then. The first we boarded had its wooden sides perforated with windows, and its decks boarded in and extensively windowed so that the British boys must enter a summer hotel on an island. She was lashed to two old timbers and altogether made a commodious school and sleeping place for about 1,400 boys.

Simple Barracks. As I had twice gone through the Grey's Naval Training Station at Lake Hurst, Ill., I couldn't help comparing the simple imposing barracks, the administration building, boat house and school buildings of our American institution with these much-washed old hulks used by the more sea-wise British. It occurs to me that the main point of difference is that the great Lakes station teaches Middle West boys how to fill temporarily the functions of a sailor man, while these clusters of English school ships convert young landlubbers into professional, seasoned tars. For one thing, to get admission into the school's four-year course, the British boy must enter with his parents' consent, for twelve years following graduation. That is enough to keep him at sea for life.

The ago boys entering the training ships, unless for the artificer or other special courses, is under 15 years. When the children arrive in batches the school comes from well-to-do families, but of course this is given no consideration. It is the aim to treat every boy as an equal until they prove strong mental superiority when they are shaded out of the material for officers later. I am quite sure that any Bolshevik sailor on that Russian ship would approve the system in vogue at the British naval training stations.

Vivid Impressions. Of my impressions dealing exclusively with the school, the most vivid I had was of the great earnestness with which the youngest boys went about their new work. I saw several dozen of them at their twice-weekly bath, in this arranged in rows, and they seemed to have been taught a scrubbing drill which they went through as seriously as if on parade. About a hundred had just arrived, and had been given their first responsibility. In uniform rows, facing one way, they sat on little peg-legged stools sewing their names on underclothing, after a fierce old sailor, with long mustaches, had whistled and snorted and stamped the letters of the name on the waistband. And each the glare he gave for a long name. That's why they used needles for the first time in their lives so painstakingly.

They had just been barbered, bathed and dressed in the Royal Navy uniform. Not one in the lot would have weighed much more than 100 pounds. Most of their faces were brightly intelligent. I wondered just how many were thinking more of their manna than of future danger on the bounding blue. All backs were bent at the same angle. In front of each boy in a neat pile was his first outfit, his "gear" as good men of the sea call it—extra clothes, work overalls, two caps, extra shoes, a navigator's manual, and a big handkerchief to tie it all up in. It was as if their lives lay there before them, and in spite of grave business with needle and thread, there was many a blushing, bashful glance at all that array of things, their own ocean-going things, that the Royal Navy had given them.

Hundred Boys. There was another hundred boys that had arrived a week earlier. We saw them at their hammock inspection. Each hammock, with its mattress coverings and blankets, was spread out in a set way under hooks where they were hung at night. The ropes had to be neatly laid out in right fan-shaped formation, just as things, their own ocean-going things, that the Royal Navy had given them.

On another deck there were classes in splicing and knotting rope and in elementary navigation. They were actually there for splicing and knotting rope and in elementary navigation. They were actually there for splicing and knotting rope and in elementary navigation.

Similar Practice. There was another target practice using a rifle, and on the same ship were classes in gun construction and gun mechanism, as well as in the identification of ships, in rigging sail and weighing anchor. Each little class had large or small ship models.

We saw drilling in the next ship, which was one of the first of the ironside and was built by Britain for the Crimean War after the lesson of the Monitor and Merrimack had sounded across the Atlantic. This was smart drilling with rifles. From the bridge of this ship we watched several cutters in evolutions with boys at the oars. We also saw alongside the Cerberus, said to be the oldest floating ship, which was taken from the French early in the seventeenth century. It has diagonal decks, is in excellent condition and is used as a storage ship.

Prize Awarded. At mess on all three of the large ships I have just gone through—the Impregnable, Inconspicuous, and the Black Prince—there is a prize of a large cake awarded to one table of each deck each week for the best showing of neatness. This means that the award goes to the twelve boys sitting at a table who have scrubbed their table the brightest, kept their metal dishes and cutlery for the cleanest, and who have shown interest at the same time. The boys' interpretation of showing interest is to arrange cutlery on tables, to be fanciest of designs, so that every table has a weird assortment of patterns made by laying dozens of spoons in their drill in circles with a salt bowl in the center or by crossing knives and forks in all sorts of ways. Each table has four of the boys as cooks of the mess, who change every week, and their responsibility covers not only the appearance of the tables and utensils but the carrying of the food from the kitchen and its service.

Another cluster of three was the artificers' classes, the floating school workshops where boys are taught to make and repair all parts of ship machinery. To get into these classes requires some technical knowledge or experience, and the work is very carefully watched.

The next school we visited was for second class stokers. You wouldn't think any boy would see a good future ahead of him with a start in the stokehold. Yet a very good class of little fellows start here, are taught engine theories and the main things to be remembered about boilers and gauges. Their drill is not with guns but with shovels, and it is required that they show as much dash and verve as if doing a bayonet drill.

Shovel Work. One command is "shovel wind" when in three connected movements the boys become proficient in the right way to swing a shovel so as to pick up the most coal, throw it most effectively, with the least amount of fatigue. Next is "shovel gravel" and they go through the same snappy movements but using gravel instead of coal. Finally they work up to "shovel coal." A workshop is connected with President Wilson isn't going to take any backtalk from enemy diplomats.

One of the best ways to make an enemy is to do a man an undeserved favor.

Congress has a large program of legislation before it for the week, including the railroad bill, which has been favorably reported for action.

Reports of brutalities, perpetrated by the Germans, continue to come in from all the fronts, but particularly now from Italy. The Germans seem to think it very necessary to keep up their reputation for cruelty.

GERMANY "WANTS PEACE"

President Wilson, in his address to congress today in which he discusses the recent replies of Von Hertling and Count Csernin to his own definition of America's war aims, neatly lifted off the camouflage of words and discloses the real meaning of the German chancellor's speech.

Von Hertling is pictured as ready to conclude the war after a manner which will forever make safe a balance of power in favor of Germany, this being the real hope of the militarists in spite of the confusion of words with which the chancellor garbed the matter.

It is the way of the Hun. Protesting friendship before the United States entered the war, Germany sought to interfere with the peace and happiness of the people of America, sought to involve this country in a war with Mexico and Japan.

Germany would like peace—on German terms.

NOW "UP TO ALLIES"

Russia, including both the Bolshevik and Ukrainian factions, have signed a peace with Germany and all the Russian armies, if cabled reports may be believed, are to be withdrawn from all of the front and demobilized.

This means that all the armies of the Central Powers which have heretofore been kept within striking distance of the Russian frontier have been released and may now be used against Great Britain, France, Italy and the United States.

The signing of a peace compact by the Ukrainians was not unexpected, nor was the reaching of an agreement between the Bolshevik and the Central powers any great surprise. Nevertheless it brings home to the people of the entente allied countries the necessity for putting all of the power that is possible behind the blows which must be struck against Germany and Austria-Hungary this spring and summer.

At the least, it would seem, the steps which have been taken by Russia mean that the war is to be prolonged. Germany will be able to use the man-power thus released to good advantage and at a time when every available man was needed to bolster up the line on the western front.

It behooves all of the people of the entente allied countries to unitedly stand behind their governments that every ounce of added strength may be flung into the conflict.

RUSSIANS DECLARE STATE OF WAR AT AN END; DEMOBILIZING

sation of even nominal hostilities among virtually all the remainder of the original long line in the east by signing a peace with the Ukraine and isolating Rumania although cutting little figures in the war for nearly a year past. Russia's great, indeed, vital part in the conflict, comes forcibly to mind as the circumstances leading up to her exit are reviewed. Becoming belligerent on August 1, 1914, through Germany's declaration of war upon her, her troops were soon sweeping through east Prussia, creating a diversion which hampered the Germans in their first dash through Belgium. Though disastrously defeated by Hindenburg at Tannenberg, she rallied and by winter was hammering again at the German frontiers and her great armies, overrunning Austrian territories in Galicia, were at the head of the Carpathians and threatening an invasion of Hungary.

Breaking Russia Held It took the bulk of the Austrian armies and a large proportion of Germany's virtually an entire year's campaigning in 1915 to break Russia's hold on Galicia, drive her out of Poland and the lower Baltic territory and force her armies under Grand Duke Nicholas back to the lines of which Great-Litovsk, scene of the recent peace negotiations, formed the keystone. Beaten back but not yet defeated, she fought her way through 1916, creating havoc among the Austrian armies in Volhynia and Galicia and in Asia Minor, driving the Turks out of virtually all Turkish Armenia.

Ripe for Revolution The opening of last year, however, found Russia under the old bureaucratic regime, virtually at the end of her tether. Her oppressed war-worn people were ripe for the revolution, the latent flames of which German propagandists had skillfully fanned, and in March 1917, came the crash, the deposition of Emperor Nicholas and the foundation of the first provisional government. The conservative element among the revolutionists first held sway and the determination of Russia to remain in the war was frequently affirmed.

Amsterdam, Feb. 11.—A dispatch from Vienna says that negotiations between Austro-Hungarian and Russian commissions at Petrograd resulted on January 31st in an agreement to the effect that Austro-Hungarian civilians detained in Russia and Russian civilians detained in Austria-Hungary of specified categories shall, as far as possible, be repatriated as speedily as possible.

The special specified class included girls, women and males under 16 years of age, and males between the ages of 16 and 41 who are unfit for military service, doctors and clergymen regardless of age also are included in the agreement.

All applications should be sent immediately to Mr. Leopold, and they will be acted upon as soon as possible. Full details will be worked out and announced as soon as the company has been gathered.

NO RUSSIAN STATEMENT UPON PEACE RECEIVED

London, Feb. 11.—Nothing from any Russian source has been received in London regarding a peace treaty between the Ukraine and the central powers. The foreign correspondents at Petrograd are as silent on the subject as the Bolshevik government itself. Official Russian wireless news agency circulates a statement that Kiev has been in Bolshevik hands since February 8 when the Reda forces were captured or fled. The statement concludes:

At 10 o'clock Friday nothing remained of the Rada but a sad memory. It is now clear that the delegation from the Rada at Brest-Litovsk is representing a non-existing authority.

PARIS IS ONLY 130 MILES DISTANT FROM LINES OF GERMAN ARMIES

By K. WALTER Paris is 70 miles from the German lines; London is 130 miles from the protected waters. Keep the map in mind and you will get some of that wondrous which a visitor constantly hears of today. German armies are massed in full force only 70 miles away! It is almost incredible.

In every haunt where strangers go and money flows free there is no sign of that restraint or anxiety which you might expect in the nearest of all capitals to the fighting line. It is not that I have failed to find any direct evidence, that the people of Paris, people with a capital, were feeling conditions pretty badly, that even tobacco was getting scarce and that there might be trouble if the populace had to go to the government in the old Parisian way and with empty shops. But no one representative of the workers of Paris with whom I have talked will admit that there is anything wrong except the bread—it is hard to have to eat such unpleasant bread.

Get Out of Reach One would have to get out of reach to the stream of foreigners who is pouring into Paris in these days in order to get a quite unimpaired view of things, and the stream is so broad and strong that I do not think there would be possible in a swim of a few short days. After London everything seems to be bathed in luxury; there is literally a pouring of money on all the public dining tables—not the wonderful flakey bread of peace, it is true—and great cubes of sugar in open bowls, and all the other luxuries of the season.

And black doesn't suit Paris. There was always in peace times, I used to find, in something gaggle about Paris, she affected the colors of the South without without being southern enough to wear them naturally! Paris has always been a little too fashionable; there was always a little bit of extra color in the wrong place, and a little bit of extra color on the wrong side of the street. And it was always put on, the clothes and the paint, with such an obvious intention of catching the eye, of forcing you to look to see if there was truly anything charming behind it all. Paris, in sum, was stately.

Black Doesn't Suit Paris The crude colors have gone today and with them the cruder part. For the first time one can see how good-looking Paris is—all Paris—for the Parisienne is always a symbolical of her city. Paris, like London in its way, has gone back to the days when electrical street signs were as rare as painted faces. Even the taxicabs look as if they belonged to a period before such things were known. And for the taxi-drivers, and everyone else in similar stations of life, they seem to have forgotten one of two things, either that there is a war on or that there was ever peace. London does not forget.

Difference in Temperament. Difference in temperament, the common explanation, but the fundamental cause of the difference between London and Paris is historical. A difference of experience. London has never had war brought home to it since the Dutch sailed up the Thames, never indeed so thoroughly home as it has been since the Germans tied themselves to the trestles of London Bridge and pulled it down in order to recapture the city from the British. Paris has been through many wars and the siege of Paris is still recalled by many living. My taxi-drivers, porters, shop-keepers, even the girls whom I talked, shrugged their shoulders and made nothing to say about the war, and smiled incredulously if you asked about peace.

But there is another side to Paris in war time, another feature which casual visitors are apt to overlook in a somewhat cynical comparison with London, a side of which one sees nothing, but which has an immense influence on so completely upsetting any expectations based on the comparative geographical position. And it was brought home to me in this way: the night we last sleep on the boulevards, thousands of Londoners also slept on the boulevards, they were killed and many injured. Paris knows how to take care of herself, so Paris can be unreservedly gay.

WICHITA COUNTY TO BE ORGANIZED FOR RED CROSS

"IDEAL CHAPTER" TO SECURE WORKERS IS AIM OF THE BODY HERE. PLAN BEING CONSIDERED

Cline Will Endeavor to Arrange That Other Counties in District Take Up Work Outlined for This.

Wichita county is to be organized as soon as possible into an "ideal Red Cross chapter" and a campaign is to be put on to secure more women to obligate themselves for a certain amount of work at the Red Cross workrooms each week as a result of the efforts of Mrs. H. C. Morgan, from headquarters of the Southern Division American Red Cross, at the headquarters of the Wichita county chapter this morning.

W. D. Cline has been appointed district organizer for 18 counties to work over existing Red Cross chapters or organizations into the new "ideal chapter" and as soon as Wichita county is organized he will commence on his work in the remaining counties of his district.

The women of the nation should enlist just as truly as the men have answered the call to the colors.

It is your duty as members of the Red Cross, workers and instructors to do all you can to make the women of the city realize that they are guilty of falling to bear their part in the war if they do give as much time as they are able to to the chapter workroom.

It is understood that after the supper hour on Saturday pork may be closed on Tuesday.

Wichita Falls meat markets will close tomorrow, practically without exception, in observance of meatless Tuesday.

John Fore will be a candidate for county commissioner in precinct No. 1.

For thirty years Mr. Fore has been regarded as a good citizen and conservative citizen of Wichita Falls of the very highest reputation.

TODAY'S MARKETS

CORN MARKETS ON DOWN GRADE RESULT WEATHER

Chicago, Feb. 11.—Decidedly enlarged receipts gave the corn market a downturn. Bright warm weather tended also to favor the bears.

Opening prices, which ranged from a shade to 1/4% lower with March 1.25 and May 1.24 1/2 to 1.25 were followed by a moderate setback all around.

Like corn, showed weakness owing to increase of arrivals and to a prospect that the movement would continue to be of much more liberal volume than has of late been true.

After opening 1/4 to 1/2 to 3/4 to 1/2 off, with May 79 1/2 to 79 3/4, the market underwent a further sag.

Big receipts of hogs led to a sharp break in provisions. Trade, however, was not heavy.

Later the market hardened in response to notice that orders against the re-loading of eastern cars at Chicago elevators had been withdrawn.

The close was firm at a shade to 1/4% net advance with March 1.27 1/2 to 1.28 and May 1.25 1/2.

Mrs. Thomas Edwards at 94 Planned and Cultivated a War Garden

It Is Hoped To Make 1918 a Banner Year for Field and Home Gardens - Win the War By Raising Bumper Crops.

Copyright, 1918, The International Syndicate

THE MOST VITAL issue of the day, as it affects the mass of the people of the United States, is food production and its conservation. It is to be made more extensively and more intensively, because the people are alive to the fact that it is the nation which is able to supply its own people and its allies in the war with food which is to have the honor of winning the war.

Many agencies are at work in this great endeavor, which represents the very life of the nation. The most important agency behind the people in the question of food production is the Department of Agriculture. Co-operating with this branch of the Government's service are the State agricultural colleges, which are extending their hands to the food production and conservation departments of the State Councils of Defense and to every organization, great and small, within the state which holds the great food issue in view. The result is that behind the people of every city, town and rural community throughout the land, who are willing to carry out their part of the production program of 1918, there is a branch of Federal service ready to serve as an incentive and an aid to efficient work.

Professor L. C. Corbett, Chief of the Office of Pomological and Horticultural Investigations of the United States Department of Agriculture, who outlined the emergency garden planting program of last year, was interviewed in the interest of the people's food drive of 1918.

been the rule of this office, as it is the policy of the Department of Agriculture, not to disturb legitimate business, since it is disquieting and disorganizing to commerce. I have to say, therefore, regarding the planting of home gardens, plant for the use of your family alone. Plant all you need for fresh table use, and all for your canning and drying, but beyond that keep out of the commercial field. Give the legitimate marketer, who makes it his business to sell his produce a clear and undisturbed field for his operation, so that he may know what his customary trade may demand of him. Another point which the home gardener should bear in mind in planning and planting is, purchase only such seed as is required. If this rule be not adhered to some other home gardener may be deprived of his share of seed.

1918 will be the growing of sugar beets for the purpose of manufacturing syrups and sweets to relieve the sugar stringency. "Any state that will produce potatoes will grow beets, and any girl or boy can produce syrup from these beets by the tested methods which have been at their disposal by the Department of Agriculture," said Professor Corbett. "Beet-syrup may be used for all purposes for which other syrups or molasses may be employed and will go a long way toward relieving the sugar shortage."

Strong Food Campaign. "We are making a stronger campaign for home vegetable gardens this year than ever before," said Professor Corbett, "and I have a few suggestions to make which may be of service in the new season's work. It has chase them as a matter of necessity. City Compost Dump. "For the cities, I am prepared to advocate a municipal compost dump, in some one of the many waste places on the outskirts of every town. This would provide a valuable source of supply to be drawn upon at will by the people for their back and vacant lot gardens. The American people must learn to make as light a draft as possible upon the commercial industries, which are requisitioned by war needs. As another instance, if a hoe or a rake is broken they should mend it, and so save industry and material for the greater good of the day."

Professor O. H. Benson, who is in charge of the Boys' and Girls' Club work in the North and West, States Relations Service, Department of Agriculture, has originated many of the production and conservation projects which have helped the country to a material degree.

Among those things which we are stressing in the Boys' and Girls' club work are corn and potatoes, which will be produced in greater abundance than ever before," said Professor Corbett. "War gardens and home canning will be among the leading projects along general lines. As one of the newer features of the work of mean children of school age in the United States. Their work may be made a wonderful asset in the war if they are inspired to do it in the right way and protected in doing it," said Professor Benson. "Last year our children canned $50,000,000 cans of packages of home products. We hope to double this amount during the year before us."

Work of the Students of the Home Economics Division of the University of Minnesota pressure on food production this year than last. A striking instance is afforded by the State of Nebraska, whose Council of Defense recently appointed an expert to make a survey of the entire state. This shows every foot of tillable ground in the state and the powers behind the project stand ready to recommend the best use to which the land may be put.

Woman's Part. The Woman's Department of the State Council of Defense, of Missouri, has done a great work in food production and conservation. The Thrift Garden Committee of the Woman's Council, of St. Louis, performed well last year, holding mass-meetings to stimulate interest among women and children. The Junior Protective Garden League, of St. Louis, grew out of this movement, providing a very efficient organization. The work of this league is fully organized for its 1918 garden work. In its conservation operations the St. Louis organization won high plaudits from Professor Benson, of the Department of Agriculture, who pronounced the canners of that city to be one of the three best models in the United States. In Rhode Island the Board of Recreation is asking that all vacant property be turned over to it for the season, not for recreation but for planting, by which it would appear that recreation in Rhode Island this year is to be found in planting food gardens.

designated an idea which has proved agreeable to the Bluebird management and which is to be given effect immediately. It will be recalled that Miss Murray made a distinct hit with her dancing when she was associated with the Pollies' company in New York and on the road with other organizations as well, and it occurred to her that a little dance as a trailer to her Bluebird pictures would be a pleasing novelty. Miss Murray will have her dance fit the character in which she appears in the production, whether it be as a society belle, a ragamuffin or a boyden. Director Robert Leonard tried the idea in connection with "The Princess Virtue," his first Bluebird picture, and the innovation created a very favorable impression.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG. It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a mirror complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

When those sharp pains go shooting through your head, when your skull seems as if it would split, just rub a little Muslerole on your temples and neck. It draws out the inflammation, soothes away the pain, usually giving quick relief. Muslerole is a clean, white ointment, made with all of mustard. Better than a mustard plaster and does not blister. Many doctors and nurses frankly recommend Muslerole for sore throat, bronchitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frost-bite—colds of the chest (it often prevents pneumonia). It is always dependable. 30c and 60c jars, hospital size $2.00."

Advertisement for "At the Theatres" featuring "ROMANCE OF YOUTH AND LOVE HERE FRI. AND SAT." Text: "When Dreams Come True," which comes to the Wichita Theatre on Friday and Saturday. February 10th and 11th is by Philip Barholomae, author of the farcical successes "Little Miss Brown" and "Very Good, Eddie." The author has indicated the same originality in the book of "When Dreams Come True" as he did in his farces. He recounts the story of a wealthy young New Yorker who awakens to find his allowance cut off on account of his adventures with a French dancer and her lover. The first act is on shipboard and shows the boy returning for the parental scolding as a steerage passenger. This setting lends itself to many singing numbers the first ensemble showing a chorus of immigrants of their native songs and dances. "At the Theatres" is an innocent party. All sorts of trouble is heaped upon the pair and "dreams come true" in the final act. A musical comedy cast of more than ordinary ability will be seen in the principal parts, and a chorus of twenty-four capable and springy young women will sing, dance and lend an air of youth and gaiety to the performance. ### WICHITA FALLS BOY ON TUSCANIA IS BELIEVED LOST

SECOND LIEUTENANT CHAS. S. PATTERSON WELL KNOWN HERE.

Second Lieutenant Charles S. Patterson, formerly division engineer on the Northwestern with headquarters here, is believed to have been lost when the Tuscania, the troop transport, was sunk last week. His name appears among the list of those not reported among the survivors. His residence is given as Los Angeles, California. His parents live there and this was the address likely given when he enlisted. He was unmarried.

Mr. Patterson enlisted with a regiment of engineers about six months ago and had the rank of lieutenant. He was a member of the Masonic lodge being a member of Knight Templar and Scottish Rite degrees. When he enlisted he left his Masonic watch chain, a gift from the engineers of the division, with D. Fritz of the Staley Motor Supply Co. to keep and wear for him until he returned from the service.

Mr. Patterson was very popular with the men of the division and with all who knew him. So far as is known he is the only Wichita Falls man who was aboard the Tuscania. A young man named Yarbrough of Byers was among those reported saved.

Private Dies Here Following Illness Lasting Few Days

Thomas H. James, aged 38, private in the 166th Squadron, died Sunday morning at the Call Field hospital, following a ten days illness. An abscess of the ear was the cause of death.

The body, accompanied by a military escort, was taken to the station this afternoon at two o'clock and sent to San Diego, Cal., where his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. James, reside.

The squadron commander, Lieutenant Benson, had high praise for private James and officers and comrades knew him as a good soldier and a trustworthy friend. He enlisted in San Diego on November 15. This is the first death to occur at the camp hospital.

Thrifty, Patriotism, Coffee and Common Sense

Its THRIFT to buy coffee of the local roaster, because you pay for nothing but coffee, eliminating tin cans, lithographed labels, national advertising, traveling salesmen's salaries, expenses, etc., and local freights.

PATRIOTIC, because it saves the tin for government uses and releases the labor and railroad equipment for government needs. Locally patriotic, because it fosters a home enterprise.

COMMON SENSE, because you get coffee fresh from the roaster at just the price of coffee.
