CIVILIAN TRAINING CAMP OPENS TODAY NEAR SAN ANTONIO.

4 WEEKS HARD WORK

Will Receive Instruction Designed to Fit Them for Army Service if Needed.

By Associated Press.

San Antonio, Texas, June 12.—Miniature warfare, fundamentals of military training, campaign marching, simplified rifle and bayonet, the elements of defending one's country in time of war, should their services be needed will have the foremost place on the four weeks' program of the Citizen's Military Training Camp which was opened today at Fort Sam Houston, under the personal direction of Major General Frederick Funston, commander of the Southern department, United States Army.

An enrollment of upwards of 500 Texans, young and old, business and professional men, laborers and state officials, was expected by the time the camp had become well established. The citizen's camp has been named for the late General Cecil A. Lyon, former brigade commander of the Texas National Guard, and an active factor in promoting the efficiency of the Texas militia. It is the first camp of its kind to be held in Texas. The work for the coming four weeks is patterned after those institutions at Plattsburg, New York, and Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia. Instruction will be divided into two sections: permanent work and on-the-march. Instructions in camp work will consist of drills, ceremonies, practical demonstrations and preparations for target practice and range work. While on the march the citizen-soldiers will be taught the study and application of the principles of reconnaissance, marching, camping and combat work.

Instructions will be in charge of officers of the regular army, especially detailed for this service, who will have companies of infantry and troops of cavalry at their disposal in order to make the demonstrations and applications more effective. The curriculum of the training camp includes all the rudiments of military training that ordinary soldiers could possibly use until becoming campaign-hardened by experience. In this course of study there appear the following subjects:

Drill, practical demonstrations, preparation for target practice, principles of reconnaissance, principles of marching, principles of camping, principles of combat, optional work and lectures. During the course of the camp, a march will be made under service conditions and against an enemy, to Leon Springs target range, a distance of about 25 miles from the army post. On this march the situation will be so arranged from day to day that the training regiment will make a victorious march against the enemy, and have an opportunity to practice all the principles of marching and camping, reconnaissance and combat.

The days spent at Leon Springs will be for target practice with rifle and machine gun, practice of field engineering and combat exercises in conjunction with troops of the regular army.

On the return march to Fort Sam Houston conditions will be reversed. The training regiment will be a defeated command attempting to make a safe retreat being constantly harassed by cavalry, which is trying to cut it off and destroy its wagon trains. Members of the camp who have had previous military training to be qualified to be appointed corporals and sergeants and others who qualify will be eligible to such appointments as camp progresses. The rank of lieutenant is possible to be reached. Some of the state's most prominent men were expected to be members of the camp, including state officials and members of the legislature. Brown of San Antonio, E. E. Tye of Fort Worth and Henry D. Lindsey of Dallas have already enrolled.

R. E. HUFF LEAVES FOR CONVENTION

Expects Suffrage Issue to Furnish Only Contest—Was in Baltimore in 1912

Judge R. E. Huff left last night for Dallas, where he today joined the Texas delegation to the national democratic convention which opens at St. Louis Wednesday. Judge Huff and J. W. Sullivan, of Denton are the delegates from this congressional district.

Projects of a scrap were considered remote at St. Louis by Judge Huff, the suffrage issue furnishing the only promise of any campaign. He does not believe that the success of the suffrage organizations for a vote for women plank in the platform will be granted. A similar request of the Republican convention was not granted, although there is a suffrage plank in the Progressive platform.

This Judge Huff's second national convention, he having been a delegate to the Baltimore convention which nominated Wilson in 1912. Texas was a more important factor than she has been credited with. The Texas democrats instructed for Wilson at a time his cause was wan and somewhat unavailing. Several of the delegates at first wanted to nominate Bryan, but after balloting started, efforts to win him away from Wilson were unavailing. Several trades and compromises were offered, but Texas stood firm for Wilson. It was reported that Senator Culberson was presented as a compromise candidate in an effort to switch the Texas' votes, but this was turned down Texans being finally rewarded by seeing their choice keep the necessary two-thirds vote. No such fight is expected this year, the nomination of Wilson on the first ballot being a certainty. The first ballot being a certainty. The first ballot being a certainty. The first ballot being a certainty.

DR. R. C. MILLER PREACHES AT SPECIAL SERVICE SUNDAY MORNING.

CITES OBLIGATIONS

Discusses Significance of Friendship, Love and Truth Links in I. O. O. F. Chain.

Friendship, Love and Truth—the three links in the chain which is the emblem of the I. O. O. F.—formed the theme of Dr. R. C. Miller Sunday morning in delivering the sermon at the annual memorial service of that order, at the First Baptist Church. The pastor took as his text the words of Christ, answering his questioners, the Pharisees, "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's; and unto God the things that are God's." A large number of the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs, wearing the insignia of their orders, marched to the church and took seats in the section reserved for them. The service opened with special music by the choir and Dr. Miller used the text quoted above to illustrate that man has a double obligation to his fellow man, and to his Maker. It was in explaining the duty to one's fellowman that he brought out the significance of the three links in the Odd Fellows' chain. Taking up the text, Dr. Miller said that Christ gave this answer to the Pharisees and Herodians who were trying to entrap him, and who resolved to ask him the question "Is it right to pay tribute to Caesar?" believing that if Christ answered in the affirmative he would incur the displeasure of Caesar. But Christ, he pointed out, by giving the answer quoted in the text, brought confusion to his questioners.

Speaking of the order of Odd Fellows, the pastor said that it originated in England in the eighteenth century, probably about 1743, being known at first as the Society of Friends, of which the present organization is the outgrowth, being maintained through the years until it took the name it now bears, being organized as such in 1815. It was first established in Texas in 1838 at Houston, he said, and its present membership was about 2,200,000, while the Rebekahs with a membership of about 750,000, gave a total of nearly 3,000,000. He paid a tribute to the high moral standards of its membership, mentioning certain classes not admitted. "Its moral standards are of the highest," he said, "but in the lodge, as in the church, not everyone lives up to those standards."

The order had no insurance provisions, he continued, its purposes being fraternal and benevolent, and its activities of this kind were not confined to its members. He discussed its provisions for the aged, for the sick and for the orphans, citing his own experiences with the institutions maintained by the order.

PASTOR MENTIONS BROOKS' SPEAKING

Calls Attention to Candidate Who Has Been Long in Service of Church.

The fact that Dr. S. P. Brooks, candidate for the United States Senate, was formerly head of the leading Baptist institution of the state and has been for years a prominent worker in the church, brought him the rather unusual distinction of having attention called in church to the fact that he is to speak here tomorrow night.

Dr. R. C. Miller, pastor of the First Baptist Church, in making the customary announcements Sunday morning, took occasion to mention Dr. Brooks' speaking appointment. He said that while political announcements were unusual from the pulpit, he felt that Dr. Brooks' service to the church, and his stalwart manhood, was it appropriate that the members be urged to hear him speak. "You ought to go hear him," said Dr. Miller, "whether you vote for him or not is a matter for you to decide for yourself."

The commencement exercises of the music students of Mrs. Ida M. Harrison will be held Tuesday evening, June 13 at the Knights of Columbus hall, known as the old Catholic church. An unusually interesting program is promised. A small admission will be charged.

HUGHES' CAREER ONE OF ACTIVITY

LIKE WILSON HE IS MINISTER'S SON AND FORMER COLLEGE PROFESSOR.

RECORD IS NOTABLE

Work in Insurance Investigations is First to Attract Attention of Public.

It will be a professor against a professor in this year's presidential campaign and those Republicans who have been protesting in favor of Wilson as "professor" will find something of the sort in their own household.

Both Hughes and Wilson are ministers' sons. The Republican nominee's father having been a Baptist divine.

Charles Evans Hughes was born in Glens Falls, N. Y., April 11, 1862, making him four years younger than former President Roosevelt and six years younger than President Wilson.

His father was a Baptist minister and his mother was a devout woman who shaped his early education with the idea of preparing him for the ministry. The family moved to New York, N. Y., when he was a boy and during his young manhood settled in New York City.

At the beginning of his career Mr. Hughes was an instructor in Greek and mathematics at an academy in Delhi, N. Y. He later became principal of that academy to the effect that young Hughes would have trouble controlling the discipline of his classes because he had "heard that an egg" is cited in numerous biographical records of Mr. Hughes as having been responsible for the Hughes beard, which has since figured so largely in political caricatures.

After a short experience as an educator Mr. Hughes became a law clerk in the office of Stewart L. Woodward, who later was elected Lieut. Gov. of the State of New York, but his local work was interrupted by his work and he accepted a chair as professor of law at Cornell University. Two years later, however, he was back practicing law in New York.

The public first heard of Mr. Hughes in 1905 and 1906. It was in those years he served, first as counsel for the Stevens legislative committee, investigating the gas companies of New York and then as counsel for the Armstrong legislative committee for the investigation of insurance business in New York.

In the insurance investigation, however, his reputation was made and the whole country followed the dramatic story he revealed.

Before his investigation was half finished, however, republican leaders seized upon the record which he had made to carry their party to victory in the 1908 election. The republican convention nominated him for mayor, but he declined because he had not finished the insurance investigation.

The next year, when W. R. Hearst was nominated for governor by both the Democrats and the Independence League, Mr. Hughes was selected by the Republicans as the man to defeat the fusion candidate and he was elected, the only Republican on the State ticket who was not defeated at the election. Throughout his administration as governor he was at loggerheads with the Republican organization.

He first urged the passage of the public service commission law, telling the legislature that a railroad commission paid by the railroads and with only advisory powers was inadequate. Little attention was paid to the proposed measure in the legislature and Governor Hughes took the question to the people. He stump the State for his bill and finally the legislature responded.

Hardly had the bill become a law before the legislature passed a 2c passenger fare measure. Governor Hughes vetoed it on the ground that a legislature could not deal arbitrarily provided machinery for investigating, particularly when it had provided machinery for investigating such matters and had granted power to relieve a situation as justice and reason might demand.

As a member of the court his clearness of comprehension and his ability of concise statement led to his selection by the chief justice in even the first years of his service to write most of the important decisions rendered by the court. Among these were the so-called State rate cases, the pure food law decision and the Virginia-West Virginia debt case.

Justice Hughes also wrote the decision upholding the Oklahoma Jim Crow law, applying to interstate commerce, and the decision in the case of the United States against the Court in its action in annulling an unconstitutional Kansas statute making it a criminal offense for an employer to require an employee to agree not to join a union. He also dissented in the Leo M. Frank case, Justice Holmes in holding that Frank had not been accorded a fair trial.

Mr. Hughes was married in New York City, Dec. 1888. Annette, daughter of Walter S. Carter and she have four children.

ENGLAND HAS REDUCED DRUNKENNESS 50 PER CENT SINCE WAR STARTED

By Associated Press. London. (By Mail)—The results of the resolute methods applied by England to the regulation of drink problems nine months ago, after the first lessons of the war's demands had been learned, are discussed in an interview with a correspondent of The Associated Press by Lord D'Abernon, chairman of the Central Liquor Traffic Control Board, the organization having the work in hand.

Briefly, in areas accounting for 29 out of the 43 million population over which the board has extended its influence it has reduced public drunkenness roughly by 50 per cent. The new regulations, however, will not extend beyond England, Scotland and Wales.

One of Lord D'Abernon's most striking statements was his forecast that were the problem of intemperance attacked with vigor and skill three-fourths of the drink evil might never occur.

"That of course is one man's opinion only," he emphasized, "but I believe it is fully justified in the light of what we have been fortunate enough to learn. I don't want to make the mistake of painting the picture in too rosy a light. There is certainly a tremendous work ahead, even though the mist do appear to be parting some."

"Bear in mind that prohibition, as I understand its application in the United States and Canada is largely rural, while these figures I have given refer to the cities. They compare with your and the Canadian claims in the prohibition areas of reductions of about 66 per cent."

"One of the first points to bear in mind in grasping the situation here is that in the years immediately preceding the outbreak of the war both the consumption of alcohol and the number of convictions for public drunkenness were steadily increasing."

"Also, in the past good trade has always coincided with an increase in consumption of alcohol. It is disappointing, therefore, to realize that in 1914-15 increased taxation of alcohol, the temperance propaganda, and the licensing regulations in force, which here before had resulted in an average annual decline of about 1,000 licenses, had not been sufficient to counteract the influence of good trade and high wages."

"In attempting to present a fair reflection of the situation, however, I must give you a brighter side of the picture. This concerns the highly gratifying readiness with which the public has shown itself willing to accept the drastic regulations of the past nine months."

"You may attribute this truly remarkable attitude, I believe, to the public's belief that the restrictions are in reality war necessities, and their willingness in a great crisis to subordinate personal convenience to national efficiency."

"Among the public at large it is remarkable also that there is widespread and practically general approval of such provisions as that prohibiting treating. When a law interfering with a right as sacred to the Englishman as that of personal liberty that of drinking is not only accepted but welcomed by a large portion of the population, you may see how the nation is welded to win the war. Likewise the law that prohibits the extension of credit in alcohol sales and that prohibits the distillation of spirits have not only been approved, but elicited little or no criticism."

"It is true, of course, that more difference exists regarding the restriction of hours. The board has attempted to confine the consumption of alcohol to hours conflicting least with the working day and coinciding best with ordinary meal hours."

"One of the best outward results of the board's work is the reducing in the number of convictions for drunkenness with aggravations, aggravations usually representing disorder and assault. The reduction in the number of these cases has been even greater than in the number of simple drunkenness. While not explained this feature is proving of vast interest to all students of the problem."

"We are not only pleased to note the reduction in public intemperance and of convictions referred to, but to observe that they have been steadily maintained in areas in which our work is in force, having been no falling back from the best level reached."

"The government's success in inducing Lord D'Abernon to assume the direction of the important and pressing work confronting the liquor traffic board was considered a good omen from the start. He is one of the best known and financial experts of the empire. He is also now chairman of the Dominions Royal Trade Commission, and has been governor of the Egyptian government, as well as the holder of other appointments of distinction."

No one who has closely studied the present method of administration can fail to realize how ineffective and extravagant the present mode of retailing alcohol to the public is," said Lord D'Abernon, "and it is probable that the same argument holds good in a sense also in the United States and Canada. I mean the corresponding excess of emptiness resulting."

"Licensed houses are not only too numerous from the standpoint of public order and the police—we all seem to realize that—but they consume far too much of the public's money from the point of trade efficiency. They should be made to see that the same net profit could be realized from licensed houses reduced in number by 50 or 40 per cent. Reformers have talked so much about the swollen profits of brewing trade that many brewers here fail to realize how small their profits are in comparison with"

Second week of revival at Walnut Street Mission

Tonight's services at the Walnut Street Mission will open the second week of the revival at that church which is being conducted by Rev. R. C. Miller, pastor of the First Baptist Church. The meeting has been unusually successful, a number of conversions and accessions to the church having resulted from the first week's services. Services will be held each night this week with the exception of Tuesday night. Special music has been furnished by Miss Katherine Cook and T. H. Bennett. The attendance so far has been quite large.

County Commissioners Fix Same Salary For J. W. Campbell, Has Not Accepted

William Danzer of Denton, district agent for the federal department of agriculture appeared before the county commissioners court at this morning's session and asked them to increase the salary allowed J. W. Campbell, county demonstration agent. However, the commissioners court voted to continue Mr. Campbell on his present salary of $80 per month. So far Mr. Campbell has not signified whether he will accept or not. G. F. Chapman, constable at Iowa Park was fined $10 for failing to make any report. Mr. Chapman's explanation of the fact was that in more than a year as constable at Iowa Park he has not had a single fine to collect and consequently had no report to make. No other business other than the usual routine business such as examining reports, and allowing bills and claims came up for the court's consideration. Wednesday the court will begin sittings as a board of equalization to hear complaints from taxpayers whose renditions for taxes have been raised and wish to contest them.

WHISKEY FAILS TO BE REVEALED

CORNER STONE OF OLD COURT HOUSE IS OPENED THIS AFTERNOON.

MANY RELICS FOUND

Newspapers, Coins, Rattlesnake Rattles and Binder Catalogue Are Uncovered. No quart of whiskey made its appearance when Judge Harris uncapped the corner stone of the old Wichita county court house at half past twelve today in the presence of a small crowd. Instead there were found two newspapers, some small coins, the rattles of a rattlesnake, a piece of pencil, a five-pointed wooden star, a rough plan of the court house, a catalogue of the McCormick Harvester Co., and several business and professional cards. The newspapers were both weeklies, and bore the date of May 16, 1885. One of them, the Colorado Clipper, was printed at Colorado, Texas, and the other, the Wichita Herald, was printed here. The coins consisted of an English penny, date 1872, a German pfennig 1875, a five-cent piece, date illegible, a dime 1876, and four one-cent pieces of 1869, 1873, 1880 and 1884. The rattles which contributed the rattles was evidently a big one, there being eight large rattles and a button. The catalogue bore a lengthy description of the McCormick binder, then a new and wonderful invention. The star bore several names, among them W. E. Brothers, county and district clerk, G. C. Mayes, M. Brodrick, Quinn & Koch, Dodson & Dudley, and Kelly & Napier. Judge Harris plans to put the articles taken from the stone on exhibition in some window downtown, which will be announced later.

PILE DRIVER BEGINS RIVER WORK TODAY

Efforts to Change Channel Further North Are Now Under Way

Work started this morning on the river front improvements which are planned to prevent further encroachments of the water upon the south bank. The pile driver arrived last night and the first piles were driven this morning at the foot of Burnett street. From the site of the suspension bridge the line of piling extends to a point well north of the present low water channel in such a way as to eliminate the bend, which the river has made below Burnett street. If the piling has the desired effect the river will be forced back into the channel of several years ago and will cover the large sand bank which accumulated in the old channel; this would remove the menace to the houses on the south bank. The pile driver is furnished by the Fort Worth & Denver, which also provides man to operate. City Engineer Hinckley and Street Superintendent George Dobson are also looking after the work there, which is done jointly by the city, county and railroad.

SELECTING JURY FOR BATTLE TRIAL

Two Veniremen Accepted This Afternoon—Motion for Continuance Overruled.

Rapid progress in the selection of a jury is being made in the J. W. Battle case now on trial in the seventy-eighth district court. At 2 o'clock two prospective jurymen had been examined, and both taken as jurors in the case. However, the attorneys do not expect to remove the jury until sometime tomorrow morning. A special venire of 100 men appeared in court for the trial, and it is expected that the jury will be selected within the hour. The attorneys for the defendant made two motions for a continuance. The first was on account of the absence of an eye witness, who is alleged to have been an eye witness and whose testimony was alleged to be material for the defense. This woman, who is said to be out of the state, was absent on the first trial, and a motion for continuance on the grounds of her absence was overruled. The second motion for continuance on the grounds of the absence of another eye witness, Viola Walker, who is alleged to have been an eye witness, was also overruled. Judge Nicholson is waiting to hear from the sheriff at Haskell, Texas, where the woman is held, and to see if her attendance can not be secured at the trial now going on. In the meantime the work of selecting a jury was taken up.

MONDAY MORNING'S COURT DOCKETS UNUSUALLY LIGHT

Judge Whitelaw had a short docket in the city court this morning, as Saturday and Sunday were remarkably quiet. The docket for Monday, Saturday, except one negro man who voluntarily came in and gave bond for his appearance in answer to a complaint charging him with abusing his wife. One drunk secured Sunday was fined the usual $5. A party told to show up and answer a charge of speeding Sunday failed to put in an appearance and will be dealt with later.

In Justice Howard's court nine negro vagrants were arraigned, one of them getting a dollar and costs, and the other cases going over to make way for some civil cases. All of the negroes were said to be sleeping in one room hardly ten feet square, the only bed being occupied by four of the men.

Truth Told in Sleep. According to an expert psychoanalyst and pundit of spiritual healing in New York, every dream is the result of the repression and secrecy practiced during the day, and every word spoken in dreams is the unguarded truth. Various foods and beverages, taken before retiring for the night, are known agencies of dreams. Corned beef and cabbage and mince pie or plum pudding are said to be the most prolific sources of conversational dreams. Wakeful wives should find the new psychogastromic scheme an excellent one.

LOYD'S AGENCY UNIQUE CONCERN

YOU CAN INSURE ALMOST ANYTHING WITH THIS COMPANY

IS OLD INSTITUTION

London (By mail)—Lloyd's reports that the steamship Lineapolis has been sunk. All were rescued except eleven killed. Lloyd's announces that it has arranged the sinking of vessels of practically every neutral nationality in Europe to say nothing of merchantman after merchantman belonging to the allied nations. Lloyd's announces. But exactly what and where is Lloyd's? Most Britons have a misty idea that Lloyd's is connected with shipping and with marine insurance, but there the knowledge of the ordinary man in the street ends, even though he may read his way past Lloyd's every day of his life. Lloyd's is Britain's great market place for maritime insurance. It is a sort of stock exchange for the underwriters of England, who meet daily within its walls and make the price in different sorts of risks exactly as the brokers and jobbers make the prices of shares on the real stock exchange. It forms part of the royal exchange, close to the Bank of England. Many Americans in times of peace, visit the royal exchange with the object of seeing the fine historical paintings there. You Can Insure Anything. Though Lloyd's began as a market for marine insurance only, one can now insure anything on earth there, with the exception of human life. There is no risk of so freak a nature that the brokers who make up Lloyd's will not quote you a rate for it. You can insure there against an earthquake or a Zeppelin raid or against the chance of your wife's having twins. The right arm of a badger, wicki and Kulek have been insured there and also the front legs of a famous Australian boxing kangaroo. Lloyd's will have a deal with a king or a clown. They will insure the king's throne and crown and the succession of his dynasty and they will insure the crown in regard to his punctual arrival at town after town, hall after hall, in-time to give his show. They will insure one against the successful result of an operation for appendicitis or against having an action for breach of promise decided against one. If you are a member of Lloyd's moreover, you are pretty certain to be doing business with a man of proved standing, integrity and financial soundness. Every candidate for election has to show the governing committee on these points, and guarantee himself. Twenty-five thousand dollars is the smallest sum he may deposit as additional security for possible liabilities. The total of the amounts so deposited is over 11 million dollars. To be allowed to pass the portals of Lloyd's is a privilege none too easily won. Once inside one has one's finger on the pulse of the marine world. So remarkable has become the network of agencies that Lloyd's has instituted in every part of the globe that, standing beyond the barrier, you may know exactly where each of the hundred thousand ships that plough the ocean are at that moment. The agents number over 2,000 and in the course of a single year they send 100,000 telegrams to Lloyd's and an even greater number of letters. Prompt Pay at Lloyd's. Lloyd's deals in big futures. When the Oceana, laden with bullion for India, went down in March, 1912 as the result of a collision with a German barque of Meachy Head and the tugs failed to beach her, the underwriters went to work and within 24 hours had handed over 3,341 million dollars to the Bank of England to make good the loss and enable Threadneedle street to dispatch the duplicate golden for Bombay. The amount of insurance on the Titanic was more than 10 million dollars. But though a Lloyd's broker will underwrite practically any risk, it is a rare thing for one of them to assume the entire responsibility thereof. What generally happens is this: Suppose a ship of one hundred tons is to be insured for $100,000. The owner gets a broker to draw out his policy and this is taken to an underwriter. The first underwriter may agree to become responsible for $10,000 of the $100,000. The policy is then passed on to other members of Lloyd's and—particularly if the first indorsement is a good one—these others will take up the remainder of the risk. They append their names under the first signature and thus become literally underwriters. That is the origin of the phrase. Lloyd's started in a little coffee tavern. After the fire of London business people with common interests, began to make their practice to meet together at some convenient place, and nowhere was so convenient as the coffee houses. West India merchants assembled at the Jamaica stock jobbers had a rendezvous at Jonathan's, and gradually those interested in shipping congregated at Lloyd's, a small place situated in Tower street near the Tower of London, and owned by one Edward Lloyd. The late Col. Sir Henry M. Hozier, secretary of Lloyd's from 1818 until 1896, collected some interesting details about these early days of the great institution. "Edward Lloyd was a man of intelligence," wrote Col. Hozier. "Besides organizing the merchants and marine insurers who congregated at his tavern, he started Lloyd's News, the forerunner of the present Lloyd's List, which is the oldest newspaper in the country with the exception of the London Gazette. Before long the little coffee house became connected with various gambling and speculative transactions. The lives of those who had to pay the penalty for breaking their country's laws were insured at Lloyd's as a sort of speculation; also when a great statesman, or great leader of a party, fell ill his life was insured at Lloyd's coffee house at a premium of 5 per cent. Travelers who went abroad were able to insure the safe return. Ask the Rexall Drug Co. still selling two dollar bottles for one dollar. 22-7tp
