TRAIN SERVICE IS STILL HAMPERED

Situation North of Woodward on Northwestern More Serious Than at First Thought

The washout on the Northwestern north of Woodward has proved more serious than at first thought, and it is now stated that it will probably be five or six days before train service there will regain the normal. The company has not been able to get a train through north of that place since Sunday. The work of restoring the track is being pushed with all possible dispatch and Superintendent W. Butz is on the scene personally directing the work. The North Canadian is still reported to be running at heavy volume north of Woodward and it is not probable that the river will overrun the banks and cause considerable damage in that section. The Santa Fe is reported to be in serious trouble and is transferring southbound passengers to the Northwestern at Woodward to be turned over by that line to the Rock Island at Elk City. Light rains from Childress and beyond all the way to Fort Worth is the report that comes from the Denver office. They also state that so far as can be learned that the South Fork of the Canadian, which crosses their road just this side of Amarillo, is not rising to any alarming degree.

ACADEMY ALUMNAE IN SESSION TODAY

Hold Annual Reunion—Class Day Program Tuesday Night is Greatly Enjoyed

The eight young ladies of this year's graduating class of the Academy of Mary Immaculate will be re-united into the association of the academy this afternoon at the annual reunion of the alumnae. The meeting was called at four o'clock by the president, Mrs. Ben M. Bell, and a business session with the election of officers as the main feature was to precede the social hour. The initiation of the graduates as usual will form the most interesting part of the program.

There are about 30 members of the association, seven classes having been graduated from the school and the present graduating class will add eight members, being the largest in the history of the academy. The present officers are: Mrs. Ben Bell, president; Mrs. Miss Hutton, secretary; Miss Florence Jackson, treasurer; Miss Beas Qualla; press reporter, Miss Genevieve Carter. A number of the association members live in other towns and several were expected to attend the meeting this afternoon.

A large number of the graduates and patrons of the school attended the splendid class day program given Tuesday evening at the auditorium. The musical numbers were exceptionally well given, a characteristic of the work of the musical department of the institutions and both piano and voice numbers received much praise from the audience. All of the graduates, Misses Abbie Thompson, Helen Stone, Helen Hund, Mary Moran, Mary McCune, Annetta Monroe, Ruby Edwards and Madeline Mackechnie, took prominent parts in the program. Miss Thompson, the class president, made the opening address. Miss Mary McCune read several addresses and Miss Helen Hund gave the class prophecy. The other members of the class took part in the musical numbers and gave selections from "The Merchant of Venice" and "Henry V." Miss Moran read the class essay. The graduates will receive their diplomas at the commencement exercises Thursday evening at the Wichita Theatre. The address will be delivered by the Right Reverend Bishop Lynch of Dallas.

WANT BIG EXHIBIT FOR DALLAS FAIR

Chamber of Commerce Asks Cooperation of Farmers and Fruit Growers of County

The cooperation of farmers and fruit growers is asked by the Chamber of Commerce in getting up the agricultural exhibit for the Dallas Fair and it is hoped to get up a display which will set forth the agricultural resources of this county to excellent advantage. In cutting wheat, oats and forage crops, all farmers are requested to save a bundle or two for exhibit purposes; these will be collected by J. W. Campbell, county agricultural agent, who has already secured a number of samples. Several different varieties of wheat have been collected, some of them of exceptionally high grade, and it is believed that if all farmers will cooperate with him in getting up this exhibit, a splendid showing can be made. A big fruit exhibit is also desired and growers of peaches, plums, berries and pears can be of much assistance if they will select a jar full of the best specimens. Some nice samples have already been secured, but others are desired.

DENVER WILL ERECT NEW STATION AT KIRKLAND

J. M. Mann, superintendent of the building department of the Fort Worth & Denver, was in Kirkland this week making arrangements for the erection of a new depot, stock pens and cotton platform. He stated that work would start immediately and that the depot would be one of the best on the Denver road, size of town considered. The Denver people realize that Kirkland is a coming town and they intend to have ample facilities here for the transacting of the enormous business carried on. This year's shipments are not available just now, excepting the maize shipments, which so far have amounted to about 200 cars. Last year 97 cars of wheat were shipped from here, 142 cars of cotton seed, nearly 8,000 bales of cotton, 44 cars of live stock, 106 cars of maize, 54,400 pounds of cream, 700 cases of eggs and 15,537 pounds of poultry.

ALL IRISHMEN IN ONE ARMY DIVISION

Some Have Seen Service in Other Wars But Most Are Having First Experience.

By Associated Press. British Headquarters, France, May 1.—(By Mail)—There is a town at the British front which is the center of an Irish world. It is the headquarters town of the 16th or 17th division. Irish voices are heard from the doorways of the houses. Flower pots of shamrock are on the mess tables of officers who gather for their meals in the modest sitting room of the local grocer or butcher where they are billeted. If he is asked if there are any Sinn Feiners among them he will refer the inquirer to the men, themselves. They enlisted in the Irish new army battalion in face of the influence which produces Sinn Feinism. This gave them a distinction of character to start with their officers say.

Sturdy middle-aged men with strips of color won in campaigns in India and South Africa while serving with regular Irish regiments, some still sergeants, some promoted to commissions have been the drill masters of vigorous youth from Mayo or Kilkenny or Clare or Cork. But most of the officers in common with most of the men had never been in uniform when the war began.

A major who is over six feet and broad in proportion, standing stiff as a ramrod in salute, who looks as if he had been soldiering all his life, was a farmer in Waterford. He recruited a company from the surrounding countryside and was given command. Promotion followed as it has for other beginners. Those captains who are members of parliament will get their no unless they are among the casualties which make room for others to rise. They say that they thought they could do better work for Home Rule at the front than in the Commons.

"We wanted to draft the Irishmen who were in English and Scotch battalions into ours so we should have all the Irish at the front under one command," said the general, "but we could not make the arrangement. The other commanders would not part with their Irishmen. British battalions like to have a sprinkling of Irish among their members. My men have had every test of trench fighting, gas and shells and sniping—and they've disproved any idea that the Irish were not as good at sticking as in a charge. They've stuck like veterans. Native Irish good humor relieves the grim monotony of the trenches. "As for discipline—there's the

HOLSTEIN FANCIERS MEET AT DETROIT

Breeding is Discussed and Big Sale of Cows is Held at Convention

By Associated Press. Detroit, Mich., June 7.—More than 8,000 active members were represented at the annual convention of the Holstein Fancier Association which opened here this forenoon. The convention will close tonight with a banquet.

Discussions of various topics concerning the breeding of Holstein cattle and a public sale of choice stock were leading features of the convention which has brought cattlemen to Detroit from many sections of the country. About 150 Holstein animalists were to be sold this afternoon at the State Fair grounds, near Detroit. Delegates declared that it would not be surprising if record prices were paid for some of the stock. One of Detroit's leading hotels, which is the convention headquarters, agreed to entertain several blue blooded calves. These animals, said to be the most valuable specimens of their breed, were to be exhibited in the lobby of the hotel this afternoon. One of the chief purposes of the association is to encourage breeding of high class stock. Among the speakers on the convention program were Carl Vroman, assistant secretary of agriculture, Prof. A. C. Anderson of the Michigan Agricultural College and Dr. J. H. Kellogg of Battle Creek.

COTTON MEN OPPOSING NEW INSURANCE RATES

By Associated Press. Austin, Texas, June 7.—Considerable opposition has developed to the new tentative cotton schedule of insurance rates as proposed by the State Fire Insurance Commission, this opposition coming chiefly from cotton compress men over the state. When this tentative schedule was issued the commission sent copies to all insurance companies and compress operators and others interested, for any recommendation that may be made. Since then delegates of compress men have been here protesting against the schedule which, it is claimed, greatly increases rates on cotton.

record of court martial"—the general indicated some blank spaces opposite the names of battalions on the wall—"everybody prophesied that we would have heavy drinking on St. Patrick's day because a lot of people have the idea that the Irish have a weakness for drink. I appealed to the men to be on their good behavior with the result that we did not have a single case of intoxication."

Up in the trenches held by the Irish, stories abound. When a big high explosive German shell tore a hole in the parapet a soldier who was set to shoveling away the earth that had filled the trench had only fairly got started when another shell struck just behind him tearing another section of trench and half burying him. Having crawled out and looked around he saluted his captain and said: "Sir, I have to report at the present rate I can't finish this job without help. They're gaining on me!"

The new army bill provides room for a whole lot of the fellows who have been marching in these preparedness parades the last few days. It's dollars to doughnuts, however, that the work of recruiting the some thousands increase in the army won't be much easier.

effort has been made for a preparedness parade in Wichita Falls, but if such a demonstration was announced there would likely be no dearth of volunteers for marchers. An effort is being made to organize a company of national guard here and it now looks like the effort will not succeed. A number of young men who have volunteered but who are under age have not been able to secure the written consent of their parents, and others who do not have this trouble fall when the time comes to sign up. The best preparedness demonstration Wichita Falls could offer at this time would be the mustering in of a company of national guard. If this is not done and there are any considerable number of towns like Wichita Falls then the idea of universal voluntary military training that President Wilson has been talking about is as much a fantasy as his opponents have been saying it is.

After all the record of the administration and of the republican members of congress is to be made the issue in the coming campaign. The republican platform will declare for preparedness and for the assertion of American rights in our foreign relations. It will also probably declare for a tariff commission. The democrats have also declared for preparedness and have enacted a bill providing a large increase in the army and are about to enact a bill providing for a large increase in the navy. President Wilson and the party leaders are urging a tariff commission which will probably be created before the election. Both parties therefore will have about the same declarations. The issue in the campaign, therefore, will be the measure in which the administration has lived up to these declarations, and how well they have been supported by the republicans.

Colonel Roosevelt may not be able to secure the republican nomination for the presidency but he will likely be able to name the nominee and his views are almost certain to be incorporated in the platform. Too many of the delegates, it appears, were sent to Chicago for the purpose of preventing the nomination of any man but "some good republican," and there is small chance that these hand picked delegates can be stampeded into nominating the Colonel. Unable to secure the nomination himself the Colonel is able to veto the nomination of any other candidate who is not acceptable to him through the fear of the Old Guard that the former president will again lead a progressive split if his views are not met. The problem now before the Chicago convention is to select "some good republican" upon whom Mr. Roosevelt will place his "O. K." Now Mr. Roosevelt is in a position to be as independent as he pleases and it is going to be no small task for the Old Guard to find any man in their crowd who will be in good odor with Roosevelt. The latter has suggested General Wood as being entirely acceptable to him. It would not be surprising if at the end General Wood was not made the nominee. Democrats can only hope that the republicans nominate some really big man who will be a foeman worthy of democratic steel.

The battle in the North Sea last week between the German and English fleets is being cited as a reason why the naval bill now before congress should contain provision for several dreadnoughts. This fight was at first proclaimed a victory by the Germans, but a fight which left the English ships in possession of the sea and saw the German fleet scurrying for its home ports can not be considered as any great victory. It appears that a fleet of British battle cruisers engaged a fleet of German light cruisers and other vessels and that the British were led in the fight into contact with the big German battleships. The British were getting the worst of it until the big British dreadnoughts came up, when the odds were just as great against the Germans, who gave up the fight and returned to their home ports. Naval men point out that the lesson of the fight was the effectiveness of the battleships of the dreadnought type; that big ships and big guns are the determining factors in a sea battle. The naval bill as passed by the house contains no provision for additional ships of the dreadnought type. It does contain provision for a number of battle cruisers in which the American navy is lamentably weak. There is an expectation, after the battle in the North Sea, that the senate will add at least two dreadnoughts to the bill as it comes from that body and that the additions will be accepted when the bill reaches conference.

THE STATE TAX RATE. For our part, and we don't mind saying it, we regard the present State tax rate as perfectly outrageous. Whether the responsibility rests chiefly on Campbell or Colquitt or Ferguson, we don't pretend to know. Possibly it is shared and shared alike. But rest the blame where it may, the rate of taxation is indefensible, it seems to us. It will be said, of course, that the demands of the State government are constantly increasing. But the increase in assessed values should take care of all the enlargements. Now truth to tell, the State government has come to be a megalomaniac which there are many claimants, and the heavier the tax the more numerous the slices, and Jones, he pays the freight."

PARADE IN MEXICO. In Mexico, too, there are parades to give expression to Mexican sentiment, and we are told that in Monterey 15,000 were in line as a protest against the possibility of Americans trespassing the sovereignty of Mexico. It is stated that the parade was orderly although in the army and are about to enact a bill providing for a large increase in the navy. President Wilson and the party leaders are urging a tariff commission which will probably be created before the election. Both parties therefore will have about the same declarations. The issue in the campaign, therefore, will be the measure in which the administration has lived up to these declarations, and how well they have been supported by the republicans.

Those who know Mexico and the Mexicans have never been in doubt as to the attitude of the great mass of Mexicans toward the American people and the country, and it affords the United States authorities a good index of the nature of the problem which Mexico presents.

It is evident, too, that the military movements in Northern Mexico are not designed to suppress Mexican outlaws or to cooperate with the American forces to prevent the violation of American territory. They are aimed at the United States and are expected by the leaders and people alike to frighten the people of this country with the possibility of Mexican vengeance.

There is not the slightest misunderstanding of this in the minds of Scott, Farnston and Pershing. They know exactly the conditions which they are dealing with, and it is to be hoped that Washington is now thoroughly enlightened upon this point since the receipt of the unusually offensive note recently indicated by Carranza.

The disposition of the American troops at this time will likely prevent further violation of American territory for the present, but the Mexicans sooner or later will disclose their intentions by an organized attack and apparently that is what the Mexican people are demanding. So far as Villa and his bandits are concerned what they have done against the United States has won nothing but approval from them. The Mexican troops would scarcely tattle with Mexican sentiment now by punishment the Villistas at this time, because they feel that a common enemy is threatening them.

Thus it is seen the Villa was not so stupid as some suppose when he struck at American territory. He was largely discredited among his own people and it was to rehabilitate his rapidly waning prestige that he invaded this country. It was an appeal to Mexican hatred of us that met with a ready response.

All this is enlightening in its bearing upon our future relations with Mexico. It is cumulative evidence that there is no such thing as convincing Mexican leaders or people of the sentiment of humanity and helpfulness which President Wilson has so often expressed. Events will ultimately compel intervention, unless Mexico is to be irretrievably ruined, and intervention will evoke the fiercest resistance of which the Mexicans are capable.

Temporizing with conditions in that unfortunate country is but the moral, because it is not an agreeable task to undertake the salvation of a country that does not want to be saved and which will resist every reasonable effort to save it. But the inevitable can not be evaded. Sooner or later the accounting with Mexico must be had and when it begins, there will be intervention and war.

No man in authority can say now what the outcome will be or what the national demand will be when the task is ultimately accomplished. One thing is certain, no nation has ever attempted so extensive and expensive a job without compensation, and it would be futile for any statesman in or out of authority to attempt to interpret accurately what the national view will be when the Mexican problem shall have been completely solved.—Houston Post.

NEW MEXICO PARTY HERE THIS MORNING. Plans For Entertainment Abandoned, Will Stop Here Again on Their Back. After a rough and stormy trip through the Panhandle, five out of the original nine cars of the Colorado to Gulf Highway boosters from Las Vegas, N. M., who were due in Wichita Falls last night, reached this city at 10 o'clock this morning. They report a very pleasant trip until they reached Claude, where they were hit by a severe windstorm which caused them to abandon their four cars out of the runnins. The wind at Claude did much damage at that place, blowing down fences, barns and windmills.

The party spent last night at Vernon, leaving there at five o'clock this morning. Owing to their being so far behind the schedule the party made by the Chamber of Commerce for their entertainment were given over. In fact, the party had decided not to halt in Wichita Falls but had to wait a few hours on account of engine trouble developed by one of the cars.

Their revised plans call for a stop in Wichita Falls on their way back to Las Vegas. The cars here will proceed to Dallas, where they will reorganize and proceed with the tour. The other cars will rejoin the party in Dallas.

The object of the tourists is to persuade prospective tourists to take trips over the Colorado to Gulf Highway and to prevail on those contemplating tours to Las Vegas to join the party. The members of the party were well supplied with literature which they distributed en route. The tour is a very interesting one, and the scenery to be seen along the route, and points of interest in the vicinity of Las Vegas and surrounding territory.

While laying over in Wichita Falls the visitors took a stroll over the city and expressed themselves as surprised and pleased. Before it became known that the party had met trouble on the road, and were behind their schedule a party of three cars was made up here and proceeded to Electra to meet the visitors from the west. They were met by the party from the west, and they had hardly reached Electra when they were met by the party from the west, and they had hardly reached Electra when they were met by the party from the west.

HARDING URGES PARTY REUNION IN HIS ADDRESS

'KEYNOTE' DECLARES DEMOCRATIC ADMINISTRATION HAS BEEN 'DISTRESSING AND DISAPPOINTING' TO COUNTRY.

ATTACKS POLICIES

Says Foreign Relations Marked by More Rhetoric Than Resolution—Speaker Criticizes Many Acts of Wilson Administration.

SENATOR HARDING

By Associated Press. Chicago, June 7.—With a plea for reunion for reconstruction rather than recrimination, United States Senator Warren G. Harding, of Ohio, in his address as temporary chairman opened the Republican National convention here today. Asserting that the country was wearied afresh by a disappointing and distressing Democratic administration and was calling for Republican relief, before undertaking to discuss political issues, he appealed to the delegates to forget the differences which divided the party in 1912.

Referring to the administration's foreign policy in the European war Senator Harding declared that it had spoken with more rhetoric than resolution, Mexican negotiations be described as the greatest fiasco in American foreign relations. He paid tribute to American heroism in the birth with brief reference to the few zealous who would impugn the nation's neutrality and urged a fraternity of American Republicans under the Monroe Doctrine. Advocating adequate national defense he charged the Democratic party with having interrupted Republican naval construction and he criticized the army reorganization bill. He also attacked the administration's shipping policy, the effort made to extend independence to the Philippines and made a plea for a return to the protective tariff.

"We did not do very well in making for harmony the last time we met," the chairman said in his appeal for harmony. "The country has regretted, let us forget—and make amends to our country. We did not divide over fundamental principles. We did not disagree over a national policy. We split over methods of party procedure and preferred personalities. Let us forget the differences, and find new inspiration and new compensation in an united endeavor to restore the country."

"Republican principles are in a vast majority in this country—when the banners of harmony are unfurled. We have witnessed the combats of our party in various states. We have seen the re-enlistment of those who believe in Republican doctrine. Victory has followed and rebelling has attended. No apology has been asked, no forsaking required. This is not the time for recrimination, it is the day of reconsecration. "Rededication here and now the Republican party to the principles and glory of the republic, let us bury party prejudices with the administration which our differences put in power. I do not believe there is a really reactionary Republican bearing credentials to this convention, if there is, he will depart, after our deliberations solely and proudly a Republican, with heart aglow with the party spirit of 1916. And the welcome delegate who emphasizes the importance of his part in making our party a reflex of the best thought and best intent of sincere combatants, the splits and the quarrels of the American people, thereby strengthening party purpose instead of magnifying individual belief and he, too, will find new rejoicing in being a Republican. No party can endure which is not progressive. "The world at war, preparedness and America's foreign relations served as the basis for the senator's first discussion of the issues. The enormity of the war in Europe, the tidal wave of distress and disaster, new wonders and new hindrances in commerce had utterly changed economic conditions and "these have attended embarrassments in American foreign relations," he said, "as difficult as those which the individual citizen experiences whose every neighbor is involved in deadly quarrel."

Wilson's Foreign Policies. "Everything abnormal except the depleted condition of the federal treasury, which is characteristic of Democratic control," he said, "and the facility of the administration in writing varied notes without effective notice. Amid these conditions, America has asserted had been singled out for leadership among the neutral powers, but the administration at Washington spoke with more rhetoric than resolution, and we came to realize that the warring powers soon came to now that the official American voice lacked the volume of demanded international head, and we lacked the strength and confidence in our own defenses. "In the discussion of foreign relations the temporary chairman made particular reference to Americanism to the course with Mexico and with Europe. Beginning with Americanism he traced it back to independence days when there were Americans from Great Britain, from Germany, from France and southern Europe who made a common cause. Since that time, he said, America's gates had swung inward to the foreign born and "they are an inseparable and important and valued part of our American citizenship, and the new zealots of any origin who violate our neutrality do not, and can not, impugn the loyalty of the American patriotism of that great body which adds to the swelling chorus of 'My country 'tis of thee, Sweet land of liberty.'"

Expressing reluctance to speak of the division of American sentiment relating to foreign affairs, Senator Harding discussed briefly the Mexican problem. "It must be said, for the truth's sake and clearer understanding, we have hungered in vain for that unflinching Americanism at Washington which is needed to exalt the American soul," he declared. "There is no geographic modification of American rights. They are the same in Mexico, they are the same in the high seas, they are the same in Europe that they are in Asia, and are sacred everywhere and the American spirit demands their fullest protection."

Course in Mexico. "Whatever the ultimate solution may be, history will write Mexico as the title to the humiliating recital of the greatest fiasco in our foreign relations. Uncertainty, instability, Mexican contempt and waning self-respect will be recorded in every chapter, and the pitiable story of sacrificed American lives and the destruction of lawfully held American property will emphasize the mistaken policy of watchful waiting and wobbling warfare."

"Under the pretext of non-interference the Democratic administration miserably meddled. In the name of peace that same administration encouraged revolution, and the cost of American sacrifices was charged needless war on Huerta, where the real American expenditure required only the voice of authority demanding protection to American rights. The unbiased critic will recite that the Democratic administration first coddled Villa as a patriot, then chased him as a bandit."

Respecting America's course with Europe the temporary chairman asserted that no political party could draw a "variable chart for our ship of state amid Europe's warring ambitions." "Justice," he continued, "points the way through the safe channel of neutrality. There are dangers, seeming or real, looming on every side, but we should feel secure along the course marked by international law and our own conscientious convictions of American rights. Straight ahead shall be the command, and when peace comes the sober judgment of the world will exalt us ever higher and higher as a people strong in heart and noble in the espousal of justice and justice's humanity. In that worldwide respect and confidence which needs only to be preserved, we shall have a lofty place in the great reconstruction, and we reasonably may hope to see his mighty republic again ministering to the re-establishment of peace and all its precious blessings."

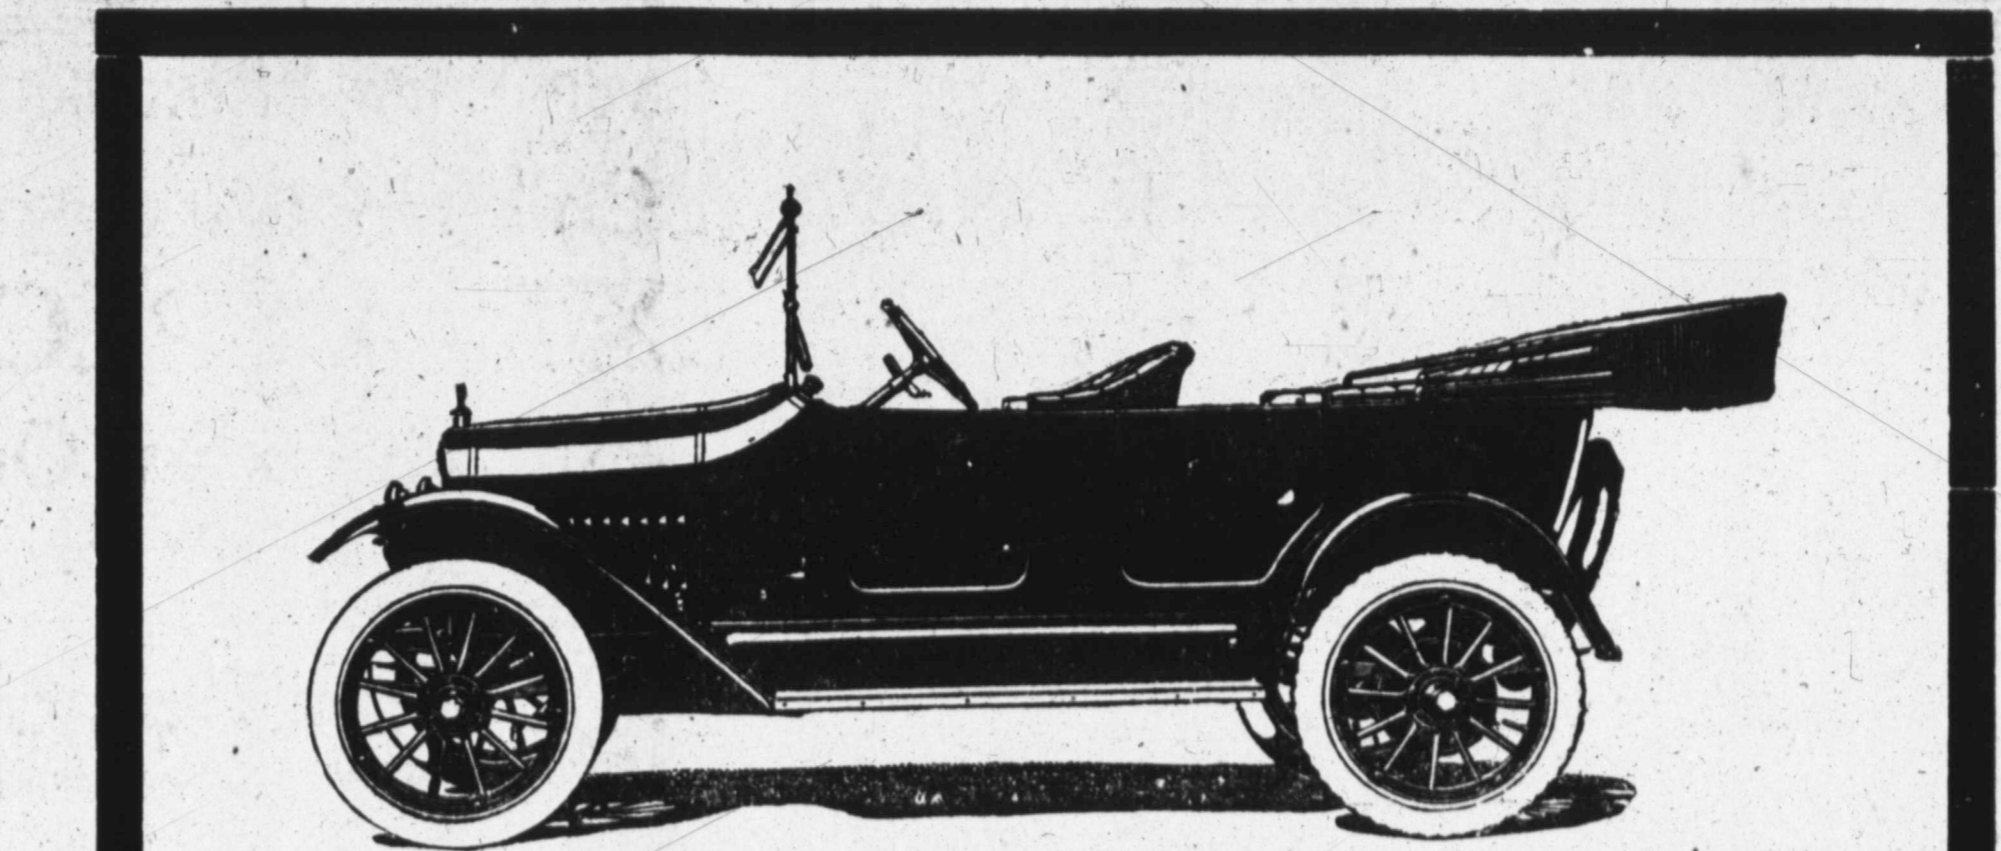

In connection with foreign affairs the senator also discussed widened relationships of the United States declaring that if this government is to urge the world's attention to international justice and to become the agency of a progressive civilization it "must assume the responsibilities of influence and example and accept the burdens of enlarged participation. The cloistered life is not possible to the potential man or the potential nation. Moreover, the Monroe Doctrine, stronger for a century's maintenance, fixes an obligation of new world sponsorship and old world relationship. Our part must not be neglectful, it must be trusted leadership in a fraternity of American republics."

National Defense. The senator declared America had been negligent concerning its own defense and had been dwelling in fancied rather than real security and should heed the "warning in bleeding Europe." Republicans, he said, believed in adequate national defense. The Democratic party, he insisted, interrupted when the Republicans were building to high rank among the naval powers. "I shall not say that it is ours to have the greatest navy in the world," said the senator, "but noting the elimination of distance and the passing of our one-time isolation, we ought to have a navy that fears none in the world, and can say anytime and anywhere—these are American rights and must be respected."

"There are manifest differences about our developments for military defense," he continued. "The president made a trip from the coast to the valley of the Missouri to tell the American people the need of preparedness. It might have been more seemly to tell the story to Congress, for that body was in session and empowered to act, and seemingly ever ready to testify obedience. However, Congress undertook to provide an army for defense and the majority wobbled between inaction, and preparedness until the Republican minority in the Senate put something real in the pending measure. We, Republicans made a rational response to the call of the land, but Democratic insufficiency and inefficiency are recorded in the record of our one-time isolation. We, Republicans made a rational response to the call of the land, but Democratic insufficiency and inefficiency are recorded in the record of our one-time isolation."

Pleads For Protection. Turning to economies the senator pleaded for a return to the protective tariff policy. He chose he said "the economic policy which sends the American workmen to the savings banks rather than the soup houses." "No one," the senator said, "disputes a temporary prosperity in our land today. But it is sectional, its factory aspect, abnormal, in its fevered rush, fetitious in its essentials and perverting in its tendency. We see it is the gold sluiced from the river of blood, poured out by the horrifying sacrifice of million of our fellowmen. God forbid that we should boast a prosperity wrought in such waste of human life. We had rather rejoice in the prosperity of peace."

Discussing the Democratic party briefly the senator said it had "proclaimed the sacredness of its pledges and then, when the hour came, it had espoused the freedom of the seas and wrought only the freedom of the Panama Canal" and had "professed economy and is staggered by its own extravagance." He attacked the shipping bill charged with instigating an attempt to rob the provincial treasury. One of the treasury guards was murdered by the robbers but they were arrested before they could secure any booty.

A Timely Warning

ELEVEN well-known automobiles have advanced in price within the last ninety days.

The Maxwell Company has not increased their prices. We do not know what their plans are, but we do know and you know that materials entering into the construction of good automobiles now cost from 20 to 300 per cent more than they did six months ago.

Nothing is to be gained by delay. Much may be lost.

Not only may you lose several dollars in the purchase price, but you are sacrificing the enjoyment, the relaxation, the health-giving properties—everything, in fact, that makes motoring the favorite pastime of the nation.

We urge you to come in and investigate the Maxwell.

Or, we will refer you to any number of Maxwell owners and let them tell you their own story in their own way.

They will tell you what they have told us. That the Maxwell is good-looking—that it is powerful—that it is comfortable—that it is economical—in short, that it is the best investment they ever made. They will tell you more and they will tell you gladly and freely.

That's the way they feel toward us and the Maxwell Car.

Whatever you do, don't be off. We have a few cars on hand and can take orders for immediate or future delivery—at present prices. If you can't come in today, phone us for a Maxwell demonstration.

"Although the immediate interests which now control our gathering together have reference to our own national issues, we would not forget the warring, suffering nations of the earth. We pray Thee to bring them speedily, if it be Thy holy will, to terms of peace and conditions of adjustment. "We bow before Thee and pausing quietly, ask Thy blessing before entering upon the deliberations of this convention. As Thou dost order the affairs of men, so frame the doings of this great body. Save from all haste and ill spoken word. Control judgments, purposes, plans and platform that all may have Thy pure mind of wisdom and strength. May the men of Thy choice be our choice, and may motive, method and result center in Thy sure laws of right and in Thy lasting victories of truth and righteousness. "Direct, suggest, control, this day. All we design or do or say: That all our powers, with all their might, In Thy full glory may unite. "We ask all in the name of our common Master and Lord. Amen."

In "THE PAINTED SOUL" Miss Barriscale does some of the most remarkable work of her career in this 4 act feature, she impersonates a girl of the streets, who undergoes before our eyes a marvelous spiritual change, from a sordid, defiant creature of the night courts, she becomes a transfigured being, awakened at last to the possibilities of her womanhood, an ideal of womanly perfection.

AT THE THEATRES

The Empress. Bessie Barriscale is starred at the Empress today in "The Painted Soul." Charles Ray supports her in the role of Barnard, an artist. A synopsis follows: Barnard completes a study in oils which he calls "The Resurrection." It represents a beautiful, dark woman, her awakened soul shining from her eyes. At a private exhibit in studio the painting causes a sector deal of admiring comment and Barnard's mother, a society leader and an art connoisseur, admires the work so much that she virtually "imprisons" her son that night. A few days later, she is the delight of her being a sordid girl of the underworld who has come to the night courts and persuaded to become his model for "The Fallen Woman." Irene Brock, once she has met the artist, is attracted to his ideal, and voluntarily revolts against the hideousness of her environment. The trade she has been accustomed to ply in saloon dance-halls and low resorts becomes a torture to her. Day by day Irene watches the new painting grow. But she is changing. Barnard, feeling that something is unsatisfactory, and that he will be unable to paint from his model "The Fallen Woman" of his imagination, reluctantly brings the artist to a detective. The moment of parting precipitates an emotional crisis. Love, for the first time, has dawned in the girl's soul, and Barnard, moved by a profound sympathy, takes her in her arms. It is in this position that the young artist's mother finds them. She diplomatically conceals her horror, while smilingly asserting that "the model never be." Irene goes away, struggling to be resigned. But the young artist, fired by a self-sacrificing love, refuses to let his mother's episode. At last, the mother seeks Irene in her squalid lodging. "Such a marriage," she pleads with the girl, "would make my son a social outcast. Your love could not always make him forget."

The Majestic. A striking contrast of the manhood of the East and of the West is strongly pictured in "Ben Blair," the "alias conviction at the Majestic today on the Paramount program. In the scene where Ben, the unpolished westerner, goes to force an issue with Sidwell, the society favorite who has supplanted him in Florence Winthrop's favor, the two American types are exemplified. Blair finds Sidwell drinking heavily with congenial friends and on their departure, his western blood forces him to say "You're the only obstacle between me and the woman I love." "Can you tell me an reason why I shouldn't remove that obstacle? But his western blood also makes him bow to the seeming truth in Sidwell's answer "Yes, a good reason—she loves me and she doesn't love you." Crocher thoughts and past memories later make him doubt this statement. He goes to Florence's father with a plan that awakens the chairman's admiration and support and brings this strong Western drama to a successful finish.

The Gem. Jane Gail and Matt Moore are the principals in a feature picture, "Why Mrs. Kentworth Lied" at the Gem today. Miss Gail takes the role of Mrs. Kentworth. For the young wife of an elderly millionaire to be found at midnight beside the open library safe with her husband's money and undisturbed, and a smoking revolver between them, with her collection of jewels gone, looked bad for the side. Quinby, the detective, thought so, too, but when retained by the lawyer of the millionaire to quietly investigate the case, he set about learning the truth. For this purpose he first consulted his card index and learned that Eben Kentworth, the husband had married some years before his present wife, then a well-known chorus girl and model, with a score of love affairs behind her. Mr. Quinby then secured the vacant post of butler and in his disguise was enabled to see and hear everything.

SAVES DAUGHTER Advice of Mother no Doubt Prevents Daughter's Untimely End. I cannot tell you how I suffered with my head, and with nervousness and womanly troubles. Our family doctor told my husband he could not do me any good, and he had to give it up. We tried another doctor, but he did not help me. At last, my mother advised me to take Cardui, the woman's tonic. I thought it was no use for I was nearly dead and nothing seemed to do me any good. But I took eleven bottles, and now I am able to do all of my work and my own washing. I think Cardui is the best medicine in the world. My weight has increased, and I look the picture of health. He did not know that on the day of the attempted murder, Mrs. Kentworth had received a threatening note which caused her agitation. So alarmed did she become that after the departure of her husband on a business trip, she telephoned to the writer of the note—a man in room 37 of the Eureka Hotel—making an appointment with him in her library. She opened the window and awaited the coming of her caller. He renewed his threats and demanded money and when Mrs. Kentworth told him her husband had left her nothing, the man offered to take her jewels in lieu of cash.

Frightened and desperate, Mrs. Kentworth let him enter the safe and apparently rob her of the gems that night. To this the man agreed. Up stairs Mrs. Kentworth lies in bed, her eyes fastened upon her wrist watch, waiting for the "robbery" to be despatched. Mr. Kentworth makes an unexpected return for a forgotten document and discovers the robber Mrs. Kentworth bears the suspicious shyness and fall. Of course she knows the identity of the thief, although he had hardly been seen by the millionaire. Later Mrs. Kentworth tries to convince the score of detectives and policeman that she knows nothing, but they are skeptical. Meanwhile Quinby, the butler, becomes active. During Mrs. Kentworth's third degree in the library, he listens at the door and when she is driven nearly to madness, Quinby quietly enters with his silver tray and says, "Beg pardon, ma'am don't worry—right will come right." Quinby in his mysterious way finds out everything, brings husband and wife together and settles all difficulties in a highly-interesting way.

SCHOOL TRUSTEES ELECT TEACHERS

Architects Are Selected For Addition to High School at Meeting Tuesday. Completion of the task of electing teachers for the coming year and the selection of architects to draw up plans for the addition to the high school building were the chief things of import that came up at the meeting of the school board last night. Sanguni and Straits of Fort Worth, and C. J. Pate of this city were selected by the board to present plans and specifications and to make a report to the building committee.

American Citizens. In practice there is no such thing as a "citizen of the United States." Such "citizens" is about as mythical as the mermaid. In order to vote, for instance, one must bring his citizenship down to the concrete and become a citizen of New York, or of some one of the other states. You cannot vote in New York unless you are a citizen of New York, and the same is true of all the other states. The "citizen of the United States" is a very vague gentleman.

Drilling on Evert Farm Near Bacon Will Get Shallow Sand, Says W. C. Pope

Drilling is now under way on an important wild cat test southeast of the Burk Burnett field, where the Jackson-Boyd Oil Company, composed of a number of local parties, started a well this week. The location is on the Evert farm, about six miles southeast of the Burk Burnett field and about the same distance from Iowa Park.

The company has about 3000 acres under lease in the country north of Bacon, which is a district where a strike would mean a great deal. There have been some wells drilled in the same general region, resulting in dry holes, but the territory is not considered condemned, as the location is some distance from any previous efforts. In connection with the drilling of this well, W. C. Pope, who is drilling the bonus well just northwest of the city, and who professes to have a method by which he locates his wells, has written the company, following in visit to the well. He says that a sand will be reached at 415 feet and he has suggested to the company that care be taken after reaching 370 feet to avoid drilling through this sand, which he believes will make a small well. Mr. Pope says he realizes that oil men have little faith in his methods but he is confident he knows. Most of those who profess to be able to locate oil, Mr. Pope points out, do not attempt to say at what depth it will be reached, but he gives the exact number of feet. In the well which he is drilling on the Evert farm, he declares that he will get oil at 420 feet. While the efficacy of Mr. Pope's methods is doubted by oil men, he has full confidence in them himself.

WICHITAN MAY BE ACCIDENT VICTIM

The storm of Monday night on the Mississippi river has probably claimed among its toll the husband of a Wichita Falls woman, Mrs. C. D. Wales, 807 Eighth street, he was on the steamboat Elmer, which capsized during the hurricane. Mr. Wales was the owner of the theatrical company, the Wales Players which gave performances on the Mississippi and the company had chartered the steamboat Elmer which plied up and down the river, also carrying passengers. Mrs. Wales' first intimation of the disaster was received from the meager press dispatches, telling of the capsizing of the boat with the result, a loss of crew and passengers. No mention was made of survivors and telegraphic communication was unavailable. An effort is being made to secure additional information. The press dispatches give the name of the boat as "Elmer" while the name of the boat on which Mr. Wales traveled was spelled "Elenora" according to Mrs. Wales who clings to the hope that the boat may be a different one. However, it is most probable that the name was misspelled in wire transmission.

WICHITAN MAY BE ACCIDENT VICTIM

The storm of Monday night on the Mississippi river has probably claimed among its toll the husband of a Wichita Falls woman, Mrs. C. D. Wales, 807 Eighth street, he was on the steamboat Elmer, which capsized during the hurricane. Mr. Wales was the owner of the theatrical company, the Wales Players which gave performances on the Mississippi and the company had chartered the steamboat Elmer which plied up and down the river, also carrying passengers. Mrs. Wales' first intimation of the disaster was received from the meager press dispatches, telling of the capsizing of the boat with the result, a loss of crew and passengers. No mention was made of survivors and telegraphic communication was unavailable. An effort is being made to secure additional information. The press dispatches give the name of the boat as "Elmer" while the name of the boat on which Mr. Wales traveled was spelled "Elenora" according to Mrs. Wales who clings to the hope that the boat may be a different one. However, it is most probable that the name was misspelled in wire transmission.

Remember

What we have told you in our advertisements time after time. Wichita Falls cannot make a city without the restricted district of FLORAL HEIGHTS being the cream of the residence section. Everyone must admit that this is the logical place for expensive homes. Lots in this district are very cheap and with the next little sprin in real estate they will doubt and treble in value. We are the agents for all unsold lots. Come to our office and let us show you some real bargains in city property and farm lands.

Our First Duty

is to the living of course, but there is positively no excuse for the neglecting of plots and graves in Riverside cemetery when each one can make their part of the cemetery beautiful with a little time and effort.
You owe it to the citizenship and to your friends who love and trust you to assist us in making these sacred grounds the most beautiful place within our city limits.
Don't say you CAN'T for the word is not in the dictionary, and I am sure it is not in the minds of true-blooded, warm hearted Wichita Falls citizens.
