GERMANS NOT YET READY TO CONTINUE OFFENSIVE

The war situation of today is summarized by the Associated Press as follows:
Another week has passed without a renewal by the Germans of the offensive that they began March 21 which was halted before Amiens early in April and came to a definite pause on its right flank before the barrier of the Flanders hills, just as the month of May was opening.
Ever since the costly defeat of General Von Armin's army in its desperate assault on the front southwest of Ypres nearly two weeks ago, the beginning of a new effort by the enemy either here or on some other front has been looked for from day to day. Possibly the Germans have been waiting for some Allied counter blow which they felt able to withstand and therefore hoped would be dealt.

Foch Still Waits.
If this was the case, they must have been disappointed by the waiting attitude of General Foch, whom it is felt now will compel the enemy to reveal his further purpose with little delay as time is one of the things he can not afford to squander with the American forces now rapidly coming to formidable numbers.
It is as is considered certain, the Germans have employed such times as they have felt impelled to spend in building up the machinery for a new attack on probably an even greater scale than before. It is equally sure that the Allied armies under their unified command have not neglected to employ the interval in making every preparation possible to meet the German blow.

Allies Are Alert.
Every day gives evidence of the alertness of the Allied forces. Numerous minor operations have been undertaken to improve their position on the various fronts and their artillery fire has been directed to equally good purpose in breaking up the organized efforts of the enemy. Airplane raids without number, in which the superiority of Entente air forces has been clearly shown, have served the same end, besides being notably productive of valuable information while innumerable infantry raids have been almost uniformly fruitful in an information sense.

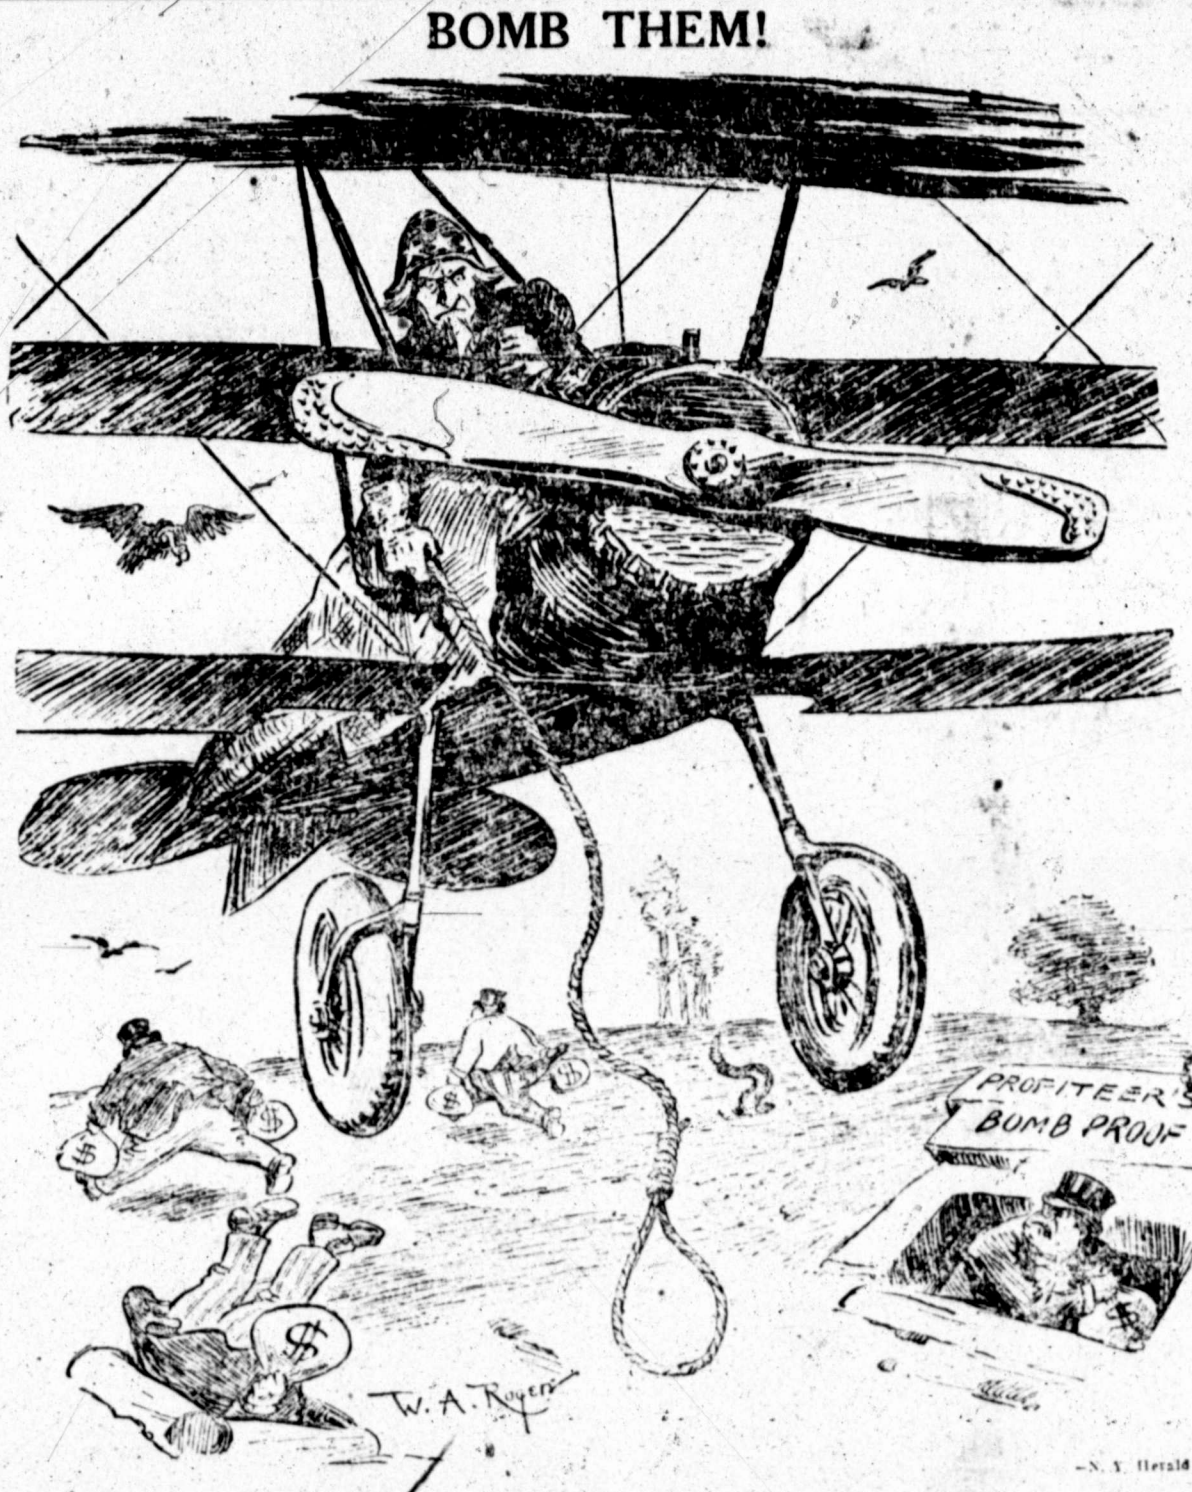

Retortment of the Allied position reported yesterday included an advance by the French on the Flanders front in the neighborhood of the Loers, where the approaches to Mount Rogne, one of the bulwarks of the Allied line, have thereby been made more secure.
Far to the south of the Somme on the southern side of the great Montdidier salient, French troops likewise carried a slice out of German-held territory near Overliers-Sorel, seven miles southeast of Montdidier.

Successful Raids.
As a complement to both these operations there were numerous successful raids on Russia which are said to have affected sensibly the sentiment of the bolshevik whose attempts to (Continued on Page Two)

STRANGE "VISION" IS IN EVIDENCE AGAINST I. W. W.

CHICAGO, May 11.—The strange vision picturing President Wilson and his cabinet in flight and Industrial Workers of the World rising up as saviors of the people came to Harrison George, a defendant, and in printed form was submitted as evidence today in the seditious conspiracy trial of 112 leaders of the organization.

The vision which the government charges was part of a conspiracy to block America's war program was reported in published matter last summer and described the nation's industrial system tumbling like a house of blocks through practice of sabotage against great producing plants. This and scores of other documents defying the government's assailing condemnation and urging "war against war" were read into the records.
At adjournment tonight the government virtually had completed introduction of printed matter used in the alleged anti-war campaign and expects to take up matter from the personal files of leaders of the organization Monday.

BOMB THEM!

AMERICAN TROOPS ARE REVIEWED BY ENGLAND'S KING

MEN ARE EACH SENT PERSONAL NOTE FROM HIS MAJESTY.

LONDON, May 11.—Troops of the national army of the United States arrived in London this morning for a parade through the principal streets of the city. There was a regiment of three battalions in line. The men were brought in from a nearby camp. Large crowds cheered them in the streets and they were reviewed by King George and Ambassador Page.

Bright sunshine and groups of cheering people greeted the Americans when they arrived early this morning at the Waterloo station. Although the percentage of American soldiers in London has long been a familiar sight, this was only the second time Americans had ever been seen marching in order and in London first opportunity to view a part of the national army.
In a few minutes they passed into the streets, marching over the nearest Thames bridge on the way to Wellington barracks at Hyde Park, where they were marshaled for the parade.
On arriving at the barracks, each American trooper received a personal message from the king. The envelope bore the royal arms and these words:
"A message to you from His Majesty, King George V."
The message on the note paper of the Windsor Castle and written in fac-simile of the king's hand writing was as follows:
"Message to Men.
"Soldiers of the United States, the people of the British Isles welcome you on your way to take your stand beside the armies of the many nations now fighting in the old world the great battle for human freedom."
"The Allies will gain new heart and spirit in your company, with I could shake hands with each one of you and bid you God speed on your mission."
The route of march through London was past the British admiralty, the British war office, the United States embassy, the American navy headquarters, the American army headquarters, the American Red Cross, and American nurses home and Buckingham Palace for the march past King George and General Biddle, United States army commander, the American forces in the United Kingdom.

Two Americans are missing from Lafayette Squadron.
PARIS, May 11.—Thomas Buffon of New York and Donald E. Stone, of Mexico, New York, both members of the Lafayette Flying Squadron, are missing. Stone probably is a prisoner in Germany. His machine was seen by infantry observers to fall behind the German lines after a fight in which nine French airplanes and thirteen German machines were engaged.

BALLOON FALLS BUT NONE FOUND IN ITS BASKET

MEANTIME TWO MISSING BALLOONISTS RETURN TO CAMP AT SAN ANTONIO.

SAN ANTONIO, TEX., May 11.—Leaping from the basket of a runaway sausage balloon which broke its moorings at Camp John A. Wise near here this morning, two cadets after a thrilling cross country ride, reached safely by means of parachutes which were attached to their uniforms. One cadet, named McKenna landed near Fischer's store, a small town, in Comal county, approximately 15 miles from San Antonio. He dropped from a height of 500 feet. McKenna, who declined to give his initials or the name of his companion, said the latter leaped over the side of the balloon basket when at a height of 250 feet and he saw him land safely, get up and walk away. Both men returned to Camp John A. Wise tonight where Major Brewer, camp adjutant, declined to discuss the incident, except to say that the men were safe.

AUSTIN, TEXAS, May 11.—A balloon with no occupants in the basket came to the ground thirteen miles north of here and three miles south offlugerville about 1 o'clock this morning. The gas bag was torn considerably by barbed wire fences the balloon had dragged over. There was nothing in the basket except an instrument about the size of a watch, which was tied to the side with a cord.
The gas bag was of waterproof material of a light slate color, and a bright red rope was among the mass of cordage. A short length of small steel cable was attached to a hook on the side of the balloon. The cable was spread open. No markings of any kind were seen.
The inhabitants of the country around, said that they had seen nothing of men with the balloon, which bounced along the ground for a considerable distance before stopping.

TWO CADETS RETURNED TO CAMP AT SAN ANTONIO
SAN ANTONIO, TEX., May 11.—The two cadets who were in a captive balloon which broke away at Camp John A. Wise here this morning reached the camp tonight by parachute. The camp adjutant, in the absence of Major A. B. Lambert, commander, declined to give their names, or state how they effected landing.
All observers in captive balloons at the camp wear a folded parachute, which in the event they fall out of the basket, opens automatically. It is presumed, the men leaped from the basket and landed by this means.

WICHITA FALLS BOY COMMENDED FOR HEROIC ACT

ONE OF THOSE WHO PLUNGED INTO WATER TO RESCUE GLENART CASTLE SURVIVORS

David Lee Morgan, a Wichita Falls boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marquis D. Morgan, 210 Seventeenth street, has won a place on the nation's roll of honor, though he is only 13 years old. Saturday young Morgan, who is a radio electrician, was commended for heroism by Secretary of the Navy Daniels, for his efforts at rescuing survivors of the British Blenar Castle which was sunk on Feb. 25 in the English Channel.
Constantly in Water.
In his public commendation of Morgan, together with nine other boys of his comrades, Secretary Daniels said: "There has a grave question arisen: 'Who is that so powerful and where are they that make it impossible and dangerous to such characters and honor men who dare ask questions.'
"Regarding Mr. Baker's statement of pro-German influence," continues Mr. Borglum, "this unfortunate statement of an official of the government whose office has resisted successfully every effort to investigate and get at the truth upon any subject relating to the war and whose department is so amply supplied with advisors close in the confidence of the secretary of Teuton origin, is ludicrous. I do not here impugn the patriotism of any of our men. I do say candidly and emphatically that it is unfair to ask German blood, though born in America, to be as prompt as war demands in the execution of their orders against their fatherland. Never has a department of a government of a great nation submitted an agent of its executive to such complete and unjustified slough and general interference as was prosecuted against me in my work and I challenge Mr. Baker or any department of the government to investigate or to explain and justify in any way their conduct in this."
"Only" Makers.
In oral remarks supplementing his statement, Mr. Borglum said in the case of the Wright-Martin and Curtis Companies were today the only manufacturers prepared to make airplanes for America. These two companies could have produced 5,000 aircraft and America could have had 3,000 or 4,000 of them in France for the spring drive, he said. If the two companies had been allowed to go ahead with orders they had received Mr. Borglum claimed that "opposition from Ohio" had prevented completion of orders these companies. He declined to identify the opposition.

Father Glad.
His father, when told by the Times of the public honor paid his son, said, "Well, I'm glad. That's fine for just a kid, isn't it? It has been several weeks since Mr. and Mrs. Morgan have heard from their son, but they had heard of the Glenart Castle incident, the young man telling of the Park's work in assisting the survivors, but mentioning his own participation merely as a matter of course."

DANIELS CALLS ON METHODISTS TO BE MILITANT
ATLANTA, GA., May 11.—Secretary Daniels speaking tonight before the conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, urged all branches of American Methodism to unite in "one mighty army of militant Methodists."
Reciting how the recent unity of command in the Allied armies in France had mobilized the forces of civilization into one invincible army, the secretary of the navy asked if this wise action did not afford a convincing reason why American Methodists should do likewise and (Continued on page two.)

BORGHUM DENIES HE CAPITALIZED HIS FRIENDSHIP

SAYS HE HAD NOTHING TO DO WITH ANY PROPOSED AIRCRAFT COMPANY.

SCORES COLONEL DEEDS

Says War Department Has Been Opposed to Investigation He Has Been Making.

By Associated Press.
N. W. G. May 11.—Curtis Borglum, accused of having sought secretly to capitalize his friendship with President Wilson by undertaking to promote a private airplane company, issued a formal statement today denying "any connection now or at any time" with any airplane-production concern or any plan to organize such a company.
He declared further that the war department had systematically ill-treated the opposition to investigation of aircraft production in which "a billion dollars in eleven months has provided us with no planes" and charged that every subterfuge had been resorted to gain time.
Speak Against Deeds.
The sculptor termed the accusations made against him in revelations yesterday of documents in possession of the army intelligence bureau as charges "raised by Deeds former agent, Mix, and Mix's engineer." (Colonel Deeds, chief signal officer of the army, and Kenyon W. Mix of the Dodge Manufacturing Company). He denied that he had used the president's authority in a manner unthinkable among men.
Regarding his statements which resulted in a decision of the senate military affairs committee to conduct a general investigation into airplane production Mr. Borglum says he received information some time ago "from a confidante of the president that the administration had no possession of a class that would put me out of business if I did not quit."
Says Mix Must Appear.
Borghum asserted that if the government does not persist in whitewashing this entire business, Mix would be "compelled to appear as a party with Deeds in matters. Mix himself designated as 'crooked.'" (Colonel Deeds, chief signal officer of the war department, the sculptor said, that every investigation, and there have been many, has been instituted by a prayer and a hope that a clean bill would be secured and it is now clear that this final "frame-up" was deliberately planned and laid in preparation to destroy the value and integrity of my investigation."
"The nation demands to know," Mr. Borglum declared, "why a billion dollars in eleven months has provided us with no planes. There has a grave question arisen: 'Who is that so powerful and where are they that make it impossible and dangerous to such characters and honor men who dare ask questions.'
"Regarding Mr. Baker's statement of pro-German influence," continues Mr. Borglum, "this unfortunate statement of an official of the government whose office has resisted successfully every effort to investigate and get at the truth upon any subject relating to the war and whose department is so amply supplied with advisors close in the confidence of the secretary of Teuton origin, is ludicrous. I do not here impugn the patriotism of any of our men. Two young women of Wichita Falls were killed and Fred Teller, automobile salesman of Dallas, but formerly of this city, also met death when Southbound Fort Worth & Denver passenger train No. 4 struck the automobile in which the three were crossing the Denver railroad tracks near Rhome, Tex., twenty miles north of Fort Worth at 4:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The dead:
MISS ALTA MAY SCOTT, 710 Holliday street, Wichita Falls.
MISS MICHAEL BLAIR, Wichita Falls.
FRED TELLER, Dallas.

Miss Scott died while aboard a train being rushed to a hospital in Dallas.

Miss Blair succumbed to injuries at midnight in a Fort Worth sanitarium.
Teller was dying when his body, with those of the two injured women, was extricated from the pilot of the engine upon which they were carried several hundred yards from the scene of the crash before the train could be stopped.

Few details of the accident were received here last night but it is reported that the curtains were up on the automobile and that the occupants of the car were unable to see or hear the train. Reports received here indicate that the automobile was hit nearly in the middle.

With Velie Branch.
Teller had formerly been in charge of the Velie branch here and was identified by letters and some stationery of the Velie agency found in his pockets. At the time of his death he was employed by the Robertson auto company of Dallas and had driven up to Wichita Falls in a new Monitor car for the purpose of establishing an agency here for that car. Miss Scott had been employed with the Velie agency here when Mr. Tiller was in charge. Miss Scott and Miss Blair had planned a trip to Fort Worth today to see Miss Scott's brother who is a soldier at Camp Bowie. They left Wichita Falls at about nine o'clock Saturday morning and reached Fort Worth at Saturday afternoon.

Miss Scott was nineteen years of age and lived with her parents at 710 Holliday street. Her father is a dentist and is now practicing at 1014 E. 10th. She had been employed for a time as a reporter on a local newspaper, later taking employment in the office of the Velie agency, going from there to the Harrison-Evton Music Co. She was cheerful, pleasant and attractive and had made many friends during her residence of less than a year here. She came to Wichita Falls with her parents from Stamford.

Identify of Dead Girl.
For some time after the accident, it was not established whether the girl who first died was Miss Scott or Miss Blair. Later a description of the body and the clothing of the dead girl established her identity as Miss Scott. Her body with that of Tiller was taken to the Robertson undertaking parlors in Fort Worth. The news of her daughter's death shocked Mrs. Scott greatly last night.

Miss Blair lived with her mother, Mrs. Mabry, at the Belmont Hotel, Mrs. Mabry, at the Belmont Hotel, Mrs. Mabry, at the Belmont Hotel, Mrs. Mabry, at the Belmont Hotel.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—A German wireless message saying that grave insubordination is a daily occurrence in American army training camps was made public today by the state department as an illustration of the lengths to which the German government is going in an effort to keep up the spirits of the civil population. The message which was sent out May 9 and which was given out by the state department without comment said:
"Information from Christiania, Norway, recently arrived from American say grave cases of insubordination occur daily in American training camps. At first breaches of discipline were punished by death but this was stopped owing to the number of cases. In a particularly flagrant instance all the soldiers in a camp acted collectively and demanded not only immunity for the mutineers but punishment of all officers. Furthermore much damage to works and materials is being done."
German wireless messages are sent out for circulation in neutral countries and for the information of the German diplomatic representatives abroad. Officials have no doubt that the foregoing statement was given general circulation throughout Germany as well as in Austria-Hungary.

TERRIFIC FIRE FACED AT OSTEND BY BRITISH SHIPS

AIR FORCES AND FLEETS OF DESTROYERS AND MONITORS ASSIST

SMOKE SCREEN USED

Vindictive, Which Was Sunk Experienced Difficulty in Finding Mouth of Harbor

By Associated Press

LONDON, May 11.—The old cruiser Vindictive went to her last berth 150 to 200 yards within the piers forming the entrance to the harbor at Ostend, one of the German submarine bases on the Belgian coast un- der the command of the German naval guns and machine guns on the shore, according to the Central News. Preparatory to the raid into Ostend the navy air force bombarded the town and dropped bombs continuously in harbor works, causing fires. Later the air force was assisted by destroyers and monitors in bombarding the enemy positions heavily.

Like Zebrugge Raid

The entire operation was carried out on a similar line to the raid on April 23 when concrete laden cruisers were sunk in the harbor of Zebrugge, the most important German submarine base. For the second time in a month a smoke screen was used successfully. About 2 o'clock in the morning a large force of destroyers and coastal motor boats steamed up towards the concrete piers, the smoke going along it. The weather was everything desirable until fifteen minutes before the Vindictive was sunk when a sea breeze drove the smoke down the visibility to a range of between 300 and 400 yards.

The Vindictive experienced the greatest difficulty in finding the entrance to the harbor. The enemy employed star shells and search lights extensively and for 20 minutes the vessel was in the view of the enemy batteries. As she cruised up and down seeking the entrance she was hit repeatedly and several casualties were sustained. At 2:20 o'clock when the piers were sighted almost alone and then the German guns opened a fearful fire.

Having found his bearings the captain swung his concrete laden cruiser around and rammed her stern against the eastern pier leaving the lieutenant in command of the vessel with the object of sending the ship across the channel. He discovered that the cruiser was grounded and that it was impossible to turn her. He called his crew from the engine room and stokehole and then set off explosive charges.

Armen announced to the Central News report say the Vindictive is lying submerged at an angle of 40 degrees at the eastern entrance with her stern against the pier. Her bow was abandoned. Two motor launches went alongside under a heavy machine gun fire and succeeded in blowing off the men including the wounded.

Are Volunteers
A large number of the officers and men who took part in the operation against the Zebrugge mole was April 23 claimed the right to participate in the Ostend operations, says the Central News station on the raid and their wish was gratified when the men on the Vindictive were volunteers from the Dover patrol.

At 3:15 o'clock the Warwick, flagship of Admiral Kestel, sighted a motor launch which had on board two officers and thirty eight men of the Vindictive. An officer who was on a destroyer fired almost three times "Up to 2:45 o'clock we heard nothing of the enemy," he said. "Then he sent up star shells and flashed his searchlights. A heavy bombardment followed beginning when we were about two and a half miles from the shore.

By the light of star shells and searchlights our smoke screen was located. Then a fog came on and the airmen were prevented from continuing their work. For an hour this state of things continued but then the weather sufficiently to permit our airmen to resume their operations.

A heavy fire was turned on the Vindictive when she was at the entrance to the harbor she ran her stern into the pier and was abandoned. The crews of motor launches behaved in the most gallant manner, rushing into shore utterly regardless of their safety, to see that no one was left behind.

CHANNEL IS ONLY PARTLY BLOCKED AT OSTEND

LONDON, May 11.—It is declared on unquestionable authority that the sunken cruiser Vindictive lies in the neck of the channel at the entrance of Ostend harbor at an angle of about forty degrees. It is obvious that a vessel 300 feet long lying at this angle in a narrow channel would be a very useful purpose has been served. A partial and very serious blockade has been achieved and under the condition of tide and rapid silt prevailing on the Belgian coast, the obstruction will certainly tend to increase. It is believed that the sunken cruiser will prevent the egress of submarines or even entirely stop that of destroyers. However, it will materially hamper both and that is important. German light craft will not be able, when pursued by British forces to rush full speed into the harbor as they have done heretofore. Conditions were fairly favorable for the venture. That part of the Belgian coast is heavily armed and the small number of British casualties indicates the enemy was surprised and emphasizes the success of the attempt.

With regard to Zebrugge the British government is satisfied and German stories of unrestricted ingress and egress are inaccurate. Air photographs taken within the last fortnight are said to demonstrate clearly the falsity of the enemy statement.

In the case of Ostend it is computed that at least three or four days must elapse before the channel can be cleared and buoys placed between the stern of the sunken cruiser and the land. In the meantime the tide and silt will be at work. In the Zebrugge case the silt is collecting very fast despite the work of the enemy dredges. The position of the blocking cruisers is such that any attempt to blow up the obstruction would be fraught with considerable damage to neighboring permanent structures.

DISLOYALTY CHARGED AGAINST CLAY MAN; HE IS BOUND OVER

Special to The Times.

HELEN, May 11.—Will Graner was bound over to the Clay county grand jury on a complaint charging disloyalty, at a hearing before the county judge here today. His bond was set at $10,000. He is a farmer, living a few miles north of Helen and is well to do. Graner is alleged to have declared more than once that the theories of German atrocities were falsehoods, spread for the purpose of stirring up hatred and driving the people into war; that this was not a peoples war but a war forced by speculators; that the German people were as superior to the Americans as the white race was to the negro race.

GERMAN BATTERIES FIRE MANY SHELLS.

Associated Press Mail Correspondent. BERNE, German batteries, before the great assault on the British front on March 21, fired almost three times as many shells in three hours as the Germans fired in the entire Franco-Prussian war. A German staff officer has informed a Swiss newspaper that the German artillery used more than 1,500,000 shells during the three hours bombardment preceding the attack. This is over 8,000 a minute, or estimated on front of fifty miles, about 160 per minute per mile. The total number of shells used by Germany in the war of 1870 was about 650,000.

gain strength and solidarity "in the onward movement of their mighty Christian army."

National Unity.

"In this supreme hour," continued the secretary, "when sectionalism has blossomed into national unity and love of the republic has broadened to love of freedom and democracy of all nations, the supreme duty of Methodists is to be militant. It is to make any and all sacrifices that may be necessary to mobilize Methodists into one mighty church. If others have forgotten there was a Mason and Dixon line, the Methodist churches could not wisely longer march in separate columns."

Star of Hope.

"It alone is the star of hope," he said. "A study of Prussianism discloses that in that country the state has taken the place of God, and that spiritualism had given place to materialism. No people could wantonly wage war for such purposes who had not repudiated the teachings of Jesus Christ.

HARVEST IN KANSAS IS ALREADY BEGUN.

By Associated Press

TOPEKA, KANS., May 11.—"The 1918 harvest in Kansas has begun," J. C. Mohler, Secretary of the State Board of Agriculture, announced in a report issued today. The first cutting of alfalfa now under way in the southern and southwestern counties is ready for the mow about a week earlier than usual and promises a heavy yield. In the next thirty days a million acres of alfalfa will be harvested in Kansas.

BRITISH. Aerial—Saturday Morning. LONDON, May 11.—Cloudless weather on Thursday favored British aviators, according to an official statement issued today dealing with air activities and 27 German machines were downed and twelve driven down out of control. The statement follows: "The cloudless weather on Thursday enabled our airplanes to carry out a full day's work. More than 24 tons of bombs were dropped on different targets, including important railway stations at Tournay, Marolles, Chauvines and Cambrai and billets at Carvin, Peronne and Chigny and the docks at Zeebrugge. Fighting in the air was more or less continuous and it was particularly fierce towards dusk. "Twenty seven German machines were downed, 12 were driven down out of control and four hostile observation balloons were destroyed. Six of our machines are missing. "During the night four and a half tons of bombs were dropped on the docks and at the entrance of the canal at Stend and three and a half tons on Peronne, Chauvines and Bapaume. All our machines returned."

GREAT BRITAIN. (Saturday Night). By Associated Press. LONDON, May 11.—Field Marshal Haig's report from general headquarters in France tonight says: "A raid attempted by the enemy in the neighborhood of Neuville-Vitasse was repulsed. There is nothing further of special interest to report."

FRANCE. PARIS, May 11.—Heavy artillery fighting on the front below Amiens, in the region of Grivesnes and Mally-Rainval is reported in today's official communication. The French gained ground on the southern side of the Picardy battle front, near Orville-Sorel, southeast of Montdidier. The statement follows: "During the night very spirited artillery fighting continued all along the front in the region of Grivesnes and Mally-Rainval. North of Grivesnes our troops carried out a raid and took fifteen prisoners. "In a local operation at Mareuil wood, northwest of Orville-Sorel we made an appreciable gain of ground. Thirty nine prisoners and several machine guns fell into our hands. A German counter attack was broken up completely by our fire. "French detachments made several incursions into the German lines and territory southwest of Montdidier in the sector of Sapienval and in the Woevre, taking prisoners and materials."

FRANCE. LONDON, May 11.—French troops advanced their lines slightly yesterday evening east of Loivre on the Flanders front, the war office announced. The statement follows: "French troops advanced their line slightly yesterday evening east of Loivre and captured several prisoners. We carried out successful operations during the night west of Merville. A raid attempted by the enemy east of Ypres was stopped by our fire."

GERMANY. (Saturday Night). By Associated Press. BERLIN, VIA LONDON, May 11.—Heavy losses were inflicted on the American troops southwest of Apremont and north of Parroy by a strong mine bombardment according to the official communication today. "On the western bank of the Avere the enemy obtained a footing in Grivesnes park, for the rest of his attack broke down with sanguinary losses. "There were reconnoitering engagements on the Oise-Aisne canal and the Champagne and northeast of Fontenoy. "In Apremont wood we repulsed the advance of a French battalion which was supported by pioneers and flame throwers. "By means of a strong mine bombardment we inflicted heavy losses on the Americans southwest of Apremont and north of Parroy. "In the Kemmel region the artillery activity was lively at intervals and we carried out minor operations successfully. "The local attacks by the French north of Kemmel and near Loivre were repulsed. "On the Somme battle field violent infantry engagements often developed. After artillery preparations extending over several hours English regiments attacked our lines Aveluy wood. Their attacking waves suffered heaviest losses under our fire. Night attacks by the enemy against Hangard also failed. "Macedonian front: Northwest of Makovo German throwing troops penetrated into the French trenches and took a number of prisoners."

BERLIN, VIA LONDON, May 11.—The official report from general headquarters this evening says: "There were local infantry engagements on the southern bank of the Avere and the western bank of the Avere. Otherwise there was nothing of importance. "Mrs. Grady Fletcher and three children will arrive here Tuesday of this week to make their home with her parents, Judge and Mrs. J. W. Akin, during the time Mr. Fletcher is in the army. Mr. Fletcher has volunteered in the new Texas Cavalry and is to go into training immediately."

TODAY'S MARKETS

COTTON MARKET IS SENT LOWER RESULT SELLING

By Associated Press. NEW YORK, May 11.—The selling movement which developed in the cotton market late yesterday was continued today and there was a further sharp break in prices. July contracts sold off to 23.90, making a decline of 23 per bale from yesterday's close and of 134 points from the high level of yesterday. That delivery closed at 23.98, with the general list closing steady at a net decline of 25 to 65 points.

There appeared to be a good many overnight selling orders the opening. The selling was encouraged by a better weather map than expected as it showed no indication of frosts which had been predicted for the southwest. There was also southern selling here and selling trade interests believed to be against purchases of spots in the south. This seemed to create an impression that the recent rally had brought spots out more freely and there was very little demand in evidence until prices were selling some 60 to 65 points under last night's closing.

There was sufficient covering to cause slight rallies on this level, but the bulges were barely maintained, and the market was still unsettled in the late trading. October sold as low as 25.20 and closed at 25.24. May was relatively quiet and steady, showing the minimum loss at the close.

Local brokers were inclined to attribute the break to an easier technical position after last week's rally of nearly three cents per pound from recent low levels.

New Orleans Cotton. NEW ORLEANS, May 11.—Heavy liquidation was felt by cotton today with the result that the market went to a net decline on the opening and remained down throughout the session standing at its lowest 82 to 77 points off and closing at a net loss of 24 to 30 points.

Mixed with the liquidation of long cotton was a considerable volume of offerings from the short side. The chief reason for the selling was the disappointment felt by recent buyers over the failure of cold weather to appear in the northwest portion of the belt. Dry weather and fairly high temperatures were reported over practically the entire cotton region, making ideal conditions for bringing up the new crop.

Galveston Spots. GALVESTON, TEXAS, May 11.—Midling 29.00; receipts 2810; sales 300; stock 269,040.

Cotton Seed Oil. NEW YORK, May 11.—The actual condition of clearing house banks and trust companies for the week showed that they hold $102,807,739 reserve in excess of legal requirements. This is an increase of $65,608,150 from last week.

WHEAT DEPRESSED BY FIXING PRICE ON SUBSTITUTES

By Associated Press. CHICAGO, May 11.—Announcement by the food administration that flour substitutes must sell 10 cents below wheat cost had a depressing influence today on the corn market. Largely as a result, corn closed unsettled, 2 1/2 cents net lower to 3/4 cent advance with May 1.27 1/2 and July 1.43 1/2 to 1.43 3/4. Oats lost 1/2 to 2 cents and provisions 32 to 60 cents.

Notice of the fresh measures which the food administration was putting forth to curb high prices of cereals came opportunely for the bears at a time when demand for immediately delivery of coarse grains was limited. Likelihood that prices would be in full swing next week counted also in turning the corn market down grade.

Toward the last of the session many early sellers attempted to profit from its and this action led to a moderate recovery but the fact that receipts for the week were considerably larger than during the same time last year for a check on the upturn.

Oats duplicated the weakness of corn. About the only shipping business reported was on a sixty day basis at relatively low figures. Provisions dropped with hogs and grain.

Start Good. The start was good, Exterminator getting off in fifth place which he held by a length at the quarter. At the half the gelding had moved up to fourth place which he held by half a length and at the three quarters he was first by a head. At the mile he had dropped back a little and was second by four lengths. Coming into the stretch he moved up on Escoba and in the final he moved away, finishing with a generous length to spare.

Escoba was second at the start and ran a good race throughout. Viva America seemed to find the distance a trifle long and was being rapidly at the finish. At the three quarters she had dropped to third place which she held until the finish. War Cloud went to the post a heavy favorite at odds of 6.45 to 1.00 and his showing proved a great disappointment to his host of supporters. The colt got off in seventh place but at the first quarter was fourth by a head. At the turn, however, he met considerable interference, but remained well up until the last quarter where he dropped back.

EXTERMINATOR WINS FEATURE OF RACE YEAR

KILMER'S COLT SURPRISES CROWD BY TAKING KEN. TUCKY DERBY.

By Associated Press. LOUISVILLE, KY., May 11.—One of the greatest crowds that ever witnessed the Kentucky derby today saw W. S. Kilmer's recent acquisition, Exterminator ridden by Jockey W. Knapp, win by a length the forty fourth renewal of the classic from K. D. Alexander's Escoba. Eight lengths back came Viva America which had set the early pace while the public choice, A. K. Macomber's War Cloud, was fourth. The race was run over a sloppy track and under the circumstances the victory, 2:10.45 was good. Exterminator's time came as a great surprise to most of the spectators as few had credited the gelding, a chance.

SPIZZERINKTUM WATER FROM THE HALL WELLS

Do you drink, or do you think you will drink this summer? If you do and want to assure yourself of clean, wholesome table water, I ask you to come out to the SPIZ WELLS and see for yourself. I am willing to leave it to your good judgment. Bring your water bottles along, fill them and try it out. I am not knocking any other water that is sold in Wichita Falls, but I do say there is absolutely no drainage from anything that would lead to these wells, no leaky sewers, no outbuildings nor alleys full of trash and tin cans for seepage to come from. Mr. A. B. Roy, Chemist at the A. & M. College says: "Enclosed find complete report upon water received by me. The water contains a fairly large amount of sodium bichloride (which is ordinary baking soda) which may cause it to have some beneficial effect in cases of stomach trouble. Suphates and chlorides of sodium. Calcium and magnesium are also present and may have some laxative effects." Nothing else of medicinal value is in the water. Any other beneficial effect which it may have is due to the large amount of water used than mineral which the water contains. These wells have been inspected by some of the leading MD's of this burg and they say we found no drainage to same that would in any way effect this water. All think it first class in every respect and recommend it to the public as good table water. You are asked to come out any time and inspect the wells and premises. Yours very truly, J. H. HALL

MOTHER'S ADVICE.

An editorial with a text! Advice is cheap. The worth of it depends upon the life back of it.

Perhaps the greatest thought associated with the wedding feast at Cana of Galilee was not the turning of water into wine, but the advice of Mary the mother.

Mary was an ideal mother. She was one of God's listeners. The Bible speaks of the uncircumscribed ear, the ear that is covered with sin and so, hard of hearing.

For He hath looked upon the low estate of His handmaid: For behold, henceforth all generations shall call me blessed.

For He that is mighty hath done to me great things; And holy is His name. And His mercy is unto generations and generations on them that fear Him.

He hath scattered the proud in the imagination of their heart. He hath put down princes from their thrones.

And hath exalted them of low degree. The hungry he hath filled with good things; And the rich he hath sent empty away.

He hath given help to Israel His servant. That He might remember mercy (As He spake unto our fathers) Toward Abraham and his seed forever.

Small wonder then when this quiet, womanly woman says to the feasting merry-makers, "Whoever He saith unto you, do it," there is the very feel of an unseen authority in every word.

There is such a vital, throbbing thing as the authority of character. Education gives authority. So does experience. Man has too often for his own welfare bedecked another man with gold braid and tinsel, set him on a pedestal and bowed to him as authority.

and this we have done. Well can we afford to discipline our lives in self-denials, giving up the petty pleasures that are but a passing show that we too may have that indefinable quality of authority that comes only of character and conduct wrought out in the tests of every day living.

Here it is that motherhood wins its crown through suffering and sacrifice. In some deep sense this authority was manifested in the Spartan mother when she told her son, "To come back with his shield or upon it." It is seen again when Florence Nightengale in the trenches of the Crimean war was asked by some colonel, "Who gave you authority to come here?" made answer "God Almighty Sir."

The other day during a conversation with an American visitor to the French front, Marshal Joffre passed and pulled out of an inner pocket a well-worn letter and with unsteady voice read this: "My dear Boy: You will be grieved to learn that your two brothers have been killed. Their country needed them and they gave everything they had to save her. Your country needs you, and while I am not going to suggest that you return to fight for France, if you do not return at once, never return."

This letter from a French mother to her son in Canada contains a heart-tug made possible by the authority of character burned pure through the fires of unselfish sacrifice and service. It was just this that saved George Washington to the cause of the Revolution. It made Abraham Lincoln. Want of it made Bismark the bully of Europe. The opposite of it—selfish, cruel self that rules or ruins, has made the Kaiser.

DEAL FIRMLY WITH MEXICO.

The action of the Mexican government in expelling American newspaper men from Mexico indicates to what extent German agents have the ear of the Mexican authorities. German agents have been working day and night in Mexico; Their activities have met with so much encouragement and so little interference that they have compelled Mexican newspaper men who have supported the cause of the allies to flee from Mexico under threat and fear of assassination. Since Americans will be expelled if they attempt to controvert the German propaganda it will be carried on unhindered.

The German agents are now pointing to the fact that there are more than 500,000 American soldiers across the Atlantic and are telling the Mexicans that the United States is now so occupied with a great antagonist and that her border to Mexico is so unprotected, that it will be easy for a Mexican Army to overrun Texas and other border states and to conquer them and regain them for Mexico.

The Mexican mind is peculiarly susceptible to flattery and the idea implanted by the wily German propagandist that Mexico can now strike a blow against the hated gringos appeals to his pride, while German gold appeals to his cupidity.

The only way left for the United States to handle the situation is to deal firmly with Carranza and Mexico. A considerable force ought to be kept on the border and Carranza ought to be made to understand there will be no hesitancy to use it if occasion should require.

A TRAVELING MAN ON THE POLITICAL SITUATION

(Houston Post)

I have longed, looked and listened for someone to say something in behalf and in defense of our governor in his campaign for re-election, but if it has been said I have failed to hear it.

I have never written a letter for the press before, but I want you to listen to me a few minutes. I have been over a large portion of Central, East and South Texas recently and I have kept my ear to the ground, and sought reliable information wherever it could be found, and I want to advise you to wake up before it is everlastingly too late.

I find at different towns automobiles branded "The Ferguson Car," which are going day and night, sowing the country down with Ferguson literature. They are chunting on the nooks and crooks in the forks of the creeks and seeing to it that every voter gets some of this literature. They seem to be working just now on the most remote and isolated sections, and they are wearing gum shoes, and working the underground wires.

You can talk to the average man in town and he will tell you that he is against him, but he will invariably tell you of a neighborhood down in the bottom or over in the tall timber where they are over him to a man. You will also find him strong in towns and country where it is largely foreign population. I believe you will find every German in Texas supporting him, you will also find 90 per cent of the I. W. W.'s, the pool room fans and, of course, the liquor traffic lined up.

The campaign push, of course, is his alleged mistreatment at Austin, and the country school houses that he has built. This, of course, is balm to the ears of the jealous, prejudiced and misinformed, but you should inform these people that he pleaded guilty to fourteen of those charges, either of which was sufficient for impeachment. Then you wonder where he borrowed $156,000.

They say he is a friend to the poor people and to education. I will ask you why the school teachers, the preachers, the public press, and the unselfish citizenship of this country, who are the real friends of education, and the government, are against him.

As for his being a friend to the poor and ignorant will say that I am both, but I don't think he is a friend to me; in fact, I think he is about as good a friend to the people he plays to as Judas Iscariot was to the disciples. What he wants is the thirty pieces of silver. However, in this case the number of pieces seem to be around a hundred and fifty-six thousand.

I want to say further that I have never dabbled in politics, but I have given some study to men, and I have never yet seen a politician who would array one class against another that I thought was a friend to any class in fact, a man that had the best interests of the people at heart trying to promote peace, harmony and good fellowship among the people, instead of setting up strife and turmoil all the time.

Strife and turmoil at this critical moment is what we don't want and we would have just about as much harmony between the State government and the national government as there is between a German spy and an American civilian. That would also be true of the governor and the legislature, but I see he is now advocating to elect a legislature in sympathy with him and his views. Why? My idea is, so the constitution prohibition can be defeated, the zone law repealed and the woman suffrage act knocked into a cocked hat. Then you wonder where the half a million is coming from to make this campaign.

Friends, as important as the war and liberty loan is, let us not put in all our time on that. Let us put in a few hours a night working for that splendid governor, W. P. Hobby, who is exerting every effort to assist our national administration in the conduct of the war. In other words, while the babies cry at twilight for their daddy over there, let us work until midnight for our governor over here. Let us arm ourselves with the facts and real issues in the campaign and go to our friends and reason with them. Then on primary day I believe you will go to the polls and swat this would-be Kaiser Bill.

CLASS PLAYS GREAT SUCCESS AT HIGH SCHOOL

"THE SENIOR" DELIGHTS LARGE AUDIENCE, ALL IN CAST BEING GOOD.

Playing to an audience which taxed the capacity of the auditorium at the high school, the 1917 senior class placed their presentation of "The Senior" at the top of former school dramatic efforts in Wichita Falls.

The play, a three act comedy, was directed by T. M. Clark and the proceedings, amounting to almost one hundred dollars, will be turned over to the athletic department of the school. Clever scenic arrangements, representing in the first act a modern college lunch room, the gymnasium of a college building in the second, and the terrace on the campus in the final act, lent an attractive background to the development of a delightful romance. Individual members of the cast scored distinct successes.

Miss Annie Lea, as the young society girl, Eleanor Forbes, and Andrew Urban playing opposite her as Gordon Wainwright, working his way through college through his successful luncheon, put real interpretational ability into the presentation, while Miss Goldie Maricle, the cashier, "a helpful sort of parson" acting with Paul Pond, the freshman, added as excellent comedians, the zest of enthusiastic fun-making developing a number of laughable situations and sending sparkling bits of conversation and repartee over the footlights.

In presenting the truly aristocratic matron, Miss Gussie Pitchford, was unusually successful in a difficult part, with Graeme Atkinson, as the champion debater, Miss Kate Eubank as Gertrude Spencer, Miss Kate Morrison as the "Lakeville girl," all representing interesting characters with splendid ability. Others scoring decisive hits were Donald Ross the hustler-preacher, the public press, and the unselfish citizenship of this country, who are the real friends of education, and the government, are against him.

The cast in full follows: Gordon Wainwright, a Senior of Lakeville University, not in "Society"—Andrew Urban Jr. Seniors who regard themselves in "Society"—Perry Spencer, Chester Balles—"Pug" Collins, T. J. Waggoner Jr.; "Nick" Meade, Edwin Bell. "Tommy" Thompson, baseball star and a Sophomore—Herbert Ziegler. "Dad" Duffield, Champion Debater—Graeme Atkinson. Beane a Freshman, who looks the part—Paul J. Pond. Eleanor Forbes, a popular girl—Annie Lea. Mrs. Lee, Eleanor's aunt, and an aristocrat—Gussie Pitchford. Violet, a helpful sort of person—Goldie Maricle. Gertrude Spencer, Spencer's sister—Kate Eubank. Miss Jones, a Lakeville girl—Kate Morrison. Miss White, visiting Lakeville—can't use. Ruth Musgrave. Jean, chauffeur—Gordon Baines. Mike, a lunch hustler—Donald Ross.

Act 1—"The Eat-It-Here" Lunch Room. Act 2—A room in the college gymnasium. Act 3—Terrace on the campus. Directed by T. M. Clark.

AMERICA—THE SYMBOL OF FAITH AND HOPE

By GEO. W. GOETHALS
Acting Quartermaster General

EVERY American citizen should be proud of the American Red Cross. It is daily, indeed hourly, giving an example of mercy to the whole world. Through its operations the suffering of soldiers and civilians is being alleviated.

The American people should continue to support the American Red Cross. Through it they are helping their own men and helping the allies. Through it they are making America the symbol of faith and hope in a distracted world.

GEO. W. GOETHALS,
Acting Quartermaster General.

THE BOY IN KHAKI

By K. C. B.

I saw a mother,
And her brown clad boy,
And heard her sob,
And "Goodby, son,"
And saw him,
Kiss her tears away,
And go.

And hours passed,
And in the darkness,
Of my room,
I lay.

And all the pictures,
That the day had drawn,
Came back,
And she was there,
And he was there.

And then a picture,
From across the seas,
Was painted,
On my shadow wall,
And he was there,
And all about him,
There were shadow men,
But nowhere,
Could I find the face,
Nor find the form,
Of her.

And then,
Another picture came,
A great Red Cross,
And wounded men,
Looked up at it,
And raised their arms,
And smiled,
And he was there,
And as I gazed,

Upon the cross,
I saw her face.

And so it was,
That in the darkness,
Of my room,
It came to me,
That Red Cross work,
Across the seas,
In other hands,
And done for her.

And then sleep came,
And came a dream,
And cheering throng,
And boys come home,
And he was there,
And she was there,
And once again,
I heard her sob,
And saw him,
Kiss her tears away.

And in their yoke,
On that glad day,
A Red Cross waved,
As it had waved,
And followed him,
Down in the Valley,
And come back again.

I THANK YOU

One Million Sweaters For Army and Navy

The American Red Cross is the greatest volunteer organization that the world has ever seen. It was announced by one of the high officials in Washington that millions of people are and have been for some months working six days a week without a dollar's pay. This includes the members of the local chapters and all other employees in this country and abroad. One significant item in this is the fact that the Red Cross has given the army and navy over 1,000,000 sweaters for the boys in the service, of which over 600,000 were made by the members of the local chapters. You who know the difficulty of making sweaters can estimate the character of the work and the self-sacrifice that the women of America are making to further the Red Cross' mission of mercy.

CARDINAL GIBBONS' MESSAGE

There is in these times a veritable ocean of sorrow and suffering, engulfing millions of souls, and a society with the membership and resources of the Red Cross, actuated as it is by Christian principles, can best undertake the tremendous burden of extending intelligent and efficient relief. In particular I approve of the Red Cross activities as they are directed towards supporting the courage and caring for the injuries of our young soldiers and sailors. It is my earnest hope that all of our people will cheerfully and generously cooperate with the Red Cross committee in their efforts towards reaping the fullest measure of charity that it may be possible for the society to attain.

JAMES CARDINAL GIBBONS,
Archbishop of Baltimore.

IT COST ONE DOLLAR TO SAVE THIS LIFE

Perhaps It Was Your Red Cross Dollar That Gave This Broken Flier His Chance to Live.

By BRUCE BARTON
Of the Vigilantes.

From the ground they could see that there was something the matter with his machine. And even while they watched through their glasses he began to fall.

A minute later the little Ford ambulance was puffing its way across the five miles of shell-stricken road that lay between them and him.

They found him beside the machine. He was unconscious, but a tree had broken his fall.

"Just in the nick of time," said the doctor crisply. "He'll be a pretty sick boy for a few weeks, but we'll have him all right again and back with his French comrades."

So they put him into the little Ford ambulance, and—less than an hour after they saw him fall he was safe in a clean white bed.

"That's what it means to have plenty of equipment, plenty of ambulances and doctors and bandages and everything," said the Red Cross man who told me. "It means the difference in getting there on time or getting there just a minute too late."

"Wonderful!" I answered. "And how much did it cost you to make that trip—to save that one French boy's life?"

He flushed a little. "We don't measure it in terms of money."

"I know it. But what do you think it cost," I persisted—for gasoline and the trip and the bandages and all?"

"Perhaps a dollar, maybe two. But why do you ask?"

"A dollar?" I answered. "A dollar to save a boy's life! To send him home again from the war to the mother and father who have scanned every headline and waited breathlessly for every visit of the letter carrier! Can a dollar do a miracle like that?"

"It can," said the Red Cross man. And then the thought occurred to me that perhaps it might have been one of my dollars.

It was somebody's dollar that did it. It might have been mine—or one of yours.

Who knows?

Three Thousand Mile Dash Across Russia to Succor Roumania—Heroic Work Required.

Poor little Roumania, once so happy and so beautiful! Robbed of its rich lands by German hordes, its people driven back upon themselves, the once picturesque city of Jassy is now crowded beyond its limits with the country's destitute and starving.

Nothing but the most heroic efforts of the American Red Cross has kept Roumania from actually disappearing from among the nations of the earth. Then all those who could leave the country had fled—Henry W. Anderson, American Red Cross commissioner to that outraged country, stuck to his post. Diseased, starving and aged people were all about him. The cause seemed hopeless. Even Red Cross money could buy nothing in Roumania, for the country was stripped.

So Anderson appealed to our Red Cross in Russia. There were supplies there, but how could they be carried the 3,000 miles that separated Petrograd from Jassy. Russia was struggling against internal disorder, which in the Ukrainian territory was civil war. Even with the authority and protection of the Bolshevik government the case seemed hopeless.

Yet help came—a whole train load under the charge of Lieutenant Magnuson of the American Red Cross in Russia. And Anderson sent this cable:

"We are today distributing food and clothing to more than 10,000 people and increasing numbers every week. Expecting shipment of four more cars of food from Odessa this week. By extraordinary effort we believe we can continue purchase of sufficient supplies to carry on work."

And so our Red Cross is showing all the world that not only are our men ready to fight for the right, but are ready to help all those others who are in this battle for freedom.

A GRUPELLING NIGHT FOR THE CANTEN MAN

A Red Cross Canteen man wearily banked the fires under the kettles. Their blizzards in an old house near by. By the light of a candle the Red Cross convoyer undresses and rolls into his blankets. Suddenly there comes a sharp, cracking sound, and a red flare lights up the room. The convoyer rolls quickly out of his bunk, catches up his blankets and runs down the rickety stairs to the cellar. There he finds his French assistant and a lot of soldiers. They exchange boxes and then seat themselves on boxes. Four more sharp, cracking noises follow in rapid succession, and a mournful roar. This is only the beginning of an artillery duel which lasts all night.

At break of day the Red Cross man bestirs himself, shakes his assistant and tumbles up the stairway out into the yard. It is strewn with debris. A shell struck the next house in the night and blew out the wall. The convoyer and his man set to work gingerly, for the air is chill. They poke the fire and throw on fresh wood and then set to work to prepare the food. Within an hour the canteen is ready for business.

HIS JOB TO BANDAGE WOUNDED HOUSES

American Boss Carpenter Putting French Villages Back on the Map.

It was a monotonous stretch of ugly trench, wire entanglements, gaping shell holes, accented by the blackened skeleton of shell killed forests silhouetted against a dull, hopeless sky.

This had once been beautiful rolling land like our own Ohio and Indiana—rich in grain fields, orchards and gardens. Now it was desolation—nothing could live there—seemingly nothing did.

We had come on some rising ground, and as we climbed we reached the brow of the slope, and of a sudden it seemed that some giant had suddenly twisted the old world under our feet and we were back home, for of a sudden the sounds of life came up to us out of a hustling center of industry.

That satisfying clug of an honest hammer head sinking willing nail into sound wood, and before us was a panorama of new building, with piles of clean, lumber stacked here and there, and the framing of many new buildings told where the wood was going. Then we heard the voice of a man who talked real "United States"—telling 27 other carpenters what to do—out in this foreign land thousands of miles from home.

We inquired of the boss as to who he was, and with true sense of humor he said: "I am a Red Cross nurse. My job is bandaging wounded houses."

Putting Villages Back on Map.

"This was once a French village," he went on to say. "In the center of the sugar beet country. We are living now on the site of the sugar mill," he said, pointing to a long, low barracks, which plainly had been recently built. "We are working for the American Red Cross—putting villages back on the map. In four more weeks we'll be out of here and on our way to the next job, for there are many villages that need us. We go from place to place, always finding that our lumber has reached there first, so we can get right to work, clean up and move on again."

It is just like pioneering, this rebuilding work of our Red Cross—only more important—more important because it is vital to the winning of the war that these people come back to their soil and plant new crops—for future years of war or peace.

And so the tide of war sweeps back from whence it came, a Red Cross man follows close behind in uniform of overalls, armed with Yankee hand saws and nails to coax back the foundations that have been brushed into squalid helplessness in the south and east.

They are coming back home now, just a few days behind these carpenters—back to the beet fields, the gardens and the farms. Soon they will be feeding themselves and thousands of others.

WHITE PLAGUE KILLS MORE MEN THAN BULLETS

It seems longer, but it was less than four years ago that the nations had not yet started in to wipe each other off the map and that the only times when one heard of the Red Cross were times of flood or disaster and at Christmas time, when the peaceful little Red Cross tuberculosis seals made their annual appearance.

Perhaps, in fact, it was the long, ardent fight in America against the White Plague which, in spite of the war's enormous new demands, is responsible for the especial interest being taken by the American Red Cross in France's frightful struggle against consumption.

This scourge seems to mark the trench fighter for its own. It kills more men than do bullets and poison gas combined. Until the American Red Cross was permitted by the French government to start its drive against tuberculosis it looked as if, even with a victory over the Hun, France might eventually be conquered by this deathly foe.

Already things are looking brighter. The Red Cross has taken over old hospitals and built new ones. More than 300 tuberculosis dispensaries are to be opened throughout the country, and Red Cross doctors and nurses—scores of them—are devoting themselves exclusively to this fight, doing over there exactly the same kind of work which is financed in America by the little Christmas seals. It is one of the ways in which by our contributions to the Red Cross America can repay her debt to France.

ROSINA SCHWARTZ—AN AMERICAN

Austrian Born Washwoman Learns to Believe in America—and in the Red Cross.

By PARKER FILLMORE.

"If there is war, Miss Abbott, what will you do?" The Germans will land in New York first, and you can never pass for German."

"But, Rosina, you're American. Your husband was naturalized."

"That makes no difference. Once a German always a German, and they say it's the same for an Austrian."

The cleaning woman paused. "That's what they say at Schneider's bakery. They say America won't have no chance because there are more Germans right now in New York and Chicago than in Germany and out in St. Louis and Cincinnati they speak only German on the streets."

"$200 in the bank. Rosina Schwartz was a widow, whose husband had died, leaving $200 in bank and two small children at home. By uniting industry Rosina supported herself and the children. She washed, cleaned and cooked for the American teachers and librarians who lived near her on the far East Side.

"As long as I'm well I can work," Rosina would say, "and I can get along without touching that two hundred." The two hundred to bank was more than money—it was a symbol. It was a wall between Rosina and pauperism and an incontrovertible proof that she was holding her own.

That winter came the terrifying scarcity of coal. Like thousands of others, Rosina was forced to spend hours every day standing in line before the coal dealers. With the help of a gas stove she managed for a time to do her laundry work. Then one day in January of the new year the gas pipes froze and in front of every coal dealer's sign, No Coal, appeared.

Rosina was desperate. "Thin't like I ain't got money, Miss Abbott, but there's no coal to buy! I still got a couple of dollars for food and for coal if I could find any, but I've lost so much time that I'm eight dollars back on rent and I don't see nothing to do but draw on that two hundred."

It was at the outcome of this crisis that Rosina saw a great light. On the chance that the settlement in the neighborhood could help her, Miss Abbott gave her a letter to the headworker. That evening Rosina had this story to tell:

"I am an American." "Yes, I got some coal and I'm to have more tomorrow. The lady gave me a card and sent me to the police station and the cop up there gave me a bag. And listen, Miss Abbott, when I offered to pay he says there was no charge. I says: 'I'm no charity patient. I always pay.' Then he says this coal was a present from the millionaires on Madison avenue to the poor people on Avenue A. They wanted to give it to us, so's to help us over for a day or two. And, Miss Abbott, as I come home I says to myself: 'That settles it: I'm an American!' Of course, I ain't didn't my husband get his last papers before he died? Them boneheads at the bakery got me mixed up, but they won't mix me up again. I'm an American and I know it!"

She fumbled a moment in her handkerchief and brought out a crumpled dollar bill.

"I had to draw eight dollars out of my two hundred for the rent and I drew out nine instead of eight, and here's the extra dollar. I want you to take it and give it to the Red Cross. Tell them it's from a woman that's a good American even if she is Austrian born. And listen, Miss Abbott, tell them if this war keeps on I'm going to give another dollar real soon!"

WHY IT WILL BE BETTER FOR YOUR LITTLE GIRL NOT TO HAVE THAT NEW DRESS.

The reason is a little girl of her age, who lives in a cellar in Verdun.

"That little girl has only ONE dress—and a dress that your little girl wouldn't look at."

"That little girl's dress is a fluttering invitation to the biting winds and the winter cold to come in to the pallid, shivering little body."

That little girl is one of the thousands that the Red Cross is helping. But there are so many thousands that the dollars of the Red Cross do not go round. For that is only one of the many ways the Red Cross is serving the war-broken countries.

Read this to your little girl. Tell her that you are going to give as much as you can to the Red Cross. Ask her if she is not willing to go without that new dress so that you can ADD its cost to YOUR gift, and give that little girl in the cellar in Verdun a warmer dress, even if you can not give her back her father!

EATING HOUSES BEING CLOSELY SUGAR RATIONED

PATRONS IN MANY INSTANCES ARE MAKING LOT OF PRO-PRIETOR HARD.

Men and women, also children, who take their meals at boarding houses or cafes and restaurants, are making the lot of the landlady or the restaurant owner a hard one, as far as observing the food administration's sugar regulations, according to Tom G. Smock, the county food administrator, who has been making a visit among boarding houses and restaurants, acquainting them with their new obligations with reference to filling out the monthly blanks required of them. These blanks must contain an accurate report of the amount of meat and meat substitutes, bread, flour and wheat substitutes, bread by the pound, sugar and the number of meals served.

Monthly Allowance. Three pounds of sugar is the monthly allowance of sugar for all purposes for one individual, Mr. Smock says, that he finds that a number of people who eat their meals away from home demand more sugar than their share, in fact, now that summer is in line, on they will use more than their daily allowance, one and six tenths ounces, in their ice tea, which is the favorite summer drink. When the open sugar howl is kept on the table much more sugar than is allowed is used, and the landlady or restaurant owner has no recourse if their patrons are not patriotic enough to observe the food regulations. It will come to the point, Mr. Smock says, that people who use up their allotment of sugar in a short time will go without sweetening of any sort in their food or drinks for the remainder of the month. The dealers will be expected to observe the sugar regulations strictly and to limit purchasers to the exact amount they should have. Violation of this regulation, if done knowingly, will mean that the dealer has his supply cut off. Those who eat the meals are asked to be patriotic, curb their sweet tooth, and enable the one who is feeding them to be patriotic.

On Sugar Ration. Manufacturers of candy and soft drinks are also on a sugar ration, their supply having been cut to 50 per cent of their consumption last year. Already some local manufacturers have consumed almost their entire quarterly allotment of sugar and still have more than half of May and the entire month of June between them and next quarter's sugar supply. It seems probable that their patrons will be sweeter than formerly and that candy will suffer a similar fate or will be considerably cut in quantity.

HUMAN FLY CLIMBS HOTEL AS THROGS STAND ASTONISHED

HIGHFILL, NOW SOLDIER, SCALES BUILDING WITH GREAT EASE.

Lester Highfill, of the Hundred and Ninety-Eighth Squadron at Call Field, demonstrated Saturday afternoon that not all Call Field's stunt performers are aviators, when he climbed the Westland Hotel building, the highest in the city, while crowds gathered in the street watched his progress with breathless interest. With nonchalant air Highfill would stop his climb, light a cigarette, smoke a few puffs and then go on, surely and not so very slowly, until he had finally reached the top of the building.

Four of a Kind. Young Highfill is one of the four men known as genuine "human flies." The present soldier, who has been in Wichita Falls since the last of November, 1917, has spent the past few years "just climbing around," as he expresses it, going all over the United States and Canada, advertising various schemes. He has climbed the Woolworth building in New York City,

THREE MEETINGS TO BE GIVEN AT TABERNACLE TODAY

BOTH FRIDAY AND SATURDAY SERVICES ARE WELL ATTENDED.

Sunday. 10:45 a. m., "Don't Write There," Mr. Brown. 3 p. m., "Cain's Wife," Center section reserved for men. Songs and talks in memory of Mother. 8 p. m., "House Cleaning."

Sunday will be a busy day for "Brother" Brown. Three heavy meetings will fix him so he will be glad to rest on Monday.

The largest week crowd so far was under the roof Friday night. The building was practically full and seats well packed.

Mrs. Stover sang one of the most effective solos of the campaign in "Come Home, Thy Father Calls Thee." A death like stillness hung over the audience as she sang.

Mr. Brown's sermon was of a strongly serious nature and not a trace of his customary humor crept into his talk on Demas.

Demas Prefers the World. The evangelist's text for the evening was taken from the fourth chapter of second Timothy, particularly the 10th verse.

Saturday Evening. The services Saturday evening, in spite of the rain were well attended.

Moses went up on the mountain to meet an engagement with God. In his absence Aaron, his chief lieutenant, took command.

"What Does This Mean?" In the midst of the celebration Moses came back and in spite of Aaron's popularity and the crowd's defection, the great leader rushed in to the midst of the surging thousands.

You can't fool God and you don't even fool the average bright man like Moses. You pour your life into your own mold and it is very likely to turn out a calf, hog, mule, rattlesnake or hyena.

Moses next call was to the people and drawing himself to his feet he demanded, "Who is on the Lord's side?"

Our churches are too lax. We do not sound the absolute tone of authority. God is the Infinite All Powerful Owner and Monarch of the universe and He has a right to speak without deprecation or apology.

The boy who won out. Three thousand of the disaffected were killed. That was pretty drastic but mark it that was the last gold calf ever manufactured by the Israelites while Moses was around.

An Arabian Nights Stunt In Munition Plant Building

How Dodge Brothers Made an Overnight Start on Their Big Job of Building the Recoil Mechanisms for the Cannon Pershing's Men Will Use in France.

(From Detroit, Saturday Night, March 9, 1918.)

HELP win the war! All America measures its every step in rhythmic unity with those four words. In less than twelve months they have shaped themselves into the most famous slogan in history.

It is the new national anthem. It is the tune blacksmiths forge their red-hot metal by. It is the tune that women cook and knit by.

Help win the war! And Detroit? Are we keeping step? Are we lending ourselves wholeheartedly and energetically to the cause the slogan stands for?

Washington will tell you that the slogan itself may have been created there, but that the meter was made in Detroit. It was here that the anthem's ponderous strain rose to a sharp staccato and set the national pace.

Washington will tell you that thousands upon thousands of workmen turned over night from their routine tasks and lent their skill and their strength to the problem of building war materials well enough and quickly enough to make them a factor in the ultimate victory.

And perhaps Washington will also tell you what they at the capital have come to know as a "modern miracle of industry." Ask them, if you chance to go there, for the story of the great contract for millions upon millions of dollars worth of recoil mechanism for America's biggest guns.

SEVERAL months after the war began the United States government undertook to manufacture big guns of the type now employed in France. A certain recoil mechanism was required for these guns but as none of this mechanism had ever been built in America before, the problem involved the stupendous task of building not only a special plant, but also making special dies and special machinery—quickly.

The government investigated every large munitions plant in the east and west. One manufacturer estimated that he could turn out one a day; another two; and still another estimated that he could produce fifteen. The government wanted 50.

Meanwhile Dodge Brothers, Detroit motor car manufacturers and their 16,000 employees were making automobiles at their accustomed gait. At the outbreak of the war they had not hastened to Washington and asked for a government contract.

And so the government came to Dodge Brothers. All the perplexities of the problem were laid before them, with specifications for the recoil mechanism that was to be fitted to great howitzers and field rifles for the American army. The government agents made known the quantity of output desired and the absolute necessity for SPEED. Would Dodge Brothers care to undertake it?

IT was no done. That was on Saturday, Oct. 27. And by 6 o'clock that night representatives of the Detroit water board, the department of public works and the street railway company had visited the site selected on the Lynch Road just outside Detroit, and made arrangements for the installation of water, sewers and car lines.

The Monday after the contract with the government had been ratified, Dodge Brothers got the Bethlehem Steel Company at Bethlehem, Pa., on the long distance telephone and by Thursday of the same week the great Bethlehem shops began to roll steel for the new ordnance plant.

The morning after the telephone conversation with Washington, workmen began breaking ground for the building. Supplies began arriving by the car loads. Construction had begun on an all-concrete and steel building 600x800 feet in dimensions, to cover a total area of eleven acres.

From that day it has been a continuous record of similar Alladdin-like achievements. Within 20 days the excavations had been made, the filling in had been completed and the entire 11 acres of concrete foundations and floors installed.

Then during the bitter cold of December, January and February, the work went on. Great steel frames rose like magic and soon were transformed from bare skeletons into massive walls.

BEFORE Detroit realized that this work had begun the roof was on. Machinery was being installed. Dodge Brothers themselves had cast the dies and built it. Other machines were brought in from everywhere. Trainloads were commandeered. Thirty cars that had been consigned to the Russian government were caught at the dock and turned back to Detroit.

Speed characterizes every move. But quality is not for a moment sacrificed. Last Friday the first machinery was ready for operation. There is no longer any doubt that the entire plant will be completed and production under way long before the time allotted by the government.

One of the most remarkable phases of the entire undertaking is the accuracy with which the size of the building was estimated. At the outset nobody knew the requirements definitely. It was for Dodge Brothers to determine how much machinery would be required to meet them.

Were it not so intricately technical, the mechanism itself would be vastly interesting. Suffice it that the plant will turn out a "hydraulic pneumatic recoil," the particular war time function of which is to prevent the gun from tearing itself to pieces in discharging its deadly "message to the Kaiser," and at the same time to shift the barrel back into position for re-firing.

AND what is there in it for Dodge Brothers, you ask? Well, they are paid on the usual "cost-plus" basis; that is, they get 10 per cent. above the amount they invest. If they produce a $2,000 recoil mechanism they get $300 profit.

That should dispose of the question of profits. Moreover, Dodge Brothers are financing the new ordnance plant to the extent of $1,500,000 and more out of their own purse. The government offered financial help at the very beginning.

They are charging no premium for the work of the six or eight thousand workmen they are assembling into a war-working organization in this new plant. Nor are they charging a premium for the arduous hours they themselves are personally devoting to the tremendous task of preparation.

Unlike other government work, this piece of construction is not teeming with government inspectors. That was in the contract. Dodge Brothers offered to put their reputation behind the quality of the building they erected and the goods they turned out—and the government acquiesced. Only the finished product is inspected.

Miracles of modern industry? No, merely an unostentatious incident in the life of Detroit the Dynamic. Merely another drum beat set a thumping to the tune of the national anthem.

TAKING TESTIMONY STILL CONTINUES IN FEDERAL CASE

LIQUOR CASE IS MOVING FORWARD AS MANY GIVE EVIDENCE.

Taking of testimony continued all during Saturday in the case of D. M. Hardy, J. O. Elliott and J. M. Young, on trial in the Federal court on charges of conspiracy to transport liquor into Oklahoma, the government's witnesses being on the stand from 10 o'clock in the morning until 3:30 in the afternoon, when Judge Attek adjourned court over Sunday, ordering the jurors to keep together throughout the time, and also stating that he regretted that he must order them to refrain from attending church services. Not half of the witnesses summoned by the government have been put on the stand and from present indications the trial will go well into next week.

Soldier Upon Stand.
C. E. Cooper, a soldier at Camp Bowie, witness put on Saturday afternoon, was ordered continued in jail while U. S. District Attorney W. M. Odell considered the case. Cooper, it was charged, being testified Saturday afternoon directly opposite to statements made before the grand jury. Cooper's testimony on examination, according to the commissioner's records, was to the effect that he had on several occasions acted as lookout man for Oklahoma men who were taking liquor across Red River from Texas, and had notified them if any officers were to be seen.

Fred Baldwin, toll keeper at the Byers bridge, on the stand Friday afternoon, is also under consideration by Mr. Odell, though not confined. There were said to be several discrepancies between his testimony, given Friday, and statements made under oath before the grand jury.

Baldwin's Testimony.
Baldwin's testimony dealt for the most part with the cars that passed over the bridge, the load that they carried and similar details. He was also asked concerning parties that are at present under indictment for transporting liquor into Oklahoma and conspiring for its transportation. He testified that he received whiskey from a number of persons passing over the bridge.

A. Hartsfield, operator of the "Dutch John Ferry" over Red River near Byers, and his son, C. Hartsfield, were on the stand Friday afternoon. The elder Hartsfield stated that at one time L. A. Keeter, who had been mentioned by Patterson, a previous witness, backed off the ferry when he saw the officers on the other side.

Carl Keeter was the principal witness Saturday. Keeter is under indictment for conspiracy to transport liquor into Oklahoma, being arrested on Jan-

Germans Continuing To Make Arrests In Ukraina, Is Report

By Associated Press.
MOSCOW, Wednesday, May 8.—The Germans are continuing to make arrests in Ukraina. A right censorship has been established by them at Kiev but it has been learned that they have searched the residence of Professor D. Grouchvsky who also escaped. A member of the Hada named Poutra was arrested but subsequently was released, protests having been made by several local organizations.

January 31, 1917. His testimony concerning this trip, when he was caught, follows in substance:

Tells of Talk.
Witness said he talked with Hardy in his warehouse in Wichita Falls before starting and then Hardy assured him everything was all right. That when he was caught and brought back to Wichita Falls he again saw Hardy and asked him what was the matter and that Hardy said the officers "doubled crossed him."

Witness also testified that Hardy asked him what he had done with the checks that he had given in payment for liquor bought of him and told him to burn them, that the officers were searching for such as that. Later when he was again in Wichita Falls Hardy asked him if he had burned the checks and he told him he had. Several witnesses testified to hauling liquor from Wichita Falls, where they secured it at the Hardy warehouse, into Oklahoma for A. C. Fowler and various others, were put on the stand Saturday morning and afternoon. Among them were: W. Tucker, J. W. Whit, Dewey Seward, Frank Plato, Allen Gudgel and Henry May. These men gave testimony much alike and all corroborative, regarding the method of loading and hauling the liquor from Wichita Falls.

Questions Witnesses.
Judge Meek questioned some of the witnesses closely about the amount received for hauling a load. One of them testified that he was paid from $2.50 to $5.00 a case each trip, and that he would carry about 15 cases. He also testified that he used a Ford "How much does a Ford cost, to make the trips."

"About $500," was the answer. The court queried him concerning the time it took him to make the trip, the witness testifying that he could do it in three and a half or four hours.

"And you can make $50.00, one tenth the cost of your car, in four hours?" the court continued. The last witness on the stand Saturday afternoon was a Mr. Prentiss of the First National Bank at Duncan, Okla., who testified as to the banking business of A. C. Fowler and others, whose checks on that bank were given in payment for whiskey bought at the Hardy Wholesale liquor house.

RUSSIAN COMMANDER KILLED BY BOLSHIEVIKI

COPENHAGEN, May 11.—General Rennenkampf, a Russian commander in the Japanese and the present war, has been murdered by the bolshevik at Taganrog, southern Russia, according to the Vienna correspondent of the Lokal Anzeiger of Berlin.

Indications that the calling of the increased draft is imminent are found in bulletins sent to the local board by General Crowder, board to go over their No. 2 classifications and if possible secure more Class 1 draft eligibles. A warning is also issued to all Class 1 registrants to get their business in readiness to go at any time and all employer of Class 1 men are advised that they had best look for employees in other classes if they do not wish to be inconvenienced when the call comes. There has been no definite call made on the Wichita county board, later than the call for May 15 and 17, previously announced, for men to have special training. The men to be called at this time have not yet been selected by the local board.

FINLAND NOW DISCUSSES ANNEXING KARELIA.

By Associated Press.
LONDON, May 11.—A dispatch to the Times from Stockholm says that the Finnish government has summoned Von Enkel, Finnish minister at Petrograd, to return to Helsinki for the purpose, it is stated, of discussing the suggested annexation of Russian Karelia by Finland. M. Von Enkel is quoted by the correspondent as reporting the situation in Petrograd as still precarious owing to the scarcity and dearth of food. The government however is gaining in stability and power, he says, subduing the unruly elements and making an effort to re-organize the army. The number of unemployed is very great and industry is completely at a standstill. The peasantry who are the principal supporters of the bolshevik, the minister added, are still looking to that government for a free distribution of land most of which in the meantime has been left uncultivated.

M. Boichler, a Frenchman who has arrived at Stockholm on his way to France, has confirmed the statements of the minister regarding the labor situation, the correspondent says.

MILITARY OCCUPATION OF RUSSIA BY GERMANS NOW BEING THREATENED

By Associated Press.
LONDON, May 11.—Russia has been suddenly faced with events that may again change the political outlook, the Petrograd correspondent of the Daily Express telegraphs. Germany, he says, has apparently found that economic domination over Russian territory is insufficient and is seeking military occupation.

An extra session of the bolshevik government council has been held in Petrograd to discuss the situation created by ultimatum recently delivered by the German ambassador, Count Von Mirbach, which embodied demands of a character apparently calculated to turn Russia virtually into a German colony. Premier Lenin's speech at this meeting was extremely pessimistic, the question of transferring the capital to Nijni-Novgorod was broached, as was the subject of immediate military measures for the defense of Moscow against possible aerial attacks.

EXTRAVAGANZA IS TO BE GIVEN AT HIGH SCHOOL SOON

FOUR HUNDRED PUPILS ARE LISTED IN CAST OF CHARACTERS.

In what is expected to be by far the best and most elaborate production of its kind ever seen in Wichita Falls, four hundred children of the grade schools, under the direction of Miss Jessie Mae Agnew, will present "The Woodland Revel," a fairy extravaganza at the Wichita Theater on Wednesday afternoon and Thursday evening of this week.

Fifty per cent of the net proceeds goes to the Junior Red Cross, the remainder to the music department of the schools.

Artistic scenic and costuming of facts, aesthetic interpretations and characterization of musical selections, are features of the operetta which deals with the life of the creatures and flowers of the wood, including the fairy queen and her attendants, the butterflies, gnomes, and other proverbial woodland dwellers.

The mischievous tricks of Puck, the court jester, banished by the queen of the fairies because of his practical jokes, when he comes into possession of the scepter of the queen and with it, her power, forms the theme of an unusually attractive and novel story which brings all the flowers and creatures of the wood into prominence and which offers a number of imaginative and interesting situations for the interpretation of the youthful actors. Aesthetic interpretations by Mildred Nettle and Bernice Martin and choruses of fairy and woodland folk in appropriate and picturesque costume are special features of the entertainment which promises well to rival the splendid success of former productions given under the direction of Miss Agnew.

The afternoon performance is offered especially for the school children. In the cast list which follows, the names of the "Bohals" and Johnny "Jump Ups" choruses were unobtainable. Four hundred are in the cast as follows:

TOTAL ARMY MAY REACH 5,000,000 MEN WITHIN YEAR

WASHINGTON, May 11—More than 1,300,000 men have been called in the draft so far and either are in France, in camp, or under call to go into service before June 1.

The total of 1,300,000 includes all men summoned in the May contingent. There is every indication that even a larger increment will be summoned in June than was summoned in May and a progressive monthly mobilization will continue through the summer and fall months as the contingents are expanded.

It is expected that at such a rate the army will reach a full strength of well over 3,000,000 within the next 12 or 13 months. It is possible some officers say that the number will be closer to 5,000,000 than 3,000,000.

SOCIETY

(See Page 4, Section 3) CONGENIAL CROCHET CLUB PLEASANTLY ENTERTAINED

Mrs. C. M. Duke delightfully entertained the members of the Congenial Crochet Club at her home on Friday afternoon. During the short business session the members decided to discontinue meetings during the summer months in order to have more time for Red Cross work. Red Cross and fancy work busied the guests on Friday afternoon. A number of selections on the Victrola and a dainty refreshment course were other enjoyable features. Mesdames Roy and C. E. Friebe were guests, the members present being Mesdames Andre Brown, Anderson, Bachman, Snyder, Dollard, Ulrich and Weaver.

WICHITA MAN LOSES HUNDREDS OF DOLLARS.

"I am sorry I did not hear of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy a few years ago, as it would have saved me several hundred dollars. Five years I suffered from indigestion and severe bloating. I grew worse all the time. My doctor said an operation would be all that could save me. I took a course of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy instead and for the past year have been entirely well." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. MUDDY BOOTS PLEASSED THE QUEEN

By Margaret Walter

LONDON, May 11.—More potatoes, beans, cabbage and corn—that is what the Land Army is campaigning for now; and more of anything means first of all more women to work on the land.

So last week a few of the workers were called to London by the recruiting department and asked to march to Trafalgar Square and tell the town girls all about service on the land. Not many could be spared; this is the busiest week of the year on the farm in England, and those who came up didn't stop to clean the soil of the furrow from their farm boots.—the smell of the earth was strong upon them. Somebody distributed tight fitting bouquets of primroses to all the smocked girls as they entered the square and a prettier sight you couldn't imagine. Watteau's shepherdesses could not vie with the fresh rosy cheeks of these land girls; it is no wonder that London office workers flocked to the recruiting booths, twelve thousand of them.

"When the procession, headed by a military band, passed a great Government office building, the office girls filled the windows and shouted and hurrahed, then scores of them stenographers and clerks, resigned their positions to work on the land.

"I'm afraid the Queen won't like my muddy boots," said my beautiful plough girl friend. I was marching along beside the procession on its way to Buckingham Palace where the Queen was to review them.

"Well, anyhow, they show you are no stage plough girl," I reassured her. Sure enough, when the Queen came along the lines to speak to the girls individually she noticed Muriel's muddy boots and this is what she said: "You are doing splendid work. The signs of your labor are an honor to you and I am proud to shake your hand. You stand shoulder to shoulder with the men in your service to England."

CALL FIELD CAMOUFLAGE

FORMATION STUNT FLYING INTERESTS ELECTRA PEOPLE

FIVE MACHINES ALMOST BREAK UP CARNIVAL IN SISTER CITY

LIEUT. HANES COMMANDS

This Now Considered an Important Part of Instruction Being Given to Cadets

Call Field fliers almost broke up a carnival at Electra last Saturday, when they flew over the oil town in military formation.

The formation was led by Lieutenant Hanes with instructors Norton, Zimmerman, Manning and Musick in the planes, and as the formation flew over Wichita Falls early in the morning on their way across country the people of the city were given an idea of the appearance an enemy raiding air party might present.

Formation flying is forming an important part of the finishing instruction of the Call Field students, though the simplest form only is undertaken.

POST SOCIAL NOTES

CALL FIELD WELCOMES TWO BRIDES THIS WEEK

Post society has received two brides this week. Lieutenant G. C. Dickson, who has recently been commissioned at Call Field, went to Vallejo, Calif., on leave and brought a bride back to Call Field with him.

Lieutenant and Mrs. J. E. Foster, newly wedded of three weeks' standing, are now at home in quarters at the field, having arrived this week from Columbus, Ohio.

Mrs. Norvell W. Denny of Nashville, Tenn., has joined her husband, Lieutenant Denny assigned to the 185th Squadron at Call Field.

Mrs. E. L. Wynne is one of the most recent acquisitions to the "official ladies" of Call Field, coming last week from Kansas to join Lieutenant Wynne who is a flying instructor.

Lieutenant and Mrs. J. C. Shaf Jr., from Indianapolis, have arrived at Call Field, Lieutenant Shaf being assigned to the supply office of the local field.

Lieutenant and Mrs. Conn Brown are entertaining the lieutenant's mother, Mrs. J. W. Brown, of Mount Vernon, Ky.

Lieutenant W. D. Burns, medical officer at the post, accompanied by Mrs. Burns, left Saturday night for Omaha, Neb., on ten days' leave to visit Lieutenant Burns' father who is ill.

ONE AVIATOR KILLED; ANOTHER IS INJURED AT SANTA ROSA ISLE

By Associated Press

PENSACOLA, Fla., May 11.—Richard C. McCalla, of Toledo, Ohio, student aviator, was burned to death and George F. Henderson, of Pawtucket, R. I., student aviator, was badly burned when their airplane fell on Santa Rosa Island yesterday.

Whether the plane caught fire before it struck the ground has not yet been determined. Henderson extricated himself but was unable to get McCalla out.

Lieutenant Joseph Schafer and Lieutenant John E. Foster, both wearers of gold bars, are the only additions to the official families at Call Field this week.

WHO'S WHO—AND WHY

Cutting through the clouds at a rate of one hundred and fifty miles per hour, a Standard was seen emitting melodious sounds and streams of blue smoke.

According to Koerbling, his pupils are plain cuckoos, flying officers are disheveled, pellucidous wearers of $4.98 wings that are good for only manikin salutes of higher officers, and, at the mention of the well known "Kie Wie" or ground officer, Instructor Koerbling loses consciousness.

SECRETARY GIVES ACCOUNT OF TRIP 'ROUND THE WORLD

GLOBE CIRCLING BY WORD OF MOUTH ACCOMPLISHED IN TWO HOURS.

By Associated Press

"Round the World in Ninety Days," as a fast globe circling medium was entirely discounted by Y. M. C. A. Secretary John P. Davidson of the Call Field, who took his audience of several hundred soldiers round the globe in about two hours Friday night.

Four hundred and fifty pictures, taken in the land of the "heavenly China," the Flower Kingdom, Liberia, the land of Gunga Din and the "road to Mandalay," the Land of the Sphinx, and the other countries of the eastern continent, were shown with a descriptive talk by Mr. Davidson, recounting the experiences of the trip and containing a personal note that removed any stiffness or hint of a "lecture," and the evening was one of the most entertaining which the Call Field soldiers have experienced in their "Y."

STUNTS IN THE AIR

'TURN ON WING'

Lieutenant Harold Hanes, official plane tester of Call Field and instructor of the graduate class of fliers, describes today's stunt feature, the "Turn on Wing."

"This stunt," says Lieutenant Hanes, "correctly done is one of the prettiest of the aerial acrobatics. Observed from the ground in some positions it resembles the ordinary loop. In fact some exhibition fliers in the first days of the game used to make the turn on wing to fake a loop, preferring to do this, though it is more complicated, because at the top of the loop the operator loses the horizon and some fliers did not like to take this chance."

"On entering into the turn on wing, the machine is nosed over slightly, getting up a little more than flying speed. Pull the controls right back, starting the machine straight up in the air as in the loop. When the machine is pointed straight toward the sky, with the power full on, kick the elevator controls, pulling the machine back to horizontal position, exactly opposite to that it occupied when the turn was started. Put on power and resume the flying course."

BRITISH AIRMEN ARE SUCCESSFUL IN MANY FIGHTS

ONE ALLIED PLANE PROVES MORE THAN MATCH FOR FIVE OF ENEMY.

ALL SORTS KEPT BUSY

Allied Planes Also Have Been Constantly Employed in Attacking German Infantry.

By Associated Press

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN France, May 11.—There has been much air fighting during the last few days and the British airmen have fully sustained the great reputation they established early in the war.

Several days ago near Ypres one British machine attacked five German single handed.

The British engaged one enemy and fought him until he turned tail and fled. The English pilot then went after another German and pressed the attack so hard that the enemy was forced into a nose spin in an attempt to escape.

New York paid tribute to a corps of the finest fighting men in France, 105 poilus, every one of whom has suffered grievous wounds in battle and bears upon his breast those honorable medals conferred by the French Republic only for extraordinary fearlessness and valor.

LIEUT. "JELLY" KNOX GOES TO SOUTHERN FIELD IN GEORGIA

Southern Field, to which Call Field had already contributed a commanding officer, Major Wash, a supply officer, Lieutenant Shedy and an assistant supply officer, Lieutenant Lee, has claimed a fourth Call Field celebrity. This is none other than the celebrated Lieutenant "Jelly" Knox, whose acquisition caused Call Field much rejoicing a few months ago.

Belgium Under the German Heel

By BRAND WHITLOCK

The German Explanation of Louvain

The story of the son of the Burgomaster and the shooting of the General did not serve long as the reason for destroying Louvain. The alleged cause took on larger proportions as the effects grew. The Germans claimed that the civilians of Louvain fired on the soldiers from windows along the rue de la Station, the most consequential residence street of the old university city, a long, quiet avenue lined with the handsome residences of the local quality, university professors, lawyers, doctors and the haute bourgeoisie. But even this was not enough; it was sufficiently notorious; the thing must be deeper, more profound, more in accord with the current legend of the franc-tireur, and so it grew and expanded until in the final and official version it blossomed forth as a Volkstragedie. In the very houses where German soldiers were quartered, it was said Belgian soldiers, who had changed their uniforms for civilian attire, had been concealed, armed to the teeth, provided even with mitrailleuses and, at a preconcerted signal, in secret communication with the Belgian Government at Antwerp, at the moment when Belgian troops were making a sortie from the Antwerp fort, had sprung suddenly forth from windows and even from floor holes in the houses, placed there, it is intimated, with a view to this very exigency. When the houses were built, and had treacherously fired on innocent German soldiers going to the support of their sorely tried comrades at the front. Such is the German version, given in the White Book of 10th May, 1915.

The signal for this uprising is said to have been skyrockets falling like stars in the evening sky. It is not at all unlikely that Germans did not see stars that evening. Never in history were soldiers more badly scared than they were when the sky was filled with endless horses came galloping into town through the Porte de Malines, and disturbed the officers at their food and wine. For forty years they had been reading about those French franc-tireurs with the ferocious names, those French Tartarins, those dark villains that had stalked through all the German fiction for two score years.

There are many accounts of it, but the account that I like best is the one written by Carl Moenckeberg and published in the Dusseldorfer General Anzeiger for the 10th September, 1911, under the title "Our Baptism of Fire at Louvain." I like this account because it falls in with my notion of the essential romanticism of German fiction.

I had just eaten a bite at the Hotel Metropole," says Moenckeberg, "numerous detachments of infantry that did not belong to our regiment were passing in the street. It was said that they were going to sound the alarm and that perhaps at night we would have to take part in a combat. I ran as far as the Place. There were our horses saddled and ready to come from the station, and there was installed a camp of our field wagons. We mounted and, on horseback, rode in the streets where the soldiers were swarming. The excitement was great, and swelled even more when darkness fell. No one knew what was going on and the officers were forced to hold back their men by crying at the top of their voices in order to dominate the noise of the shuffling of the soldiers and the pawing of the horses. After a certain time a counter-attack was made. We return to the rear and again occupy the Place, whose space was filled to the last little corner with the wagons hitched up. Now they must once more distribute forage in order that before night men and horses may take their quarters. My neighbor, impatient was citing me the following phrase: "The silence passes the greatest part of his life in waiting in vain. When the last word was hardly out of his mouth a formidable detonation had just come from the station, and the Place. We turned about with the rapidity of a flash of lightning. I saw at the height of a man a brilliant light. My first thought is that the Belgian artillery has just arrived and is shooting at the troops parked in the Place. At the same moment all the saddled horses rush to the side opposite from that whence came the detonation, jostle one another, and enter the street that is just in front. The harnessed horses also, seized by panic, shy and drag the wagons in a mad way. Many break their straps and start to gallop across all that crowd. It is impossible to control them. The panic of the horses threatens to extend itself to the men. All without understanding anything, look fixedly in the direction of the first explosion, awaiting the second. Then, at the four sides of the Place a rain of bullets, coming from the windows of the principal houses, falls crackling on us. All precaution is useless. From every side come the bullets whistling and crackle at our ears in a bewildering way. Whoever has an arm and everyone has either an infantry gun, or a musket, or a revolver, shoots mechanically toward the first point where he thinks there is an enemy. They shoot a second time, then a third. They shoot without ceasing, and everyone finds himself in the double danger, equally great, either to be brought down by the Belgians, or by their own comrades. My revolver misses fire, the bullet is choked in the barrel. I throw myself down on my stomach, under a tree, at the same time with several soldiers who were shooting. I realize in a manner very clear, but also very hopeless, that only a highly impossible miracle can save me, for this infernal chaos must endure for some minutes yet. I ask only to be struck by a blow that will finish me and not leave me half dead in the hands of these aggressors. There! Listen! What sign? They are still shooting, and indeed the storm quiets down a little. German discipline triumphs, the enemy is vanquished.

Could any psychologist give a better description of the state of mind of those soldiers? One almost has sympathy for poor Moenckeberg; not as to heart at all, but young, sentimental, imaginative, far from home and writing for the papers.

One is not quite sure whether it is the Place de la Station, or the Place de l'Église, that Moenckeberg is writing of, but perhaps he is not quite sure himself. But one concludes that it must have been the Place de la Station. Oberleutenant Telemann, in his deposition, is more matter of fact; less literary; "Out in the Place, meanwhile," he says, "there was a terrible excitement—rain toiles (churchyard)—the horses were frightened and ran away in all directions, and the soldiers were crying: 'Die Franzosen sind die Krimmerer und da!'" At any rate, Moenckeberg's story is now a classic, since it has received official recognition, and is published by the Government as evidence of what occurred at Louvain and of why the army had to do what it did there. For the Germans had an investigation; a commission was appointed to examine into the matter, to take evidence, and it reported that it was all the fault of the Belgians, and that the German army was in no wise to blame. The witnesses were all German soldiers, and a few officers. No Belgians and no neutrals were allowed to follow the progress of the hearing. Certain Belgians, among them the notables of the City of Louvain, volunteered to appear and testify, but their testimony was for the most part refused, and that which was given does not appear in the German White Book, which is the official document on the subject. The inquiry was conducted, or in part conducted, by a German Feldkriegsgerichtsrat, Dr. Ivers. He seems to have been a kind of Judge Advocate. His conclusions, of course, were that the Germans were in no wise to blame for what occurred at Louvain, and that they were wholly justified in doing what they did.

The Germans had been eager to have Gibson, Bulle, Polette and Blount testify to the effect that while at Louvain they had seen Belgian civilians shooting from the windows. I would not consent to Gibson's testifying unless the American Government desired it, and the American Government did not desire it. Thereupon Pousette and Bulle declined to testify. Their testimony, in any event, according to our rules of evidence, could have established no other fact than that three days after the tragedy began there was still shooting in the streets at Louvain. They could not have been certain as to who shot, and for all they knew the Belgian theory that German soldiers had been placed in empty houses to shoot from upper windows in order to give the representatives of neutral powers with the viciousness of the Belgians, was just as valid as the German claim.

One morning during the progress of the hearing, a German officer appeared at the Legation. He was large, portly, dressed in the lurid grey-green uniform worn by heavy sword and thick professional spectacles. Under his arm he bore an enormous portfolio that might have contained, could he have found in it enough evidence to condemn the seven Belgian civilians. He entered, clicked his heels, placed his hand at his helmet, bowed stiffly and without more ado seated himself at the head of the table. He spread his portfolio over before him, and in short, told us to begin testifying. I looked at the man in amazement; I do not know whether he was conscious of his power and authority were ebullient in his skull. But I finally convinced him that he was laboring under some misapprehension, and ultimately he went away, passing only for a rather petulant salute. I do not know whether this man was Dr. Ivers or not. It would be too bold a confession of the weakness of my own character to say that I wish it were, for reading the other day of Dr. Ivers this man's physiognomy came to my mind—the thick neck, the heavy sword, the upstanding stiff, crooked hair, the myopic spectacles—and the manner. I know that the ad hominem argument is a fallacy, and a wholly uninteresting in this connection to note that Feldkriegsgerichtsrat Ivers has since been tried and convicted before the Criminal Court of Berlin on a charge of having used his legal functions for the purpose of extorting money from the mother of a man then serving in the army, whose wife was suing him for divorce, that for this he has been sent to prison, and that in sentencing him the judge who presided at the trial said that from the evidence it had been shown that the accused Ivers was without moral sense or judgment.

The investigation, however, seems not to have been a very hearing by the ordinary sense of the word. The Feldkriegsgerichtsrat evidently had a rogatory commission, for he went about from one place to another, much as a judge would do, holding court wherever he found a witness whose testimony was desired. There was no cross-examination, no questions asked, no questions differently placed. I am not quite sure that they were sworn to—what that makes any difference, for I could never quite see myself, why so much to do was made about oaths, since a man who would lie would probably be willing to swear to it. But the depositions were made, many of them, weeks and even months afterwards, and it is a curious coincidence that they were devised so as to refer in advance the points that were afterwards raised.

The Fateful Whistle. This schaufourée skirmish in the Place de la Station was the most intense. Pay Officer Radolph testified that from the night of the 24th to the 25th all of the chambers were still held by German officers. He tried to get a room at the Hotel Marie. There but it was full. On the evening of the 26th the cafes were closed at eight o'clock, in accordance with the order of the Kommandantur and the fire was allowed in the street. The Place de la Station was at the moment filled with wagons and with soldiers. A few moments after eight o'clock a faint blue glow somewhere, and immediately the soldiers in the Place began shooting in all directions. The occupants of the houses, naturally, were a little bit nervous, and some of them, struck by panic, pointed people in cellars. Everyone in Louvain blows somewhere, but about it, except when they speak of those Germans who had the very ones with whom they had taken refuge dragged out afterwards and shot.

One other deposition is of interest, that of Oberleutenant von Sandt, the comrade of Berghausen, a captain of the iron Cross of the second class. David Fishback of Louvain. Next we see him bending to kiss the hands of Belgian nurses at the hospital, expatiating to them on the solidarity that binds all workers of the Red Cross together. Later on in September, according to a newspaper of Cologne, he is at a religious ceremony in Louvain, mounting to the pulpit beside the Dominican father, and translating into German, for the benefit of German soldiers present, the sermon which the monk had just delivered in French to his own people. Dr. Berghausen seems to have had a somewhat too evident fondness for the limelight, the exaggerated manner of the moment. He was dramatizing himself, or romancing himself, all the time. This is not surprising to find him in the midst of the affair there in the Place de la Station that night. He was on foot, he says, to the Place de la Station and on the way he was fired at him from upper windows. He touched by the shot, he says, he fell and he was carried to the Just-Lipse. He arrived there at one o'clock, and he says he was a German soldier in uniform, and that he was asking for the name of the man who pointed to the house.

But it is better to let him tell it himself. "I myself broke on the door, with the aid of my orderly, and I found the occupant of the house, Dr. David Fishback, the elder. I asked him the reason for the murder of the soldier, because I said to him, his comrades had told me of the affair from the windows of your house that the shot was fired from the house? I replied to him: 'Certainly, I can.'"

All through von Sandt's deposition are such phrases as "I was told so," and "soldiers told me that," and all of the soldiers' depositions are full of hearsay and of conclusions—which must be believed in Germany, because they are made by German soldiers. The account would not be complete without a history of those times, by whom, where written, would be complete with out a word or two concerning Dr. Georg Berghausen.

Dr. Georg Berghausen, Sergeant-in-Chief of the second battalion of the Landwehr of Neuss, is a young man, who appears at several points in this narrative and in his own deposition, almost in the first line, he gives us an accurate description of himself; for there is his terrible and fatal quality in all writing, which should, no doubt adjure to silence, namely, that no matter how imperfect a picture the writer gives of everything, he always draws a perfect portrait of himself.

"I arrived at Louvain," says the doctor, "the 24th of August, at two o'clock, and went to the hotel and his walters. I had my pocket the sum of money destined to the purchase of a bicycle. There you have heard of the entrance on the stage of the hotel with a flourish of anti-tudes, twisting his body, and pressing the natives to go to the head of the parade. No sooner arrived than he goes to the head of the parade to set at liberty the German nationalism of war, and he begins to sing before the war, for again, on the 26th of August, he finds him in the fray. He went out to the head of the parade, and was given

MIDNIGHT IN THE YANK LINES

By GEORGE T. BYE
London, April 7 (Delayed)—My first thought on coming out of the American trenches in Lorraine was: Did our army choose this sector of the line or was it presented to us? Certainly there is no more uncomfortable trench location from the North Sea to Switzerland.

From a topographical standpoint our fighters are in a drainage basin. The place that one hears mentioned in stories of American raids is a swamp. All the rains and thaws of a considerable area wash down into this hole.

Yet, uncomfortable as this location is, it has all the advantage for novice fighters of being a "quiet sector," one where a major German attack is never likely. A drive here could only have the obnoxious effect of threatening Toul, as strong a fortress as Verdun and Nancy.

Before I got into our woebegone sector I had the unusual honor and pleasure of having dinner at the general mess at headquarters. How typically American it was! A captain sat at the head of the table, a French captain at the foot, and our brisk old general stretched his legs on the side and helped to pass things around the table.

Meatless day it was, and he had to apologize like any good housewife for the lack of a roast for his unexpected guest. The orderly who served me nicely although I am sure the same good housewife would find fault with the great mass of food he used to insulate his fingers from the mild heat of the dishes.

A major and three young artillery captains were also at the general's mess, and the captain provided most of the chatter. Strangely enough they did not once mention Harvard University although the general had warned me in advance that their alma mater, old Harvard, would be the chief meal topic. But it had been too busy a day at their batteries. They had reason to believe that several annoying German guns would no longer be heard from.

The major cut in to say that another fairly story was going up and down the trenches. "Remember that yarn about one of our patrols finding a dog tied out ahead of the German line, the dog barking as soon as he smelled them?" said the major. "Well, today they say there's a duck out there that quacks when anyone gets near him? They probably heard some boches with hay fever."

It was now time to stumble out in the blackness to our car which had all lamps out excepting the tail light. I wore both British and French gas masks in accordance with a very awkward American army regulation. We also had British "tin hats."

When we were about a half mile down the road a chorus of Yank big guns made a mess of red and yellow in the sky ahead and flashed back to back before the approach of the enemy, giving me a twitch that toppled my tin hat to a tipsy angle. Those steel head-pieces give a great feeling of security. I fastened mine securely this time.

At first our car raced along, then we went more slowly. "r dark forms disclosed themselves along the road, small parties of Yanks going back from the trenches, or a lone officer on horseback.

Finally we reached a point where our car was no longer permitted to approach the front lines. We got out and walked a short distance over duckboards to a telephone station connecting all the batteries. I was given a relief map of the whole sector so that I might understand my trench meanderings. Here the general's aide turned me over to a colonel who assigned another captain to escort me to headquarters, where I was to be turned over to a major for my usher up to the front.

The major was pulling on hip boots when we arrived, and said he was just about to give our outposts their regular midnight inspection, and that I might accompany him. He offered me a cigar—to chew warning that he couldn't light up until we got back in the morning. While he was giving some directions to officers and a runner had a chance to inspect the small headquarters and sleeping accommodations for these half-dozen men. The whole place was of about the size of a very small cottage, with a table in the center and benches and bunks in all corners. The ceiling was so low I had to take off my helmet to stand erectly, and I am no giant. It was a beamed ceiling in effect, though the beams were heavy steel rails overlaid with several feet of concrete, dirt and wreckage.

"There are only two instructions I wish to give you," said the major. "One is that you do not speak above a low whisper after I command you. And if you are challenged by sentries, halt instantly. Our imperative orders to our men are to shoot anyone who budges an inch after they are challenged. Now, forward."

The trench racket I had heard earlier as on occasional crackle and bomb thud now snapped in my ears as if it was being caused a few feet away. The sad zizz of disappointed bullets came over our heads like the buzz of bees dejectedly looking for home in the night. And the sky that had been only streaked with flickers of star shells and rocket flares now quivered with snowy, trembling bursts of light. I was startled to find I had a pronounced shadow back of me, though I could see a pallid stretch of moon-like terrain far ahead of me. Advancing toward the Hun observatories I was as self-conscious of my anatomy as some burlesque queen in the spotlight for the first time.

"Halt! Who goes there!" I made two steps before coming out of my reverie and stopping dead still. "Your commanding officer with friends," said the major in a low voice. Silence. "Well!" demanded the major in a higher key. More silence from the sentry. "Who do you stand there like a dam fool?" shouted the major this time. "Do you forget what you're supposed to do? Wake up, for God's sake! Tell me to advance and give the pass word. 'Aw, come ahead,'" said the sentry. "I know who you are. I see your face as bright as day."

"That doesn't make a dam bit of difference. What if a boche were to dress up to resemble me? Would you stand there like a ninny and let him obey orders, this is no place for you. We'll send you back home to chew gum with the other ninny in the picture shows."

The sentry cleared a large bubble out of his throat. In the fress light of a flare we could see that his jaw had a bit sheepishly. "Advance c'mmand officer with friend," he faltered.

"Hell, no!" stormed the major with new vehemence. "You haven't said the right thing, and 'u still hold your gun as if you knew who I was. Now again!"

"Vance c'mmand officer and give pass word." The major stamped ahead and whispered something that sounded like a subdued glass crash. Then the sentry lowered his gun and stood aside, while the major called "Forward" to me. "He's a green one," commented the major as we proceeded. "This is his third night. We're breaking him in at that rather unimportant post."

Forward we went, but gradually downward into a communicating trench. The duckboards had been getting more and more wobbly as we made our way, and just about the time the trench was head high my shoes kicked up a splash of water. The major stopped.

"Mighty sorry I didnt think to borrow a pair of hip boots from one of the officers for you," he said. "You're in for a cold swim. By the way, don't think I talked too roughly to you. I did back there. We really have to do it, to keep the new ones alert. I caught one of them juggling his gun on his chin the other night, and the boche was only 100 yards away from him. But if we call em down good and plenty, it keeps 'em from getting dull or lonesome—and makes 'em mad as hell and the look as sharp as foxes to spot a German and take their spite out on him."

This apology was in the uneasy voice of a father who tells his spoiled son that it hurts the spanker worse than the spankee. I like that old major, and I'll bet every Yank "cussed" by him will remember him with affectionate respect.

War business was living up briskly ahead. Machine guns kept up a nasty hitting conversation. An American battery shook the earth and heavens with an ungodly rumpus about every five minutes. The battery commander was evidently tuning up, trying to make all the guns thunder in unison. One of them persisted in lagging behind, until finally they did achieve a single note, sharp and perfect, and deafening. Then evidently satisfied with his choral leadership, the commander ordered no more salvoes, and no more crumbling earth spattered in my face to splash in the bottom of the trench.

The duckboards were now wobblier than ever, and the water deeper. "Are these called duck boards because they duck you if you don't watch out?" I was going to ask the major to show him that I still had my nerve, but forgot about it in pulling myself out of about a foot of icy water and ooze. From that point on I went down every few minutes, sometimes slipping off a duck board with a hard fall, or coming to a water hole where there was no duck board, and sometimes tripping over a disarrangement of the trench walk that I could not see in the intense darkness, for occasionally we were entirely screened from racket flares and then for several minutes at a time there would be no flares at all.

Soon we had our first sentry challenge in the trenches, and this went off with great satisfaction to the major. "Seen anything tonight?" he asked the Yank. "Not a thing," answered the heavily muffled figure. "How's your ba'net, m'boy?" asked the major of another Yank standing by, and reached up to have a feel. "Good, edge there to tickle Fritz's rib-bones," said the major, not waiting for an answer. "You must have been a barber."

All of the standing on little ledges out of the water and we found one boy who preferred sleep on the sloping side of the trench in an almost erect position to the more comfortable horizontal of the damp, smelly dugout. Another who should have been sleeping was standing up and yawning expansively. He said he wasn't sleepy and didn't care to lie down.

Our Lorraine trenches present no straight-line front but are "bulbs" that bulge out fifty yards or more in a wriggly series. Consequently we have a "No Man's Land" between these bulbs of our own lines, and this greatly facilitates the work of our patrols that are active every suitable night. At one listening post within sixty yards of the boche the sentry whispered that there were three of our patrol parties out just ahead. Excepting a crinkling or rasping of wire, we could hear or see nothing. Up went flares, and we dodged so as not to be nicked by snipers. Then the rattle or slow automatic-riveter clack-clack of German machine guns, and I hoped prayerfully that the eyes' back of those slaughtering devices had not detected one of our boys. When it was dark again we rose above the trench parapet and listened for heavy breathing or whimpers. Not a sound. "They are safe," whispered the major.

We padded and waded along one battle front, manned by our graduate fighters, to its adjoining instructional trenches where I was surprised to find a few draft men securing posts. This was discovered when one challenged the major and then asked him to give the pass word without ordering him to advance. When we were all whispering close together and the major had explained that the listening enemy would have heard the pass word if it had been spoken, the major said he had only been in the trenches a few days, that he was a draft man from Brooklyn.

After traversing our front, stopping in several officers' dugouts and answering many challenges, the major introduced me to a lively captain of our intelligence division who was going back to his headquarters and offered to pilot me to the waiting car. The major had to stay on until day-break. I told him our boys were to be congratulated for having so painstaking and yet sympathetic an officer in immediate command. "Say nothing about it," he said.

A runner went ahead of us to show us a "short cut" out of the trenches and know our lines pretty well," said the intelligence captain, "but I know the German's much better. My business is to ascertain what's going on in Germany, and they are not hiding much from us."

The captain is excellently placed. He is an expert in understanding and anticipating the follies of the thick German head. I had a glass of water in his dug-out, and was introduced to a photograph of his baby daughter. He also showed me some of his war trophies including an automatic pistol taken from a German officer.

as he should have been. It was 4 o'clock of a dreary morning in one of the most forlorn edges of the world. He quickly wakened, and then began a flying ride that nearly froze me to an icicle, for my legs were sopping wet and I had a topcoat of mud all over me. At Toul, when I was in desperate need of something warm, we stopped at a hotel and after repeated pounding succeeded in bringing a barefooted girl in a nightgown to the door. No, we could not have anything there. The proprietor had the keys of the Yank lines—44 box... to the cafe and wine room, and the proprietor was asleep and could not be awakened. We demanded that we be given a fair chance to try to awaken him. She padded up the steps and indicated a door, upon which we bombarded vigorously. The proprietor manifestly was accustomed to bombardments and it took him a devilish long time to come to. What roused him finally, I believe, was our repeated shouts that we would pay double prices. We got the key, and mademoiselle padded down and opened the wine room. Before she uncorked the rum bottle I insisted upon attiring her in a rain coat and feather boa that hung on the wall, and gave her a rug to adjust, about her feet. She then no longer disturbed us with her shivers, and in much better humor herself told us, as we gulped down the welcome warmth, of her love affair with a pretty French boy who had just been called up to the colors. Then onward, in the pallor of day-break. We had outranged the feeble sputter of trench bombs before we reached Toul. And now the renewed artillery belchings had softened to pleasant puffs, the gun flashes in the glassy sky becoming fainter and fainter until distance finally dissolved them wholly.

PLAZA TO SHOW TRIANGLE FEATURE MONDAY

John Stevens, the inventor, has been robbed of blue-prints containing the secret of an invention desired by the United States Government. Mr. Stevens, who resides with his daughter Alice, in a somewhat isolated home in the suburbs of New York, was visited by a woman who presented credentials from the government. She announced that she was authorized to look over his plans for the manufacture of a device that was to nullify the attacks of the submarine. As Mr. Stevens sat in consultation with her, his daughter Alice entered. She displayed a letter from the authorities at Washington asking Mr. Stevens to bring his plans to them. The visitor's treachery was immediately disclosed. She was a German spy. Seizing the aged inventor's plans the visitor fled. In her flight, she permitted her cloak to be caught in the door and left it hanging. A waiting automobile whirled her away to safety.

With the cloak as a clue, and a letter found in one of the pockets, it is hoped that the daring thief will be apprehended. "From Two to Six" is Triangle's photoplay that embodies the beginning of a novel and entertaining story. Charming little Winifred Allen plays Alice, Irene Leonard, who made an excellent impression in "The Grafters," portrays the female spy. "From Two to Six" will be shown at the Plaza Theater on Monday.

MOTHERS' DAY May 12, 1918. Prov. 29, 18.

Just a mother of the legion, I went aside to pray For sight to glimpse the vision on this war-time mother's day.

Within a silent, sacred room, I knelt beside a bed, Where just one year ago I stroked a bonny, boyish head.

And there I asked for help, divine, to take away the veil Which shrouded Spirit's might and power to conquer woman's wail.

Of mine own self I could do naught, but take the burden where The wondrous, ever-present, love falls not to answer prayer.

And when I cast my burden down, a gentle, soothing calm Bade me look up, for Truth was there with blessed, healing, balm.

The little room did fade away; and, lo, an army camp. Beneath the far-famed, Southern, skies, was to my soul a lamp—

Which lighted hope, and trust, and power; which took away all pain; For there, beneath the Nation's flag, I saw my son again.

Close by Old Glory's stripes and stars, I saw his smiling face Upheld to the emblem where he'd found his rightful place.

No longer was he just a boy; for on his fair, brave, brow Was manhood stamped, indelibly, By Right's determined vow.

And so I would not call him back; and every hurt I'll hide, For God hath given me to know—no evil shall betide.

No terror in the night shall come; no arrow fly by day, Oh, Father, keep the dear old flag above my boy always.

And give to other mothers, too, the vision from above; Unfold to them that Thou dost rule with never-falling love.

Help them to leave the burden where it ever doth belong; For only thus the vision comes—and, only thus, the song.

—Alice Brown, Wichita, Falls, Texas.

SAVING STAMP RALLY WILL BE HELD HERE SOON

LOUIS LIPSITZ OF DALLAS, TO BE WITH OTHER OFFICIALS SATURDAY.

Louis Lipsitz of Dallas, state chairman of the War Savings and Thrift Stamp campaign, with six War Savings officials, two from the National committee at Washington and four from Dallas, will be in Wichita Falls next Saturday, May 18, and hold an all day War Savings rally. Three such meetings will be held in the state of Texas, Houston and Fort Worth being the other places chosen to be honored with a visit by the prominent War Savings workers.

The Chamber of Commerce will entertain the visitors with a luncheon at 12 o'clock Saturday, at the St. James. A number of delegates from surrounding counties are expected to attend the meeting and these will be entertained also.

The place of meeting will be decided upon later and further details of the rally announced some time this week. Though Wichita county is still somewhat behind with War Savings and Thrift Stamp sales it is believed that this rally will be all that is needed to gain the desired monthly sales, as the local committees have been working faithfully and the greater part of the time in the past has been devoted to organization of savings societies.

TWELVE SHOOTERS PARTICIPATE IN MATCH IN CITY

EXCELLENT SPORT IS ENGAGED BY MEMBERS OF GUN CLUB.

Twelve shooters faced the traps at the Wichita Gun Club's weekly shoot Friday afternoon and the weather being ideal some good scores were made. C. J. Pate was high gun with a score of 49 out of a possible fifty. C. E. Woods was second with 45 out of 50.

E. Weldon and James Elliott were tenderfeet at the shoot, this being the first time they had shot the rocks. They made good showing for beginners. Next Friday the Dupont beginners trophy will be awarded for the best score made out of 25 targets. Those who have not shot more than 30 targets will be eligible. The Dupont free for all trophy will also start Friday. This contest will last through four weeks and will be started under the Dupont handicap system. The first shoot will determine the handicap for the following week. Shooters breaking 15 to 21 will be allowed a handicap of from one to six, enough to make their score equal 21. All old members as well as new ones are urged to start in this contest. Plans are being made to move the traps to the golf grounds in the near future.

The scores in Friday's two twenty five target events were as follows:

Jim Walker	47

Mr. J. A. Kemp, Wichita Falls, Texas. My Dear Mr. Kemp: It is difficult to express to you as County Organizer and Executive my appreciation of the manner in which you have "put over" the Third Liberty Loan. Belle of Wichita FLOUR

Real Old Fashioned Pie

Can be made by using a high percentage of barley flour or other substitute in place of wheat flour. So even in war-time the favorite dessert may be served. Pie is a real food, besides being a delicacy—serve it often.

It is unnecessary to use special flour for pastry—use Belle of Wichita! It is just as good for pastry as for bread—the results are equally dependable when used alone or with substitutes.

This Is Mothers' Day!

A day set apart and dedicated to the Mothers of our land—a day in which we should stop in the mad rush for business and do honor to our mothers.

There is no more fitting time than this to honor the mothers of our grand and glorious country. Those noble women who with smiling countenances though with tear-dimmed eyes, have sent their sons to answer their country's call, and have given their all in this awful struggle for world-wide Democracy and Freedom.

Today throughout our land, mothers are praying for the safe return of her boy. Let us hope that her prayers may soon be answered, and this awful and bloody war speedily ended. Let us hope that the dove of peace may soon hover over our land and country, and Freedom and Democracy proclaimed throughout all the world.

MECHANICS NEEDED IN NATIONAL ARMY SAYS GOVERNMENT

MANY BENEFITS RECEIVED BY MARRIED MEN WHOSE FAMILIES ARE CARED FOR

PROMOTION IS RAPID

Certain Physical Defects Will Not Keep Men Out in These Branches It is Announced

Mechanics are urgently needed at Fort Sam Houston where the repair shops which take care of the motor transportation south of Kansas and west of the Mississippi are located, according to officials at the Quartermaster's mechanical repair shop at that place. Major M. L. Ireland, in command of the shops, cites motor transportation as the great need of the war and points to the lack of skilled mechanics as the problem arising in connection with motor transportation. A recent ruling made by the war department enables men of draft age to enter this branch of the service with ease and very little delay, and quick promotion is offered the experienced foreman and the expert, with special training offered the less experienced and efficient man, thus opening the road for promotion for all.

Skilled Laborer Promoted
The skilled laborer is promptly promoted to private first class. A man who is in the helper class is made Corporal. A man capable of independent work is made Sergeant. Men of special skill or who show capacity for foremanship, are promoted to Sergeant first class. Quartermaster Sergeant or Quartermaster Senior Grade will be noted that some of these higher, non-commissioned grades really pay the soldier with a family better than some of the commissioned grades. A man may become a candidate for commission immediately upon entering the service. He cannot be examined until he has completed three (3) months' service.

At present the most urgent need at the shops is for men experienced in the following trades:
Auto repairer, battery repairman, blacksmith, carpenter, harness maker, helper, harness maker, helper, auto repair mechanic, inspector, motor vehicle, machine tool inspector, machinist, machinist helper, magnet repairer, cook, mechanical engineer, mechanical auto repairer, mechanical wood worker, motorcycle repairer, painter, sheet metal worker, plumber, tire repairer, tool maker, trimmer automobile, welder, wheelwright.

As to Physical Defects
Certain physical defects, such as affections of the ear, nose, and throat, flat feet, and small hands, which do not effect ability and productivity as a mechanic may be waived in regard to this branch of the service.

The pay of the various grades of the Quartermaster corps is listed in the scale below:
Privates, $30.00; Private First class, $33.00; corporal, $36.00; sergeant, $44.00; sergeant first class, $51.00; Quartermaster sergeant, $51.00; Quartermaster sergeant Sr. grade, $81.00.

allowances, made to apply to the enlisted man illustrates the provision made for dependents.

Explanation of Allowances
Much difficulty is encountered in the failure of candidates for enlistment or induction to grasp the value of those benefits classed under the heading of allowances. To illustrate this point a case will be taken of a man who has a wife and one child, a dependent mother, father-in-law and grandmother-in-law, but who himself only has the qualifications sufficient for a position as unskilled laborer. The value of his pay and allowances per month are:

Pay	$30.00
Family allowance for wife and one child	25.00
Family allowance for dependent mother	10.00
Family allowance for dependent father-in-law	10.00
Family allowance for dependent grandmother-in-law	5.00
The value of rations, February 1918.	11.36
(Paid to soldier in cash if living at home and not in camp)
Total cash received	$91.36
Free medical attendance for self and family worth per month not less than	2.00
Free clothing supply worth per month	10.00
Savings effected by purchase of family supplies through commissary, $2.00 per month per person	8.00
Value of compensation at Government rates which are 13 commercial rates, about	5.00
	$116.26

It must be clearly understood that several of the above items vary—clothing with the conditions of service, value of medical attendance with the size of the family and its health conditions, compensation with conditions as to number of dependent relatives, whether the soldier dies in the service or throws an additional burden upon the family by being from partially to totally disabled; also the value of the rations fluctuates with market prices and is not paid to a soldier when he obtains his meals in camp. The savings by purchasing for the soldier's family in the Government commissary depends upon the proximity of his family to the commissary and the number in his immediate family. It is not permissible for him to purchase for any persons who do not eat at his own board.

Government Insurance
In addition to the above the soldier may insure himself for any amount between $1,000.00 and $10,000.00 in increments of $500.00 at a cost of 64¢ per month for age 20, 66¢ per month for age 25, 68¢ per month for age 30, and 81¢ per month for age 40. In case of his death the insurance is paid in monthly installments for 20 years at the rate of $75 per thousand dollars of insurance. In case of disability payment is made monthly at the same rate during the life of the insured. If he dies before 20 years expires payments for the balance of the 20 years go to his heirs. If he lives 50 years the payments continue until he is dead.

Three Classes of Benefits
No soldier can claim more than $50,000 per month in family allowance. Family allowance does not apply to officers. The maximum allowance under compensation for a large family and total disability of the soldier requiring constant attendance of a nurse runs above $100 per month. If a soldier has had the forethought to take out $100,000 worth of government insurance there will be added to the compensation due his family in case of death or disability a sum of $75.00 per month.

The man experienced in any of the above listed trades, whether within the draft or otherwise is urged to write to the Commanding Officer, Quartermaster's Mechanical Repair shop, No. 304 Fort Sam Houston for any further information desired.

BACK OF THE AMERICAN LINES.

By GEORGE T. BYE
London, May 7.—Here are some of the casual remarks repeated by nearly every visitor in the battle zone: "Where are the officers' swords?" "What would happen if I put one finger up above the trench?" "Just think: the mines of the world have been busy for years producing the lead, iron, zinc and brass that is being shot and buried in these battlefields. Do you think they'll ever be able to dig it up and collect it, or will it all be wasted?"

"If some of the gas doesn't give off an odor, how do they know when to sound the alarm?" "There doesn't seem to be a handful of soldiers on the front. I thought they were lined up shoulder to shoulder all across France." "I should think these poor fellows would get a headache with all that thunder going on continually." "They'll all be bald wearing those steel helmets."

"You can't blame a fellow for wanting a little fling when he gets out of this." "Do you find that the men turn religious just before a drive starts? Have they bibles in all the dugouts?" "And they have to stand out here all night in the rain, without an umbrella?" "The French probably fight the hardest, for this, after all, is their own country."

"Can you see the difference in the Americans that have been in the trenches, and those that haven't? The newcomers are a bit amateurish in appearance, aren't they? It takes a few weeks under fire to put the finishing touch to a soldier." "I'd like to shoot a gun once, just to pay my respects to Kaiser Bill." "Now if I were a man of 35 again, they couldn't chain me strong enough to keep me out of this. There ought to be conscription up to 35 years, or say, for every bachelor under 40. It's the unmarried men between 30 and 40, who have had too little sacrifice in this life, competing all the time on an even footing with husbands and fathers, who should have been among the first called out."

"I should think that all this cannonading is the cause of the bad weather we have been having. It shakes the clouds, you know."

"I just saved a Hun's life. Begged a cartridge from a soldier."

"You know, I don't feel a bit squeamish about blood wounds or sights since I have been out here. A month ago I couldn't have stood any of this."

"Well, you can see that we're going to win by the expressions on these Yanks' faces."

"Oh, if America was strong enough to make a drive now, push clean through, bag a hundred Hun divisions, Wind it all up in a grand finish."

"This is like being in the center of an arena with the whole world looking on."
