

KNOX RESOLUTION NOT INVASION OF EXECUTIVE POWER

IN PRESENT FORM IS SHORN OF ELEMENT OF REBUKE TO PRESIDENT.

ORIGINALLY INTENDED AS A "SLAP" AT MR. WILSON

Resolution Adopted Understood to be Acceptable to President Harding.

By MARK SULLIVAN, National Political Correspondent of the New York Evening Post and the Wichita Daily Times. (Copyright 1921 by the New York Evening Post.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 6.—It is undeniable that in the minds of some members of the foreign relations committee of the senate and in the minds of some other senators as well there is a disposition to assert a right on their part to participate in those negotiations with other countries which are just ahead of us.

The passage of the Knox resolution by the senate is frequently described as an act coming within this intention. This does not happen to be true. The passage of the Knox resolution in the form in which it passed was wholly agreeable to President Harding and Secretary Hughes and was not regarded by them as any invasion whatever of the constitutional prerogative of the executive.

It is true that as originally written the Knox resolution for a separate peace with Germany was in a form which invaded the constitutional prerogative of the executive and was felt by President Harding to be an embarrassment of him in his conduct of our difficult foreign relations when Senator Knox originally wrote his resolution.

tion, two years ago. It was frankly designed as a rebuke to the then President Wilson. It was designed as a means of accomplishing by act of congress a thing which President Wilson refused to do as an act of the executive.

Still late on January 1 of this year Senator Knox visited President Harding at Marion and announced his continued intention of introducing his original resolution and pressing it to passage. That was an act in the nature of taking the initiative in foreign affairs. This disposition on the part of the senate to take in foreign affairs a degree of initiative which by law and custom belongs to the executive continued up to the time President Harding assumed his office on March 4.

At one time one of the most powerful republican senators declared publicly that it did not matter much who should be secretary of state inasmuch as the senate would be the pioneer in our foreign affairs. But since taking office Secretary Harding, on the gentlest and yet firmest way, has turned the senate away from any truce of disposition on its part. President Harding brought it about that the Knox resolution should be shorn of those elements which constituted an invasion of the executive prerogative.

To President Harding's urging Knox and the other senators have yielded with outward grace. If the senators still have a feeling that their superior knowledge of our foreign affairs acquired through long study of the complications of the League of Nations ought to give them a larger hand in foreign affairs, they do not say so openly nor act on that conviction.

The Knox resolution in abbreviated form in which it passed was not only completely satisfactory to President Harding, but is an essential part of the plan of President Harding and Secretary Hughes. In untangling the chaos of our foreign affairs, there is not at the moment any issue between President Harding and the senate. So far as there has recently been an issue the senate has yielded gracefully. The passage of the Knox resolution in the hands of President Harding and Secretary Hughes, and the way in which they are going about it commands the confidence and deference of everybody in Washington, including congress.

FARRELL DISCUSSES THE U. S. MARITIME POLICY

CLEVELAND, May 6.—In an address this morning on "American maritime policy" at the National Foreign Trade council convention, James A. Farrell of New York, chairman of the council, and president of the United States Steel corporation, told the delegates the future of American merchant marine development is at stake, that the government lost $300,000,000 by not selling its merchant fleet when the armistice was signed, suggested an international maritime conference and advocated a revision of American shipping laws.

"Serious consideration must be given to the problem of maintaining our merchant marine," he said. "Even with a temporary improvement in ocean freights, the world's idle tonnage cannot be absorbed under three years. All maritime nations are affected. Approximately seven million tons of the world's carrying capacity is laid up out of a total of 60,000,000 tons (of which five million tons is still under construction)."

A partial solution of one of the difficulties would be to withdraw the shipping board from all but supervisory activity by chartering the steamers to reputable and experienced operators.

WOMEN ARE ABOUT EVENLY DIVIDED IN BABY BILL BATTLE

SHEPPARD-TOWNER MEASURE CAUSES A WIDESPREAD POPULAR INTEREST.

HUNDREDS OF LETTERS ARE REACHING SENATORS

Bill Designed to Reduce High Rate of Mortality of Mothers and Infant Children.

By L. C. MARTIN, United Press Staff Correspondent. WASHINGTON, May 6.—The nation's women today are arraying themselves by the tens of thousands on one side or the other of the controversy which will go into congressional history as the "baby bill battle."

Not for years has any piece of legislation before congress caused such widespread popular reaction as the Sheppard-Towner bill for federal aid to the states in saving the lives of mothers and their infant children, according to senators now working on the measure. Senators are receiving hundreds of letters, mostly from women, on the bill.

The sentiment seems about evenly divided for and against the measure. Women clubs and some civic organizations have endorsed it. Prominent men and women have written their approval of it. Just as may clubs and civic societies and just as important and public persons have condemned it. Meanwhile the mothers of the country who don't belong to clubs are writing their views into emphatic languages. The bill which has stirred up so much interest is designed, Senator Sheppard says, to reduce the high rate of mortality of mothers and infant children, by instructing prospective mothers in the hygiene of maternity and infancy.

Co-Operation Planned.

This is to be accomplished by co-operation between the state and the federal government. States desiring to co-operate with the federal government and share in the appropriation provided by the bill are to designate some agency to work out an instruction plan. The plan must be approved by the children's bureau at Washington. The bill which entitles the state to a share in an annual appropriation of $1,450,000 from the federal treasury. This money is to be used to send out volunteer lecturers at community centers. No one is to be compelled to receive instruction.

The women who are for the bill say the instruction will save thousands of lives yearly at small cost principally among the people of foreign birth. Its opponents have many arguments, among them being: That the bill is socialistic and is aimed at destruction of the marriage institution. That it is an entering wedge in a

THE ADVENTURE OF THE GOLDEN PINCE-NEZ

By A. CONAN DOYLE

Copyright, 1921, by Harper & Bros. Published by special arrangement with The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

The story thus far: One wild and stormy night in November Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson were surprised by a visit from Stanley Hopkins, a promising detective whom Holmes had helped on several occasions. He was puzzled by a case down in Kent, a country house down there, Xoxley Old Place was taken some years before by an old man, Professor Coram. He was an invalid keeping his bed half the time. He was writing a learned book, and a year before had found a secretary necessary. The first two he tried were not satisfactory, but the third, Mr. Willoughby Smith, was just what his employer wanted. That morning, between eleven and twelve, Susan, the house-maid heard a terrible cry and a heavy thud in the study. Rushing in, she found Mr. Willoughby Smith lying on the floor wounded in the neck by a small sealing wax knife from the desk. He gasped: "The Professor—it was she." and died. The Professor, sitting in bed was terribly agitated when the housekeeper told him of the murder. He could not explain the strange words. Hopkins showed Sherlock Holmes a rough plan of the room. The study was entered by three doors, one of which was blocked by a screen as she ran to the room, one of which led to the garden, and one of which led to the professor's room. There were foot-marks on the narrow grass border on the path that led to the garden door. It could not be traced as it had rained during the night. The corridor to the study from the garden door was carpeted with matting. In the study was a bureau, with unlocked drawers and a locked cupboard. In the right hand of the dead man was found a pair of gold-rimmed eyeglasses, which Hopkins showed Holmes and from which Holmes drew the conclusion that the murderer was a very short-sighted woman with a puckered, forehead, rounded shoulders and a peering expression. Holmes went to the scene of the murder the next day. He examined everything. On the bureau he found a scribble, which Holmes was made ready by a key which the assassin had been using in trying to open the cupboard. He also attached importance to the fact that the corridor to the professor's room was also carpeted with matting. He then went to the professor's room—a room lined with book shelves from which the books overflowed to the floor. The professor, with a gaunt, aquiline face and white hair and beard, sat in bed. He smoked incessantly and Holmes sampled his cigarettes generously. The professor suggested that his secretary might have killed himself. When Holmes asked him what the cupboard contained, the professor offered him the key. Later Holmes told Watson the cigarettes would solve the mystery. He let loose from the servants that the professor had been eating very heartily. They all returned to the professor's room. In accepting another cigarette, Holmes upset the can of them and got down on his hands and knees to gather them up. He then announced that he had solved the mystery.

PART FIVE

"Yes," said he, "I have solved it." Stanley Hopkins and I stared in amazement. Something like a sneer quivered over the gaunt features of the old professor.

talking incessantly. I helped her to escape? Where is she now?" "She is there," said Holmes, and he pointed to a high bookcase in the corner of the room. The old man threw up his arms, a terrible convulsion passed over his grim face, and he fell back in his chair. At the same instant the bookcase at which Holmes pointed swung round upon a hinge, and a woman rushed out into the room. "You are right!" she cried, in a strange, foreign voice. "You are right! I am here." She was brown with the dust, and draped with the cobwebs, which had come from the walls of her hiding-place. Her face, too, was streaked with grime, and at the best she could never have been handsome; for she had the exact physical characteristics which Holmes had divined, with, in addition, a long and obstinate chin. What with her native blindness, and what with the change from dark to light, she stood as one dazed, blinking about her to see where and who we were. And yet, in spite of all these disadvantages, there was a certain nobility in the woman's bearing—a gallantry in the defiant chin and in the upraised head, which compelled something of respect and admiration. Stanley Hopkins had laid his hand upon her arm and claimed her as his prisoner, but she waved him aside gently, and yet with an overmastering dig which compelled obedience. The old man lay back in his chair with a twitching face, and stared at her with brooding eyes.

He is not an Englishman. He is a Russian. His name I will not tell." "For the first time the old man stirred. "God bless you, Anna!" he cried. "God bless you!" She cast a look of the deepest disdain in his direction. "Why should you cling so hard to that wretched life of yours, Sergius?" said she. "It has done harm to many, and good to none—not even to yourself. However, it is not for me to cause the frail thread to be snapped before God's time. I have enough already upon my soul since I crossed the threshold of this cursed house. But I must speak or I shall be too late." "I have said, gentlemen, that I am this man's wife. He was fifty and I a foolish girl of twenty when we married. It was in a city of Russia, a university—I will not name the place." "God bless you, Anna!" murmured the old man again. "We were reformers—revolutionists— nihilists, you understand. He and I and many more. Then there came a time of trouble, a police officer was killed, many were arrested, evidence was wanted, and in order to save his own life and to earn a great reward, my husband betrayed his own wife and his companions. Yes, we were all arrested upon his confession. Some of us found our way to the gallows, and some to Siberia. I was among these last, but my term was not for life. My husband came to England with his ill-gotten gains, and has lived in quiet ever since, knowing well that if the brotherhood knew where he was not a week would pass before justice would be done."

hand and helped himself to a cigarette. "I am in your hands, Anna," said he. "You were always good to me." "I have not yet told you the height of his villainy," said he. "Among our comrades of the order, there was one who was the friend of my heart. He was noble, unselfish, loving—all that my husband was not. He hated violence. We were all guilty—if that is guilt—but he was not. He wrote forever dissuading us from such a course. These letters would have saved him. So would my diary, in which, from day to day, I had entered both my feelings towards him and the view which each of us had taken. My husband found and kept both diary and letters. He hid them, and he tried hard to swear away the young man's life. In this he failed, but Alasia was sent a convict to Siberia, where now, at this very moment, Alasia, a man whose name you are not worthy to speak, works and lives like a slave, and yet I have your life in my hands, and I let you go."

CHILDREN UNDERGO EXAMINATIONS BY OSTEOPATHS FRIDAY

TESTS CONSTITUTE OPENING FEATURE OF STATE CONVENTION OF ASSOCIATION.

FIRST BUSINESS SESSION IS HELD IN AFTERNOON

Visiting Physicians and Surgeons Formally Welcomed—Banquet Set For Friday Night.

DR. H. B. MASON of Temple, Texas.

About 60 osteopathic physicians and surgeons are attending the state convention of their organization, which opened at 9 o'clock Friday morning at the Kemp.

The first business session was held Friday afternoon, when the visiting physicians and surgeons were formally welcomed to Wichita Falls.

A "children's conference" was the feature of the morning session. About 50 Wichita Falls children underwent a series of examinations as to their physical fitness, ailments and defects.

The conference included a mental test, in which tests prescribed for children at various ages were given; this was followed by the dental examination, then by a general body examination; finally, inspection was made of the eyes, ears, nose and throat, with a conference on any special features that were found.

Friday afternoon's program, following the welcome address by Hubert M. Harrison of the chamber of commerce, and the response by Dr. J. J. Denning of Dallas, included the annual address by the president, Dr. A. O. Scharrif of this city, and papers on several technical matters.

SAYS JAPAN AND GERMANY SEEK TO CONTROL NARCOTICS

NEW ORLEANS, May 6.—Carlton Simmon, special deputy police commissioner, today charged that Japan and Germany were waging a contest for world-wide control of narcotics.

Addressing the national police convention, Mr. Simmon asserted that not only was Japan manufacturing drugs on a vast scale, but some of her merchants were importing narcotics from the United States to smuggle them back into this country and China at large profits.

"On the other hand," said Dr. Simmon, "we have in Germany the biggest manufacturers of drugs in the world. These men know that Japan is attempting to obtain control of the narcotic drug situation of the world. In consequence, there is a drug war at present between these two nations."

COLLEGE GIRLS TO SEEK FIRST HAND KNOWLEDGE

DENVER, May 6.—Eighteen college girls from Nebraska, Kansas and Colorado will seek jobs in laundries, factories and in domestic service here this summer to gain first hand knowledge of the problems of their less fortunate sisters who have not had the advantage of higher education. The experiment is being planned by the Y. W. C. A.

The girls will be required to pay for their food and lodging at the Y. W. C. A. and for their recreation out of the money they earn. They will work six weeks and at the end of that time meet and pool their experiences. The purpose of the experiment, it was said, is to give college girls a sympathetic and intellectual understanding of the industrial world.

NATIONAL HOLIDAY IN MEXICO WITHOUT THE ANTICIPATED TROUBLE

MEXICO CITY, May 6.—Observance of Mexico's national holiday passed off tranquilly, according to reports received last night by the war office, and fears aroused by rumors of revolutionary outbreaks fixed for yesterday proved to be without foundation.

Not only did threatened revolts headed by Francisco Murguía and other leaders fail to materialize, but General Gomez, commanding federal troops in the state of Tamaulipas, was ordered by the war department to send an emissary to the international boundary for a conference with General Murguía, who is said to be planning unconditional surrender and giving an absolute promise to keep the peace.

A war office statement said the meeting would occur in Mexican territory near Laredo.

When I was milking the cow's dotter someone came in the barn door and I thought it was Brunt or Peanuts or someone and I turned around to see who it was and to ast them what we would do today, because I thought I would like to go out to Big Creek or Rocky River or something, and it was Youniss and Maggie and Hattie. Youniss had a bag of sandwiches and Maggie had a bag of weenies and Hattie had a pan with a long handle on it, and they asted me if I could get Whitey and Frency and Peanuts or someone to go and we would all go out in the woods and cook the weenies and have a good time.

While we was talking Peanuts and the Lost Bag of Tripe come climbing through the manure hole and Maggie said they would do and asted them if they would go along and they wasn't going to do it till they heard about the sandwiches and the weenies, and then Maggie said would I show her how to milk sometime, and I said I sure would I would show her right then, and I said "Just stoop over and look right close and you can see how it is done," and she bent over and I bent one of them up and give it a squeeze and shot her in the eye, and then we all hollered so loud that it scared the cow's dotter and made her kick at me and she almost got me.

All the fellas thought it was funny, but Maggie said I was a horrid thing, and Hattie said she had a good mind to get me by the hair and shake my teeth out, and I ast all right if that was the way they felt about it they could go to their picnic by themselves. But Peanuts and the Lost Bag of Tripe went along so as to get some of the weenies and me and Jubilee did not go with them, but we walked along behind them and whenever Peanuts or the Lost Bag of Tripe would get away from the girls so that I would not hit the girls, I would chuck a rock or piece of dirt at them, and that made them keep so close to the girls that the girls could hardly walk.

When we got out in the woods they went down in the gully and Peanuts and the Lost Bag of Tripe made a fire and got some water in the pan and set it in the fire and put the weenies in it and they did not ast of them look at me standing against a tree-up on

LATEST STYLE

By LENORE

A young matron's street frock has a new way of combining dark blue serge with foulard which may appeal to the woman who likes to brighten a dark dress in the spring with the summerlike effect of printed silk, but wishes to do so with discretion.

Here the silk is introduced in the sleeves and in a border a little below the hips—gives an effect of fullness, of course, but it is a suggestion for the extremely slight young woman, or the tall angular figure. And if there is also a short waist to reckon with, as it is not uncommon in the latter type, the comfortably fitted basque bodice will be found particularly suitable, for it may be adjusted gracefully to give a longer-waisted effect.

Fluted bands of self material and rows of stitching further embellish the skirt, but really the actual dress is more simple and subdued in appearance than the sketch can indicate. Lacy embroidered batiste cuffs and collar are dainty and cool.

It is not at all unlikely, by the way, that foulard will enjoy more favor this year, for in colors, but chiefly in patterns, it is just as different from the old fashioned materials as it is possible to imagine. The closely figured geometric or floral patterns that are featured are both more artistic and less conspicuous than the old designs.

PATTERN NO. 156.
Patterns for the above model (No. 156) can be obtained in sizes 34, 36, 38 or 40, by sending to Lenore, 1 West 48th street, New York City, your name and address, number of this pattern and the size required, and 25 cents in postage stamps. Be sure to keep this newspaper clipping of the sketch and description of the garment to use as a working model when the pattern reaches you—which will be within two weeks.—The Editor.

DRAFTING PRINCIPLES FOR WHICH LABOR IS TO FIGHT THIS YEAR

CINCINNATI, May 4.—Principles which labor will be asked to support and uphold during the next year were being drafted today by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor. The day also was featured by an "open shop" tilt between Samuel Gompers and the chamber of commerce.

It was unofficially learned that the trade unions will be asked to continue the fight against the "open shop." Repeal of the anti-trust laws or special exemption for labor unions will also occupy a prominent place on the program. Resistance to court injunctions and compulsory arbitration will also be urged and announcement will be made of severance of relations with the International Federation of Trade Unions because of the latter's radical tendencies.

The council, it was learned, is giving consideration to wage reductions and the cost of living.

Four Million Unemployed.

Reports received by the council today showed that more than 4,000,000 persons are without employment in the country and the situation is showing no improvement.

The executive council was brought under the fire today of the local advocates of the "open shop" movement.

H. Van Matre, secretary of the industrial division of the chamber of commerce, issued a statement attacking the closed union shop as a "restriction upon a worker's ability and opportunity by its dead-level standard."

He also said that the "closed shop discriminates and interferes with a man's opportunity of earning a livelihood." More than a thousand Cincinnati concerns, Mr. Van Matre said, have declared for the "open shop."

"Let them go ahead," said Mr. Gompers. "They can not injure the American labor movement. We have weathered the storms of the past and are not even annoyed by such squalls as these." They are only fooling themselves, said Matthew W. Wolf, vice president of the federation.

WANTS TO COLLECT INTEREST ON DEBT

WASHINGTON, May 6.—Immediate collection from the allies of all accumulated interest on their war debts to the United States was proposed today by an amendment offered to the soldiers' bonus bill by Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—After a long fight the house refused today to consider immediately a resolution directing a sweeping investigation of alleged disfranchisement of negroes prior to framing a new reapportionment bill. The question was brought up by Representative Tinkham, republican, Massachusetts, on the ground of the "highest constitutional privilege." Speaker Gillett sustained a point of order by Representative Mondell, Wyoming, the republican leader, that the resolution was not privileged under the rules of the house or the constitution. Mr. Tinkham appealed, but the speaker's ruling was sustained by the membership.

The vote was 255 to 46.

Mr. Tinkham, whose proposal was similar to one he put forward last session, and on which no action was taken, clashed frequently with the republican leader during the parliamentary wrangle. Democrats took no part in the discussion. The Massachusetts member demanded immediate action, saying franchise privileges of all citizens under the constitution were involved.

Mr. Mondell characterized the contention that the house should act without reference to committee as "amazing."

"A member might as well get up here and present a resolution respecting non-enforcement of the 18th or prohibition amendment," Mr. Mondell declared.

BORAH DISCLAIMS EFFORT TO DICTATE TO THE PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, May 6.—Senator Borah's fight for a disarmament conference amendment to the navy bill is an effort to express the view of congress on the reduction of taxes and not an attempt to dictate the foreign policy of President Harding, Borah said today in denying reports that his decision to push the amendment marked a split between the senate progressives and the White House.

Borah asserted that he had been assured that President Harding had no objection to a discussion of disarmament by congress, although Harding made it clear to democrats who called on him this week that he was opposed to adoption of the Borah proposal at this time.

A canvas of the senate by disarmament advocates showed 12 to 15 republican senators who, Borah said, are ready to support his amendment. Nearly all the 27 democrats who called on him this week that he was opposed to adoption of the Borah proposal at this time.

INSURGENTS FORCIBLY RECRUITING TROOPS IN POLISH ADVANCE

By Associated Press.

OPPELEN, UPPER SILESIA, May 6.—Polish insurgent forces entered Gross Stechilitz, in central Upper Silesia, about 20 miles southeast of here, at 10 o'clock last night. The casualties are given as one French soldier killed and two wounded and several Italians wounded.

The Poles agreed to permit the entrance of local troops in Gross-Stechilitz to remain there in their barracks. The revolt area is reported to have reached nearly to this city.

The insurgents are declared in messages received here to be forcibly recruiting males, including Germans, between 16 and 18 years of age, in the vicinity of Eichenau and Schoppinitz.

URGES THE NECESSITY OF SENDING REINFORCEMENTS

By Associated Press.

OPPELEN, SILESIA, May 6.—Two hundred Italian soldiers commanded by Colonel Bond of the British army, evacuated Gross Stechilitz, a little over 20 miles southeast of this city, last night. At that time the town was under artillery fire from Polish insurgents. In making his report to the allied commission here, Colonel Bond urged the necessity of sending reinforcements, laying emphasis on the need for machine guns and ammunition. The French officials here declared they were unable to furnish more soldiers, saying they were short of men everywhere in the plebiscite zone.

The Poles are reported to be in possession of the entire eastern section of Silesia as far north as Rosenberg, which the commission heard they occupied yesterday without opposition. Fighting is still going on at Rybnik, in southern Silesia.

Organization of civilian police to the number of 2,000 to reinforce entente troops is contemplated here. These police would be Upper Silesian Germans, it is indicated.

When a copy of the proclamation issued by Adalbert Korfanty, in which he declared himself governor of Upper Silesia, reached the inter-allied commission here, a French official said: "Korfanty is now a rebel and should we apprehend him he will be treated as such."

The proclamation which, it is understood, was issued at Sosnowice, where Korfanty has his headquarters, demanded obedience to Nowis Obedelia, named as chief of the insurgents, and Korfanty, on pain of death, it also threatened thieves and plunderers with the death sentence. French authorities here accepted Korfanty's action without surprise, saying it would make little difference with the ultimate outcome.

"With insufficient forces," said one official, "we are doing everything possible to put an end to this movement, and we hope to have the situation in hand in two or three days. Had the Germans not behaved so well, conditions would have been more serious."

SAILOR FROM OKLAHOMA IS KILLED IN A SCUFFLE

NORFOLK, VA., May 6.—Samuel E. Phillips, sailor, was under arrest on a charge of murder here today in connection with the death of James S. Woods, 18, Oklahoma City, a shipmate.

Patrolman Messick had taken Woods into custody for firing a revolver when Phillips came to the rescue. The officer charged that Phillips attempted to force the release of the prisoner at the point of a revolver. Messick released Woods and seized Phillips' revolver. The weapon was discharged and the bullet struck Woods in the stomach, causing death.

Woods was a member of the crew of the submarine E-1.

QUESTION OF ALLEGED DISFRANCHISEMENT OF NEGRO POSTPONED

WASHINGTON, May 6.—After a long fight the house refused today to consider immediately a resolution directing a sweeping investigation of alleged disfranchisement of negroes prior to framing a new reapportionment bill. The question was brought up by Representative Tinkham, republican, Massachusetts, on the ground of the "highest constitutional privilege." Speaker Gillett sustained a point of order by Representative Mondell, Wyoming, the republican leader, that the resolution was not privileged under the rules of the house or the constitution. Mr. Tinkham appealed, but the speaker's ruling was sustained by the membership.

The vote was 255 to 46.

Mr. Tinkham, whose proposal was similar to one he put forward last session, and on which no action was taken, clashed frequently with the republican leader during the parliamentary wrangle. Democrats took no part in the discussion. The Massachusetts member demanded immediate action, saying franchise privileges of all citizens under the constitution were involved.

Mr. Mondell characterized the contention that the house should act without reference to committee as "amazing."

"A member might as well get up here and present a resolution respecting non-enforcement of the 18th or prohibition amendment," Mr. Mondell declared.

EDUCATION OF TEXANS IN TEXAS SCHOOLS URGED BY GOVERNOR IN SPEECH

AUSTIN, May 6.—Education of Texans in Texas colleges and universities was urged here today by Governor Neff, speaking before 1,500 Texas athletes assembled here as contestants in the Texas Interscholastic league.

The governor declared there was no reason for Texas youths to leave the state to get an education, as there are plenty of higher institutions in Texas.

CURETON BELIEVES TEXAS CHANCE GOOD IN BOUNDARY SUIT

AUSTIN, May 6.—The state of Texas still stands a good chance to win out in the Texas-Oklahoma boundary suit, although the recent decision of the supreme court of the United States held that the boundary line followed the south bank of Red river, according to Attorney General Cureton, who returned from Washington today. The recent decision of the court was not decisive, but merely held that the boundary line was the south bank of the river, Mr. Cureton said.

The question submitted by the attorney general and which he says will be the important decision in the case is just where the south bank of the river is located, whether the court meant that it followed the water's edge or the bluffs some distance from the river. General Cureton contends that the bank follows the water edge. This contention is sustained in the final ruling of the court, Texas will be the winner in the case, the attorney general said.

The case grew out of a dispute over valuable oil lands in the river bed and has been in court for some time. The supreme court recessed until May 16 in order to answer the questions submitted.

Davis, director of the United States reclamation service, he announced here today. Engineers now are making surveys and estimates of cost of such a dam, which would supply water for a fertile section, which Mr. Davis said is now dependent upon pumping plants.

WANTS GOVERNMENT TO PROTECT PAPERS PRINTING THE LIST OF SLACKERS

WASHINGTON, May 6.—A bill directing the department of justice to defend newspapers "subjected to civil or other similar proceedings" as the result of publication of the authorized slacker lists issued by the war department and printed in the Congressional Record, was introduced today by Representative H. H. Clegg, republican, Maryland, should judgment go against such a newspaper the government would assume the damage.

"In my opinion," Mr. Hill said, "since the United States government wishes this list widely published, it is unfair to the newspapers to incur even the possibility of suit."

BIAS BILL TO PENSION THE VETERANS OF INDIAN WARS

WASHINGTON, May 6.—A bill which will give veterans of the Indian wars the same pension status as those now excluded under existing laws, was introduced today by Representative Hudspeth of Texas. Under the law it stands, the frontier guards were disbanded in 1881, but only those who were enlisted prior to 1876 have been eligible to apply for pensions. It is estimated that fully a hundred men who were members of this force, enlisted between 1876 and 1881, are still living, and the Hudspeth bill would make them or their widows eligible for pensions.

INVOKE TREATY OF 1831 IN ATTACK ON THE VOLSTEAD ACT

CHICAGO, May 6.—Invoking the treaty of 1831 between the United States and Mexico, and attacking the constitutionality of the Volstead act, Levy Mayer, attorney for the defendants in the Sunnybrook distillery Texas case, obtained a continuance until May 20 of the hearing which came up before United States Commissioner Mason here today.

The hearing was to have decided whether the defendants, Louis Rosenfeld, secretary-treasurer of the Sunnybrook Distillery company, and F. W. Harrison, an employee of the Chicago branch, indicted by the federal court in Texas for alleged conspiracy to transport 1,900 cases of whiskey into Mexico, should be tried in Chicago or El Paso, Texas.

The liquor was intercepted before reaching Mexico. The shippers, Attorney Mayer set forth, had procured a permit from the commissioner of internal revenue. They had no knowledge, he claimed, that the whiskey was to be used for beverage purposes. The selling price, $14 a case of 12 quarts, was so low, he maintained, that only a nominal profit was secured.

The contention of the defendants was that some Mexicans, to escape payment for the whiskey, had imposed upon the federal authorities in Texas and were using an indictment in the United States courts to force the Sunnybrook Distillery company to release their claim for the purchase price of the whiskey.

BEAUVAIS DENIES HAVING WRITTEN 'DEAREST HONEY' LETTER ADMITTED IN THE TRIAL OF THE STILLMAN CASE

(Copyright, 1921, by the United Press.) Fred Beauvais, coming to the defense of Mrs. James A. Stillman, today wrote the following statement for the United Press:

By FRED K. BEAUVAIS.

MONTREAL, May 6.—Mrs. Stillman need have no fear of being injured by any letters I wrote, unless they have been doctored up.

During the last three years there has been plenty of time to do this. By the time I get through reading these alleged letters of mine I will be able to write love letters.

Naturally, as an employee of Mrs. Stillman, I wrote her letters, but they were purely of a business nature. The articles mentioned in the published letter were sent on order of Mrs. Stillman. I purchased them here in Montreal with money that was put on my expense account.

"double" for James A. Stillman, former president of the National City bank, may be produced by his attorney today.

The "double," it was said, would be identified as "Franklin Harold Leeds, missing husband of Mrs. Florence L. Leeds," the Auburn-haired beauty accused by Mrs. "Fifi" Potter Stillman of being the mother of a child by Stillman—2-year-old Jay Leeds.

Pleading the advantage obtained in yesterday's secret "hearing," through tentative admission of the alleged "dearest honey" letter said to have been written to Mrs. Stillman by Fred Beauvais, French-Canadian co-respondent, the plaintiff's counsel were understood to be completing preparations to meet the counter charges to be introduced when the hearings are resumed May 19.

Mrs. Stillman's counter suit apparently has centered around "Mrs. Leeds." Friends of Stillman feel that if he can show "Mr. Leeds" was a person distinct from Stillman her case will collapse. The defense, however, is understood to be thoroughly acquainted with this phase and to be prepared with verbal and documentary evidence intended to prove that Stillman and "Mr. Leeds" were identical. Servants who formerly worked for Stillman later entered the employ of "Mr. Leeds," it is alleged.

Regarding the letters admitted yesterday, as well as the six similar ones still withheld, the defense takes this attitude:

"The letters are forgeries."

Bernard Kelly, former superintendent of the Stillman estate at Pleasantville, N. Y., and near Three Rivers, Canada, who identified Beauvais' handwriting, was not competent to do this.

Justice Morgan, who once excluded these letters, will be asked to overrule Referee Gleason's action in admitting any or all of them.

As regards the latter move, it was pointed out that an appeal may be taken from a referee's decision at any time during the hearing, although the custom is to sum up the appeals at the conclusion.

John E. Mack, acting guardian for 2-year-old Guy Stillman, alleged by the plaintiff to be the child of Beauvais and Mrs. Stillman, said today that the letter was admitted yesterday that the understanding that, while it might affect the application for divorce, it would have no bearing upon Guy's legitimacy.

BEAUVAIS REPUDIATES THE LETTER MADE PUBLIC

By JAMES R. KELLY, United Press Staff Correspondent.

(Copyright, 1921, by the United Press.) MONTREAL, Quebec, May 6.—"Where the devil did they get that?" Fred Beauvais exclaimed today when shown a copy of the alleged "dearest honey" letter, which he is charged with writing to Mrs. James A. Stillman.

Beauvais' face turned scarlet with anger as he read the alleged letter and was informed by the United Press correspondent that it had been published in New York as having been used in the Stillman divorce hearing.

"I never addressed Mrs. Stillman in such terms," the alleged co-respondent asserted, after a moment. "Someone has doctored a letter of mine, but this writing is not mine. They have made a great love-letter writer out of me."

"Someone will pay for this," Beauvais said.

"So much money is being spent on this case that one can expect almost anything."

He denied passages of the letter which represented him as having sent gifts to Guy Stillman, the child whose father he is alleged to be.

"I sent all the articles mentioned in this letter as I was ordered to do so, as an employe of the Stillmans," he asserted.

All his stoicism vanished when he came to that portion of the letter in which he was made to refer to the joy of parenthood. His face became pale with rage. He appeared no longer able to restrain himself.

"I deny all those statements," he cried, hoarse with emotion. "I wish I could go to New York. I would tell them the truth," he declared.

"Well, why don't you go?" the correspondent asked.

"I haven't been asked," Beauvais retorted. "At present I can't spare the time from my business. But this is getting serious and I may go yet. Up to the present there has been no evidence introduced that the defense can't refute."

"My brother Arthur will tell them the truth and they won't be able to shake his story."

Beauvais was greatly exercised over stories reported to have been told by witnesses from Grand Anse at the hearing in New York as reported in newspapers which he had seen.

"George Adams, who is quoted as having said he saw me in Mrs. Stillman's room with her, was not on the Stillman farm at the time he testified he peered through a hole in the curtain," Beauvais declared.

"Adams was there only when I was alone with my own father, mother and brothers. The Stillmans were in New York at that time."

Beauvais said that the East Seventy-second street address, given on the letter-head as published, was not correct.

"In 1919," he said, "the Stillman family was living at 370 Park avenue, and moved from the Seventy-second street house shortly after the death of Mr. Stillman, the elder. That was in the spring of 1918. The family and I went to Quebec for the summer and returned to New York in the fall, taking up residence in the Park avenue house."

After reading the letter, Beauvais rushed from his office to consult an attorney.

"I am going to see if I have any rights in this case," he exclaimed.

HOSPITAL BONDS ARE DISAPPROVED BY ATTORNEY GENERAL

ANOTHER ELECTION NECESSARY BECAUSE OF FAILURE TO GIVE 30 DAYS NOTICE.

PROBABLY WON'T DELAY PLANS FOR STRUCTURE

Commissioners Expected to Order New Election at Their Session Next Monday.

It will be necessary for Wichita county to again vote the $75,000 hospital bond issue which carried in the March election; Attorney General Curran has disapproved the issue because sufficient notice of the issue because not given.

Earlier in the week word has been received at the court house that some objections to the bonds had been raised, but it was thought the technical defects could be cured. One objection was that the commissioners' court did not canvass the returns, and another was that the sheriff's return was not entirely complete; a commissioner plucked him by the neck from his free-lunch counter as a tabby plucks a strange kitten from her nest, and cast him sapphireward. This seems too enough. But after that he acquired a pair of cloth top button Congress gaiters and wrote complaining letters to the newspapers. And then he fought the attendant at the Municipal Lodging House who tried to give him a bath. When Murray first saw him he was holding the hand of an Italian woman who sold apples and garlic on Essex street, and quoting the words of a song book ballad.

LOCAL COURTS

THREE CRIMINAL CASES ARE DISPOSED OF FRIDAY

Judge Guy Rogers of the county court at law disposed of three criminal cases Friday. Pleas of guilty were entered in each instance. W. R. Manley was fined $50 and costs on his plea of guilty to the charge of being drunk. It was shown that the defendant had arrested officers who arrested him. B. F. Flater was fined $25 on the charge of aggravated assault. Charlie Jones, negro, charged with theft of chickens, was fined $50 and sentenced to serve one day in jail. The fact that the defendant had been shot in the foot by the officer when he tried to make his escape was a mitigating circumstance considered by the judge in pronouncing sentence.

Walter Examining Trial. Willie Davis, negro, waived examining trial before United States Commissioner Lantz, Friday, on the charge of transporting a stolen automobile across the state line. His bond was set at $1,000. Suits Filed in 26th District Court. J. H. Crumpler vs. W. A. Newton et al. debt. McAllister & Graves vs. Waggoner & Greenleaf. J. F. WAXAHACHIE, TEXAS, May 5.—Robert Harper, an employe of a local concern at Fort Worth, received severe injuries today when his car, in which he was riding alone turned turtle a short distance from Nash, near here, at 1 p. m. today. Harper was taken to a hospital in Fort Worth.

Twenty Year Sentence in Bank Robbery Case

TULSA, OKLA., May 5.—After deliberating one hour and 15 minutes, a jury in the district court this afternoon sentenced L. McCarty, guilty of complicity in the robbery of the Guaranty State bank at Speer, Okla., on the afternoon of December 24, 1920, to a term of 20 years in the state penitentiary.

FIREMAN COULD HARDLY KEEP UP

Railroad Man Says He Would Have Had to Give Up But for Tanlac.

"At the time I started on Tanlac I was down to a hundred and fifteen pounds and so weak I was finding it give up my job, but now I tip the scales at one hundred and thirty-eight, five pounds more than I ever weighed in my life," said Thornton L. McCarty, a well known fireman on the M. & T. (Katy) railroad.

"I had held out just about as long as I could," he went on, "and it simply took all the grit and will power I had to manage to stay on the job. My stomach gave me no end of trouble and my kidneys were all out of order and I had pains all through my back. It was all I could do to keep my old engine steamed up for the run, and when I got back home my joints were all swollen up and I felt so achey and exhausted that I was sinking in misery. My sleep was broken up and I had to get up at midnight and try to get the strength to get around, and it looked like I was going to give out entirely.

"The only thing that kept me from giving up my job was this Tanlac. It's certainly a great medicine. It strengthened me right out and put me back to work. I gained twenty-three pounds in weight and felt like I had been made all over again. I have enjoyed good health ever since, and it takes a mighty rough-riding engine to cause the slightest pain now. There are many railroad men in just the fix I was in, and I am glad to give this statement and I hope they will see it and take my advice and try Tanlac."

An O. HENRY Story

According to Their Lights

By O. HENRY

SOMEWHERE in the depths of the big city where the lanterns drag are forever being shaken together young Murray and the Captain had met and become friends. Both were at the lowest ebb possible to their fortunes; both had fallen from at least an income and all from a respectability and importance, and both were typical products of the monstrous and peculiar social curriculum of their overweening and bumptious civic alma mater.

The captain was no longer a captain. One of those sudden moral cataclysms that sometimes sweep the city had hurled him from a high and profitable position in the Police Department, ripping off his badge and buttons and washing into the hands of his lawyers the solid pieces of real estate that his frugality had enabled him to accumulate. The passing of the flood left him low and dry. One month after his dishabilitation a mooncooper plucked him by the neck from his free-lunch counter as a tabby plucks a strange kitten from her nest, and cast him sapphireward. This seems too enough. But after that he acquired a pair of cloth top button Congress gaiters and wrote complaining letters to the newspapers. And then he fought the attendant at the Municipal Lodging House who tried to give him a bath. When Murray first saw him he was holding the hand of an Italian woman who sold apples and garlic on Essex street, and quoting the words of a song book ballad.

Murray's fall had been more Luciferian, if less spectacular. All the pretty little kickshaws of Gotham had once been his. The megaphone man roars out at you to dance or sword, he drifted downward to meet his humorous Falstaff, and to pick the crusts of the streets with him.

One evening they sat on a bench in a little downtown park. The Murray's fall had been more Luciferian, if less spectacular. All the pretty little kickshaws of Gotham had once been his. The megaphone man roars out at you to dance or sword, he drifted downward to meet his humorous Falstaff, and to pick the crusts of the streets with him.

observed the house of his uncle on a grand and revered avenue. But there had been an awful row about something, and the prince had been ejected from the door by the butler, which, in said avenue, is equivalent to the impact of the avuncular shoe. A weak Prince Hal, without inheriting great bulk of the Captain, which starvation seemed to increase. "Cut it out," said Murray quietly. "I'm glad to hear that. I was afraid you could."

"You wait here," said the Captain, rising heavily and puffing to his feet. "I'm going to try to make one more turn. You stay here till I come back. Murray, I won't be over half an hour, if I turn the trick I'll come back fresh."

When he was out of sight Murray also left the park, hurrying swiftly toward home. He stopped at a building whose steps were flanked by two green lights.

SCHOOL DISPLAYS VIEWED BY CROWDS FRIDAY AFTERNOON

VARIED AND VERSATILE ARRAY REPRESENTING PUPILS' WORK IS BEING SHOWN.

TEMPTING LOOKING FOOD, BUT SIGN "HANDS OFF"

Exhibit of Home-Made Clothing One of Star Features—Programs Are Being Presented.

All roads lead to the high school playground.

The opening of the annual public school exhibit, which took place as scheduled Friday afternoon, found hundreds of parents, young and old, and school pupils, together with scores of parents and friends, lined up in front of the school doors waiting for a chance to inspect the tangible results of eight long months' work. School officials estimated that the crowds on the opening day would break all previous records for similar occasions and that this year's display would set a new high-water mark in all respects.

In the first-floor class rooms are arranged the exhibits from the ward school in the city, these consisting for the most part of English work, drawings, art work and prepared papers of various kinds. An attempt to designate the most attractive of these would be a Herculean task, so suffice it to say that all are as comprehensive and attractive as can be.

On the second-floor the junior and senior high school exhibits are set out, as are those of the girls' sewing department. This latter is especially recommended to the clothing merchants of the city, especially those dealing in ladies' wearing apparel, for there are few stores in town which can boast of a more complete stock of work dresses, party frocks, evening gowns, hats, flimsy negligees or what-you-call-'ems, than the school misses.

The workmanship is perfect, at least in the majority of instances, and the average cost for work dresses was around $4, which is a very attractive party frock. The algebra and geometry classes have arranged to introduce the uninitiated into the mysteries of the Pythagorean theorem and all the other mathematical atrocities evolved to give a student hysteria, while just across the hall the Latin class has painted the walls with Latin verse, stories, drawings and various other papers.

One of the most interesting of all the school displays was that of the Washington (negro) school. The small introductory exhibit of the public school superintendent's office has been turned over to the colored folks of the city and they have filled it with neat and instructive work.

The "model farm" worked out in sand by pupils from the Alama school and the public playground, arranged with similar material by pupils of another room from the same school, came in for a large share of attention from the opening crowds.

The exhibit will remain open this evening and will also be on display throughout the day Saturday.

PINEHURST, N. C., May 6.—Acceptance of the invitation for this government to participate in the deliberations of the allied councils on reparations and other post-war questions was urged on President Harding today by the executive council of the American Bankers' association, in session here.

This country can contribute largely to the settlement of the various problems on a basis "just and wise and acceptable to all parties," the council stated.

The bankers also advocated the following: Enactment of the McFadden bill to amend the federal reserve act permitting the transfer of the functions now exercised by the comptroller of the currency to the federal reserve board.

A change in the present federal tax system to properly spread the burden of taxation.

Enactment of a federal "blue-sky" law. The administration was commended for its efforts to inject business methods into the business of government. The budget system of handling the government's finances was advised.

The open-shop principle was endorsed on the grounds that it is more economic in principle and more American in spirit than the closed shop.

Exhibit of Home-Made Clothing One of Star Features—Programs Are Being Presented.

All roads lead to the high school playground.

The opening of the annual public school exhibit, which took place as scheduled Friday afternoon, found hundreds of parents, young and old, and school pupils, together with scores of parents and friends, lined up in front of the school doors waiting for a chance to inspect the tangible results of eight long months' work.

In the first-floor class rooms are arranged the exhibits from the ward school in the city, these consisting for the most part of English work, drawings, art work and prepared papers of various kinds. An attempt to designate the most attractive of these would be a Herculean task, so suffice it to say that all are as comprehensive and attractive as can be.

On the second-floor the junior and senior high school exhibits are set out, as are those of the girls' sewing department. This latter is especially recommended to the clothing merchants of the city, especially those dealing in ladies' wearing apparel, for there are few stores in town which can boast of a more complete stock of work dresses, party frocks, evening gowns, hats, flimsy negligees or what-you-call-'ems, than the school misses.

Two women stage first class scrap, little one victor.

The bigger they are the harder they fall," said a slender and frail woman as Officer Bridgewater and Colvin yanked her from the prostrate form of the erstwhile champion heavy-weight of the flats Friday afternoon.

The two women had fought for fifteen minutes before the cops arrived, according to authentic reports, and the little one had just floored her big antagonist with a right hook to the jaw when Bridgewater and Colvin put an end to hostilities; the larger woman lay helpless on the battlefield, the middle of Lake street to be exact, with blood streaming from a gaping wound in her head, inflicted, it is said, by an old shoe in the hands of her assailant.

A crowd of about fifty men and women had collected and were fully enjoying the most lively battle Lake street has seen in months, but they were soon dispersed and the combatants taken to the city hall.

The loer was cleaned up, two towels wrapped around her head and sent to a physician for treatment, while the victor who triumphed after her attorney put up an appearance bond. What the fight was all about could not be learned.

Ninth Inning Rally Falls One Short and Spudders Drop Opener to Panthers

PORT WORTH, May 5.—Lefty Johns finally won a ball game for himself when the Panthers defeated the Spudders Thursday in the first of a four-game series, marking for tonight home game series.

The champions, the score was 3 to 2. The Spudders got off to a lead of one run which they held until the sixth inning when they were jumped on by Jim Sewell and Jarryd him loose for three runs with the aid of five hits. Sewell was yanked but it was too late. Johns pitched fine ball throughout, keeping seven hits well scattered. He was threatened in the ninth inning when he became a bit wobbly and walked Miller, the first man up. Tanner grounded to Rigney who fumbled but recovered in time to force Miller at second. Kitchens hit a line drive to the left field for two bases, scoring Tanner. Two pinch hitters were then run in—Hollingsworth and Jim Hoff—both of whom fanned. The Panthers showed a changed lineup, both in the field and at the bat, when they appeared Thursday afternoon. The "dutch" Hoffman was heard around second base and when the team came to bat Chink Taylor had the honorary position of lead off man with Combs in second place. Sears third, Kraft in the clean-up position and Hoffman behind him.

In the first inning, Rothfuss drew Haley in with an attempted bunt and then almost knocked him down with a slashing grounder that hit "old Red" in the chest and bounced off for a single. McDonald singled between second and first, Kraft knocking the ball down with his bare hand, he too late to catch the runner. Clark grounded to Rigney, forcing McDonald at second and Rothfuss scored on the play. Works made a fine stop and recovery of Taylor's hard grounder in the last half of the first. Haworth made two difficult catches out of bounds in the second from Tanner and Sewell's bats.

Haley on Base Twice. In the last of the second the Spudders batted but practically all of the work Sewell started by fanning. Kraft Hoffman got an ovation when he came to bat and hit a home run with Empire Miller, who called the first ball pitched a strike. Dutch swung at his third one. Haley drew a walk and was out at second. Sewell got a clean single in the fifth after two were down, but Rothfuss looped one to Rigney. Haley got on in the sixth by means of Tanner's error. It was Haley's second time on base, also the second time that a Panther reached first, and as in the previous instance, Haley was thrown out trying to steal.

Panthers Score Three. The Panthers finally got Sewell in the sixth inning, making him for five hits and three runs before Manager Salm could yank him in favor of "Midget" Darrrough, who pitched a hit, no-run game against Port Worth last fall. Rigney started the sixth with a slow grounder to second, which he hit out. He then pitched a clean single to right field, Rigney taking third. Johns grounded to Sewell, who forced Haworth at second and Rigney was held at third. Taylor bounced a single over second base, scoring Rigney. Combs drove a long fly to Miller and Johns took third. Sears singled sharply to right field, leaving Rigney singled to center, scoring Taylor. That ended Sewell and Darrrough was called in. He hit Hoffman, filling the bases. Haley hit a sacrifice to right field, which went foul slightly, and then lined to McDonald.

In the seventh inning Hoffman pulled one of his greater catches that brought the crowd upstanding when he raced far out to right center, his back to the ball, and leaping high in the air, made a marvelous play, a whole lot shorter than that. All depends on how long he can keep running, on a single, a wild pitch and Combs sacrificed, he died there when Sears fanned and Kraft popped to Clark.

MAJOR LEAGUES HAVE 45 GAMES ON SHELF

Pushed Ahead by Weather Man For Double Headers During Summer Months.

NEW YORK, May 6.—Forty-five games in the major leagues have already been pushed ahead for double-headers during the hot summer months, due to bad weather.

The weather breaks have been a little against the American league. Ban Johnson's circuit has 54 games on the shelf while the National has 21.

Ohio's pet, the Cleveland Indians and the Cincinnati Reds, have been the most fortunate in getting out of extra work as both those clubs have only a pair of postponements.

The Boston Red Sox have been hit hardest, being forced to give way to the weather man nine times. The White Sox, Yanks and St. Louis Cardinals are next with eight each.

In the National league, St. Louis has eight postponements, Chicago seven, New York five, Philadelphia four, Philadelphia four, Brooklyn three, Boston four, and Cincinnati two.

In the American league, the Red Sox have nine, the Yanks eight, White Sox eight, Athletics six, Tigers five, Browns five, Senators five, and Senators two.

As far as possible, for box office reasons, the magnates fill in off days with postponed games to keep their athletes busy. Otherwise they will have to give two games for the price of one.

WILL DROP FREE TICKETS FROM AEROPLANE SATURDAY

H. K. Neal of the Aerial Service company, Call Field, will fly over the streets of the business section at 10 o'clock Saturday morning, May 7, and drop five free tickets entitling the holder to a free pleasure flight over the city.

He will also drop ten free tickets to the pony polo games Saturday and Sunday between the Cowboy Round-Up Polo team and the Wichita Falls team. The games are being played at the Wichita Falls club's grounds at Call Field.

Mr. Neal expects to get a slight Mother Earth as possible and will try to give a few thrills to the population below. The free tickets will all be enclosed in a envelope and will be weighted so that they will sink to the earth rapidly.

TEXAS LEAGUE

Tigers 9, Browns 6. ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 5.—St. Louis was helpless before Oldham today, while Detroit hit Shocker freely and won 9 to 6 in the opening game of the series. Only one local player reached third base, Shocker was taken out of the box in the sixth when Detroit scored six runs on as many hits, Cobb driving the ball into the bleachers with one man on base.

By innings: R. H. E. Dallas 100 003 225—10 14 1
Shreveport 300 020 225—10 14 1
Batteries: Conley, Fitzpatrick and Robertson; Gleason, Bird and Henry.

Small Crab 3, Exporters 1. GALVESTON, May 5.—Grubb's double in the ninth with McDonald on Sunday that was used against the Beaumont 2 to 1. Beaumont tied the score in the first half of the ninth, when Johnston hit a home run to right.

By innings: R. H. E. Galveston 010 000 001—1 10 2
Beaumont 000 000 001—1 7 4
Batteries: Bailey and Whaling; Couchman and Lapan.

Buffs 10, Bears 1. SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS, May 5.—Four Bear batters were unable to stop the slugging of the Buffs, who carried away the opening game of the Houston-San Antonio series by a 10 to 1 score. The Buffs couldn't fathom Potts' delivery and only connected for six hits, making their first in the fifth frame. Whitman captured three and the rest of the team made from one to two errors.

By innings: R. H. E. Houston 002 000 025—10 17 0
San Antonio 000 001 000—1 4 4
Batteries: Fox and Griffith; Voight, Jordan, Davenport, Tiner and son is breaking his neck looking for a new third-sacker now.

Wally Schang was supposed to add a lot of hitting power to the Yanks when he was obtained in the big deal from the Red Sox. He teed the plate 25 times before he hit drives. That's the sort of stuff that drives managers crazy. Works was supposed to add a lot of strength to the Spudders, too.

Practically without comment, Walter Johnson has passed all records for the number of games won in the American league. Al Munro Elias holds that Eddie Plank held the record with 203 wins up to this year, and that Johnson on April 17 made his number of wins 204. Plank, however, has a better percentage of wins than Johnson and better probably than Johnson or any other American league hurler will ever reach. It stands 203 wins and 175 defeats for a mark of .625.

The cowboy polo team will play practically the same lineup Saturday and Sunday that was used against the Tigers' club last week, while the Wichita club is waiting to hear from Cecil Wilfong, who is out of town. Wilfong is two days away from the city and one of the best backs in the south-west. A few of the other players were slightly injured in last week's match and Captain Fitzpatrick says that he will not announce the lineup until just before the game.

While talking about clubs in the big show which are not running according to the dope, how about the Tigers? They are pulling the unexpected just as he always did and has his club in the thick of the argument. His young twirlers are more than filling the bill.

Pittsburgh fans are thinking of giving "Rabbit" Mazzavilla and "Cotton" Tierney the keys of the city. It didn't take the latter long to win himself a home in the big show.

Mulligan's work with the White Sox has been disappointing and Ed Ofa-

The White Sox took the lead in the American league from the Red Sox. Brooklyn scored two runs in the seventh, but the Giants counted three and won the game 7 to 4. Fordham scored a pair in the eleventh, beating Boston college, 3 to 9.

Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs Is Saturday Program

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 6.—A dozen blue-blooded thoroughbreds will start Saturday in the $50,000 Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs. Training performances and some actual racing on the part of those eligible has reduced the field.

There were 109 nominations made for the race but a mere dozen may answer when the bugle calls the field to the post.

The starters probably will be Harry Payne Whitney's Trusty and Prudery; Xalapha Farm's Leonardo II and Don Homme; E. R. Bradley's Black Servant and Behave Yourself; W. J. Salmon's Careful; Harvard Bros. Coyle; C. A. Stoneham's Billy Barton; Baker and Moore's Uncle Velo; Bud Fisher's Mus-killing; J. K. L. Ross's Star Voter, and P. A. Clark's Nancy Lee.

Gray Lag was eliminated late yesterday following a fast workout. He pulled up lame.

Smart turfmen believe the Derby lies among Trusty, Prudery, Leonardo II and Careful. Leonardo II gave another dazzling exhibition of speed yesterday when he worked a mile in 1:31.

The track probably will be fast in which case a new record for the mile and a quarter may be forthcoming. The world's record for the distance now is held by Hourless, made in a match race with Omar Khayyam at Laurel.

Bagby Says Tobin The Most Scientific Batsman in Game

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 6.—Pitcher James Bagby, who led all pitchers in organized baseball last year with 21 victories for the Cleveland American team, thinks Johnny Tobin, right fielder with St. Louis, is the most scientific batsman in the country and a worthy successor to Willie Keeler, who led the National league in 1907 with a batting average of .422.

Bagby says Tobin has the ability to hit the ball as far as other heavy hitters, can hunt more skillfully than most of them and places his hits with more accuracy than any player in the American league.

Tobin has made a good start this year, making 15 hits in 28 times at bat in his first seven games. In the opening series against Cleveland at St. Louis he made 11 hits in 13 times up.

Last year Tobin made 46 extra base hits, his 202 hits and batting average of .349 being exceeded by only seven other batsmen in the American league.

"In the opening series at St. Louis Tobin was the one man we just could not put out," said Bagby. "He had us guessing and never failed to cross us up. When we played him for a bunt, he hit it out. When we figured he was going to swing, he bunted. When we shifted the field he dropped the ball in left. He is the hardest man in the league for us to get out."

PARIS ENJOYS SUNSHINE IN BUS AND TRAMWAYS

By EDWIN W. HELLINGER, United Press Staff Correspondent.

PARIS.—Parisian business men, laborers and shop girls prefer to ride home from work amidst sunshine and pure air—in other words, in omnibuses and tramways—than descend into the gloom and foul odors of the subway.

Transportation statistics furnished the United Press by the Paris municipal bureau show that underground railways lost 40,000,000 passengers during 1920 alone. A large proportion of these shifted to the omnibuses, despite the fact that the buses charge higher fares.

Surface means of transport are crowding underground lines increasingly and steadily in Paris. Last year 566,000,000 rode in tramways and 186,000,000 in omnibuses, as compared to a total of 566,000,000 in the two subway systems, the Metro and the Nord Sud.

And Paris' remarkable street car and omnibus lines are still behind what they were before the war. A number of pre-war routes have not been replaced, and there is lack of cars and buses on the lines which are operating.

Officials attribute the popularity of the buses both to the fact that they are speedier and more direct and to the more pleasant conditions of travel. There is no question of better advertising or competition, because all lines in Paris are owned by the city.

Fares have doubled, both surface and underground, since the end of the war. Subways now charge 30 centimes for second tickets and 50 for first class. Omnibus fares (short rides) average 25 to 50 centimes while tramways range from 15 to 25 centimes.

Both street railways and subways were operated at heavy loss until January, 1921; the deficits running from 20 to 40 per cent. Owing to the slump of 25 per cent in the price of coal, however, executives hope to make the ledgers nearly balance this year.

It would be accurate, however, to pretend that surface lines are "superceding" underground railways or threaten the latter with extinction.

Paris has the finest and most extensive surface railway system of any city in Europe. It embraces about 200 kilometers of track, as compared to the subway's total of only 112 kilometers. The cars are airy and roomy, and there is far less congestion during busy hours than in most cities of much less size.

Paris' omnibus system represents a course of about 180 kilometers, covered by approximately 1,000 buses.

The street railways reach far out into the suburbs, while both subways and omnibuses stop at the city ways. Important extensions of both the latter, however, are contemplated as soon as the dismantling of the fortifications is completed. This will open up new sections for flat-building purposes, and relieve the apartment famine.

Parisian omnibuses are one-story. In appearance they are a cross between a street car and an old-fashioned prairie schooner. The compartment is divided into first and second class sections, the former being equipped with upholstered leather seats.

They stop at pre-arranged stopping points. During rush hours passengers are required to line up in advance, the first to arrive being the first on. The question of who came first is settled by numbered coupons, attached in series on a nearby lamp post for each passenger to grab as he steps up.

PIONEER RESIDENT CALLED BY DEATH

Mrs. C. T. Taylor, Early Settler in Clay County, Dies at Home Here Early Friday.

Mrs. Lucinda Ellen Taylor, wife of C. T. Taylor, died at 1:30 a. m. Friday in her home, 1508 Ninth street. Death was attributed to the infirmities of old age, although Mrs. Taylor had been in failing health but a short time. She was 71 years of age on the ninth of last October.

She had been a resident of northern Texas for over thirty years, the larger portion of that time being spent at Petrolia. Moving south from her birthplace in Kentucky, she first took up her residence in Dallas, but after a short period there, came to Clay county. Two years ago she moved to Clarabon and eventually came to Wichita Falls to live with her children in this city. She had been here less than three months, but was well known to many local residents.

Mrs. Taylor was actively interested in the oil development of the Burk Burnett field, having been the original owner of blocks 94, 97 and 98 in that territory. She also was one of the organizers and principal stockholders of the Godley Oil company, one of the first and most profitable oil companies operating in the newer Burk Burnett field.

Surviving relatives include her husband, C. T. Taylor; four sons and two daughters, all of whom were present at the time of their mother's death. The sons are H. H. and Tom Taylor of Wichita Falls, and J. J. and L. B. Taylor of Clarendon. Mrs. Roy Holloway and Mrs. E. P. Nurrell of Wichita Falls are the daughters. Seven grandchildren and three great-grandchildren also survive Mrs. Taylor, as do three sisters, Mrs. R. H. Joyce of this city, Mrs. T. A. Mattick of Petrolia, and Mrs. C. W. Gracey of Dallas.

The body will be taken to Petrolia Saturday morning by the Merkle and Jann Undertaking company and funeral services conducted in that city with Rev. J. L. Baker, Presbyterian minister of Bowie, officiating.

3 MACHINES STOLEN FRIDAY NIGHT, BUT 2 ARE LATER LOCATED

After a temporary lay off, lasting about three nights, auto thieves and joyriders got back on the job and made away with three machines Thursday night. Two of these were found Friday morning by motorcycle officers. A Nash touring car owned by C. T. McLaughlin, 621 Commerce building, was stolen from in front of the office and was recovered several hours later, abandoned. "Joyriders" was Chief Boyd's verdict.

A similar tale is told of L. E. Eckert's Chevrolet touring car, which was missed from the downtown streets early in the evening. It was found Friday morning by motorcycle officers. A Buick touring car, belonging to C. B. Moore, disappeared and has not yet been found, according to police records. It bore a Texas state license number 428274, serial number 418872, and engine number 614841.

NEW FIRE STATION IS OCCUPIED FRIDAY

New Building on Buchanan Street Now Houses Chief McClure and Crew of Eight.

The city's new fire station on Buchanan street was turned over to the fire department Friday morning after unavoidable delays had postponed its opening nearly a month. Chief McClure moved out of the Central station at the city hall, hauled his household goods to his new home and with "Mac" McClure and eight of the boys took possession of "No. 2," as it is officially known.

At present only one piece of apparatus will be used in No. 2, according to the chief, but an old truck used only for emergencies is being overhauled and will be utilized as a hose wagon within a short time. This, together with the big Stutz combination pump and hose wagon, will care for the needs of the west end of the city.

The eight men assigned to quarters in the new station were recruited from the other three houses and from a long list of applicants. They are J. J. Smith, first driver; E. C. White, second driver; H. C. Farmer, hoseman; J. W. Orman, hoseman; L. B. Armstrong, hoseman; Jim Bradley, plugman; E. Perkins, plugman, and J. P. Zembure, plugman. Chief McClure himself will be in charge of the station.

Twelve men will remain at the Central station. They will be under the direction of Henry Smith, assistant chief.

TO ATTACK VALIDITY OF INDUSTRIAL COURT LAW

TOPEKA, KAN., May 6.—Validity of the Kansas industrial court law in all its aspects is to be attacked in the state supreme court late today in arguments of attorneys for Alexander Howat, president, and other officials of the Kansas miners' union.

The case scheduled for argument today is an appeal from the judgment of Judge A. J. Curran of the Crawford county district court sentencing Howat and his lieutenants to one year in jail for contempt of court in calling a strike in the Pittsburgh district last Friday in violation of an injunction obtained under the anti-strike provisions of the industrial court law.

Aside from citing alleged errors in conduct of the trial before Judge Curran, Howat's attorneys argue in their brief that the accusation failed to charge an offense, since the industrial court law, violation of which is enjoined, is void. The act, it is contended, is unconstitutional.

TWO OF THREE STRIKES IN CHICAGO ARE SETTLED

CHICAGO, May 6.—Two of Chicago's three May Day strikes were settled today as the men returned to work. AUSTIN, May 6.—Governor Neff will be in his office tonight from 7 to 8 o'clock to meet the high school students here to compete in the interscholastic league meet. Telephone Booth Equipped to Serve Thirsty Customer

NEW YORK, May 6.—Evidence that a telephone booth in the Bowery saloon of John Dowling was equipped with a copper tank and a spigot for violation of the prohibition law has been presented to the grand jury by Assistant District Attorney Younger. He declared that Dowling's customers would go to the bar and deposit a dollar and ask for change to use the telephone, receiving a nickel and an empty glass before entering the booth where they could serve themselves. A policeman accidentally discovered the contrivance. He went into the booth to telephone, noticed the spigot and turned it on. Dowling's arrest followed.

Warm Weather Brings Forth the Coat Suit as a Street Costume, and There is Evidence of Ingenuity in Its Building.

Maybe the time is ripe for the American woman to take an interest in a plain coat suit. She has drifted far away into French lanes and by-paths in her acceptance of chemise gowns with capes and full wraps.

Model by Linker & Co. Smart tailored suit of grey cloth which the French woman wears. Linen blouse with turn-over collar tied with black ribbon.

There is no special evidence brought forward that she will cease to wear the frock and the cape, but there is a strong belief that the tailored suit will stimulate her into renewed interest. It may be that this costume is received with enthusiasm at the moment because it is a connecting link between cold and warm weather. It gives one the chance to go without a cape and drop heavy furs. Possibly the renewed interest in the costume may die down when the weather gets too warm to wear any kind of coat. But the tailors and dressmakers have united in producing as many original and exciting coat suits this season as they did when the fashion was undisputed.

During the war France inaugurated the simple frock and loose coat as a substitute for her adaptation of the American costume; she was compelled to do this through a scarcity of men. Now her men have returned to work.

Many of the French designers, notably Callot, are making suits of brightly-colored fabrics as a contrast to the universal black frock. One of Callot's new suits sent to this country is of peacock green homespun, the skirt narrow but not extra short and the box coat, slim in line, reaching to the hips. Here and there are patches of black outlining. The revers are faced with black satin.

Linker & Co., who cater to the smart English trade in France, are including a severe tailored suit of gray cloth which has been widely accepted by the well-dressed French women. The coat and skirt are reasonably long and there is an indentation at the waistline gained more by the pulling in of the cloth than by seams. The revers roll back to show a white linen blouse with a tennie collar and a string tie of black ribbon.

A sketch of this gown appears today, and as it has been sponsored by smart women abroad, its value as a model is established. It is rather more American than French in its building, and there seems to be unanimity in returning to the strictly American suit.

The loop white blouse which comes along with all of the new suits is another American fashion. Some of the new suits are given added severity by edges of a fabric that resembles soft leather. It has a circle finish which gives the effect of varnish. This ribbon is not confined to the edges of cloth suits. It appears on frivolous frocks. It is used as shoulder straps and co-ordinates on gowns of colored taffeta. One of the designers uses flesh-colored net for the upper part of an evening bodice, smoothing it over the edges of cloth suits. It appears on frivolous frocks. One of the designers uses flesh-colored net for the upper part of an evening bodice, smoothing it over the edges of cloth suits.

To go back to the tailored suits for a moment, the insistence upon the white linen blouse as an accessory is of exceeding interest to Americans. The vest is as good as a blouse and saves money, but whichever garment is used there is a high neckline of white that keeps the cloth collar from resting on the neck. These collars do not go over the coat collar. Even when they roll far downward they remain inside the jacket.

DOROTHY DIX'S TALKS

By DOROTHY DIX THE WORLD'S HIGHEST PAID WOMAN WRITER

The Suggester Devil

MY idea of Heaven is a place without a single suggestion in it. I ask nothing better when I die than to pass into a realm of peace where I shall be permitted to do what I want to do, in the way I want to do it, without a dozen people asking me why I don't do it in some other way. I am aware that I never attain this bliss while I remain on this sad old earth, which is made a vale of tears chiefly by the demoniac suggesters with their maddening interference with your every act.

You know how it is, for nobody is lucky enough to escape these pests. Adam was the only human being who ever enjoyed a paradise in which no one told him where to get on, and where to get off, and even his reptile was brief. For as soon as Eve appeared on the scene, she began suggesting an apple die to him because she liked apples, and, bing! The gates of the Garden of Eden began to behind him.

Ever since then where two or three are gathered together, the curse of the suggester is upon them. No one is allowed to do their work, to follow their pleasures, or to rise up or lie down, or eat, or sleep, or dress, or marry, or do anything whatsoever, without being snowed under by gratuitous and undesired advice from all about them. This torment of our days begins with our earliest waking moment when those of our household demand to know why we don't take a hot bath if we take a cold one, or a cold bath if we take a hot one, or suggest a shower if we take a tub. It continues while they suggest that we should have put on light cloths if we have donned dark ones, or a different necktie from the one we are wearing, or another pair of shoes from the one we have elected to wear.

At breakfast it rises to the full strength of a chorus, and we eat to an accompaniment of suggestions as to how much sugar we should put on our cereal, and how we should drink our coffee, and how we should eat our eggs, and whether we should eat breakfast heartily or sparingly, and with the newspaper or without it.

What a meal would be without a single suggestion as to how we ate it, and without being told how bad everything we like is for our digestion and how wholesome everything we loathe is, we can only imagine. It is an ecstasy that no one who lives with their family ever experiences. Nor do you achieve it at a hotel, for the waiter invariably hangs about you with his infernal suggestions of every high-priced thing on the menu.

And it is worse still with your clothes. When a woman buys a new frock, she takes into consideration her purse, her age, her figure, the purpose for which she expects to use the garment, and her taste. Inasmuch as she pays for the garment and is going to wear it, and it pleases her it would seem that it is her own affair, and nobody else's business.

But this is far from being the case. Her husband, her family, her friends, even casual acquaintances fall upon her and demand to know why she didn't get a different colored dress, why she didn't get it made a different style, why she didn't have it made shorter or longer, or fuller or scantier, and why she didn't go to the dressmaker or shop they patronize instead of the one she did. And they never cease until they have spoiled all her pleasure, and made her feel that it is the most inappropriate and unbecoming thing she could possibly have bought, and that she had been cheated in the bargain.

The thing about the suggester that fills you with awe and admiration is his colossal nerve. His egotism is sublime. He is sure that he knows more about a subject than the individual who has devoted his life to studying it.

He may never have been out of his native village or ten miles from home, but he would not hesitate to tell an Arctic explorer just exactly what to take along on a dash to the North Pole. He could not tell you the names of the bones in his own body, but he volunteered by suggestion just how he should operate. He may or may not be able to make a living for himself, but he is perfectly certain that he can tell you how to run your own bank.

And women have the advising bug even worse than men. A woman can no more keep her finger out of any pie that she sees being made than she could fly. She has simply got to interfere in every other woman's business, or perish. That is why no two women can live together in the same house in peace, and it's at the root of the servant problem.

Each of us is responsible for his own life. We make our success. We pay for our failures, and I maintain that it is our inalienable right to have a free hand, and work out our problems unhampered by suggestions we have not asked for, and do not wish. The only people who are privileged to make suggestions to us, are those for whom we are working, and who have a right to have their work done their way. All other suggesters are impertinent meddlers who take up our time, and make us waste our energy fighting them, and fill our hearts with murderous impulses. What a pity there is not some lethal chamber where they could all be done painlessly to death.

But would any of us escape the fate of the loathed and hated suggester?

THE BACK STOOP.

The girls an' Ma set out in front An' rock an' saw like all possessed An' say they can't see why I won't Put on a collar an' a vest An' set out there with them an' rest.

But me, I like the back stoop best, The girls an' Ma are primed in white (I'm proud of them as I kin be). But when it comes to restin' right Somehow we never kin agree. There may be more in front to see, But this back stoop will do fer me.

I'm tired of lookin' at front yards, The feeble grass the city's got, The railway tracks an' boulevards An' stony walks an' pavements.

To really rest, I tell you what, I like the old back stoop a lot, There's things out here that ain't in front, That nowhere else a fellow sees. I like to hear the pooker grunt An' watch the collar fightin' flea, To hear the chickens an' the bees— I'll take the back stoop, if you please.

The common things I cotton to That other folks don't think are fine, I rather like the back yard view— A washin' hangin' on the line, A woodpile with its smell of pine— I'll take the old back stoop fer mine.

In front there may be more to see, More 'howdies' may be said to you, But I've got neighbors here with me: Fer chickens chirp an' pigeons coo, An' 'howdy' sing a song or two, An' so the old back stoop will do.

THE HOUSEHOLD

Edited by ANNE RITTENHOUSE

THE SCREEN PROBLEM.

No one who did not have to buy window screens last summer did so, because screens were among the household comforts that were highest in price. They are still pretty expensive, and many householders are holding off trying to get along without having their houses screened until there is a still greater fall in prices of this sort.

The worst way to manage this is to plan to have your windows open but little. However, it is quite possible to put up black or dark green mosquito netting so that you can manage for one summer at least without the screens. To be sure this keeps out rather more air than does fine screening but it is not a bad substitute.

There are folding screens that prove quite a godsend. It is possible to get a few of these using them in the sleeping-room windows at night and in the living-room windows in the daytime. Of course care should be taken in removing and putting in these screens. The outside window should be closed tight before the screen is removed and not opened until it is securely in place. Be very sure that the screen fits the window frame very securely.

It is quite possible to keep flies free enough from your verandas so that you may sit there without being annoyed by them. If there are mosquitoes in the neighborhood, however, no veranda will be comfortable in the evening. Some persons have half of their veranda screened in so that there will be place to sit in the open on summer evenings yet so that in the daytime there would be an unobscured section which would be comfortable in the daytime.

"What's In a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts About Your Name; Its History; Its Meaning; Whence It Was Derived; Its Significance; Your Lucky Day and Lucky Jewel.

JUDITH. JUDITH is sometimes confused with Edith because of its similarity of ending, but this is an erroneous contention. It really has its origin in the difficult Northern name of Gydya or Gytka which, because it sounds like Gith, the contraction of Eargyth, are believed to have some connection. But Judith is purely Northern, having belonged to the proud dame of Hordaland, who refused to marry Harald Harfagre unless he was sole king of all Norway. Later it was given to the semi-Danish ladies of Earl Godwin's family and melted into Gyttha. Finally Jutta appears as a contraction of Judith.

Judith, according to the Old Testament, was the heroine of the book of the same name in the Apocrypha. She was a beautiful Jewess of Bethulia, who, when her town was besieged by Holofernes, the general of Nebuchadnezzar, attended him in his tent, and when he was in his cups, killed him and cut off his head, whereupon her townmen fell upon the Assyrians and defeated them with great slaughter. Judith has always been a favorite Biblical name.

Perhaps because of this courageous deed of the Biblical heroine, Judith came to mean "praised." Judith and Juditha are favorite English derivatives; the Italians have a particularly musical version, Quiddita. Judy is a diminutive, used generally as a form of affection, except in the instance of the Judy of the famous Punch and Judy show.

Judith has been beloved of authors, but curiously enough, her name has been rather neglected by the poets. There seem to be no noteworthy examples of odes to her, or other heroic deeds. But the lack has not discouraged the popularity of her name in England and America, while the harmonious Italian version has great vogue in that country.

The jade is Judith's talismanic stone. Its milky green depths hold promise of freedom from danger and insure fearlessness in its wearer. It is a curative, according to popular superstition, and hence is believed to ward off disease, and the bite of bad luck. Tuesday is Judith's lucky day, and 4 her mystic number.

To-Day's Jewel
Lucky Color Flower

SAPPHIRE. MENUSAL good luck should come today to those who wear the sapphire, since it is both the talismanic stone and natal gem. The ancients believed that the gods had blessed it, and that it brought riches and success to its owner. To women it was supposed to bring assurance of faithfulness in love, changing color as an indication of infidelity. It was also claimed that the sapphire was an antidote to poison, both of the body and of the mind, and that one who wore it would never be the victim of envy or jealousy, or be troubled by false rumors. Today's color is dark blue, significant of wisdom and clear thinking. However, used in a woman's gown, it indicates jealousy in love. The primrose, symbol of domesticity, is today's flower.

Something To Think About

Devil Worship

By F. A. WALKER

A N American explorer has just returned to civilization after a visit to the interior of Ecuador and the homeland of the Jibaro Indians. This tribe of head-hunting savages have lived in the same territory since long before Columbus discovered the Americas and have kept wholly free from the influence of civilization. The most striking evidence of their failure to advance in the centuries which have passed over them is the report of the explorer that the Jibaros do not believe in a God, but that they do worship devils.

It is practically the universal history of the developments of all peoples from the savage state to that of civilization, that the belief in devils precedes that of a belief in God. Before they conceive of or deity a ruler in the realm of good they establish a kingdom of evil and nominate a being supreme in the management of one or all forms of danger and misfortune.

Herbert Spencer in his analysis of human worship bases religion on the Unknown, declaring that the savage first worships those powers which he does not understand. It is the most concern's ability, because of his savagery, to trace cause from effect that leads him to assign to totally unrelated things the cause for what he observes.

And since it is those things which harm or threaten them with harm which most concern him he establishes first his devil cause rather than his God causes. He hears in the thunder the voices of a devil living in the sky who punishes with the swift lightning and with fire.

He sees a devil in the wild beast that kills his cattle. There is a demon power that helps his enemies of another tribe. The white man's gun is an invention of some evil spirit and the drought which spoils his crop or the deluge which overflows his lands are evidences to him of the activities of some powerful and unfriendly spirit which he must in some way appease.

Each of us, highly civilized as we think we are, gives a tremendous power to evil.

Despite the fact that we read in the Bible, and generally think we believe it, that the God of our civilization is omnipotent—all powerful—we immediately deny that fact by giving evil, which cannot be an attribute of God, equal or greater power.

Practically everybody, unless we except Christian Science believers, think that sickness is much more powerful than health and that death is certain to triumph over life.

We can only establish the rule of evil by suppressing the rule of good. The way to get rid of evil is to let in the rule of good.

Perhaps we should not blame the poor savage in Ecuador for failing to believe in God and having a liberal supply of devils. He has not yet been able to think out the truth, which most concern him, and we hope, better for that wisdom, should see to it that as little as possible of "devil worship" creeps into our existences and influences our lives.

An O. HENRY Story

The Badge of Policeman O'Roon

By O. HENRY.

DURING a certain war a troop calling itself the Gentle Riders, rode into history and one or two ambuscades. The Gentle Riders were recruited from the aristocracy of the wild men of the West and the wild men of the aristocracy of the East. In khaki there is little telling them one from another, so they became good friends and comrades all around.

Ellsworth Remsen, whose old Knickerbocker descent atoned for his modest rating of only ten millions, ate his canned beef daily by the campfires of the Gentle Riders. The war was a great lark to him, so that he scarcely regretted polo and planked shad.

One of the troopers was a well set up, affable, cool young man, who called himself O'Roon. To this young man Remsen took an especial liking.

After the war Remsen came back to his polo and shad. One day a well set up, affable, cool young man disturbed him at his club, and he and O'Roon were soon pounding each other and exchanging opprobrious epithets after the manner of long-lost friends. O'Roon looked seedy and out of luck and perfectly contented. But it seemed that his content was only apparent.

"Get me a job, Remsen," he said. "I've just handed a barber my last shilling."

"No trouble at all," said Remsen. "I know a lot of men who have banks and stores and things downtown. Any particular line you fancy?"

"Yes," said O'Roon, with a look of interest. "I took a walk in your Central Park this morning. I'd like to be one of those bobbies on horseback. That would be about the ticket. Besides, it's the only thing I could do. I can ride a little and the fresh air suits me. Think you could land that for me?"

Remsen was sure that he could. And in a very short time he did. And they who were not above looking at mounted policemen might have seen a well set up, affable, cool young man on a prancing chestnut steed attending to his duties along the driveways of the park.

It came just as Remsen was strolling into Fifth Avenue from his club a few doors away. A motor car was creeping along foot by foot, impeded by a freshet of vehicles that filled the street. In the car was a chauffeur and an old gentleman with snowy side whiskers and a Scotch plaid cap which could not be worn while automobiling except by a personage. But these two were of no consequence—except, perhaps, for the guiding of the machine and the paying for it. At the old gentleman's side sat a young lady more beautiful than pomgranate blossoms, more exquisite than the first quarter moon viewed at twilight through the tops of oleanders. Remsen saw her and knew his fate. Slowly the auto passed, and, if we place the poets above the autists, carried the heart of Remsen with it.

Luckily for Remsen's peace of mind there came a diversion in the guise of a reunion of the Gentle Riders of the city. There were not many of them—perhaps a score—and there was wasail and things to eat, and speeches and the Spaniard was heard again in recantation. And when daylight threatened them the survivors prepared to depart. But some remained upon the battlefield. One of these was Trooper O'Roon, who was not seasoned to potent liquors. His legs declined to fulfill the obligations they had sworn to the police department.

"I'm stewed, Remsen," said O'Roon to his friend. "They'll take away my shield and break me. I can think and talk non-con-sc-see-sec-utively, but let a stammer with my feet. I've got to go on duty in three hours. The jig is up, Remsen. The jig is up, I tell you."

"Look at me," said Remsen, who was his smiling self, pointing to his own face. "Whom do you see here?"

"Go," followed O'Roon, dizzily. "Go, old Remsen."

"Not so," said Remsen. "You see Mounted Policeman O'Roon. Look at your face—no, you can't do that without a glass—but look at mine, and think of yours. How much alike are we?" As two French table d'hôte dinners. With your badge on your horse, in your uniform, will I charm nursemaids and prevent the grass from growing under people's feet in the Park this day. I will have you; badge and your honor, besides having the jolliest I've been blessed with since we licked Spain."

pleasures do ten-millions have. Along the driveway in the early morning spun a victoria drawn by a pair of fiery bays. There was something foreign about the affair, for the Park is rarely used in the morning except by unimportant people who love to be healthy, poor and wise. In the vehicle sat an old gentleman with snowy side-whiskers and a Scotch plaid cap which could not be worn while driving except by a personage. At his side sat the lady who looked like pomgranate blossoms and the gibbous moon.

Remsen met them coming. At the instant of their passing, her eye looked into his and but for the ever onward's heart of a true lover he could have sworn that she flushed a faint pink. He trotted on for twenty yards, and then wheeled his horse at the sound of runaway hoofs. The bays had bolted.

Remsen sent his chestnut after the victoria like a shot. There was work cut out for the impersonator of Policeman O'Roon. The chestnut ranged alongside the off boy thirty seconds after the chestnut. The runaway team was tugged to an inglorious halt by Remsen's tough muscles. The driver released his hands from the wrapped reins, jumped from his seat and stood at the head of the team. The chestnut, approving his new rider, danced and pranced, reviling equinely the subdued bays. Remsen, lingering was dimly conscious of a vague, impossible, unnecessary old gentleman in a Scotch cap who talked incessantly about something. And he was acutely conscious of a pair of violet eyes that would have drawn St. Pyrites from his iron pillar—whatever the allusion is—and of the lady's smile and look—a little frightened, but a look that, with the ever onward heart of a true lover, he could not yet construe. They were asking his name and bestowing upon him well-bred thanks for his heroic deed, and the Scotch cap was especially babbling and insistent. But the eloquent appeal was in the eyes of the lady.

A little thrill of satisfaction ran through Remsen, because he had a name to give which, without undue pride, was worthy of being spoken in high places, and of a small fortune which, with due pride, he could leave at his and without disgrace. He opened his lips to speak and closed them again.

Who was he? Mounted Policeman O'Roon. The badge and the honor of his comrade were in his hands. Of Ellsworth Remsen, ten-millions and Knickerbocker, had just rescued pomgranate blossoms and Scotch cap from possible death, where was Policeman O'Roon? Off his beat, exposed, disgraced, discharged. Love had come, but before that there had been something that demanded precedence—the fellowship of men on battlefields fighting an alien foe.

Remsen touched his cap, looked toward the chestnut's ears, and took refuge in vernacularity.

"Don't mention it," he said stolidly. "We policemen are paid to do these things. It's our duty."

And he rode away—rode away cursing noblesse oblige, but knowing he could never have done anything else.

At the end of the day Remsen sent the chestnut to the stables and went to O'Roon's room. The policeman was again a well set up, affable, cool young man who sat by the window smoking cigars.

"I wish you and the rest of the police force and all badges, horses, brass buttons and the men who can't drink two glasses of brut without getting upset were at the devil," said Remsen feebly.

O'Roon smiled with evident satisfaction.

"Good old Remsen," he said, affably. "I know all about it. They trampled me down and cornered me here two hours ago. There was a little row at home, you know, and I cut sticks just to show them. I don't believe I told you that my Governor was the Earl of Ardenley. Punny you should bob against them in the Park. If you damaged that horse of mine I'll never forgive you. I'm going to buy him and take him back with me. Oh, yes, and I think my sister—Lady Angela, you know—wants particularly for you to come up to the hotel with me to see the ring. Didn't lose my badge, did you, Remsen? I've got to turn it in at Headquarters when I resign."

Remsen trotted down the bridge path, enjoying himself hugely, so few real

CITY COMPLETES WORK OF RESURFACING PAVEMENT ON DOWNTOWN STREETS

The work of water-proofing and resurfacing the wooden block pavement downtown was completed Thursday and all business streets have been reopened to traffic. The new surface is being sprinkled, both to allow the dust to set and to set the crushed stone as a wearing surface. City officials believe that the next heavy rain will show the value of the treatment, which was planned to prevent the swelling and buckling of the pavement in hot weather.

Wichita Falls' entry is L. L. WANT CANADIAN WHEAT MILLED IN THE U. S. AND THE FLOUR SHIPPED BACK

MINNEAPOLIS, May 6.—Wheat producers, farm organizations, county agents and business men of the north-west have been requested to give consideration to a proposal for the milling of Canadian wheat in bond by United States mills by James Ford, vice-president of the local flour milling company.

Canada any amount of wheat for manufacture into flour, providing that for every 100 pounds so imported, they export 100 pounds of flour. Under this plan the millers would be bonded by the secretary of the treasury while importing Canadian wheat, such bonds to be canceled when they have exported flour equal in weight to the wheat imported.

The contention is that while barring the door to the Canadian wheat will not alter its effect on the price, permitting it to be manufactured for export will result in a number of distinct benefits.
