COGITATIONS and APHORISMS of Jodok

In order that my readers may have at least one thing to be thankful for this Thanksgiving season, I am going to make my effusions this week quite abbreviated, contracted, short, terse and of slight duration.

Just a few things that caught my ears in the way of chance remarks lead me to suppose that the 1942 political pot of Parmer County is beginning to simmer, and an occasional jet of steam escapes from some small fissure between the "pot" and the lid.

So far as I can discover and judging the future by the past, there will be little opposition in the race for any of the county offices, as most of our county officials are serving only their first or second term, and according to custom still have from ten to fifteen more terms due them; and the other officials have time and again proved themselves undefeatable.

So far as I am personally concerned it will be all right with me if they continue to hold their respective offices as a life-time tenure; for as sure as goose grease is slick, I do not want any of these offices; and since I consider these officials to be my friends, just why should I choose to suppose either of them for the sake of some other friend?

But, howsoever, nevertheless, moreover, notwithstanding, the pot simmereth. It serves to add pith and prestige to the race for those who do so enter.

Then there is something else that comes to my ears on the breeze as I stand and shiver on the street corner, and that is pertaining to the school election, which is dated for some time in April.

And that I understand that there is likely to be an innovation in the election of school trustees because there will likely be some lady candidates on the ticket.

However, this would not really be an innovation so far as the Friona schools are concerned, since it has not been so many years since ladies on the school board were the rule rather than the exception. And having served on such a board for two terms I am able to state that there were never any more efficient school officials than those ladies proved themselves to be.

They were just as careful as to financial economy of the school's affairs as the male members could care to be, while at the same time they were if anything more careful that the school have the best and cleanest of everything that the district could afford. Especially were they careful as to hiring teachers; they were careful that none but the most efficient teachers and those unimpeachable character be employed. I am for a representation of ladies on our school board.

New Deadline Date Set For News Items Submitted To Star

To avoid any misunderstanding the Star is this week announcing Wednesday at 2 o'clock as the deadline for submission of news stories at the Star office.

In most instances it is possible to get news in by that time, and if all club reporters or any persons who are kind enough to submit news items, will just remember the new deadline date, coverage on all local news can be greatly improved.

The Star wants your stories and will make every effort to cooperate with you in getting them in the paper, but it is impossible to get them in after 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

New District Agent

Pictured above is Miss Kate Adele Hill, who made her first official visit to Parmer County last Saturday to attend the county-wide achievement program of the Home Demonstration Clubs.

Miss Hill, District Agent in charge of Extension work, states that she is delighted with progress being made by home demonstration clubs and 4-H clubs in Parmer County.

The new District Agent has been in charge of the Extension work in District 5, in Northwestern Texas, for the past 4 years.

Friona Couple In Dalhart For Legion Meeting

Mr. and Mrs. Foister Rector were among the 250 delegates who were in Dalhart last week end for the convention of the 18th District of Texas and the Texas-Oklahoma-Kansas Panhandle-Plains Association of the American Legion and Auxiliary. Both took an active part in the two-day meeting.

The Legion resolutions, adopted in a joint session of Legionnaires, endorsed Charley Maisell of Phillips for commander of the Department of Texas next year and pledged for the 18th district to work for his election. He is immediate past fifth division commander.

Impressiveness marked the memorial ceremony on Sunday afternoon, Virginia Ann Gibney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Gibney, opened the ceremony by placing a beautiful wreath on an easel near the speaker's stand. Flanking her as candle bearers were Alta Mae Burkhead, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Weaver, Dalhart, and Mary Pearl Johnson, daughter of District Commander and Mrs. J. M. Johnson of Canadian. Mrs. Gibney is president of the Dalhart auxiliary. Lewis Goodrich, Shamrock, post commander paid a short but impressive tribute to the honored soldier dead. Flake George, Shamrock, 18th district chef de gare of the 40 & 3, responded with "Echo of Flanders Field" which included the poem "In Flanders Field."

Safflower May Be New Crop For Area

On display at the Santa Fe Grain Co., this week were safflower seeds grown on the farm of L. R. Talley near Pleasant Hill, N. M.

A new crop for this territory the seeds produce a valuable oil used in making linoleum and other materials.

According to Mrs. O. L. Cranfill, the plant grows to a height of 18 to 24 inches and the stems are covered with short, short spines. The safflower plant is supposed to grow readily in a semiarid region.

Haile Hardware Has Attractive Window

If the city of Friona had been offering a prize this week for the most beautiful show window in town that prize would most assuredly have gone to the S. H. Haile Hardware store.

Mrs. Haile has beautifully arranged flowers and plants in the window and the greenery and color make an attractive background in the south show window.

Malone To Have Creamery And Produce House

Cecil Malone, of Santa Fe, N. M., but formerly of Friona, was here Saturday visiting his parents and other relatives and friends, and while here stated that he had made arrangements to open a produce house in Friona on Main Street in the building formerly occupied by "Brookside's" Filling Station.

Mr. Malone will buy cream, eggs, poultry and hides, and will carry a stock of mill feeds and balanced rations for laying hens and milk cows.

In connection with his produce business, he will also operate a creamery, in which he will convert a large portion of the cream into high quality butter.

Mr. Malone does not contemplate moving his family again to Friona, and the new business which will be open in about two weeks will be under the management of Roy Vaughn.

Mr. Malone formerly operated the Farmer's Produce in Friona.

Star Has Real Subscription Rate Bargain

The Friona Star for one year and 50 attractive Christmas cards, with the sender's name printed on each card, at a bargain price of $1.49 is the offer which goes into effect this week.

The rate is good on new or renewal subscriptions and the publishers of the Star announce that the paper next year will feature many improvements which they hope will make it serve the people of the Friona territory better than ever before. With more pictures and more local news, the Star itself will be a bargain at the price offered, and the Christmas cards are good quality with the name imprinted on each one.

Because of rising costs in the publishing business, it will probably not be possible to make such an attractive subscription deal in the future, and many citizens of the territory are expected to take advantage of the special offer.

Complete details of the offer will be found in a full page advertisement on another page of this paper.

Bovina Main Street in 1910

The above picture shows a scene on the main street of Bovina, Texas, taken in 1910, but the present view of that same street of today is so greatly changed, that only the oldest pioneers of the locality can recognize the earlier scene.

Two Soldiers Write To Star This Week

The Star is in receipt of two letters from Friona boys who are now in the Army, and is printing the letters to give friends of the young men some news of their activities.

3004th School Squadron, Keesler Field, Miss., Nov. 12, 1941.
The Friona Star, Friona, Texas.
Dear Mr. White:

Until further notice you may send me the Friona Star at the above address. I certainly appreciate your courtesy in this matter, and the Star will be the next best thing to a letter from home. Keesler Field is a new army air base, still under construction, located near the town of Biloxi, Miss. It is situated on a peninsula that juts out into the Gulf of Mexico, so we have the Gulf on our south and a bay (Peck Bay) on our north, and we are connected with the mainland on the west. We are approximately 90 miles down the gulf east of New Orleans, La., and about 65 miles from Mobile, Ala. We are about 125 miles from the big naval air base at Pensacola, Fla. It is an interesting sight to see the fishing boats come in from the gulf and unload their huge cargoes of shrimp for the canneries located at Biloxi. There is also an oyster cannery located here. Again I wish to thank you for the Friona Star, and extend best wishes to you and all the folks at home.

Yours sincerely,
Loyde Brewer.

Bovina is one of the three thriving and up-to-date towns of Parmer county, and is the oldest, having been founded about the year 1900. It was for many years the only trading and shipping point in this part of the Panhandle.

Pioneer Shipping Point

Its first general store was in a dugout, and George McLean, of Friona, operated the first hotel. At that time there were so many cattle and sheep shipped from Bovina that the railroad could not supply enough cars to accommodate the business; and stock men, after driving their herds overland 50 or 100 miles, would sometime have to hold their sheep or cattle at Bovina for as long as three weeks before shipping them.

At one time Bovina was the largest shipping point for live cattle in the world. But as other towns sprang up and other shipping points were established, this distinction gradually faded away.

A Trading Center

Farmers May Sign Defense Plan Sheets In Friona Saturday

For the benefit of those farmers who did not sign their Defense Plan Sheets, we will be in Friona all day Saturday, Nov. 22, for the purpose of again giving farmers a chance to sign these sheets.

We will be at the Reeve Chevrolet Co., from 10:00 a. m. until 5:00 p. m.

Fall Of Water Tank Damages Transformers

The collapse of a large water supply tank at the Blackwell Hardware and Furniture Store Tuesday night caused severe damage to a transformer bank on the lines of the Texas-New Mexico Utilities Co. and shattered some boards on the rear wall of the Rockwell Bros. Lumber shed.

The tank and tower, one of the landmarks of Friona, was constructed by Logan Simpson and Fred White some time in the early twenties. It had been leaning to one side for several weeks but the owner had not considered its situation dangerous.

Utilities company linemen spent most of Tuesday night repairing the transformer bank and restoring electric service.

The Blackwell tank, being the second largest in Friona, had often been used as an emergency supply when the city water was temporarily cut off.

Cunningham and McElroy Attend District Meet

Miss Elsie Cunningham, Home Demonstration Agent and Lee H. McElroy, Agricultural Agent with the County Extension Service, attended a district meeting of Extension workers Tuesday at Lubbock. Chief speaker at the meeting was Louis Franke, Extension Editor, who discussed news-writing. Other matters taken up were annual reports and plans for defense work.

Kids, It's Time to Write Letters to Santa Claus

It's just about a month until Christmas and special information from Santa Claus indicates that he still likes to get letters from his little friends.

Again this year the Star is going to publish Santa Claus letters, so get your letters written early and mail them to Santa Claus. The Friona Star Friona, Texas, and we will see that they are sent on the quickest air-mail route to the North Pole.

Inside information has it that the white-whiskered old gentleman has not yet been called on to convert his toy factory into some kind of defense plant, and that it will be Christmas as usual with Santa Claus, so write your letters now.

Weather Is Fair This Week

Weather at Friona this week has been fair and dry, with mild temperatures. A slight shower fell Tuesday night, but did not greatly hinder the row crop harvest which is now in full swing throughout the territory.

Garrison Speaks On USDA Defense At Lion Meeting

Kelts Garrison, secretary of the Parmer County AAA, was the speaker at a special meeting of the Friona Lions Club on Monday, when he explained plans for the farm defense program. Garrison explained the main aim of the defense program as far as agriculture is concerned is calculated to increase the health of our own people by providing a better diet for them, and at the same time to produce enough so that there will be a surplus to help feed England and Russia.

Miss June Maurer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Maurer, spoke briefly on the need for local cooperation in the annual Red Cross roll call, pointing out the splendid work being done by that organization in the present emergency.

Guests at the meeting were J. T. Gee, F. W. Reeve, Guy Bennett and John W. White.

Rev. Joe Wilson Returns From Dallas Convention

Rev. Joe Wilson, pastor of the local Baptist Church, returned home the latter part of last week from Dallas, where he had attended the State Baptist Convention.

Mr. Wilson states that he enjoyed a thoroughly worthwhile program.

Farmer John SEES THINGS

Unwhipped Dust Bowl heroes won't budge. They have refused to re-settle on subsistence farms by the Resettlement Administration. They are solving their own agriculture problems and are preparing for the next drought by conserving moisture that they know will be needed. They are optimistic. They know their country by experience. They believe in and appreciate the facts of their country. It always rains sometimes and politicians' promises are fickle.

It is not a change of seasons that these successful Panhandle farmers are gambling on, neither is it a government check. The wet season is, ordinarily considered a good one. But these "dry land" farmers have faith that they can turn the average season into a good one.

There are 211 counties in this great stretch of the "High West" that is entirely dependent upon dry farming and stock raising. These counties are exclusive of the localities which produce oil and have access to irrigation water. This story is west, in which, the last census says, there are 1,651,658 people living.

This population doubtless seems impossible to eastern people, who recall the accounts of gunmen employed by a dramatic administration, shooting thirt-crazed cattle; Easterners have also read how 68 black blizzards in a single season engulfed farm homes with withering dust storms, and conjured up eddying devils of such life-producing top soil into the clouds and sifting it down again at the Atlantic seaboard. The "Grapes of Wrath" through the best seller and the picture show, aroused nation-wide sympathy for the whole God-forsaken country. The continuous propaganda, and the recital of tragedies over the past eight years have established a belief in the minds of many people that this plains country is just about valueless. The strong Credit Administration land-expert engineers, are doubtless victims of this same kind of information.

But on the other side of this defeatist picture is that hardy pioneer who knows the country and believes what he knows. Without asking aid from anyone, he began, years ago, conserving moisture. He made one good stalk of corn take the place of two or three poor ones. He contour-cultivated, in order to save the run-off water. But his outstanding success was made through what is called, "summer fallowing."

That practice is simply a method of using two year's rainfall for one crop. Science comes along and justifies the practice. They say, that since a large part of this soil is, essentially, a powdery dust, formed by prehistoric storms and winds. It absorbs water like a sponge but will not readily give up this water until the time plant rootlets penetrate the soil and drink up this stored moisture. But better evidence, even than that of the scientists—the practical farmer has witnessed a wonderful transformation in the texture of land, which has had a good job of summer fallowing applied to it. They say it is "live" land. It works, like brown sugar poured on a table in the sunshine.

But "proof of the pudding" is that most all farmers who have practiced summer fallowing, show good average wheat yields. We have an account of one farmer, who, for the past eight years, had an average of eighteen and eight-tenths bushels of wheat per acre. That is more than six bushels above the nation's average for the same years. We have another farmer, who claims a bumper crop on all summer fallowed land, except one year when the crop was lost on account of rust.

During the summer of 1941 abundant rains routed dust from the high plains. Even the poorly tilled lands were productive. Perhaps the wet part of the weather cycle has arrived. This must not be taken to mean that from now on rains will fall. On the contrary the past tells us that more dry seasons will come.

Nature is cruel to the weak. But nowhere is she more heartless than on the high plains where only the fittest survive. Of three well known plainsmen.

THANKSGIVING

Thanksgiving is a pioneer holiday. It took a tough, pioneer people to have the nerve to celebrate when faced with the conditions which confronted the Pilgrim Fathers in 1621.

Again, in 1941 there are timid souls—just as there were 320 years ago—who ask "What have we got to be thankful for?"

Well first, we can be thankful that there are not very many people who ask that question, despite the fact that the world is undoubtedly in a mess. And then we can say, along with a tune of a few years back, "Thanks for the Memory" in the memory of a great people who had courage and initiative to build out of a raw wilderness the best country and freest country in the world.

And we can be thankful for the present—when we have an opportunity to work for a unity which will insure our place as a great nation.

And finally we can be thankful for the future—the part that our country and every person in it—may have in building for that "brave new world" which a hopeful people are always searching for.

ATTACK ON AMERICA

BY GENERAL ARED WHITE
W. H. U. Release

THE STORY SO FAR: More than 200,000 foreign troops which had been secretly transported to Mexico, suddenly invaded the United States. Intelligence Officer Benning had discovered their plans while a spy in Mexico City where he had gained the confidence of Fincke.

Benning waited for several moments to regain complete composure and went over to a seat at the Fincke table. The Austrian looked up and brightened slightly. "Thought I might find you here, Bromlitz," Fincke muttered. "I want to ask you a few questions if I can talk to you as one friend to another."

"I suppose, Major," Benning said with a mischievous grin, "you are to be addressed as lieutenant colonel hereafter."

"Fincke glared and demanded: 'I'm in no mood for being kidded, Bromlitz. Or did you know Boggio gave me the double-cross?'"

"I've been busy with my own affairs," Benning answered. "For all I know Boggio is back in Mexico City."

"Not yet, but he'll be flying south tomorrow while here I am stuck right in Washington for three days more until the big boat sails. What's eating at me now is I may get double-crossed out of the cruise if Boggio hops up to New York to see Bravot."

Benning said crisply, "All right, Fincke, out with your grievance."

Fincke said at once, leaning across the table: "Boggio was up here in Washington on another job when he horned in on mine. Said he wanted to check my plans from the air corps angle. What does he do but grab off all my calculations for lights, steals my triangles, and pilfers all my technical data, then he sent me out of town at the last minute on a goose chase so he can put my plans across himself! That gives him all the glory for the White House, and now off to Mexico he goes to get a general's crescent."

"I've got it figured out, Bromlitz, you're in on the big show, aren't you?"

"There are some things we're not expected to talk about too much, Fincke," Benning shot back. "Why did you ask me that question?"

"I thought maybe if you are going aboard we might work together, Bromlitz."

"If you're sincere in that, let's make sure we're talking about the same thing. When do you sail and from where?"

The Van Hasek spy weighed this dangerous question.

"I see no harm in saying that, Bromlitz," he responded shortly. "Not so long as we don't say where we're going or what for, which mustn't be repeated to anybody under any circumstances. Does it mean anything if I tell you Pier Twenty at four Wednesday afternoon?"

Several tables distant, directly behind Fincke, Benning had observed Lieutenant Jones. The lieutenant's eyes had let Benning know that he had a matter of urgency to discuss. Benning lit a cigarette and got up.

"Suppose we meet here on Wednesday morning at eight o'clock," Benning proposed. "We might just as well travel together to the pier."

"Right," Fincke agreed. "Glad to tie up with somebody I can trust."

When Benning passed out of the hotel into the street, Lieutenant Jones promptly joined him. Jones had his private car at the curb and ushered Benning inside.

"Sorry I couldn't get to you sooner, sir," Jones reported. "Your man Boggio came over to the Pujol apartment at six-thirty. The girl friend was with him. Outside they were joined by a man who apparently is Boggio's bodyguard. I followed them to the depot where Boggio and the other fellow took the seven o'clock train for New York. The girl returned home. I didn't have a chance to get word to you sooner, Captain."

Benning studied his watch and made a rapid calculation. The hour was a few minutes short of eight o'clock.

"Drive me at once to the airport, Jones," he directed. "I've still time to meet Boggio when he steps off his train at the Pennsylvania Station. Please let Colonel Flagwill know I've developed a very interesting trail."

CHAPTER XIII

Lieutenant Jones turned on his radio as the car got in motion toward the airport. General Hague was just coming on the air, introduced to the nation by the Secretary of War. Without preliminary the Chief of Staff began speaking, his voice clear and calm.

"I will speak very frankly to the country," he said. "I will give you general facts it is important for you to understand. First, our inability to prevent invasion is no fault of the Army. The Army is your army, limited by the through legislation and appropriations. The fact that it is scattered in small posts throughout the country, instead of being concentrated in combat divisions for proper training, is no fault of the War Department."

"I speak without bitterness or blame, but it is important that you face the future with belief in your potential armed forces."

INSTALLMENT TWELVE

and Bravot, two enemy officers, but his warning had gone unheeded. The President was killed when Washington was bombed. General Brill, commander of the U. S. army in Texas, was opposed by greatly superior forces led by Van Hasek. In spite of Brill's desperate

"Briefly, our armies must be assembled slowly from scattered garrisons. Initially our actions must be limited by immediate lack of ammunition reserves and armaments. If we cannot supply adequate anti-aircraft protection to our important cities, deeply as our hearts bleed for them, it is because we have insufficient anti-aircraft."

"But I want to say to you what I said the other night to my associates of the staff. Whatever violence lies ahead, this country will master it. Let our foes mark these words. The United States is unconquerable. Its resources and manpower, its determination and courage, are equal to any conceivable emergency. Whatever reverses may lie ahead of us in the immediate future will only temper our spirit of resistance. Inevitably that day will come when the foes of the United States will meet the mighty vengeance of our massed valor!"

Benning, as they reached the airport, instructed: "Get G-2 on the telephone at Governor's Island at once, Jones. I'd like to have two good intelligence men from First Corps Area meet me at the Pennsylvania Hotel. One of them to be Lieutenant Crane, if he's available."

On disembarking at Newark shortly before ten o'clock, Benning took a cab into the city and drove directly to the Pennsylvania Hotel where he found Lieutenant Crane waiting. Crane, a short, chunky young off-resistance, Van Hasek's troops pushed relentlessly forward. Returning to Washington, Benning met Fincke who had come there to do espionage work but continued to pose as a friend. A week later he saw Fincke enter a restaurant. Now continue with the story.

"You may be all right, but we're playing no chance," he decided. "What you say to a little jump up to the forty-fifth with me just to make sure?"

"If you insist," Benning said indifferently. Benning, as they returned across the street, did not risk looking about for Crane and the sergeant. With expert eye he watched his own chance of attack. His prompt capitulation had the effect of throwing his captor slightly off guard. As they passed the entrance of a gown shop, Benning seized the fellow's gun arm and drove him into the dark entrance of the shop. The impact crashed the heavy glass door, the two went sprawling inside through a jagged aperture of broken glass.

The Boggio henchman gave a cry of pain as the glass tore into his body, but floundered into battle with a surge of frantic strength that shook his arm free of Benning's grip. Benning regained his hold before the spy could bring a pistol into play. They had staggered to their feet in the uncertain battle over the weapon when Crane and Adams dashed up. A sharp tap of the sergeant's service pistol promptly ended the fray. "Keep a watch outside, Adams," Benning instructed.

With Crane's help he bound the prisoner's arms. A watchman in tan uniform, attracted by the crash of glass, rushed in with drawn pistol. Crane promptly dismissed the watchman on the mission of notifying the owner of the shop of his broken door.

They were getting their prisoner, still in a daze, on his feet when Sergeant Adams hurried in from the street.

"Your Italian just came down, sir," he reported to Benning. "He's now getting into a cab."

"Follow him!" Benning promptly instructed. "Follow him as long as he stays in New York. If he attempts to leave the city, arrest him. You don't need to be gentle if he gives you any trouble, Sergeant."

"Yes!" said Adams. Benning instructed Crane to take the prisoner to Governor's Island, there to be held in close arrest. Crane was next to report to Benning at the near-by McAlpin. Benning walked to that hotel and called Colonel Flagwill on the telephone. Flagwill was tied up in conference with General Hague, and an hour passed before he responded on the telephone. Benning reported events in pertinent detail.

There were several moments of silence as Flagwill's mind searched through Benning's disclosures, then he burst into an excited enthusiasm. "That sounds like the real quill, Benning—sounds like the trail we've all been looking for!"

"I'll instruct Colonel Wallace at once to give you whatever you want from corps area, Benning. Have you decided on any plan of attack?"

"Tonight, sir," Benning replied. "I thought I'd keep entirely away from the Empire State. In the morning I intend to go up to the forty-fifth alone and give the Andes Gold Mining and Milling Company the once-over."

Benning was having a late breakfast at his hotel the next morning, after a busy night plotting moves, when Crane came in, his face glum and heavy with tragedy.

"Your Italian got Adams last night," Crane said at once, sinking heavily into a chair at Benning's table.

"Adams, when we brought him to hospital, told me Boggio got suspicious when his henchman failed to join him outside Empire State. He had the cab driver drive under the Hudson and headed to the Newark airport. Adams followed closely. Boggio slipped behind a hangar to observe his rear, and as Adams came up, shot without warning. He had a plane waiting at the airport which took off immediately."

"Sorry," Benning said glumly.

"We put out a warning at once," Crane went on. "Our intercepts picked up the engines of the plane over Lexington at two this morning. It was traveling high and fast and must have been Boggio's plane. Our estimates give small hope that pursuit aviation can pick him up in Texas, but we've put heat on the air corps to make a try."

The public radio in the dining room was buzzing with war bulletins. Van Hasek's attack had jumped off at daybreak, but at eight o'clock had made small progress against the Second Division. Europe was in a turmoil, expecting war to break at any hour in France and Belgium. Unconfirmed reports came through London of an immense troop concentration on the Chinese coast, another report of a Coalition fleet mobilizing in Mediterranean waters.

Enemy bombing had centered on only two cities last night—Galveston and San Antonio. Fort Sam Houston had been heavily pounded and many of its installations destroyed. Hastily formed defenses seemed important.

The Boggio henchman gave a cry of pain.

Steeds for Manhattan Mounties

Every year the New York police department buys 23 horses to replace that number retired from the four hundred that make up the "cop cavalry." These horses are as nearly alike as the buyer can get them. Age 4 to 8 years; geldings of between 1,000 and 1,250 pounds and between 15.3 and 16.2 hands high. Color must be bay (don't ask why). These photos, made at the remount depot, show principal stages in the training of police horses.

Sergeant Gannon and an assistant are putting the rookie horse through a lesson in control here.

Taking a high barrier all on his own. Riderless horses are put through their paces to accustom them to obey the spoken command.

Sacks of sawdust represent people in a mob. At left a rookie horse is being faced into a "mob." When trained this horse will know how to nudge people out of the way without hurting them. Right: The shrill thrill of a police whistle gives the ordinary horse a turn, but the police horse is taught to disregard it.

Ready for Four Horsemen, this quartet of rookie police horses is near the end of their training grind.

Removing Dents in Wood.
WHEN a table top is dented by the dropping of a candlestick or other heavy object, the dent can usually be taken out by a process that will swell the fibers of the wood. For this the finish around the dent should be scraped off so that bare wood is exposed. The dent is then covered by a cloth dampened with warm water, which is pressed by a warm—not hot—iron. The steam produced will be absorbed by the dented fibers, which will then swell, and return to their original positions. The refinishing of the table top will be required, at least in that part around the dent. Should the wood be actually gouged, so that some of it is removed, the hole that is left can be filled with stick shellac. This can be had in all shades of wood colors at many large paint stores and from dealers in cabinet makers' supplies. An old screwdriver is heated to a point at which it will melt the shellac, and a little of the shellac carried by the blade is then transferred to the hole. If the correct amount of shellac is picked up, the surface can be smoothed by the warm blade; if too much is used, the surface can be cut off with a razor blade. A job of this sort can be so neatly done that the patch will hardly be noticed.

Thermometer Setting
One of my correspondents describes a very interesting experience with a thermostat. He could not understand why the house felt so cold with the thermostat thermometer standing at 70 degrees. After a time he checked with a second thermometer, and found that the thermostat was registering two degrees higher. His service man was called in and adjusted the thermometer by lowering the glass tube, so that it registered correctly. He says that home owners might be interested to know that thermostat thermometers are often so made that they can slide in relation to the scale, to change the reading, should it be out of adjustment. I am sure that the above information will be found useful. An experiment with thermometers that is usually startling to those who have not tried it is to take the temperature of the air at floor and ceiling at a time when the wall thermometer is standing at its normal 70. Only too often the low temperature on the floor is the unsuspected cause of chilliness.

Avoiding Greasy Hands.
When a dirty or greasy job is to be done, time will be saved by first coating the hands with something that will keep the dirt from working into the pores of the skin. One good material for this can be made by dissolving 2 ounces of gum arabic in 1 pint of water, to be mixed with 1/2 pint of soap chips, dissolved in 1 pint of water. The liquid is heated in a double boiler, and 1 ounce of lanolin is then added. The result is a soft paste, to be rubbed well into the skin, and especially under and around the finger nails. On finishing the job, the hands can be washed with clear water, or with soap and water. It is worth while to make up a quantity of the compound, to be stored in tin cans or glass jars until needed.

Smoky Furnace.
Question: A piped hot air furnace admits soot to the rooms, in spite of a recent cleaning. What treatment should it have?
Answer: Smoke and soot are escaping from the firebox into the air passages through open joints between the furnace sections, due to the giving out of the cement with which they were packed. The best remedy is to renew the cement, which should be of a variety made for the purpose and resistance to heat. Even with the best cement, the job usually gives out in five years or so.

'Woody' Smell.
Question: About a month ago I was given a bedroom suite of maple furniture. I do not like to put any of my things in the chest of drawers because of the very strong "woody" smell inside. Airing does not seem to help. Is there any way to get rid of this odor?
Answer: "Paradi" (moth) crystals make an excellent deodorizer. Put a generous amount of the crystals in each drawer and allow to remain for several days.

Faded Veneer.
Question: A damp towel was carelessly left on brown walnut veneer, and made a grayish cloudy stain. How can this be restored?
Answer: The damage is probably only in the finish. Try the effect of scraping it off with a razor blade. If this also removes the color apply successive thin coats of oil stain of the proper shade; get a color sample card at a paint store. Finish with a thin coat of varnish.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery. Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination. There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor.

New Cotton Mkt. Found in Use As Insulation

College Station.— There is a new, almost untouched market for cotton that will use around 750,000 bales a year if only 10 per cent of the potential market is captured.

The field is that of insulation. Use of cotton for this purpose is apparently past the experimental stage.

Most cotton insulation to date has been used in home construction. Tests, however, show that the lightness and cohesiveness of cotton insulation make it a natural where settling by vibration is a factor.

For this reason manufacturers are turning to cotton insulation in refrigerator cars and trucks and in household refrigerators. The product is now being tested for use in marine and airplane construction.

Cotton insulation material is impregnated with a fire resistant agent and houses insulated against cold, heat, and sound with cotton treated in this manner are actually more fire-proof than non-insulated structures.

These comments come from H. H. Williamson, director of the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service. He pointed out that interest in the use of cotton as insulation had been stimulated by the U. S. Department of Agriculture's search for new uses for cotton.

The Department recently announced that its Surplus Marketing Administration would provide payments of nine cents per pound to holders of approved applications who manufacture and sell insulation made of cotton, cotton card strips, and cotton comber waste. This payment takes the place of industry's "introductory offer." The 1941-1942 payments are limited to the equivalent of 27,600 bales of cotton.

Summerfield

MRS. JIM CLARK

This is lovely weather! No rain in about two weeks. Binders and combines have been going in full swing this week. In a few more days very little feed will be left uncut.

Sunday School attendance climbed to 70 Sunday as the weather continued to be pretty. Several visitors were present for both Sunday School and church services.

School will be dismissed here Thursday and Friday for Thanksgiving.

Mr. and Mrs. Forbus Blakemore and Mrs. A. F. Blakemore went to Amarillo, Tuesday. The Forbus Blakemores returned home Wednesday but Mrs. A. F. Blakemore remained for a longer visit with her two daughters, Mrs. G. W. Mills and Miss Eva Blakemore. Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Noland entertained the Homemakers Sunday School Class at their home Thursday evening. Candy making, corn-popping and games of 42 furnished entertainment. Attending the party were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Streun, Rev. and Mrs. Marcus Rexrode, Mr. and Mrs. Otho Noland, Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Sumner, and Lawrence Kendall.

Mrs. R. A. Fullwood and son, Ralph, Mrs. Rayford Story of Houston and Mrs. D. C. Walser and children visited recently in Friona with friends.

Mrs. Guy Hamm and daughters, Misses Katherine and Helen Ray of Hereford, visited Friday with Mrs. Jack Streun and boys.

Mrs. S. L. Walser of Hereford visited her sister, Mrs. C. R. Walser Friday afternoon.

W. M. U. met at the church Wednesday afternoon for a business meeting and a missionary program. Mrs. D. C. Walser is in charge of the program on Africa. Mrs. O. B. Sumner and Mrs. L. L. Cannon, Mrs. B. E. Roberson, Mrs. O. B. Sumner, Mrs. Guy Walser, Mrs. Jim Clark, Mrs. Ky Lawrence, Mrs. J. B. Noland, Mrs. D. C. Walser, and Mrs. Marcus Rexrode.

A committee consisting of Mrs. B. E. Roberson, Mrs. L. L. Cannon, Mrs. O. B. Sumner, Mrs. D. C. Walser and Mrs. Jim Clark, met at the home of Mrs. Cannon Thursday afternoon and worked on W. M. U. yearbook for 1942.

Sunbeams met with their counselor, Mrs. C. R. Walser, Thursday afternoon. They were Bobby Rexrode, Bobby and Donald Walser, Gloria and Coral Walser, and Richie Clark.

On Wednesday, November 15, the W. M. U. will meet at the church at 10 o'clock for an all day meeting to study the book "These Things Remain," by Ella Broadus Robertson. The ladies are to bring a covered dish.

Luther Foust who has been visiting his parents near Waco returned this week. He is working for his uncle, Ben Wilhelm.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Curry were in Amarillo, Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Belford Gentry of Chickasha, Okla., announce the birth of a baby daughter, who has been named Colleen. Mrs. Gentry is the former Mildred Mehorg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cleo Mehorg, former residents of this community.

NEWS IN THE WORLD OF RELIGION BY W. W. REID

Roused by what seems to be a juvenile crime wave in Harlem, the vast Negro section of New York City where there are said to be "more Negroes than in any other city in the world", church leaders, police officials, social workers, business groups, and park department officials have been in a number of conferences trying to find the underlying causes. There is general agreement that poor housing—large families often being crowded into one and two rooms in slum conditions—and inadequate recreational and play facilities are the cause. Various agencies are planning a program to remedy this in the near future; this will include better housing, more parks, and greater use of the churches and schools for recreation. "The major problem here is not crime," says Dr. Robert W. Searle of the Greater New York Federation of Churches. "It lies much deeper. The present wave is the result of the failure of the dominant majority to sustain the elemental rights of a more or less helpless minority in a nation that is girding itself to make the world safe for democracy and for social minorities everywhere."

One of the old "saints" of the Presbyterian Church in Chosen (Korea) has recently passed away, leaving to her credit the establishment of twenty new churches in the last fifteen years—the years after her "retirement" as a Bible woman and worker among Korean women. She was Oh Chan II—an almost illiterate woman, converted to Christianity at the age of 35. For twenty-five years she traveled among the villages telling the Gospel message, though she knew little besides the stories and the spirit of the Bible. The most productive work of her forty years of Christian service came after retirement, when she travelled through three counties, gathering small groups of believers, helping them raise funds and build small thatched churches, often helping in the actual construction with her own hands.

"The Lord has given me the special gift of making money. Now I want to give some of my wealth to further the work of the Lord." So said Georgia's millionaire lumberman, W. I. H. Pitts, of Waverly Hall, when he retired from business recently. So the bulk of his wealth was placed in a foundation for aiding small colleges serving small communities "close to the land." Mr. Pitts says that he made his money from the land and he wants its service to be for the betterment of the soil and those living close to it. Some of his wealth will also be used to serve a Negro church and Negro schools in recognition of the part that Negro laborers played in the accumulation of the fortune. During October and November, since his return to Japan from the United States, Dr. Toyohiko Kagawa, the Empire's outstanding Christian leader, has been holding a series of evangelistic services in Toyko, southern Japan, and in Formosa. Thousands of people are attending these meetings and hundreds are signing cards registering their purpose to accept the Christian way of life. Numbers of young people have also signed cards indicating their desire to dedicate their lives to some form of direct Christian service. In these meetings Dr. Kagawa has been speaking on such topics as: "Creation, Divine and Human", "Recreation, Divine and Human", "A Scientific Faith and Christ-Consciousness", "The Cross-Centered Faith", "New Life Through God."

When public school teachers in the crowded residential district of Columbus, Ga., cotton mill center, reported that some of their pupils were not getting enough to eat and that this was reflected in the quality of their school work, the Rosehill Methodist Church of Columbus decided to do something about it. The Rev. Norman C. Lobain, pastor, and Attorney Theodore McGee headed a committee that arranged to serve free, hot lunches each school day to more than one hundred children. Records show increase in their health and in their scholastic standing. Restaurant supplies, dishes and cutlery sufficient to serve the hundred youngsters were given by a local Jewish merchant who said, "These will not cost you anything if you are feeding hungry children."

One hundred twenty-five Japanese, most of them students in various colleges in New York City, will be the guests of 125 white and Negro church members from New York and vicinity at a dinner in the Marble Collegiate Church, New York, on November 28. The dinner will be prepared under the auspices of the Home Missions Council of North America.

Flu Epidemic Brings List of Precautions
Austin.— Fulfilling a prediction made several months ago by the State Department of Health, an epidemic of influenza in Texas is represented by the 1,392 cases reported for the week just ending, according to Dr. George W. Cox, State Health Officer. This total is 6 times greater than that shown for the same week in the preceding 7 years. "Neglecting proper treatment of influenza, or allowing the patient to be up too soon may have disastrous results," Dr. Cox warned, "since persons suffering from influenza are particularly susceptible to other infections."

Dr. Cox emphasized the importance of guarding against "flu"; drinking plenty of water, eating simple, nourishing foods, outdoor exercise, plenty of sleep in a well-ventilated room, and sensible dress according to the weather were stressed as best precautions. "Pneumonia, frequently resulting from influenza, is a very dangerous complication," Dr. Cox stated, and advised that a patient go to bed immediately upon the first appearance of a cold and place himself under competent medical care.

Notes of an Innocent Bystander:

The Story Tellers: The Satev-post is publishing so-called humorous stuff from Wodehouse, who wrote it between licks at Nazi boots. Humor that comes out of that form of environment doesn't make you laugh. It makes you shiver.

The Confession of the Week: H. Allen Smith in the Nov. Cosmopolitan: "And talk about your gossip. Why, we've raised gossip to a fine art in New York. We put it in the papers and pay the experts fabulous sums of money. And I love it. I've always loved gossip. So have you. Maybe you won't admit it. Maybe you'll say gossip is not polite, not noble. But don't try to tell me you stop your ears or run or hide in the cellar when someone begins whispering about the thing Joe Schwegle's wife did at Fred Phlebbey's party Saturday night."

Haw! Buddy Clarke of the Park Central's Coconut Grove relays the silly-dilly about the little boy who was run over by a steamroller while playing in the street. He was flattened like a pancake. A passerby picked him up and brought him to the child's mother on the third floor.

What is it? she yelled in response to his knock. "Your son," he replied, "he's been run over by a steamroller—he's all flattened out!"

Man About Town:

New York's Horatio Alger Jr.: Marvin Schenck, the talent scout, likes hamburgers. So the other day, while munching on one in a Sixth Avenue beanery, he noticed a youth who impressed him as the "most typical good-looking young American" he had ever seen.

Henry Youngman would have you believe that this happened in Berlin. A storm trooper carelessly stepped on the foot of one of Youngman's relatives trapped in Germany.

His pal took a sock at him, too. For which they were arrested. In court the judge asked the defendant why he hit the Nazi.

"Your friend had a reason," said the judge to the other fellow, "why did you hit this storm trooper?"

"I thought," was the retort, "it was being allowed again."

Jean Sahlon overheard a couple of songwriters on Broadway. "Let's go to Carnegie Hall," said one, "they're playing a Tchaikovsky piece nobody's swiped yet!"

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Edward C. Wayne

Stalin Sees Nazi Collapse Within Year As Hitler Challenges British Invasion; Japanese Get Warning From Churchill Against Involvement in War With U. S.

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

HITLER: Talks Boldly

Adolf Hitler exuding confidence with the passing of another of the anniversaries of the "beer cellar putsch," and having been congratulated on his excellent health and appearance, had made another address to his backers in which he defied the world.

CHURCHILL: And Roosevelt

As Hitler and Stalin were celebrating anniversaries, and each predicting the future with confidence, each from his own standpoint, Churchill hailed that "glorious warrior Stalin" told Britons that the entry of the U. S. naval vessels into the war left Britain no longer alone, and predicted that England, "once more masters of our own fate."

COSTLY: British Raid

The biggest British raid on Germany had been carried out with a terrific cost of 37 of the newest bombers, and an estimated 200 fliers.

STRIKES: And Threats

Despite the truce in the steel strike and the personal victory for President Roosevelt in the express strike, in which the men agreed to return to work at his request, there were many labor troubles looming.

COMMANDOS: New Shock Troops

The British Commandos (an old South African word meaning small, speedy bands of desperate troops) which for a long time had been reported to be carrying out successful raids on Italy and the occupied French and Norwegian coasts, are to be stressed and made larger in the future, the British had revealed.

PACIFIC: Threat Closer

The Clipper flight of special envoy Kurosu to the United States apparently to make a final effort to "clarify" the Japanese position on the Pacific brought only gloomy predictions in Washington as to the mission's probable outcome.

The ever-dubious picture of the Red front against the Nazis had begun to clarify itself somewhat, the general view being that the Russian armies were somewhat in jeopardy on the southern sector, though rapidly assuming the offensive in the north and central portions.

Kathleen Norris Says:

Help Middle-Aged Women Learn to Earn

(Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

An elderly woman, who is now rich because of a certain pickle she put on the market, took a cook's job at $3 a month seventeen years ago. At 43 she went humbly into a younger woman's household and experimented in canning and pickling.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

WHY doesn't someone open a school for middle-aged women? Women who want to earn money or who are forced by circumstances to support themselves, and have no idea how to go about it.

In any sizable city such a school probably would enroll 200 students on the first day. Classes would be in simple bookkeeping and budgeting, cooking, housekeeping, personal appearance and cleanliness, order, sewing, selling in shops, serving in tea rooms and beauty shops and dentists' offices and a score of other lines that would help women to become useful and self-supporting—and incidentally infinitely happier citizens.

Hard Test of Character.

But women of 40 and older, essaying real work for the first time, after 20 or more years of being their own mistresses and arranging their own hours, are not often ready to take jobs on terms equal to those girls get.

A Pickle Made Her Rich.

One woman, who is now rich because of a certain pickle she put on the market, took a cook's job at $3 a month 17 years ago. At 43 she went humbly into a younger woman's household, experimented in canning and pickling for the benefit of the family, sold a few jars of this and that to friends, found her market, and won success.

MISCELLANY:

Washington: Army high officers revealed that the 1,500,000 American men now in the army would eat 750 tons of turkey Thanksgiving day.

Berlin: It was reported that the Germans jailed a Roman Catholic priest who had been accused of offering prayers for Jews against whom the government had initiated a new and intensive campaign.

THDA Board Meets On A&M Campus Tuesday

Plans for helping obtain first aid training for each of the nearly 50,000 home demonstration club women in Texas will be considered by the board of the Texas Home Demonstration Association when it meets on the A. and M. College campus Nov. 25 and 26. The meeting has been called by the president Mrs. W. G. Kennedy of Muleshoe.

At its Beaumont meeting early in September the Association voted to work out a cooperative plan with the Red Cross and other organizations through which rural people could get first aid training which is especially valuable in time of national emergency. Already many clubs in the state have completed training periods.

The board will also consider way club women can help make whole grain products available to every Texas family and ways to help extend the benefits of the community school lunch program to every child who needs them. Check-up will also be made on funds being donated by county home demonstration councils to purchase equipment needed for preservation of food in the rural districts of Britain.

A plan to inform the public on the contributions rural club women are making to the defense effort is to be discussed and reports on the club's cooperation in the Food for Freedom program will be heard. At Beaumont the delegates pledged themselves to grow food for themselves and others.

According to Helen H. Swift, chairman of the Extension Service advisory committee, committee chairmen of the Association have been named and will be present for the board meeting.

Takes Appetizing Food To Sell Family On Nutrition Value

Unless meals satisfy the appetites of hungry people and produce genuine satisfaction, they may go half eaten. So it takes appetizing food to sell good nutrition to a family and make eating fun.

Good cooking, skillful meal planning, and attractive serving all make eating fun, in the opinion of Hazel Phipps, Extension Service specialist in food preparation. To help homemakers plan meals more skillfully, she suggests use of the Texas Food Standard. It can be obtained free from county home demonstration agents or from the A. and M. College Extension Service at College Station.

Since many food values can be retained or lost in cooking, learning to prepare food properly is a primary responsibility for every homemaker. Here are some simple basic principles for successful cooking which help conserve food values and help make food taste better.

Use little water in cooking vegetables, and never add soda to the cooking water.

SOCIETY

Let's Cook Something

Traditionally speaking, most of us have a sentimental attachment to turkey—particularly around Thanksgiving time; so for the feasting part of our national holiday, turkey and all the fixin's usually solves the dinner problem.

As early as 1796 American housewives were serving cranberry sauce with their turkey dinners, and now there are dozens of different ways to prepare them. Certainly no turkey dinner would be complete without cranberries in some form. Here are some cranberry recipes suggested by Mrs. Henry Hastings, from which you can select just the right one to go with your Thanksgiving dinner.

Cooked Cranberry Salad

- 2 cups cranberries
- 1 cup water
- 1 package raspberry jello
- 2 cups sugar
- 1-2 cup nuts
- 1-2 cup chopped celery

Cook the cranberries and water together until the cranberries burst. Then add the sugar and cook 5 minutes. Add the jello which has been dissolved in 3-4 cup water. Add nuts and celery and allow to congeal.

Ground Cranberry Salad

- 1 quart ground cranberries
- 1-2 cup sugar
- 1 cup chopped nuts
- 1 small can crushed pineapple
- 1 tablespoon gelatine
- 3-4 cup orange juice

Grind berries and add sugar. Let stand until sugar is melted. Dissolve gelatine in 2 tablespoons water and add to sweetened berries. Add pineapple, orange juice and nuts and set aside to congeal. Serve in a lettuce cup with mayonnaise or with carrot sections scooped out into little cups and filled with cream cheese.

Cranberry Cream Cheese Salad

- 1 package orange jello
- 1 pint hot water
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon vinegar
- 2 cups cranberries (ground)
- 1 package cream cheese

Dissolve jello in hot water and add sugar and vinegar. Chill and when partially thickened add the ground cranberries. Mash cheese until creamy, add the jello-cranberry mixture gradually to cheese and beat with rotary egg beater until blended thoroughly. Fill individual molds and allow to become firm. Unmold on crisp lettuce cups and serve with French dressing or mayonnaise.

Party Honors Sixth Birthday Occasion

Honoring Billy Raybon on his eighth birthday, Mrs. Neva Raybon entertained her son and a group of his friends in the home of her father, Nat Jones, last Saturday afternoon. Assisting Mrs. Raybon were Mesdames Arthur and Earl Drake.

The afternoon was spent playing games, and the party was climaxed by the honoree's opening his gifts and the serving of refreshments to the little guests.

Present were Ella Maurene Hill, Melissa Blackwell, Marcella McReynolds, Yvonne Lee Wilkins, Rose Williams, Alta Mae Wilkins, Blanche Jordan, Bobbie Joyce Tedford, Bernice Jordan, June White, Lenora Fallwell, Eilene Mann, Lenna Fay Blish, Earlene Blish, Max Wells, Frankie Dee Allen, Harold Joe Wells, Jim Rury, Son White and Billy Ray Raybon.

Rhea H. D. Club Meets With Mrs. Calloway

Highlight of the meeting of the Rhea Home Demonstration Club on November 18, was the presentation of reports on the Achievement Day Program at Bovina last Saturday, which all members characterized as a splendid success.

Other business taken up was plans for the Thanksgiving Supper at the schoolhouse on Nov. 27, and the club's food booth at the School Carnival Friday night. The club also agreed to furnish cakes for the "Cake Walk."

Refreshments were served to

Mesdames L. H. Hoffman, Floyd Schlenker, C. W. Dixon, Elmo Dean, Charles Schlenker, Bernice Moyer, Tom Hurst, Ralph Wilson, Wayne Parker, Herman Scheuler, Boye Taylor, Roy Beardain, Mamie Wilson, Charlie Rodgers, Cordie Potts, H. T. Reynolds, Miss Wana Vestal and the hostess.

Next meeting will be on Dec. 2 at the home of Mrs. Floyd Schlenker.

Sadie Hawkins Party Honors H. S. Groups

On Thursday night of last week, the F. P. A. Boys gave the F. H. T. Girls a Sadie Hawkins Day party.

Out of about 35 F. H. T. girls, only six had enough courage to follow Sadie Hawkins' example and bring their boy friends, with only about 15 girls and about 20 boys present.

Group games and doing the Virginia Reel provided entertainment and refreshments of salted peanuts, mints and ice cold pop, were served by the hosts.

An enjoyable time was had by all who attended.

Black Study Club Has Armistice Theme

The Black Social and Study Club met on Thursday of last week, at the home of Mrs. Tom Presley with the president, Mrs. Bill Smith, presiding.

After a short business meeting, the following program was given: "The Growth of the American Legion," Mrs. Roy Price; "My Buddy Hood," a reading, Mrs. Jim Black.

After the roll call, delightful refreshments were served to Mesdames Ralph Price, Roy Price, Bill Smith, Willie Price, H. H. Elmore, Jim Black and Clyde Hays.

Y. W. S. Of Methodist Church Met Tuesday

The Young Women's Society of Christian Service met Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 11, in the Methodist Church with five members and two guests present.

The business session was led by Mrs. Arthur Drake and was followed by the study course lesson on "The Fine Art of Living Together." Miss Wynona Simpson was leader for the lesson and dismissed the meeting following the regular discussion period.

Home Demonstration Council

The regular meeting of the Home Demonstration Council is scheduled Nov. 22, at 2:30 p. m. at the Blackwell Hardware. All Council members are urged to be present.

New Cotton Mkt. Found in Use As Insulation

College Station.— There is a new, almost untouched market for cotton that will use around 750,000 bales a year if only 10 per cent of the potential market is captured.

The field is that of insulation. Use of cotton for this purpose is apparently past the experimental stage.

Most cotton insulation to date has been used in home construction. Tests, however, show that the lightness and cohesiveness of cotton insulation make it a natural where settling by vibration is a factor.

For this reason manufacturers are turning to cotton insulation in refrigerator cars and trucks and in household refrigerators. The product is now being tested for use in marine and airplane construction.

Cotton insulation material is impregnated with a fire resistant agent and houses insulated against cold, heat, and sound with cotton treated in this manner are actually more fire-proof than non-insulated structures. These comments come from H. H. Williamson, director of the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service. He pointed out that interest in the use of cotton as insulation had been stimulated by the U. S. Department of Agriculture's search for new uses for cotton.

The Department recently announced that its Surplus Marketing Administration would provide payments of nine cents per pound to holders of approved applications who manufacture and sell insulation made of cotton, cotton card strips, and cotton comber waste. This payment takes the place of Industry's "introductory offer." The 1941-1942 payments are limited to the equivalent of 27,600 bales of cotton.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON (Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—When Parks Johnson and Wally Butterworth brought their pioneer quiz broadcast to New York city back in 1934, it took them just about eight weeks of diligent quizzing to get an answer to the question, "Where is Singapore?"

The other day the ninth anniversary of their Vox Pop program, the first outbreak of the growing quiz craze, now rampant on all networks, was celebrated. In an age of deepening uncertainty, people find great felicity if they happen to know how many toothpicks there are in a cord of birchwood—and sustenance for an ailing ego. Messrs. Johnson and Butterworth cash in in a big way.

Parks Johnson is the son of a Methodist minister. He had been a captain in the World war, a newspaper reporter, a cotton broker, and in 1932 was running a one-man advertising agency in Houston, Texas. A client wanted a radio idea. Mr. Johnson quizzed himself at length and got the right answer.

He set up a microphone in the lobby of a Houston theater and began his quiz. At first he had to hand out one-dollar bills to lure participants, but the "mike-fright" soon passed and Vox Pop quickly became a successful program.

Mr. Butterworth, former phonograph salesman, radio singer and announcer, came in later. Soon after they were established in New York their program was on a big network. In 1940, they carried their microphone more than 50,000 miles around the country, and to date, have asked about 300,000 questions.

Newspapers were ahead of radio, however, in getting at the question-and-answer mother lode of interest in their own field. It was in 1920, that Miriam Tichenor, a reporter on the New York Daily Mail, suggested to George T. Hughes, the city editor, the daily questioning of five or six citizens at random. Mr. Hughes started the feature and slugged it "The Inquiring Reporter." Under this and other titles it still carries on in many newspapers. This, however, is an opinion, rather than an information inquiry.

A NEW YORK doctor, a friend of this writer, says physicians who have made a life-long study of diet, nutrition and mass conditioning are wondering why physical training for defense is being organized by athletes, instead of specialists in physical fitness. Without disparagement to any of the persons mentioned, he cited Gene Tunney, Alice Marble and John B. Kelly, the last an undefeated oarsman, as examples in which eminence in athletics is substituted for precise knowledge of how to "toughen-up" America.

The discussion had to do with Mr. Kelly's current prescription of a "courage diet" for the nation, in which he says he has listed caloric and vitamin combinations which will enable us to lick our weight in wildcats.

Mr. Kelly, a former bricklayer and contractor, is chairman of the Philadelphia Democratic committee, and last August became director of physical training for national defense. He was formerly a Republican, and is veteran of much fast and intricate milling in both parties.

The tall and athletic "Handsome Jack" Kelly, as he is called, quit the Philadelphia public schools at the age of 16 and got a job in a brickyard. He was an ambulance driver in the World war, came back with a capital of $40 and opened his own brickyard. Twelve years later, at the age of 31, he was the Olympic single sculls champion, winning for America at Amsterdam. In 1926, he retired from rowing as the undefeated champion oarsman of the world. At the age of 32, he still rows five miles every morning.

In September, 1940, President Roosevelt saw an article "handsome Jack" had written for a physical culture magazine and summoned him to lead the national "physical preparedness" endeavor. He now officially and formally heads this department and is working up plans for national mass calisthenics.

He is one of four eminent brothers, George, a playwright; Walter, the famous "Virginia Judge" of the stage; Patrick H., deceased in 1937, who was the builder of the Free Public Library in Philadelphia.

Build Destroyers in Record Time

Construction Pace Equals Combined Power of Any Two Axis Countries.

WASHINGTON.—The speed being attained in the construction of United States destroyers to help keep open the sea lanes vital to defense is exceeding the highest expectations of navy officials.

After subtracting the 50 over-age destroyers transferred to Great Britain, the United States had in active service at the end of 1940, 180 destroyers, 80 more than those possessed by Japan, strongest Axis naval power. And this numerical superiority does not tell the complete story; military consensus credits this country's destroyer force with a speed and hitting power superior to that of any other nation.

Japanese destroyers carry only six to nine torpedo tubes, as against 8 to 16 on similar American craft. Another technical achievement in our favor is the fact that on our newer destroyers the torpedo tubes have been mounted upon the superstructure to permit firing in heavy weather. The Japanese tubes remain on the main deck. In both fleets the destroyers' five and six-inch guns have been set in turrets, but the American turrets have additional light armament. In some quarters Tokyo's torpedo carriers and submarine hunters are deemed top-heavy.

197 Now 'Building.'

Two hundred destroyers were ordered for the United States navy in 1940, and 197 are now listed as "building." The speed with which this program is being carried out can be deduced from the production record set between January 1 and September 30 of this year. By the end of September the keels had been laid for 57 destroyers, 10 had been launched and 12 completed and placed in active service. This is a construction pace superior to that of any two Axis nations combined.

An indication of the production speed is provided by several destroyers recently completed. In World war days the average time for constructing a 1,200-ton destroyer was nine months. When the Edison, a 1,700-ton vessel of more complex design than the World war models, was launched, 8½ months after keel laying, it was deemed an exceptional achievement. But the Bristol and Ellyson, both 1,700-tonners of the same class as the Edison, slid down their Kearny, N. J., ways only 7½ months after keel laying.

The destroyers are part of the production of 375,000 men in the country's shipyards.

Cavalry of the Sea. Another development which has heightened the importance of our destroyer force is the nature of modern warfare. Destroyers correspond to the army's mechanized cavalry. They are swift-moving and hard-hitting and are constantly being improved. American destroyers can be controlled from so many different protected places that the chance of losing control through enemy gunfire is negligible. United States destroyers are the only ones in the world which can be refueled without stopping at sea. How this is done is a secret.

Latest reports which have reached this country also show that the destroyer is well adapted to combat the dive bomber. The speed and maneuverability of the destroyer has enabled it to avoid being hit by air bombs in many Mediterranean and Atlantic sea battles. Another development which has heightened the importance of our destroyer force is the nature of modern warfare. Destroyers correspond to the army's mechanized cavalry. They are swift-moving and hard-hitting and are constantly being improved. PETER RABBIT'S PLAN WORKS OUT

PETER RABBIT was so excited that he hardly knew what to do. He felt that his plan was really going to work. He didn't know just why he felt so. He just did, that was all. And if he did, well, there was going to be more excitement in the Green Forest than there had been for a long time. So far everything had gone as he had hoped it would. He had found Buster Bear asleep, and from what he knew of Buster Bear and his ways he was pretty sure that he would remain asleep until—well, until he was waked up. And Peter meant to have a hand in that waking.

"I do hope that hunter will come," muttered Peter as he hurried to that part of the Green Forest where he knew the hunter was most likely to hunt. By and by he heard Sammy Jay screaming. Peter stopped long enough to listen. Sammy was making a great fuss. He was calling somebody a thief, and Peter guessed right away that somebody was the hunter. He listened for just a few minutes, and then he started in the direction of Sammy Jay's voice. The nearer he got the louder Sammy sounded.

Presently Peter stopped hurrying. He began to go very slowly and carefully. He didn't want to blunder right into the sight of that hunter, because—well, because if that hunter saw him first that terrible gun might go off and make an end to Peter's plan and to Peter himself. By and by he heard a sound that made him sit perfectly still. Sniff! Sniff! Sniff! Peter had heard that sound before. It was made by the hunter's dog trying to find the tracks of somebody to chase for his master to kill. Peter watched, and pretty soon he saw the dog running this way and that way with his nose to the ground. He sniffed here and sniffed there, trying to find the scent of somebody's tracks, and he didn't seem to be having any luck at all. Peter sat tight and waited and watched. By and by he saw a movement off to one side. It was the hunter with the terrible gun. Peter gave a little sigh of relief. Now that he knew just where that hunter was he felt easier in his mind. He would know just how to keep out of the way of that terrible gun. He drew a long breath and darted across right in front of the dog. The dog didn't see him, because a dog when he is hunting doesn't see much; he depends on his nose. So this dog didn't see Peter, but in a minute or two he found Peter's tracks, and the scent in it was so strong and fresh that he knew that Peter had just passed.

"Bow-wow-wow-ow-ow-ow-wow!" roared the dog, and in a jiffy he was following Peter as fast as he could run and at the same time keep his nose in Peter's tracks and bark the news to his master. My, but that dog was excited! It always is exciting to be hunted, but this time

"I hope, I do hope he hasn't been frightened away," said Peter to himself. It was more exciting than usual because of what he hoped was going to follow. Now, ordinarily Peter would have fooled that dog and got rid of him just as soon as possible, but this time he took pains to keep just a little way ahead and to leave a trail easy to follow. If the dog got too near Peter would play some simple little trick to make his trail hard to follow, and would then hurry ahead and wait until the dog had patiently straightened out the trail. Little by little he led the dog deeper and deeper into the Green Forest, and he knew by the sounds that the hunter was following.

At last he was in sight of the great pile of trees blown over by rough Brother North Wind, and under which he had left Buster Bear asleep. He knew that Buster must be awake now, for who could sleep with such a racket going on as that dog was making? "I hope, I do hope, he hasn't been frightened and run away," said Peter to himself. "If he has, my plan has been spoiled." Peter waited for the dog to get very near him. Then suddenly he darted straight for that pile of fallen trees as if he meant to hide under them. And as he ran he saw that Buster Bear was still there. (Associated Newspapers—WNU Service.)

Night Patrol... Defense Model

Silhouetted as though in black cardboard against the smudgy, late sky, aviation cadets in the Southeast Training center at Montgomery, Ala., prepare to take off for a night flight. Cadets spend 40 hours or 3 per cent of the total time at advanced flying school in after dark flying. Their "matter of course" expressions, noticeable even in profile, show that a night in the sky holds no mysteries for these youths.

Capital Schools Drop 'Nazi' Salute to Flag

WASHINGTON.—Capital school children henceforth will use the regulation army salute in the pledge of allegiance to the flag. Asked if the arm-extended salute was abandoned because of its similarity to the Hitler greeting, Superintendent of Schools Frank Ballou said: "Draw your own conclusions."

College Professor Takes Up Flying at Age of 70

CHICAGO.—New adventure holds no brakes for 70-year-old Melville B. Wells who is learning to fly. Professor Wells of Illinois Institute of Technology, is absorbing the "new trick" of piloting despite the physical handicap of the loss of his left hand, which was mangled as a boy in his father's sawmill. Wells, who was 70 last January, now holds a student's permit and is working for the 35 solo hours of flying time necessary for a regular private license. Although it is a "new trick" to him, the idea of flying is an old one to Wells. He has wanted to be a pilot ever since his boyhood experiments with kites and hot-air balloons in southern Indiana. A lifetime of teaching aeronautics, aerodynamics and airplane design has heightened his desire to fly, but he never has had the time to learn. Wells, professor emeritus of civil engineering and director of civilian pilot training, swung his attention to the scientific details of flight in 1910, only seven years after the Wright brothers had proved the feasibility of flying. This step from orthodox civil engineering was a logical one, Wells explained, because his specialty had been bridge and structural engineering.

"I hope, I do hope he hasn't been frightened away," said Peter to himself.

What to Do

BY PHYLLIS BELMONT

I am to be married in church and plan to wear a street dress. I am to have as attendants a maid of honor and a matron of honor, and would like to know what type of bouquets they should carry, and what kind I should have.

Answer.—With a street dress, or traveling costume, both you and your attendants would wear corsages instead of carrying bouquets. This is much more in keeping with the costume that you are wearing for a long garden dress, or a bridal gown. As to the type of flowers you should wear, naturally, this depends upon the color of your costume. Of course, if you like you may have a corsage of white flowers, say gardenias, white orchids, or white roses. Select a corsage that will not be too fussy, and which will look well to wear away. RUINS DISCOVERED IN ALASKA SHOW ADVANCED CULTURE

NEW YORK.—On a barren gravel spit 130 miles above the Arctic circle a highly developed and complex civilization came into being before the dawn of history on the ancient migration route from Asia to America. For a few thousand years it thrived. Then it declined and ultimately died, leaving behind a mystery as deep as that which once shrouded the pyramids. Relics of the ancient lost civilization, which once made Point Hope, Alaska, a place of animation where industry, commerce, art and religion flourished, were discovered only two years ago. A full report on what is known about it became available when Dr. Harry L. Shapiro of the American Museum of Natural History released details of discoveries made on the site during the past summer. Much as Dr. Shapiro and his predecessors discovered about the Point Hope culture, more remains to be learned. Science does not yet know what race laid out the ancient city now referred to as "Ipiutak." It only knows that the Ipiutak civilization was more highly developed than either ancient or modern Eskimo culture, that the inhabitants were deeply religious, highly artistic and skilled in the crafts. In 1939 and 1940 members of an American museum - University of Alaska expedition located the vast ruins of the prehistoric town. Dr. Shapiro extended their discoveries last summer. He found that Ipiutak—which is the Eskimo name of a small spit of land near the site—had five long avenues on which some 600 dwellings, since buried, housed about 3,000 persons.

A sentry stands on duty before the entrance.

Star Dust STAGE SCREEN RADIO

NOT content with having a very promising film career, Susan Hayward has turned actor's agent. Dining at a New Orleans hotel, she was impressed by the young singer and trumpet player with Chuck Foster's band; he stopped the show at every performance. So when he was brought over to meet her she questioned him. Why wasn't he in films? Nobody'd asked him to be. Where did he come from? Los Angeles, but he'd never been able to get near a film studio there! So Susan placed him under contract, and arranged for his Hollywood debut at a cafe there. His name? Ray Robbins, professionally; in real life, it's Foster. A new romantic duo makes its debut in RKO's comedy, "Obliging Young Lady," in the persons of Edmond O'Brien and Ruth Warrick.

'They Got Me Covered' Is Funniest Book of Year

A NEW all-around champion has been crowned... in the entertainment world. He is Bob Hope. Not satisfied with being rated tops on the radio, Number One in screen box office receipts, he is author of one of the nation's best sellers, which just about nails down this triple crown for Bob. "They Got Me Covered," Hope's autobiography, has been acclaimed by critics and readers alike as one of the year's funniest books. It is a hilarious story, in narrative form, of Bob Hope's life, generously illustrated with photographs, in addition to having cartoons depicting scenes from his life. The book is now available at drug and department stores throughout America at 10 cents per copy with the purchase of a Pepsodent product. This low price is possible because the sale of the book has been sponsored by the Pepsodent Company.—Adv.

Three-Way Pulling Match Builds Defense Log Jam

Washington Sees Conflicts of Authority, Effort and Viewpoint as a Threat to Satisfactory Carrying Out of Program.

By BAUKHAGE
National Farm and Home Hour Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

There is a log jam today holding up the defense program that is going to take dynamite to blow up. Whether there is the courage and the unity and the understanding to do the job remains to be seen.

It will take understanding because the men who make the charges will have to know the facts and realize the conditions and the traditions which have created the evils.

It will take courage, for a premature burst may damage a lot of innocent bystanders.

As far as can be judged from information leading out of the cracks in the defense machine it is a three-way pulling match. The difficulty in analyzing the situation is the difficulty in classifying and identifying the opposing forces.

The usual classification is: One, the New Deal group. Two, the dollar-a-year men. Three, certain army and navy officials.

But this is a very misleading classification because there are some dollar-a-year men who are working with the administration. There are some members of the administration charged with playing into the hands of the dollar-a-year men. There are some army officials who are co-operating with the so-called New Deal element.

Roughly—the Charges

Roughly the charges are these: Those sympathetic with the viewpoint of the New Dealers say that some army officials insist on favoring the dollar-a-year men who manage to steer defense contracts to the smaller firms.

Some of the army and navy officials say that they are not going to let amateurs run their affairs, that they have dealt with certain firms for years who know how to do what they want done.

The champions of the small business men and congressmen who have attempted to help them say that priorities assignments are sending essential materials to the big business firms—and they mention the utilities in particular. Small manufacturers and public projects like rural electrification which is bidding for precious copper for its power lines, are being passed by, is the accusation.

The dollar-a-year men say that they are protecting free enterprise and that those opposing them are trying to turn business over to government control.

These bitter conflicts of authority, effort and viewpoint naturally prevent the co-operation essential in the tremendous undertaking which the Office of Emergency Management is attempting to carry out.

This is one reason for the log jam. There is another. In Washington itself criticism is growing. This is not new. It is criticism of the overlapping and conflicting authority among the officials of the OEM.

Theoretically, Vice President Wallace is the responsible head of all defense effort and in that capacity he reports only to the President but the money he requires to carry out his functions is controlled by Jesse Jones, head of the RFC as well as secretary of commerce. That is just one example of similar anomalies right down the line.

The strange thing about it all is that everybody in Washington seems to know all about the log jam except the President himself who is the only man who can straighten it out.

'ABCD' Countries In New Trade Pact

The "A B C D" countries have just drawn up a trade agreement which bottles up a large share of the raw materials of the world. The ABCD's (America, Britain, China and the Dutch East Indies) control a large share of the things that do not or will not grow anywhere else. The agreement has a two-pronged purpose. One is a horn of famine, one is a horn of plenty. The horn of famine is pointed today at Japan as a threat to keep her within her own domain. The horn of plenty is a peaceful promise. Its purpose is to provide a working arrangement so that all nations may share in the riches of the earth, the precious raw materials of which the "have-nots" say the "haves" are depriving them.

We do not realize how much of a "have-not" nation the United States is. I did not until I saw the report of Carter R. Bryan of the department of commerce. It was a story of his visit to a country store.

Mr. Bryan looked over the goods on the shelves and counters and hanging on hooks against the walls and then began to trace them to their origin. I haven't the space to mention more than a few but the next time you go to the store you will be able to use this list as a starter and surprise yourself.

List of 'Have Nots'

Of course he began with tea from China and coffee from South America and then went on:

"Among other things were binder twine, made of sisal, which comes from Yucatan, and halter ropes, made of hemp from the Philippines; brushes, made of hog bristles from Mongolia, soft drinks containing coca leaves from Peru and kola nuts from Jamaica, and tapioca from The Netherlands Indies or the Dominican republic.

"Cocoa beans from South America are used in making cocoa and chocolate. The same is true of the chocolate bars in the candy case. Even those penny peppermint candy sticks," he continued, "are made of sugar, which probably came from Cuba, and peppermint oil from Russia, and that chewing gum was made of chicle from Central America or Mexico."

Then of course there are spices—"And spices," he pointed out, "have played a big role in history before. Columbus wasn't looking for America when he sailed west; he was looking for a new route to India and spices in the days when another barbaric horde interfered with trade."

After noting several large bunches of bananas from Central America and pineapples from Cuba, he continued: "One whole section was given over to bottles containing cod liver oil from Iceland, old-fashioned castor oil from India and Brazil, hay fever and asthma remedies containing Ma Huang (Ephedra Vulgaris) from China, purgatives containing psyllium seed from India, ipecac from Nicaragua, senna from the Levant, and aloes from The Netherlands West Indies, that invaluable cold and malaria remedy, quinine, from The Netherlands Indies, camphor oil from Japan and iodine from Chile, horchound from Spain, and other medicinals from every part of the earth."

As I said, this was only a starter. Bryan named at least 100 other articles right in that one country store, all or a part of each shipped in from foreign lands. If this country, with its wide range of climate and mighty resources has to depend on foreign countries for these products used in our daily life it is easy to see how dependent all nations have become, one upon the other. Trade barriers must go down if civilization is to continue to go upward.

Birds, Traffic Signals And Early Risers

Some people here in Washington have been living dangerously before you and I start our day.

They are up and doing before the traffic signals begin their rhythmic cycle of red, yellow and green. It is a period of comparative freedom, the lights flash yellow—a warning to be careful, not a command to stop. To some of the mad, pre-dawn motorists the flashers are not warnings at all. They are simply lures for the heedless autos dashing at the intersections like moths at a candle flame.

That makes it stimulatingly dangerous for early folk whose reveille has sounded long before our bacon sizzles. They have to be wide awake. Except the birds—one of the few forms of life, feathered, furred, or pajamaed, whose waking is pleasant to hear—the plaintive peep that gradually swells in a soft crescendo to a cheerful chatter.

And the birds are about the only living creatures who can risk an early start for they can cross the street without regard for the traffic lights.

Church Supper Ideas

What is so gay as a grand, big get-together full of informal fun, the hum of pleasant conversation and plenty of good food thrown into the bargain? A church supper, of course!

The fun will take care of itself and the food—well, almost if you get the right amount of it, for the cooking's as simple as only simple can be. Chicken's a treat any way you serve it, but very easy to prepare and serve if you do it this time-ried, old-fashioned, favorite way ladled out of a big kettle with plenty of cream sauce onto feathery light hot biscuits:

*Chicken or Turkey a la King. (Serves 50)
4 4-pound chickens, stewed, then cut meat into pieces
Or
1 18-pound turkey, stewed or roasted, meat diced
1 pound fat (chicken or turkey fat and butter mixed)
4 cups flour
2 gallons scalded milk
1 pound fresh mushrooms or 2 large cans
2 tablespoons minced onion
1½ teaspoons or more salt
¼ teaspoon white pepper
1½ teaspoons paprika
2 sweet green peppers, chopped (optional)
2 pintons, chopped (optional)
½ cup egg yolks (6 eggs)

Melt about three-fourths of the fat, add the flour, and blend thoroughly; add scalded milk, stirring rapidly with a wire whisk to keep well mixed. Cook until starch taste is gone—about 10 minutes. Cook the mushrooms, sliced, in remaining fat, until delicately browned and add to sauce with the onion. Beat egg yolks and mix with a small amount of the hot mixture to blend and add to the sauce, stirring thoroughly. Cook 4 or 5 minutes more. Add turkey meat. Season to taste (with paprika and pepper mixed into salt). Add peppers and pimiento, if used. Serve on hot biscuits.

The simplest way to prepare the chickens is to cook them in seasoned water, to which a small onion, 2 carrots and a small bunch of celery are added. Chickens are handled best if disjointed and the breast and back sections cut into convenient-sized pieces.

Baking Powder Biscuits. (Serves 50)
4 pounds flour
¾ cup double-acting baking powder
2 tablespoons salt
1 cup shortening (2½ cups)
5 cups milk

Sift the dry ingredients together, add fat and mix lightly. Make a well in the center and add the milk.

LYNN SAYS:
Attractive salads pep up meals besides adding nourishment plus to menus. Salads in winter are a little hard to plan because of the scarcity of fresh fruits and vegetables, so I suggest you try these for solving your salad problem:
Prunes stuffed with cream cheese and nuts, served with orange sections and lettuce.
Cooked beets and cooked carrots diced with celery, mixed with mayonnaise.
Orange sections served with tiny cream cheese balls. Marinated oranges in french dressing first.
Canned pineapple and fresh oranges served in alternate sections on lettuce. Alternating orange and grapefruit sections are a good idea, too.
Chunks of lettuce with crumbled hard-cooked egg and a few leftover peas, tossed together with salad oil, salt, pepper, vinegar.

THIS WEEK'S MENU

- *Chicken a la King
- *Scalloped Potatoes
- *Sunset Salad
- Bread and Butter
- Assorted Cakes
- *Coffee

*Recipe given

Mix just until the dough holds together. Divide dough into fourths and make ¼ at a time. Roll on a floured board, pat to ½ inch thickness, cut and place on baking sheet. Bake 12 to 15 minutes in a hot (450 degree) oven until golden brown.

*Scalloped Potatoes.

(Serves 50)
10 pounds (6 quarts) sliced potatoes
2 quarts hot milk
½ cup flour
1½ cups butter
3 tablespoons salt
1 tablespoon pepper
Peel potatoes before weighing. Before measuring, peel and slice. If large, cut in two lengthwise before slicing. Into six baking dishes put a layer of potato, then a slight layer of flour, and repeat until all potatoes are used. Dissolve salt, pepper and butter in hot milk. Pour over potatoes, cover and cook in slow oven for 1½ hours or until done.

Best idea for a salad is this one that's made in advance and needs only to be sliced and placed on lettuce leaves for serving. It's as gay and colorful as the get-together itself.

*Sunset Salad.
18 ounces lemon gelatin
2½ quarts hot water and canned pineapple juice
1½ quarts grated raw carrots
1½ pintons canned crushed pineapple, drained
2 teaspoons salt
Dissolve gelatin in hot water and pineapple juice which has been heated to 130 degrees F. Chill. Combine carrots, pineapple and salt. When mixture is slightly thickened, fold in carrot and pineapple mixture. Turn into individual molds. Chill until firm. Unmold on crisp lettuce. Garnish with mayonnaise and grated carrots. Makes 32 portions.

Just in case you want to make up a church supper menu of your own, I'm listing additional recipes:

Meat Loaf.
10 pounds ground round steak
2 pounds ground pork or salt pork
4 eggs
½ pound bread crumbs
2 onions
2 tablespoons salt
2 teaspoons pepper
1 quart cold mashed potatoes
1 quart milk or canned tomatoes
Mix thoroughly, mold into five loaves, and bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees F., until done. Makes 50 servings.

*Boiled Coffee. (Serves 50)
1½ pounds coffee (6¼ cups)
2½ gallons water
2 eggs
Mix shells, whole eggs and 1 additional cup of cold water with coffee. When the water comes to a boil, add the coffee egg mixture which has been tied in a bag, to the boiling water, and boil for 3 to 5 minutes. Test for strength. When ready, remove bag, let coffee stand 10 to 15 minutes before serving.

The wife of one of our famous football coaches, Mrs. Lou Little, likes to serve a simple but hearty meal after the game. Jot this one down as an idea for an after the game supper or church supper idea: Hot mulled cider, casserole of pork and beans, buttered hot date-nut bread, celery, pickles, and chili sauce; jellied cole slaw; doughnuts and coffee.

For the casserole, use canned pork and beans with tomato sauce; heat in the oven about 20 minutes. As a decoration use half slices of date-nut bread. Put them around the top of the beans for 5 minutes before the casserole comes out from the oven.

PRAYER AND THANKSGIVING

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 6:5-15; Ephesians 5:20; 1 Thessalonians 5:16-18. GOLDEN TEXT—Pray without ceasing. In every thing give thanks—1 Thessalonians 5:17, 18.

Being one with Christ, the Christian finds prayer to be as natural as breathing. As he walks with the Master he talks with Him, praises Him, thanks Him, makes his petitions and his needs known to Him. We feel, however, like Christ's disciples who asked Him to teach them to pray (Luke 11:1).

I. Instruction in Prayer

Approaching the subject from the negative viewpoint, Jesus told them—

1. How Not to Pray (Matt. 6:5, 7). Prayer, which is the highest privilege of the Christian, is beset by some deadly dangers.

a. No hypocritical performance (v. 5). Some who wished to be seen in prayer managed to be in a conspicuous place at the Jewish hours of prayer (nine, twelve, and three o'clock). There, before a crowd, they put on a prayer "show" for the benefit of the onlooking audience. Such a prayer is designed for the ears of men and never reaches God.

b. No vain repetition (v. 7). We do not need to repeat our petitions. God knows our need (v. 8). When repetition is the outpouring of an earnest and urgent heart it means much, but that is different from just repeating phrases.

2. How to Pray (Matt. 6:6, 8, 14, 15; Eph. 5:20; 1 Thess. 5:16-18). Public prayer is sometimes both necessary and proper, but usually our prayer should be—

a. In secret (v. 6). When we pray we should be free from distracting influences or personalities. We are talking to God and should give ourselves entirely over to communion with Him.

b. In faith (vv. 6, 8). God knows what we need even though He waits to be inquired of concerning it. He will answer prayer so as to honor His name in our lives and in our testimony before others.

c. With forgiveness (vv. 14, 15). No one who comes before God with an unforgiving spirit toward his brother is ready to ask God for the forgiveness which he himself so greatly needs.

d. With thanksgiving (Eph. 5:20). To give thanks is altogether fitting as we come to God in prayer. Note that we are to be thankful "always" and "for all things," not just when some special blessing or favor has come to us.

e. Without ceasing (1 Thess. 5:16-18). Union with Christ enables us to pray without ceasing, even as He ever prays for us. This does not call for the constant utterance of words, but the moment by moment prayer of a heart and life lifted to Him. With such praying comes constant rejoicing (v. 16).

II. A Model of Prayer (Matt. 6:9-13).

The prayer which our Lord taught His disciples was intended to be a model rather than a form of prayer. We may repeat it, however, if we put into it the prayer of our hearts.

1. God and His Glory (vv. 9, 10). Recognizing Him as our Father to whom we may and must come for all things, we in all humility ascribe all honor to Him. Then we pray that His kingdom may come, not only in the future (and we look forward to it!), but now, in our own hearts. The true believer wants the will of God done in his own life and throughout the earth, even as it is perfectly done in heaven.

This prayer begins at the proper point. A right relationship with God brings true blessing on earth. The one who prays is now ready to present to God—

2. Man and His Needs (vv. 11-13). Daily bread is mentioned first, for without it life could not continue. This is the constant need of man, and his great struggle. God is able for that problem, and only He is able. Unless He gives "seed to the sower and bread to the eater" (Isa. 55:10) we are gone.

But man has even greater spiritual needs. Sin needs forgiveness, weakness needs strength, the power of the enemy of our souls calls for deliverance. Again God is able and ready to hear man's prayer.

One of the sad things about the study of prayer is that we are all so ready to talk about it, discuss it, even preach about it, and then do so little praying. Knowing how to pray, and admiring a model of prayer, will profit us nothing, unless we pray.

Good Work Never Fails

So, then, Elijah's life had been no failure after all. Seven thousand at least in Israel had been braced and encouraged by his example, and silently blessed him, perhaps, for the courage which they felt. In God's world, for those who are in earnest there is no failure. No work truly done, no word earnestly spoken, no sacrifice freely made, was ever made in vain.—F. W. Robertson.

State President Is Main Speaker At Achievement Event For Parmer Co.

The climax of the achievement program of Parmer County Home Demonstration Clubs last Saturday at Bovina was the message by Mrs. Warren G. Kennedy, the State President of Texas Home Demonstration Association.

One hundred club women heard Mrs. Kennedy outline the part the rural home maker can play in National Defense. "National Defense begins in our own community," said Mrs. Kennedy. "These exhibits and demonstrations I have seen here today show Parmer County women are thinking and doing many of the things the Texas Home Demonstration Association is recommending as a part of the National Defense and Preparedness Program."

"Good nutrition for all can result in the strongest and healthiest nation the world has ever known. One very good place to begin such a program is in our public schools. Children can be taught good food habits through the hot school lunch. Johnnie doesn't mind eating spinach and drinking milk if everyone else is eating spinach and drinking milk. He soon learns to like the right foods."

"I plan to do everything possible while I am president of your association to extend the hot school lunch to every child in Texas."

es, cafes and filling stations and mercantile establishments to meet all business needs of people of the territory.

The town has a large affiliated high school, which, with the grades, is comfortably housed in an attractive school building, which has also a large auditorium and gymnasium. It is thus full abreast of the times so far as educational facilities are concerned. It is also well supplied with good church buildings, where several denominations are represented.

A good gin is also located there to care for the needs of the cotton growers of the territory, not only ginning the cotton, but supplying a local market for the cotton grown near Bovina.

fifth division commander of the Sons of the Legion, was a highlight. He discussed the five-point SAL program, said the sons are now treading in their fathers' footsteps and are determined to acquire themselves in keeping with the high traditions established by their fathers.

Borger won the 18th District spring convention when Pampa withdrew in its favor.

Farmer John

Kit Carson, George A. Custer and Billy The Kid, Carson alone survived and left a family. Not until a little more than a half century ago, did farmers dare defy the drought, to homestead the short-grass land. The series of droughts, just prior to 1900, was a terrific blow to the stoutest hearted pioneers. The roads were literally lined with routed homesteaders. Bones of jack rabbits, left on the camp grounds, were the only signs that they had ought to eat. None but the tough and intelligent remained to reproduce their kind. Through trial and error, heart-ache and back-ache, the surviving plainmen, has evolved a dry-land agriculture. The climate forces selection of its people, just as it selects its crops and farming methods.

Heroism and intelligence have established farming in this semi-arid district. If the government pays, or if it does not pay, the hardy, the worthwhile, will continue to go forward in their undertaking to make of the great high plains, the nation's ever overflowing granary. It is the conservation of this precious fall, that guarantees them success.

The high plains of the West, the Texas Panhandle, Parmer County has a stalwart group of farmers, who realize what a wonderful opportunity is theirs.

Another Bottle-fed Baby

Average calf weight at birth is 50 to 60 pounds, but this little fellow tipped the scales at just 10 pounds. The bottle baby was born at the Hugelmaier Dairy Farm, Gates, N. Y. He was just 1 1/2 feet high and about 2 1/2 feet long. Feeding it is Mrs. William Hugelmaier.

Mrs. Warren Kennedy of Muleshoe, state president of the Texas Home Demonstration Association, was main speaker at the home demonstration fair at Bovina Saturday.

Mrs. Hilery Tidenburg, president of the Bovina Club opened the meeting by welcoming the special guests, and members of the eight sister clubs of Bovina.

Mrs. A. H. Boatman, Council Chairman, presented out-of-county guests, Miss Kate Hill, District Agent; Miss Lillie Gentry, Bailey County Home Demonstration Agent; Miss Ava Grindstaff, Castro Home Demonstration Agent; Miss Aubrey Reid, Home Demonstration Agent from Portales, N. M., and Mrs. Manuel Self, Miss Dyakthia Swift, Miss Elzada McMahan of the Progressive Home Demonstration Club, Bailey County.

The second part of the program was a review of the clothing demonstration accomplished in 1941. Cotton house dresses, basic dresses and accessories, knitted garments, renovated garments and new work clothes designed by the Bureau of Home Economics, were worn by demonstrators in a style review. A high point in the dress review was garments designed and worn by Mary D. Christian and Oleta Thompson, Parmer County entries in the Texas Scholarship Contest for 4-H Girls.

Following the style review the Oklahoma Lane Home Demonstration Club assisted Miss Elsie Cunningham, County Home Demonstration Agent, in demonstrating "Attractive Everyday Foods for National Defense."

Delicious refreshments were served by the Bovina club at the close of the meeting.

Well planned and attractive exhibits presenting various phases of the club program for 1941 were presented by each of the clubs. Much interest was shown in the exhibit of knitted garments by Mrs. A. H. Boatman and the Bovina Club exhibit showing "Suggestions for Handmade Christmas Gifts." The Lakeview club showed 50 useful articles for the home, made from flour and feed sacks. The new work garments for women shown by the Parmerton Club attracted many of the visitors. Other exhibits were: A Business Center for the Home, Meat Substitutes, Penny Wise Cookery, The Home-maker and Defense, Decorations for the Thanksgiving Dinner Table, and "Getting your Money's worth in Vegetables."
