

SHERIFF AND COUNTY ATTORNEY AT ODDS AS TO SUNDAY SHOWS

SUNDAY OPENING LEADS TO REV. EN ARRESTS AND NEAR-FIGHT

"EVERYTHING OR NOTHING" IS ATTITUDE OF SMITH

Strict Enforcement of Law May Result; Theater Manager Plans to Call Mass Meeting

Three moving picture theaters were open in Wichita Falls Sunday, in accordance with announced plans of the proprietors. Managers and attaches were arrested and released on $250 bond. Large crowds attended the performances.

The opening of the shows developed a sharp difference of opinion between Sheriff Fred Starn and County Attorney E. L. Fulton. The latter filed complaints against the movie managers and attaches, seven being arrested, in accordance with his announcement that he would continue to enforce the law. Sheriff Smith has taken the position that if the law is to be enforced against movie operators, it should also be enforced against drug stores, soda fountains, cigar stands and other businesses that have never, in this city, observed the letter of the law.

H. S. Ford, manager of the Olympic and Empire theaters, which were open Sunday, is planning to call a mass meeting for some date later in the week to endorse the stand of the sheriff for the "everything or nothing" Sunday law enforcement. Plans for such a meeting had not been definitely formed Monday afternoon.

One drug store, the Ellis, in Floral Heights, was refusing to sell tobacco and soft drinks Sunday, confining its operations only to drugs and articles not under the law's ban.

Under instructions from County Attorney Fulton, Ranger M. T. Gonsaulas was stationed near the entrance of one of the shows, taking the names of patrons for use as witnesses. While at the court house to make bond for his employees, Mr. Ford protested against the use of the ranger, saying he would not attempt to deny that the show was open. Mr. Fulton replied that he would use his own methods in getting evidence, and the two men squared off at each other, but no blows were passed.

Mr. Ford said that it was the intention to open the shows next Sunday again.

The men arrested were H. S. Ford, R. M. Douglas and L. V. Ford of the Olympic; R. L. Hurst and W. T. Page of the Empire; Fred Hosenach and J. M. Kelly of the Gem. The cases have not been set for trial.

Strict enforcement of the Sunday law would not affect small games held at the Lake Wichita amusements, Mr. Fulton said Monday.

"It is not against the law to run a dance hall, a swimming pool or a baseball game on Sunday," he said. "It is against the law to sell a piece of chewing gum. It's a strange situation, of course, but that's the law."

PERMANENT TARIFF RATES EXPECTED TO BREAK THE RECORD

SURVEY OF SCHEDULES REVEALS AN AVERAGE ABOVE PAYNE-ALDRICH BILL.

THREE TIMES THE RATE OF UNDERWOOD BILL

Expected to Have Measure Ready for Presentation to the House by June First.

By HERBERT W. WALKER
United Press Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Republican congressional records for high protective tariffs will be annulled and probably broken by the new permanent tariff bill which has been virtually completed by the republican members of the house ways and means committee today.

A survey of the schedule thus far agreed to by the sub-committees reveals that the rates may average slightly above the schedules of the famous Payne-Aldrich bill of 1912, which caused a serious split in the party.

The rates in general in the new bill will be nearly three times the present tariff rates as provided by the Underwood law. In the new bill, which is being framed the free list, on which now are many food products, has been virtually eliminated. One member of the committee estimated that it would not contain more than fifteen or twenty items in place of more than 300.

Representative Fordney, chairman of the ways and means committee, believes the new bill will double the amount now being received from tariff duties, which is about $250,000,000. Other members of the committee believe because of the general business depression imports will be greatly decreased by the higher duties and the yield will not be more than $50 million a year.

Fordney said today that he expects to have the bill before the house by June 1.

"It was a thoroughly republican and protective measure," he said.

Wool of the famous "schedule K," which caused friction between President Taft and congress in Payne-Aldrich days, has been taken from the free list, and the following duties imposed on it: In the grease, 11 cents a pound; washed, 22 cents; scoured, 33 cents. The duties on wool, textiles and other goods have been increased correspondingly.

The cotton duties will be slightly under the Payne-Aldrich rates, although the rates on finished cotton textiles will be higher.

The sugar duties will be two cents a pound for imports from countries other than Cuba, and 1 1/2 cents from Cuba. These are virtually the Payne-Aldrich rates. The tariffs on agricultural products will be somewhat lower than the emergency tariff provides.

ORDER IS RESTORED IN INDIANA REFORMATORY FOLLOWING UPRISING

JEFFERSONVILLE, IND., May 9.—Order had been restored in the reformatory following the uprising of prisoners during which a guard was beaten to death and two convicts shot.

J. H. Grimm, a guard, was attacked in the prison bakery late last night, where five convicts were working. He was beaten to death. G. H. Phelps, captain of the night guard, was disarmed.

The fire convicts at the point of the stolen revolver ordered Harry Goldman, a trustee, to open the door. Instead, he gave the alarm.

Herick McCarty and Fred Mullett, leader of the rebellion, were shot by reinforcements of the guard.

LABOR TROUBLE THREATENS TO REACH A CRISIS TODAY

BUENOS AIRES, May 9.—Labor troubles which have embarrassed port authorities here for some time threatened to reach a crisis today.

The labor protective association was prepared to carry out its announced plan of employing nonunion labor in transporting goods to and from vessels if union labor leaders refused to do the work.

There was apprehension in official circles that the decision of the association, which is composed of firms engaged in shipping activities here, might lead to serious conflict with organized labor.

The government strongly approve of the decision of the association, said an editorial published yesterday by La Epoca, the government organ. The association was charged by the newspaper with threatening "suddenly to start a new social conflict, the outcome of which would be difficult to calculate."

THREE MEMPHIS MEN ARRESTED IN CONNECTION WITH ROBBERY OF BANK

MEMPHIS, TENN., May 9.—Three Memphis men were arrested early today in connection with the robbery of the Planters bank at Como, Miss., Saturday. Three other arrests are expected.

No formal charges have yet been placed against the men held here and their names are withheld by the police. Officers from Como arrived today with two sacks of securities stolen from the bank which aggregate $200,000 in value. The securities were not negotiable and had been thrown into a creek by the robbers.

NINE-YEAR-OLD BOY IS FOUND HANGING IN ROOM

OMAHA, May 9.—Sammy Getnick, aged 9, hanged himself in his bedroom here last night. His parents, not knowing any motive for suicide, believe he was accidentally strangled when his head slipped through a noose in a heavy cord with which they think he was making a swing in the doorway. The police say he made a regular hangman's noose, knotted the cord many times to make it short enough, kicked a table from under his feet, and then drew up his legs to make death certain.

The boy told his parents he was going upstairs to bed.

The family arrived here from Russia in October. Since then Sammy had successfully passed four grades in school.

SIX INTERNATIONAL PROBLEMS CONFRONT THE UNITED STATES

MEXICO QUESTION PRESENTS A MATTER FOR EARLY CONSIDERATION.

PANAMA PROTEST ALSO INCLUDED IN THE LIST

Other Issues Involve Japan, Holland, the German Cables and Santo Domingo.

By A. L. BRADFORD,
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, May 9.—With the question of American representatives in European councils, Secretary of State Hughes will now turn his attention to six other serious international problems vitally affecting the United States. It was learned today.

These problems are:

1. The question of the recognition of the Obregon government of Mexico in a way to insure protection of American lives and interests.
2. The defiant refusal of the little republic of Panama to accept the award of Justice White giving the disputed Coto territory to Costa Rica.
3. The protest of Japan against the California anti-Japanese land laws.
4. The action of the Dutch government in barring American interests from participation in the exploitation of the Djambi oil fields in central Sumatra.
5. How to dispose finally of the former German cables, a question which has been in a deadlock between the five great powers in the international communication conference for months.
6. Whether to carry out the announced intention of Wilson administration to withdraw the American military from Santo Domingo, which has been under consideration for some time.

EIGHT ARE KILLED IN WEEK-END DISTURBANCES AT POINTS IN IRELAND

DUBLIN, May 9.—Four members and two former members of the crown forces in Ireland lost their lives in week-end disturbances. One woman was killed for associating with ex-soldiers and Sinn Feiner brought the death list to eight.

Two constables were killed here and a congregation in a Jesuit church in Gardiner street was thrown into panic by shots fired outside. A man was killed at Castle Island, county Kerry. Constable Storey was killed as he left church. Constable Stierland was killed in Cork.

Two former soldiers were killed in an ambush in Youghal, near Cork, early Saturday. A woman with them was killed, also. Unofficial reprisals followed the attack.

An ambush in county Cavan resulted in one Sinn Feiner killed.

INVENTOR AND BUILDER OF AIR LINER DIRECTS SALVAGING OF PLANE

MILWAUKEE, May 9.—A. W. Lawson, inventor and builder of air liners, was down to his field shortly after dawn today salvaging his wrecked plane and directing his crew to make hurried repairs.

Lawson's 40-passenger air liner, the largest ever built, smashed to earth yesterday when it hit a tree on its trial trip.

Damage can be repaired in two months, Lawson said.

SAYS GERMANY SEEMS TO LEAD IN METAL MARKETS

ST. LOUIS, May 9.—Germany is taking active measures to once more gain ascendancy in the non-ferrous metal markets of the world, and is only delaying her plan until the reparations question is settled, according to Stephen Tuthill of New York, secretary of the American Zinc institute, who addressed the opening session of the third annual convention of the organization here today.

Mr. Tuthill uttered a warning to the American producers that their trade is threatened.

He asserted at present Germany and Belgium are conducting negotiations for a re-establishment of their former trade relations in the metal market.

MEXICO'S PRESIDENT TRAINS HIS SONS TO LEAD ARMY

President Obregon of Mexico is a confirmed "family man" and is never happier than when surrounded by his children. The president's love of domesticity is such that it was reported at one time that he would not live in the great national palace, the official home of Mexican presidents, but would occupy a quiet house set in large grounds on the outskirts of the capital. The accompanying photographs, taken in the grounds of the national palace, show the president with his sons and daughter. They reveal that at least two of the youngsters evidently have military aspirations. In the insert is Refugio Obregon, the president's pretty 14-year-old daughter. President Obregon is shown drilling his boys, Alvaro, 4, and Mayo, 3, in the manual of arms, while his oldest son Humberto 13 stands by to correct the youngsters.

Pickpockets Object To Dishonest Habit A Victim Employs

GENOA, May 9.—The chief of police has received a letter signed the "Tramways Pickpockets' association" complaining that the persons they rob have "the distinct habit" of declaring a much larger financial loss than is true.

They cite specific instances where one man claiming to have been robbed of two thousand and five hundred lire, lost only fifty, and another reported a loss of eighteen hundred lire when his pocketbook contained less than two hundred.

The letter argues that such exaggerations are likely to cause strained relations in the pickpocket fraternity. "Alleged honest people should be more delicate," the letter ends.

NOVEL ATTEMPT TO SOLVE THE ECONOMIC PROBLEM

VIENNA, May 9.—The Tyrol has introduced a novel money as a novel attempt to solve the local economic problem. An act passed by the diet provides that a non-resident of the province who buys anything for more than ten natives for everything. The non-resident must buy special money on the basis of the German mark, the exchange rate being at the ratio of ten to one, and is compelled to use it instead of crowns. Half the profit of this transaction will go to the government.

PREDICTS AUSTRALIA WILL BE DRY IN TEN YEARS

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Australia will be entirely under prohibition inside of ten years and New Zealand will vote dry next year, in the opinion of Arthur Toombs, state superintendent of the prohibition forces of Queensland, who arrived here yesterday for a conference with Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the Anti-Saloon league.

Mr. Toombs said the issue in Australia now is whether prohibition can be enforced and sustained and the United States is the experimental spot.

11 PLACES CAPTURED BY WICHITA COUNTY

Electra and Local Students Win Substantial Honors at State Meet at Austin.

Eleven places, including the girls' senior debating championship and second place in the boys' tennis doubles, were won by Wichita county representatives at the state interscholastic meet held in Austin the last three days of last week, according to complete reports reaching here Sunday.

A mixed schedule is all that prevented Wichita Falls from annexing still another ward, according to reports brought back Sunday, by William Powers, boys' singles tennis entrant, was forced to withdraw from that event in order to compete in doubles. Both singles and doubles were being played at the same time and he was unfortunate in drawing a position which prevented him from contesting both.

Sam Bashara, junior boys' debater, also, in the morning, carried over the Hillsboro entrant before being forced to withdraw, and in the opinion of those who saw him perform he would have been in the running in the final. Paired with Clifton Hayden, the final second place in the doubles, being beaten by Oak Cliff High of Dallas in a grueling match Friday afternoon.

The Wichita Falls delegation returned Sunday evening and were enthusiastically over the reception accorded them at Austin. Through the efforts of Miss Kinzie they were given a private introduction to the governor Saturday afternoon and were later shown through the executive mansion by Miss Alla Maude Neff, daughter of the governor.

NEWSPAPERS COMMENT ON SECRETARY HUGHES' NOTE

TOKYO, April 13.—(Delayed.)—Secretary Hughes' note indicating that the United States reserved all her rights on the disposition of German possessions overseas growing out of the war, brought forth much newspaper discussion, all of which recognized the great importance of the points raised. The general opinion expressed was that the question virtually meant a reopening of the peace conference.

TOOTS AND CASPER—A Detachable Scalp Is a Great Convenience Sometimes

The Adventure of the Second Stain

By A. CONAN DOYLE Copyright, 1921, by Harper Bros. Published by special arrangement with The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

PART ONE. I had intended "The Adventure of the Abbey Grange" to be the last of those exploits of my friend, Mr. Sherlock Holmes, which I should ever communicate to the public. This resolution of mine was not due to any lack of material, since I have notes of many hundreds of cases to which I have never alluded, nor was it caused by any want of interest on the part of my readers in the singular personality and unique methods of this remarkable man. It was the final decision of the publisher, Mr. Holmes has shown to the continued publication of his experiences. So long as he was in actual professional practice and records of his success were of some practical value to him, but since he has indefinitely retired from London and taken himself to study and bee-ferming on the Sussex coast, he has been unable to furnish me with any more material. It is now some time that I have been endeavoring to get him to write for me, but he has been so busy that he has not had time to do so. I have, however, been able to get hold of some of his old papers, and I have been able to get hold of some of his old papers, and I have been able to get hold of some of his old papers.

"Who is there in England who did not know of the existence of this letter?" "Each member of the cabinet was informed of it yesterday, but the pledge of secrecy which attends every cabinet meeting was increased by the solemn warning which was given by the prime minister. Good heavens, to think that within a few hours I should myself have lost it!" His handsome face was distorted with a spasm of despair, and his hands tore at his hair. For a moment we caught a glimpse of the natural man, impulsive, ardent, keenly sensitive. The next the aristocratic mask was replaced, and the gentle voice had returned. "Besides the members of the cabinet there are two, or possibly three, departmental officials who know of the letter. No one else in England, Mr. Holmes. I assure you."

"That is a state secret of the utmost importance, and I fear that I cannot tell you, nor do I think it necessary. If by the aid of the powers which you are so kind to possess you can find such an envelope as I describe with its enclosure, you will have done a great service to the country, and earned any reward which it lies in our power to bestow."

"When I discovered my loss, Mr. Holmes, which was at eight o'clock this morning, I at once informed the prime minister, and he at once suggested that we have both come to you."

"No, sir," said the prime minister, with the quick, decisive manner for which he was famous. "We have no time to lose. To inform the police, must in the long run, mean to inform the public. This is what we particularly desire to avoid."

Floral Heights Methodist Church Opened With Impressive Service

A sacrificial offering, which marked the conclusion of the opening services of the Floral Heights Methodist church Sunday morning, netted a total of $4,000.

REV. W. L. TITTLE, Pastor.

A special effort was made to have a large attendance at the Sunday school, and the efforts were rewarded by 52 attending. The collection amounted to $22.20. The various new class rooms were occupied for the first time and many of the cases had previously bought fixtures for the rooms. The members of the First Methodist church, south, joined in making the opening service a success. The auditorium and the balcony were filled and chairs were provided for a large number who arrived just before the morning service opened at 10 o'clock. Bishop Alnoworth in his opening prayer invoked the Divine blessings upon the new institution and asked that the church might be a New Testament church of Jesus Christ, that it might stand for actuality of spirituality, and that no rationalism should ever come forth from the pulpit. The Scripture lesson was taken from Acts XX and from this chapter the bishop selected a part of the 28th verse for the text of his sermon, "Take heed and fear the church which ye see which he has purchased with his own blood."

The church was traced from the time of its beginning when Christ chose the twelve disciples down through the acts of the apostles and then to the stage which it is now occupying. It was revealed in the epistles of St. Paul. He told of the persecution of the church by Saul and the revelation given Saul when Christ in His own voice appeared to him on the road to Damascus with the words "Saul, why persecutest thou Me." This speaker told that it was the first intimation of the fact that he was persecuting Jesus Christ by persecuting the church.

WAS SURPRISE OF HIS LIFE, HE SAYS. Oklahoma Business Man Says Tanlac Restored Him a Year Ago—Still Feels Fine. "I endorse Tanlac from the bottom of my heart, for it set me right a year ago and I have enjoyed the best of health ever since," said Claude E. Anderson, 260 moving in the city of Oklahoma. Mr. Anderson is a member of the firm of Anderson and Day, and his standing and influence are too well known to require further comment. "I hadn't been in good health," he went on, "for some two years and was run-down generally. I could hardly take care of my business. What little I did do was done in a nervous and I felt tired out from morning till night. I was nervous and restless and my whole system seemed to be out of order. I didn't know what it was, but I felt good and I was worried over where it would all lead to."

WHY?

Copyright, 1920, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc. Like the use of mistletoe at Christmas, and many other similar customs, the celebration of the first of May as a holiday comes down to us from the days of the Druids in England.

Partly to offset the influence of the Roman Catholic clergy who commenced to hold church celebrations on this day, and the "Queen of May" was thus originally emblematic of the mother of Christ.

DRESS : : By ANNE RITTENHOUSE : :

By the Elimination of Needless Trimming and the Selection of Simple Materials the Mourning Clothes Show Much Improvement Over Those of a Generation Ago.

THE wearing of black for mourning is a less difficult proposition now than in a day when all black costumes were less usual. Often the very thing that the person in mourning wanted to avoid was conspicuousness and by the sort of mourning devised by dressmakers all this was just exactly what she did not do.

Another thing that has of course tended to make the wearing of mourning less conspicuous, for evening black, is the fact that black, even all black, is so often selected by the woman who is not in mourning. One needs to be very keen observer to distinguish between the black costume worn in mourning and the black costume worn in mourning.

The crop this year is almost 9 per cent larger than last year, while the area to be harvested is 15 per cent more than last year.

SPENCER REVIVES THE WILSON CONTROVERSY

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Senator Spencer, republican, Missouri, revived today in an address in the senate the controversy over the removal of William Wilson last October during the presidential campaign over what Mr. Wilson said at a plenary session of the peace conference on May 31, 1919. The controversy revolved around an alleged declaration by Mr. Wilson that if the territorial integrity of Rumania and Serbia should be threatened, America would be forced to assist them. Recalling that Mr. Wilson had not having made such a statement, and also that he did not make a statement of his remarks, Senator Spencer presented the full text of Mr. Wilson's address which he obtained last month from the state department and which Secretary Hughes wrote him had been received at the department from Paris in July, 1919.

Carpenter's Manager Claims His Man Can Hit Just as Hard as the Champion.

By FRANCES DES CAMPS Manager and trainer of Georges Carpentier.

(Written for the United Press.) NOTE—This is one of several articles written for the United Press by Des Camps before he sailed for America.

LA GUERRE, FRANCE, May 6.—(By mail.)—The Dempsey-Carpentier world's championship fight cannot last more than six rounds.

By that time either one of the two principals will be hors du combat.

It is not possible for any human frame to resist the punishment both Carpentier and Dempsey will be giving each other for more than eighteen minutes.

Personally, I expect the end before the sixth round. Whoever lands the first real blow will win. Both have a punch heavy enough to end it with one blow.

The element of chance consequently will play a prominent part. The exigencies of the ring are never certain and even the best of fighters is liable to leave an opening once in a while.

Once will be enough for Dempsey on July 2. There will be more actual energy expended and more force in blows exchanged in the hypothetical 15 minutes of fighting than any of the old-time championship fights in four or five times that many rounds.

Dempsey can hit harder than any boxer America ever produced. Carpentier can hit just as hard as Dempsey. I know this may surprise some of the American readers, but it is generally supposed that Carpentier is inferior to Dempsey in strength.

What Carpentier may lack in physical strength, he makes up for with a super-knowledge of how to hit and where to hit.

FALL, THE SOUTHERNER IN THE PRESIDENT'S CABINET

Secretary of the Interior Brings With Him an Atmosphere of "Befo' the War" Days Mingling With a Breath From the Wide Plains of the Great Southwest, Where He Lives Like a Grandee

By William Atherton Du Puy

WHEN that group of ten men which advises the President and conducts the affairs of his Cabinet gathers around the council table at the White House on Tuesdays and Fridays one may sit outside with the newspapers and give himself a rare bit of travel by journeying in imagination to the homes from which they come, taking a look at the activities which are theirs. Since his home and his business make up the structure a man has built around himself through the activities of a lifetime, they, of all things, may be regarded as most nearly indicating the manner of man he is.

One might start with Mr. Weeks, who has built himself a commodious and well-appointed home, surrounded by cultivated acres, on the top of a mountain in New Hampshire, where his people have dwelt for two and a half centuries. One might think of Mr. Mellon, with his palace on Woodland road, in Pittsburgh, with his network of interests among money-gorged banks of that teeming metropolis, with his steel and coke interests, with Donora, the town of his creation, aglow at night with molten iron poured about like milk in a creamery. One might loop the world with Herbert Hoover, whom millions write down as their savior. Then one might pause to consider the gentleman who sits next to him, Albert Bacon Fall, of New Mexico, and more likely than not he would have little information from which to construct a scene back home.

If men are to be judged by their homes Secretary Fall is, of the Department of the Interior, is one quite apart from his fellows, representing the viewpoint of great, open spaces in the West, stupendous in their physical reach, but with populations that could be lost in a few tenement blocks.

I went to see Secretary Fall and he talked of his home. He is a good deal of a grandee down in New Mexico, but to appreciate the man from the home standpoint is a bit of a fight from the residence of Henry C. Wallace, on John Lynde road, in Des Moines, or that of Charles E. Hughes, in East Sixty-fourth street, New York.

Mr. Fall lives at Three Rivers, New Mexico. This is not the name of a town rights, coal and oil rights, titles to public lands, the reclamation of arid reaches, the retention of such resources as water-power that the public interest might be best served. I studied him to know what manner of man he was.

I have lived in the Western States and know his type well. A block away any Western man would have known that he was of Southern origin somewhat modified by long residence in the border States. There was a certain sort of Southerner who came West early. He was the adventurous young man, the dashing type, the genial, free-roving, friend-making, fight-loving descendant of followers of Daniel Boone.

Secretary Fall is today a man of sixty, none too robust in health. But little is left of the mop of raven curls that once crowned him. His tall, slim figure must once have graced well those gathering places where scoria met caballero in the mazes of the fandango. His piercing black eye still retains its fire.

"I WAS twenty-two years old," Secretary Fall was saying, "when I went into old Mexico. I spent two years in that country, a good part of it in prospecting and staking out claims. When my grub stake would run out I would get a job working for wages on some claim. I can polish the head of a drill as well as the next one. I would work until I had enough money for further prospecting. Many of my early claims in Mexico later worked out to advantage."

"It was in 1885 that I came to New Mexico. I first worked in that state as a miner for about eight months. Then I went down to Las Cruces, on the Rio Grande. This valley had been explored and settled by white men before that of the James, in Virginia. Las Cruces boasted of one street ago he was a Democratic member of the Legislature. A little later he was appointed by President Cleveland as an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of New Mexico. He served as a captain in the Spanish-American War, and it was after that venture that Theodore Roosevelt appointed Captain George Curry, dashing cowboy Rough Rider, as Governor of the territory. Curry in turn appointed Captain Fall as knowledge of conditions in Mexico such as few men alive possess. Yet this man from the great solitude brings with him many evidences of thought and culture and above all a frank manner of speaking out. Here, for instance, is his view of that statesmanship on Capitol Hill of which he has so recently been a part. "For a statesman," he says, "native ability is necessary, but experience must be the teacher and mold of the genius will never qualify. A man may be born a politician and with little or no education or experience become a party leader, but he must have some peculiar education to round him into a statesman.

"Congress is a honest and patriotic, but having been accustomed to deal with little things in a little way, when called upon to deal with big things has no congressional mind of its own and acts, often grumblingly, upon orders from the White House."

The independence of thought on the part of this Cabinet officer is also evidenced by his estimate of Woodrow Wilson, given in 1918. He said:

"Wilson, probably the intellectual peer of any President or of any American, living or dead; a student of our form of government; a voluminous writer with a remarkable understanding and facility in the use of our language; undoubtedly a sociologist of parts and imbued with ideals, theories and convictions as to human welfare, uplift and betterment, the President is in the minds of many possessed not only of the patriotic spirit, but combines all the great qualities of Washington and Lincoln, as well as of the great statesman (and possibly the greater party leader) Jefferson."

"Quite naturally," Mr. Fall told me, "I feel that I understand the problems that face the West in its development. I know farming, mining, stock raising, from the standpoint of having participated in them in that region. Irrigation in America had its birth in this Rio Grande Valley."

"Reclamation of arid lands, a utilization of the waters that are running to waste, must be further prosecuted. The Nation is developing its reclamation fund. The fees that are paid in by settlers on Western lands do not materially swell this fund because they are small. Its greatest resource is from oil lands belonging to the Government which are developed under lease. These are bringing in quite large sums of money. This money will be expended in developing reclamation projects which, in the course of time, will pay it back to the Government. Thus does it become a revolving fund. It will grow and we will keep it working on one task after another."

ALBERT BACON FALL

Secretary Fall among the home folks. He is in the middle of the group, sitting. The man on his left is Senator H. O. Bancum, who has just taken his seat in Washington. The second man on his right is Herbert B. Holt, state senator, who is slated for a seat in the upper house at Washington. The tall man in the back row is Pat Garrett, a sheriff of the "old school" who died with his boots on and whose most conspicuous achievement in the wild days of the Southwest was the killing of Billy the Kid, a notorious outlaw.

the Harding Cabinet is a simon pure Southerner of Confederate strain.

Mr. Fall had not been in Las Cruces long until he got into politics. Thirty years

Railroad Replacing the Dog Team Trail in Alaska

FOR the seventh time in as many years J. H. Steele, of Philadelphia, has gone to Alaska. He is connected with the Alaskan Engineering Commission, which is constructing a railroad from Anchorage to Fairbanks, a distance of 545 miles. All but 125 miles of this has already been constructed. The uncompleted part lies through the coast range and is at present traversable only by a dog team.

Mr. Steele's most recent return East was to bring home the body of his wife, for burial.

"My wife was a martyr to kindness," said Mr. Steele. "Our home in Alaska was at Nenana, a town of 500 inhabitants, about 475 miles north of Anchorage. Last summer 300 of these inhabitants were down with the influenza. Many of them were nursed back to health by my wife, and the 'flu' seemed to be dying out, when she herself became ill of it and died. Sixty-five others had been claimed by the epidemic."

While here Mr. Steele spent weeks in a vain search for a niece, Irene Palmer, who three years ago had married a man named Chapman. Her married life had proved unfortunate and she was left with a baby boy.

"I had last seen her when she herself was scarcely more than a baby," said Mr. Steele, "and I intended, if I could find her, to take her and her child along with me to Alaska." Mr. Steele's narrative of conditions in Alaska was interesting. It ranged from weather to resources.

"Already the government has ascertained," said Mr. Steele, talking of the agricultural resources, "that wheat, hay and potatoes of an excellent quality can be raised in great abundance. But, of course, the cultivation of these products at present is only in an experimental stage, as they couldn't very well be transported even if there was any disposition to do so. The government has established an experimental station at Fairbanks, and has installed there everything that goes to constitute a first-class, up-to-date farm."

"In regard to minerals, there is enough bituminous coal in sight to justify the statement that the entire world can be supplied thence for centuries; and of silver, there is also what seems to be an inexhaustible supply. And I feel confident that as soon as the railroad facilities make this part of Alaska accessible to the outside world there will be a new rush for gold, of which there is a plenty. "Talk about the political corruption of the cities in the East," he said, "the worst grafter in politics hereabouts looms like a veritable angel of light and champion of honesty compared to the political 'boss' up there in the early days."

One of the gigantic chasms spanned by a web of steel along the right of way of the Alaskan railroad

But a ranch. The ranch belongs to him. It is a hundred miles north of El Paso, twenty miles from a little village on the edge of that great plain which stretches from San Antonio to the Rockies and to cross which is like taking a journey from New York to Chicago or from Boston to Washington. It is in the land of magnificent solitude, the home of the coyote, the horned toad and the cactus. New England plus New York could be lost in this plain.

JUST above Three Rivers are the great lava beds of Mal Pais; just below it is the reservation of the Mascomero Apaches, where today reside some of those braves who lifted scalp in the days of Geronimo. On the road to El Paso are the Gypsum Hills, snow-white crystals of shifting sand, traveling slowly from west to east with the prevailing winds, inundating whole regions as they go.

It is a semi-desert, desolate region where Billy the Kid was once at home. The Three Rivers ranch stands out as an oasis. It is a cattle ranch controlling a hundred thousand acres round about. Here graze the herds of this border patriarchy. There is a huge, rambling ranch home, half lumber, half native adobe, but with a front of the pure colonial pillars of the old South.

The Secretary of the Interior goes back here to live whenever he may. Here he is himself. Here he is the grandee with many retainers. Here the Mexican followers who, to him, are the natural accompaniment of the gentleman's life, fill in the picture. Here the cattle are brought in by the vaqueros at round-up time and there is the odor of burning hair from the branding pen. Here considerable sums of money, made through mining operations in Mexico, have been sunk, for the ranch is not a paying venture.

While this man talked, this westerner who has so recently come into control of that department which handles the public domain, which enforces all those policies that have to do with the transfer of mineral running like a road up and down the valley. The houses were strung along it, adobe houses of the Mexican type. There were stores and saloons, with residences on the flats a little further back. It was here that I hung out my shingle and it was from here that I fought the battles of a lawyer in these surroundings in those early territorial days."

At this time Albert B. Fall was an ardent Democrat. One is not surprised at his early politics when he traces the man back to his origin. He was born in Frankfort, Ky., in 1861, just at the outbreak of the Civil War. When he was six months old his father went away to throw in his lot with the army of the Confederacy, in which he served four years under General Buckner and General Forrest. During all that time the little Southern mother and the baby boy who was some time to be a Cabinet member never saw the husband and father.

The Fall family had lost all it had in the Civil War and there remained but one possession, education. The father became a teacher, and for two decades presided over various schools in various towns in Tennessee. The mother accompanied him and assisted in many of the schools. Young Albert lived sometimes with his parents and sometimes with his grandparents in Nashville. Finally, as he was getting nearly grown, the family moved back to Frankfort, Ky. It was here that Albert Bacon Fall first began to get acquainted with the law, reading in the office of Judge William Lindsey, later United States Senator.

BUT young Fall was romantic and adventurous and before he was twenty he had bolted for the West and was earning a living as best he might down among the Cherokees in Indian Territory.

He paused a while in his wanderings in Clarksville, Tex., and it was there that he met Emma Garland Morgan, the daughter of a man who had been in the Confederate Congress from Tennessee. Since Emma Morgan later became Mrs. Fall the evidence accumulates to prove that this member of

LITTLE GIRL HURT WHEN MACHINE HITS HER NEAR SCHOOL

Hazel Holtz, aged 10, sustained a broken leg and minor bruises about the body when she was struck by an automobile filled with Shriners in front of the Sam Houston school on Grant street at noon Monday.

The little girl had just been dismissed from school and had gone across the street to make a purchase at a grocery store. She stepped from the store and walked from behind an ice wagon directly into the path of the machine.

Reports from the hospital Monday afternoon indicated that the injuries were not serious.

35 CARS OF ROCK REJECTED DURING WEEK BY ENGINEER

During the past week, 35 carloads of rock were rejected by County Engineer J. M. Lohr of the Iowa Park road project. The cars contained a large amount of clay balls which when used, leave imperfections in the surface of the pavement.

The rock rejected was shipped from the quarry at Ohio and it is the same material that has been rejected several months. It was stated however that which rock rejected last week was that which was sent out before the quarry closed down to install machinery which is purported to eliminate the clay balls.

NEGRO ARRESTED IN THEFT CASE WORRIES MOST ABOUT MUSIC

Walter Johns, negro, was arrested Monday afternoon by Detective Jack Miller on charges of theft of a diamond bar pin from Mrs. Roy Colbert, 1303 Monroe street. He was reported to the police by a local jeweler to whom the pin was being offered for sale.

Johns at first represented that he found the pin in the sidewalk several days ago but later switched his story and said he found it on Monroe street near the Colbert home. An admission was finally obtained that the pin had been stolen while he was in the employ of Mrs. Colbert.

The negro is, or has been, a member of a local shine parlor stringed orchestra and he seemed to worry more over the crushing blow dealt the musical organization through his arrest than over his own unenviable position.

He was turned over to county authorities and charges of theft of over $50 placed against him.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The army is determined to get Grover Cleveland Bergdoll back out of Germany "at any price." Chief of Staff March today testified before the House Bergdoll committee.

An O. HENRY Story

Dougherty's Eye Opener

By O. HENRY.

BIG JIM DOUGHERTY was a sport. He belonged to that class of men in Manhattan who are a distinct race. They are the Caribs of the North—strong, artful, self-sufficient, clanish, honorable in the laws of their race, holding a lenient contempt for the neighborly tribes who bow to the measure of Society's tapeline.

The habit of the sport is the lobby of the outside corner of certain hotels and combination restaurants and cafes.

Of the domestic life of the sport little is known. It has been said that Cupid and Hymen sometimes take a hand in the game and copper the queen of hearts to lose. Daring theorists have averred—not content with their own sayings, but a spot often contracts a spouse, and even infers descendants.

Mostly the sport is Oriental. He believes his women-folk should not be too patient. Somewhere behind grilles or flower-ornamented balconies they await him. He comes away from his home the sport is an integer. He does not, as men of other races in Manhattan do, become the conveyer in his unoccupied hours of futtering lace and high heels that tick off delectably the happy seconds of the evening parade. His herds with his own race at corners, and delivers a commentary in his Carib lingo upon the passing show.

"Big Jim" Dougherty had a wife, but she did not wear a button portrait of her upon his lapel. He had a home in one of those brownstone, iron-railed streets on the west side that look like a recently excavated tunnel to the city of the future.

To this home of his Mr. Dougherty repaired each night when the hour was so late as to promise no further diversion in the arch domains of sport. By that time the occupants of the monogamous harem would be in dreamland, and the hour propitious for lumber.

"Big Jim" always arose at twelve, meridian, for breakfast, and then, after the coffee, he returned to the rendezvous of his "crowd."

He was always vaguely conscious that there was a Mrs. Dougherty. He would have received without comment the charge that the quiet, comfortable little woman across the table at home was his wife. In fact, he remembered pretty well that they had been married for nearly four years. She would often tell him about the cute tricks of the spot and the light-haired lady that lived in the window of the flat across the street.

One afternoon Mr. Dougherty finished his breakfast, put on his hat and got away fairly for the door. When his hand was on the knob he heard his wife's voice.

"Jim," she said, firmly, "I wish you would take me out to dinner tonight. The party has been outside the door with me."

"Big Jim" was astounded. She had never asked anything like this before. The charge that the quiet, comfortable little woman across the table at home was his wife. In fact, he remembered pretty well that they had been married for nearly four years.

At seven she descended the stone steps, and he followed her to the side of the "Big Jim" Dougherty. She wore a dinner gown made of a stuff that the spiders must have woven, and of a color that a twilight sky must have contributed.

Cochran Hange Up New Mark For 18 Holes at Golf Club by Score Sunday.

A mark that local golfers can shoot at for probably many, many days to come was hung up Sunday over the new 12-hole course, when Tom Cochran went around in 68, or two less than par. He took nothing over a four on any hole, not even the two which are par 3.

A dozen or more Wichitans are making plans to attend the state tournament which will be held at the Dallas Country club week after next, and this city is expected to have a stronger representation than in previous events of the kind.

Some sure-enough bunkers are to be stilled on those portions of the new course, that have been free of them so far, according to plans of the greens committee, and considerable grief is to be provided for players who so far have had nothing but distance to contend with. The new features will include several well-placed sand-traps.

"The Happiest Man

is he who has toiled hard and successfully in his life work. The work may be done in a thousand ways—with the brain or the hands, in the study, the field, or the workshop; if it is honest work, honestly done, and well worth the doing, that is all we have a right to ask."

Money in Your Pocket—

Don't carry money in your pocket. It may feel good to finger the large roll containing your last week's wages—but it is mighty dangerous. It means a steady pull towards extravagance and failure. Have a Savings Account in this Bank.
