

JIM OSBORNE SPEAKS FOR THE "OPEN SHOP"

Addresses Audience of About 500 People At Indiana and Ninth Saturday Night.

Jim Osborne of Tacoma, Wash., speaking in favor of the open shop, addressed a gathering of about 500 people at the corner of Ninth street and Indiana avenue last night, among whom union labor and open shop advocates seemed fairly well divided.

In the course of his remarks Osborne said that he was a boilermaker and was at one time a member of the boilermakers' union in Seattle. That during the war he learned of a plot to put the city's light plant out of commission and that he at once informed the authorities. That subsequently and supposedly in connection with this plot several hundred pounds of dynamite was found buried near the city hall. That because of his action in giving information of this plot he was suspended from the boilermakers' union for 99 years, whereupon he became an advocate of the open shop.

He says that he is not opposed to labor unions but objects to the methods they use. That his slogan is that the right to work is as sacred as the right to strike.

There were some minor attempts at heckling from the assemblage, but otherwise the meeting was orderly.

Guest at Dinner. Prior to his speaking engagement Osborne was a guest at a dinner served for nine persons in the Wichita club, attended by Judge H. F. Weldon, T. B. Noble, H. M. Harrison, G. R. Raymond, Colonel E. E. Kelly, N. H. Martin, C. F. Carter and H. H. Curran. During the course of the dinner Osborne took occasion to emphasize the good as well as the bad features of several labor unions, and stated that he would still undoubtedly be a union man but for one step taken by the boilermakers' union during the Seattle strike, in which he could not bring himself to join.

When the union later suspended him for 99 years, he made up his mind, he said, to attempt an open fight against radical tendencies as they were being expressed by various union leaders.

The real features of the dinner were the excellence of the food and the stories told by Colonel Kelly and Judge Weldon.

Colonel Kelly forgot his usual solemnity, gave his Irish love of humor the upper hand and kept his fellow diners in gales of laughter with a running fire of anecdotal yarns.

DEPARTMENT ANSWERS BUT WAS FALSE ALARM

An alarm-turned in from the corner of Tenth and Holliday streets at 8:30 Saturday night caused a useless run by the fire department. Chief McCluskey and his forces turned out en masse, but arriving on the scene were all that they were able to do. The firemen searched high and low for the conflagration but were unable to find so much as a spark. They finally came to the conclusion that some one had tried to mail a letter in the fire box and returned to their stations.

Incidentally, Wichita Falls celebrated fire prevention day without having a single fire, for with the single exception of the night false alarm, no calls were received at the local stations.

BOY SCOUT LOCAL NEWS

An organization of new troops at the First Methodist Church, South, and the Floral Heights Methodist church seems to be possible in the near future. Members of both of these churches have made requests for additional troops and have set about the work of organizing troop committees and securing scout masters. When this is completed the enrollment of scouts will be started at once.

A new troop is to be organized at the First Methodist Church, North, next Friday night. Mr. Earl Wyatt has been secured to act as scoutmaster of this troop and requests that all boys wishing to be enrolled in live and active group be present at 7:30 next Friday.

The troop committee of Troop 6 has secured Mr. Morgan to take over the work of scoutmaster for the troop. H. White was formerly in charge of this troop but is now studying in the University of Texas.

The next issue of "Pen," the scout magazine is expected to be out some time during the coming week.

There is a mistake about Troop 7 winning the efficiency contest which was closed recently. One report from Troop 6 is missing and until this is found the final results cannot be tabulated with accuracy. Scout headquarters has revoked the statement issued last week stating that 7 had won the prize and will not officially announce the winner until Troop 6 has found their report and submitted it.

All scouts wishing to take the scout examinations must have their applications at headquarters by the 10th of each month. The October examinations will be held the 25th. The next meeting of the court of honor will be October 29 at the First Christian church.

Scoutmaster H. E. Taylor has prepared a message for the boy scouts of this city which he wishes to be presented to the citizens of the community as well. The article, condensed and quoted, is given below.

"We are starting a new year's work and in so doing we want to begin with the set determination to put over the best and biggest year's work ever accomplished in this city. We are depending on the scoutmasters and assistants to help do this in a large measure, but the main portion of the work must be done by the scouts themselves.

"It is the hope of the officials of the scout movement here to double the membership of this city by the time the next summer camp rolls around. We want 50 first class scouts, at least five eagle scouts and a number of star and life scouts. Our field man, Mr. J. P. Fitch, and Scout Executive James E. West are counting on big things from the boy scouts of Wichita Falls this year.

"Remember that good turn daily."

GRISWOLD OIL CO. BUYS HOLDINGS OF THE COMO COMPANY

A deal which will prove of interest to local oil men was consummated Saturday when the Griswold Oil Company of this city bought out the Como Oil Company with all of its holdings.

The Como company has four producing wells with a combined production of 25 barrels which, when combined with the wells now controlled by the Griswold company, will give the latter concern 19 producers in Wichita county. All of the Como holdings are located on the Brown farm, two miles south of Iowa Park.

The announcement of the purchase was made by Eugene Christian, vice president of the Griswold Oil company. In commenting on the deal Mr. Christian stated that his company would drill for shallow production almost entirely and would not make efforts to bring in deep wells. He stated that in his opinion the shallow well was destined to be the future source of oil supply and that there was a greater possibility of financial returns from the shallow well than from those of 2,000 feet and more depth.

An ultimate production of 1,000 barrels per day from shallow wells is expected by officials of the company in the near future and they base these hopes on the fact that thus far shallow production has proven to be more consistent by far than the deep well proposition. Furthermore, they point out, there is not the financial risk involved in the sinking of a shallow producer that it attendant on drilling of deeper wells and although the returns from a single drilling will not be as large as those derived from a pay sand struck at 2,000 feet, the larger number of wells which it will be possible to drill will eventually return a greater profit than one or two gushers.

BELIEVE THAT WELL ON PETTIT RANCH IS IN PRODUCING CLASS

What is thought to be a producing well has been drilled in section 29 on the Pettit ranch, five miles west of the K. M. A. field and five miles south of Electra. The well, formerly known as the Big Dome, is being drilled by William Holden.

At 2436 feet a very rich sand was found and a large flow of gas encountered. Casing was being set and the well halted out Saturday with the expectation that this work would be finished Sunday. Experienced oil men are of the opinion that when brought in the well will be a valuable one.

If this proves to be the case considerable new territory will be opened up west of the K. M. A. for there are no wells within quite a distance of the Big Dome.

BURKBURNETT FORMS CHAMBER COMMERCE AT LUNCHEON FRIDAY

LARGELY ATTENDED AND ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING OF BUSINESS MEN HELD.

HARRISON ASSISTS IN FORMING ORGANIZATION

Committee is Appointed and Plans Made to Conduct Membership Campaign.

For the purpose of organizing a chamber of commerce, the business men of Burk Burnett met Friday noon for luncheon at the Modern cafe in that city. A large attendance included the most influential and representative business men of the town. They were all enthusiastic and awake to the advantage to their city of having an active chamber of commerce.

Hubert M. Harrison, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of Wichita Falls, spoke to the meeting on "What It Means to Serve Your Community." In his remarks, Harrison brought out the fact that cities are built by men rather than by natural resources, and compared the latest progress of a city to those of a waterfalls; the power is there all the time but it requires a skilled engineer to hook up the water to a driving wheel. Once a city's energies are directed by co-operative organization, the wheels of progress are set in motion and that city ceases to be merely a matter of geography and becomes a factor in the commercial and home life of the nation.

Tentative plans were made to organize a Burk Burnett chamber of commerce and all plans were left in the hands of a membership committee and an organization committee. The organization committee has requested the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce to lend Harrison to the Burk Burnett body to work up a campaign for a large membership and a meeting will be held next Monday with that in view.

Plans to Serve All. The new organization agreed to withhold from all political controversies, and to draw its members from every walk of life, expecting to render its services to employer and employee alike.

OWNERS OF LOTS IN THE RIVERSIDE CEMETERY HAVE MEETING ON SATURDAY

The meeting of the owners of lots in the Riverside cemetery, called for Saturday afternoon, was held at 3:00 p. m. at the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce.

The park board was represented by Dr. J. F. Reed, its president, and by Mrs. J. A. Kemp, and many owners as to the identity of its occupant.

Owing to lack of funds at the disposal of the park board, the cemetery is not in as good a condition as might be wished, but it is believed that next year more money will be available both from taxation and from the expected bond issue.

There was some discussion of a plan to form a lot owners association to take over the care of the grounds but no action was taken in this matter.

FIGURES SAVING TO CARS WILL OVERCOME TAXATION ON BONDS

Comparisons between the relative cost of taxation for the $240,000 street improvement bond issue and the saving in gasoline, tires and wear and tear of automobiles were made in a statement issued Saturday afternoon by City Engineer Montgomery. He said:

"The total amount of money necessary for a sinking fund and interest for the first year (based on 30 years six per cent bonds) is about $31,500. This amount will decrease each year so that the final yearly amount will not be over $12,000. The average yearly cost then will be around $21,500. This amount represents the average that must be raised by taxation to provide for a bond issue of $240,000."

Question of Benefits. "Changing over to the question of benefits derived, the asset side of the question, as it were, there will be depending upon the widths of pavements, some five or six miles of paved streets constructed with the above mentioned bond issue. After this pavement is constructed there will be from 1,000 to 2,000 automobiles traveling over it every day. If the very conservative sum of five cents per ton-mile is allowed for the saving in gasoline, oil, garage bills, etc., the total amount saved yearly will be appreciable. The average weight of automobiles in Wichita Falls is about 3,000 pounds. To be conservative we will assume the average weight to be 2,000 pounds, or one ton. The savings then will average five cents per mile for each automobile. If an average of 1,500 automobiles passes over the pavement each day, the yearly saving will be $126,875. This saving is quite an item, and would be sufficient in three years to pay the total amount of the bond issue. Another tangible asset will be the enhancing in value of all property abutting the paved streets. Taken all together, it is seen that from a purely business standpoint the investment will be a paying one both to the public and to the property owners.

Mobley, special deputy grand chancellor of Cleburne, will be present, and those not in attendance will miss hearing some very inspiring talks. Both of these gentlemen are well up in Pythianism, and are recognized as two of the "wheel-horses" of Texas. Every Dokey is expected to be present and wear his fez, as final disposition will be made relative to having more people will get out into the fresh air and sunshine. The city as a whole will appear more beautiful, and will be five or six miles less dusty—which is quite an item to the housewife. "I have had several business men tell me that the amount they would save from not having to have their trucks pulled out of the mudholes that are due to be paved, would more than pay their total cost of the pavement."

Every Dokey is expected to be present and wear his fez, as final disposition will be made relative to having

Health of the Voice and Throat

(Monday Health Talk No. 4)
By P. L. MYERS, D. C.

The voice varies in quality from time to time, one day being clear and vibrant, and another day breathy and below normal. A healthy voice is not necessarily a strong or a musical voice. But it is certain that an unhealthy throat and larynx cannot produce a sound that is clear and vibrant and natural.

It is no secret that Caruso helps to keep his voice in condition by chiropractic adjustments. The nerves that control the action of the throat and voice if pinched at their exit from between spinal joints, are certain to reduce the strength of the throat and voice. Chiropractic adjustments free the nerves and Nature restores health.

Girl's Speech Restored

Miss Elva Richards, aged 13, fell on an icy sidewalk and as a result of the injury was unable to talk above a whisper. She makes the following statement:

"For a time I could not even whisper and I was deaf. After the first chiropractic adjustment I could both hear and talk, though the adjustments were continued some time before I was normal again." Chiropractic Research Bureau, Statement No. 1230W.

Now for a Good Supply of Handkerchiefs

What a comfort that means—for the colder days. How many purposes a Handkerchief serves, to be sure! Did you ever find yourself without one? It's the first feeling one can think of—so helpless—so impossible. So gratifying to always have a spic-span 'kerchief in the pocket or handbag, and so good to have a full supply in the bureau drawer—from such interesting lots as we are showing.

The New Velvet Hats Are So Delightfully Becoming!

Rich in texture and coloring; soft in their highly artistic lines, rolling from the fact, or cuddling so quaintly around the hair; some large, some small; some simple, other quite elaborate. Little wonder that women love them so.

Some are quite plain in color and trimming; some are decorated in sharply contrasting colors; some are trimmed with motifs of lace; some with radiant ribbons; some with ostrich. So many women find they are more becoming than any other hats they ever wore.

The Witchery of the Veil

Perhaps you didn't know how much art and skill the designer puts into the meshes of the innocent Veil. Little touches of flattery, sometimes that hide the erring lines and shadows; little curves and motifs that accentuate beauty. Never prettier, nor more becoming kinds than these shown by our Millinery Department.

Speaking of Buying Ladies' Shoes

Good taste and excellence of materials and workmanship are given first consideration when we are buying Shoes.

You will always find the new things here and our prices you will find very reasonable indeed.

We invite you to see the many pretty patterns we are showing and we ask you to compare our prices.

Well-Dressed Women Demand Perfect-Fitting Undergarments

Good judgment tells you that if Underwear does not fit the figure perfectly, if it bunches into annoying wrinkles and folds, your outer garments won't look well.

Perfect fitting Underwear is really the foundation upon which that well-dressed appearance depends. Millions of women know this. That is why they insist upon Munsingwear.

Munsingwear not only fits the figure perfectly, but because of its fine quality and unusual service, it gives a dollar's worth of underwear satisfaction for each dollar spent.

Stockings

of the Comfortable Good-Looking Kinds

Stockings for Women and Girls. Stockings for Children and the Baby. Socks for Men. Cotton and Lisle-thread for useful service. Silk for elegance and beauty. Wool for comfort and warmth for tender feet. They're all here, ready, best kinds, fairest prices.

can see, than it has been since the first Madero revolution, and the new government seems to be animated by a desire to deal fairly with its own people to give them a government of some stability and power to enforce justice, and to rehabilitate Mexico in the eyes of the outside world by respect for obligations and duties that that country has incurred.

Republican factional differences in Illinois, which threaten seriously republican possibilities in that state, have republican leaders "guessing" and Senator Harding, in Chicago for a few hours the other day, made it a point to stay close to the national division headquarters to escape the feeling that would have arisen had he appeared in any of his lines with either of the factions.

The Small-Oglesby controversy, which is an offshoot of the Thompson-Lowden fight, has reached the stage of a court contest with Oglesby demanding that 300 Chicago boxes be thrown out on the ground of fraud, and efforts to reconcile the two candidates by having both withdraw and name a candidate acceptable to both have so far made no headway.

In Wisconsin, where for years there has been a LaFollette and anti-LaFollette faction and where Senator Lenroot recently surprised the politicians by winning the republican nomination in the face of his colleague's opposition, James Thompson, a LaFollette partisan at the last moment filed as an independent against Lenroot, and the factional fight is on with increased bitterness, if that is possible.

These factional differences are going to cut a figure in the national election and the democratic party, which is presenting an united front in every state in the Union, cannot but profit from them and their counterparts in half a dozen other states.

Horsemen everywhere and a lot of other folks who are catholic enough in their interests to include super-excellence in any line are watching with interest preparations for the match race on October 12 between Man o' War and Sir Barton, which is to be run at Kenilworth Park, Ind., on Oct. 12, for a purse of $75,000.

Man o' War, named by many racing men as the greatest runner in racing history, has never really had to extend himself to maintain his unbroken record as a two-year-old and three-year-old, and Sir Barton's record is practically as good. The two have never met.

Of further interest is the announcement of Samuel D. Riddle, the owner of Man o' War, that this will be his last race, win or lose, for he will be sent to a racing farm in Kentucky to go in stud exclusively from now on.

Not until the Chicago police began fighting among themselves over possession of stolen booze did headquarters discover that there was a well-organized inside ring among the police to connive at whisky thefts and then to guard the stolen goods so they could get through the city streets without molestation.

One crowd's loss was taken away from by another crowd of bluecoats, and the trouble began. "When thieves fall out, honest men sometimes get their just deserts."

Any miracle may happen now. State officials in New Jersey the other day filed two complaints for violating the Volstead law—the first they have filed since the law went into effect more than a year ago.

Three hold-ups in Ranger netted the robbers $310. They were on Sunday night and it is presumed the victims had contributed most of their funds to the church collection boxes.

Our old-time acquaintance, the 10-cent loaf of bread, is again in being, if not "in our midst." The reduced price of flour is given as the cause.

Just Folks

By EDGAR A. GUEST

Don't know any reason why Care should always pass me by; Others grieve and others weep, Lose the joys they want to keep, Others have to stand to care, As the burden I must bear Are not any bigger than Those that come to every man, So I reckon I should be Patient when mine come to me.

WHY?

Do New Shoes squeak? Copyright, 1920, by Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

The high pitched noise which is so often to be found in a new pair of shoes is caused by the friction of the various layers of leather against each other, the hard glazed surfaces giving off a succession of noises which usually grow less distinct as the shoes become more worn.

During recent years, however, the science of shoe-making has improved to such an extent that the "squeak" has been almost eliminated, though it sometimes appears in the heavier types of footwear where thick hard leather is used.

It is a time in which criticism is readily aroused and so the way is not a fortunate one for preachers, whether they deliver sermons on religion or lecture on politics.

Contentions in the churches and between various sects seem to be foreshadowed. Prejudices will be awakened, owing to public events or personal spite.

Again, there is a shadow of soldiers moving across the earth and among them Americans seem to be brilling, in the declaration. They foretell preparedness but not active campaigning.

It is not an auspicious rule for women, for Neptune forecasts dissatisfaction concerning some of their public enterprises.

Lovers should be cautious this day which is not favorable for courtship. Engagements made under this rule may not be lasting.

Some close relation between the theater and colleges is foreshadowed. Educational institutions will cultivate dramatic interpretation from a new point of view, it is foretold.

Physicians and surgeons apparently will enter on a period of much work in hospitals and public institutions.

Warning is given that there will be much suffering during the winter months when the poor will claim more help than has been given recently.

The appearance of a reformer who makes a deep impression is prophesied. He will be the forerunner of others.

All the signs seem to forecast the rise of new leaders in every branch of human endeavor, for the old who have won fame will have passed to the last man and woman before the new era has advanced.

Persons whose birthday it is should beware of new undertakings during the coming year. They should be careful to pursue well-beaten paths.

Thrills in the African Jungle

Masai warriors in dance victory over fallen lion

Two pygmy or Mambuli warriors armed with poisoned arrows

Mrs. Eels, wife of American consul, lifting head of slain lion

Lions, Snakes and Buffaloes Keep Things Lively—Vanderbergh Movie Expedition Into the Congo.

It is a jaded civilization we live in—one with most of the thrills extracted. Life has become so tame and safe that we turn for excitement to the stage or screen.

Murder mysteries in the newspapers furnish a thrill now and then. And hundreds of volumes of fiction have been written with no other end in view than to furnish diversion for a bored reader.

Most of the earth has been purged of its native wildness. Snakes have been driven not only from Ireland, but from other countries, the buffalo no longer roams the plains of America, giraffes and hyenas and elephants are found usually behind iron bars at zoos and circuses.

Lecturing Much Safer.

But occasionally some restless adventure gets off the beaten paths of civilization and out into the wild regions of the earth. His adventures do not, like ours, come second hand. Out in the jungles, where things are primitive, he gets his fill of the thrills we miss.

Take, for instance, the adventures of two Americans, one a Catholic missionary and the other a professor at Vassar, who set out into the interior of the African Congo.

Dr. Leonard John Vanderbergh, who headed the Vanderbergh expedition into Africa, took with him as photographer Dr. George Burbank Shattuck, professor of science at a girls' college.

Some men might prefer meeting a hungry lion to facing a campusful of women, but Dr. Shattuck says that after what he went through in his ten months in the African wilds, he is content for a while to lecture on geology, a comparatively safe occupation.

For the present, he says, he has had enough of lion hunting, and snake-killing, and fighting savages. Some things are worse than boredom, he says, including poisoned arrows, and spears hurled by jungle men and leopards that leap at you in the dark.

And Dr. Vanderbergh, though more used to the ways of the jungle has had his fill of thrills for the present.

At the offices of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, which financed his expedition, and will back other scientific explorations into unbeat paths, he told of some of his adventures soon after his arrival in New York.

Lion Refused to do Battle.

"I went to hunt in the Masai country in the most thrilling event which occurred during our expedition," he said. "We had a lion trapped in his lair and it was merely a question of bringing him out in front of the camera. When he saw himself surrounded by an array of Masai warriors ready with their spears and shields, six on each side and six in front of him, he refused to come out in the open. We had arranged a hedge of branches of trees and thorn bushes in the rear so as to cut off his retreat. When, however, he found himself hemmed in on both sides and in front of him, he refused to make an attack. We had to drive him towards the camera which was fixed on the right side. I sent a couple of men over to rouse him out of his lethargy but they failed to do so. I shouted orders to light a fire near him so as to bring him out of his lair but again he refused to move.

"Finally, despairing of better results, I went over back of the fence

Masai woman carrying a large bundle on her head

Dr. Leonard Vanderbergh who headed expedition into African Congo and photographed faces which had never before faced camera

Dr. Shattuck with a python for Mambuli father, mother and child in Congo jungles near which he was lying, and gathering a handful of dry grass I lit the inflammatory material and threw it in front of his nose. Immediately he moved, but, contrary to expectations, instead of moving towards the Masai or the camera, the beast turned away, to the rear and leaped on top of the pile of branches and thorn bushes and ran away in the open.

In doing so he passed me within not more than a six-foot distance, but, intent on his escape, he did not even look at me.

Runs Towards Village.

"By the time I had returned to the spot where the camera stood, attended by Dr. Shattuck, the lion had disappeared in the direction of the Masai village which was about a quarter of a mile up the hill. Thinking that the lion might get into the village, in which only the wives of the chief and of other elders were left behind, a great fear came over me that the Masai warriors might not be in time or fast enough to come in between the villages and the runaway animal. However, presently a great shout of triumph went up from the throats of the pursuing Masai proclaiming that he had come to bay again, the Masai having been quicker than the lion and surrounded him anew.

"Mr. Klein, a New Yorker, who had great experience in lion hunting and who was nearest the lion at the time when he lay down in his lair, gave orders to the Masai not to disturb him until the camera was brought up and we would be ready to operate. Dr. Shattuck, with superhuman strength ran with the heavy camera and tripod on his shoulder and joined me in the position which I had taken up as a commanding spot from which the picture could be taken to good advantage.

Charges Camera Man.

"Once the camera had been fixed and fastened in the ground to prevent shaking, and in exactly the same position and at the same distance from which we had the camera arranged the first time, we were ready to commence operations and no sooner did I ask Dr. Shattuck to crank, than the lion, hearing the rattle of the machine, charged with a fury and ferocity which is indescribable. He brought his long tail up in the air and came at us with the speed of a locomotive, roaring as he came along.

"Now I gave the Masai orders to charge and immediately the brave Morans ran towards him as if he were the quarry of a greased pig catching party. But the lion never gave them one second's attention. He had only one thing in view and that thing was the steel monster shining out in the air in the bright African sunlight like a machine gun. He never swerved from his direct line from his lair to the camera. When he had charged about 40 to 45 feet the Masai were on him and stopped his charge at a distance of 30 feet from the camera. The first spear missed him. The second, following immediately after the first, got him straight on the top of his skull and pierced through his brain, disregarding all obstacles in the way of bones, until it came out at the base of his neck and was stopped by the bone below the shoulder blade.

The Monarch Falls.

"In rapid succession, six other spears followed from both sides of the falling animal until, in less time than it takes to tell the tale, the lion had collapsed and lay a fallen monarch of the jungle, outstretched at the foot of the hill where so many of his fellow creatures had attacked the kral of the Masai at night in a vain effort to steal the cattle and maraud among the inhabitants of the village.

"One thing is still very fresh in my memory and that is the pathetic look which he gave me as he fell, trying to shake off the spears which in such an incredibly short moment had struck him through the brain. The reaction when suddenly life was severed, made him shake his head as if to throw off the spears which had killed him instantaneously and, in the last turn of his eye, he looked up straight into my very soul as if he were asking me the question, "What have I done to you that you should have me killed this way?" I felt guilty of an act almost of cruelty to see his look asking for sympathy, which still is abiding with me. But, after all, it was one more dangerous enemy of mankind put out of the way and since lions are on the list of vermin in the category of lawful game in the laws of British East Africa, I felt as if I had done a service to humanity.

"Another thrilling experience which I had was in a very unexpected location, in the guest room of the Episcopal palace of Bishop Biermans of Uganda. The two connecting rooms which were assigned to Dr. Shattuck and myself, evidently had been in disuse for some time and the thatched roof was being repaired while we were in possession of these two rooms.

An Uncomfortable Situation.

"One evening, just at dusk, when the objects in a room began to fade through the rapidly increasing twilight after the sudden sunset at 6 o'clock, my gaze was fixed on a line which I could not make out and which might have been either a trail of perambulating ants on the march or a snake, or heaven knows what other object or shadow it might be. Somehow my attention was riveted to the spot and, being unable to make out what it could be, moved towards the object and was about to put my foot on it when I found the long black line began to move toward the corner of the room. I then knew what I had only half feared—it was a snake. Without another thought, stepped on it. It curled back, fortunately toward the nose of my shoe, and I escaped the venomous bite which might otherwise have been the result of my curiosity. But, to my surprise, it was not just the one snake, but a cluster of four other snakes coming out from the corner of my own room where they had evidently made their home for sometime. They were not large, probably the thickness of my thumb and only two and a half feet in length, but they had disturbed the equanimity of my mind and I did not leave the room until I had every hole visible in the joints of the wall and the ground filled with boiling hot water.

"Bishop Biermans later, on his return from a missionary trip, told me that there were a number of nests on top of the ceiling which was filled in with earth in order to protect the house from burning in case the thatched roof might catch fire.

"Talking about snakes, there is one feature which I missed on my program and that was a picture of the water python swallowing a live goat or sheep. I lay in wait for such an event for three hours one morning and another afternoon for four hours. I had located the haunt of a 14-footer in the base of an ant-hill, the home by which he made his entrance being about 13 inches in diameter.

Python Makes Getaway.

"An old lady living close to this ant-hill had been telling me of the habits of Mr. Python and told me that as a rule he came out of his hole at half-past 7 in the morning and sunned himself in the nearby brush or on the open ground in front of the ant-hill for an hour or two prior to going out in search of prey. This morning she arrived out of breath at the Bishop's house where I was staying, in order to notify me that the python had appeared on the scene. We immediately went out, but arriving on the spot, found that the animal, contrary to his usual habits, had already set out on his hunt.

"The next evening we made the same futile attempt to catch the brute for which we had prepared a sumptuous repast of a two-year-old goat which we would have gladly contributed to his repast in order to entice him to pass before the camera.

"However, we have a moving picture of a native of the Kikuyu tribe who killed a python, the measurement of whose skin are 15 feet in length and 2 1/2 feet in width. Two natives holding the spread skin stand back of the camera and the brave warrior who killed the beast is going through the different poses and attitudes which he took at the time of the actual killing.

"One of the most shameful experiences in the African traveler's experience, is the necessity of being carried in a hammock, when disabled on the march. I had this misfortune forced upon me in the Congo owing to a forced march of seven hours which I had to make in order to get porters for our caravan.

Trip to the Mission.

"We had arrived in the village of Julu of the Walendu tribe, 70 miles from the borders of Lake Albert Nyanza. I had been told that at this chief's village I would be able to secure a relay of porters and, having dismissed old ones, I found that I would have to wait for five or six days before Julu could gather a sufficient number of porters to take us farther along the road. My left foot being badly blistered, Dr. Shattuck marched out in the early morning towards the Fataki mission to bring up the porters of whom we stood in need but, being unable to speak the language and having no guide, he returned to the camp at 2:15 in the afternoon.

"It was now up to me, notwithstanding the bad condition of my foot, to reach the mission of the White Fathers in order to secure the badly needed porters to continue our march. Consequently I started at 2:30, accompanied by one boy, who carried my Winchester rifle. The march held no startling happenings until 5 o'clock when I was approaching Zugu's headquarters and, just before dipping into one of the many gorges through which a fast running stream was speeding its way towards the Albert Nyanza, I came across the path of a buffalo. Its recent tracks showed the animal had passed no more than a few minutes before, and, naturally, being unarmed (for my boy was by now at least a mile behind me) I looked around anxiously. Presently I heard to my right the cropping of some animal which judging by the volume of noise accompanying the cropping, must have been a buffalo. I climbed up a tree as the only protection which offered itself until my boy arrived with my gun. Having climbed probably 14 to 15 feet high, I had a commanding view through the luxuriant growth of vegetation, a great deal of which was elephant grass, and I beheld the hulk of the big brute at no more distance than 40 to 50 yards.

Back to Safer Place.

"I was anxiously waiting for the arrival of my boy but before he arrived the animal was out of sight, hidden in the fastnesses of the jungle so that I could not get a shot at him.

"I came down from my perch and followed my painful route until a quarter to 9 that evening when I finally arrived, tired and footsore, at the mission of Fataki where the good Fathers bade me welcome. My foot was in such bad condition that I had to be carried for the next seven days, being fortunate enough to escape blood-poisoning through the open sore which the hard seven hours' march had cost me."

THE "FADE-AWAY."

Unconscious of the world around, A youth and maiden strolled, With daisies carpeting the ground, The sun, a ball of gold. A pause, a chasm yawns below, Beyond, the ocean lies. They stand against the evening glow, The love-light in their eyes.

He gently takes her in his arms; What matters the abyss? They have no fear of rude alarms, As silently they kiss.

The while a man, not far behind, With megaphone in play, Directs them as they start to grind. The dreamy fade-away.

INDIANS REMOVE DUSTY BLINKERS FROM THEIR BATTING EYES IN THE FOURTH GAME OF THE BIG SERIES

(By Grantland Rice.) CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 9.—Cleveland's entangled Indians removed the dusty blinkers from their batting eyes today and in the midst of a terrific uproar stopped the peppy Dodgers by the elastic count of 5 to 1, while 26,000 ecstatic fanatics had raised the merry dickens from beginning to end.

STANLEY COVELESKIE.

Whose remarkable work on the mound has brought two victories to the Cleveland Indians in the present world series.

BOX SCORE OF GAME.

Box score table for Cleveland vs. Brooklyn, showing runs, hits, errors, and individual player statistics.

CLEVELAND: AB, R, H, PO, A, E. ... Total: 34 5 12 27 18 2

Game Vital to Cleveland. Covey evidently knew this game was vital to Cleveland hopes. It meant a landslide if he failed.

That was the lone run that the Pole yielded throughout the fray. When he reached the limits of Brooklyn's trademark, which is his own run, he shut off the works for the rest of the day.

It was Cleveland's in the way of both batting and pitching and these are the two elements that usually predominate.

Opening Dash Enough. Cleveland's opening dash was good enough to win. After Jameson had gone out, Wambaugns walked.

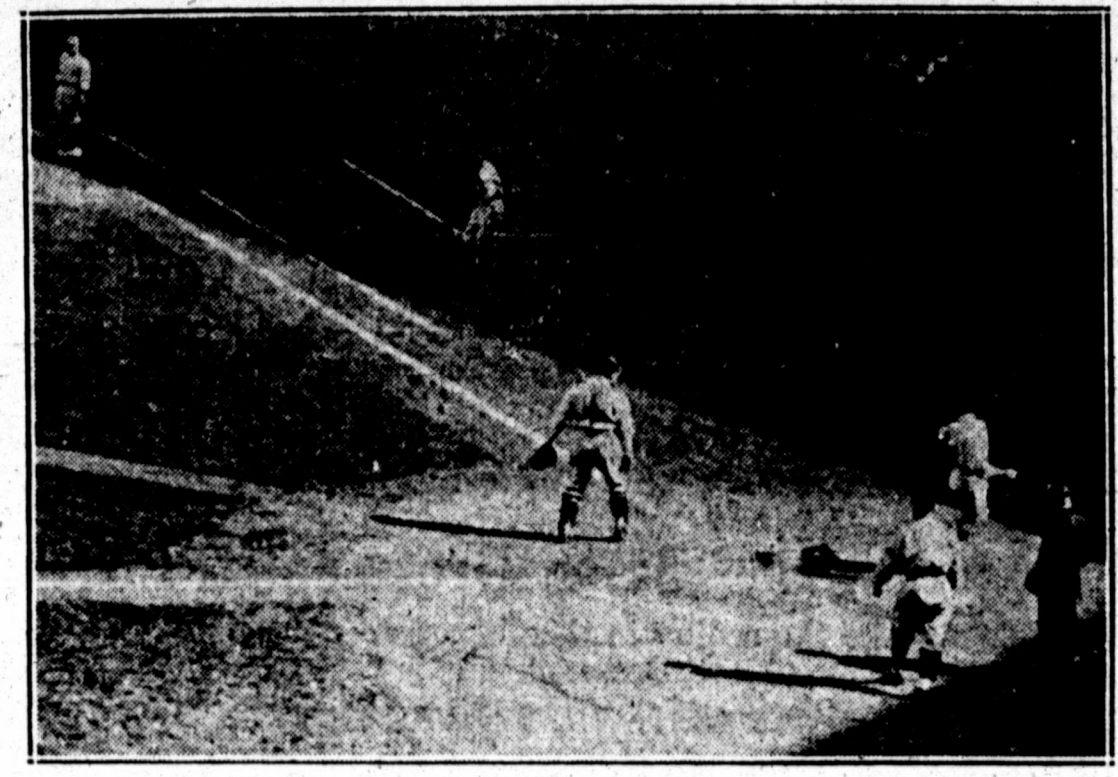

After Wambaugns and Speaker had attacked Mameaux for base hits, the pitcher's line single sent Wambaugns to third.

The Ruble faced Burns, who dropped a single in left, adding two more runs, which was quite enough for Cleveland upon her home runs.

ST. LOUIS PLAYERS CARRY OFF HONORS IN THE BIG LEAGUES

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—Roger Hornsby, the St. Louis star, won the 123rd batting championship of the National league with an average of .370, according to final unofficial averages released today.

Nicholson, who started the season as pinch hitter for Pittsburgh and then became a regular outfielder, played in 92 games and was the runner-up to Hornsby with a mark of .352.

Max Casey, the fleet-footed Pittsburgh outfielder, finished the season with a record of 51 stolen bases.

Cy Williams of Philadelphia was given a close race for homerun honors by his teammate, Muesel, the former banging out 15 while the latter made 11.

Other leading batters include: Ruch of Cincinnati, .337; J. Smith, Cincinnati, .329; Z. George Siler Leads. The American league season ended with thirty-nine batters hitting .300 or better, and to George Siler, the phenominal St. Louis first baseman, went the honor of topping the list.

Tris Speaker, in addition to piloting the Indians to the league championship, played in 153 games and was the runner-up to Siler with an average of .355, two points in front of Joe Jackson, the White Sox slugger, who up to the time of his suspension for his part in the "baseball scandal" had hit for an average of .352.

"Babe" Ruth of New York, who proved to be the star of the season through his ability to slam out home runs, wound up in fourth place among the batters with an average of .375, with Eddie Collins, captain of the Chicago White Sox, behind him with .371.

The Cleveland club, which won the pennant, had ten men, including Chapman, who was killed, in the 300 class. Besides the deceased shortstop, the leading Cleveland batters were: Speaker, .355; Evans, .355; Uble, .344; Nunnemaker, .333; Sewell, .329; O'Neill, .321.

WOOD COWAN

Robert "Bud" Hopper, captain of the Pennsylvania University football team, falls from one of those "bergs" the comedians pull gags on—Kalamazoo, Mich. His first played football at Ridgewood, N. J. He was just able to lift the pigskin off the turf at that time, Bud went to Syracuse University, where he played on the freshman team before he entered Penn in 1918. He made the first team and was chosen all-American end that year. Bud claims to be a good student, but no grind; believes in strict training and baseball. Connie Mack wanted him last season—but one certainly needed him, but Bud is a whiz at the first sack. Hopper is 22 years old, stands 5 feet 11, weighs 176. And bugs, he is fast as lightning, fielding forward passes like Cobb does flies.

CLEVELAND INDIANS IN THE LEAD AGAIN IN BATTING AVERAGE

CLEVELAND, Oct. 2.—The Cleveland Indians went into the lead again in team batting averages for the world series by pounding out 12 hits in today's game, bringing their mark for the four games from .345 to .316. Brooklyn, unable to hit Covelleskie consistently, dropped from an average of .309 to .198. Steve O'Neil, Cleveland backstop, whose hard blows won the first game for the Indians, retained his position as leading slugger of the series by getting one safe hit today, keeping his average at .506. He made six hits in 12 attempts and also leads in total bases with eight. Ivan Olson, Brooklyn shortstop, ranks second with five singles in 12 times at bat for an average of .385. Captain Zack Wheat of Brooklyn has an average of .335 and Manager Tip Sparker of Cleveland is right behind him with .313. They are tied for second place in total bases.

Table with columns: Name, AB, H, 2B, 3B, HR, TB, Av. Lists batting averages for Cleveland and Brooklyn players.

THEATER EMPLOYEE ACCIDENTALLY SHOT

Small Caliber Pistol is Discharged While Weapon is Being Examined. Larry Cassel, a stage hand at the Wichita theater, was accidentally shot last night after the close of the evening's performance with a bullet from a .25 caliber automatic pistol in the hands of C. W. Shaffer, another stage hand. Shaffer is said to have won the pistol on a punch-board, and to have pulled the trigger, thinking that the corded catch was in position. It took the mechanism. The bullet entered just below the left shoulder blade. Cassel was taken to the Wichita General hospital and an X-ray photograph was made by Drs. Farnell and Glover which located the bullet in the spine. Cassel is at present paralyzed from the waist down, but at this time it is impossible to say whether this condition is permanent. From the evidence at hand his condition is considered serious.

BIBLE IS "BEST SELLER" IN JAPAN SAYS SPEAKER

TOKYO, Oct. 2.—The Bible is not only the "best seller" in the United States and England but has now become the "best seller" in Japan, according to the Rev. Dr. Charles E. Locke, Methodist Episcopal bishop of Manila, P. I., who, in an address here today before the World's Sunday School Congress, declared that seven-fifths of the people of the world now have Bibles in their own language. A century ago, he said, only one-fifth of the people were so provided and now each year nearly 20,000,000 Bibles are published in 500 or more languages and dialects. Bishop Locke declared "The Bible is the greatest civilizing force in the world's history. It contains a perfect standard of faith, morals and character and presents the only correct solution of the mystery of life. From Caedmon to Kipling," he said, "English literature is permeated by Bible thought and Bible diction." Among the famous men and women who avowed faith in the Bible and admired its worth and beauty he mentioned Shakespeare, Bacon, Milton, Carlyle, Macaulay, Coleridge, Tennyson, Byron, Sir Walter Scott, Ruskin, Napoleon, Andrew Jackson, Grant, Lee, "General Croquet," Tocqueville, Goethe, Wilberforce, Hugo, Sir Isaac Newton, John Adams, Heine and Queen Victoria. "The enemies of the Bible, the Bishop said, had "done their worst to destroy it and when they imagined they had overturned it they found the Bible was a cube and is always right side up." He told of the case of a Japanese scholar of great mental vigor who had been reared as a Confucianist and who commented thus upon a translation of the Bible which had been given him by an American missionary. "I read page after page until I came to the 19th chapter of St. Paul's First Epistle to the Corinthians, beginning: 'If I speak with the tongues of men and of angels but have not love I am become as sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal.' I read the whole chapter. I was fascinated. I had never seen or heard or dreamed of a morality like that. I felt that it was above the reach of the human race; that it must have come from heaven; that the man who wrote that chapter must have received light from God—from God, about whose existence I had been speculating. And then I read the gospel of St. John and the words of Christ filled me with wonder. They were not to be resisted. I could not refuse Him my faith."

CHARGE RUBE MARQUARD WITH TICKET SCALPING

Alleged That He Attempted to Sell a Set of Four Tickets for Cleveland Games for $350. CLEVELAND, Oct. 2.—Police Chief Smith announced today that a warrant charging "Rube" Marquard, star pitcher for the Brooklyn team, with ticket scalping, had been issued at noon today. Smith said one of his officers took "Rube" from the Winton hotel, where the Dodgers have their headquarters, on the charge that he was trying to sell a set of tickets for the four games here for $350. When Marquard arrived at police headquarters, Smith said, he pleaded to be released so that he would be available for the game this afternoon. Smith released him, but said he ordered the warrant issued and "Rube" is to be arraigned Monday morning. MARQUARD AND ROBINSON LAUGH OVER THE INCIDENT LEAGUE PARK, CLEVELAND, Oct. 2.—Rube Marquard and Manager Robinson of the Brooklyn club laughed this afternoon at the ticket scalping affair which resulted in a warrant for the "Rube's" arrest. It was explained that a ticket scalper had given Marquard's name to a prospective purchaser and the case was one of mistaken identity. Both men used vivid adjectives in describing the man who said he purchased the tickets from Marquard.

Miss Temple is the daughter of the village blacksmith whose cottage and forge are just outside the gates of the Kinloss homestead. The report has created quite a sensation in this city. The Master of Kinloss, who was ordained a clergyman in 1914 and is curate of St. Stephen's church, Northampton, says his mother approved the match.

Good Will Triumphant Under Test

As this message is being written, Dodge Brothers' daily, weekly and monthly production, is at the highest point in its history.

The most casual sort of inquiry will satisfy you that this production is being absorbed as it is delivered.

Within sight and sound as we write, a great addition to Dodge Brother's immense works, is being rushed to completion.

The interesting thing about this situation is, that it is not likely that a half hundred people have ever bought Dodge Brothers Motor Car just because they wanted a motor car.

Of the more than half a million who have bought it—the overwhelming majority did so because of the name it bore.

It has always been treated, by the American people in particular, as an exception—always set apart, and singled out, and never judged by ordinary standards.

It has always been thought of, and is still thought of, first and foremost, and all the time, only in terms of its goodness, and the results it gives.

All of this is wonderful, in one way, and quite natural and logical in another.

It all dates back to the day when John and Horace Dodge conceived and designed and finally built the car—after warning each other, and their associates, not even to think of it in any other terms than the best obtainable value.

They began with a few almost absurdly simple principles, bluntly expressed and rigidly executed, about decency and honor and integrity—such as most of us wrote in our copy books at school.

They reduced there old copy book maxims to a splendid and scientific system, pouring more, and more, and still more value into the car, and then marshalling all the resources of modern massed manufacture to get their product into the hands of the people at an honorable and an honest cost.

These policies and principles have never been changed, and never will be changed, by so much as a hair's breadth; and they have come to be recognized and accepted as Dodge Brothers principles wherever motor cars are driven.

It has all happened as John and Horace Dodge planned it—quite simply, naturally, and automatically, all over America, and all over the world.

People DO discriminate, as Dodge Brothers contended they would; people WILL find out when a motor car is well built and gives good service and great good value.

Dodge Brothers market today is where they planned to locate and establish it—in the mind and the heart of every man and woman who admires good work, well done.

It will last, and it will keep on growing; as it has kept on growing for five years (faster than Dodge Brothers works could keep pace with it), as long as the number of those who believe that a manufacturer should build to serve and not merely to sell, continues to increase.

All is well with Dodge Brothers today, because John and Horace Dodge build well in the beginning, and because their business will continue to build well until the end.

Splendid Work of the Texas Home and Aid Society County Branch is Detailed In Report to Board Saturday Morning

One of the biggest and most gratifying reports of social service work ever made in Wichita Falls was presented to the executive board of the Wichita county branch of the Texas Children's Home and Aid society, in session at the chamber of commerce Saturday morning.

Miss Katherine Henricke, district superintendent, in active charge of the county work, read the report at the meeting which was called to order at 10 o'clock by Mrs. J. W. Lee, president of the board.

Thirty Children Rescued. A feature of the report was the fact that thirty children, removed from either desertion or gross immorality, had been received into the home since January, 1920. These children were all adopted by the society through the regular process of law, given a complete physical examination, in most cases

After the reading of Miss Henricke's report, Mrs. J. W. Lee presented her resignation as president of the board, giving as her reason the fact that she is leaving Monday to make her home in California. The board accepted the resignation from office, but unanimously voted to retain Mrs. Lee as an honorary member of the board. The board then unanimously elected J. C. Hunt, a member to the presidency.

Wichita Falls people in general will be interested in the announcement from the First Presbyterian church that Rev. J. Gilmore Smith, head of the Reynolds orphanage at Albany, will make a full report on the condition and plans of the orphanage at that church Sunday morning.

Little Miss Margaret Lenora Weaver was hostess to a number of friends Friday afternoon at her home on Grand street in celebration of her fifth birthday. The young lady was assisted by her mother, Mrs. Lloyd Weaver, in receiving and entertaining her guests, and during the early part of the afternoon she had a very enjoyable party.

Herbert Cheshire, Jr., all of 5 years old, asked about a score of little friends to help him celebrate the attainment of his latest milestone last Monday afternoon at his home on Filmore street. When the little folks arrived they played games for an hour or so in the yard, and later were marshaled into a double line and marched into the dining room. The dining table, centered with a beautiful candle-topped birthday cake, was very suggestive of a popular date in October.

The Wichita Travel Club held its regular weekly meeting at the Kopp Library Friday afternoon, opening with a study of modern drama with a most interesting program of speakers and discussions. The afternoon's subject was "Isben and His Dramas," and Mrs. B. N. Alexander read a paper on "Peer-Gynt, Miss Blanche Potter gave a review of "Ghosts," Mrs. R. E. Thornburgh read a cutting from Ghosts, and Mrs. H. G. England, at the close of the program, gave a brief discussion of the dramatist and his work.

endent is not alone to work with the children, but she must finance her own territory. It soon became apparent, however, that the volume of child work in Wichita county was overwhelming and that it would be impossible to combine the two pieces of work, so we looked around for some one to take over the burden of finance and found a "willing George" in the Rotary club, the members agreeing to raise $5,000 for the children's work. An official statement just received from the state office shows that Wichita county has contributed in 1920 $5,307.55 toward the maintenance of the children placed in the Texas Children's Home and Aid Society. This has been a generous donation, and all that was pledged. But we have had to care for thirty children, at the cost, approximately, $250 apiece. We need more money badly.

"Although the district superintendent has the supervision of thirteen counties in the Wichita district, because of the volume of work in Wichita county it has been impossible to complete the organization of the other counties. Wilbarge, the only other county in which an organization has been started. In my opinion there is in Wichita county the greatest opportunity for real social service of any place in the state; we might say, in the country. There are so many children needing attention which, if they do not receive it, will grow into delinquents and later criminals, and while we have done our utmost and our work has been not an eight-hour day, but almost a continuous performance, we feel that we have been able only to scratch the surface. We do feel, however, that with the cooperation of every other organization of county and city officials, of the churches and private citizens—all of which is necessary to successful social service—we can accomplish great good, and bring about excellent results."

HEAD OF ALBANY ORPHANAGE WILL MAKE REPORT SUNDAY

Wichita Falls people in general will be interested in the announcement from the First Presbyterian church that Rev. J. Gilmore Smith, head of the Reynolds orphanage at Albany, will make a full report on the condition and plans of the orphanage at that church Sunday morning.

BIRTHDAY PARTY FOR LITTLE MISS MARGARET WEAVER

The young lady was assisted by her mother, Mrs. Lloyd Weaver, in receiving and entertaining her guests, and during the early part of the afternoon she had a very enjoyable party.

HERBERT CHESHIRE, JR., HAS FIFTH BIRTHDAY PARTY

New York Feature Writer Says Majority Of Women Well Known in Social World Do Not "Make Up"; No Hair Dye or Lip Sticks

Proponents of more suitable street and school dresses for girls and women have had some difficulty in persuading the general feminine public that "French" style is not designed nor intended for streets, school and office. Customs of eastern schools and women of acknowledged leadership in good taste have been cited extensively, and the campaign has made a very appreciable inroad into the "enemy" territory during the past two years, but it seems as if some of the women who are in the front ranks of the "American society" never change their style of life.

FRESH AIR IS THE NEW RECIPE

Do the greater majority of women well known in the social world "make up"? If I have received one note asking the above question I have received fifty. Not being a believer in "make-up" myself, it should, I suppose, be stated at the very beginning that I am a bit prejudiced against the "artificial" which is so much a part of the "make-up" of the social world. I am not a member of the "make-up" set, but I am a member of the "fresh air" set.

JAPANESE TEA BEAUTIFUL SOCIAL FEATURE OF WESLEY GIRLS CLASS

A very charming hospitality at the home of Mrs. W. V. Buelterman Friday afternoon featured the social spirit which pervades the First Church Wesley Girls class of the M. E. Church, South. The hospitality was a beautiful Japanese tea, at which Mesdames Buelterman and Gordon Dean were joint hostesses, and the members of the four big sections of the Wesley class were received at different hours during the afternoon.

The Buelterman home was appropriately decorated for the affair, the entire lower suite suggesting the Japanese motif adopted for the occasion. Burnt oak leaves, oriental symbols and Japanese lamps were used between the living room and dining room, the leaves lanked, and the lamps at either side. Japanese gloves were used in profusion, and floor lamps softly shaded the room.

The afternoon was very good with a number of new members registering. The customary social half hour was enjoyed, Mrs. C. J. Coyne and Mrs. O. P. Maricle acting as hostesses being assisted by Mrs. Longacre of the hotel management. Refreshments of food tea, sandwiches and cakes were served.

Members of the Floral Heights Wesley girls class honored their outgoing president, Mrs. Leon Deaton, with a dainty miscellaneous shower Friday afternoon during the course of a "42" party with which Mrs. W. S. Curlee entertained the class at her home.

Before the afternoon's social meeting, a short business session of the class was held, during which it was decided to hold the class meetings bi-weekly instead of weekly. The next meeting place chosen was Mrs. Preston Lee's home for Friday, October 22, and each Friday between the meetings is to be "closed" by Mrs. Mary H. Adams. "MUSICAL AMERICA" SPEAKS WELL OF "ROBIN HOOD"

Wichita Falls women will be interested in an article in last week's Musical America, one of the leading national musical publications, concerning Ralph Dunbar's production of "Robin Hood," which is to be presented at the Wichita theater this month. The comment follows: "A series of eight unusually good performances were given by the Ralph Dunbar "Robin Hood" company at Macaulay's theater during state fair week.

"There was a dash and go about the presentations that gave them the true spirit of comic opera, while at the same time maintaining the atmosphere of the period. The soloists, in almost all instances, were able to measure up to the fine standards set by the old Bostonians, and the chorus was an unalloyed delight. The orchestra, under Wallace Hayes, was efficient and sufficient. Particular mention should be made of Clara Campbell, Arthur Sherman, Laura McAdam, and Raymond Hunter for excellent singing, and all praise to Mr. Dunbar for reviving the popular opera in so adequate a manner."

Robin Hood With Cast of 50 People Coming Oct. 18-19

The first of the road attractions which the Wichita theatre is offering to the public this city during the coming winter months is to be presented at the local theatre on two nights, Monday and Tuesday, October 18 and 19. The initial attraction is the famous De Koven opera, "Robin Hood," with a cast of fifty people.

The story of Robin Hood and his merry men is as well known as Tom Sawyer and Huck Finn and it holds a unique place in literature of the world. Also, the opera, as composed by Reginald De Koven, holds a unique place in musical circles of the world and is considered as one of the best of modern operas.

All the famous characters of the story are included in the company, which is now on tour of the various theatrical circuits of the country. Robin Hood himself, Little John, Friar Tuck, Maid Marion and the Sheriff of Nottingham, appear in realistic life and cavort to the tuneful melodies with which De Koven has clothed his opera.

The reserved seat sale for the two performances will begin at 9:30 o'clock Friday morning, October 15.

"THE GARDEN OF ALLAH" IS OPERA HOUSE ATTRACTION

All the mystery and danger of the desert, all of its loneliness and oppressiveness, and all of its beauty and solemn grandeur are shown in the great film play, "The Garden of Allah," which is being offered at the Wichita theatre on Monday and Tuesday of this week. There is an appeal which is as strong and powerful as the blinding glare of the sun in the picture dealing with life in the orient and of the incidents and dangers surrounding life in the vast sandy wastes of a great desert. Just what this is no one knows, but it is there and is presented in all its power and glory in this great film of Oriental weirdness and mysticism.

Some of the greatest romances the world has ever known have taken place in the deserts, or at least have been connected with deserts in some way, so upon this fact is built the romance that runs through "The Garden of Allah," and holds its place among the more thrilling scenes and incidents of the story.

Among the greatest battles the world has seen were those staged under the cloudless sky above a desert, and because of this the producers have incorporated in "The Garden of Allah," the most exciting scenes and thrilling events that the moving picture world has ever made.

The sand storms that cost the lives of hundreds of tourists in the deserts every year could never gain their intensity in any picture but a desert, but there, anything is possible, and so a sand storm is seen to rise and fall in this picture of pictures. All of these things and many more are shown in an unending procession in a film already made great by virtue of the amazing story and acting which it shows.

The film is longer than usual, consuming two hours in the showing, but instead of becoming monotonous, it gains in beauty and interest as the plot unfolds and the unparalleled scenic effects pass in procession before the camera's eye. Helen Ware and Thomas Mitchell are given the leading roles in this picture and present their parts with a skill that adds the finishing touch to this production. The picture will be shown at the Wichita on Monday and Tuesday only.

BUCK JONES COMING IN ANOTHER BIG THRILLER

Buck Jones, the new sensation of the screen, whose work in his first screen production has made him a solid favorite with all lovers of thrills, is coming to the Plaza theatre next Thursday, in his latest William Fox picture, "Forbidden Trails." Daring and intrigue mark the plot of this picture. The story is by Charles Alden Seltzer, the noted author.

The scenes are chiefly laid in the Western town of Dawes, where a corrupt political ring headed by William Carrington is in control. Larry Harlan, a prosperous rancher, on his death bed entrusts his entire property, which he has left to his pretty daughter, Marion—to "Squint" Taylor, who owns the Arrow Ranch. On a train Taylor for overcoats that Carrington and Henry Parsons, Harlan's brother-in-law, are planning to get the property away from Marion.

Taylor learns in Dawes that he has been elected sheriff; but through crooked work the defeated candidate is installed. Taylor denounces the gang and soundly thrashes Carrington and Banforth. Taylor subsequently saves Marion from Carrington, and wins her love and the Sheriff's office.

"THE FIGUREHEAD" A SPECIAL ATTRACTION AT MAJESTIC

The spectacle of a man nominated for mayor simply because it is believed he hasn't a chance to win is one familiar enough to backstairs politicians, but on the screen it is new and entirely fascinating when viewed with all its ramifications.

This is the tenets of the latest Eugene O'Brien play "The Figurehead," which is being offered by the Majestic as its feature attraction for Monday and Tuesday.

Political graft and scandal in a mid-western city is used as a background for the play and all the crookedness and pretense shown. Against this sordid background is shown young Sherry Dows, a handsome, good natured idling man about town, who is picked by the bosses as a figurehead candidate for mayor because it is believed that his name has no difficulty in winning.

But Sherry suddenly determines to make a real fight out of it instead of merely a show window affair, and he shows the bosses a few choice stunts that leaves them in doubt as to whether their plans will materialize as expected. And the result is that they immediately beginning "framing"

Sherry Dows to besmirch his good name and discredit him. He will not withdraw from the race at their request, so they try to force him to withdraw by manufacturing a frightful scandal about his sweetheart and himself.

But Sherry circumvents them and turns the attempt into a very laughable incident which hurts the opposition with its own followers. Then begins one of the most red-blooded, two-fisted, glorious scraps that was ever witnessed on the screen and in the end "The Figurehead" is elected to the coveted office by an overwhelming majority and proceeds to rid the town of the grafters which have retarded its growth for so long.

Anna Q. Nilson appears as Mr. O'Brien's leading woman. The picture was directed by Robert Ellis and is released by Selznick Pictures Company.

PAULINE FREDERICK STAR IN PRODUCTION OF "MADAME X"

It is seldom that two recognized masterpieces in the world of art are combined to form a single production of even greater merit. Of even less frequency is the feat accomplished of transferring from its parent haunts, and giving the leading roles to another, a recognized masterpiece of the theatrical world. This thing has been done, however, and recently at that. Months of time and patient effort were required to accomplish it and a fortune in money was expended, but the finished product was well worth all expenses. "Madame X" is the title of this transformation and it is appearing in film form at the Empress on Monday and Tuesday of this week.

"Madame X" was originally produced on the stage and was made famous by Sarah Bernhardt's acting in the role of the downtrodden heroine. The peculiar properties of the play apparently insured it from ever being molested by the movies, but now it has been re-produced before the camera with Pauline Frederick in the role made famous by Mme. Bernhardt, and it is rumored that the screen version is even greater than that which could be produced on the stage.

The story tells the life of a woman turned from her home by the unjust suspicion of her husband and how because of this she is denied the love of her young son. Driven to despair, she seeks solace in the underworld of Paris and spends years there as an acknowledged leader of the out-laws against society. But like Banquo's ghost, the love for her son will not down, and years later, by a trick of fate she finds him as consul for her defense for a crime committed to save her husband's career from ruin.

Miss Frederick brings to the screen a superb portrayal of this pathetic figure. Of her talents and accomplishments nothing need be said for her fame is as great in the cinema world as is that of Sarah Bernhardt on the legitimate stage.

TRULY FAMOUS ACT IS
FEATURE OF VAUDEVILLE
BILL FOR THE WICHITA

A truly famous act is being offered as the headliner of the Wichita theatre's bill for the coming week in the form of the Six Kirkwood sisters, well known over the entire country as musicians and entertainers of extraordinary merit. Although still young and charming, each of the members of this sextette has been on the stage for several seasons and are well versed in the art of putting their offerings across in forcible fashion. Each of the individual members is an accomplished musician as well as an actress of ability and the combined performance which they offer is one that will not soon be forgotten by local theatre goers.

Act two is to be presented by Henry Sylvester and Madia Vance, who offer a satirical comedy entitled "Horses." Just where they have derived anything of a comical nature from such a prosaic affair as a horse falls to become apparent to the writer, but advance reports indicate that the act is replete with fun and humor and since both of the two performers are reputed to be comedians of ability, there will be no doubt offer something of an amusing nature.

Harry Holmes and Florrie La Vere will be seen in a novelty comedy which is entitled "Themselves." This is described as a novelty act composed of clever dialogues, lively dances and tantalizing songs. "The Dancy Dance Duo" sounds as though it had something to do with the art of covering large areas of the stage in rapid and graceful fashion, and advance reports say that "The Amaranth Sisters," who are scheduled to do dancy dancing, are real performers. In addition to their dances they offer a wide variety of songs and comedy.

The concluding number of the bill will be offered by Scibini and Grovini, a couple of Irishmen, who present "The Follies of Vaudeville." They are lively jugglers, expert acrobats and unusual acrobats, so from this combination of talent they should be able to produce an interesting entertainment.

AUTHOR OF THE FAMOUS
DE MILLE MASTERPIECES

Another of the famous Cecil B. De Mille masterpieces that have come to be looked upon as the closest attainment to perfection that the moving picture art has ever evolved is to be the feature attraction at the Olympic for the first two days of this week. The picture in question is "Something to Think About," played by an all-star cast.

The story was produced under the direction of the man responsible for "Male and Female," "Everywoman," "The Miracle Man" and "Why Change Your Wife." The scenario was written by Jaennie Macpherson and the film released by Paramount.

"Something to Think About" is different in theme from anything that in the picture world, but it tells a dramatic story in vivid fashion and has been prepared with all the attention to detail that has marked the previous productions made under De Mille's direction. The characters are all country folk and the setting is laid in a small rural community. The daughter of the village blacksmith, together with a wealthy, but crippled artist, is the main character of the story, which summed up briefly, tells of how as a girl she is sent away to a boarding school and given an education by the artist. In return for this it is understood that she is to marry him, but at the last moment, after returning home from her four years at school, she elopes with the village duke, and runs off to a great city. Shortly after the wedding her husband is killed and the girl forced to strike out for herself.

Falling at making a living she returns home to her father, who has been blinded in an accident. He drives her from the house in a rage and thus paves the way for a dramatic turn of events which finally unite the trio. Elliot Dexter is given the role of the crippled artist and handles it with the skill that has made him one of the most popular leading men on the stage. Gloria Swanson has the part of the runaway heroine and makes the most of her opportunities to display talent and beauty. In the part of the country duke who met such an untimely end, Mont Blue gives an exceptional portrayal, while Theodore Roberts is just as good in the role of the girl's father, the blacksmith. Theodore Kosloff, Mickey Moore, Julia Fay and James Mason have minor parts in the production, which they handle in splendid fashion.

PLAN A DEMONSTRATION OF THE PRICE-CAMPBELL
COTTON PICKING MACHINE

Arrangements are being completed by officials of the Wichita Falls Motor company to give a demonstration this week of the practicability of the Price-Campbell cotton picking machine, which many level-headed business men and cotton growers believe will revolutionize the cotton industry insofar as the field work is concerned.

The motor factory is interested in the new machine and directors of the company have under consideration plans to manufacture a large number of the machines here, utilizing a part of the present factory equipment for the work.

The Price-Campbell machine, according to a brief description given to the "Times Saturday" by J. A. Kemp, is a motor-driven device so regulated that it can be driven over the cotton without injuring the crop in any way. On each side of the machine is a large cylinder containing 600 "fingers" which constantly reach out and pick the cotton as the machine slowly covers the cotton acreage. In the opinion of Mr. Kemp, the machine will go a long way toward solving the labor problem in the cotton belt and will prove an immense good in the role of the cotton farmers of the Southwest. Theodore H. Price of New York, a former cotton farmer himself and now one of the biggest financiers in the country, has been pushing the machine for a number of years and has spent practically $1,000,000 in its development.

BRONZE MEDALLION FROM
W. G. M'ADOO TO J. A. KEMP
IS PRIZED VERY HIGHLY

J. A. Kemp, Wichita Falls banker, received Saturday morning a beautiful bronze medallion, the gift of W. G. M'Adoo, former secretary of the United States treasury.

The medallion, about four inches in circumference, has on one side a bas-relief etching of Mr. M'Adoo with the inscription, "William Gibbs M'Adoo, Secretary of the Treasury, 1913-1918," while on the reverse side is an etching depicting Freedom pouring wealth into the coffers of the United States, while in the background marches a host of khaki-clad soldiers. "I appreciate this more than I can tell," Mr. Kemp said. "It will always be treasured by me as a keepsake from a man I believe to be one of our greatest Americans; a man who, made good in his duties to his country under the most trying conditions."

APPROVE JAPANESE BILL FOR SUBSIDY ON SHIPS

TOKIO.—The government bill for the granting of a state subsidy on steamer lines, introduced in the recent session of the Diet, has been approved. The lines to receive a subsidy include the new line to the eastern coast of South America, the new line to Java and Bangkok, with Singapore as the center of the route, the new lines between Shanghai and South China, and the extension line of the South American western coast service.

The steamer service to the eastern coast of South America which is at present maintained by both the Nippon Yusen Kaisha and Osaka Shosen Kaisha, is to be extended after next October under the subsidiary aid of the state, the service to be increased to 10 voyages a year. This will be maintained with six steamers, each of about 4,000 tons capacity.

The steamship service on the western coast of South America, run by Toyo Kisen Kaisha, is at present bi-monthly with three steamers, each of 3,000 tons capacity. The service is to be enlarged and made a monthly service with six steamers of the same capacity.

Patrons of the City National Bank of Commerce "feel at home" when they transact their financial business. This is due in a large measure to the fact that the officers and employees take a personal interest in each patron regardless of the size of his account.

tried it this way

MOST people know that the musical enjoyment which they get out of a phonograph depends upon one thing. That thing is the phonograph's realism.

This picture shows the best way to test a phonograph's realism. Miss Betsy Lane Shepherd, the famous soprano, is standing beside the New Edison, and singing in direct comparison with the New Edison's RE-CREATION of her voice.

185 audiences, aggregating more than 100,000 people, have actually heard this comparison. None could distinguish between her living voice and its RE-CREATION.

This is one of the phenomenal records of realism. The New Edison holds all other records of realism, too, because no other phonograph attempts this comparison; test—or could sustain it.

IMPORTANCE OF WATER SUPPLY IN DEVELOPING WESTERN TEXAS IS EMPHASIZED BY CENSUS FIGURES

Of the eighty Texas counties that decreased in population between 1910 and 1920, sixty-six are west of the 98th meridian which, more or less reasonably, is considered the dividing line between east and west Texas. In the remaining west Texas counties gains in population were negligible save where oil or industrial developments had furnished a stimulus. So far as agricultural population is concerned, there was scarcely a west Texas county that made more than a nominal gain.

This condition in west Texas concerns the whole state in a general way, west Texas in a direct way, and Wichita Falls in a vital way; not because it is difficult to ascertain the cause but because of the application of the remedy. The dominating cause for west Texas' decline was the continued drought and the cure for that is irrigation. Upon the willingness with which west Texas, as a whole, tackled the water question will depend the census figures of 1930.

Loss in Population.

Of the counties traversed by the Wichita Valley, from Byers to Abilene, everyone except Wichita lost population in the last decade. On the Orient, from Chillicothe to San Angelo, Hardeman county was the only one that did not lose. West of Fort Worth on the T. & P. and northwest of the Fort Worth & Denver about half of the counties lost and few showed sizable gain.

When one talks of population losses in Archer, Clay, Young, Montague, Jack, Taylor, Foard, Knox, Haskell and Throckmorton counties, he is talking about Wichita Falls' very own trade territory, upon the development of which the city's future commercial growth depends. The 12th congressional district, nine of them showed decreases in population. Denton and Wilbarger showed fair gains and Abilene its shows a heavy gain; the district's gain was $6,000, while Wichita county alone gained 37,000.

Cities Abov Population.

Not only in west Texas but throughout the state there was a loss in agricultural population. The state's disappointingly small increase of about 20 per cent was almost entirely absorbed in the cities, particularly the first eight or ten cities. Abilene gained in population, but Taylor county showed a loss; Potter county's population increased, but the gain was less than that recorded for Amarillo alone. The same condition applies as to Austin and Travis county, Waco and McLennan county, and a number of others.

If no one moves into or out of a community during a ten-year period, the preponderance of births over deaths will increase the population from 7 to 10 per cent, so that a town falling 40 gain more than 7 per cent in ten years is in reality only holding its own. An application of this rule to west Texas, leaving "oil population" out of consideration, will show that the section west of the 98th meridian did not increase in the last decade.

Period of Healthy Growth.

When the 1910 census was taken, west Texas, as a whole, had been enjoying a period of several years' healthy growth. Sections long undeveloped, or devoted to ranching and sheep-raising, had come under the plow. Systematic advertising, wise and otherwise, had brought in many settlers. Some millions of miles of paper railroads had been built and a thousand miles or so of steel roads, Abilene, Brownwood, San Angelo, Amarillo and Wichita Falls were all taking on city life and growing rapidly. The 1910 census showed very substantial gains throughout west Texas; there was scarcely a county that did not make its 1900 figure look insignificant. True, the gains were relative rather than great, for there had been little to build up in 1910, but all of west Texas was moving forward, attracting immigrants from east Texas and from the Middle West.

Water Supply Uncertain.

The whole business structure of all these counties rested, of course, upon farm and ranching activities, and cannot carry on ranching or farming in west Texas without water any more successfully than you can elsewhere. The water supply depended wholly upon seasonal rains; there was little or no provision for storing water against the dry days. The dry days came—a long, heart-breaking, scorching succession of them—1917 and 1918 in particular were severe drought years, as dry as the worst knacker of west Texas could have predicted. Stock starved, cotton, wheat and forage scorched and cooked; the hot winds blew. Farmers who could move out, did so, and the business enterprises that had built upon the farm trade suffered accordingly; where the exodus was at all general, as it was in places, it wasn't a pleasant spectacle. Those who, from choice of necessity, stayed on their parched holdings, asked and received financial aid from the state, which was something of a help, but not the sort of thing that begets pride or loyalty.

Penalty Had to Be Paid.

To put it briefly, west Texas was overpopulated in 1910, and the usual penalty had to be paid. True, in many counties, the penalty was ameliorated by oil developments, but west Texas as a whole could not share in that. Oil activities need not enter into this discussion, save that it may be worth while to note that, even in Wichita county with her tremendous gain, the actual agricultural population is less than in 1910. If you don't believe it, take a ride out into the country and ask a few questions.

So much for what happened between 1910 and 1920; what of the next decade? If irrigation is cited as a sovereign remedy, what may be expected of it?

The answer to those questions is also found in the West Texas census figures for 1920. Take these figures:

County	1920	1910
Hidalgo	35,110	13,750
Cameron	35,462	27,558
Faile	19,194	7,566
Lubbock	11,096	2,624
Floyd	5,758	4,428
Crosby	6,925	4,746

The first two counties named are in the Rio Grande valley, down in the southernmost tip of Texas; the last four are in the apesian belt of the Plains country. In both sections, during the last ten years, great strides have been made in irrigation, and without irrigation it is safe to assume that these counties would have fared the same as their drought-stricken neighbors. The Rio Grande valley country, just now coming into its own, is going to make California sit up and take notice soon; of these days; if isn't a lazy man's country, but it does pay the man who tackles it with both hands. The country around Lubbock and Plainview has seen the possibilities of irrigation from artesian wells, and is making it pay. It wasn't oil, but it was irrigation that caused these counties to gain since 1910; it was irrigation.

Water Is Profitful.

There is enough water flowing in west Texas streams every year to make a crop for every farm, actual or potential, within irrigating distance; but west Texas left this water flow on into Central and Gulf Texas, and through to the Gulf. In the South Texas sections through which it takes its way the residents are, as like as not, already climbing trees to keep from being washed away.

Certainly there are few west Texas streams less promising, to the naked eye, than the Big Wichita, yet the feasibility of the scheme involving that ruddy stream has been ok'd by the best irrigation engineering talent in the country. Wichita Falls is thus answering the challenge of the 1920 census, by going briskly ahead with her water project. In following or failing to follow, this county's lead, other west Texas communities will largely write their own history in the next decade.

Uncertain at Present.

It is true that large and profitable crops have been made in West Texas, without irrigation, and will be made again; but such farming is uncommercial and precarious. The farmer who is looking to new fields. There must be certain water if this West Texas empire is to really come into its own.

Of the budding cities in West Texas in 1910, Wichita Falls was the only one to realize its hopes. Abilene and Amarillo gained in population, the former's increase being in some measure due to oil; the latter's to natural gas discoveries and to development of wholesale trade possibilities. Brownwood and San Angelo do not gain at all. Of those who left west Texas, many went back to the East Texas fields whence they came; others migrated to Oklahoma, some of these to their sorrow, for much of what is written here about west Texas, applies with equal force to west Oklahoma. Texas' gain was certainly far short of what it would have been with consistent and efficient agricultural development.

Census figures, of course, do not tell the whole story of the business health and prosperity of a section or a town; but they tell a plenty, and west Texas must heed the story they tell of the past ten years.

MAYOR URGES ALL VOTERS TO SUPPORT BONDS ON TUESDAY

Mayor Walter D. Cline on Saturday issued a brief statement urging every citizen with the welfare of Wichita Falls at heart to go to the polls next Tuesday and vote for the bond issues required by the city to complete a variety of municipal improvements.

It is not alone necessary to pass these bond issues, and give the city permission to go ahead," the mayor said, "but it is also essential to success to get out a big majority vote in favor of the passage. A big vote will go a long way toward increasing the value of the bonds. It is generally known that the bond markets of the country are in an unsettled condition at the present time, and for that reason a big vote of confidence expressed by the people of Wichita Falls will be of material help in getting good bids on our municipal bonds."

Improvements Involved.
The bond issues total $1,000,000, and the municipal projects involved include a new sanitary sewer system, a storm sewer system, a program of street paving, extensions to the water system, improvements to parks and playgrounds, additions and improvements to the hospital and the expenditure of $25,000 for a new incinerator.

The city council has been working on these various problems for half a year, making haste slowly and going into every detail connected with the city's needs. Mayor Cline and the members of the council have devoted a great deal of time to plans that involve not merely emergency needs but the needs of the city in the future. If the bond issues are passed favorably, there will not be a better equipped, more progressive and up-to-the-minute city in Texas than Wichita Falls.

Influenza or La Grippe

is evidently not due to any one cause, but to a combination of causes, one of which is lowered vitality, and as eye strain is a great factor in lowering vitality it is a contributing factor in the above named diseases.

NEWS FROM THE COURTS

SIXTEEN MEN SUMMONED AS SPECIAL GRAND JURY

Sixteen men have been summoned to report to Judge P. A. Martin at nine o'clock Monday morning for a special grand jury. The judge will deliver a special charge to the jury after they have been selected.

Although no intimation has been given as to what the special charge will contain it is generally believed that it will be their duty to investigate the affair at Kemp City in which two men lost their lives.

It is further believed that the jury will be invested with the power of calling before them witnesses for a thorough investigation as to conditions in the various oil fields. District Attorney Fletcher S. Jones and County Attorney John Davenport will assist the jury in its investigations.

The summoning of the special grand jury is believed to be an active step towards a clean-up of the crime wave which seems to have spread over the county within the past two weeks.

COUNSEL FOR "DOC" SNOW WAIVES PRELIMINARY HEARING

Counsel for "Doc" Snow, who is charged with murder and who is a prisoner in the Tarrant county jail, has waived preliminary hearing in the case. No bond has been set and it was understood that the counsel would make application for his return Monday.

Snow has been in the jail at Fort Worth, being transferred to that place when intimations of mob violence were made here after his arrest. It would not be ascertained whether he would be called before the special grand jury which meets Monday morning.

A large number of the schools of the county have completed one month's study and Saturday was the first day for the teachers whose schools began a month ago.

Gentlemen:—Replying to your question of reduction in automobile rates with the use of your Fire Extinguishers, beg to advise that a credit of 15 per cent is given on the fire rate. All merchants can also reduce their rates by the proper use of them in their stores, and we will be glad to advise them at any time in regard to such application.

Some Extinguishers are not approved by the Underwriter's Laboratory and use of same would not give a credit but the ones YOU ARE SELLING are approved and credit given for the proper use of them. Yours very truly,

On the Pinnacle of Favor

There is a vogue for Walk-Over style this fall. Low-heel street oxfords or the trim high-heel shoes are bidding strong for popular favor. The low-heel model we show here has an almost extreme arch. Perhaps it is so popular because women notice it has the toe shape of a dress pump. Certainly it has girlish lines. Yet it is being worn effectively by women of maturer years.

Do You Pay Your Bills?

"SETTLE"

PROMPT PAY CREATES CREDIT

The bills you incurred last month are due NOW. Bills you made before last month and which still remain unpaid ARE OVER-DUE—if you do not pay them you are imposing upon good nature.

The only reason the goods were charged to you—was for convenience—YOUR CONVENIENCE.

The merchant thought you were as GOOD AS YOUR WORD. He trusted you implicitly. He allowed you to take the merchandise out of his house.

NOW IT'S YOUR TURN to make good. Prove to him you're HONORABLE—that you are as good as your word—AND SETTLE.

Being the Third and continuation of a Series of Talks on Bills and the Prompt Payment of Them.

"HONOR"

PROMPT PAY CREATES CREDIT.

A man can be worth millions, yet so slow in settling his obligations as to make merchants hesitate in trusting him with their wares.

A ditch digger, laboring daily for a mere pittance, realizing the importance of PROMPTLY MAKING GOOD HIS WORD, can buy, unquestioned, from the same merchant.

It's not their only Fate—it's just HONORABLENESS—a full realization of the word "HONOR."

PROMPTNESS

"A Stitch In Time Saves Nine."

An old saying, but a truer one was never said. It applies to everything where promptness counts—and promptness counts in everything. It's the stitch in time that saves credit.

It also saves honor, embarrassment and self respect.

The man who pays his bills can look the whole world in the face. And better still—the man who pays his bills can buy again—and say "charge it."

Prompt pay creates credit, and credit is the most valuable thing in the world.

To weed out the men and women who do not pay their bills—who do not value their honor—The Retail Merchants' Association was formed. This association consists of practically all the retail merchants in the city. They have a clearance house, through which they clear credits. In an instant it is possible for any member of this association to find how a customer has been paying his bills with any other member. This eliminates the undesirable customer who makes it a habit of buying first from one merchant, then another, without meeting his obligations. If you pay your bills, or you don't, every merchant in this association knows it—and credits you accordingly.

MERCHANTS REPORT
SPLENDID BUSINESS
DURING PAST WEEK

PUBLIC CONVINCED OF SINCERITY OF EFFORT TO REDUCE PRICES, SAYS DEALER.

WARNS THE PUBLIC NOT TO EXPECT TOO MUCH

No Reduction in The Price Of Many Articles For Spring Delivery It Is Explained.

Wichita Falls merchants report the best sales last week that they have enjoyed in many weeks. "The public is convinced of the sincerity of our efforts to reduce prices to correspond with reductions in wholesale prices some of which have already taken place and others which are anticipated," said one of the leading merchants Saturday. "In their efforts to meet public opinion," continued this merchant, "most of us have gone further in price reductions than reductions in manufacturers and wholesalers prices have justified and many merchants are taking an actual loss on many articles. "I believe the public ought to be warned against expecting too much next spring in the way of reduced prices on spring and summer clothing. Wages of garment workers, which are a large factor in clothing costs, have been raised more than forty per cent and while some reductions in cloth have been made and there is a possibility of further reductions, these will scarcely equal the increased labor costs." This merchant mentioned palm beach suits, among other articles, in which there had been no reduction in the wholesale price for goods for next season's delivery. He named a number of others. It was found to be the opinion of merchants generally that there would be no further reductions in prices of the better class of goods, except reductions that might be made for unseasonable goods. While all the merchants reported increase sales in the past two weeks they were expecting still heavier sales with the coming of cold weather. Only the thrifter buyers have been in the stores this warm weather. They have been coming in because they know prices have been reduced and because they know naturally that they can get the pick of larger stocks.

Now Located At 615 Seventh St.

To The Public:---

I have moved my merchant tailoring establishment from 605 Lamar street, to 615 Seventh street, right in the heart of the business district, and Monday, Oct. 11th my new place will be open and ready for business.

My assortment of new patterns for Fall and Winter is the largest and most attractive I have ever had and my corps of skilled workmen is complete.

My patrons are reminded that now, more than ever before, tailor-made clothes are the most economical—they give "class" to the wearer in business and in society. They last longer, fit better, look better and ARE better than any ready-made garment you can buy.

This shop has made clothes for the discriminating men of Wichita Falls for many years, and bears the reputation of turning out clothes that compare favorably in style and finish with the product of any big city tailor.

We invite you to call at our new shop and look over the new patterns, our style books and style information are at your service.

CHANDLER SIX $1895

Chandler is Back to $1895

Chandler's reduction to $1895 is the news on the street today. And it's good news to the car-using public, because it means that Chandler has taken another big stride forward in the leadership of its field.

The Greatest Dollar-for-Dollar Value Throughout the Industry

The Chandler has always been closely priced and today, at $1895, it is decidedly the greatest value in the whole automobile industry.

The Leader of All Sixes; Most Closely Priced

It has always been the basic policy of the Chandler Company to build a really fine automobile and to price it closely. The great Chandler plant, the millions of capital employed in Chandler production are back of that statement. They exist because of that policy. Chandler is the greatest of sixes and the most fairly priced.

Constantly Refined and Improved But Never Radically Changed

Other cars of many kinds and many motors have come and gone while the Chandler Six, now in its eighth year, lives and grows, and every season multiplies its thousands of friends. There is only one Chandler Six, refined and improved throughout the years but never radically changed. There is no other car like it. You will find the exclusive Chandler motor under the hood of no other car. No other car, within hundreds of dollars of the Chandler price, has the features characteristic of the highest type of design and construction for which the Chandler Six is justly famous.

Six Handsome Chandler Body Types On One Standard Chassis

On the one standard Chandler chassis, famous for its marvelous motor and for its sturdy, dependable construction throughout, are mounted six beautiful styles of bodies that meet every requirement for your comfort and satisfaction. Beautiful in design, exceptionally roomy and comfortable, and highly finished, these six Chandler models invite your most exacting inspection.

FORTY SHRINERS ARE ELECTED AS A START FOR MASKAT PATROL

Forty local Shriners have been elected as the nucleus of the Maskat patrol, A. A. O. N. M. S. The election was made at Thursday night's meeting of the Shrine, and an announcement was made Saturday that those elected will elect the remaining 16.40 of the active patrol membership up to 50. The inactive members will be elected from time to time as the patrol leaders may decide.

O. Harvey was elected president of the patrol for the coming year; J. Staley, vice-president; Carter McEgor, secretary; and treasurer; Trace Robbins, captain; Elmer C. Deane, first lieutenant, and Charlie Han, second lieutenant. A campaign is under way to make the Maskat patrol one of the snappiest and best organized organizations in the state, and it is freely predicted that the local Shriners will accomplish their purpose.

The patrol will meet twice a week, drill in order to prepare for the next Shrine ceremonial in November, and every member of the temple who wishes to affiliate himself with the patrol is urged to file his application with any of the patrol officers. Patrol uniforms have been ordered, and every other necessary step for the success of the patrol has been taken. A complete list of the present members of the patrol follows: Anderson, Allbritton, Abbott, Anderson, Southern, Bunnenberg, Breedlove,

ONE AND ONE-HALF MILES OF LAKE ROAD COMPLETED

One and one-half miles of the Lake road had been paved at quitting time Saturday, according to J. M. Isbell, county road superintendent. Both mixing machines have been in operation the entire week and through this means they have been able to average 600 lineal feet per day.

It is believed, barring any misfortune and the fact that the materials will be on hand, that the 4.7 miles of pavement will be completed within the next thirty days.

When the road is completed it will furnish residents of the city with a very pleasant automobile pleasure trip road. This will be practically the only good road, with but one exception, leading from the city which can be used for a pleasure trip.

LOCAL OSTEOPATHS TO ATTEND CONVENTION TO BE HELD IN NOVEMBER

Dr. O. A. Scharff and R. H. Peterson of Wichita Falls will attend the convention of osteopaths to be held at Fort Worth November 5 and 6. Members of the profession from Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas will be present. The convention will be held under the auspices of the Northwest Texas Osteopathic Association, of which Dr. Scharff is secretary and treasurer.

Dr. Scharff, who is also president of the state association of osteopaths, returned Saturday from Kansas City where he has been assisting Dr. Ireland of Columbus, Ohio, in a surgical clinic. Dr. Ireland enjoys the reputa-ing this reunion was "the best ever," praised Houston for the reception given them and the spirit of hospitality manifested.

Will Select Meeting Place.

FORT WORTH, Oct. 8.—Commander-in-Chief Van Zandt upon his return from the Houston reunion today announced that the choice of the next meeting place will be made in several weeks, or just as soon as he could confer with his brigadier-generals, Louisville, Memphis and Chattanooga have invited the veterans. The ability of each applicant to care for such a large convention will be thoroughly canvassed, said Van Zandt today.

VETERANS PLEASED WITH REUNION AND HOSPITALITY SHOWN

HOUSTON, Oct. 8.—Few veterans remained here today following the close of the Confederate reunion last night. Blessed with perfect weather and excellent drinking water, few of the old soldiers were forced to go to the hospital, only two being brought in as the result of the strain incurred in marching in yesterday's parade. They departed for their homes, declar-

Peterson's Ointment Best for Eczema

First Application Stops Itching of Eczema, Salt Ricum and Piles.

Ends Chafing Distress in Five Minutes.

"Live and let live is my motto," says Peterson of Buffalo. "Druggists all over America sell PETERSON'S OINTMENT for 40 cents a large box and I say to those druggists, if anyone buys my ointment for any of the diseases or ailments for which I recommend it and are not benefited, give them their money back."

"I've got a safe full of thankful letters testifying to the mighty healing power of Peterson's Ointment for old and running sores, eczema, salt rheum, ulcers, sore nipples, broken breast, itching scalp, chafing and blind, itching and bleeding piles."

John Scott, 253 Virginia Street, Buffalo, writes: "Peterson's Ointment is simply wonderful. It cured me of eczema and also piles and it did it so quickly that I was astonished." Automobile News

Argues That Freight Increase Calculated To Lower the Price

The recent increase in freight rates which was granted the railroads of the country has been the subject of more or less conjecture as to what effect it would have on the price of the necessities of life. The general opinion has been that the freight increase would cause another increase in the cost of living, but the vice-president of one of the country's largest truck manufacturing concerns has come forth with an ingenious article maintaining that this increase will eventually tend to lower the cost of transportation and thus reduce the high cost of living, while at the same time he makes an eloquent plea in favor of good roads.

The executive contends that expensive transportation is far cheaper than no transportation at all and that during the war American railroads were not allowed sufficient revenue to provide necessary transportation facilities. This caused enormous losses to shippers whose goods they could not handle. In addition to this, he asserts that many of the apparent shortages of goods and the consequent high prices were caused, not by an actual shortage of the goods, but by the inability of producers to get them to the consumer. Hence he asserts that if the increase in revenue which the railroads will derive from the new freight rates will enable them to improve their service and provide adequate transportation facilities, the cost of many expensive articles will be reduced.

Advances Good Roads.
In applying this argument to the good roads proposition, the author of the article compares the inadequate railroad system to the present day highway and shows how by expending larger sums in the upkeep of the country's roads the motor truck can be utilized in transporting freight from city to city.

Furthermore, this official contends that the idea of heavy trucks causing more damage than lighter ones is also a badly mistaken one. Most of the legislative action in the past years against the use of large and heavy trucks has been based on the mere assumption that big trucks wear out roads faster simply because they are heavier. Legislatures have apparently failed to realize that in hauling a load, say of five tons, two trucks of two-and-one-half-ton capacity would be required where a single five-ton truck would suffice. This would mean more trucks on the highway, a greater cost in the transportation and more wear on the road itself, for with lighter trucks greater speed would be maintained and the degree of road wear increased proportionately.

Of still more importance is the fact that vehicle weight in proportion to carrying capacity decreases as the size of the truck increases. Hence when several smaller trucks are used in place of a single larger truck the roads are forced to carry much more useless weight, which adds to road destruction.

"Transportation is over-expensive only when it is wasteful. Whether the mode of transportation is via railway or motor truck it is false economy to have development on common assumption when a little foresight and careful study will be reflected in freedom of traffic, less waste, and consequently lower commodity prices."

England Far Behind In Development of Automobile Industry

A Dallas automobile dealer who has recently returned from a trip through Europe has given out some interesting information in regard to the automobile situation in the countries hardest hit by the world war.

In England, so he states, the art of automobile salesmanship is practically unknown and the methods in use for the exploitation of the motor car are sorry excuses of what is considered the proper methods in this country. London salesrooms were spiritless looking affairs with no attractive displays of any kind to catch the eye of the public. Used cars seemed to be about the only ones available for sale and all indications pointed to the fact that British manufacturers were far behind in the production of machines.

In France the situation appeared to be somewhat better, although there was still plenty of room for improvement. The Paris dealers seemed to have better ideas as to effective advertising methods and some of them had arranged quite attractive displays. But for all this the general average was far below that of the modern American city.

CLOSED CARS USED IN A RECENT FUNERAL TRAIN

Dealer Cites Pennsylvania Incident as Example of Growing Demand For Sedan Type.

An unusual illustration of the rapidly increasing value of the closed motor car as a necessary means of transportation rather than a mere personal convenience, was provided recently by an enterprising funeral director in Uniontown, Pa. He held a funeral in which only Dodge Brothers sedans and coupes participated. There was a coupe for the minister, sedan for the pallbearers and a fleet of sedans for the family and friends of the deceased. Even the hearse was specially built on a Dodge Brothers chassis.

The undertakers had no thought of associating a closed car demonstration with the solemn business of conveying a body to its grave. On the contrary, they declare they have standardized on this type of car because they believe it by all means the best adapted to their requirements. The combined qualities of dignity and comfort are highly essential when it comes to motor equipment in funerals, they contend.

"And these same factors are the determining influence in the public's rapidly growing tendency to discriminate in favor of the light closed car," said J. M. McFall, the Dodge Brothers dealer in this city, commenting on the subject. "People must have cars—that question has been answered thousands of times over. And they have concluded that they might just as well have cars that will enable them to go anywhere in comfort the whole year round, day or night, warm or cold, rain or shine."

"A closed car of the Dodge Brothers type is just as necessary to the man or woman who is accustomed to riding in automobiles as a closed street car is to the man who depends on street cars. Our closed car business proves that this is not merely an individual belief. It is being demonstrated every day. People come in and tell us that."

CADILLAC

Closed Car Time Is Here

WITH the first touch of bracing wintry weather comes the realization—closed car time is here.

And what woman doesn't want a closed car? With it she is independent—she can drive in comfort where she will, defying wind or rain.

Women who reveled in the soft, velvet-like action of other Cadillacs, now experience in the Type 59, a sensation infinitely more pleasing; a satisfaction hitherto unknown.

To those who anticipate closed car ownership our sincere advice is to place orders now. Deliveries when desired may thus be assured.

The Sedan model is particularly popular.

May we demonstrate Cadillac superiority to you.

For the Cool Days— an Essex Sedan

THE season when the Essex Sedan will be most enjoyed and appreciated is at hand.

Its protection and comfort are genuine necessities for the growing class of automobile owners who rely altogether on motor transit to and from their business affairs.

Commodious and luxurious, it combines the riding comfort of the large costly car, with the advantages of economy and easy handling, exclusive to light cars.

Plenty of surplus power makes the Essex Sedan accelerate quickly, and gives it easy dominance in the hills.

That performance ability is especially prized by owners. For in the case of the Essex it removes the objections long held against enclosed bodies on light cars, that they have insufficient power for the additional weight, which results in sluggish performance.

HUNGER STRIKE ADDS TO INTEREST IN CORK

City Over Which Lord Mayor MacSwiney Presided Brought Into Limelight.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 9.—The long fast of the Lord Mayor of Cork lends interest to the city over which he presided and the office which he held. These are treated briefly in a bulletin issued by the National Geographic Society.

"Cork, third city of Ireland," says the bulletin, "bears a very superficial resemblance to our own New York in that its nucleus is situated on an island enclosed by two arms of a river where its waters meet a bay. The comparison soon becomes a contrast, however, for Cork is a city of less than 80,000 souls, has few public buildings or thoroughfares of importance, and was built on a low, swampy site instead of on the rocky ribs of Mother Earth.

"The stream that enclosed Cork before it grew across its watery barriers is the River Lee which rises in a little lake to the north. From a tiny island in the lake came the pious hermit, St. Fin Barre, who established a monastery on the island at the mouth of the river in the seventh century, and from this start the present city has grown. Both the Catholic and the Protestant cathedrals of Cork are dedicated to this early Irish saint.

"At the head of one of the finest harbors in Ireland—a land-locked cove whose waters are as placid as those of a lake—Cork has been subject since its establishment to attacks by sea marauders. Invading Danes burned the city in 821 and again in 1012, and after the second destruction founded on the site a Danish trading post. The Irish, again in control of the city, submitted to the English in 1172, who for many years maintained a precarious foothold. The Irish eventually regained Cork by force of arms, but by infiltration, for before a great while the one-time English post was the most Irish city in Ireland. Its government entirely in the hands of the people of Erin.

"Lord Mayor MacSwiney died in 1892. "A tragedy overtook Cork the year Columbus discovered America, and was visited most heavily on its lord mayor. During that year the city received and assisted Perkin Warbeck, pretender to the English throne. The mayor lost his head and the city its charter.

"Cork's wonderful harbor has given it a maritime importance since early days. Recognition of this fact is seen in the title of admiral of the port bestowed on the lord mayor of Cork by Edward IV and held by the lords mayor to the present day. In a triennial ceremony the lords mayor evidence their right to the title of admiral by casting a dart out over the harbor.

"Queenstown, at the head of the outer harbor, and practically a part of Cork, is the port of call and departure for trans-Atlantic liners. This fact has made Cork a city of sadness to many, for perhaps a million or more men and women, in large part mere boys and girls forced by economic pressure to emigrate, have there bidden good-bye with set faces and streaming eyes to the land they love so well.

Hundreds Die From Hunger.

"When Ireland suffered what was perhaps the most pathetic of its tribulations, in the famine of 1847, Cork became the center of its sorrows. Thousands of miserable, emaciated creatures made their way there from all over Ireland, hoping to gain passage to America. Hundreds died of hunger along the roads leading to the city and in its very streets.

"While there are practically no points of great interest in Cork, close by is one of the best known and most frequently visited spots in all Ireland. It is the ruined tower of Blarney castle, stronghold of Cormac McCarthy, who legend has it, instructed by an old hag he had rescued to kiss one of the stones of the tower—the famous 'blarney stone'—became irresistibly eloquent.

"On the picturesque, wooded shores of the spacious and beautiful harbor of Cork are many pleasant resorts and fine country places. One of the latter, Trivoli, the home of Sir Walter Raleigh, is on the estate given to him by Queen Elizabeth. Edmund Spenser was the recipient of many acres at the same period. In Killofinan castle, near Cork, he wrote 'The Faerie Queene.'

QUARTER OF A MILLION JEWS HAVE LEFT POLAND

Most of Those Who Have Taken Their Departure Are Said to Be Bound for America.

GRATDENZ, POLAND.—An exodus of Jews from Poland, which has been steadily increasing for many weeks, has reached such proportion that Polish army officers say it is certain that more than 250,000 soon will have left. Most of them are bound for America.

The Poles, who are frankly and bitterly hostile toward the Jew, make no objection to their departure, but they criticize what they assert is the attitude of the joint distribution committee of America, which has many motor trucks and large supplies throughout Poland. When a number of trucks and automobiles of this committee arrived here the military authorities refused to permit them to proceed or move about in this area, saying accusations had been made that these trucks were carrying contraband over the German border under the protection of the American flag and that there was evidence the committee had assisted Jews who were liable for military service to leave Poland. Proof of these accusations was requested by the correspondent but it was not furnished.

The employes of the joint distribution committee in charge of the detachment of trucks here appealed to American army officers in Gratdenz to use their influence to have the trucks released but the officers declined to interfere.

Polish officials say all of the Jews in several towns and villages in Posen, Poland, have departed en route to the United States.

Would You Rent Your Car To A Thief?

THE keenest brains of the criminal world have brought into being the most perfect organization for the perpetration of crimes that history has ever known. It is an undisputed fact that no other class of crime has equaled that of stealing automobiles.

More than six million dollars worth of cars were stolen during the first five months of 1920. And the volume of this national loss is increasing every day.

Yet the A. A. T. A. A., with a membership of thousands of cars, has maintained for nearly five years a record of protecting from theft 99.99 percent of members' cars.

It is only too evident that automobile thieves respect the Association Emblem. The thief knows that he has practically no chance to successfully steal one of 'our' cars, and he lets them alone.

Would you take the chance to having YOUR car stolen, for the price of our protection—or a dozen times that amount?

The sole purpose of the A. A. T. A. A. is to PROTECT from theft the cars of members, and in case a member's car should be stolen, to RECOVER the car and PROSECUTE the thief.

The Association emblem on your car means that there is only one chance in a thousand that a thief would be foolish enough to try to steal it, and only one chance in five thousand that the thief could get away with it.

A representative of the Association can give you some very interesting information about our methods of preventing automobile thefts.

Road Hog Classed Greediest Animal Wild or Domestic

"If motorists will examine their manners with a microscope they may learn something to their advantage. The road hog is the greediest animal extant, wild or domestic, and he is often concealed under a pleasing exterior. The motorist who tries to avoid the eye of a traffic cop, and thus break, or bend, a traffic regulation, is as common as the things which have made Henry Ford famous. In addition to running the risk of appearing before a glowering magistrate in a police court, these bad-mannered motorists run the greater peril of causing accidents which may cost lives. And the car driver, man or woman, who looks on the traffic policeman as a natural born enemy, is committing an error which might properly deter him from ever after sitting at a steering wheel."

Extract from Literary Digest.
In the above manner a writer in the Literary Digest prefaces his account of an article which appeared in Motor Life dealing with bad manners of motor car drivers while on the road. After commenting on several cases which demonstrated the selfishness of motorists the writer goes on to say: "It wouldn't do any city driver any harm to go into conference with himself and examine his motoring conduct to make sure that he is not violating any of the rules. He should read over the regulations and make sure that each is thoroughly understood. Then he should put the binoculars on his motoring manners and assure himself that he is doing as he would be done by when he is driving. After he has satisfied himself that he is a good motorist, knows all the rules and all the laws—then he can call the other fellow names when the o. f. does something annoying or nearly gets him in a smash-up."

Wide Variation of Laws.
The wide variation in the traffic laws of various cities is commented on thusly: "Many complain that the lack of uniformity in city traffic regulations is a great handicap to the tourist and while there is an occlusion of truth in this, still at the same time the common sense regulations are in force everywhere, and they will get the driver 'by' until he can find a policeman to inform of the peculiarities of the local regulations."

Some "don'ts" are given which may seem rather superfluous at first, but a little study of them will reveal some very good advice. The manner of driving turns from one street into another is criticized because of the habit of many motorists in making to short curves. "When making a left turn," so he states, "a wide arc should be described, so that in the event of a car coming from the opposite direction in which the turning car is heading, the oncoming vehicle will have plenty of room. The practice of many drivers in throwing their car into gear and then holding them stationary by keeping the clutch disengaged while a traffic jam is being untangled or pedestrians are passing in front of the machine is another thing which should be discouraged. Several days ago in an eastern city several cars were lined up at a crossing while traffic was proceeding in another direction when suddenly one of the cars leaped forward and ran down two pedestrians who happened to be in front of it. The driver explained later that he had put his gear lever in low speed preparatory to moving forward when the traffic officer gave the signal, and was holding the clutch out to keep the car at rest. His foot slipped off the pedal and before he could act the car had dashed half way across the street."
It is best to leave the gears out of mesh until time to move. The other methods may make for a slightly quicker get away, but see what it did in this case.

In the last analysis, driving a car is something like swimming. You either swim or you don't swim. There is no middle ground. So it is with driving a car. You either drive properly or you don't drive at all—at least not for very long.

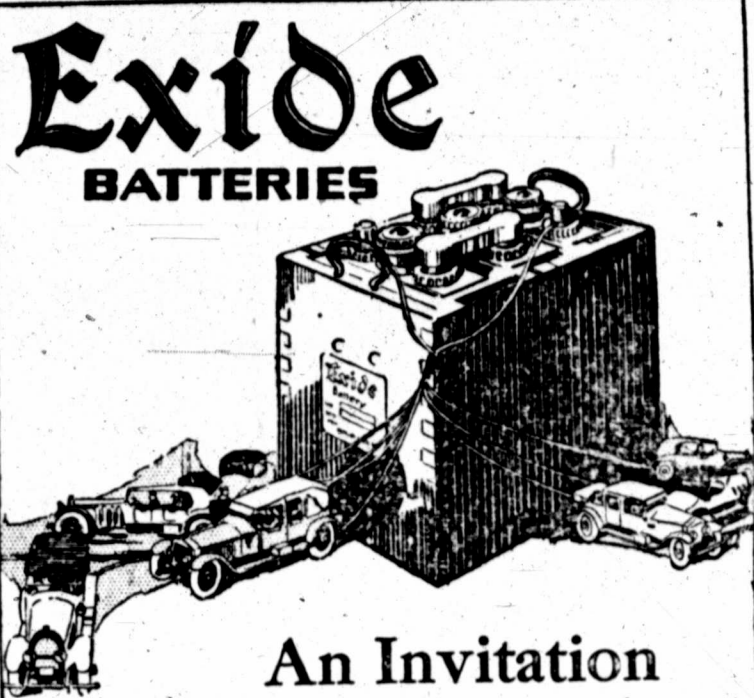

STUDEBAKER DEALERS ARE HAVING LITTLE TROUBLE IN NEGOTIATING THEIR PAPER

The Exide Motor company of this city, local dealers for the Studebaker machine, is receipt of a letter from the P. E. Shaw company, distributors of the Studebaker in the southern territory, advising some interesting information regard to the financial status of Studebaker dealers in Texas. Quoted and condensed the letter states: "It is very gratifying to us to note the attitude of the banks over our territory toward Studebaker dealers and toward paper taken by dealers as part payment on Studebaker cars. In our entire dealer organization in this state we know of only one town in which the banks have refused to loan our dealers money to unload cars."

After explaining that the Industrial Finance Corporation of New York, one of the strongest financial institutions in the country handling automobile paper, had ceased to honor notes given on any car except the Studebaker, the letter cites an instance which occurred in this state. It says: "One of the largest automobile dealers in Texas stated a few days ago that the leading bank in his city was handling the accounts of several different automobile dealers and that it had called all of these dealers to task with the single exception of the Studebaker man. The banker was not satisfied with the sales methods of these others and was requiring 50 per cent cash on each sale and notes which should run not longer than six months. The Studebaker dealer was authorized to sell cars for one-third cash and ten months on the balance. The banker gave as his reason for this the fact that Studebaker cars were standing up and he had no difficulty in collecting notes when due, whereas with cars of other makes customers were always complaining about the cars not being satisfactory and were kicking on paying notes unless allowances were made."

This is taken by the local dealers as an indication of the enviable record which Studebaker machines are establishing in other parts of the state and is given as proof of Studebaker-stamina and quality.

Compare the Present Price of $1685.00 for the Hupp with the Reduced Prices of Other Standard Make Cars

Recent price reduction on the part of a number of the leading manufacturers has had the effect of disturbing the trade.

The public, however, is not familiar with the very great increases in prices which many manufacturers have made during the past four years and a glance at the accompanying list will convince you that the Hupmobile is still priced right.

The Hupp Motor Car Corporation has advanced its product only in accordance with the gradually increasing costs of labor and material, and during this period the increase has been $400.00 or only 31% over the 1917 price.

The Hupp Corporation has been fair with the public during these years when they might have taken advantage of the tremendous demand for motor cars, and would now have ample margin for reduction as have other makes.

THE MOTORISTS' PROBLEMS'

By WILLIAM H. STEWART JR.

Motor Department: I have a 1917 Maxwell touring car. The self-starter is giving me considerable trouble, and I would greatly appreciate your kindness if you will give me some pointers as to the cause and remedy. The starter itself will work, but will not start the engine. To me it seems as if trouble was in the ignition. Everything seems to be in good condition mechanically. B. G.

The trouble probably lies between the carburetion and the ignition. Prime the cylinders and spin the engine. If it refuses to start look for ignition troubles. Trace out the line from battery clear through the spark plugs until trouble is located. If the engine fires a few times and stops, look for carburetion troubles starting at the tank and working forward.

Motor Department: I have a 1918 Mitchell car. After running it about two months there was a knock in the motor and it is still there. If the spark is advanced half way the engine knocks very badly. When the spark is retarded there is no knock. I had carbon taken out of the cylinders, and it seemed a little better. But it is very bad at present. I would be very glad to learn through your paper some remedy for this knock. S. T.

Evidently the knock is in the connecting rod or crank shaft bearings. The only way to find it is to go over these parts carefully. If neglected such a knock may develop serious consequences, and may even wreck the engine.

Motor Department: I have a 1918 car with a 12 volt storage battery. When water is put in the filler openings and the car run, more water comes out of the tops than I put in. Please tell me the cause of the trouble. The starter will not work, yet the battery has just been recharged by the manufacturer's agent. L. T.

It would seem that battery is overcharging, due to voltage regulator not being properly adjusted. If electrolyte is up to its full strength and starter does not work properly, the trouble may be in a poor connection or in the starter itself.

Motor Department: Occasionally I hear a popping noise at my carburetor. Is it dangerous? Please give me cause or cause. BEGINNER.

Popping back or back firing at carburetor is exceedingly dangerous if the carburetor has just been primed or there is much of a leak. It is caused by lean mixture, leaky inlet valve or electrical trouble at times in distributor, which cause an explosion in cylinder when inlet valve is open. Look over these parts carefully as occasionally a car burns and is totally wrecked from just this cause.

Motor Department: If I run my motor steadily though slowly while the car is standing, the water in the radiator will boil and steam even on a cool day. This trouble developed only lately. Can you tell me the cause of this?—Owner.

Perhaps the inner walls of the rubber hose connections have closed, thereby stopping the circulation. If not this, then the water pump is not working as it should. The trouble you mention clearly indicates poor circulation of the water of the cooling system.

Motor Department: My Ford differential is becoming noisy, possibly because I have not attended to it recently. I put oil on the engine regularly. Is the differential oiled from the engine or must it be oiled after separately?—A. B.

The oiling system on the Ford car merely takes care of the engine and gears. The plug on the differential housing must be removed and more grease inserted at least once a month. Use a medium cup grease and keep it full. If this does not stop the noise, perhaps you will find it necessary to make repairs.

Motor Department: Could you please explain how to time a car or what is meant by timing a car?—Novice.

Timing a car has no meaning, but the valves may be timed and the ignition may be timed. To time the valves we disconnect the timing gears and set the cam shaft or shafts so that the exhaust valve in No. 1 cylinder just closes and the inlet valve is on the point of opening as indicated by the marks on the fly-wheel. To time the ignition we set the timer of the interrupter and distributor with their wires so that a spark will occur in each cylinder just at the beginning of the power stroke.

Motor Department: How is rattling prevented in brakes? I understand that some use a special device to prevent this annoyance.—H. P.

It depends to some extent on the weight of the car. A light car dances about the road so much more that there is apt to be more noise, although the construction is substantially the same. Internal expanding brakes have a tendency to side slap with consequent rattle. If the manufacturer has provided no way to stop this it will be difficult to do so, although a piece of fiber could be placed between the brake and its supporting plate and riveted there. Perhaps small tension springs would serve to reduce the noise.

Motor Department: Am driving a Ford roadster and when not in use keep car jacked up, putting the jack under housing of differential. Please advise if this causes too much strain at this point.—L. N.

The axle housing should certainly be strong enough to support the weight of this car. This should not be done, however, with cars of the heavier type. It is best to jack up on both sides of the axle.

Motor Department: Please let me know some care for a noisy spring. At times it rattles badly and the effect is very annoying. Any suggestions will be appreciated. S. W.

The trouble is probably in the shackles or shackle-bolts. Try tightening the shackle-bolts, as the play is very probably between them and the spring ends. If there is much play, thin shims of metal may be inserted, larger bolts may have to be fitted, or the springs removed and new bushings inserted. Be more careful of lubrication of these parts and keep them clean, as road grit sticking to the spring ends can easily work in and cause rapid wear.

HELPFUL HINTS.

Annoying rattles often may be traced to side play in the spring shackles. You may find it necessary to install shims, but in any case be careful not to tighten the shackle too much. The spring must have freedom of action, otherwise the car will ride hard and incidentally you may cause a broken spring.

Do not neglect to grease the shackles and pins at the ends of the springs. The war department reports that neglect of this detail caused more spring breakage on the trucks in Europe than all other causes combined.

Do not neglect your springs and spring shackles. Not only does proper lubrication add to the easy-riding qualities of a car but it prevents breakage, an important matter, especially on a long trip. So every time you go over your car turn down, or fill the grease cups if necessary.

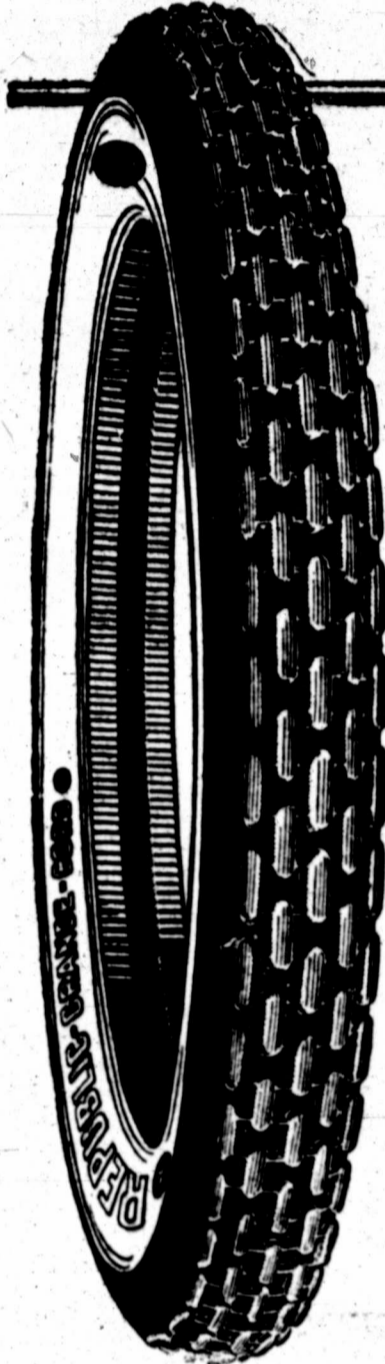

To oil a spring in the proper manner it should be removed. Use a "C" clamp to prevent the leaves springing apart while removing the center bolt. Remove all rust with emery cloth or a file and cover both sides of each leaf with graphite grease. Line up the holes in the springs by means of a screwdriver and tighten with the "C" clamp.

A quicker method is to take the weight off the spring by jacking up and then prying the leaves apart with a screwdriver. Graphite grease may then be inserted by means of a thin knife blade. This method chips off the paint, but that seems to be unavoidable.

Even sugar may soon again be on speaking terms with the average pocketbook. Sell it with a Times want ad.

HUNGER STRIKE OF MAC SWINEY RECALLS THE FORTY-DAY FAST OF DR. HENRY TANNER IN 1880

(From the Kansas City Star)
Frequently since Terence MacSwiney the Irish prisoner, began his hunger strike in Brixton jail has reference been made to Dr. Tanner and his 40-day fast. To the present speedy and unimpaired generation the mention of that once famous feat will likely bring little or no reactions of interest or memory, but to the old-timers who were here in the eighties—when the world was young and took an eager interest in anything that had a human touch to it—Dr. Tanner's fast will be recalled as an event that focused the sympathy of the entire world for 40 days, upset time-honored theories of scientific dietitarians, turned the laugh on the doctors and became a "sporting event" whose daily outcome was watched in every village in the country. It was a 40-day sentimental debauch for the public as well as a test of endurance for the faster, and for that 40 days Dr. Tanner probably was the most talked of man in America, if not in the world.

Dr. Henry S. Tanner, the faster, was born in England, but a resident of Minneapolis when he upset the world's established dietarian ideas. As a matter of fact, he made two long fasts. His first came to notice in 1877 at Minneapolis through his determination to abstain from food as an expedient of relief from asthma, rheumatism and an ailment of the heart. A 10-day period was fixed upon, that being then considered about the limit of human endurance. Finding himself vastly benefited by his 10-day abstinence from food, he continued the experiment until, according to his own statement, he had reached the astounding limit of 42 days without partaking of any solid food.

His fast stirred up a bitter controversy in medical circles and the genuineness of his exploit being widely doubted, Tanner offered to repeat the performance under any conditions which might be named. After long preliminary negotiations, it was finally arranged that the test should be made under the supervision of a medical college in New York and it was begun at noon, June 28, 1880, at Clarendon Hall.

The most extraordinary precautions were taken against possible deception, the doctor being practically confined to the hall during the test, and he was constantly watched day and night. The sole furniture of the hall or room, where he was kept was a cot and a table. Before starting the fast, his clothes were carefully searched to make sure that he had no tabloid nourishment concealed about him and every nook and crevice of the room, and even the bed clothes were rigidly examined. Visitors were allowed at all hours in the hall and a member of the medical college was constantly by his side as well as attending physicians of his own selection. The first 14 days of his fast he took neither water nor exercise. By that time, however, public interest had been strongly aroused and to meet the clamor of the press and the appeals of humane officers, he was taken a short daily ride in Central Park, drank water from a spring therein and afterwards, during his fast, water was kept on his table by which he refreshed himself from time to time.

Reporters from all the newspapers were assigned daily to watch him and report progress and whole pages of the press were soon devoted to the test, the minutest changes being noted in his condition, cabled abroad and bulletined throughout the country. As his fast progressed, the public excitement increased day by day and the doctor was the recipient of all kinds of advice, encouragement, sympathy and protest. The bookmakers and poolrooms posted large wagers for and against the proposition of his holding out the 40 days and a great deal of money changed hands on the issue, especially in the closing days of the test, when his condition was considered precarious. Even in the remotest of rural communities, Dr. Tanner's fast was the topic of the day and the bulletins of his condition were eagerly awaited.

When he began the fast Tanner weighed 157 pounds, his pulse being normal at 80 beats. Towards the latter days of the test, he spent much of his time on his cot, with his knees doubled up to his stomach and several times he showed alarming signs of collapse, which were generally relieved by water sponge baths and mustard water rubbed on his stomach and the soles of his feet. His irritability increased rapidly as the period of his fast drew near its end. The thirty-eighth day he was seized with violent retching and was unable for a while to retain even water on his stomach. Smoking in his presence was forbidden, as it reacted powerfully on his sense of smell and created nausea. Chemical analysis made of the waters ejected from his stomach at intervals showed not the slightest evidences of food having been partaken. He became very weak and spent most of his time on his cot, rolled up in his covers, with his feet doubled up in his favorite position.

As the fast neared its last hours, the interest increased in intensity and took on, in some instances, hysterical phases. Telegrams poured in on him begging him to desist from the experiment, women wired him proposing marriage, and physicians from all parts of the world sent warnings—some of them by cable—as to the manner in which he should break his long fast and as to the necessity of the utmost caution in the character of nourishment selected, and it was freely predicted that he would not survive his first meal. And here's what happened—much to the astonishment of that world of the eighties:

At "high noon," as the papers of that time announced, of the fortieth day, Dr. Tanner completed his fast, the hall being crowded with spectators and the sidewalks outside lined with people awaiting the news. The factory whistles announced when the time was up. Tanner had ordered fresh fruits to be brought and the doctors had light gruels, beef extract and milk at hand.

Disregarding all remonstrances, Tanner reached for a soft ripe peach, peeled it and slowly ate it. Then he called for a Georgia watermelon of the ice. He cut a hole in it and plunged his hand down into the heart and ate a considerable quantity of it. Waiting a few minutes, he took a glass of milk on top of the peach and the watermelon and then stood up and made a little talk to the crowd, apparently greatly relieved after his long strain. In a half hour he took on a little more watermelon. After being driven to the home of a physician, Dr. Gunn, he rested an hour or so and then, at 2:30 drank an ounce of light wine, after which he took another slice of watermelon. At 4:30 he was eating with great relish a piece of beefsteak, not swallowing the fiber of the meat. At 6 o'clock he asked for an apple, ate it, then asked for another and partially finished it. At 7:30 he tried the beefsteak again and at 8 another ounce of wine. Then he fell asleep and awoke the next morning with no distressing effects, while the entire medical world wondered.

At the end of his fast he weighed 122 pounds, a loss of 35 pounds from his normal weight, his pulse registered 92 beats and his temperature was 97.

Dr. Tanner lived to be 87 years old. He died at San Diego, Cal., January 3, 1919. He had lived in California some years and found a colony there which made a cult of fasting for health and some of his patients made records for long fasts, some of which exceeded his own. Among the best authenticated cases are those of Guy H. Parkinson 43 days; Mrs. Lillian Hoag, 49 days; Mrs. M. E. Cummings, 42 days; Mrs. A. Al- bertson, 42 days; J. E. Hardgrave, 41 days; J. W. Walton, 40 days and one, Mrs. A. H. Wessman, holds the world's record with a fast of 54 days to her credit.

A Scale Under Each Wheel

needed to prove proper balance

Weight and balance are two items that should be considered in every demonstration. No dealer should hesitate to give you the facts. But do not be content with generalities.

We will gladly place a Marmon 34 on four scales, so that you may see the weight yourself. We will weigh the car with all water, gasoline and oil receptacles filled, with the usual accessories, tools and one spare wheel and tire mounted, but without passengers.

Record the weight on the Marmon Score Card. Then make an identical test with any other car you are considering. Compare weight.

Marmon cars have a great advantage over comparable cars of conventional construction—700 to 1400 pounds are saved by use of lighter metals and scientific design.

A very important item

Note in this weight test whether each scale shows approximately the same. Or is there a variance? Some cars weigh more in front. Some more in the rear. Some even vary from side to side.

Note that the Marmon 34 shows true balance all around. Perfect balance is one of the most important things you must seek. Upon it depends long-life, easy riding, tire and gasoline economy, minimum upkeep, easier acceleration and deceleration, smoothness of operation, ease of steering, etc.

Marmon has led for years in the new principles of light-weight design and scientific construction. It has set the pace. But even today, no one has equaled the Marmon 34, simply because Marmon engineers got the lead and held it.

Make careful comparison

Note the summarized Marmon Score Card which brings out the 12 items which should guide you in making a demonstration. We are glad to give you complete evidence, and you can ask for it elsewhere.

This Marmon Score Card gives you the first opportunity to check one car against another in a methodical way. It permits a wise decision. It does away with vague selling talk and puts cars up against critical comparisons.

It is the way many of the country's great engineers have come to decide in favor of the Marmon 34.

Don't buy the old way, when a score card demonstration is so simple. Protect yourself against a mistake by going into every one of these 12 items. Let no single one outbalance the other. Each is vital. Each is significant.

After recording the performance of a Marmon 34 on a Marmon Score Card, you can put other cars through the same demonstration, and judge the results.

Closed Cars Hold A Fascination For Women Motorists

"Closed cars fascinate the average woman motorist, and even attract the careful attention of the most experienced automobilist," says Eckman & Von Allmen, local Humobile dealer, "and the following description of the new Humobile sedan and coupe will prove extremely interesting to many motor car owners in this territory. We expect the new models to arrive soon, and will give the public ample opportunity to inspect them."

The Humobile chassis has been the foundation on which is built a closed body of most substantial construction. Rigid wood body sills and pillars give rigidity. The mortised joints are glued, fastened by screws, and, where necessary, reinforced by steel braces. A roof of composite construction, by its very nature, deadens noise. Drip moldings at front and sides dispose of rain or snow. A windshield visor protects the driver from the sun's glare, and a water-tight windshield keeps cold without the warmth within. A wiper on the windshield removes rain or snow as rapidly as it falls.

Night driving is made pleasanter by headlights which are adjustable sideways, and up or down, and by special non-glare lenses. A dash light illuminates the instrument board, which carries speedometer, ammeter and oil pressure gauge. A dome light diffuses ample illumination throughout the interior.

A car warmer transfers heat from the exhaust pipe to the tonneau—the amount easily controlled. Foot and arm rests aid in making long trips comfortable, though comfort is already made certain by long vanadium steel springs, rebound snubbers and cord tires.

The excellence of Humobile painting and finishing methods is instantly apparent upon inspection. Dark blue—a universally favorite color—is used for the body, with black hood, fenders and running gear.

Windows are large and easily adjustable by means of the pullman-type regulator, which enables you to lock them at any height desired. It is easily operated by one hand, and very positive in action. Silk curtains, used on rear doors and windows, harmonize with upholstery, and operate on automatic rollers.

Four doors permit easy entrance or exit. The front right door has outside lock, the other doors lock on the inside. Doors close easily, as double catches are provided. "Slamming" is avoided by the use of live rubber tubing around edges, and large rubber wedges.

Mahogany molding on the doors adds its share to the beauty of the interior. Best grade fabrics are used, with very deep and resilient back and cushion springs. The color scheme of the interior is gray with darker gray stripe for cushions and seat backs, with a still darker shade for carpets, and lower portion of doors and seats. Foot rests are covered with same material. Side, door and head lining harmonize.

The coupe body design is necessarily somewhat different from the sedan but the substantial construction, good workmanship, mechanical details and fine equipment are the same.

The smartness of the coupe design is enhanced by the luster and finish characteristic of Humobile cars. The standard dark blue color makes a universal appeal, and with the gray upholstery, forms an unusually attractive combination.

On a stopping tour, the space behind the driver's seat offers concealment for parcels. Equally convenient for the professional or business man is the spacious rear deck compartment, large enough for two suitcases, and safeguarded by a lock.

Convenient access to any seat can be had through both doors. Handsome fittings, mahogany molding, inside locks, pockets, and latch handles make these doors both practical and attractive. Interior cleanliness in both models is aided by rubber step plates on running board.

One of the most distinctive coupe features is the fourth seat—a full sized seat in every way, well built and thickly padded. It is easily folded and disappears under the dash when not needed. The driver's seat is set slightly forward. The rear seat accommodates two.

As in the sedan, high grade fabrics and deep coil springs are used, with upholstery, roof lining and carpets, all harmonizing.

Eckman & Von Allmen expect to have these two new closed car models ready for public inspection about November 15.

SAN ANTONIO HAS LATEST OIL DEVELOPMENT STORY

SAN ANTONIO, TEX., Oct. 9.—For years Thomas E. Cooper, whose home is in the heart of San Antonio, noticed oil seeping through the floor of a cellar at his home. Not until recently, when Texas became a great oil producing center and when oil prices began to soar, did Mr. Cooper begin saving the oil. Now he is marketing from two to three barrels daily from the seepage that once went to waste.

KNOWLEDGE FOR CAR OWNERS

Interesting and Important Facts That Every Motorist Should Know.

Universal joints should be packed with grease after every thousand miles of running.

When gears are spaced a little too close together or too far apart, they are noisy at certain speed under load.

Gasoline or low gravity contains more heat units than that of high gravity, but is more apt to deposit carbon.

After making repairs along the road always make sure that you have picked up all the tools that have been in use during the repair period.

A worn valve guide will allow enough air to be sucked into the cylinders to cause misfiring and also permit oil to leak out.

The plunger inside the tire valve is responsible for the well-being of the tire and should never be removed unless absolutely necessary.

No part of a car requires more careful attention in the matter of lubrication than the steering gear and its connections. Lack of a sufficient amount of lubricant means undue wear, and when one of these parts breaks, a serious accident may result.

In filling the oil reservoirs, care should be exercised so no foreign substance gets into the lubricating system.

Tiny bits of waste sometimes work into the system and fill some of the smaller oil lines, shutting off the oil supply entirely.

Sometimes it becomes necessary to readjust the distance between the contact points at the breaks. The common error is that of setting these points too far apart; the proper distance is approximately one-fiftieth of an inch, and this may be taken as a standard. Incidentally the width of the spark gaps has a great influence on the functioning of the ignition system.

As the wheels of a motor car are constantly under strain at sharp turning of corners and similar driving exigencies, it is well to periodically check over the condition of the wheels and tighten the loose flange nuts. Creaking of the wheels when this is neglected is an audible warning that trouble is ahead unless this detail is looked after.

Engineering authorities are agreed that a gasoline motor performs better and has more power at night than in the daytime. The latest explanation of this technical mystery is that in the daytime heat expands the air so that it is lighter in weight than at night. So at night an engine gets more air and consequently produces more powerful impulses. Also, the water gets cooler and performs more efficiently.

The intense mechanical strain undergone by the rear axle calls for the most scrupulous watching to keep it in condition. This is the center of intense mechanical activity, carrying all the pushes and pulls and jolts and jars of the whole car. Every owner should therefore guard against any rear axle trouble. The safest way is to have the axle examined by an expert as soon as slight trouble develops.

A connecting rod scoop may be made from heavy sheet metal. It is placed directly under the oil hole, where a slot is cut in the shape of a triangle in the sheet metal about three-quarters of an inch long and bent down.

The length may vary according to the closeness with which the rods approach the pan. If the motor is a very long stroke and more splash is wanted, the slot may be cut in the shape of a rectangle so that it will splash more oil.

"CATERPILLAR" TRACTORS

Were an important factor in the winning of the World War. They traversed ground so rough and broken that no other type of vehicle could pass over it.

Road construction, the hardest of all work has been the Waterloo of many makers of tractors. "Caterpillar" Tractors have mastered this with the same speed and efficiency as they did war work. The "Caterpillar's" immense power enables the commissioners to complete the grading of a road in one round trip, pulling the two graders with all ease.

The engineers of the Holt Factory have made a close study of the oil fields; its transportation and power problems, and the "Caterpillar" has won its way with the oil men and contractors. Once used the "Caterpillar" becomes a necessity.

All through the recent rainy season "Caterpillars" were hauling their loads, quickly and efficiently, in spite of the worst road conditions this section ever experienced.

The "Caterpillar" with its trailers can haul anything, anywhere, in any kind of weather over any kind of road.

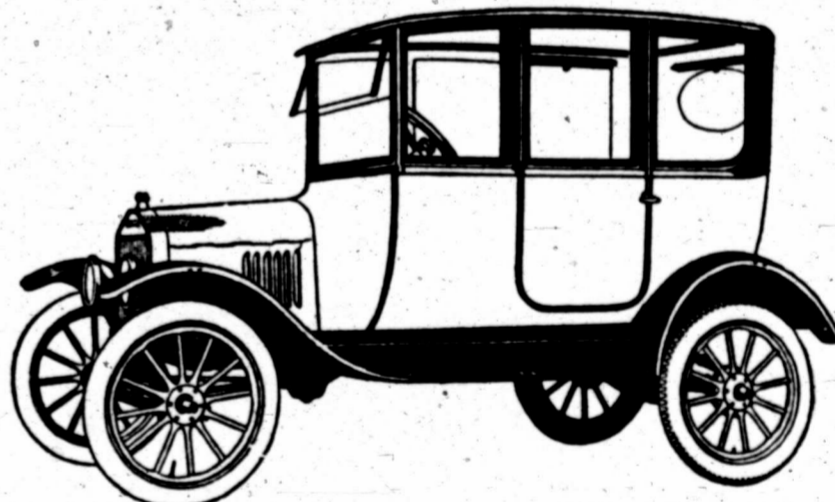

We can make immediate delivery from stock of both the five and ten ton tractors.

We also have in stock the Martin Eight wheel wagons, ten ton capacity, equipped with tractor hitch.

The Car That Appeals to Two Classes

The same characteristics which have always given the Ford Sedan a double market are emphasized more than ever. And so the Ford dealers can expect continued dividends from this unique selling advantage.

The man who can afford only a medium car is attracted by the Ford because it offers more than the average medium priced car. It is a better car for the price.

The man of means, who seeks in addition to his high-priced cars, a machine which he can be proud to drive himself, requires exactly what the Ford offers.

The Ford cars stand the test which this man who knows motor values will make of it. The specifications offer convincing proof of the mechanical superiority of this car.

In appearance the Ford excels any of its predecessors—and, we honestly believe, any car on the market. Other car designs can approach the lines of the Ford Sedan, but they will miss the effect of its natural beauty in striving to outdo it.

If you are interested in this double-class appeal and would like to know more about the car that possesses it—let us send you the new Ford literature.

NEGLIGENT PROPERTY OWNERS TO SUFFER

Will Be Black-Listed by Fire Department Officials in Number of Larger Cities.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Negligent property owners whose carelessness in the past has contributed to the loss of 15,000 lives and the destruction of $230,000,000 annually by fire in the United States are going to be "black-listed" by fire department officials in a number of cities this year in accordance with a plan of the national board of fire underwriters. For weeks in anticipation of the observance of Fire Prevention Day throughout the nation tomorrow, the following warning has been displayed on billboards, street cars and in other public places: "Keep off the fire department's blacklist!"

"Prior to Fire Prevention Day, members of the uniformed force will make inspections of business and residential properties. All premises containing accumulations of rubbish, defective chimneys and flues, improper heating devices or any other conditions constituting a public menace will be carefully noted and recorded."

"Chief, Fire Department." "General Observance." "Observance of Fire Prevention Day, which falls on the 4th anniversary of the burning of Chicago, will be general throughout the United States, according to an announcement by the national board of fire underwriters here, the governors of many states having issued proclamations in accordance with the request of President Wilson."

The New York city fire department, through its bureau of fire prevention, has planned a program which includes the issuance of 200,000 letters to school children and their parents, the display of 40,000 red placards in public places, the circulation of stereopticon slides in motion picture houses, the reprinting of "riders" on 100,000 restaurant menus and city department letters and the utilization of bill board space.

Special attention is devoted to the school children because of the fact that in the United States, there are, on an average, approximately five school fires every day. More than one-third of the school fires for the three years, 1916, 1917 and 1918, aggregating $12,972,393 were due to "strictly preventable" causes.

To educate the teachers and children in fire prevention a mock trial, entitled "The Trial of Fire," will be staged today in hundreds of school rooms. The dramatic persons include, besides the judge and court officials, "the arch criminal, Carelessness," and the defendants (11 of the major causes of fire) as follows: Kerosene, Cigarette, Match, Electricity, Rubbish, Gas, Defective Chimney, Gasoline, Lightning, Bonfire and Spontaneous Combustion. Pupils will portray the various characters.

There will be prize essay contests and special observances in schools of many cities. In others the chambers of commerce will conduct ceremonies to call attention to the fire danger.

MILLIONS OF FRANCS ARE WON AND LOST BY GAMBLERS IN FRANCE

PARIS, Oct. 9.—Millions of francs were won and lost across the baccarat tables and the roulette wheels in a frenzy of gambling for stakes hitherto unknown in France during the season which is drawing to a close at Deauville.

Foreigners have been conspicuous in keeping the croquiers busy passing stakes over the green carpets. Mr. Vagliano, a Greek ship owner, according to L'Avenir, won 2,600,000 francs at baccarat in a sitting of three hours and a half at Deauville recently. On the other hand, an American, whom the newspapers refer to as the "Tobacco King," is said to have dropped 1,900,000 francs between midnight and day-break one night during the past week.

"Oh, phaw," it only means a little over $100,000," he is reported to have told a consoling piker.

But the most extraordinary player of them all is a young Cuban, a sugar grower of Havana, who is said to have won about 5,000,000 francs after losing 3,200,000 in August. "Whether winning or losing, his face never gives him away to his opponents and his manner of dealing reminds one of a cat gently stretching out its paw," a French theatrical manager just returning from Deauville told journalists.

NO FURTHER REDUCTION IN AUTOMOBILE PRICES EXPECTED BY DEALERS

Reports from the local automobile headquarters received during the past week indicate that business has been dull in all lines of auto trade. This is no more than the dealers expected, however, for the turmoil into which the automobile world was plunged by the avalanche of price declines has not yet been fully settled and the public is not spending its money for automobiles until they think that prices have descended to the lowest level.

A few manufacturers lowered the price on their machines since last Sunday but local dealers are unanimous now in declaring that the reductions have at last stopped and the buying public need not look for another drop for some time. Many of the manufacturers who did not lower their prices intimated that the present cost of their products would be guaranteed until January 1.

NO PORTO RICO SUGAR IS BEING FORCED ON MARKET

SAN JUAN, P. R.—No Porto Rico sugars are being forced on the market. Whatever sugars there are here are being held—for better or worse.—(This is evenly being done to prevent refiners from reducing the price of raw sugar, as the Cuban growers have asked the Porto Rican producers to join them in an attempt to prevent a cut in prices.)

For the first time in many years, two weeks have gone by without the shipment of any sugar from the island. Approximately 440,000 bags or 30,000 tons remain in the island for export.

Porto Rico produced in this year's crop 485,887 short tons of sugar, according to a final statistical report just issued by J. Ruiz Soler, secretary of the Porto Rico Producers' Association. This is 7,000 tons in excess of his estimate made at the commencement of the grinding season and about 80,000 tons greater than the production during the crop season of 1918-19. It is also 20,000 tons in excess of the production during 1917-18.

Export figures show 347,000 tons of sugar shipped from this crop. Local consumption is estimated at 35,000 tons.

Baggagemen to Jail And British Officers Are Sent to Prison

LONDON.—The bearded baggagemen on the platform of the Kazan railway station in Moscow demanded 100,000 rubles for unloading from a car the baggage of 15 British officers and The Associated Press correspondent when they arrived in Moscow in July after a journey from Siberia across Russia. It had taken 10 minutes for him and a dozen other men to do the work.

The British officers were prisoners. They had been members of the Allied railway organization in Siberia under John P. Stevens, the American engineer, and had been captured by the Reds at the same time as Colonel Blunt and his party of American engineers at Novo-Nikolaevsk, Siberia, in November 1919. The Americans had been released and left Russia through Vladivostok, but the British officers were sent to Moscow.

"One hundred thousand rubles for unloading luggage!" exclaimed Major R. E. Vimey, R. E., ranking officer. "We can't pay it; we're prisoners; we haven't the money." And he appealed to his bolshevik guard.

"Who asks 100,000 rubles for unloading baggage?" shouted the bolshevik commissar in charge when informed of the situation. "Show me the man," he demanded. He was directed to the group of baggagemen.

"I'll pay you 10,000 rubles," he said sarcastically. "Yes, I'll pay you, see-cha," using the Russian word indicating time, present or future, usually some indefinite hour in the distant future. "What are your names?" The names were given.

"And now you, Ivan Ivanovitch, and

MORE THAN 300,000 SUNDAY SCHOOLS WITH 33,000,000 MEMBERS

TOKIO, Oct. 4.—There are more than 300,000 Sunday schools in the world with a total enrollment of more than 33,000,000 pupils, said Marion Lawrence of Chicago, general secretary of the International Sunday School association in an address here before the World's Sunday school convention.

The speaker declared that the Sunday school as an institution was entering upon a new phase of development due to a "divine discontent" which had settled down upon the churches. The churches, he said, had come to realize that it must take the Sunday school far more seriously than in the past if it is to hold its own or make any progress.

Outlining the Sunday school of the future, Mr. Lawrence said a school that represents a church thoroughly organized for its educational tasks would embody certain principles, perhaps, as follows:

The school will be thoroughly organized and under the direct control of the church and carried on as systematically as a bank or a department store.

There will be in every church a committee on religious education which shall thoroughly represent all of the activities and departments of the church.

This committee will have charge of the entire educational functions of the church in Sunday school, Young People's society, missionary bands, general reading, etc. A representative of this committee on education will be the educational director of the church.

"No teachers in the school who are not thoroughly qualified for their positions by having taken special training for them.

"The training process so worked into the curriculum that pupils training leads directly to teacher-training, so that all those who reach the age of 20 will have completed a teacher-training course without having neglected the Bible study.

"An officers' training course for officers of both church and school.

"The pastor of the church will probably be the head of the entire educational plan, at least ex-officio, with executive officers in charge of the administration.

"The Bible will be the text-book of the Sunday school, supplemented by such other studies as are necessary for the study of pedagogy, psychology, missions, Christian citizenship, etc.

"The preaching from the pulpit will be more expository and less hortatory than at present.

"The Sunday school will be thoroughly organized along all lines of Christian education, Christian citizenship, missions, temperance, community service and its keynote will be evangelism.

Mr. Lawrence said that between 2,500,000 and 2,000,000 persons were now engaged in Sunday school work as officials or teachers.

MY MOTOBOATPLANE.

The poem printed below has been going the rounds of many southern dailies and has attracted widespread attention. It was written by Donald McLeod Lay and first published in Motor Life. We reproduce it for the benefit of local auto enthusiasts.

An Exhaust-Pipe Dream.

A motor boat's no good on land,
A motor car won't float,
An airplane cannot plow through sand
Nor skim waves like a boat.

If you own any one of them
Devises some clever way
There's some place you can't go;
Maybe where there are tides to stem
Or where "siroccos" blow.

For years I've tried to make my mind
Devise some clever way
All parts of land and sea to find,
By night as well as day.

And when it's built, with wheel and wing,
For land and air and main,
I'll call the floating, flying thing
My MOTOBOATPLANE.

DROUTH IS IMPERILING THE SOUTH TEXAS TRUCK CROPS

ROCKFORD, TEX., Oct. 9.—Drouth is imperiling the truck crops of this district, according to farmers, who say that while planting should be done early in October but that the ground is at present too dry to permit this. Large quantities of cabbage, onions and other produce are sent from this section each fall and winter and have the advantage of reaching the market early. Farmers say all signs point to a dry fall, which would mean late planting and possible loss of the usual advantage of earliness and consequent top prices.

IN MEMORIAM

FOREVER LOST

An old man came into our office the other day, rich and prosperous, but broken in heart. Years ago he had buried a loved one and he wanted us to help him find the grave that was lost, but it was too late. Father Time will obliterate every trace if they are not properly marked, and the time to mark them is now. Honor them with a Monument. They last forever.

High Prices For Clothing, Hats, Shoes And Furnishings Are Doomed

Prices are still too high. High rents and abnormal expenses have caused high prices. These high prices must go. My store, which I will open with one of the most sensational sales you have ever witnessed, has devised a totally new and different plan of selling Men's and Boys' wearing apparel that will revolutionize this particular business.

I am going to squeeze the water out of Clothing, Hats, Shoes and Furnishings prices.

Friday, October 15, you will be able to purchase your Fall outfit at far less than in any other store in this city, regardless of their much advertised sales.

A Mammoth Railroad Wreck Sale Will Open Friday, Oct. 15th.

Your pocketbook is vitally interested in the opening of this new store. Don't spend one cent for wearing apparel until you have read my opening announcement, for I am going to offer bargains that will open your eyes in surprise.

My store is located at 701 Ohio Ave., corner Ohio and Seventh streets, where the American National Bank used to be. My rent is very cheap. I am not spending any money on fixtures. Not a cent. I am going to sell my merchandise for less money than all other stores and having this in view I am cutting expenses down to almost nothing. All goods will be displayed on dry goods boxes and on racks built of cheap unfinished lumber. Nothing fancy, but Oh my, how cheap.

At less than factory cost.

I am doing all this for you, to give you the opportunity to buy goods cheap—Don't overlook it then.

To a consideration of Citizenship. A conscientious citizen, at the very least, owes that much to his state. For that reason alone, we feel perfectly justified in asking of each citizen, man or woman, a careful consideration of the following facts.

COMPETITION IN GOVERNMENT

As in anything else, tends for GOOD SERVICE. Wherever you find a state with one party exercising a monopoly, you find a state with a poor government. Wherever you find a state with two parties fighting for control, you are sure to find a much more efficient public service. This is true, whatever the name of the party dominating in that state.

POOR GOVERNMENT IN TEXAS

Has been the rule for more than a generation. And the fact that one party has had undisputed control of the government is the reason. In this, as in everything else, lack of competition has tended to result in poorer service. Politicians belonging to the machine which has seized control of the Democratic Party in the state have made the boast that the party could nominate a stick horse and win—indicating a supreme contempt for the intelligence of the citizens of Texas. The best state administration which the state has enjoyed since the Civil War came at a time when another party—the Populist Party—threatened to carry the state, and the Democrats were forced to name a Good Man—Governor Hogg—in order to win.

WE DO NOT PRETEND

That this condition could not have existed with the Republican Party in the same degree of control as that which has been exercised by the Democratic Party in this state. In fact, we are sure that this same result would have been brought about under the same conditions. But, we are absolutely certain that it would not have happened in the case of either party—if both had been fighting on even terms for control.

THE RANK AND FILE

Of the Democratic Party are to blame for this situation ONLY through their indifference. A small group of politicians, residing for the most part in one of the great cities of the state—but with co-workers in every town in Texas—have dominated the party, and, through adroit maneuvering, have been able to name THEIR MAN practically every time. Then, with only one party in the state, the machine candidate, nominated, was certain of election.

THE SOLE PROTECTION

Of this highly organized machine has been the carefully nurtured fetish with regard to the Campaign Pledge ILLEGALLY extorted from the voters at the primaries, and urged as a pretended moral obligation to vote for the nominee. SUCCESSFUL IN THEIR TRICKERY in naming a man of their own choice, they have rested secure in the belief—heretofore well founded—that this FANCIED MORAL OBLIGATION would prevent the better citizens of the state from voting against the Machine Candidate, no matter how sorry his record or qualification. Newspapers, playing in with this party machine—party organs—have fallen all over themselves to further this game—thus gathering great credit for themselves with the Gods of the Machine. And they have "GOTTEN AWAY" with this in spite of the fact that a campaign pledge had no right to be expressed or implied on the ballot, and the idea that it could carry either a MORAL OR LEGAL OBLIGATION WAS THE HEIGHT OF ABSURDITY.

THE ONLY OBLIGATION

Resting upon a citizen is to vote for the best interests of his state or country, or any part thereof. THIS IS A SACRED OBLIGATION. Nothing else CAN come first. The placing of party interests before this obligation is a breach of trust toward state and country, and treason to the rights and privileges of citizenship.

ANOTHER BIG ADVANTAGE

Which this state would enjoy from the two-party system would be the consideration its problems would obtain from both of the National Parties. In the past, it has obtained consideration from neither. It has been chalked off by both parties to the Democratic Party, consequently neither the Republican Party nor the Democratic Party has worried about what Texas would do—inasmuch as one figured it has no chance to carry the state, and the other that it would carry it anyway. The worries of both parties have been turned to what NEW YORK, OHIO, INDIANA and other DOUBTFUL STATES would do. So, the influence of Texas, the largest state in the Union, the fifth most populous, and one of the richest states in this Union, has been practically nil. One Republican victory in Texas would change all this. Both parties would then give much thought to Texas and its problems, and it would become one of the four or five DOMINATING STATES OF THE UNION.

THINKING MEN

Have long admitted the truth of this entire statement. Their action toward this end has heretofore been wanting, from belief in the hopelessness of success. Up until this election the Republican Party has not been strong enough to hold out hopes of success, and they have consequently held off their effort.

CHANCES OF REPUBLICAN SUCCESS

In Texas this year are better than ever before. Thousands of new Republican voters have moved to the state, and been added to the normal Republican vote. The Democratic machine has gone too far this year and named at the head of their ticket a man who has driven thousands of Democratic votes to revolt. They will be added to the Republican vote as a rebuke to the machine, in an effort to clean up the government of the state.

WOMEN VOTERS

Will contribute an important point toward Republican success. Endowed with the vote, many against their wish, they will exercise the privileges of their citizenship more conscientiously than have the men. They will cast their vote in thousands this Fall for the Republican ticket as a rebuke and for the purpose of unseating the Democratic Machine in Texas. They regard patriotism to their country as on a higher plane than patriotism to any political party, and will cast their votes of the Republican ticket in overwhelming numbers from this consideration.

THE REPUBLICAN PARTY IN TEXAS

Is composed of patriotic and progressive citizens. It is composed of men who have remained with the party through principle, and not for their political advantage. It is free from politicians for the reason that the Republican POLITICIANS coming to the state have switched to the more powerful party and are now HELPING TO RUN THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY IN THIS STATE.

THE REPUBLICAN TICKET

Named below is not composed of politicians with sorry records. It is composed of competent business men and women, who will give Texas a business administration, and who will introduce efficiency to the conduct of public affairs. The party is particularly proud of the leader of its state ticket, Jack Culbertson, an energetic and successful businessman of Wichita Falls—a man universally admitted both by Democrats and Republicans who know them both as a better and more able man than the Democratic Nominee for Governor.
