The Associated Press summarizes the war situation as follows: Successful resumption of the Russian offensive in Galacia draws attention to the eastern war theater in which the operations have been of comparative simultaneous success. The Russians, who are attacking from both the north and south, have captured the Galician capital and have advanced toward the Carpathian mountains. The British have secured a victory in the Somme, and the French have captured the town of Arras. The German offensive in the West has been checked, and the British have captured the town of Arras.

Philadelphia took a 2-0 victory over Boston in the first game of the National League championship series. The Phillies pitched a shut-out, with Alexander Twirl earning the win. Boston's offense was stifled by the Philadelphia pitching staff.

DAIRYMEN WILL ACCEPT NEW FEE

Understand That Association is Satisfied With Action of City Council

That the dairymen will be willing to accept the compromise offered them by the city council in reducing the fee for the tuberculosis test prescribed in the new milk ordinance to fifty cents was the opinion expressed by J. A. McSpadden and Mike Smart, two of the most prominent and influential members of the dairymen's association.

NATIONAL BANK of Commerce

WICHITA FALLS, TEXAS.

IT HAS BEEN SAID that a safely conducted business is sure to grow and succeed.

This theory well applies to the record of this bank which as a result of its sound conservative management is steadily growing, both in the number of its patrons and the volume of deposits.

The National Bank of Commerce has won the unlimited confidence of the people of Wichita Falls and vicinity and the fact that it is not under the control of any favored stockholder enables it to extend the same courtesies and accommodations to ALL its customers.

Most of us know little about the milk we buy. We seldom see the man who delivers it, and we never see the milkmaid from whom he gets it.

4 New Refinements

MAXWELL Motor Cars are now equipped with a new and improved windshield, still longer and more flexible springs, wider seats, deeper and softer cushions, dashlight, gasoline gauge, and other equally important refinements.

To the generous value heretofore present in the Maxwell product, these extra improvements have now been added.

This is in line with the Maxwell policy—so widely advertised—not to change the Maxwell in any essential detail, but to continue improving it so that it will always be a standard, recognized product, constantly abreast of the best practices of the industry.

Notwithstanding the superlative and sometimes confusing claims that are made in behalf of various automobiles, we restate our sincere conviction that Maxwell Motor Cars offer more real value per dollar than any other car in the world.

This too, is the belief of the thousands and thousands of Maxwell owners. And these beliefs are supported by actual and tangible facts. We actually know that within the entire history of the automobile business, no motor car—in any class or at any price—has equalled the Maxwell in honest dollar-for-dollar value.

And if you will examine a Maxwell, ride in it, compare it with other cars, consider its splendid record, reputation and past performances, you too, will know it.

More than three-fourths of the fires in Texas have been preventable, according to a report made public by the State fire insurance commission. This is a timely statement. It comes at a time when the people of the state are setting up their stoves for the winter and suggests to them the advisability of making an examination of flues, etc. in Wichita Falls, where gas is generally used for heating, it ought to prompt householders to see that their stoves are set far enough from walls to prevent fires, and to see that there are no leaks in plumbing, and that rubber hose connections are replaced with immovable pipes.

Candidate Hughes is speaking softly and saying nothing that can offend the German-Americans whose support he will receive. Col. Roosevelt who is the big noise on the stump for the republicans now is assailing the Kaiser and telling what he would have done when the Lusitania was sunk. In his speech at Battle Creek he declared that as soon as the news of the sinking of the Lusitania came in he would have seized the German ships interned in American ports and that the question would not have been what Germany would give but what the United States would give back. Nobody can doubt but that the seizure of the German ships would have meant war. It would have been followed by many other Lusitania horrors. One thing that Roosevelt's speeches will do and that is, they will show the people what they have escaped during the past four years. But if Roosevelt gets worse the further he goes, as he generally does, Mr. Hughes will have to speak more softly still, if the German-Americans are to be held in line.

The sentiment for a revision of the game laws to prohibit the shooting of doves until the opening of the quail season seems to be growing and from many sources are coming expressions in favor of such revision. Many sportsmen are in favor of the change. They have found the opening of the dove season permits a horde of immature and irresponsible hunters to go out. Many of these have no regard for the law and shoot everything that will fly or run. By the time the quail shooting season is opened a good part of the quail have already been slaughtered and the land owners have become so exasperated that they will not permit hunting. Another group of persons who want the open season for doves shooting postponed are the naturalists and those opposed to wanton cruelty. The early opening of the dove season results in the slaughter of parent doves before their young have left their nests, leaving the latter to die from starvation. In this section of the state the doves are generally through nesting before the opening of the shooting season but further south the doves are still nesting when the shooting begins. The open season for dove shooting was made earlier at the instance of North Texas sportsmen who argued that a later opening of the season would mean that most of the doves would have migrated by the time the shooting season opened, if it remained at a later date. These same sportsmen are now ready to ask that the dove-shooting season open at the same time as the quail shooting.

SAVING THE COUNTRY
It is a well-worn quip to say on the first Wednesday in November in a Presidential year, "Well, the country has been saved again; yet, old as the joke is, political arguments still do get heated up to the point where the safety of the nation seems at stake. Nevertheless, it is not, and there is an excellent reason why. There is more than one election day during every four years—there are more than twelve hundred of them. All this vast machinery of newspapers and press services for gathering, informing, and—alas, yes!—distorting public opinion, works year in and year out and day in and day out. A successful candidate legally represents only the opinions of the people who voted for him at the time that they voted for him. But no sooner has a vote been taken than the shapes and sizes of the parties begin to change again, for they are always changing. An election is not an instantaneous photograph, and we all know how far such pictures are from representing truth. National opinion is not a solid but a platform drawn up with intent to please, but it will not carry them out if it discovers that the people have become indifferent or opposed.

Four years ago, for example, the Democratic party demanded a tariff for revenue only. The Underwood tariff, and there is no chance whatever that a tariff for revenue only will be passed during the next ten years. If, however, all the Democratic voters had continued to want a tariff for revenue only such a tariff or one labelled in that fashion, would have been given them. But the voters soon lost their interest in tariff legislation. To take another instance, the Democratic platform of 1912 demanded free tolls for American ships in the Panama canal. Yet, when President Wilson, on fuller knowledge of the obligations which had been assumed by his country, excoriated the free tolls clause, there was nothing approaching a popular protest if the President had made an issue of free tolls and had gone around the circuit speaking on the subject he could easily have worked up an aggressive sentiment in his favor. These two instances are relatively minor ones, but only because platforms as a rule, deal specifically only with relatively minor instances. Whatever may be said in platforms, it is always true that the success of a President depends on his keeping closely in line with public sentiment as it develops. To do this he very frequently has to be or seem inconsistent, but if he keeps the people with him inconsistency does him little harm.—San Francisco Bulletin.

JAPAN AND HER PLANS
Three thousand milesward from America is the island of Great Britain. Some years ago this little island, the size of ten Texas counties, had little power, less wealth, and no great population. Today it is the center of the most powerful empire on the globe. Four thousand miles to the westward of America is the island of Japan. Twenty years ago this little island, the size of ten Texas counties, was as weak and impotent as the China of today. But the Japanese are ready students. They learn rapidly and thoroughly. And they have been them the example of Great Britain. About twenty years ago Japan set out upon her campaign for recognition among the States. To gain Statehood she meant to accomplish three things. These were the abolition of extraterritoriality, the negotiation of commercial equality treaties, and the securing for her people in all other countries of the world of equality of race, equality in the holding of property both real and personal, and equality in citizenship where desired. Japan has secured the first two of these. The third is yet to be accomplished. The contention of that country for the right of her nationals to emigrate to and hold property in the United States is immemorial. She has been making the conclusion of the war. Washington dispatches in The Post of Thursday give us plainly to understand that Japan does not intend that California and the other Pacific Coast States shall be allowed to deprive Japanese from owning land, nor does that country admit the right of the United States to bar her people from emigrating to our States here to settle and make their homes. Japan is merely waiting the end of the war before pressing these matters further. And while Japan waits, Japan is not idle. Directly west from San Francisco 470 miles is Yokohama. Japan. South-west from that city 1500 miles lie the Philippine Islands belonging to the United States. East from Manila 1500 miles is Guam. An important stopping place for our steamers and also the possession of this country. And 3330 miles northeast of Guam is Honolulu of the Hawaiian Islands, also a territory of the United States. When this war began Germany was the owner of the Caroline Islands and the Marshall Islands. Both of these groups are located south of our line of communication with the Philippines. Our most important insular possession, immediately after war was declared the Japanese government took over these islands, establishing in them their own schools, banks and transportation lines. Now it is announced, as was anticipated that the islands will be awarded to Japan at the close of the war. The Japanese embassy "believes the negotiations will be most friendly in character." And they will—providing the United States accepts the dictation of the little empire of the Pacific. But suppose the United States does not accept that dictation, and it may well be understood now as later that the people of the Pacific coast are not going to let Japanese own lands or vote in those States—what then? Well, Japan "believes the negotiations will be most friendly in character," but for fear they will not Japan is building immense armaments, constructing warships at a faster pace than ever in her history, developing coal and iron mines at great government expense, and laying by a war chest of gold equal to that with which Germany entered the present conflict.—Houston Post.

RICHARD OLNEY'S WARNING
No American citizen has a better right to a hearing on the campaign issues than Richard Olney, who was President Cleveland's Attorney General during the railroad strike of 1894 and President Cleveland's Secretary of State when the Venezuelan message was sent to the Government of Great Britain. No American citizen is better qualified to say whether President Wilson's action in averting a railroad strike was a "surrender" or whether the foreign policy of the Wilson Administration has been "timid and vacillating," as Mr. Hughes charges. On all these questions Mr. Hughes is brought to the bar of judgment by one who is more than his peer as a lawyer and more than his peer as a statesman. In every case Mr. Olney deceives against Mr. Hughes and in favor of President Wilson. Mr. Olney is in an exceptional position as guide and advisor of American people at this time. Nobody can suspect him of seeking political office or being influenced by political ambition. There is no public office in the country that he would accept. There is no additional honor that either President Wilson or Mr. Hughes could confer upon him. He long ago retired from active public affairs, and his interest in Government is that of a wise, unselfish, disinterested patriot who is concerned only with the welfare of his country. No part of Mr. Olney's review of the situation is more important than those paragraphs in which he invites the American people to consider soberly the almost inevitable result of turning the foreign affairs of the United States over to Mr. Hughes. Mr. Olney well says that "as the Supreme Court candidate cannot say what he would have done in President Wilson's place or what he will do if he succeeds him, the only thing he is certain about is the wrongfulness of everything the present Administration has done—its inducement to change the existing foreign policy of the country will be very great." But what kind of a change? A change to suit Germany? A change to suit the ultra-nationalists? A change to suit the interests that want to overthrow Carranza and intervene in Mexico? A change to impose an embargo on munitions of war and keep Americans off enemy ships? A change "to suit the utilitarian end of the Hughes combination," which wants war with anybody at any price? These are all possibilities. Some change of foreign policy must inevitably follow Mr. Hughes' election, in view of the character of the campaign he has waged against President Wilson, but nobody knows what it will be. The nation is asked to take a leap in the dark and trust to luck. The Post-Dispatch agrees with Mr. Olney "that the American people can hardly fail to realize the danger."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

GREEK POPULACE HAD BEEN WORKED INTO FURY BY WAR SPEECHES

GREEKS AT SALONIKI LISTENING TO WAR SPEECH

The Greeks had long listened to war speeches by Venizelos and his followers before King Constantine finally withdrew his opposition to war on the side of the allies. In fact, public speaking was prohibited for a time by Premier Zaimas because of the possible result. The population of Saloniki, Greece, the base of operations of the allied troops against Bulgaria, was practically all inclined toward revolution, which was encouraged by Venizelos. Flery, war speeches were always cheered by the thousands who heard them in the public square.

Factories May Have to Move
New Rates Are Said to Give Other States an Advantage Over Texas

In addition to the fact that the new rates, put into effect as a result of the Shreveport decision, sweeping every particle of protection accorded to factories located in Texas, there are a number of instances where factories located out of the state have a lower rate to Texas points than factories located in Texas who are nearer to the same point. An instance of this pointed out by a local railroad official, is the rate accorded to the cement works at Acme. Under the Texas commission's rates the Acme plant had a rate to San Antonio of 17 cents, while cement from Edorado, Okla. had a rate of 2 1/2 cents, giving the Texas concern an advantage of 9 1/2 cents over their Oklahoma competitors. Now the rate from Edorado remains the same, while the rate from Acme was increased to 28 cents, giving the Oklahoma concern an advantage of a cent and a half over the Texas plant in shipments to San Antonio. The rates contained in the tariff which were only announced last week, have caused a very feeling an indignant complaint to arise from the heads of the local manufacturing plants, along with those of other manufacturers over the state, and with one accord they seem to be planning how they may fight the rates most effectively. Every opinion expressed on the subject seems to agree that the rates, should they be allowed to stand, will result in the removal of many manufacturing enterprises from the state.

Department Does Not Endorse Special Make
Washington, Oct. 2.—There have come to the attention of the United States department of agriculture items appearing in the press which are so framed as to give readers the impression that the department in its publications has praised or recommended a farm tractor of a particular make. As the department has not done this and in fact, systematically refrains from recommending any particular make of tractor or other machine, the public is warned to regard as false any statement asserting or implying such recommendation by the department.

TOTAL FINES IN MONTH $1,086.50 Cash Collected For September Was $612.50 and $228 in Fines Suspended. Although the total of fines assessed in the police court last month, $1,086.50 was somewhat lower than the average, the $612.50 which was settled in cash was about $200 more than the average of collections in this sort of coin. Only $228 of the amount was accounted for by suspensions, one of the lowest figures for this item of the current year. However, a number of undesirable citizens were driven from the city by this means, the police announce. The amount of fines worked out in jail, $45 and on the streets, $90 was intoxication was the most frequent item of the traffic ordinance, in which speeding was the most frequent offense, cost the motorists only $80. Intoxication was the most frequent cause of bringing erring individuals into the coils of the police, and about 75 per cent. of the fines inflicted were for this cause. Disturbances of the peace, affairs and gaming fines were the next in order.

The OLDEST FOOD KNOWN Biblical history frequently mentions the olive tree, ripe olives and olive oil. The Greeks and Romans highly prized olive cultivation. As civilization and culture traveled Westward, so followed the use of the olive and its oil. It spread to Spain and finally after the discovery of the American continent, was successfully established in California by missionaries in 1769. We have our green olives packed for us by the largest olive importer and packer in America and handle nothing but the very fanciest of Saville fruit. Our ripe Olives and Olive Oil have been most carefully selected from different packers and each grade we believe to be the very best of the WORLDS production for the price, and each selection is the result of most careful comparison of the offerings of all the biggest packers of Fancy Fruit. On account of our large purchases we are enabled to make cheaper prices than the ordinary dealer. BERT BEAN COFFEE HOUSE 824 Indiana Telephone 35
