DECLARES COMPANY IS NOT MAKING FIGHT ON ORGANIZED LABOR

PLACES OFFERED TO MEN

Denies That He is Strikebreaker and Says He Will Make His Home Here

L. L. Albritton, manager of the Wichita Falls Traction Company, said this afternoon that he and the Chamber of Commerce would ask the traction company to operate its cars, it would be done.

"Neither the Traction Company nor myself is making any fight on organized labor," said Mr. Albritton. "As to salary and working conditions, we have given the men everything they have asked for, and we are paying better salaries than most other places. The places are open for the strikers, any or all of them and their jobs are open to them without prejudice."

Denies Being Strike Breaker, Mr. Albritton denied emphatically that he was a professional strike breaker or that he was here on a leave of absence from the Oklahoma City Traction Company.

"I have bought a home in Wichita Falls and expect to make this city my home," said Mr. Albritton. "My household goods are now en route here."

"The only strike that I ever had anything to do with was the Oklahoma City. I was in an official position there at the time. The Oklahoma City Chamber of Commerce demanded the street cars be operated and promised protection against interference. A thousand members of the organization turned out to give the street railway company protection. The strike was broken, and I had little to do with it."

Fire Destroys The Dodge Home On Elm Street

Fire this morning wrecked the home of John Dodge at 303 Elm street, and caused a property damage of $1,500. The roof and ceilings of the house, a one-story frame building, were completely destroyed. The fire started from a gas burner flame from which set fire to the wall paper and ate into the woodwork before being discovered. Dodge and his wife and daughter removed the greater part of the furniture from the house, and by hard work the firemen succeeded in preventing the blaze from spreading through the walls and lower frame of the building.

The government of Switzerland decided in favor of the single phase system for electrifying its railways in preference to the third rail because it cost 10 per cent less to make the change in equipment.

Capitalization $20,000 20 Acres Shares $50 Par Value

Our proposition looks better than ever. Another good well is being brought in in the Watkins Field just a short distance from our lease.

Note the following clipping from the Sunday issue of the Wichita Daily Times.

The Quadruple Oil Co. on block 48 of the Kemp subdivision, Wichita valley lands, drilled into the sand at 678 feet Saturday. The drill was put four and a half feet into a fine looking sand. The hole was reported full of oil Saturday afternoon and it was believed the well would make a good producer.

This new well is about 1/2 mile distant from our twenty acre lease in the famous Watkins field, and goes a long way in backing up our original opinion that our lease is well located, and that we are reasonably sure of bringing in a good well. Those desiring stock in our company should act quickly, as the drilling contract has been let and operations will begin at once.

Quick Returns on your investment. As the sand in this district is being found at less than 700 feet, it takes but a few days to drill the well, which insures you a quick return on your investment. Think and act quickly and avoid future regrets.

CIVIC LEAGUE TO ASK CHANGES AT PICTURE SHOWS

CHARGE POOR VENTILATION AND SALE OF TOO MUCH STANDING ROOM.

PLAN CLEAN-UP WEEK

Prizes Will Be Awarded for the Best Kept Premises During the Summer.

A campaign to bring motion picture theatre managers "up to scratch" in various matters affecting the operation of their playhouses was quietly launched Tuesday at the weekly meeting of the Civic League, held at the Public Library.

Mrs. J. W. Stone, reporting for the censorship board, stated that the motion picture theaters of the city are insufficiently lighted, are poorly ventilated, that too much standing room is being sold and that "spooning" is becoming too general a practice. All of these matters will be taken up by the league with the theater managers at once.

Report Branches Organized. Miss Florence Jackson, chairman of the committee on organizing branches of the league, reported a steady increase in interest in this work. It will be continued until six branch leagues are established in the Sam Houston, San Jacinto, negro, Baptist mission and Travis school sections, and also in the district across the river. It has been decided by the Civic League to offer in each district a first prize of $5 for the best kept premises, and a second prize of half that amount, the awards to be made at the end of the summer.

The League has not yet decided definitely on the dates for the proposed "clean-up" week this month, but will take up the matter further with the city council. The council also will be consulted regarding plans to improve the city incinerator so that papers will not blow from the incinerator through the cemetery. A vote of the members showed sentiment in favor of a city federation of all clubs, but action was deferred.

KEPT HER AWAKE

The Terrible Pains in Back and Sides, Cardui Gave Relief.

Merksville, La.—Mrs. Alice Johnson, of this place, writes: "For one year I suffered with an awful misery in my back and sides. My left side was hurting me all the time. The misery was something awful."

I could not do anything, not even sleep at night. It kept me awake most of the night... I took different medicines, but nothing did me any good or relieved me until I took Cardui...

I was not able to do any of my work for one year and I got worse all the time, was confined to my bed off and on. I got so bad with my back that when I stooped down I was not able to straighten up again... I decided I would try Cardui... By time I had taken the entire bottle I was feeling pretty good and could straighten up and my pains were nearly all gone.

I shall always praise Cardui. I continued taking it until I was strong and well. If you suffer from pains due to female complaints, Cardui may be just what you need. Thousands of women who once suffered in this way now praise Cardui for their present good health. Give it a trial. NC-130

AMUSEMENT

"YOU'RE IN LOVE" HERE FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

With its song novelties, its dance surprises and its ship boom sensation, Arthur Hammerstein's mirthful and melodious production entitled "You're In Love," will come to the Wichita theater Friday and Saturday nights with matinee Saturday.

Otto Harbach and Rudolf Friml, who wrote "The Firefly," "High Jinks" and "Katinka," collaborated in the book, lyrics and music. Edward Clark assisted with the book and lyrics and staged the play as well. The dances and ensembles were arranged by Robert Marks, a young American who recently spent two years in London showing the English how to inject "pop" into their lifeless chorus over there.

The plot is not overburdened with dramatic surprises, the action is mirthful and pleasing with its sentimental story brightly told and serves only to hold interest between the twenty odd musical numbers. There are two acts, the scene of the first being laid in a Southern California hotel, and that of the second on board of a ship at sea. This ship scene will be found to be the most effective and realistic ever put upon any stage.

Prominent in the cast are Mr. Oscar L. Figman, in the comedy role of "Mr. Wix," whose song numbers "Boo! Boo!" and "Snatched from the Cradle" win rounds of applause, assisted by Mr. W. H. White, Mr. Eastern Yonge, Mr. Ben Wells, Miss Ethnor McCune, Miss Virginia Watson, Miss Alice Johnson, Messrs. Maxson and Brown, together with a large beauty chorus who knows how to put spirit and grace into many songs and dances.

A Glimpse of Hawaii, a Bevy of Islands Which Guard the Mid-Pacific

These Beautiful Dots of Tropical Growth Harbor Much Quaintness for the Tourist Who Stops Over On the Trip to the Orient.

THE hula-hula, the national dance of the Hawaiians, survives today largely because of the curiosity of tourists who expect to see something decidedly vicious in such a performance and who are fortunately always disappointed. The hula-hula consists of a series of harmless postures made to the accompaniment of a mournful music of primitive Hawaiian instruments.

During the reign of Kalakaua, however, the hula-hula fell into evil days, for that dissolute monarch plied the dancers with gin so that their performances degenerated into orgies. Readers of Stevenson's letters will remember this merry monarch of the Pacific who entertained the English novelist in 1890. "He is a very intelligent fellow," wrote Stevenson, "but O, Charles! what a crop for the drink!" A month later we find that the king has not changed his habits, for the novelist writes: "Kalakaua is a terrible companion; a bottle of fizz is like a glass of sherry to him; he thinks nothing of five or six in an afternoon as a whet to dinner."

The Hawaiian is slowly but surely passing away, as are the natives of the South seas. Inter-marriage and disease are the responsible causes. Not only have white men of all races taken Hawaiian wives but, so, too, have the adaptable Chinese. The Japanese seldom marry native women, but the industrious Chinaman is apparently regarded as an ideal husband among the lower class of Hawaiian women. He works hard, is kind to his wife and children and does not attempt to drive them into the fields, as do the men of some other nationalities.

Women of the wealthier Hawaiian families often wed Americans or Europeans, and their children have proven among the most useful citizens of the islands. Nowhere else in the world can there be seen such remarkable fusions of the races.

The Hawaiians of pure blood are superstitious to an extreme extent, and they violently resent the efforts of white men to make them change their ways. Particularly true is this in regard to hygiene, for no arguments can make the native perceive the utility of guarding against disease. He clings fondly to the traditional teachings of his race, that what happens was foreordained to happen, and that nothing that he can do can prevent it. Consequently measles, smallpox and other diseases have swept like blights over the islands until the native population has decreased from over 100,000 to less than 40,000 in 25 years.

Like a crouching lion on guard Diamond Head stands warder over the mid-Pacific as does Gibraltar at the portals of the Mediterranean. The bold promontory, nearly 1,000 feet in height, is an extinct volcano. In the dim yesterdays of history, thousands of years ago, it must have been one of the most amazing spectacles in that strange world of fire. The baleful light from its subterranean furnaces would have been visible for many miles out at sea had there been life on those lonely wastes of water.

But Diamond Head has been extinct for centuries; its last smitten upheaval of lava took place long before the foot of man ever pressed upon the sands of the island. Oahu, upon which Diamond Head is located, is one of the oldest islands of the group and only on Hawaii, the youngest and largest, are there today any evidences of volcanic action.

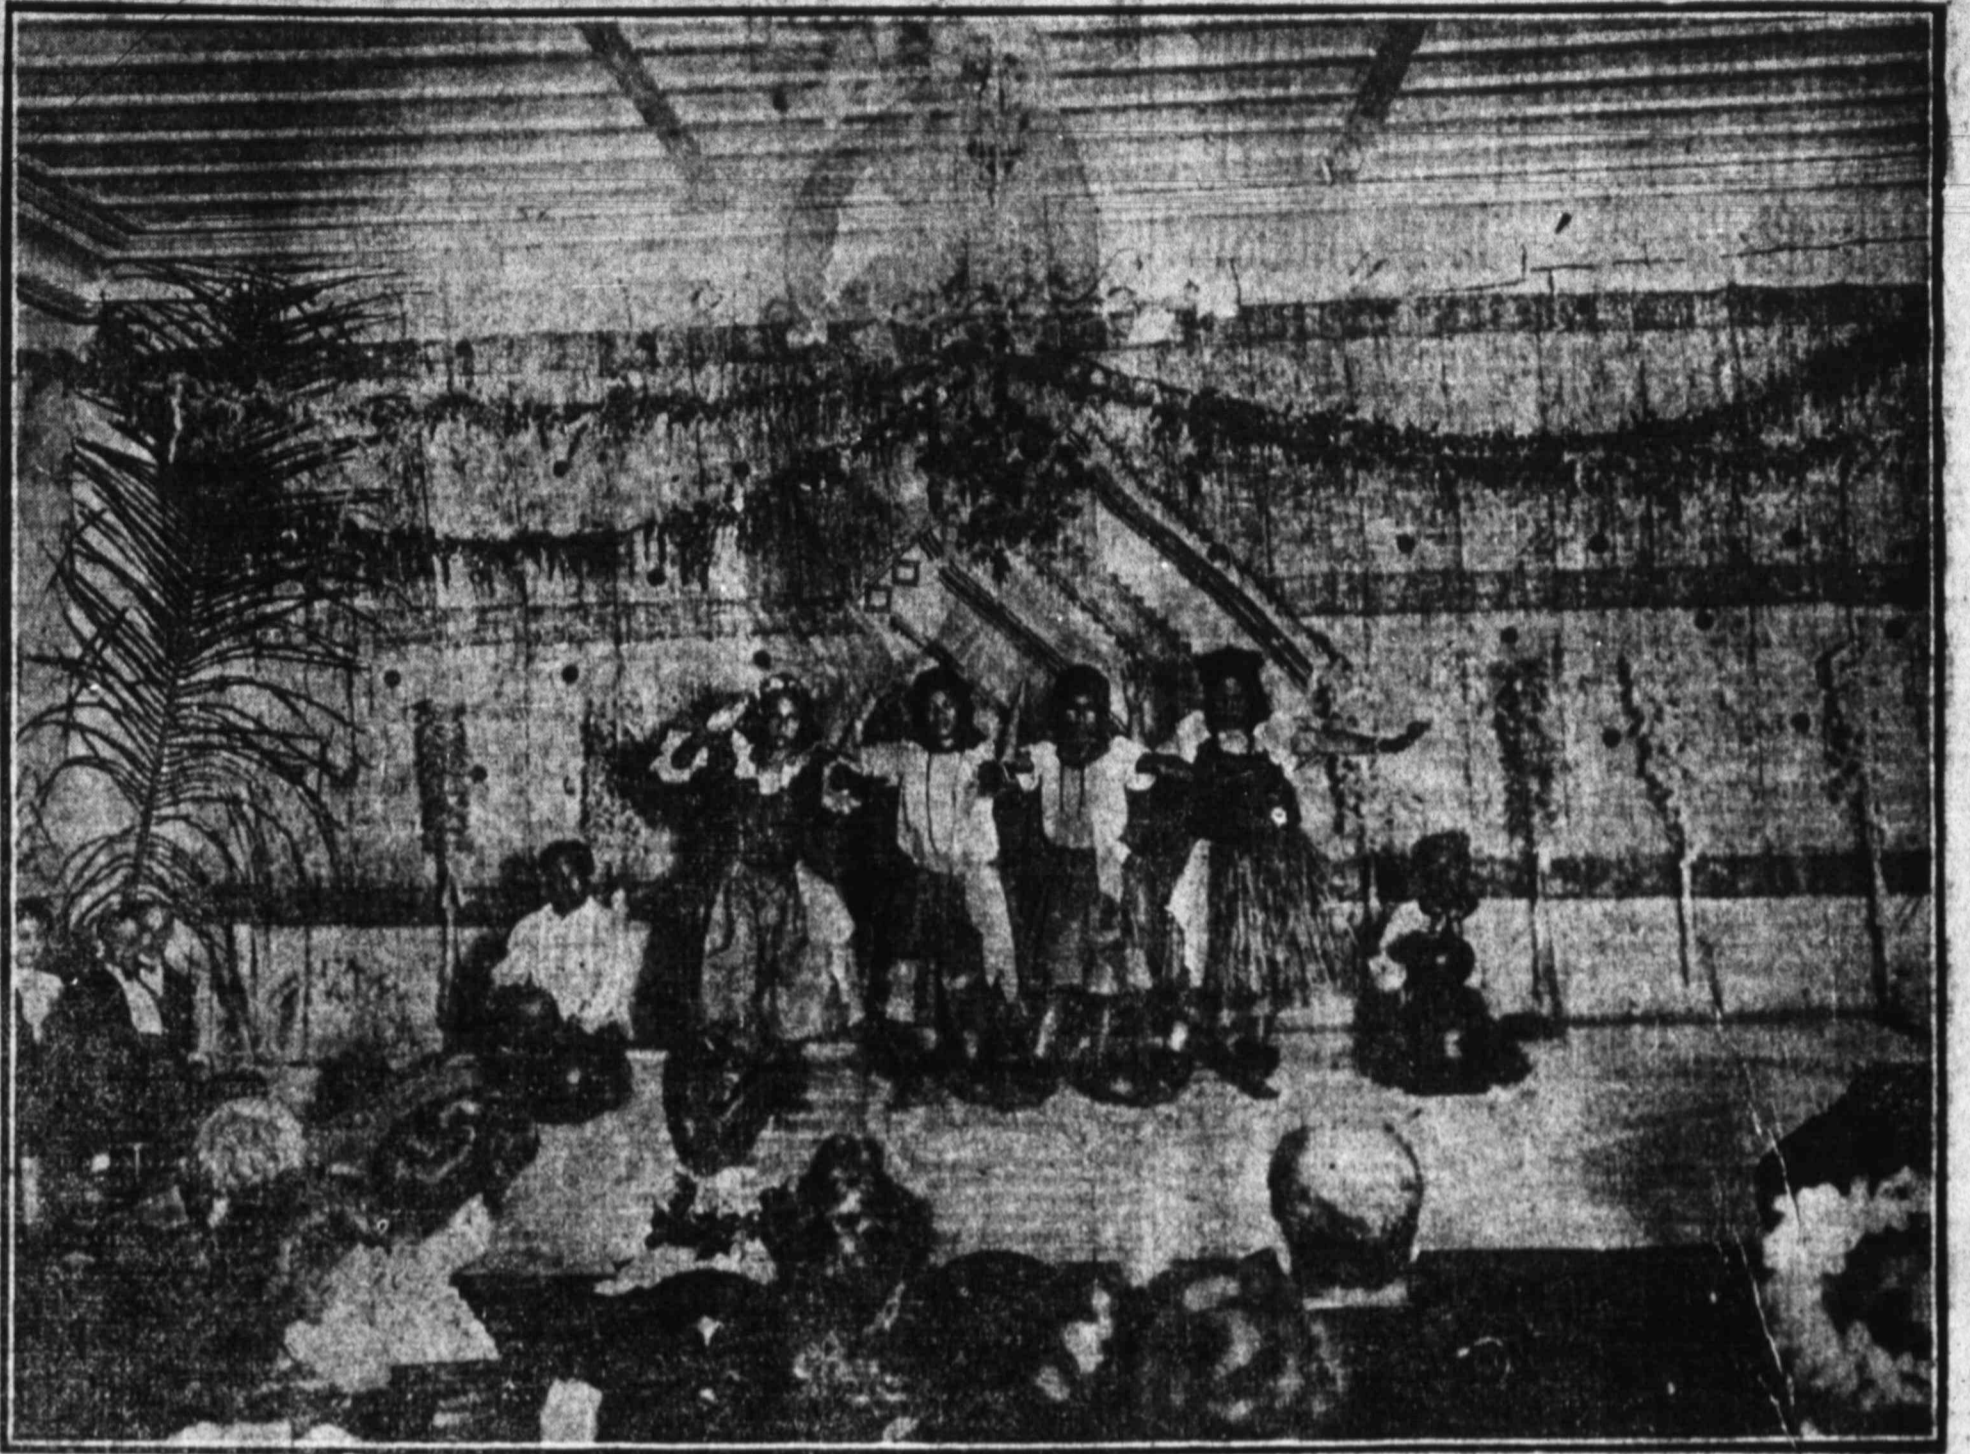

No tourist who visits the islands can fail to hear the story of Captain James Cook, the intrepid English explorer who was murdered by the savages of Hawaii in 1779. He first made the islands known to the European and American world, and no series of articles about Hawaii would be complete which did not describe his voyage of discovery. Two centuries before a Spanish galleon had dropped its anchor off Oahu, but its effect upon the history of Hawaii was precisely like that of the voyages of the Norsemen to America. Cook was the Columbus of the islands.

While the American Revolution was flaming out in Boston, Captain Cook was drifting about the South seas on an epochal expedition, which first made known to civilization those entrancing lands which have cast a spell over thousands of world pilgrims. England was apparently not greatly worried over the troubles in America, for, eight days before the Declaration of Independence was signed, Cook was despatched upon another voyage to the South seas. For months he sailed about the archipelago of coral islets and finally turned the bow of his ship toward the north, with the expectation of finding a northern passage from the Pacific to the Atlantic.

and the next day Kanai and Nihiian, great, fertile islands on a sea which had been believed to be as free from land as the north Atlantic. The natives were startled at the appearance of ships with sails, but they were mollified by lavish gifts, and gave the English sailors a friendly welcome. Cook named the group for his patron, Lord Sandwich, but fortunately the native Hawaii has proven more lasting and the Sandwich Islands have passed from the maps.

Cook did not remain long here, but continued on his quest for the Northwest passage, a waterway which was destined to remain unexplored for two centuries longer. Turned back by the ice, the English captain returned to the islands which he had discovered, and in November anchored off Maui, which he had not before seen. Here he was received as a god by the natives, who had apparently learned from the inhabitants of Oahu and Kauai the story of the pale stranger who had come out of the south in the marvellous ships which seemed too miraculous to be the work of man. The natives mistook the cannon which were now and then discharged for thunder and lightning, which the gods kept chained up on their moving islands.

The discovery of Maui induced Cook to make further explorations, and he soon reached Hawaii, which he circled, finally landing at Kealahou. Here the natives, gathered by thousands, accompanied him to their temples, where they bowed before him. For 18 days Cook and his men lived as though in fairyland; then the reckless sailors began to pillage the temples, and the spell was broken.

And Here's the Hula Hula Dance About Which So Much Has Been Written.

A Little Romance Woven About a Little Fellow Who Grew and Grew.

ELLA had been weeping babies all the day. Her muscles ached with lifting the heavy tots and steadying the fragile ones. Her voice was husky from over use, cajoling, comforting, soothing.

"The next one shall be the last for today," she stated just as Billy toddled in. His fat little toes curled into the rough matting, one dimpled finger was lost in a rosebud mouth. Pushed by an older girl, he waddled over to where Ella stood by the scales and grinned roguishly at her.

"Well, little man," Ella exclaimed, lifting him, "what is your name?"

"Yiyi tum dum," babbled Billy.

"He can't speak yet, mam. Billy's only two," explained the girl, watching Ella closely, as she sought an even balance.

"How much does he weigh, mam?"

"Exactly 30 pounds to an ounce. We shall have to nickname him 'Thirty-Pound Billy,' won't we, sir?"

Billy displayed a row of pearly teeth; his large blue eyes wrinkled with merriment; he gave a joyous squeal, and held out eager hands to Ella.

"Oh, you darling," she cried, clasping him tightly in her arms. "Is he your brother?" to the girl.

"No, he don't belong to us. His ma's dead and his pa travels. He just boards with us."

"Take good care of him. He is too precious to be slighted." Ella carried him to the room used for dressing the babies. "Can you dress him?"

"Yes, mam; I do every day."

Ella left Billy in the girl's care and hastened back to her desk. For a long time she was busy with statistics, finding average weights, the greatest and the smallest. The run was low when she bade her companions-in-labor good night, and hastened down the street towards home.

At the corner crossing she hesitated, the clamor of bells warning her that the fire engines were approaching. A second later she gazed in horror at a tiny, toddling figure that was wandering aimlessly into the middle of the street.

Somewhat, in spite of her half-view of the very dirty infant, she recognized the baby at once.

"Billy," she screamed, waving to the child. "Come here—come!"

Billy grinned; it was the same beatific, comradely smile—but he continued onward. Ella glanced wildly up the street. The heavy chemical was charging down upon the child. She hesitated no longer. Darting across the pavement, she pulled the impish Billy out of danger.

What had seemed an eternity was really but a second. Seated on the curbstone, her heart beating loudly, her hands gripping Billy so that he whimpered, she looked up at the sky.

"So do I," Tom gripped Ella tight, hands gripping Billy so that he whimpered, she looked up at the sky.

"All I have that makes life worth living is my little boy."

"I like to think of him, so the little 2-year-old baby. I owe so much to him," Ella missed.

tempest. And when the girl who should have been taking care of the tot returned for him, Ella poured a flood of accusations upon her.

"It's a shame. You are not fit to take care of children. Where is his father? What's his address? He ought to know how Billy is being neglected. Look at his clothes. They are filthy. It's a wonder his body is as clean as it is."

"When ma wants to write to Mr. Noble she uses Rochester—General Delivery for an address; that's all. Sometimes he's there and sometimes he ain't," the girl admitted reluctantly.

"Very well. Take Billy home now and do clean him up. Good-by, Thirty-Pound Billy."

A week passed, and when the girl had almost forgotten the Billy episode a blue-coated individual left a telegram at the door. "I'm in for it now," Ella groaned, reading the message. "Billy's father is calling tonight. He will probably pitch into me with all kinds of maledictions. But I don't care! I'll race him, no matter what he is like."

In the evening he came—a big, strapping young man, full of life and good cheer, his large blue eyes twinkling just as Thirty-Pound-Billy's did, yet with a wistfulness in them that wrung Ella's heart. "I wish you'd help me," he came to the point at once. "I'm frantic about the boy. My parents are dead and the wife's—she died at his birth—across the street to the room used for dressing the babies. There's no one to leave Billy with. I've tried him in three boarding houses already. But the people take him in because they need the money, not because they need him. Perhaps you won't believe me, Miss French, but I worry more over that tike than I do over anything else."

Ella's mother offered a solution. "Let me have him. I'm alone all day, with Ella off at the settlement house. I'd love to have him here."

So it was settled. Thirty-Pound-Billy was installed at his new home, where he was cared for and loved, and where Billy's father spent many hours with his son—and Ella.

The doctor had weighed the baby. He placed it in big Tom's arm, who laid it tenderly beside the waiting Ella. "The little lady weighs eight pounds, sweet-heart," he whispered, kissing the white lips lovingly.

"My, but she's got to gain some before she can catch up with our Thirty-Pound-Billy!"

"Thirty pounds! Nearly 30 now—the buster."

"I like to think of him, so the little 2-year-old baby. I owe so much to him," Ella missed.

"So do I." Tom gripped Ella tight, hands gripping Billy so that he whimpered, she looked up at the sky.

"All I have that makes life worth living is my little boy."

"I like to think of him, so the little 2-year-old baby. I owe so much to him," Ella missed.

OIL DEVELOPMENT IS MUCH ACTIVITY ACROSS THE RIVER IN COTTON COUNTY

The Cotton County Oil Association is having a meeting on the Postlewaite place in Section 7-5-12, replaced, after having been blown down by the recent wind storm. Walter Johnson, who has the contract for drilling the well, states that he has shipped his machinery to Devoil and expects to get it on the ground and begin drilling by March 10.

The Texas Big Four is also rebuilding derrick on the Nolte place, in Section 7-5-12 after the big storm. The Texas Big Four Oil Co. is drilling a well in Iowa Park, Texas, on block 163, at the present time and will soon begin operations in Cotton county on Section 7-5-12.

The Keiso Oil Co. have a derrick up on Section 16-5-12. Mr. Barrons, who has the contract for drilling, has the machinery installed and will commence drilling on Monday. This is a 2000 foot test.

In Section 3-5-12 on the C. F. Fulton farm, the Chicago Oil and Gas Co. have an 80-acre lease. They are now making preparations for drilling. Part of the rig is up and part of the machinery on the ground. This is to be a 3000 foot test.

It is reported that the Burk-Strong Oil Co. is making preparations to drill a well on the Minna Nolte farm, north east of 4-5-12.

The Adelaide Oil Co. is also completing plans for starting a well near the Burk-Bridge.

FORM ASSOCIATION FOR THE BENEFIT OF OIL INDUSTRY

A protective association for the mutual benefit of stockholders and producers came into being last night at a mass-meeting held in the Nettie Oil Exchange. A committee consisting of E. H. Staley, William Huff and Judge Fitzgerald was elected to draft a constitution for a permanent organization, and the committee also will seek the support of the Wichita Falls chamber of commerce. A second meeting will be held Friday night.

It was agreed at the meeting that an organization is considered necessary at this time because of the fact that scores of stockholders have been finding it impossible to obtain information regarding oil companies in which they hold stock. It is desired that all companies be influenced to make regular reports of operations to their stockholders, and that books of all companies be open to inspection at all times.

Boys Talked About

C. C. CANNAN.
Mr. Cannan is another of the South Texas and Louisiana operators that has forsaken his old love for the more promising fields of the northern part of the state. He and associates have recently launched the Lone Star Production Company, with acreage at Burk Burnett, Sunshine Hill and Lower Park, with work already begun at Burk. He is Secretary and Treasurer of the Lone Star Oil & Refining Company at Houston, operating in the Humble and Goose Creek districts, and is also interested in the Mid-Coast Oil Company, a closed corporation operating in the Coastal region. His ability displayed in handling the affairs of the Great State and Mid-Coast companies should insure success of this new undertaking.

Grain Market
By Associated Press.
CHICAGO, March 5.—Speculative buying due largely to assertions that commercial values of corn were much below feeding worth, brought about a decided advance today in the corn market. Opening prices which ranged from 1/2 off to 1/2 up, with May $1.25 1/2 to $1.26 1/2 and July $1.24 1/2 to $1.25 1/2, were followed by material gains all around.
Prospects that planting of oats early more than planting of corn would be diminished by substituting spring wheat had a strengthening effect on the oats market. After opening a shade lower to 1/2 higher with May $0.60 to $0.61, the market scored a sharp advance.
Provisions rose with grain and hogs.
Profit taking on the advance led subsequently to a reaction. Prices closed unsettled, net lower to 1/2 gain with May $1.25 1/2 to $1.26 1/2 and July $1.24 1/2 to $1.25 1/2.

Former Lubbock Newspaper Man Here for Meeting

John F. Turner, former Lubbock newspaper man, is here to attend a meeting of the stockholders of the 13 Oil Company tonight at which the development of the company's lease will be taken up.

Mr. Turner has lately been at Corpus Christi where he has blocked 6000 acres of leases about nine miles west of that city and is making arrangements to drill a hole 4000 feet deep. His leases are some little distance from the famous White Point well, gas from which escaped for many months blowing a great hole in the earth.

Mr. Turner proposes to start his test with a 20-inch hole and after it has been sunk some depth to dig about the casing for a considerable depth and pour in concrete to prevent a repetition of the blow out.

IS IT YOUR KIDNEYS?
Don't Mistake the Cause of Your Troubles.
Many people never suspect their kidneys. If suffering from a lame, weak or aching back they think that it is only a muscular weakness when urinary trouble sets in they think it will soon correct itself. And so it is with all the other symptoms of kidney disorders. That is where the danger often lies. You should realize that these trouble signs lead to dropsy or Bright's disease. An effective remedy for weak or diseased kidneys is Doan's Kidney Pills. Residents of this vicinity are constantly testifying.

R. D. Handy, Archer City, Texas, says: "I suffered from intense shooting pains across my loins and in my side. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended, I used a box and they cured me. The cure has proven to be permanent."

Price 60c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Handy had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y.

STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking laxatives, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

If you have a bad taste in your mouth, tongue coated, appetite poor, lax, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, troubled with undigested foods, you should take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without rubbing, cramps or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief, so you can eat what you like. At 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

TWO GREATEST MEN OF AMERICA'S TWO LEADING POLITICAL PARTIES URGE IMPORTANCE OF THE LEAGUE

By Associated Press. NEW YORK, March 5.—President Wilson told the American people in an address last night here on the eve of his return to Paris that he was going back to the peace conference to battle with renewed vigor for creation of a league of nations.

ideals which their President has enunciated when the United States went into the war. "Over There" Until It is Over. "And do you suppose," continued the President, "that having felt that crusading spirit of these youngsters, who went over there not to glorify America, but to serve their fellowmen, I am going to permit myself for one moment to slacken in my effort to be worthy of them, and of their cause? I do mean to not come back until it is over, over there, and it must not be over until the nations of the world are assured of the permanency of peace."

takable intimations of it from all parts of the country and the voice rings true in every case. I count myself fortunate to speak here under the unusual circumstances of this evening. I am happy to associate myself with Mr. Taft in this great cause. He has displayed an elevation of view and a devotion to public duty which is beyond praise. "And I am the more happy because this means that this is not a party issue. No party has the right to appropriate this issue, and no party will in the long run dare oppose it. "We have listened to so clear and admirable an exposition of many of the main features of the proposed covenant of the league of nations that it is not necessary for me to discuss in any particular way the contents of the document. I will seek rather to give you its setting. I do not know when I have been more impressed than by the conferences of the commission set up by the conference of peace to draw up a covenant for the league of nations. The representatives of 14 nations sat around that board—not young men, not men inexperienced in the affairs of their country, not men inexperienced in the politics of world! and the inspiring influence of every meeting was the concurrence of purpose on the part of all those men to come to an agreement and an effective working agreement with regard to this league of the civilized world. There was a conviction in the whole impulse; there was conviction that this thing ought to be done, and there was also the conviction that not a man there would venture to go home and say he had not tried to do it. "Mr. Taft has set the picture for you of what a failure of this great purpose would mean. We have been hearing for all these weary months that this agony of war has lasted because of the sinister purposes of the Central Empires, and we have made maps of the course that they meant their conquests to take. Where did the lines of that map lie, of that central line that we used to call from Bremen to Bagdad? "They lay through these very regions to which Mr. Taft has called your attention, but they lay through untried empires, the Austro-Hungarian Empire, whose integrity Germany was bound to respect as her ally in the path of that line of conquest; the Turkish Empire, whose interests she professed to make her own lay in the direct path that she intended to tread. "What happened? "And now what has happened? The Austro-Hungarian Empire has gone to pieces and the Turkish Empire has disappeared and the hands that effected that great result—for it was a result of liberation—are now responsible as the trustees of the assets of those great nations. You not only would have weak nations lying in this path, but you would have nations in which that old poisonous seed of intrigue could be planted with the certainty that the crop would be abundant, and one of the things that the league of nations is intended to watch in the course of its life, is that it cannot stand publicly and if the league of nations were nothing but a great debating society it would kill intrigue. "It is one of the agreements of this covenant that it is the friendly right of every nation a member of the league to call anything that it thinks will disturb the peace of the world, no matter where that thing is occurring. Value of Discussion. "There is no subject that may touch the peace of the world which is exempt from inquiry and discussion.

and I think everybody here present will agree with me that Germany would never have gone to war if she had permitted the world to discuss the aggression upon Serbia for a single week. "The British Foreign Office suggested, it pleaded, that these might be a day or two delay so that the representatives of the nations of Europe could get together and discuss the possibilities of a settlement. Germany did not dare permit a day's discussion. You know what happened. As soon as the world realized that an outlaw was at large the nations began one by one to draw together against her. "We know for a certainty that if Germany had thought for a moment that Great Britain would go in with France and with Russia, she never would have undertaken the enterprise and the league of nations is meant as a notice to all outlaw nations that not only Great Britain, but the United States and the rest of the world will go in to stop her. "The liberated peoples of the Austro-Hungarian Empire and of the Turkish Empire call out to us for this thing. It has not arisen in the council of statesmen. Europe is a bit sick at heart at this very moment because it is seen that statesmen have to vision and that the only vision has been the vision of the people. Those who say they know how desirable it is to have the nations and the righteous. The nations that have long been under the heel of the Austrians, that have long bowed before the Turks, that have long suffered the innumerable agonies of being governed by the Turk, have called out to the world, generation after generation, for justice, for liberation, for a successor cabinet in the world has heard them.

"Private organizations, pitying hearts, philanthropic men and women have poured out their treasures in order to relieve these sufferings; but no nation has said to the nations responsible, 'you must stop; this thing is intolerable and we will not permit it. And the vision has been with the people."

Pulse of the People.
"My friends, I would you would reflect upon this purpose against whom you are to what is necessary for great reforms has seldom come from the top in the nations of the world. It has come from the need and the aspiration of the masses of men who mean to be free. And I can explain some of the criticisms which have been leveled against this great enterprise, and by the supporters of the men who utter the criticisms have never felt the great pulse of the heart of the world."

"And I am amazed—not alarmed, but amazed—that these could be in some quarters such a comprehensive ignorance of the state of the world. These gentlemen do not know what the mind of man is just now. Every body else does. I do not know where they have been closeted. I do not know by what influence they have been blinded; but I do know that they have been separated from the currents of the thought of mankind."

Utters Solemn Warning.
"And I want to utter this solemn warning, not in the way of a threat, the forces of the world do not threaten, they operate. The great tides of the world do not give notice that they are going to rise and run; they rise in their majesty and overwhelm. They might as well stand in the way as be overwhelmed. Now the heart of the world is awake and the heart of the world must be satisfied."

"Do not let yourselves suppose for a moment that the uneasiness in the population of Europe is due entirely to economic conditions or economic motives; something very much deeper underlies it all. It is the sense of the irresistible spiritual force of the armies of the United States. It was that they felt. It was that that awed them. It was that that made them feel that they were crossing those three thousand miles in order to show to Europe that the United States, when it became necessary, would go anywhere the rights of mankind were threatened."

Could Not Be Restrained.
"They would not sit still in the trenches. They would not be restrained by the prudence of experienced continental commanders. They thought they had come over there to do a particular thing and they were going to do it and do it at once. And just as soon as that rush of spirit as well as rush of body came in contact with the lines of the enemy, they began to break, my fellow citizens, not merely because of the physical force of those lusty youths, but because of the irresistible spiritual force of the armies of the United States. It was that they felt. It was that that awed them. It was that that made them feel that they were crossing those three thousand miles in order to show to Europe that the United States, when it became necessary, would go anywhere the rights of mankind were threatened."

Eliminate Thought of Nations.
"They are therefore saying if you really believe there is a right, if you really believe wars ought to be stopped, stop-think about the rival interests of nations and think about men and women and children throughout the world."

"Nations are not made to afford distinction to their rulers by way of success in the maneuvers of politics; nations are meant, if they are meant for anything, to make the men and women and children in them secure and happy and prosperous and no nation has the right to set up special interests against the interests and benefits of mankind, least of all this great nation we love."

"It was set up for the benefit of mankind; it was set up to illustrate the highest ideals and to achieve the highest aspirations of men who wanted to be free; and the world—the world of today believes that and counts on us and would be thrown back into the blackness of despair if we deserted it."

Tragedy is Too Great.
"I have tried once and again, my fellow citizens, to say to little circles of friends or to larger bodies what seems to be the real hope of the peoples of Europe, and I tell you frankly I have not been able to do so because when the thought tries to crowd itself into speech, the profound emotion of the thing is too much; speech will not carry. I have felt the tragedy of hope of those suffering people. It is tragedy because it is a hope which cannot be realized in any action, and yet I have not besides a tragedy, its compulsion upon every living man to exercise every influence that he has up the utmost to secure that as little as possible of that hope is disappointed because if men cannot now, after this agony of blood and sweat, come to their self-possession and see how to regulate the affairs of the world, we will sink back into a period of struggle in which there will be no hope, and therefore no mercy. There can be no mercy where there is no hope. Why should you spare another if you yourself expect to perish? Why should you be pitiful if you can get no pity? Why should you be just if, upon every hand you are put upon?"

Temper of the Soldier.
"There is another thing which I think the critics of this covenant have not observed, they not only have not observed the temper of the world, but they have not even observed the temper of those splendid boys in khaki that they sent across the seas. They have had the consciousness of the reflected glory of those boys, because the constitution made me their commander-in-chief and they have gained some lessons. When we went into the war we went into it on the basis of declarations, which it was my privilege to utter, because I believed them to be an interpretation of the purpose and thought of the people of the United States."

"And those boys went over there with the feeling that they were aggressively bound to the realization of those ideals; that they were not only going over there to beat Germany; they were not going over there merely with resentment in their hearts against a particular outlaw nation, they were going over there to show to Europe that the United States, when it became necessary, would go anywhere the rights of mankind were threatened."

"There is another thing which I think the critics of this covenant have not observed, they not only have not observed the temper of the world, but they have not even observed the temper of those splendid boys in khaki that they sent across the seas. They have had the consciousness of the reflected glory of those boys, because the constitution made me their commander-in-chief and they have gained some lessons. When we went into the war we went into it on the basis of declarations, which it was my privilege to utter, because I believed them to be an interpretation of the purpose and thought of the people of the United States."

"And those boys went over there with the feeling that they were aggressively bound to the realization of those ideals; that they were not only going over there to beat Germany; they were not going over there merely with resentment in their hearts against a particular outlaw nation, they were going over there to show to Europe that the United States, when it became necessary, would go anywhere the rights of mankind were threatened."

Could Not Be Restrained.
"They would not sit still in the trenches. They would not be restrained by the prudence of experienced continental commanders. They thought they had come over there to do a particular thing and they were going to do it and do it at once. And just as soon as that rush of spirit as well as rush of body came in contact with the lines of the enemy, they began to break, my fellow citizens, not merely because of the physical force of those lusty youths, but because of the irresistible spiritual force of the armies of the United States. It was that they felt. It was that that awed them. It was that that made them feel that they were crossing those three thousand miles in order to show to Europe that the United States, when it became necessary, would go anywhere the rights of mankind were threatened."

Eliminate Thought of Nations.
"They are therefore saying if you really believe there is a right, if you really believe wars ought to be stopped, stop-think about the rival interests of nations and think about men and women and children throughout the world."

"Nations are not made to afford distinction to their rulers by way of success in the maneuvers of politics; nations are meant, if they are meant for anything, to make the men and women and children in them secure and happy and prosperous and no nation has the right to set up special interests against the interests and benefits of mankind, least of all this great nation we love."

"It was set up for the benefit of mankind; it was set up to illustrate the highest ideals and to achieve the highest aspirations of men who wanted to be free; and the world—the world of today believes that and counts on us and would be thrown back into the blackness of despair if we deserted it."

Tragedy is Too Great.
"I have tried once and again, my fellow citizens, to say to little circles of friends or to larger bodies what seems to be the real hope of the peoples of Europe, and I tell you frankly I have not been able to do so because when the thought tries to crowd itself into speech, the profound emotion of the thing is too much; speech will not carry. I have felt the tragedy of hope of those suffering people. It is tragedy because it is a hope which cannot be realized in any action, and yet I have not besides a tragedy, its compulsion upon every living man to exercise every influence that he has up the utmost to secure that as little as possible of that hope is disappointed because if men cannot now, after this agony of blood and sweat, come to their self-possession and see how to regulate the affairs of the world, we will sink back into a period of struggle in which there will be no hope, and therefore no mercy. There can be no mercy where there is no hope. Why should you spare another if you yourself expect to perish? Why should you be pitiful if you can get no pity? Why should you be just if, upon every hand you are put upon?"

"Folks Would Pester Me"
Somebody asked an old Missouri store-keeper why he didn't put a small advertisement in the local newspaper to advertise a "home blend" of coffee that was particularly good.
"I don't want," he replied lazily. "If I did, folks would pester me all the time to show 'em my goods."
Thus did an old Missouri store-keeper pay unconscious tribute to the business-getting value of advertising. He missed a lot of business, of course, but there's another side of it.
Lots of people who really wanted this particular brand of coffee were unable to get it because no one ever told them where it was to be had.
You know yourself that it would take you twice as long to shop if there were no advertisements to guide you in your buying. You wouldn't know where to start. You'd miss a lot of good values just because no one ever told you about them.
The man who advertises is glad to have you "pester him" to show you his goods. Don't miss the advertisements. They will save you money.

the discussion and clarification of a great many difficult matters and believe that settlements will begin to be made rather rapidly from this time on at these conferences.

"But what I believe—that I know as well as believe—is this, that the men engaged in these conferences are gathering heart as they go, not losing it; that they are finding community of purpose and community of ideal to an extent that perhaps they did not expect; and that amidst all the interplay of influence—because it is infinitely complicated—amidst all the interplay of influence, there is a forward movement which is running towards the right. Men have at last perceived that the only permanent thing in the world is the right, and that a wrong settlement is bound to be a temporary settlement for the very best reason of all, that it ought to be a temporary settlement, and the spirits of men will rebel against it, and the spirits of men are now in the saddle.

"When I was in Italy a little limping group of wounded Italian soldiers sought an interview with me. I could not conjecture what it was they were going to say to me, and with the greatest simplicity, with a touching simplicity, they presented me with a petition in favor of the League of Nations. Their wounded limbs, their impaired vitality were the only argument they brought with them. It was a simple request that I lend all the influence that I might happen to have to relieve future generations of the sacrifices that they had been obliged to make.

"That appeal has remained in my mind as have ridden along the streets in European capitals and heard cries of the crowds, cries for the League of Nations from lips of people who, I venture to say, had no particular notion of how it was to be done, who were not ready to propose a League of Nations, but whose hearts said that something by way of a combination of all men everywhere must come out of this.

Interview With Italians. "As we drove along country roads, weak old women would come out and hold flowers to us. Why should they hold flowers up to strangers from across the Atlantic? Only because they believed that we were the messengers of friendships and of hope, and these flowers were their humble offerings of gratitude that friends from so great a distance should have brought them so great a hope.

"It is inconceivable that we should disappoint them and we shall not. The day will come when men in America will look back with awed hearts and rising pride that they should have been privileged to make the sacrifice which it was necessary to make in order to combine their might and their moral power with the cause of justice for men of every kind everywhere.

"God give us the strength and vision to do it wisely. God give us the privilege of knowing that we did it without counting the cost, and because we were true Americans, lovers of liberty and of doing right."

A LEAGUE OF NATIONS INDISPENSABLE, SAYS TAFT

By Associated Press. NEW YORK, March 5.—A League of Nations covenant is indispensable to the treaty of peace, if the war "is to accomplish the declared purpose of this nation and the world," former President William Howard Taft told the audience at the Metropolitan Opera House last night in an exhaustive discussion of the League principles, preceding the address of President Wilson.

of avoiding foreign alliances could not be applied to the present international status, Mr. Taft declared, "because the interests of the United States are inevitably involved in the preservation of European peace." For the United States to withdraw from the project, he asserted, would make the League of Nations merely "a return to the system of alliances and the balance of power," with a speedy recurrence of war, in which this country would certainly be involved, as it was in the present struggle.

Duty of the President. Referring to criticism of the League plan in the Senate, the former President stated his belief that it was the duty of the President, as the prime mover in the nation's treaty-making power, to report the eventual draft of the treaty with the former Central Powers with the League covenant as part of the treaty itself, if in his judgment that the treaty be amended by an agreement formally terminating the war would be incomplete without it. If the President made such a recommendation, Mr. Taft said, he ventured to doubt if there would be a majority of the members willing to assume the responsibility of decreeing that the treaty be amended by striking out the constitution of the League and committing the question to further discussion at Paris. Mr. Taft stated his opinion that the problem would have a somewhat different aspect for senators upon whom would be laid the blame.

Dangers of Bolshevism. Though he relied upon America's training for hundreds of years in self-government to counteract the "hard, cruel, murderous spectre of Bolshevism," in that course Mr. Taft asserted that if it spread over and destroys the existing governments in France and England and Italy and threatens them and includes the whole of Europe in its poisonous and contagious influence, we must not minimize its dangers to our own civilization.

"We should not ignore the profound embarrassment that we would have in our relations to a Bolshevik Europe with its present civilization destroyed," he continued. "Looked at from either a selfish or a world point of view, no higher duty ever was laid upon the United States than now at this critical juncture in the world's affairs to unite with the nations with whom it has won this war in arms and brought Germany to her knees, to keep her in that suppliant attitude and save her and Europe from the chaos and despair of further wars and the inevitable triumph of Bolshevism. There must be the united force of a league of nations to stabilize conditions and hold them until the new nations created for the purpose shall have the strength with which they can play their part in making the treaty of peace effective.

Greatest Power in the World. "The disinterestedness of the United States, its position as the greatest power in the world, and in view of its population and their intelligence and adaptability, its enormous natural resources and its potential military power, demonstrated on the fields of France and Belgium, make its membership in the League indispensable. The confidence of the world in its disinterestedness and in its pure democracy will enormously enhance the prestige and power of the League and the faith of the world in the League's earnest desire for peace with justice."

ed to do so by the American nation, West America's Aid. "The European nations desire our entrance into this League, not that they may control America, but to secure our aid in controlling Europe, and, I think, they would be relieved if the primary duty of keeping peace and policing that western hemisphere was relegated to us and our western colleagues. I object, however, to such a reservation as was contained in The Hague Conference against entangling alliances because the recommendation was framed before the demonstrations of this war and contains reservations as to the so-called policy against entangling alliances that are inconsistent with the needs of this nation and of the world."

The Monroe Doctrine. Yet, the Monroe Doctrine itself, he declared, was subject to limitations, in some speeches in the Senate, he added, "intimations have been made which enlarge this doctrine beyond what can be justified."

Mr. Taft said, "I would have no objection and would favor recognition of the Monroe Doctrine and I have stated it above by specific words in the covenant with a further provision that the settlement of purely American questions should be remitted primarily to the American nations, with machinery like that of the present League and that European nations should not intervene unless requested to do so by the American nation."

"FAIR PLAY TO ALL CLASSES ALIKE" TO SAVE CIVILIZATION

LONDON, Mar. 4.—Premier Lloyd George, in addressing the joint committee of employers and employees constituted by the industrial parliament said:

"Civilization, unless we try to save it, may be precipitated and shattered to atoms. It can only be saved by the triumph of justice and fair play to all classes alike."

The premier warned the committee that it was the trustee of the welfare and safety of the whole nation. Unemployment must be banished, he said, and the workers must never again be put in dread of the horrors of distress and hunger.

"Let the workers understand," the premier declared, "that where there is an increase of products they will get a fair share of it."

The tax of supplying the world with material had fallen to the United States and England and possibly Japan, the premier continued. It was a mistake, he said, to keep men working longer hours than were absolutely necessary at the same time for sign competition and the need of productivity for 45,000,000 people must be born in mind. He pointed out that what was happening in Russia might happen in Germany and elsewhere. He said that anarchy was least suited to the working class because when they appeared to be triumphing most they were in reality, except for a favored few, suffering the most dreadful horrors.

Woman Thinks She Is Privileged to Talk

"If anyone ever had a miserable stomach I surely had. It was growing worse, too, all the time. Had severe pains and attacks every ten days or two weeks and had to call a doctor, who could only relieve me for short while. Two years ago last February I took a treatment of MARY'S Wonderful Remedy and I have not had a spell of pain or misery since. My friends just wonder that I am looking so well. I feel I am privileged to talk about it." It is a simple harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Mack Taylor and druggists everywhere.
