1916'S RECORD IN OIL PRODUCTION

NORTHWEST TEXAS YIELDED 5,500,000 BARRELS VALUED AT $7,000,000

IN OTHER DISTRICTS

Much New Territory Opened During Year, and New Record Established in Country

With production of approximately 5,500,000 barrels of oil in 1916, according to government estimates, the Northwest Texas oil field held its place as a factor in the petroleum business of the country, though not recording the increase that some other fields showed, according to federal reports on oil production.

The value of Northwest Texas oil in 1916, as estimated at approximately $7,000,000 for the year.

That 1916 was a record-breaking year for the petroleum industry of the United States is indicated in a preliminary estimate of the output of crude oil made by John D. Northrop of the United States geological survey, department of the interior.

Northrop estimated that during the year just closed 292,300,000 barrels of crude petroleum was produced and marketed in the oil fields of this country. This quantity is greater by 11,000,000 barrels, or 4 per cent, than the output of 1915. In addition to the quantity of oil produced and marketed in 1916, several million barrels were produced and placed in temporary field storage in Kansas and Oklahoma.

The following table shows by States the marketed production of petroleum in 1915, and the estimated production in 1916, in barrels of 42 gallons each:

State	1915	1916
Oklahoma	97,915,243	105,000,000

TRY TIMES WANT ADS FOR QUICK RESULTS

The increase in 1916 is accounted for by the continued ability of the new fields in the midcontinent and Rocky mountain regions to supply enough oil from new wells to more than offset the normal decline in the older fields east of the Mississippi.

The incentives that caused the increase in 1916 include prices for the oil at the wells, which encouraged drilling in all fields; high production in the Cushing pools, Oklahoma, which allowed the product of other midcontinent fields access to markets; and a general increase in demand for crude oil, expressing the needs of a large number of new refineries that were installed during the period of overproduction and low prices in 1914 and 1915.

The principal centers of increased production in 1916 were in Estill and Allen counties, Kentucky; Butler county, Kansas; Carter county, Oklahoma; and Converse Park and Natrona counties, Wyoming.

Prices of crude petroleum at the wells averaged considerably higher in 1916 than in 1915. The upward tendency of the market, inherited from 1915, persisted, with steady advances in the prices of practically every type of high grade oil, until March, when relative stability at high levels was attained. In this period Pennsylvania grade advanced from $2.25 to $2.50 a barrel, and Oklahoma-Kansas grade from $1.20 to $1.55 a barrel, and the product of the Cushing oil pool commanded a premium of 50 to 60 cents above the price just quoted. Except for reductions of little importance in the price of one of the low grade crude oils produced in northern Louisiana in June, and in the premiums paid for Cushing oil, these high prices were maintained until the middle of July when, led by all northern Louisiana grades on the 15th and followed by Oklahoma-Kansas grades on the 21st, and by Pennsylvania and associated grades on the 29th, a retrospective movement was begun, which fastened the price of Oklahoma-Kansas grade to 90 cents a barrel, practically eliminated the Cushing premium and brought Pennsylvania grade to $2.20 a barrel. The depression in the prices of crude oil was centered in the midcontinent fields, where, subsequent to the decline of Cushing field, general

COLINE WELL NOW OF CHIEF INTEREST

Not Far From End—Refinery Plans Proceeding—No Oil Advance Here Yet

With no additional development in the Panther district in Archer county, local interest now turns to the Coline No. 1 well, situated away from the main field, at a distance of about 100 feet from the main field, where the Coline well on the Knight ranch was not a fair indication of the richness, on account of the drill going too far into the stratum, and they are confidently expecting good news from the Orton.

Several new companies are being organized for drilling in Archer county, and as soon as the water situation improves, a marked increase in the number of rigs may be expected. If in the meantime some of the wells now drilling prove to be productive still more operations will be under way for the present, lack of water continues to hamper new work on every side.

Plans for the new refinery are going ahead rapidly and a meeting of the stockholders will probably be held within the next day or two. The amount originally set as the capital stock was subscribed so promptly that an additional $50,000 will likely be offered, especially as some Wichitans who failed to get in on the proposition are now anxious to do so if opportunity is afforded.

It is noted today the ten cent advance noted in Oklahoma by the Sinclair company had not been followed by the other pipe lines, and oil men here were watching the market situation with some interest. While the situation of Sinclair in putting the price up in the face of the big companies is considered a nerve feed, it is said by those who know Sinclair to be typical of him. The course followed by some of the big companies when an "out side" boosts the price, is to promptly boost it, within a few days, to a point where the outsider cannot follow. So far this has not happened in Sinclair's case. Both in Oklahoma and Northwest Texas, however, the oil price situation at present is more a matter of permits than of posted quotations on credit balances.

FOOTBALL PLAYERS TO GET MONOGRAMS

Decision Reached at Meeting at High School Tuesday—To Give Entertainment.

Monograms will be awarded to Wichita Falls high school football players who participated in four games or the equivalent, during the season just closed, according to a decision reached at a meeting of the high school athletic council yesterday afternoon. A general entertainment is planned for the membership of the athletic association for the first Friday night in February, at which the formal presentation will be made.

This will be the first time that the custom of American colleges and lower schools in giving permission for the wearing of initials or other insignia on their sweaters in recognition of service in some of the various branches of athletics, has been followed out at the Wichita Falls high school. Wichita Falls being a compound name, the monogram was chosen in preference to initials.

A list of those who are to be awarded the monograms will be made out by Coach King and submitted to the athletic council right away. While he has not yet been over his records and can not announce the full list of those who will receive this honor, the high school coach announces that the following are certain: Burnside, Southworth, G. Harris, captain, E. Harris, Williams, Hickman, B. Trotter, Sinclair, Urban, Reeves. It is probable that an examination of the records will disclose more names for this list.

A committee was named to draw up a constitution and by-laws for the athletic association, composed of Misses Leicham and Mudd and Messrs. Akin, Burnside and McGlamery. The constitution will be submitted to the faculty for approval, and later to the membership of the association. This is expected to put athletics in the local high school on a firmer and more systematic basis than has been the case at present, providing for the perpetuation of the athletic association. Student managers for each branch of athletics to work under the supervision of the faculty manager will be named.

The following members were present at yesterday's meeting: S. J. King, athletic director; B. E. McGlamery, faculty manager; Alfred Burnside, president; Miss Genevieve Mudd, secretary; and the following class representatives: Misses Pearl and Marie Leicham, Hazel Miller and Blanche Clark and Henry Akin and Frank Patton.

The jurors selected up to 3 o'clock were: J. W. Love, farmer, living in west part of the county; D. G. Hollander, farmer, Burkholder; G. W. Fligo of Wichita Falls, the first venireman examined, disqualified on account of having formed a fixed opinion in connection with the case, and J. M. Hayworth, contractor of Burkholder, by expressing a conviction against the infliction of capital punishment.

Questions addressed to the Jurymen will be self defense. Williams is represented by S. Heiser and E. H. Edleman and the state by District Attorney Humphrey, assisted by Ed Napier, special prosecutor.

Argument Is Completed Late In Day Defendant Weeps as Her Attorney Speaks

The jury in the Covert case reported this afternoon that it stood to 2 and was unable to agree, asking to be excused. It was sent back for further deliberations.

After deliberations lasting through part of last night and today no decision had been reached by the jury in the case of Mrs. R. L. Covert charged with the murder of her husband here Oct. 4, up to 3 o'clock this afternoon.

This morning the jury requested a rehearing of part of the testimony which was granted by the court. Since then nothing has been heard from them. The testimony asked for by the jury was that of Mrs. Knowles and Messrs. Edwards and Malone, whose testimony made the backbone of the state's case.

During the argument in the case yesterday Mrs. Covert frequently gave way to tears particularly during the argument of Ed Napier in her behalf. Judge Bonner's charge contained no special features. He charged upon the offense of murder, referring to self defense and manslaughter.

This morning shortly after 9 o'clock the jury came into the court room and asked that some of the testimony be read. Court Reporter Hankerson read the testimony of Mrs. Knowles and others from his notes, after which the jury retired again.

No request for a suspended sentence was made by this case, Attorney Ed Napier seeking a straight out acquittal for his client.

An hour and a half was allotted to the state for the argument on the case, but the full time was not used. The jury getting the case soon after 1 o'clock, H. D. Sartin, who assisted District Attorney Humphrey in the case, opened the case for the state. Mr. Sartin directed his chief attack, after summing up the state's case, to the breaking down of the plea of self defense set up by the defendant. Discussing the location and course of the wounds in Covert's body and showing that he could not but have been facing Covert, he stated that she was wounded in this manner. Mr. Sartin also closely discussed the testimony which indicated that Covert had been shot while lying in bed, and being tending to show that Mrs. Covert was under the influence of liquor on the night of the killing.

E. W. Napier followed for the defense, speaking for more than an hour. His minute summing up of the testimony, showing the ill treatment Mrs. Covert suffered at the hands of Covert, created a powerful impression in favor of his client. The testimony of the witnesses Brown, McSpadden, Majors, Duckett and the defendant telling of the various instances of abuse by her husband both while lying in the oil fields down to the very night of the killing were surveyed tellingly and at length. The testimony of Will Allen, Ed Barnes and the defendant were shown to have agreed that Covert was not in bed when shot by his wife, while by Allen, Barnes and Lamford, who were present at the trial, Covert was not drunk on the night of October 4.

"Even if she were drunk at that time, this would not be the time and place to prosecute her for that," said Mr. Napier. "If he thinks it such a heinous offense for her to have been drunk at this time, he should prosecute her in the justice or corporation court for it."

Likewise, Mr. Napier argued that the fact that Mrs. Covert, while divorced from her husband, was still living with him was a foreign issue in the case, and that if it was wrong a prosecution on a misdemeanor charge was the proper remedy, instead of an attempt to create a prejudice against the defendant while on trial for her life.

She has explained how that came about anyway. Soon after her marriage Covert became aware that his in-laws might interfere with his inheriting some property in Pennsylvania. The district was gotten at his request and on his account. He paid the expenses of the divorce. The defendant continued to live with him for the same reason, she stated. "I saw how he repaid her love by continual abuse during all these years, culminating with his treatment of me in Duckett's presence on the night of the shooting while fired with drink, striking her in the face and calling her unmentionable names and striking her a second time, and being prevented from repeating the blows only by the timely interference of Duckett."

The failure of the chief of police, A. J. Humphrey in going with Mrs. Covert on the occasion of her visit to the city hall to ask for help on that fatal night was the occasion of severe criticism during Mr. Napier's speech.

"Here was that helpless woman begging and pleading for the protection which it was her duty to accord her, and he turned her back, telling her to go home and sleep it off and it would be all right in the morning. Then he comes on to this witness stand and swears that she was drunk, the only witness so testifying. If she was drunk he should have locked her up. If sober he should have come with her. And if drunk, he merely failed in his duty and he knows it. He feels that it put him in a bad light with the people of Wichita Falls which would be remedied somehow by a conviction of this woman, so he comes here and swears that she was drunk. A most remarkable excuse for withholding the protection which he is expected to accord us all."

"There was an entire absence of the court room the works in the close of the state's case by District Attorney Humphrey, his speech being a cold, deliberate and logical summing up of the facts against Mrs. Covert. Only when his testimony referred to Mrs. Covert in the course of his speech as 'that woman' did he allow any feeling to creep into his voice. Discussing the charge of the court only in a brief way and leaving the theory of self defense introduced by Mrs. Covert's counsel after little discussion he concentrated his attack on Mrs. Covert's actions on the day and the night of the shooting, telling of her being drunk, of her in-visiting Duckett to supper with them, and of her threats as leaving for the police station.

The last testimony by Mr. and Mrs. Knowles that she returned from the city hall Mrs. Covert was informed of the fact that her husband was in bed and asleep and of her reply that she was going to kill him, and her words after the shooting which were heard by the witness Malone, when addressing the jury, Mrs. Covert asked merely for a conviction for murder, but did not recommend any specific penalty.

TO SELL CEMETERY BONDS TOMORROW

Blue Prints For Improvements Have Been Completed By Landscape Architect

Riverside cemetery improvement work promises to monopolize attention at Thursday's meeting of the council, the $10,000 bonds being scheduled for sale on that date and the discussion of estimates and specifications for the work. Blue prints and specifications were completed today by Charles W. Hedges, landscape architect, who will appear before the council and explain the plans to the aldermen.

Although the amount of the bond issue to be sold is small, the financial condition of the city and the excellent reputation of its bond issues had resulted in a wide inquiry regarding the issue from bond houses all over the United States. A number of bids have already been received and it is expected that an additional number will be received before they are opened tomorrow night.

To the People of Texas and their Legislators Elect:

This is a paid advertisement intended to give reasons why the present laws of Texas relating to the incorporation of oil companies should be amended so as to allow Texas corporations like those of other states to pursue all of the several branches of this single business.

The Texas Company is engaged in purchasing, refining and marketing petroleum, and as a part of its business owns and operates a system of pipe lines. It is incorporated under the laws of Texas and is handicapped seriously by the inadequacy of its charter powers. It has no direct power to prospect for and produce crude oil. And as the law now stands it can obtain this power only by reorganizing and taking out a charter in some other state, thus becoming a corporation of that state and ceasing to be a corporation of Texas.

Heretofore the stockholders, by a separate producing organization, have borne the burden of obtaining the necessary crude supplies; and but for this arrangement the company could not have succeeded. This was workable when the organization was small and operations were on a narrow scale. But with the growth of the business and with varying and shifting stock ownership it has become subject to too many complications. The company is now manufacturing in Texas and marketing in nearly every country in the world the various finished products of Texas crude oil. It now has more than 10,000 employes and its stockholders number about 4,000 including approximately 2,000 employees.

The competitors of this company are engaged in all branches of the business. Two of its principal competitors in Texas operate as limited partnerships or joint stock associations and therefore may pursue any business that an individual might pursue, the only restriction being such stipulations as the shareholders see fit to make among themselves. Another principal competitor is organized as a holding company, incorporated under the laws of another state, and owns the stock of three Texas corporations, one engaged in producing oil, another in refining and marketing, and a third in operating pipe lines, so that on the whole the stockholders have the benefit of an organization which covers all branches of the business.

The statement just made is not in criticism. The plan of including all branches of a single business is logical. Moreover, as applied to the oil business it is universal in all of the oil producing states and in foreign countries. In practically every State of the Union, except Texas, a corporation of this kind has the charter power to produce oil.

And it may not be inappropriate to say further in this connection that the limitations which the laws of Texas place on the charter powers of the Texas Company do not stop at the boundaries of the state; they follow the company wherever it goes; they follow it into other states and foreign countries where its competitors carry on all branches of the business and where the State of Texas can not prevent them from doing so. If anywhere on the Globe this company should do an act in excess of its powers as defined by the laws of Texas its charter would be subject to forfeiture.

No one would think of precluding a company engaged in the lumber business from going directly to the natural source of supply, taking timber leases or buying standing timber, and in that way acquiring its raw material. There as in the oil business the manufacturing merchant takes the raw or crude material and turns it into finished products. In each case the supply is limited as regards both locality and extent and the matter of obtaining supplies of the particular kinds needed and obtaining them at the times when needed and in the places where needed is of supreme importance. The same thought may be applied to mining or any industry where the operator must lay out large sums in plant and marketing facilities and is not warranted in doing so unless he is to have a free hand in obtaining the raw material. He must be allowed to protect his investment, otherwise he is at the mercy of hostile forces and can be destroyed at their will or upon an event of chance. To exclude an oil company from taking leases and producing oil, and thereby require it to buy from those who may happen to have wells and produce some oil, would mean to any concern operating on a large scale precisely the same that it would mean to the owner of a sawmill if he should be prohibited from acquiring standing timber and required to buy his logs at retail. And furthermore as previously indicated, it is not a question of what might be ideal if we were at the inception of this industry; the business has pitched itself along certain lines, and these lines are universal and world-wide.

The position of The Texas Company was fully explained to the last legislature, but there was opposition to the bill introduced for its relief, and the matter was delayed and finally crowded out near adjournment. The company did not then, and it does not now, ask any special favors, or for the enactment of a law which would not apply to all similarly situated, or for any change in the settled policies of the state, but it did desire, and it still desires, some fair and suitable relief; such legislation as will remove the handicap and accord it those lawful corporate rights that are enjoyed by companies organized in such states as California, Oklahoma or Louisiana. It will present the matter to the Thirty-fifth Legislature.
