of Serbs, the Croats and the Slovenes as a different entity, for they are seeking the recognition of the conference as a single entity, and if this conference is going to recognize these various powers as new sovereignties within definite territories, the chief guarantors are entitled to be satisfied that the territorial settlements are of a character to be permanent, and that the guarantees given are of a character to insure the peace of the world.

"It is not therefore the interventions of those who would interfere, but the action of those who would help. I beg that our friends will take this view of it, because I see no escape from that view of it."

Will Compel Observance.
"How can a power like the United States, for example, for I can speak for no other—after signing this treaty, if it contains elements which they do not believe will be permanent, go three thousand miles across the sea and report to its people that it has made a settlement of the peace of the world? It cannot do so. And yet there underlies all of these transactions the expectation on the part, for example, of Rumania and of Czechoslovakia and of Serbia, that if any covenants of this settlement are not observed the United States will send her armies and navies to see that they are observed."

Unreasonable To Insist.
"In those circumstances it is unreasonable that the United States should insist upon being satisfied that the settlements are correct. I speak of his suggestion with the utmost respect—suggested we could not, so to say, invade the sovereignty of Rumania, an ancient sovereignty and make certain prescriptions with regard to the rights of minorities, but I beg him to observe that he is overlooking the fact that he is asking the action of the allied and associated powers for great additions of territory which come to Rumania by the common victory of arms, and that therefore we are entitled to say: 'If we agree to those additions of territory we have the right to insist upon certain guarantees of peace.'"

"I beg my friend, Dr. Kramer and my friend Mr. Trumbull, and my friend Mr. Bratiano to believe that if we should feel that it is best to leave the words which they have wished to omit in the treaty, it is not because we want to insist upon unreasonable conditions, but that we want the treaty to accord to us the right of judgment as to whether those are things which we can afford to guarantee."

"Therefore the impressions with which we should depart ought to be these, that we are all friends—of course that goes without saying—but that we must all be associates in a common effort, and there can be no frank and earnest effort in the common effort unless there is a common agreement as to what the rights and settlements are."

Groups Must Determine.
"Now if the agreement is a separate agreement among groups of us, that does not meet the object. If you should adopt the language suggested by the Czechoslovakian delegates and the Serbian delegation and the Jugo Slav delegation, that it should be left to negotiating between the principal allied and associated powers and their several delegates, that would mean that after this whole conference is adjourned, groups of them would determine what is to be the basis of the peace of the world. It seems to me that that would be a most dangerous idea to entertain, and therefore I beg that we may part with a sense, not of interference with each other, but of hearty and friendly co-operation upon the only possible basis of guarantee. Where the great force lies there must be the sanction of peace."

"I sometimes wish, in hearing an argument like this, that were I the representative of a small power that what I said might be robbed of mistaken significance. But I think you will agree with me that the United States has shown other great powers, to form a common partnership of right and to do service to our associates, and no kind of disservice."

ONLY SHORTHAND REPORTER AT EIGHTH PLENARY SESSION

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—The transcript of President Wilson's speech at the eighth plenary session of the peace conference was made by Fred A. Carlson, Chicago shorthand reporter. Carlson sent the transcript of his shorthand notes to the president when he read of the controversy between Wilson and Senator Spencer regarding sending of troops to Rumania and Serbia.

Carlson said he reported the proceedings in full and was the only shorthand reporter present. He is the official reporter for the senate sub-committee on campaign expenditures.

SENATOR SPENCER SAYS NO DIFFERENCE IN SUBSTANCE

ST. LOUIS, MO., Oct. 11.—Declaring that there is no difference "in substance" between the report of the eighth plenary session of the peace conference made public by the president this morning and the official stenographic report from which the shorthand reporter present, he is Missouri, in a statement declared that "nothing can conceal the pledge which the president attempted to make for this country. American senators would be sent overseas whenever the world is again troubled."

Senator Spencer declared that the president's report surrounded the clear statement by some general remarks which do not in the least conceal the fact of what the president said. Spencer's statement in full follows:

Spencer's Statement.
"The report of Mr. Carlson which the president now publishes as to what the president said on May 31, 1919, at the eighth plenary session of the peace conference fully bears out what was said by Mr. Herbert Adams Gibbons and was supported by Frank H. Simonds, and what was written by that great author, Dr. E. G. Dillon, in his book, 'The Inside Story of the Peace Conference,' and what was supported by Paul D. Cravath, the eminent lawyer of New York who was one of the advisers in Paris.

"It quoted what these gentlemen said and shall continue so to do."
"There is no difference in substance between the report now made public by the president and the official stenographic report from which I quoted. The only difference is that this last report surrounds the clear statement which the president made that an American army and navy would be sent overseas when the occasion arose, by some general remarks which do not in the least conceal the fact of what the president said."

SAYS PLEDGE ATTEMPTED.

"Nothing can conceal the pledge which the president attempted to make for this country by which American soldiers to be sent overseas whenever the world is again troubled."
"This pledge is attempted to make most clearly in article 10 of the League of Nations, and what the president said to the Rumanians and Serbs on May 31, 1919, is nothing more than a concrete illustration of the very principle which he announces in article 10."

"I have but one new prayer to offer," he said, "and that is that Senator Harding will continue to talk about the dangers to us in joining hands with the other forty-one nations in the league."
"The time has come to ask the republican nominee three more simple questions. I hope he will answer them. They are:

"Was the league a failure and a fraud when, the other day it was instrumental in preventing a threatened war between Sweden and Finland.
"Do Switzerland, France and a dozen or more American republics who have joined the league think it will keep them in constant war?
"Have the sister republics who have joined the league and the rights of their congresses to declare war or send their troops abroad?"

HARDING BACK HOME FOR BREATHING SPELL BEFORE ANOTHER TRIP

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
United Press Staff Correspondent.
MARIETTA, OHIO, Oct. 11.—Senator Warren G. Harding arrived back at the front porch today from his southwestern trip. After a 24-hour breathing spell he leaves again for an invasion of Tennessee, Kentucky, Missouri and Indiana.

"That this may be the last extensive speaking trip of the republican candidate was believed possible today. Harding is understood to be averse to making the eastern trip planned by some of his managers. A final decision is expected this week.
Harding and his managers were visibly heartened in their hopes of breaking into the solid south November 2 by the demonstrations that greeted the republican nominee every where during the swing into the southwest. Feeling against the league of nations in Oklahoma and Missouri, which have both inclined to be democratic in the past, was beyond even expectations of Harding's managers. Equal hostility to the covenant was displayed in the so-called rock-ribbed strongholds of Iowa and likewise in Kansas which has a record of swinging independently from one party column to the other."

Claims No Difference.
"There is no substantial difference between any of these. It is mere quibbling to attempt to pick slight verbal differences. The great outstanding fact is that the president led the Rumanians and Serbs to believe as clearly as language to do it, that an American army and navy was available to them in case there was any fresh trouble."
"For it will be noticed that in the last statement which the president now produces he is distinctly addressing the Rumanians and Serbs for, in his statement he says:
"I beg of our friends of Rumania and Serbia to remember."
"Why will not the president produce the official record?"
"If it is true that neither the president nor the state department nor anyone in authority as an exact copy of the official stenographic reports of the day, why not cable to Paris and secure the copy which certainly the United States is entitled to have."
Mr. Gibbons in his article in the May, 1920, number of the Century Magazine says:

"According to the stenographic notes of the eighth plenary session of the peace conference, which I have in my possession, President Wilson said to Premier Bratiano: 'And then gives his quotation.'
"The state of the president to Serbs and Rumanians, which now seems to be unanswerably established as Senator Reed clearly points out, quite immaterial as compared as obligation sought to be imposed upon the United States so unfair and obnoxious to the people of this country."

GOVERNOR COX SUBMITS CABLES SHOWING EX-PRESIDENT TAFT AIDED IN FRAMING COVENANT

SPRINGFIELD, ILLS., Oct. 10.—Cable correspondence between President Wilson and former President Taft in 1919, during drafting of the League of Nations covenant at Paris, was made public here tonight by Governor Cox of Ohio, together with a statement criticizing severely Senator Lodge of Massachusetts and other league opponents.

Mr. Taft desired to cable the president direct with suggestion: not looking to change "of the structure of the league, the plan of action or its real character, but simply removing objections in minds of conscientious Americans . . . which its language does not justify and whose fears could be removed without any considerable change of language."

Suggestions Invited.
The reply given by President Wilson said he would appreciate Mr. Taft's offer of suggestions and welcome them.
"The sooner they are sent the better," the president's reply added. "You need give yourself no uneasiness about my yielding anything with regard to the embodiment of the proposed covenant in the treaty."
On March 18, the correspondence showed, Mr. Taft cabled a reservation for the Monroe Doctrine, stating that it "alone would probably carry the treaty, but others would make it certain."
Mr. Taft's detailed suggestions were:

"If you bring back the treaty with the league of nations in it, make more specific reservations of the Monroe doctrine, fix a term for duration of the league and the limit of armament, require especially unanimity of action in executive council and body of delegates and aid to article XV a provision that when the executive council of the body of delegates finds the difference to grow out of an exclusively domestic policy, it shall recommend no settlement, the ground will be completely cut from under the opponents of the league in the senate."

FOLLOWS TAFT'S SUGGESTION.

The White House memorandum containing some of the cables exchanged by President Wilson and Mr. Taft stated that in "every instance" the president followed Mr. Taft's suggestions and Governor Cox's statement declared that "several suggestions of Mr. Taft were followed literally."
The correspondence indicated that Mr. Taft's suggestions dealt principally with protecting the Monroe Doctrine and dealing with American domestic questions, withdrawal from the league, unanimous league decisions and disarmament. The correspondence made public contained two cablesgrams from the president and Mr. Taft and several from Mr. Taft to the executive, including one in which A. Lawrence Lowell, former president of Harvard University, joined.

The White House memorandum quoted at length league amendments to show adoption of Mr. Taft's suggestions.
The final cablegram from Mr. Taft sent to Secretary Tumulty and forwarded to the president, as given in published correspondence, was dated June 28, 1919, just before the treaty returned to present the treaty to the senate. It read:

Copy of Cablegram.
"I would like to send a return message and that is that the president argue for the league and its necessity, the impossibility to secure peace without it, the dreadful unrest in Europe; the pressure of our allies to ratify and secure peace at once; the need of the league with the United States to stabilize and resist bolshevism; the necessity for renewal of negotiation, if an important amendment like striking out article 10 is made; the absurdity of a congressional declaration of peace on one side, and the giving up of all objects of the war in such a peace if Germany were to make a similar declaration. I hope sincerely he will not attack the republican senators. His appeal will be much more influential if he pleads his cause and does not attack the opposition."
On March 16, 1919, the correspondence showed, Secretary Tumulty sent the president a message stating that

United States citizens."
Citing suggestions by Elihu Root, Charles E. Hughes and others, Governor Cox reiterated that its "opposition was a partisan conspiracy."
"The account, but yesterday," said Governor Cox, "that all the leaders of American thought were for the league. The past 18 months of plot and conspiracy, holding up the civilization of the world and tearing at the heart-strings of humanity for political purposes are as a nightmare."
Governor Cox referred to the white house dinner in February, 1919, at which President Wilson, he said, conferred upon the league covenant with the senate foreign relations and house foreign affairs committees, and added:
"But before this meeting Henry Cabot Lodge, the arch conspirator of the ages, had uttered his defiance and issued the mandate that peace should not be if it came as the result of the effort in which the president had a direct hand. A partisan victory born in hatred and discontent was his goal, let the cost to civilization be what it might. In sequence a few days after his infamous round robin, signed by 37 republican senators, who declared the league was not acceptable in the form presented, but who under partisan leadership, made no suggestions of any kind for its improvement as a means of preserving the peace of the world. Then, after the president returned in July, 1919, with the treaty and the final draft of the covenant he again conferred with all the members of the senate committee on foreign relations. The conference was public in the sense that official stenographers were present and the questions and answers were given to the press as readily as transcripts could be made. At this meeting there developed the visible evidence that the senatorial ring of the reactionary forces had plotted their partisan conspiracy that they had no desire to understand the covenant, and that they purposed to belittle and confuse the public. Their attitude was one of evident and implacable hostility."
"Previous to this development the president had appeared in person before the senate and had discussed the treaty in submitting it—something no other president has done in more than one hundred years."

DAUGHTER OF DIRECTOR OF CENSUS SUICIDES

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11.—Miss Esther Rogers, daughter of Samuel L. Rogers, director of the United States census bureau at Washington, died in the Garrettsville hospital here early today under circumstances that indicated she had ended her life with poison, according to the police.
Miss Rogers, who was 25 years old, and employed as a stenographer, was found in her boarding house, 1146 Green street, last night, suffering from the effects of poison. She was rushed to the hospital and died without regaining consciousness.
Mr. Rogers said his daughter had not been in the best of health and had been subjected to spells of extreme nervousness. He knew of no reason, he said, for her to end her life.

Questions Mentioned.
The latter, Mr. Taft said, would cover tariff, Japanese immigration and similar domestic questions.
Submitting drafts of proposed amendments and detailed arguments in their behalf, one of Mr. Taft's messages stated:
"The republican senators are trying to stir up anxiety among republicans lest this be a limitation upon our tariff. It would help such to meet and remove objections and cut the ground under senatorial obstruction."
Regarding the Monroe doctrine's protection, Mr. Taft was quoted as follows:
"My impression is that if the one article already sent, on the Monroe doctrine, be inserted in the treaty, sufficient republicans who signed the round robin would probably retreat from their position and vote for ratification so that it would carry. If the other suggestions were adopted, I feel confident that all but a few who oppose the league at all would be driven to accept them and to stand for the league."

As Suggested by Taft.
The white house memorandum, made public by Governor Cox, said that the league's reservation of domestic questions was made "as suggested by Mr. Taft and aimed in his own words." All of the other suggestions from Mr. Taft, it stated, were followed, as shown by quotations from the league covenant.
In making public the correspondence, Governor Cox's statement said that time had arrived, "to bring before the American jury the recorded evidence . . . that the league is the composite thought of the leading statesmen of the world" and that it incorporated all the suggestions that were honestly offered by the leading

"The account, but yesterday," said Governor Cox, "that all the leaders of American thought were for the league. The past 18 months of plot and conspiracy, holding up the civilization of the world and tearing at the heart-strings of humanity for political purposes are as a nightmare."
Governor Cox referred to the white house dinner in February, 1919, at which President Wilson, he said, conferred upon the league covenant with the senate foreign relations and house foreign affairs committees, and added:
"But before this meeting Henry Cabot Lodge, the arch conspirator of the ages, had uttered his defiance and issued the mandate that peace should not be if it came as the result of the effort in which the president had a direct hand. A partisan victory born in hatred and discontent was his goal, let the cost to civilization be what it might. In sequence a few days after his infamous round robin, signed by 37 republican senators, who declared the league was not acceptable in the form presented, but who under partisan leadership, made no suggestions of any kind for its improvement as a means of preserving the peace of the world. Then, after the president returned in July, 1919, with the treaty and the final draft of the covenant he again conferred with all the members of the senate committee on foreign relations. The conference was public in the sense that official stenographers were present and the questions and answers were given to the press as readily as transcripts could be made. HOW DOCTORS TREAT COLDS AND THE FLU

First Step in Treatment is a Brisk Purgative With Calomel, the Purified and Refined Calomel Tablets That Are Nauseless, Safe and Sure.

Doctors have found by experience that no medicine for colds and influenza can be depended upon for full effectiveness until the liver is made thoroughly active. That is why the first step in the treatment is the new, nausealess calomel, Calomel Tablets, which are free from the sickening and weakening effects of the old style calomel. Doctors also point out the fact that an active liver may go a long way towards preventing influenza and is one of the most important factors in enabling the patient to successfully withstand an attack and ward off pneumonia.

THE NEED FOR SENATORIAL REDISTRICTING.

The imperative need for senatorial redistricting to give a just distribution of senatorial districts to the newer parts of the state is demonstrated by the census figures, now available for the first time.

Table with 2 columns: District No. and Population. Lists districts 1 through 31 with their respective populations.

Since the Texas senate is limited by the constitution to thirty-one members, the proper basis of representation for an equal division is roughly 150,000 population.

FOR AND AGAINST.

"He is against the League. I am for the League." That is Governor Cox's specific and correct statement at Nashville of the major issue of the national campaign.

HAMBONE'S MEDITATIONS

"SOME MEN-FOLKS KETCH 'HAIL COLUMBUS' ATTEN DEY STAYS OUT LATE AT NIGHT BUT BOSS ALLUZ UP EN TELL MISSUS HE GWINE EN DEN HE KETCH IT ALL FO-HAN!"

Just Folks

By EDGAR A. GUEST

On Dining With Quarrelsome Couples. I freely confess there are good friends of mine.

"He is against the League. I am for the League." The issue is squarely joined now.

"How I wish I had not done it!" was Eddie Cicotte's lamentation when cornered by the Chicago grand jury

"Who wants to be a wasp?" Some friends were showing us a curious wasp's nest the other evening.

It was built against the stone foundation of the house behind a hedge of sunflowers

"Queer," said the authorman, "how much respect we seem to have for that gentleman."

And when you come to think of it, I rather think wasp's right.

"I thought of Mr. Wasp again and of the respect he inspires when I heard two men talking about an insurance agent."

"I lost a train today all through the persistence of a con-founded insurance agent."

"I am never bothered with insurance agents and you needn't be if you'd pay the price."

When they come to me I tell them once and for all that I have considered the matter carefully and taken what insurance I need

In other words there are times when this man is a wasp all right.

There are people who really handicap themselves all through life because they cannot be disagreeable

It is necessary to keep the business going. Men and women on wages, like everybody else, want wages when the cost of living rises

Moreover, employers in general have a juster and more generous attitude toward employes than they had even four or five years ago.

Most employes really desire their employes to take out a larger share of the profits of the business than they used to.

The motive may be partly selfish, for a satisfied employe is a great asset, but we give the spirit of justice and brotherhood some credit, too.

This period, when the cost of living is to be less and wages are to be about the same, will be the best of times for saving part of one's income.

The tendency is to spend all one earns, expanding one's fancied needs as the margin between earnings and spending tends to increase.

It is a good time now to fight against this inclination and not only to build up a good bank account when conditions are exceptionally favorable but to form the saving habit, which stands one in good stead whatever conditions may be.

Wages and Savings. (From the Ohio State Journal.)

In the end, probably, wages will have to come down, use commodities are going now.

But in most cases they will be the last thing affected by the tendency toward lower costs now so evident.

Every experienced employer of labor knows how hard it is to cut wages, hard because of the disappointment, misunderstanding and ill feeling such a course engenders even when it is necessary to keep the business going.

Men and women on wages, like everybody else, want wages when the cost of living rises and the same wages at least when it goes down.

Moreover, employers in general have a juster and more generous attitude toward employes than they had even four or five years ago.

Most employes really desire their employes to take out a larger share of the profits of the business than they used to.

The motive may be partly selfish, for a satisfied employe is a great asset, but we give the spirit of justice and brotherhood some credit, too.

This period, when the cost of living is to be less and wages are to be about the same, will be the best of times for saving part of one's income.

The tendency is to spend all one earns, expanding one's fancied needs as the margin between earnings and spending tends to increase.

WHY?

Do Men Lift Their Hats? (Copyright, 1920, by Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.)

Like many other customs—among them the practice of shaking hands and drinking toasts—the lifting of the hat as a form of salutation goes back to the days when knighthood was in flower and men seldom appeared in public except in full armor. The phrase "Lift up your hat" was unknown then, but its principle was well understood.

Almost every knight had enemies who lurked in the shadows, waiting for an opportunity to catch him off his guard and armor was the only recognized form of life insurance. When in the presence of his friends, however, the knight would remove his helmet and bare his head, thus signifying his belief that he was safe.

The helmet, would be placed upon the table or held under the arm, ready to be instantly clapped into place at the first hint of danger.

The wearing of armor passed away with the invention of gunpowder, but the practice of raising the hat—remained. At first, it was raised as a mark of respect to either sex, just as men now remove their hats in the presence of royalty or when the flag (the symbol of a dignity and love of country) is passing by.

Gradually, however, its use was reserved as a salutation from men to their friends of the same rank and social standing to the days of chivalry and the age of romance.

Tomorrow—WHY is the double-headed eagle the emblem of Germany?

prickly hedges, or whacked up logs with rusty wedges. But now he eats things prepared by piecing together his daily victuals: a Brussels sprout he slowly whittles, and feeds to Mott the sickly shambler which Mott has just and starts his ravings. Is his life sweet, or sad and tiring? And I can eat what I'm desiring. Vain envy seems, when swift years trim it; of all bad dreams it is the limit.

Who Wants to Be a Wasp? Some friends were showing us a curious wasp's nest the other evening.

It was built against the stone foundation of the house behind a hedge of sunflowers and followed the color and formation of the stones, so closely (you can imagine what word culled from the war and since used to extinction, promptly came to mind to describe this conformer's nest) that we could hardly pick it out.

As we bent closer to see the nest better, one of the inhabitants one business hour issued from the house. LIFE'S DARKEST MOMENT

During this government of the stars, all candidates will be sanguine and confident.

All the unseemly forces are believed to contribute to physical health and to the consciousness of intellectual force.

Thus success is assured in all endeavors that are carried forward with enthusiasm.

At this time men should be quick to accept the aid of women in all public affairs, for Venus supports Jupiter nobly and wisely.

Again newspapers and magazines benefit greatly from conditions making increased demands for publicity.

Women should benefit wonderfully at this time, and one who is young will enjoy supreme honors.

Courts of law and great audience chambers are supposed to be under a planetary rule making for wisdom.

Certain-teed Roofing is Spark-Proof

Certain-teed will protect your property against fires due to sparks dropping on the roof from passing engines. It also helps to prevent fires spreading from building to building by means of sparks and burning embers.

Where fires have started in other parts of the building, Certain-teed Roofs tend to smother them and thereby prevent serious damage to other property.

This type of protection is appreciated by all property owners and particularly by those who are outside of the zone of adequate fire-fighting apparatus.

But Certain-teed Roofing is more than an aid in the prevention of fire. It also protects from rain or snow and is guaranteed for five, ten or fifteen years, according to weight.

It costs less to buy, less to lay and less to maintain than any other type of good roofing.

See a Certain-teed dealer about roofing. If he can't fill your entire order from stock, he can get what you want quickly from a nearby Certain-teed distributing center.

five they had found Blakely and were holding the kidnapers.

On the verge of collapse, June 10, Mrs. Coughlin made a personal appeal to all women and children of the country.

Four days later, "The Crank," alias Pasquale, was heard from. In a letter postmarked Atlantic City, he told Coughlin Blakely was in his possession and would be returned to him for the sum of $5,000.

Coughlin asked the police to drop their work in the case, as he preferred to deal with the alleged kidnapers alone by means of his own agents.

Under the personal direction of Major Lynn G. Adams, superintendent of state police, Chief Elmer of the Norristown authorities and Captain Souder of the Philadelphia detective bureau, raps were laid for "The Crank."

On August 27, four months after the kidnaping, as a result of a cleverly laid plan, August Pasquel, alias August Pasquale, alias "The Crank," was captured in Egg Harbor, N. J., by postal inspectors and state police.

Apparently baffled in their attempt to bring from Pasquale the truth regarding the kidnaping, "The Crank" was removed to the Norfolk Hotel.

COURT REFUSES TO REVIEW A NUMBER OF CASES PRESENTED

REFUSE TO REHEAR PROHIBITION CASE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Supreme court of the United States today denied a petition for rehearing of the prohibition case.

These suits were decided last June upholding the prohibition act and Volstead act.

The court rendered no decision, merely handing down an order, saying it would not rehear the cases.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—The supreme court refused today to review the case brought by Eugene W. Mentz, a manufacturer of New Orleans and New York, to obtain allowance in his income taxes for losses sustained as a result of transactions in the cotton market.

Mentz contended that these losses were "losses sustained in trade" as defined in the tax law.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Supreme court today refused to review the case of Thomas Welch, convicted of bringing into this country a letter from the international grain conference.

Welch was sentenced to one year in the Atlanta prison.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Supreme court today refused to review the case of John W. Duke, president of the Farmers' Union of America.

FARMERS ORGANIZE TO SECURE LAWS TO AID IN HOLDING CROP

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., Oct. 11.—That farmers are forming organizations throughout the country to force legislation to enable them to combine to hold their crops until the price offered had reached the figure they wanted, was charged here today by P. E. Goodrich, president of the Grain Dealers Association, speaking before the international grain conference.

The next movement in this country will be an agrarian movement, said Goodrich. He declared farmers were being misled by ambitious politicians into forming organizations aimed at securing legislation which would surprise advantages obtained by labor.

The farmers, nearer 100 per cent American than any other class, have been all but convinced that they are abused by the entire country, that the fruits of their labor are taken without anything like a fair return, said Goodrich.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Scores of Oklahomans today mourned the death of Dr. John W. Duke, president of the state board of health and head of the Duke sanitarium here, who died at his home here yesterday after a long illness from which he was recovering.

Dr. Duke was born at Scoville, Miss., June 5, 1868, and was known throughout the country as a specialist in nervous diseases.

The deceased was a delegate to the democratic national convention at San Francisco.

Operators who visited the Bisonet-Cesereux strike on the Parkey farm near Mankins Sunday afternoon expressed the belief that the strike would be larger than any in the K. M. A. district.

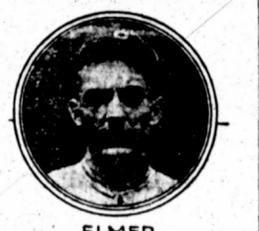

Another wildcat in the K. M. A. district was being watched with close interest today. It is the "Big Dome" test on Block 29 on what is known as a Hamilton farm north of the river.

Today there are 39 men on the payroll of the city street department, as compared to more than 100 a month ago.

The shortage of labor is due to a general exodus of men to the cotton fields. It will probably be only temporary and the department will have full crews again as soon as the cotton picking season is over.

Hubert Harrison, secretary of the chamber of commerce, went to Burkburnett this afternoon to assist the business men of that city in launching a membership campaign for the new Burkburnett chamber of commerce.

POKER GAME HELD UP IN RESIDENCE SECTION AT MIDNIGHT SUNDAY

A sawed-off shotgun and a 45-caliber revolver in the hands of two masked bandits put an end to a poker game that was progressing rapidly in the home of a local business man on Brook street Sunday night.

The holdup took place about midnight and reports which first reached the police were to the effect that over $10,000 worth of jewelry had been taken by the robbers.

The car was later identified as one which had been stolen from a local oil company on October 4. The robbers had difficulty in starting it and were forced to take to their heels when a company of officers, headed by three Texas rangers, were in view.

An effort is being made to keep the names of the seven men involved from the public.

PREDICT A FURTHER DECLINE IN PRICES

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—Further price cutting was predicted here today by delegates to the annual convention of purchasing agents.

According to A. M. Reinhardt, vice-chairman of the convention, the price decline has not yet struck bottom.

Reinhardt predicted that in some commodities prices would fall as much as 50 per cent.

Purchasing agents, he said, agree that the high peak in prices has been reached.

of secrecy about the substance of the communications exchanged.

"When the subject of publishing the correspondence between the president and myself was broached to me by an emissary of the White House, I promptly said 'No'."

Declaring he had favored acceptance of a league without reservations and expressing disappointment that the United States has not become a party to it, Mr. Taft held the president responsible for the defeat of the plan.

"The president wrecked his own league," he said. "He wrecked it with article ten, of which he is the author. Personally, I would stand for article ten, because I am exceedingly anxious for a league to be established."

Article Ten, impossible. "Now," Mr. Cox has swallowed article ten and declares that as chief executive he will not approve the league without it.

CLEVELAND INDIANS CONFIDENT OF CONTINUING THE MAD ONRUSH STARTED WITH SATURDAY GAME

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 11.—With the count in games three and two in their favor, the Cleveland Indians today were prepared to face the Brooklyn Dodgers in the sixth contest of the series, confident of continuing their mad onrush of the past two days and that tonight the world's championship pennant would be within one game of their grasp.

"Big Four" Entitled to Prominent Place in the Hall of Fame

By HAROLD D. JACOBS United Press Staff Correspondent. CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 11.—Plans for the periodic gold standard of Cleveland, to be erected by grateful Cleveland citizens, in the square, were changed today to provide for a platinum, diamond-studded group of Cleveland's "Big Four" players.

SERIES OF JOLTS OCCASIONED BY INDIAN ACCOMPLISHMENT OF ALL KINDS OF IMPOSSIBILITIES

By HENRY L. FARRELL United Press Staff Correspondent. CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 11.—Cleveland and its environs was still trying to recover from a shock today. Not a shock because the Indians, by beating the Brooklyn Dodgers 8 to 1, but a shock and series of jolts occasioned by the accomplishment of all kinds of impossibilities.

Records and more records went into the discard. There was a series of "first hand happenings" that shocked the world through almost into a trance. The list of those who distinguished themselves by gallantry in the face of the enemy and unparalleled feats on the field included:

Believe Victory Certain. The attitude of the club's backers was indicated in the shortness of the line at the bleacher gates last night and early this morning. Of 20 on guard at 6:00 o'clock last night, only two were there at 6:30 this morning. The other 18 were "speculators" holding their places in line for sale.

Discuss Sunday Thrills. Yesterday's game Sunday was the main topic under discussion today, for few persons had ever seen a contest which produced so many thrilling situations and what pleased the Cleveland fans most, situations which were favorable throughout the game for the home team.

SIR BARTON RACES MAN O' WAR AT THE WINDSOR RACE TRACK

WINDSOR, ONT., Oct. 11.—Eyes of the horse-racing world turned here today, on the eve of what is expected to be the greatest horse-race event in history.

Two of the world's fastest race horses will thunder over the track here with the thoroughbred championship of North America the goal. Kenilworth track, one of Canada's newest and best equipped courses, has been especially enlarged to handle the crowds expected.

Great "Speed" Hitter. Again in the third with the count two and one on Smith, Grimes tried to slip another by, but the catcher, who would outguess the batter this time, Smith sent it left-center for a triple. Apparently Grimes had not been fully informed of Smith's weakness, for the American League pitcher says he is the greatest speed hitter in the game, but comparatively weak on slow balls.

The SPORTLIGHT by Grantland Rice

ALUMNUS FOOTBALL. (Just a trifle revised from its original form.) Bill Jones had been the shining star upon his college team. His tackling was ferocious and his bucking was a dream. When Husky William tucked the ball beneath his brawny arm they had a special man to ring the ambulance alarm.

Such is Alumnus football on the white chalked fields of life. You find the bread line hard to buck while sorrow crowns the strife. But in the scrap for name and fame among the world-wide clan, "There goes the winner" fades away before "There goes a man."

SPECIAL GRAND JURY CHARGE IS DELIVERED

strict attention Judge Martin entered into the specific charges.

Reminded of Homicides.
"During the past few months our people have been inexpressibly shocked over the frequency of homicides within the county. Two young men going out to assist certain officers said to have been sent out by the county attorney to arrest some gamblers were shot down in a gambling resort in the K-M-A. oil field. About the same time, or a few days after, an inoffensive watchman going his rounds in an office building, was set upon and killed and was found in a dying condition the next morning. Shortly after this another killing occurred in the Tahoma oil field, south of Burkburnett. Different reasons are assigned in each instance for the taking of these human lives. The facts in each case will be laid before you to determine what, if any, crimes you may lay at the door of the people who are the culprits here arrested and who now await your findings in prison.

Something Behind Killing.
"There is something behind this killing in the K-M-A. oil field where these men met death in a gambling hall to which I wish to call your special attention. This killing was not the result of common enmity or ordinary passion. It grew out of a condition. When this gambling resort was raided, I am informed that the officers brought between 20 and 40 men found there violating the law and perhaps a dozen or more pistols were found either on the men or on the floor of the hall where the homicide occurred. Thoughtful men, as I know you to be, will not be content to prosecute the ones who did the actual shooting for the homicide and let the matter rest there, but I am sure you will join me in the belief that it is your duty and mine, and the duty of the executive officers of this county, to go back to the cause, which is gambling, and strike at the tap root of this foul tree, and, if possible, rid our county from its baneful influence.

Gambling Is a Crime.
"This gambling is a crime which caused this killing and has caused many others. Within comparatively recent years Tarrant county lost a talented county attorney, killed by a gambler whose business was being interfered with, and the criminal reports are full in details of the crimes of the gambling resorts. It is no new question. Misery, suicide, murder, robbery and crime of every character flow from the gaming tables and water flows from a head spring and will continue to flow as long as the spring is there. I will say to you that our law is ample for the suppression of gambling. Men who rent property for that purpose, men who run the games, men who play the games are each and all guilty of crime and should be held by you where the facts will warrant.

Practiced In The City.
"But don't misunderstand me to say that you should not investigate and investigate and closed up the gambling halls of the oil fields and indicted a few dozen oil well workers out there. I am convinced that the right here in the city of Wichita Falls the game for cards and dice has led to the most common violations of the gaming laws and that ever since the oil boom started here, this city has been a veritable gambler's paradise; in fact it is so common that it is common talk on the streets and even some of our school children last year were arrested for shooting dice near the High school building. The little fellows did not have sense enough to hide themselves in the hotels and the office buildings like older persons do.

Says "Higher-Up" Guilty.
"I am convinced that if you do your whole duty in this matter, you will not only catch a lot of oil well workers and rough-necks in the field, but also a number of the so-called hon-ton, newly rich, high-toned and generally respected gentlemen, business and professional men. When a man admits sports and gamblers into the bosom of his family and allows playing in his house becomes a violation of the law, for just as soon as it becomes a resort for that purpose, the presence of wife and children will not protect either the house owner or the gambling guest. So don't confine your investigations to the oil fields, treat them all alike.

Opposed To Distinctions.
"I have never had any patience with that official diligence that always caught the negro crap game down in the flats and never found the friendly game of draw or stud poker up on the hill at some rich man's residence whose wife happens to be visiting somewhere. And it looks hard to me that Sambo is arrested and haled before the courts every time he is caught shooting craps and yet hundreds of men hot thousands of dollars on the baseball games and the elections and do not even receive an official reprimand for their violation of the law. Let's be honest and sincere about these things.

Wants Officers Investigated.
"This court has heard and doubtless you have heard rumors and suspicions to the effect that the sheriff and his deputies and certain constables and their deputies have known of violations of the gaming laws and failed to arrest and prosecute, and reports go even so far as to cast suspicion on some of these officers of participation in these crimes by receiving bribes or "rake-offs" out of the fruits of the crime protected by them. If any of these are guilty they should be prosecuted and severely punished, for there is no more deplorable crime than to betray the people who elected you to office or the power that appointed you as the case may be. Some of these officers including the sheriff, will go out of office within the next sixty days and these men are entitled to an investigation themselves. If guilty they should not be permitted to hide their perfidy under the shades of private life, while on the other hand, if these rumors are unfounded and if these men have done their duty they should be given a clean bill of health so that they can retire with the respect of their fellow citizens to other walks of life. So I charge you, in justice to these men, as well as to society to make a careful investigation of the officers charged with the execution of the laws of our county.

Discusses Social Evil.
"I come now to speak of one of the most difficult questions, we who are charged with the administration of the law have to deal with, and that is the social evil. It is here, as it is almost everywhere, only it is said to be worse in Wichita Falls and in the oil towns of the county than almost anywhere else. It is our duty to put on the brakes, as far as we can and make this crime as unpopular as we can. Indict all guilty parties in each instance. Get the man who owns and rents the premises of the madam who runs it and join him and the woman together in the prosecution. And when you indict the palmed woman who lives in these dens of infamy, don't neglect to get the dapper gentlemen who acts as a sort of a drummer for this sort of business. They tell us we cannot break it up; possibly this is true, but we can surely make this shameful thing less popular and less enticing to both sexes and reduce to some extent at least the fearful inroads this is making upon the moral and physical welfare of our people.

Theft Is Common.
"Theft is common in our county. Burglary thrives as one of our popular sports. A burglar entered and stole from our 'assessor's' office one night last week; highway robbery has become so common that citizens are afraid to go about town after dark and in your duty to investigate and indict the guilty parties where possible. I am aware, gentlemen, that petit juries in this county by the misapplication of the suspended sentence law have just about let the news go forth to the world that we are too chicken hearted in Wichita to send a man to the penitentiary for such a small thing as stealing an automobile. They have just about made it plain that it is just about as safe to steal a living as to work for it so far as the law is concerned.

Should Protect Innocent.
"Permit me in conclusion, to remind you, that it is as much your duty to protect the innocent as to prosecute the guilty. No man should be prosecuted unless there is evidence against him, so strong, that the grand jurors have an abiding belief in his guilt. Where it is practicable or convenient it can be done without the risk of running the defendant out of the country before his arrest, a grand jury should investigate both sides of a given case. Convince yourself first that a man is guilty and second that there is enough evidence to probably result in his conviction. It serves no good purpose to indict every a guilty man unless there is a chance of his conviction. But you do not have to apply the doctrine of reasonable doubt to your investigations.

Wants Officers Investigated.
"Gentlemen, I feel that the service you are to render here, is too far-reaching in its effects, too important in its immediate bearing upon the peace of society, to say nothing of what we owe to those who come after us. I feel that under the burden of this responsibility there should be no haste or hurry, but you should take all the time you feel that is necessary to do this work and do it well. This term of the court will last for more than two months yet. So take your own time to present things truly as they come to your knowledge. "So help you God and may God's blessing be upon you and upon us all, as we work together for a better, cleaner and more law-abiding citizenship."

Other Instructions.
Judge Martin also instructed the jury as to the hours of the court and advised them that if at any time they wished to adjourn for a period longer than three days that they should come to him. He also related that if at any time they wished to be advised on any point of law that they should feel free to come before the court for such advice.

Jury Begins Its Work.
Those appointed to serve on the grand jury are: John W. Bradley, Will George, N. H. Martin, Marvin Smith, J. W. Donohoe, J. W. Murphy, J. Tom Haynes, T. J. Taylor, R. E. Shepherd, J. M. Baber, J. C. Hines and W. H. Arnsdell. The court appointed R. E. Shepherd as foreman of the jury.

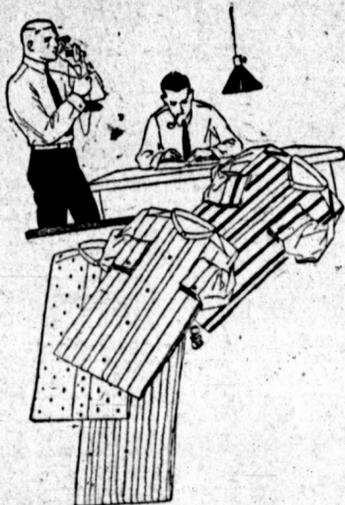

L. R. Webb was sworn in as door bailiff and having received the court's instructions immediately repaired to the grand jury room to begin their investigation according to the court's charge.

HE COULDN'T WORK FOR EIGHT MONTHS
Spent Hundreds of Dollars Seeking Health-Tonic Restores Him.

"I consider my first bottle of Tonic has been worth all of one hundred dollars to me," said Dan McLean, well-known carpenter of 225 Esplanade St., Sydney, Nova Scotia. "The flu' left me in such bad shape I was unable to hit a lick of work for eight months." continued Mr. McLean, "and I could find nothing that helped me until I got Tonic. I could not walk any distance without blowing like a steam engine and stopping to rest. I had perfectly awful headaches and my nerves were so shattered I could never get a good night's sleep. I lost $120 in time from work and $100 on treatments and medicines that did me no good, so you can see what that spell of 'flu' cost me." "I kept reading in the papers about Tonic, so I bought a bottle. It may sound exaggerated but after taking the fourth dose I could tell it was going to do the work. I have just finished my first bottle and already feel well enough to go back to work. I want to eat all the time and my digestion is perfect. The headaches and nervousness are entirely gone and this Tonic is just making a new man out of me. I don't hesitate to say it is the best medicine in the world." Tonic is sold in Wichita Falls by Miller Drug Store, in Electric by Tarrion Drug Co.

NOTED CHEMIST FINDS CURE FOR POISON IVY

Physicians have not kept records of the number of cases of ivy poisoning which occurred during the year, but it is safe to say that several hundred thousand people are poisoned every summer. The discomfort is always keen, and while all are not affected with equal severity, many persons suffer intensely. Frequently the patient is confined to bed. The nervous system is affected. The eyesight may be temporarily impaired and the watery eruptions and disfiguring swellings are more difficult to remove.

So persistent and prevalent is the noxious work of this really beautiful plant that physicians have been keen to discover a remedy. Saline solutions sponged over the eruptions have been used, but give slight and only temporary relief. Nitro-glycerine has occasionally been used internally. Its powerful stimulating effect on the heart action makes it impossible for this drug to be administered by any except physicians, and then only when it is determined that the individual patient can safely take it. Salves and lotions do not hit the seat of the trouble. In a word, all of those who commune with nature in poison ivy time still need, and desperately need, a safe, easily provided and effective way of promptly reducing and swelling, drying up the pustules, and relieving the torturing nerve irritation, and preventing rapid spread of the infection from one part of the body to another.

Fred A. Howard, the noted chemist of Boston, was influenced to take up this problem by seeing the effect of poison on children. He says, "Although the poor little things go out to pick flowers and autumn leaves, just as children ought to do, they come back home rubbing a little itching spot on their wrists or face. Next day their eyes may be swollen shut, and after children ought to do, they come back home rubbing a little itching spot on their wrists or face. Next day their eyes may be swollen shut, and after that they are obliged to stay indoors, suffering, instead of being out with the birds and butterflies where they belong. It seemed to me high time somebody did something about it."

So with characteristic scientific thoroughness, Mr. Howard proceeded to find out exactly what poison ivy did to the human system. He analyzed the watery fluids. He determined the chemical results of the infection. And having accomplished this, he set his trained chemical mind to work to discover direct and simple chemical methods of neutralizing the poison.

"It wasn't a hard job," he said, "after I had gotten that far, and pretty soon I had a number of chemical reactions noted, any one of which would do what I wanted to do; but what I was after was a simple remedy, an effective chemical agent that even the small family could easily procure. And by and by I found it. When I discovered it I laughed aloud. It was just plain hypo-sulphide of soda, a common chemical that any child can find and buy for almost nothing in even the smallest drug store.

"Now," Mr. Howard said, "a great many families living near me keep hypo-sulphide dissolved in water in bottles and teacups, and when the poison ivy marks begin to show on the children or on the grown-ups, out comes the solution. They wet a cloth with it and lay it on the affected part and pretty soon the pustules shrink, the itching ceases, and the trouble is gone."

Mr. Howard advises that the powder, which is inexpensive, be put into water until the water ceases to absorb it and some of the crystals remain undissolved. In severe cases of poisoning well saturated clothes should be laid on the eruptions and remain there, being occasionally moistened, until the swelling and eruptions are reduced.

In cases which have not progressed so far, the spots should be frequently moistened with the solution. The chemical will not discolor the skin and is not injurious to the eyes.

Hypo-sulphide of soda, a common chemical used by all photographers and procurable in all drug stores, must not be confused with cooking soda, which would be ineffective, or with washing soda, which would be intensely irritating. Any druggist will supply the right thing if the customer will clearly say he wants hypo-sulphide of soda, or "hypo," as the photographers call it.

Mr. Howard's researches have resulted in producing many valuable contributions to industry. He is recognized as one of the greatest specialists

In the world on the effect of chemicals on leather and various textiles. He has been associated with the shoe manufacturing industry for almost half a century, and in the last twenty-five years has produced a number of processes for restyling and improving leather to be used by shoe, belt and glove manufacturers. His latest discovery, korite, will, it is said, double the wearing power of leather.—Fresno (Cal.) Morning Republican.

FIRE PREVENTION DAY

October 9th has been proclaimed Fire Prevention Day by the President, Governor and Mayor.

Our weekly loss in the United States from fire is about $7,000,000.00 in resources and 300 human lives, yet most fires are preventable. Concerted individual effort alone can end this waste of life and property.

Let's make every day a Fire Prevention Day.
