SWEDES TO KEEP NATION NEUTRAL

AT ONE TIME OR ANOTHER OF JOINING SIDE IN WAR

ATTITUDE OF RUSSIA

Fortification of Aland Islands is Cause of Fear, But Assurance Comes From Allies

Associated Press Mail Correspondence. Stockholm. The Swedish people are breathing more easily now than at any time since the war began. They are convinced that the king and their government are determined to maintain a strict and impartial neutrality until peace shall have been declared, and they are clinging with renewed vigor into a prosperity unprecedented in the history of the country.

The Swedish people give up this prosperity and the happiness which has come with it for the perils, the poverty and the misery of war seem to be waiting to befall the nation, but it cannot be denied that the political and international crisis through which the country passed in the latter part of May brought it danger only near to the brink of catastrophe. Not that the people wanted war, far from it, but the international group of politicians knows as the activists stated for a time, a momentary moment of weakness in the dictators of neutrality and was out spoken an effort to force Sweden into war with the intention of crushing Russia and the part of the Central Powers.

This activist movement was denounced by the Swedish Parliament as more pro-German than pro-Swedish and was referred to on one occasion by socialist leader Branting as having a "superficially strong financial backing." The pro-German press of Sweden carried the campaign at times to a violent extreme and the bitter enmity between these papers and those representing the liberal and socialist elements of the country may not be effaced in years to come.

The liberals and socialists frankly feared for a time that the influential activists would win over the support of the conservative party which still controls the upper house of Parliament and is supposed to more than hold the balance of power in the Swedish coalition cabinet. But when the test came, when the situation was at its worst, the conservatives threw their strength into the other two parties in a determination to keep Sweden out of the war at any cost.

It so happened that the activist campaign designed to upset the neutrality of Sweden, actually brought about an agreement among the contending political factions of the Swedish Parliament which has given Sweden neutrality a stability and a standing before the belligerent nations it had not enjoyed before. This agreement was the immediate result of an activist interpellation in Parliament calling attention to the alleged permanent character of the fortifications being erected by the Russians on the Aland Islands in the Baltic, and asking what the government proposed to do about it. At the time the fortifications are visible from the easternmost points of Sweden and the aspect of these isles is but six miles from Stockholm.

The informal assurance to Sweden that the fortifications were only temporary being erected for the purpose of protecting certain mine fields and thus defending the islands from possible capture by the Germans, Sweden was further assured that the fortifications would be removed at the end of the present war.

The Aland Islands command absolutely the waterways entering the Gulf of Bothnia and as a consequence they also command the entrance to the Gulf of Finland, and hence the way to the Russian capital, St. Petersburg, and the hands of Russia they practically make it impossible for Germany to use her navy in the northern Baltic waters. This is so true that the opportunity for an offensive German naval or military diversion north of the Gulf of Bothnia and the strategic importance of the islands in the Baltic the coming summer and realize that it may play a very prominent part in the German campaign against Russia. All these facts, considered together, led the liberals and socialists to the conclusion that the fortifications wholly in favor of the Germans, Sweden and Russia, too, for that matter, fully expected when the war broke out that Germany would use the Aland Islands as a base for naval operations, the islands were entirely without protection at that time and their possession would have enabled Germany to bottle up the Gulf of Bothnia and safeguard all her operations in the Baltic—the very operations she must now undertake if German arms are to pass Riga in the direction of Petrograd.

But at the outbreak of the war Germany seemed to fear a British fleet might enter the Baltic through the Great Belt of Denmark and she kept the bulk of her navy in southern waters. Finally Denmark decided to close the Great Belt to all belligerent vessels and she withdrew it with powerful guns. This action closed the Baltic other than the Kiel Canal, and the German fleet was left free of action in that sea for on August 30, 1914, there came a German naval diversion against the Aland archipelago. By this time, however, Russia had the Aland waters and the German fleet managed only to destroy some signal stations.

Another element of importance attached to the Aland Islands when British submarines managed to pass the sea lanes separating Denmark and Sweden and entered the Baltic. The Swedish Aland now offering them a splendid base, and the recent activities of the British submarines have not been the least in the Baltic. The submarines also constitute a continuing menace against any naval effort which may be made by the Allies.

In the negotiation of the North Sea Battle treaty in 1908, Russia promised her neutral allies, Great Britain and France, that in consideration for Sweden, but in reality the Aland Islands. The Swedish people are a unit in respect to a threat and a menace any permanent military base on the islands. The Swedish people now have the assurance of both France and Great Britain as well as Russia that the works bearing completion are not of the character and will all be taken away when the present war is ended. Prof. Staffens, an expert of the Aland interpellation, has declared such promises are worthless if the present war has shown that diplomatic notes and promises are regarded when conflicting with the interests of a belligerent.

But the renewal assurances from the "entente" powers appear to have convinced the Swedish government and the leaders of the three great parties. And so came the agreement, the Swedish staged the Parliament of May 25, 1916, for the first time, Mr. Wallenberg, speaking for the king and government, said he was in a position to announce as a condition of neutrality previously proclaimed. He said the government regarded the question of the fortification of the islands as one of great importance to Sweden, but he assured the Riksdag and the people of Sweden that the government would consider asking to preserve the rights and interests of Sweden. Sweden, he added, would always maintain her right of self-determination, and the king had already shown her steadfast desire to fulfill the demands of a strict and impartial neutrality as well as an interest in the peace of the world.

The proceedings in the Riksdag or Swedish Parliament, had all been arranged in advance and Mr. Wallenberg had scarcely taken his seat in the second chamber with the leaders of the three parties, when the king and his cabinet had already indicated all that he had said. This same plan then was carried out in the first chamber and there was rejoicing through all of Sweden that a serious crisis had been safely passed.

The activists, however, chose an effective weapon when they took up the Aland question. They had attempted from time to time to arouse the people against England because of the blockade, but the response to this kind of agitation has been so unenthusiastic that the king, however, Russia has been a traditional enemy of Sweden in the minds of many of the Swedish people and it has been comparatively easy to arouse their fears.

The wholesome fear on the part of liberal and socialist that the activist campaign might force a condition which would lead to war, was based partly upon the significant events in Sweden which immediately preceded the outbreak of the European war. During the winter of 1913-1914 the agitation against Russia and in favor of military preparedness in Sweden was carried to a high point. At that time on February 6, 1914, 30,000 Swedish farmers, organized in what was called a "Roussians" or "Russian" march, came to Stockholm and marched to the Royal Palace and addressing the king, assured him of their willingness to bear an added tax in return for the national defense.

The agitation at this time was participated in by the conservative party, the moderate party, the liberal party and had taken an intermediate position between the conservatives who urged every sort of sacrifice to increase the strength of the navy and the socialists who claimed it was foolish for a small country like Sweden to attempt to keep pace with the armaments of the larger powers of Europe.

The address of the women, coming as a climax to the propaganda of patriotic and political parties, stirred King Gustave to a reply which immediately brought about a ministerial and political crisis.

The king, it is said, who before he had worn the crown of Sweden, he said, "has in the same manner as I have allowed the privilege of standing on this day face to face with the commoners of Sweden and listening to their voices. The knowledge of the wishes of the commoners is our king invests my royal duty with a doubled responsibility, but at the same time makes it easier of fulfillment and I promise that I will not fail you. You may be assured that I will never compromise with my conviction in the question of what I regard as the necessary steps to guard the independence of our fatherland. The standards of readiness of service and preparation for war formed by extra military training, will not recede from you. You all know that this means an extended time of military service for citizens, especially with regard to winter training, in order to perform the great tasks before us. My navy must be not only maintained but very considerably increased.

Thus the king spoke without previous consultation with the liberal government, headed by Karl Staaf, an ardent liberalist. It was held by many of the liberals that the king had flagrantly violated his constitutional obligation and therefore the minister resigned. The king called upon Bjorn Hammarstedt, who formed a provisional government, not representing any political party but known as "The King's Cabinet." General elections were ordered and an exciting campaign was waged, the conservatives raising the war scare, the socialists calling upon the king to resign—if he could do such a thing—and the liberals attempting to keep the peace. The result was that the conservatives and socialists made gains from the liberals, the socialists making by far the greater gains.

There was talk of a compromise upon the king's policy of armament when the European conflagration broke up. Party lines then were forgotten and the compromise government has existed to this day. In county council elections recently held, however, the socialists, on the other hand, and continued neutrality, have continued to make significant gains, bringing about the prediction that when another general election is held the socialists will be able entirely to control the government.

The socialists and liberals feared that might be the result of "national demonstrations" this year as in 1914 to influence the king and his cabinet, but wiser counsels prevailed and it is felt now that the activists have

Ben F. Taylor was instantly killed when the automobile in which he was riding was into the ditch and turned over about four miles out on the Burk Burnett road just before 7 o'clock yesterday evening. The ribs were torn loose from his backbone rupturing the arteries which run up the back. Dr. Hargrave who made an examination expressing the opinion that he never breathed after the accident. He was rushed to the Amason-Hargrave Hospital, but an examination showed that he had been dead some time and he was turned over to the Wichita Undertaking Establishment for preparation for burial.

Mr. Taylor was about fifty years of age. He was real estate man and a well known contractor of Iowa Park and was well and favorably known all over Wichita county. He leaves a wife and six children in Iowa Park.

In the car with Mr. Taylor were W. E. Conner of the oil firm of Cross and Conner of Waurika, Okla., and Mr. Conner's secretary, Mrs. Conner who was driving the car, a five passenger Overland. They left Burk Burnett for Wichita Falls about 8 o'clock yesterday afternoon and had just started down the long hill known as the Waller hill just north of the refinery about four miles from this city when another car passed them and immediately slowed down. Jim Conner saw the car and kept from running into the car which had passed them and went into the ditch. Mr. Conner was caught beneath the car but suffered no injuries other than minor bruises and scratches. Mr. Taylor seemed to be stunned but his injuries were not thought by his companions to be fatal until they reached the hospital and the doctor made his examination. The skin was not broken anywhere on Mr. Taylor's body, all of his injuries being internal.

The car which had just passed which was occupied by O. E. Moore and Fred Powell of Burk Burnett, slowed down as soon as they observed the accident and brought Mr. Taylor in to town. The car attracted a good deal of attention on account of the terrific speed with which it passed through the streets of the city.

Mr. Conner said that the car in which they were riding and which was wrecked was traveling at least 25 or 30 miles an hour when it was passed by the other car.

played their last card and need not be reckoned with again.

There is no doubt that if the activists had succeeded in forcing Sweden into the war this country would have lost the support and sympathy of other two-thirds of Scandinavia—Denmark and Norway. Ever since the conference at Copenhagen in March, the three countries have been in agreement as to policies of neutrality and defense. They have agreed to act together in matters of common interest to all such as for instance as the stoppage of Scandinavian mails in England, but if Sweden had been led to attack Russia by seizing the Aland Islands, Denmark and Norway would have felt the quarrel was not the policy of an allied Scandinavia. Both Danish and Norwegian newspapers attributed the agitation in Sweden to German influences and as both those countries are decidedly pro entente their position can easily be understood.

There was much talk in Sweden also of German influence at court, due to the fact that the Swedish Queen was a German princess, Victoria of Baden, a descendant of the Hohenzollerns. But in the crisis the king demonstrated that he felt the interests of Sweden were best served by neutrality and friendliness with all her neighbors, and there is much happiness through all of Sweden today.

MANY AMERICANS SEE HARD SERVICE

Large Numbers From This Country Show Up in Ranks of British.

Associated Press Mail Correspondence. British Headquarters, France.—American citizens have seen harder fighting in the last two weeks than any American since the Appomattox campaign. They have endured as heavy shell fire as the German guns ever directed at the British front and known that it was to charge into the German trenches with bayonet and bomb in pouring rain through the mud in the small hours of the morning.

There are more Americans scattered among the Canadian battalions than most people realize. Some of these were living in Canada when the war began; some crossed the border and enlisted for the sake of being in a "scrap"; some felt it a duty to strike a blow for the Allies.

NUMEROUS CALLS BUT FEW ARRESTS

Many False Alarms in Course of Day Keep Police From Being Idle

Although the record of arrests made and cases investigated show that the police department is kept pretty busy, the general public has little idea of the immense amount of work done by the police department of this city. For every arrest made there is probably an average of five or six calls that are answered and turn out to amount to nothing.

For instance, a woman calls up and tells of some one trying to get into her house. The police rush out there and make an investigation and it not infrequently develops that the disturbance was caused by a dog or cat scratching about the premises. Many calls come from other cities or parties thought likely to be in this city or for runaway couples thought likely to come here and each means a subpoena and often fruitless hunt through the hotels and rooming houses of the city.

A street fight between parties who have disappeared before the officers can get there, drunken parties who disappear in the night, searches for stolen automobiles are other instances of calls for police activity on the part of the police. There is no let up to the work if anything there are more calls in the small hours of the morning than during the day.

MANY SALOON LICENSES DUE TO EXPIRE LAST NIGHT

By Associated Press. Austin, Texas, July 11.—Liquor licenses of 2500 saloonkeepers or retail liquor dealers in Texas expired last night, according to an announcement from Comptroller H. B. However, but few of these will have done their business on this day on that account, according to the comptroller, for the issuing of renewal permits was commenced about six weeks ago, giving licensees plenty of time to apply to county judges before the expiration time.

ANOTHER SALE OF CITY STREET BONDS

City Waives One Clipping and Gets Larger Premium—City Depository Collected.

Another conditional sale was made of the $40,000 street improvement bonds at the adjourned meeting of the city council last night. Sale was made to the Kaufman Smith and Albert Investment company of St. Louis at the Monday morning special session on the condition that the company would allow Wichita Falls payment of principal and interest, a condition which they declined.

The council then wired the International Trust company, Denver, accepting their bid for the bonds provided they filed a certified check on some bank of Wichita Falls for $1000 as evidence of good faith. A certified check accompanied their bid, but it was drawn on a Denver bank and the specifications call for a check on a Wichita Falls bank. The bid of the International Trust company would allow Wichita Falls payment of principal and interest, a condition which they declined.

The National Bank of Commerce was named as the city depository for the fiscal year beginning July 1. Its bid was for the payment of three per cent interest on the daily balances. All of the bids for the depository were said to be less than those of former years.

SOME CRITICISM OF CITY COUNCIL

Rotarians Discuss Failure to Cut Weeds—Former President Presents With Jewel.

A goodly number of Rotarians and their ladies gathered at Lake Wichita Monday night for the monthly ladies' night of the organization, and a pleasant informal dinner was served. One matter which came up for discussion was that of weed-cutting, led to some criticism of the city council for failure to take aggressive action in the premises.

Some of the Rotarians have been having a hard time with weeds, when a property owner fails to cut weeds, the city may do so and charge the cost to him. There were no formal talks at the meeting, but all of those who have drawn prizes at previous meetings were called upon to express their appreciation of same.

The total receipts of the grand lodge for the year were $212,559.88. The per capita yielded $112,253.25; total collected $45,008.35 (making $167,261.63); for dispensations, $150.00; for Elks-Home members per capita tax, $2,653.16; and all other sources $925.10. Total interest on investments was $12,926.15.

The surplus is $755,977.88 an increase over last year of $61,429.89 caused principally by the collection of the Home tax of $45,008.45 and of $7,359.

IN THE SPHERE OF WOMANKIND

A WORD AND A SMILE.

Don't hurry through life with a frown on your face. And never a moment to spare. For the word and the smile, that is always worth while. In a world full of trouble and care, there are others with burdens as heavy as yours. Hearts weary with aching and pain, that are longing to hear just a word of good cheer.

Don't let that misfortune that singled you out. And made you her own special prey. For you may be sure there's no home for that trouble will enter some way. There is sunshine for all in this workaday world. But don't have to go after your share. And you'll miss it of course, if you're hurried and cross. With never a moment to spare.

And if you have sunshine and love in your home. If pleasure and plenty abound. Don't hoard your store, you'll enjoy it more. If you scatter a little around. For the light of your smile can be seen from afar. And heaven records its full worth. Though you whisper your word, yet its echo will be heard. To the farthest ends of the earth.

UNINCORPORATED TOWNS MAY HAVE HEALTH DISTRICTS

Austin, Texas, July 11.—According to a ruling of the attorney general's department, unincorporated towns and rural districts in Texas may organize health districts and appoint a board of health for such a district. This ruling is said to be of considerable importance in view of the interest in public health matters that has been shown in Texas during the past several years. County commissioners are authorized to make appropriations for organization and maintenance of these boards of health, the ruling also decrees.

2 CITY PRISONERS TAKE FRENCH LEAVE

Two inmates of Jail Break Out, Using Rope Blanket to Get Down.

A hearse planned or more neatly executed jail break has not been carried out in Wichita Falls in many years than the one which liberated "Cush foot" (Oscar) Johnson, alias "Bandy", from his cell last night. The prisoners pried out the bars of one of the windows with a two by six board which had been sawed in from the outside and let themselves down to the ground by a rope of blankets tied together. The window from which they made their escape was some 30 feet above the ground and opened onto a blind alley between the city hall and a station.

The lockup is in the rear of the second floor of the city hall, and in two cells Johnson and Bandy made their escape from the top part of the lockup. Five other prisoners were in the jail at the time, but did not take advantage of the chance to escape. They stated that Johnson and Bandy went upstairs about 8 o'clock last night. None of the prisoners went upstairs as Johnson is a bad character and the others are not as yet hardened and further prisoners say that the escape was made about 3 o'clock this morning. A search was made by the police as soon as the escape was discovered, but the fugitives had at least a three hour start and no trace was found of them. Johnson has been in jail here about two weeks, having been reintarcerated on an old $100 fine which had been suspended earlier in the year on condition that he leave town. Soon after he came back he was taken up for intoxication and promptly recognized. Bandy was arrested about five days ago and has been in jail since that time. Johnson has been stubborn and refused to leave town so the police have been rather severe with him, putting heavy chains on him, working him pretty hard, and keeping him in solitary confinement most of the time. One of the officers said that the first time he ever saw him he was arrested for boiling dynamite in order to get the nitroglycerine. This is the form of explosive used by yeggmen and is known as "soup" in the vernacular of the underworld.

to accompany the punitive expedition is now a matter of history. It is also known that twelve machines were sent down some time since, to replace the original eight that were converted into almost worthless debris after three weeks' actual service. However, it is not so generally known that almost unbelievable obstacles have prevented the airmen from using the new biplanes in actual service up until the moment of writing.

American airmen and airship constructors were not prepared for the unusual flying conditions of Mexico, at least, if they were they made no preparations to meet them. The result was that machines that had given satisfactory service in various parts of this country proved "inadequate" for their intended purpose south of the Rio Grande.

In the first place, the sand of the Mexican deserts is so light that the weight of the aeroplanes, especially the wheels to sink deeply, making it extremely difficult to attain sufficient speed to leave the ground. This impediment fortunately has been solved by using a new flat type of tire.

Another obstacle is presented in the high temperature in that section of Mexico now occupied by American troops. It is reported that the water in the radiators often reaches a temperature of 120 degrees with the motor standing still. This trouble, however, is being met by providing deeper radiators, which offer greater cooling areas to the circulating water.

Undoubtedly the chief of the multitudinous troubles is the propellers. Propellers which have been submitted to the most rigid tests at the factories, such as test runs of several hours' duration without showing any signs of weakness, go to pieces only a few minutes after they are exposed to Mexican air. The air is so dry that it has an effect on the wood of the propellers far beyond anything imaginable; furthermore, the air is so full of dust that it causes the propellers to turn at a higher speed, hastening the destruction of the latter. But then, again, propeller trouble is only a consequence of the shortcomings and undoubtedly it can be remedied by careful study and application.

The aviator in Mexico only meets the real tribulations when he is actually in the air; the difficulties previously mentioned are concerned with the constructional details rather than with actual flying. Because of the fierce heat of the sun beating down upon the sandy wastes, there are not only varying air currents, but also violent whirlwinds. Although these can be seen from the ground, they are invisible to the aviator while in flight. As a result, he is liable to have a momentary notice in the grasp of a furious whirlwind, and unless he is able to maneuver his machine promptly and effectively—always skidding for greater material—is as capable to weather the winds as the personnel—the incident must end disastrously. It is said of these whirlwinds that machines, standing on the ground, have been suddenly caught in the whirling and spun around and overturned.

With high temperatures, ruffled and dry air, rising and falling air currents, whirlwinds of a most violent character, and soft sands covered with low brush, American aviators have a worthy task before them. If extensive use is to be made of the aeronautical branch of the Army, the most likely there will be, since aerial scouting is the only effective method in a country of such extensive and difficult terrain.

That Senator Culberson is not in good health is admitted even by his friends, but that he is far from being the complete physical wreck which some are claiming is stoutly denied. While Senator Culberson is able to be in his seat in the Senate in these times when legislation of the utmost importance is being considered and when his vote and influence have been a strong support for the administration, he has not seen fit to leave his post and come to Texas for a period of a week, as a result of the physical strain of a speaking campaign in Texas.

While Senator Culberson is not appearing in person in Texas to urge his claims for the senatorial nomination his friends are active. One of them, the Hon. Barry Miller of Dallas, will be here tonight to speak in Mr. Culberson's behalf. In view of Senator Culberson's distinguished and useful services for all the people of Texas, no voter should turn him down without hearing what his representative has to say. Mr. Miller should be given a large hearing tonight.

Following is the monthly business letter issued by the National Bank of Commerce: Business continues its steady progress. NOWHERE BUT NEW YORK FOR WRITERS OF FICTION (Kansas City Star) In fiction 456,127 New Yorkers have cottages in Newport

One hundred and fifty-one thousand and six hundred and eighty-one thousand have been members of the New York Four Hundred, while 578 heretics have been leaders of the set.

Two million people sit around shuffling mahogany tables each night at a dinner, showing that our ancestors must have had a Grand Rapids plant of mean ability turning out bedrooms; and as for Orientals—all Persia, Arabia, Turkey Turkistan and every other land with only a can of condensed milk and rouge pot as supplies. Few, if any New Yorkers in books ever take the "L" or sub, as only short stories took so long.

One out of every hundred thousand characters stops to consider that beyond New York lies Chicago, St. Louis and a few pink states upon the map.

BEST RESULTS OBTAINED WORKING 8 HOURS DAILY From the Chicago Herald. Two English officers at the front organized a trench digging race. They were to dig equal lengths and each of fier was given the same number of men.

One let his men work as they pleased, but urged them to work as hard as possible. The other divided his gang into three sets to work in rotation. Each set dug its hardest during five minutes and rested ten minutes until its spell of labor came again. This divided team won easily.

land naturally wants to make munitions as rapidly as possible. With labor scarce, long hours of steady working seemed essential. The parliamentary experts discovered, however, that long hours were often wasteful.

Poisonous fatigue slowed down the workman and limited his product. It rendered him much more liable to sickness. He was more apt to be injured at work. The committee began to doubt the wisdom of long hours. Better work might be accomplished, in a shorter time.

The 8-hour shift, it reported, was cheapest in the long run. An 8-hour day was recommended for women. The number of men who can be employed in the munitions factories appears to be so limited that an 8-hour shift is out of the question. Wherever it is possible, however, it is urged as the most efficient for the manufacturer. That surely is one of the lessons of the war: our own American might accept it in a shorter time.

The war commission discovered other things which we ought already to know first hand. For example, they say that had housing conditions and transportation conditions retarded the work in the munitions factories. We might reflect on similar conditions in this country.

The British also visited twenty-three French munitions factories. There they found that the thought of war and defending the country had made the workers forget all Trade union restrictions had been abolished. The "patriotic enthusiasm" of the French people in the chief cause of their success in meeting the munitions need, the commissioners observed.

French women have found their way to the war factories. Housewives, children's nurses, embroidery stenographers, school teachers, mill-women, milliners, florists, hairdressers, artists, seamstresses—these are some of the vocations which women forsake to do their part in the munitions plants. Will they be content to become mere women again after having learned to do their stint of men's work? Or will war make feminists of the seamstress and hairdressers and children's nurses? From top to bottom the European world is being re-made.

AT THE THEATRES

The Majestic

Lillian Gish, who plays Marie, the Russian peasant girl in "Sold for Marriage," the new Triangle-Film Art release at the Majestic today, is an ardent champion of screen melodrama. She says that in her opinion, it represents the life of the people more truthfully than any other form of drama. It is deadly serious at times, has thrills and tears, and love, and is relieved by the simplicity of heart-felt laughter.

The Empress

One of the biggest feature motion pictures of the year will be shown on the screen at the Empress theater today, when the World Film production, "The Feast of Life," with Clara Kimball Young, Paul Capellani and Doris Kenyon will be the feature of the day's bill. Aurora, Permalida, a poor but beautiful Cuban girl, is persuaded against her will to become betrothed to Don Armada, a wealthy Cuban. She loves Pedro, a young fisherman who lives with his uncle, Father Ventura, and his sister, Celeda, who has been secretly stealing on Don Armada's villa, but is cast off by him on his engagement to Aurora. Longing for a sight of Pedro, Aurora, disguised as a dancing girl, goes to an inn, where Pedro comes with other fishermen for a night's revelry. He does not recognize her as "the lady of the lily" as he calls her, but falls a victim to the charms of the dancing girl, Celeda, dying of a broken heart, confesses to Pedro, and

SUES HIS POSITION

CONGRESSMAN TELLS WHY HE HAS RESIGNED ON DUTY IN WASHINGTON

IS WITH PRESIDENT

Not For "Peace at Any Price" But is Glad Wilson Has Kept Out of War.

Urging the necessity for every democratic member of congress remaining at his post during the remainder of this session, congressmen John H. Stephens, congressman from this district, extended his remarks in the House today, July 11, on July 5th taking occasion to review his record to show that he has stood by President Wilson.

He declares among other things that he is not an advocate of peace at any price and that he wants peace only "when it can be had by patient waiting and diplomacy as the president will see."

Further on he says: "My votes at this session of congress on the various resolutions concerning the president show that I am in favor of adopting such strong military measures as the president may find necessary to prevent the further history of our soldiers or our citizens by Mexican bandits." His remarks in full follow:

"Mr. Speaker, the country must and will recognize that the present session of Congress is one of the most important since the Civil War. The great war in Europe, the alarming conditions in the country, the trade and business relations growing out of these world calamities, make it absolutely necessary for the president and Congress to be more alert in framing policies and laws to meet the existing and contemplated troubles of our country and, therefore, more necessary than at any other time since I have been a Member of this House that Democrats should remain on guard, and, if necessary, forfeit their seats here to some one running against them at home, rather than desert the Democratic ship, so well commanded by Woodrow Wilson in this great storm period of our national history.

"Our constituents at home, I know despise and detest every Democrat to remain here and aid our presidential leader in his great endeavor to prevent war in Mexico or elsewhere if possible, or if war is forced upon us, to furnish all the means and legislation necessary to conquer the world and to establish peace. Keeping these things in mind, I think and hope that all Democrats in Congress should remain here and endeavor to carry out the splendid policies of the Woodrow Wilson administration. I know by experience that it is hard to remain here, at our post of duty, and, therefore, I am fighting us at home for our seats and by taking the advantage of our absence are misrepresenting to our constituents our votes and records here, claiming that we have never done anything for them while in Congress.

"To refute this charge, I shall endeavor to carry out the splendid policies of the Woodrow Wilson administration. I know by experience that it is hard to remain here, at our post of duty, and, therefore, I am fighting us at home for our seats and by taking the advantage of our absence are misrepresenting to our constituents our votes and records here, claiming that we have never done anything for them while in Congress.

"To refute this charge, I shall endeavor to carry out the splendid policies of the Woodrow Wilson administration. I know by experience that it is hard to remain here, at our post of duty, and, therefore, I am fighting us at home for our seats and by taking the advantage of our absence are misrepresenting to our constituents our votes and records here, claiming that we have never done anything for them while in Congress.

"The Parcel Post System, which makes express company robbery no longer possible, and gives the farmer a better chance.

"The antitrust laws, that regulate big business, and make it no longer safe for any man to laugh the law in the face, no matter how rich and powerful he is.

"The eight hour day for working men in Government work.

"The law prohibiting opium gambling contracts in cotton futures.

"The graduated income tax law, which is a tax upon wealth, and not consumption.

"The election of United States Senators by a direct vote of the people.

"The anti-trust bill which regulates the granting of injunctions in labor disputes.

"The bill to grant jury trials in indirect cases and arbitrations growing out of labor disputes.

"The above citations from my record in Congress will show the falsity of my opponent's claim that I have never done anything in Congress to benefit my constituents. This false charge convicts its maker of either mental misapprehension or, as shown by the Congressional Record, or of inexcusable ignorance of the public political history of his country.

"In any event, I proceed confident and worthy to be my successor in this House.

"Mr. Speaker, I desire to state that I am a conservative in all matters of legislation and that I am not an advocate of peace at any price, but only the frontier peace that is gained by fighting and diplomacy as the President so far has so well accomplished. The country is to be congratulated in having President Wilson at the helm. He is a man of conservatism and prudence rather than a man of fiery and warlike instincts.

"I favor at this session of Congress the various preparedness measures coming before us show that I am in favor of adopting such strong military measures as the president may find necessary to prevent any further butchery of our soldiers or citizens by Mexican bandits.

"I favor the building of merchant marine and warships in the Government shipyards. I also favor the Government building plants and manufacturing all of our munitions of war and I shall vote, as heretofore, for reasonable appropriations of money for the maintenance of our army and navy as well, in my judgment, be sufficient to adequately defend our country from foreign invasion.

"I favor a small standing army in time of peace and the use of the National Guard to supplement the Regular Army in time of war; in other words, I favor the same system that has served us so well since the foundation of our government.

"I am opposed to compulsory military service and favor the volunteer system.

"I voted for the Hay bill because it was a comprehensive and far-reaching bill, providing for the preparation of our country for the present standing Army, and I shall vote, as heretofore, for reasonable appropriations of money for the maintenance of our army and navy as well, in my judgment, be sufficient to adequately defend our country from foreign invasion.

"I favored the President's policy of warning our citizens against going into Mexico and also requesting these citizens already there to come out and remain out of that unhappy country.

"I also believe that our citizens should have been likewise warned from traveling on armed merchant ships, and I shall vote, as heretofore, for reasonable appropriations of money for the maintenance of our army and navy as well, in my judgment, be sufficient to adequately defend our country from foreign invasion.

"Mr. Speaker, I desire to further state that I voted for the Burnett bill, restricting foreign immigration so as to protect our home laborers and prevent Europe from shipping to this country at the close of the present war millions of undesirable and ignorant foreigners. I voted for and favor the rural credit plan of financing our farming interests as proposed in the Baltimore Democratic platform of 1912, and shall do everything I can to secure its enactment into law during this session.

"That I am in favor of State and national prohibition.

"I am in favor of granting independence at once to the Philippines for the reason that in the event of a foreign war we would not be attacked in these islands and as a chain is only as strong as its weakest link,

MUCH EXTRA BASE HITTING THIS YEAR

Some Players Have Already Equalled Records of Last Season.

By Associated Press.

New York, July 11.—Heavy base hitting and a big record for the big league has been a prominent feature of the present season. Notwithstanding the fact that a considerable percentage of the scheduled games to date have been postponed, the leaders in the extra-base hit divisions are close to, if they have not already equalled, the figures made for the entire playing period of 1915.

The latest compilations show that in the American League, Granev, of Cleveland, leads in two-base drives with a total of twenty-four whereas he collected but twenty during the entire season a year ago. Joe Jackson, of Chicago is second with twenty which just equals his record for the whole of the previous season. Tris Speaker of Cleveland is still six days behind his 1915 figures and Ty Cobb of Detroit is a little better than half way toward his total of last year.

None of the leaders in the three-base division has yet surpassed last season's record but several are close to their total for twelve months ago. Weaver of Chicago, Veach of Detroit and Pipp of New York are all tied with eight triples, which is more than 75 per cent of their 1915 collection. Baker of New York leads in home runs with seven circuit drives which is but one less than he made during the entire 1914 season while a member of the Athletics. Phipps of the same club has already equalled his record of last season and Granev of Cleveland is ahead with Ruth of Boston, and Pournier of Chicago, within a drive of their figures of a year ago.

Several of the National League heavy hitters are ahead of last season's totals in this department of the game and others are rapidly approaching the point where they will be able to pass the 1915 aggregation. Among the leading two-base sluggers, Stock of Philadelphia, alone has eclipsed the total made during the pennant race of twelve months ago. Groh of Cincinnati has tapped out nine triples to date, which just equals his mark last season. Poscher of St. Louis, Williams of Chicago, Myers of Brooklyn and Betts of St. Louis are all ahead of their 1915 totals. In the home run class the leading trio have yet to reach the marks for the entire playing period of last year, but Merkle of New York, Smith of St. Louis, Zimmerman and Schutte of Chicago and Carey of Pittsburgh have passed their best efforts of the previous season.

The records of the leading two-base, three-base and home run hitters both leagues to July 1, together with

THE ART OF BLENDING TEA!

The whole art of successful Tea blending being to combine body and pungency with some particular and distinct flavor in order to please a majority of that portion of the public for whom the Tea is specially prepared, and at the same time to arrange its constituent parts in such a manner that this most desirable result may be obtained at a more moderate cost to the consumer than that of any single higher priced variety. But it must be understood that all combinations of Tea as a rule must depend upon the general character, grade and flavor, most in demand in the particular section or district for which they are intended.

This being the case DON'T IT STAND TO REASON that the best results are to be obtained by the blender who knows the likes and dislikes of his public and the character of the water in which his teas are to be drawn?

Our local experience in Tea blending covers a period of twenty-seven years. We carry a complete line of New Seasons importations and feel we are in a position to meet your most exacting requirements.
