KOREAN SECRETARY SAYS NATION TO BE CHRISTIAN COUNTRY

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Dr. Synghwan Rhee, who according to cable dispatches from Shanghai, was named secretary of a Korean provisional revolutionary government established in Manchuria, issued a statement here today in which he declared that the intention of leaders of the movement to make a Christian country of Korea, "once it is free of Japan."

"This," said the statement, "would make Korea the first independent country in Asia to become Christian. Koreans will not stand for a heathen autocratic government like that of Japan. They have been trained under American Christian influence and the leaders are all imbued with American democratic ideas. Seven of the eight members of the cabinet of the provisional government are Christians and our government will naturally follow the American form of government as nearly as it can be done."

"Hated of idol worship is at the bottom of the detestation which Koreans feel for Japanese authority, which requires worship of the mikado's image. Hundreds of democrats have Christian students in Korean schools when turned to the public celebration of the mikado's birthday, refused to bow their heads before this image because it is against the teaching of the second commandment and for the conscience sake suffered arrest and torture. Korea is the natural buffer state in the east situation between Japan, China and Asiatic Russia."

Whistles blew and guns saluted as the Leviathan passed down the harbor. Secretary Baker is going abroad to attend meetings of the Allied inter-Allied commission in Paris and Tours for settling payment between England, France and the United States for war material. He will be in France only a week or ten days. The congressional delegation aboard was headed by former Chairman S. H. Dent of Alabama and was accompanied by representatives of the general staff of the U. S. army, Representative Julius Kahn of California, chairman of the committee, is already in France.

Mr. Dent said the representatives would make an inspection tour of American camps and military bases in France and the occupied area. GOVERNOR VEToes BILL TO LEASE LAND CONTROLLED BY STATE PRISON COMMISSION

AUSTIN, April 7.—Governor Hobby vetoed the bill which proposed to authorize the prison commission to lease prison lands for oil and gas development. The governor gave the following explanation of this veto: "If the prison system can do its prospecting with its own equipment and its own labor and obtain all the oil produced, it would in my judgment be a better plan than to enter into a lease under which the prison commission would get one-eighth of the lessee's seven-eighths of the produced. The lease plan, however, would be preferable to no development at all. I will submit the subject to the called session to the end of acting a law which will permit the prison system to lease lands, also prospect at its own expense."

SIDELIGHTS ON FINAL DAYS OF KAISER'S RULE

Revolution Was Imminent and Street Fighting Had Already Begun

ADVISORS FORCE ISSUE

Flight to Holland Due to Pressure by Von Hindenburg and Groener

By Associated Press.
BERLIN, Saturday, April 6.—While admitting there was a difference of opinion among German generals as to the practicability of fighting to maintain the imperial regime in November, Count Schuenberg, commander of a guards regiment, maintains in an article on the abdication of Emperor William, published in the Freiheit that there were enough loyal troops to have marched on Aix-La-Chapelle and Cologne and put down the revolution. The count says that Field Marshal von Hindenburg and General Groener, Prussian war minister, would not assume the responsibility for such a move, however, arguing that things had gone too far and that only the abdication of former Emperor William could save the situation. The emperor, he says, was emphatic in declaring he did not desire a civil war.

HAVE COLOR IN CHEEKS

Be Better Looking—Take Olive Tablets

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should take Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 17 years of study with his patients.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color.

To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days you must get at the cause.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects.

They start the bile and overcome constipation. That's why millions of boxes are sold annually at 10c and 25c per box. All druggists. Take one or two nightly and note the pleasing results.

and that he would not call upon the army to engage in such a conflict. Internal conditions becoming worse, William at length agreed to Count Schuenberg's advice to abdicate as emperor, but not as king of Prussia. Field Marshal Von Hindenburg endorsed the course, but in the opinion of General Groener, it was too late, although it might have saved the situation two weeks earlier. In the meantime there came rumors from Berlin of the imminence of civil war and street fighting was actually begun there. Finally, the imperial chancellor telegraphed that civil war might break out at any moment if the abdication was not announced at once.

Hurried Conference Held.
Hurried conferences were held by the emperor, the crown prince and the leading generals, the article says. One of the commanders reported there was a feeling among the generals that the entire army could not be depended on in case of civil war. To this Count Schuenberg says he replied: "No soldier would break his oath to the colors."

"The oath to the colors and the supreme war lord is only an idea," was the rejoinder of General Groener. At this point Admiral Von Hintz, the foreign minister entered with a menacing message from Berlin and tendered his resignation. William then consented to abdicate as emperor, but insisted on retaining his office as king of Prussia and head of the army. The imperial chancellor had in the meantime, however, announced the abdication without waiting for the emperor's formal declaration.

VON HINDENBURG SAYS ARTICLE IS INCORRECT

By Associated Press.
COPENHAGEN, April 7.—A statement by Field Marshal Von Hindenburg on the article written by Count Schuenberg, circulated by the semi-official Wolff bureau of Berlin, says that the article has "one-sided tendencies and is not objectively correct."

"It contains material errors and inaccuracies regarding the views and utterances of the persons concerned," the statement adds, "and proves that Schuenberg was not adequately informed on the real situation."

TWO BLOCKS IN TOWN OF RANGER ARE DESTROYED

Total Loss Result of Fire is Estimated at $850,000

WILSON HOTEL BURNS

J. A. Craven, Who Conducts Oil Exchange, Was Seriously Injured

By Associated Press.
FORT WORTH, TEX., April 7.—The heart of Ranger, built overnight when the oil boom hit there a year ago, was destroyed by fire at midnight Sunday but the loss will not exceed $100,000 because all of the buildings were of frame and this morning are already being replaced.

The fire swept over two blocks, with the Wilson hotel as the pivot, toward the Texas & Pacific freight depot. The brick dry goods store of Terrill and Gholson stopped the flames. Behind the Wilson hotel, the flames burned through to the intersection and crossed the street, destroying the New Humphrey Hotel and cafe. Among the places burned was the famous Oklahoma Eating House, the pioneer of the oil boomers, established by a woman and her daughter, and sold recently for $40,000.

One man was seriously injured—a real estate dealer—who was brought to a Fort Worth hospital this morning. The injured man is J. A. Craven, who conducted an oil exchange. He started out of his office with some of his papers, when a volunteer fire fighter swinging an axe struck him in the head. He is seriously injured.

The fire originated in a bakery back of the Wilson hotel. The burned blocks are bounded as follows: Main, Iusk, Walnut and Austin streets.

Very little insurance was carried because the frame construction and the absence of fire fighting apparatus had resulted in most of the fire insurance companies refusing to accept the risk. Outside of the $100,000 building loss, the loss on goods, etc., will total $750,000.

STATE FIRE MARSHAL TO INVESTIGATE FIRE

By Associated Press.
AUSTIN, April 7.—State Fire Marshal Wallace English announced that he will leave tonight for Ranger to investigate the fire at that city last night. He has received no information concerning the fire which is reported to have caused $850,000 damages in the business district of Ranger.

STUDY PEOPLE IN CONNECTION WITH WAR STAMP SALES

By Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, April 7.—Monetary habits of groups of people in various industries and employments are the subject of study by the National War Savings organization with a view of determining the best places and the best times to sell saving stamps. This is prompted by the reversal of last year's policy of giving an agency to practically every store which would handle the stamps and adoption of a new plan to select carefully a few stores as agencies on condition that these make active efforts to push the sale of the stamps. Thus the organization hopes to make the agency privilege a real distinction in each community.

To this end, the war savings organization has undertaken to answer such questions as these:

Are people in a certain industry or locality most likely to buy stamps from their grocery stores or from a drug store which is open at night?

Are restaurants and candy stores effective agencies?

What sort of store in a small city is most likely to attract buyers after the postoffice is closed?

If department stores are made agencies to reach women, in what department or in what aisle location should the stamp-selling booth be located?

What sort of stores are best thrift stamp agencies for children?

What kind of downtown stores are best agencies for men?

"It is realized, of course," says a War Savings statement, "that banks, building loan associations and such agencies to which people naturally go with money are excellent sales agencies and such agencies to which people naturally go with money are excellent sales agencies, and school houses are admirable selling points for children. But the Savings Directors want to be certain that adults in residential and industrial neighborhoods can secure stamps conveniently at the hours best suited to them and in connection with their usual trading activities."

The number and location of agencies per thousand of population is being carefully considered as the treasury does not wish to split up the stamp business to such an extent that the business of each agency will be too small to be of any advertising benefit to the agent.

Mrs. Henry Berowds of Knoxville, Tenn., who has been the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Emily Craycraft, and her cousin, Mrs. M. A. Buddy for the past week, left for Denison and Oklahoma City Sunday.

WHAT DOES THIS LITTLE TOT CARE FOR CIRCUS THRILLERS?

Do you think this little girl, who has just reconciled two jealous and kicking performing ponies to such an extent that they have been caught by the camera in the act of kissing and making up, would rather see some of the big thrillers with the Sells-Floto circus, coming to Wichita Falls circus show grounds Thursday, April 17, than play with these very ponies? Not a chance. The clown, with their trained donkeys, pigs and trees, might win her away, but do you think Beatrice, the boneless woman, doing her tight-lining act of death high under the dome of the big top, could

SCHOOL BOARD MEMBERS ARE RE-ELECTED SATURDAY

Fifteen voters went to the polling places on Saturday to vote in the school board election. P. A. Martin, J. L. Jackson, A. R. Ferguson and W. W. Brown, the members whose terms expired at this time, were re-elected, each receiving 15 vote. There has been no interest manifested in school board elections for years and as a rule a ticket has never been made up. This was the case Saturday. Next Saturday another school election will be held, this time on a very important matter, the voting of $100,000 school bonds and the board is hoping for a heavy vote, as it is a matter which concerns every property owner and tax payers in the city. According to W. J. Bullock, the president of the board, a heavy vote is especially desired, because it will enable the board to find a better market for the bonds.

Market Report

COTTON MARKET

By Associated Press. NEW YORK, April 7.—The cotton market showed renewed activity and strength during the day's early trading. The opening was firm at an advance of 20 to 50 points on new style months on reiterated reports that peace treaty would be ready before Easter and renewal of trade buying. There was southern selling and a good deal of realizing but offerings were readily absorbed by the broadening demand with a new style May selling up to 26.50 and October to 22.50, or 22 to 25 points net higher before the end of the first hour. Old style months were very irregularly opening 20 points higher to 45 lower and later ranging about 25 to 30 points above Saturday's closing. It was reported that Saturday's buying of October by trade interests was to cover hedges against spot sales for export to Belgium.

There were reactions of several points during the middle of the morning under realizing and southern selling with the near months relatively easy as scattering long accounts were being transferred from them to date deliveries. Offerings were well taken on the setback however and the market showed renewed firmness during the middle of the day on reports of a more active spot demand. New style May ruled around 26.25 at midday or net unchanged but later deliveries showed advances of 46 to 62 points with July selling at 24.61 and October at 22.72.

The mid-day advance was checked by renewed realizing and the market was somewhat less active during the early afternoon with prices showing reactions of some 8 or 10 points from the best. New style May ruled around 22.60 or 5 to 10 points above Saturday's closing.

Cotton closed steady.

New Orleans Cotton. NEW ORLEANS, April 7.—Heavy buying opened the trading in cotton today, the market meeting a strong demand based on the statement by Lloyd George that the peace treaty would be ready by Easter. In the first half hour of business prices rose 33 to 47 points.

Cotton closed: Old steady, unchanged to 32 points up net and new very steady at an advance of 11 to 16 points.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE

By Associated Press. CHICAGO, April 7.—Corn showed considerable weakness today but rallied when the fact developed that country offerings, although of liberal volume were mostly held above the market. Opening prices which ranged from 1 1/4¢ lower with May $1.55 to 1.56 and July $1.47 1/2 to $1.47 3/4, were followed by upturns that in some cases reached well above Saturday's finish.

Oats like corn quickly showed an oversold condition. After opening 1/2¢ off to 1/2¢ advance with May 66 1/2 to 67, the market underwent a moderate general sag and then scored a material advance.

Provisions were dull but firmer in sympathy with hogs. The live animal rose to a new top level for 1919. Provisions reached a peak with corn. Prices closed unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to one cent net higher with May $1.60 to $1.65 1/2 and July $1.49 to $1.49 1/2.

NEW YORK STOCKS

By Associated Press. NEW YORK, April 7.—Traders evidently were disposed to place a favorable interpretation on events over the weekend especially the reported progress toward an agreement on the peace treaty, and prices at the opening of the stock exchange today rose accordingly. Gains of one to three points in their first half hour were impartially distributed among shippings, motors and their specialties, also leathers, oils, sugars, tobacco and fertilizers and chemical issues. U. S. Steel advanced a point but leading rails held within restricted limits.

The low rate for call money was 1 1/2%.

conducing to the further advance of the noon hour, in which rails and copper shares, also Baldwin and American locomotive and New York Air Brake. American International continued the dominant feature, however, extending its gain to almost ten points.

Liberty bond final prices today were: 3 1/2's 99.98; first 4's 95.50; second 4's 93.80; third 4's 95.64; second 4 1/2's 93.80; third 4 1/2's 95.64; fourth 4 1/2's 93.74.

Southern Pacific Marine preferred and oils, chemicals and fertilizer issues at gross gains of 2 to 4 points featured the final hour, profit taking causing reactions of 1 to 4 points among other leaders.

The closing was strong.

TROUBLE WITH CASING DELAYS COMPLETION OF L. R. CROWELL WELL

Casing trouble has delayed the completion of the L. R. Crowell well on the Cropper lease, and it has not yet been possible to test out this well which is the first deep well to find production in the old shallow Burk Burnett field. That the well is an unusually good one seems practically assured, but an unusual amount of trouble with the casing and the packing has been experienced, it is reported, and it may be necessary to pull all the casing and reset. Efforts to run the slab down in the hole have been fruitless up to the present.

TRANSMISSION

Scientists through abstruse calculations have advanced the theory that the earth is shrinking and have even estimated in inches the gradual lessening in superficial dimensions.

Regardless whether their conclusions are justified it is certain that for all practical purposes the world has grown immeasurably smaller in the last few decades and the principal agent in bringing distant places close to each other has been and is the short line seen in the columns of The Times, "By The Associated Press."

These words are the embodiment in print of one of the greatest organizations of today, a mutual co-operative enterprise known as The Associated Press, its membership more than eleven hundred strong covering the entire United States, and its correspondents and affiliated agencies spread over the habitable globe.

"By The Associated Press," has come to be regarded as the hall mark of truth, the sign manual of verity. The dispatch beneath it may bear a Paris or a London date; may read from Peking or Bombay, from New York or Hoopoo, Ind., but with those words above it its truth is certain.

The ordinary methods of transmission, the telegraph and the telephone—ordinary but none the less wonderful—in most cases have brought the news to the columns of The Times. Minutes have sufficed to carry the intelligence where once days and even months would have been required and so we neighbor with the other side of the globe.

In bringing the news to The Times no means of transportation is overlooked by The Associated Press, though the principal method employed is the telegraph wire. With the exception of the telegraph companies (which have no other business) there is not an organization in the world which has complete control of as many miles of telegraph lines as are under lease to The Associated Press: its wire mileage exceeds 50,000, and the capacity for transmission of dispatches is augmented by the code system used, whereby one short word takes the place of almost a whole sentence. The telephone too has a great and growing share in the distribution of news by The Associated Press. Continuous talking circuits in operation for stated periods have replaced the telegraph in many instances and thousands of words daily are transmitted at a single reading to three, six or even more papers on a single telephone line.

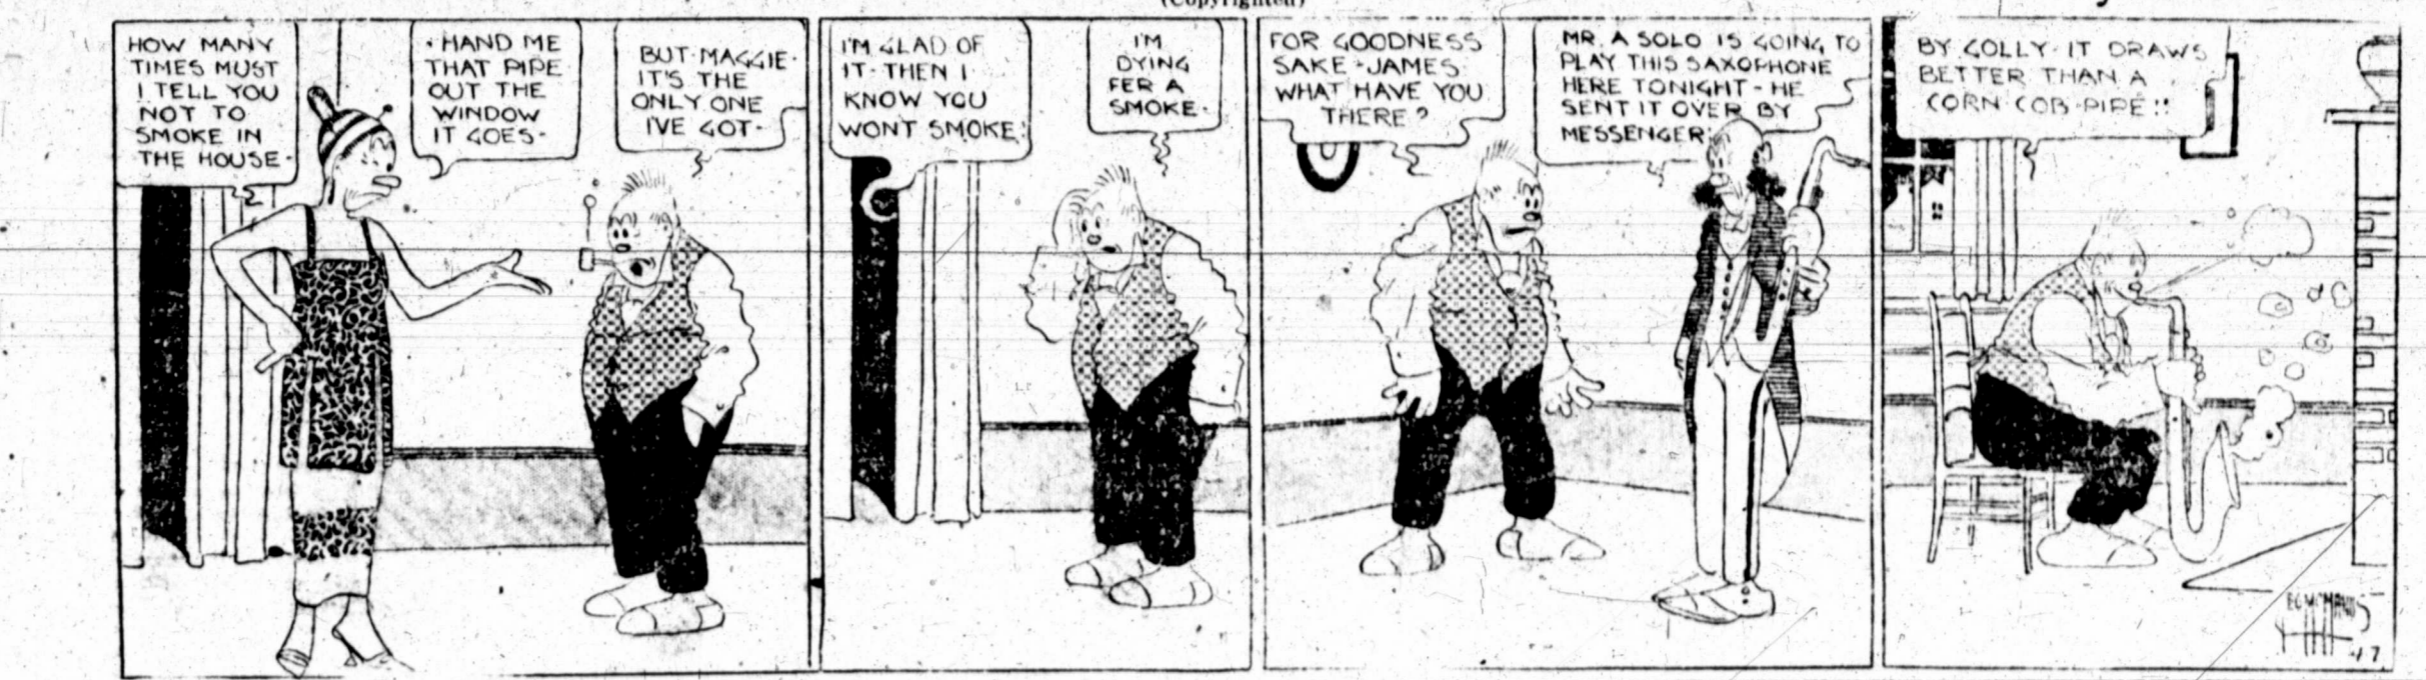

Wireless telegraphy as employed where needed and when through the breaking down of the modern methods speedier means are not at hand more humble agents are employed. The dog sled in the north and canoes in the islands of the Pacific are not despised.

Also have waded waist deep in water and mud for miles to carry an Associated Press dispatch telling of storm disaster. Others with equal devotion to the service have stuck to the telegraph key while flames raged around them. The dangers of the front line trench and the discomforts of march and bivouac have been shared by Associated Press men. No mine is too deep and no height too perilous to be sought in the service of The Associated Press. Its men are nameless. Their work appears only under the modest caption, "By The Associated Press." But those words mean definite certainty and anywhere every-where will stand the acid test of truth.

CZECHOSLOVAKS RE-ESTABLISH BOHEMIAN KINGDOM AS A MODERN REPUBLIC

Control All Austria North of Danube and Part of Hungary.

AFTER LONG CONFLICT OF RACE AND RELIGION

Played a Prominent Role in Great War and Received Recognition from Allies.

By THOMAS B. PRESTON.

(Copyright, 1919, by the New York Herald Company—All Rights Reserved.)

While all the world knows of the bravery and determination of the Czechoslovakia, who by their stand on the Volga prevented the tide of Bolshevism from overflowing Siberia and reaching our western coast by way of the Pacific, their country is comparatively unknown. Yet that homeland to which they are now anxious to return is a very important, fertile country, in the center of Europe, famous in song and legend, known as Bohemia and forming a powerful kingdom in ancient days.

This region, at last recognized by America and the Allies, lies west of the Ukraine and south of Poland, overlapping the disputed Rutenian district north of the Carpathians, to which I referred last week, and impinging on Polish Silesia here there have been many conflicts between rival forces, now happily ended through the mediation of the Allies. The Czechs, wiser than the Ukrainians, have heeded the warning of Paris and will abide by the decision of the peace congress.

Two Millions Czechs Freed.
Czechoslovakia includes the former Austrian provinces of Bohemia, Moravia and Silesia, lower and upper Austria as far as the Danube and the northwestern part of Hungary—for both Magyar and German had a hand in opposing this noble race. The area where the Czechs predominate is about 35,000 square miles and the population 10,000,000, excluding the other racial elements and the Germans, all of whom together number about three millions.

It was this immense preponderance of the Czech, Moravian and Slovak inhabitants that enabled them to consolidate their power almost as soon as the old Austrian Empire fell to pieces. They immediately assumed control of everything in Austria north of the Danube and of the northern fringe of Hungary, establishing a strong center at Pressburg, just inside the Hungarian frontier about forty miles below Vienna on the opposite bank of the Danube.

They selected for their chief city Prague, the capital of the ancient kingdom of Bohemia, and established themselves at Eger, a Bohemian town of 24,000 people, surrounded by a small district where German predominance, which represents the most westerly penetration of Europe by any branch of the Slav race. In the north the Czechs do not extend beyond the limits of the old Austrian empire, but in the valleys northeast where German, Polish and Slovaks come together, there is a mixture of all three races which gave rise to recent clashes.

Early Settlements.
There were some Slavs already in Bohemia at the beginning of the Christian era, but the earliest records show the greater part of the land occupied by the Hall, a Celtic tribe, who called their chief town Bohobrunn, whence the name of Bohemia is derived. The Hall were driven west by the Danians, who came from Transylvania. The Marcomanni from the northwest succeeded them. Then the tide of immigration again shifted to the east and the influx of the Slavs began, ending in their permanent establishment in Central Europe with the Czechs advanced as far as Prague.

Another branch settling further east took their name from the Morava River and were known as Moravians. They aided Charlemagne in protecting his conquest of Bavaria from attacks by the Avars in 791. A Czech prince later erected a castle on the bank of the Elava or Moldau, where he lived with his daughter Libusa and her husband, a peasant named Premysl, after whom the town with the unpronounceable name which figured so greatly in the war, was called.

The Moravians after the death of Charlemagne threw off their allegiance to his empire and extended their conquests on the southeast as far as Bulgaria, with the latter forming an alliance with the Greek emperor. Two brothers, Greek monks from Thessalonica, Cyril and Methodius, by their preaching converted both nations, they translated the Roman breviary and the mass into the Slavonic language, which is still in use in the Uniat churches of the former Austrian empire.

The Uniat Churches.
These Uniat churches, by the way, play a very important part in the political history of the Near East and illustrate the difference between the Western and the Oriental mind. While the former is more conventional, with principles that with the way they are expressed, the latter is extremely elastic of the means of expression and hence clings more strongly to form than to facts. More than one war has resulted from this difference in mode of thought and it is particularly in the German bureaucratic desire to regulate and codify all things human as contrasted with the French or British or especially, American, aversion to red tape.

This opposition showed itself at the very beginning when two German archbishops wrote to Pope John VIII complaining of the innovation of Methodius in saying mass in the vulgar Slavonic tongue instead of Latin. The Pope summoned Methodius to Rome and on hearing his explanation approved for the Slavonic the use of the liturgy and breviary in their own language.

There was an attempt by Pope Pius IX. to alter a similar arrangement regarding the Armenian and Chaldean rites, but his "non possumus" attitude nearly brought on a schism, which was averted by his successor, Leo XIII., the wisest head of the church whom Rome has seen for three hundred years, who reverted to the more sensible course of aiming chiefly at what he called the "full and perfect union of faith," rather than the question of the form in which it was couched.

Here is a tip for the ecclesiastical gentlemen who sailed the other day for Rome, seeking a union of churches. If they agree on doctrine, there may be such a union; otherwise it cannot take place. No doubt many good Catholics would be amazed to see a man saying mass in Polish, with his wife and children copying the front pew as one of the results of the great war, but there would be nothing in it contrary to doctrine.

The conversion of the Czechs to Christianity occurred about the middle of the ninth century under the reign of Rastislav. A grandson of Charlemagne, "Louis the German," made war upon them and captured their ruler, putting out his eyes in the German style. Rastislav's successor, Svatopluk, extended the Moravian domains to the Oder on the north and the Gran in Hungary on the east. There was some prospect at this time of a thousand years ago of the union of the Slavs of Bohemia and Moravia with those of Bulgaria and Serbia to form a barrier to German domination, but the Hungarians pushed in between and reduced Moravia to its present size.

For the next hundred years Moravia was a bone of contention between the Magyars, the Poles and the Bohemians further west. Wenceslas, one of the most famous of the Bohemian rulers, was an ally of the German Emperor. He was murdered by his brother Boleslav, who succeeded by his brother Boleslav, who successfully defended the frontier from the Germans. His son, Boleslav II., extended his rule over Bohemia, Moravia, the southern part of Silesia and Austrian Galicia. But his kingdom did not last long. Vhidiv, a Polish prince and son of a Bohemian princess, conquered the whole country and tried to strengthen himself by becoming a vassal of the German Emperor.

Internal Wars.
Boleslav I. regained these regions and added part of Poland. There were constant internal wars for nearly two hundred years. Bohemia, remaining part of the empire but the Germans not taking a hand in these domestic conflicts. Ottokar I. became sole ruler in 1197 and his grandson, Ottokar II. defeated the Hungarians disastrously in the battle of Kressenbrunn, in 1249, and extended his dominions to the Adriatic. During the great interregnum in the German Empire, which followed the death of the Emperor Frederick II. in 1250, his son Conrad IV, William of Holland and Richard of Cornwall, brother of Henry III, King of England, were successively chosen kings of Germany, but were never crowned Emperor, the German princes in the meantime seizing the occasion to confirm their power over their petty domains.

Ottokar II. was ambitious of obtaining the imperial crown, but Rudolph of Hapsburg was chosen King of Germany, and he defended the latter before it. He was made war on Ottokar and defeated him, regaining the duchy of Austria, Styria and Carinthia. This was the beginning of the rule of the Hapsburgs in Austria, the family having come from the Rhineland. Bohemia and Moravia alone were left to Wenceslas II., son of Ottokar, who had been killed in battle. His son Wenceslas III. was assassinated in 1306, leaving no heir.

John Hus and the Papacy.
The Bohemians later chose as king John of Luxembourg, who founded a dynasty which ruled 120 years. He was an ally of France and was killed at the battle of Crecy in 1346. His son Charles was one of the most able of Bohemian rulers and did much to improve the city of Prague, where he held his court and founded the university. Into this university entered a young Czech, John Hus, son of a peasant, who at the age of twenty became bachelor of arts, studied theology and in 1402 held the office of rector of the university. He became involved in the religious controversies of his time, beginning by attacking the immorality and avarice of the clergy of the day.

This was the time of the great schism in the Papacy, with one Pope at Avignon and another at Rome hurling anathemas at each other, to the great detriment of the Church. Finally, after the schism had lasted thirty years, some cardinals broke away from each side and proceeded to the election of a third Pope, thinking they were mistaken and there were three Popes instead of two. Then the Council of Constance men, deposed John XXIII, who had summoned it, forced Gregory XII to resign, deposed Benedict XIII and elected Martin V. in 1417.

At the same time the council condemned the doctrines of Wickliffe, on which some of John Hus's teachings were based, and summoned the latter before it. He went and defended his theses, but they were pronounced heretical, and in accordance with the barbarous customs of the age he was burned alive in execution of the sentence pronounced at a full sitting of the council on July 6, 1415. Few men ever went more bravely to a horrible death. To make a good job of it the same council next year burned Jerome of Prague, an associate of John Hus, who, however, first recanted his heresies and then recanted his recantation before being put to death.

The Hussite Wars.
The burning of John Hus immediately resulted in civil war in Bohemia. The nobles of Bohemia and Moravia denounced the act and its authors. The council summoned them to appear, but they refused. The German Emperor, Sigismund, who was the principal backer of the council, threatened war. He was defeated in 1420, and the Hussites, who had split into two factions, began to fight among themselves. King Wenceslas died and some concessions were made to the Bohemians by the council of Basel, which paved the way for Sigismund, who was a brother of Wenceslas, to become king.

He was formally recognized, but died the next year. In 1457, after further civil disputes, George of Podiebrad was called to the throne. He declared himself a Hussite and was excommunicated by the Pope, who prevailed upon King Matthias of Hungary to make war upon him. Matthias invaded Moravia and captured Brunn, the capital. The anti-clerical nobles called Vhidislav, son of Casimir of Poland, to the throne. A compromise was effected, Matthias retaining Moravia and Silesia and Vhidislav keeping Bohemia.

Archduke Ferdinand of Austria, son-in-law of Vhidislav, after the latter's death was elected King in 1526, marking the permanent accession of the Hapsburg dynasty to the throne of Bohemia. Ferdinand had been practically established under Vhidislav and King Ferdinand took away the privileges of the towns and deprived them of their municipal lands. The Bohemian estates writing from Rudolph, Ferdinand's grandson, an agreement to respect liberty of religious worship.

In 1618 the crown became vacant and the estate refused to recognize Ferdinand of Styria, cousin of the dead king. With the aid of Spain, Italy, Poland and Saxony he crushed all opposition. There was a wholesale confiscation of land, all Protestant nobles were expelled, Catholicism was re-established, the hereditary of the Bohemian crown in the House of Hapsburg was proclaimed, the Diet was deprived of all legislative power and German made an official language equal with Czech. Thus the Czechoslovak people became merged in the Austro-Hungarian Empire.

Vienna constantly arrogated more power over the country, centralizing the government after the Napoleonic wars, German had displaced Czech in the schools as well as in the public offices. The revolutionary movement of 1848 in Europe when it appeared in Austria was ruthlessly put down. Prince Windischgratz at the head of the army bombarded Prague, which had revolted, and in a few months constitutional forms were abandoned throughout Austria. Bohemian newspapers were suppressed and an attempt was made to stamp out the use of the Czech language.

Local Diets were established in 1860 and next year an electoral system was introduced favoring the German element in the elections to the Parliament at Vienna. The war with Prussia in 1866 was a benefit to the Czechs in a way, for by the treaty of Prague all lands ruled by the house of Hapsburg were excluded

The war with Prussia in 1866 was a benefit to the Czechs in a way, for by the treaty of Prague all lands ruled by the house of Hapsburg were excluded from the German confederation and German influence was weakened. Hungary obtained her independence of Austria in the Dual Empire. But Bohemia had to content herself with protests. Count Radeni, who was Austrian Prime Minister in 1867, issued decrees requiring knowledge of the Czech language by officials in Bohemia, but the Germans were so incensed at his act that they overthrew his Cabinet and a successor, Count Clary, repealed the decrees.

The Czechs' Part in the War.
With the advent of the great war, which Austria began in order to absorb the Slavs of the South in her march to the Adriatic, the hopes of the Slavs in her northern provinces revived. They were forced by conscription to fight against the Russians in the north, but surrendered by wholesale, in regiments and divisions, whenever they got a chance. They were sent to prison camps and when the Russian revolution occurred they were released with their arms and equipment. Some of them joined Kerensky's army. Austria threatened to treat them as rebels and to kill all prisoners. The Allies recognized them as co-belligerents so that under international law they could not be considered rebels.

Other Czechoslovaks made their way to the Volga, where they made a stand against the Bolsheviki, who had overthrown Kerensky's weak government. They captured Novo-Nikolaievsk and turned the Red Guards out of Omsk, Tobolsk and Tumen. Meanwhile the Czechs at home were not idle. Their Deputies at Prague declared their independence on January 6, 1918, and sent to Washington Dr. Thomas G. Masaryk, whom they elected President of the Czechoslovak Republic of Austria they seized Prague and garrisoned most of the towns in Bohemia and Moravia. They sent representatives to Paris who on October 18 issued a formal declaration of independence. They were recognized as a separate nation by the Allies and their delegates are members of the peace congress. Dr. Masaryk arrived in Prague in December and proceeded to organize the government. Sixteen train loads of Czechoslovaks who had been fighting in the Italian armies left Padua in January for Prague to form the nucleus of a national force.

The Czechs have evacuated the Teschen mining district in Silesia, which was in dispute with the Poles, and have withdrawn to a line fixed by the peace congress on February 3, and an allied commission is now on the spot to decide on the proper boundary, thus removing the last reason for friction.

CHANGING ASPECTS OF LONDON UNDER STRESS OF GREAT WAR TO SEE FURTHER INNOVATIONS

Government to Try to Purify Air of City, Mr. Selfridge Planning a Big Skyscraper and Young Women's Christian Association Allows Girls to Smoke.

(Special Despatch.) LONDON, Saturday.

London is a sweet spot to live in, if one is to believe what the meteorological experts report on its atmosphere. To the provincial, London is a very good place to get away from. The Londoner thinks so himself. He spends as few hours in the city as he possibly can but he lives as far away in the country as he conveniently can.

But London has its fascinations, too. I have heard American visitors' after a short spell of London, deprecate over and over again, that they "loved it old London" and had no desire to quit its fogs, its dirty streets, its dust-laden atmosphere, full of millions of all sorts of microbes, notwithstanding.

The Meteorological Office is stirring itself up to the need for investigation, and an Atmosphere Pollution Research Department has been set up with the idea of devising means for purifying the air of London. It is a hard proposition. Incredible though it may seem, it has been demonstrated by actual experiment that the air of this metropolis contains about 4,000,000 particles of dust and floating rubbish to each cubic inch. The average number of similar particles per cubic inch in the purest mountain air is about 20,000. As for germs, London's air swarms with them. A man putting in a ten hour day in the neighborhood of, say, Fleet street, inhales about 37,000,000 microbes of various sorts.

Skyscraper Planned.
To get away from this vitiated atmosphere one of London's foremost and most enterprising Americans has conceived a brilliant idea. Mr. Gordon Selfridge wants to build a real, genuine American skyscraper. It will not be as tall as the Metropolitan Life Society's Eiffel Tower, running to 600 feet, but it will be a good beginning for London—if. He has had designs prepared to throw up over his great emporium in Oxford street a clock tower reaching to 450 feet above the ground level.

The London County Council have very strict regulations about the height of buildings which may rise and it remains to be seen what they will have to say to it when they have the plans before them. But Mr. Selfridge would hardly have gone to the trouble and expense of preparing these plans had he not sounded some authority beforehand. It will be only 300 feet higher than the golden cross which surmounts the real dome of St. Paul's. The outer dummy is all that is seen from the street and the inner one is invisible from inside.

London is now crowded with American Y. W. C. A. girls in their smart blue and grey uniforms and long green capes. Since the armistice they have been going to France in large numbers, at General Pershing's special request. I am told they are accompanying the American Army of Occupation in Germany and will organize their canteens and entertainments and supervise their leave camps. Whatever they may do in the privacy of her own room I don't know, but never have I seen an American girl in the Y. W. C. A. uniform smoking a cigarette.

Y. W. C. A. Allows Smoking.
Touching the question that is going on in the English Y. W. C. A. about permitting girls to smoke in their canteens, I find that very strictly regulated girls' colleges, that kicked over the traces and won. Smoking has always been forbidden there, but the demands of the students became so insistent that I am told immediately after the armistice a special notice was placed on the board in the hall signed by the head. It ran:—"The rule prohibiting students from smoking is cancelled and was soon rendered invisible by the smoke in the corridors."

The present influx of naval and military officers as students at the university, I am told, threatens a complete disciplinary revolution. It is difficult to treat as boys men who have been through the war, reaching in some cases the rank of commander-in-chief. What is perhaps more significant is the fact that the spirit of complete freedom from rules which reached the women's colleges, many of whose students have been engaged in war work. Even Newham has been touched by the new spirit, and it is said that there is a revolt against the traditional chaperons. The Newham governors rather shrug the issue, for they point out that the chaperone regulations in a university and not a college rule, which alone the university authorities are competent to abolish or maintain. In brief, the "Cambridge Fathers" are in for a hard time at the hands of the emancipated girl undergraduates.

Naval Problems.
In naval circles the terms imposed upon Germany to remove all submarines and the Kiel Canal have met with the warmest approval. In fact, I am told that they are practically the terms which were advocated in British naval circles when the original armistice was framed. With regard to the ultimate disposal of Heigoland, opinion still seems to waver between demolishing it by high explosives and retaining it dismantled to Denmark; its original owner. In any case, it would be better out of German hands, whatever its condition.

The destruction of the Kiel Canal, however, is the more important feature, particularly as in all probability, as a result of the territorial adjustments of the peace conference, Denmark is likely to regain her lost territory to the north bank of the canal, and this important waterway from the North Sea to the Baltic must in that case remain neutralized altogether.

The decision of the Allies to forego the sharing of the interned German war ships was highly approved by a British admiral in discussing the armistice terms.

"I think," he said, "that the vessels will be taken into the deep waters of the Atlantic and the Kingston plugs will be ignominiously discharged from an elevated position, without any ceremony or display. This would be in keeping with the final traditions of the much boasted German navy, and it is to be wondered if the traditions of an enemy who has destroyed the fine traditions of the sea during the last four years."

Air Corps Demobilized.
Just nine months after our last air raid, London has seen the demobilization of a special unit to which all London is under a special obligation. I mean the "Archie" corps that defended the metropolis and its suburbs against Zeppelins and Gothas.

It was a remarkable corps inasmuch as the very best and "smartest" West End clubs contributed to its rank and file. Officers were Parliament and men of eminence to all walks of life. Ribbed shoulders and worked alongside the humblest citizens of his Majesty who for various reasons were unable to serve abroad.

Under such circumstances some amusing contretemps were bound to occur. "I remember," said an officer in the newly demobilized corps, "a visit we one day made to the park from an august field officer. After gazing rather critically at my gun's crew, who were cleaning their weapons at the time, and certainly looking a bit grimy, he said, 'This work doesn't suit you, I suppose. Why don't you get a very good class of men, I suppose?' 'Well, I replied, 'the gentleman at the muzzle is a second wrangler, the next is one of our foremost authorities on Greek literature, the third is Lord — a really know-nothing about him except that his income is reported to exceed £5,000 a year.'"

"That field officer," was destined to recall another shock. I accompanied him to the roadway, where he noted a particularly fine Rolls-Royce car in waiting. "I'm afraid," he said apologetically, "I may have been detaining you when you were about to start on a journey." Oh, no, I was able to assure him, "that's my misadventure, sir."

"But," the officer proceeded, "I myself had a similar surprise just a short time before. On being transferred to an East End station, where the accommodation was very rough, I found myself with this minor consolation: the orderly appointed as my servant seemed a decent sort of fellow. 'It's a bit of a shock, sir,' and it wasn't long before he would have made me a cup of tea. He seemed quite clean in his ways, and one afternoon I was particularly struck by the thorough way in which, down by his knees, he was scrubbing the floor."

"Then making inquiry, I learned that he was a Scotch warrent; and on looking back the name up, I found he and his family had swayed a large slice of one of the northern counties for over eight hundred years."

Hawaiian Soldiers Returning from War Wearing Decorations Made from Flowers and Receiving Glad Welcome from People

Even in far off Hawaii the appreciative citizens went wild with joy when their soldier men returned from the world war. The populace turned out and paid such homage to the men as was never accorded soldiers before.

This photograph shows a detachment of the First Hawaiian Infantry from Schofield Barracks, wearing the leis, a Hawaiian decoration made from the flowers in the fields. Each discharged soldier had the insignia of appreciation from the citizens entwined his neck. As he walked from the barracks he received the glad "Welcome Home" from his people.

The War Camp Community met thousands of such warriors from the islands in the Pacific. That they appreciated what the people of the American Continent had done for them was always shown in the enthusiastic manner in which these newly adopted brothers of ours sang "America."

EXHIBITION GAMES

All major league players enjoy telling stories on themselves, and most of them have one or more gems which they repeat in those fanning bees which usually take place on rainy afternoons when they are forced to idly away their time in a hotel lobby.

Jimmy Wilde. An exceptional photograph of Jimmy Wilde, the sensational British fly-weight boxer. This photo gives a good idea of Wilde's slight build. He is rather tall for his weight, which is said to never exceed one hundred and fifty pounds.

In a game against Cincinnati, which was managed by Mike Kelly, who also did the receiving, Jennings came up to the bat after the Cincy outfit had gotten away to a good lead. Hughey looked bad in the series on every trip to the plate. With two gone and the sacks clear, Kelly told Jennings he was going to help him. "I want to see you hit," said Kelly, "so get ready to swing at fast straight balls."

WICHITA FALLS HIGH DEFEATED BY VERNON

Wichita Falls high school's aggregation of ball tossers came out on the small end of a 5 to 1 score in the opening game of the season played at Vernon Saturday. Although beaten, the local boys played fast baseball throughout and with a little more practice should build up a ball club equal to that of any high school in the county.

Whitley, the first man up for Wichita Falls, met the first ball pitched and drove it to deep center for a home run—then failed to touch third base and was declared out! After this calamity, neither team scored for six innings, lightning fielding repeatedly cutting off opportunities.

TOLBERT WINS HONORS AT VERNON TRACK MEET. VERNON, April 7.—Tolbert easily won the track meet in the Interscholastic County Fair held here Saturday piling up a total of eighty points.

Hang Your Ice Card Out Early

Every customer of this Company has been provided, or will be provided, with an Ice Card. That Ice Card is a mutual friend. When you hang out your Ice Card it is a signal to the driver that he is to leave you some ice. The card also tells him how much ice you want.

It is a great time saver for you and for us. Hang out your card and you don't have to be constantly on the "look out" for the wagon. You can go serenely about your affairs. Your know the driver will see the Card, and serve you.

So please, everybody, hang out your ice cards. Then you and everybody in your neighborhood will get your ice on time every day.

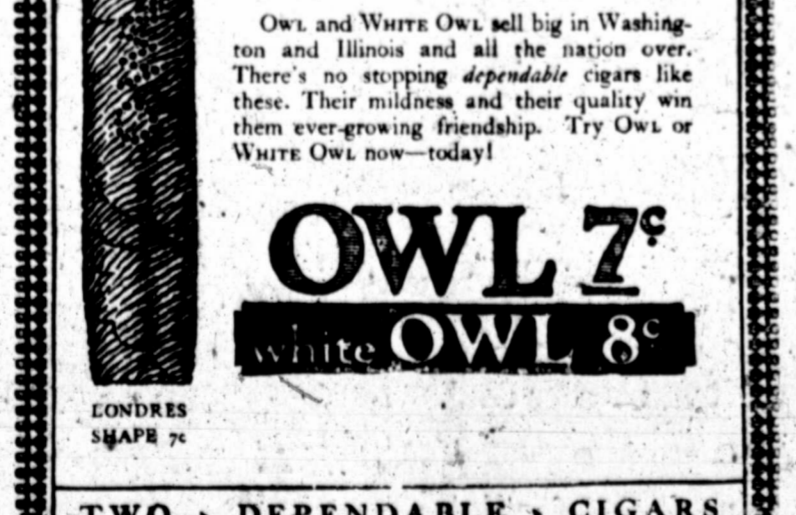

After the wagon has left, please take down your Ice Card. That too, is important. Otherwise the wagon may come around again; as it frequently does, and the driver may try to give you a second helping of ice, which will annoy you and prove a useless waste of time both for you and for him.

Yes, the Ice Card is our mutual friend. If you will hang out your card early and promptly take it in as soon as you have been served, it will be a great convenience for you, for the folks down the street and for us. Thank you.

MEXICAN COWBOY IS GRATEFUL FOR TERM IN THE PENITENTIARY

LAREDO, TEX., April 7.—Five years ago Ernesto Lanfranco, a young Mexican cowboy, was convicted of the killing of a woman and sentenced to a term in the penitentiary at Huntsville. Now he has reached the conclusion that it was a very good thing for him. Several days ago District Attorney John A. Valls received the following letter from Lanfranco: "Honorable Sir: It is very satisfactory to me to write these lines which are to explain my gratitude. I address your worthy self because you are one of those who merit thanks. I am grateful to those who represent the laws of the town of Laredo. From that town I was sent to this institution that I might reform, that I might receive lessons which should improve me. I came to receive the lesson which every vagabond should receive. Although my lessons are not yet concluded, still with those already learned I believe myself to be somewhat improved. With sincerity I declare that I have received a benefit and that, far from hating the worthy persons there who sent me, I am deeply grateful to them, very grateful. Gentlemen I lost the last words which my father should have given me 15th hour of his death; I did not receive his benediction. My worthy mother became worse off because of the lack of my father and my personal absence; but all this does not inspire hate in me; I repeat, I am grateful for the great benefits which I have received and still continue to receive. My great desire is that in the future I may have an opportunity to manifest to the society of the town of Laredo my gratitude. I offer your worthy self my most sincere thanks and remain, Yours truly, ERNESTO LANFRANCO."

CONDITION IN AUSTRIA IN A CHAOTIC STATE

By Associated Press. BUDAPEST, Monday, March 21.—The workers' freedom continues with automobile rides, cheap baths and cheap meals, so long as the meager supplies of reserve food lasts. Meatless days were instituted a fortnight ago, but the order has ceased to be enforced. Large amounts of money are tied up in the banks, and the existing supplies of currency will be exhausted shortly by the payment of the wages of the workmen, who no longer work.

The communists may print more paper money from Vienna presses, but there are no presses in Budapest for this purpose.

COFFEE THE STAFF OF LIFE

DURING the hacking struggle—the French found Coffee the most sustaining stimulus food. IT WAS the "staff of life" in the trenches, and the whole West Front where the Allies performed such immortal deeds to have Freedom and Civilization. Shells, poison, and Coffee saved Verdun. COFFEE is winning its way through the world as the benevolent autocrat of the breakfast table.

TO NOURISH, sustain, uphold the zest of life, the fighting edge, nothing approaches this favorite beverage, of the World's Greatest Brain Workers, from Napoleon, Balzac, Zola, to Joffre and Foch. AS COFFEE comes in Alcohol goes out. IT IS THE cheapest food product—at little over a cent a cup. THE EVER increasing demand causes great improvement in culture and blends. The Coffee of tomorrow will be real ambrosia. FRANCE is shaped like a Coffee pot and saved the World. It is a Symbol.
