SEAMEN READY TO SETTLE STRIKE ON REDUCTION BASIS

FRANCO-BRITISH WAR OF WORDS CONTINUES, FRANCE ON DEFENSIVE

PREMIER BRIAND COUNTER ATTACKS MOVEMENT OF LLOYD GEORGE

MEANWHILE PEOPLE OF UPPER SILESLIA STARVE

Germany Controls Railways and Refuses to Send Supplies to Support Poles.

By the United Press.

The Franco-British war of words continued today.

Each backed by regiments of newspapers, the premiers of the two nations directed a heavy fire of statement and opinion on the proper division of Upper Silesia between Germany and Poland.

Premier Lloyd George's offensive of yesterday when he reiterated his assertion that Germany had as much right as Poland to invade Silesia was met by a prompt counter-attack.

"It's a fit of ill temper," Premier Briand declared caustically.

France practically snatched the Silesian situation out of Britain's hands today with a note to Berlin demanding that unorganized German bands be kept out of Silesia, which has protested at France's "benevolent neutrality" when Polish insurgents invaded Silesia, was not consulted.

French leaders firmly desire Poland to acquire the richest section of Upper Silesia. The British declare they want the region partitioned according to the recent plebiscite returns. They feared that Polish possession would hurt the industries there and would rob Germany of one of her greatest assets in paying her indemnity to the allies.

Upper Silesia meanwhile lay starved, Germans controlling the railways, refused to send in supplies to support the invading Poles. Sporadic fighting occurred but with the Polish insurgents holding a line which included the richest portion of the district.

POLISH HITROPS MOVING IN DIRECTION OF DANZIG

GREATER UNANIMITY IN THE ENDORSEMENT OF LLOYD GEORGE

LONDON, May 19.—Newspapers of this city today showed greater unanimity in endorsing the declaration of the British attitude toward Poland and Silesia, made yesterday, than they did in any other country.

There was in some instances references to the judiciousness of reiterating Great Britain's position at this moment regarding the point already made sufficiently clear. The Morning Post was alone in dissenting from the prime minister's declarations, and in an editorial bearing the caption "Smashing the Entente," the newspaper maintained its antagonism against Mr. Lloyd George's stance which it declared to be "fantastic and absurd."

POLITICAL ENEMIES STAGE ATTACK ON PREMIER BRIAND

PARIS, May 19.—Premier Aristide Briand today met the first concerted attack by his political enemies in the chamber of deputies.

Primarily, his handling of the reparations negotiations was questioned. The Upper Silesian dispute with Great Britain also entered the discussion.

Briand went to the Palais Bourbon and asked that the chamber begin its interpellations. Andre Tardieu, former French high commissioner to the United States, was the first to respond.

He demanded explanation of Briand's action in permitting a reduction of the German reparations. He compared the original sum of $56,000,000,000 with the $23,000,000,000 which Germany finally agreed to pay.

O. E. FULLER UNDER FIRE FOR 4 HOURS ON WITNESS STAND

WITNESS FOR STATE, HE RELATES IN DETAIL EVENTS LEADING TO OIL THEFT.

STANDS UP BRAVELY DURING SEVERE CROSS EXAMINATION

Case Will Not Be Concluded Before Late Friday in Opinion of Counsel.

O. E. Fuller, one of the men indicted in the theft of oil in the northwest fields last December took the stand as a witness for the state at 4:00 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and remained there until 1:00 o'clock Thursday. He was on the stand four hours and a half and underwent a grueling cross-examination for nearly three hours of the time.

The witness related in detail the events leading up to the tapping of the pipe line of the Empire Oil and Fuel company on December 12, 1920. He told of several conferences that were held prior to the execution of the plans which had been formulated at these gatherings. Two of the meetings he said were held at the home of Adolph Michna, one of the men indicted.

George Husted, the defendant on trial, was also present at these gatherings, the witness told, but was not on hand and neither was Michna the night that the pipe line was tapped.

Fuller told of a meeting that was held at Michna's house on Sunday before the tap was made. This, he said, was the first formal gathering held. At this time, he said, besides Michna and himself, those present included Terry Baldhorn, George Husted, Arthur Roberts, Ernest Tallen, R. W. Burdick and Red McDonald.

Fuller told of the delivery of a bill of sale for the oil to the Uniform Gasoline and Petroleum company, to which company the stolen oil was sold, at no time during the trial.

The manager of the refinery which accepted the oil was on the stand at a late hour Thursday afternoon and it was the belief expressed by counsel that the case would not be concluded before the trial closes.

A crowd of at least a hundred had been attending the trial since its beginning.

REQUEST PRESIDENT TO ASK MEETING ON DISARMAMENT PLAN

CHICAGO, May 19.—The congress on reduction of armaments, in session here today, adopted a resolution asking President Harding to invite Great Britain and Japan to an immediate conference looking toward limitation of naval armament.

The congress adopted the resolution after several speakers had told them, from first hand knowledge, of conditions as they found them in Mexico.

"Our southern neighbor" was declared by Joseph P. Chamberlain of Columbia university to be a modern state which needed American help and American friendship.

Dr. George B. Winton of New York, for many years a resident of Mexico and the border territory, urged neighborliness and ridiculed the idea of armament, "unless America makes it herself."

The resolution deprecated the "unjust military aid" suffering in the world and declared it was the immediate duty of all nations to find a practical means of substituting "for the suicidal competition of the arms race a policy of justice and brotherhood."

The resolution also pointed out that the treaty of Versailles obligated the signatory powers to a limitation of armaments; that Japan had indicated a willingness to confer with Great Britain and the United States on naval armament limitation, and President Harding, in his message to congress, had favored co-operation with other nations "to approximate disarmament."

BANDITS THREATEN SAFETY OF PEOPLE IN CONSTANTINOPLE

By Associated Press.

Constantinople, May 19.—Alarm over the safety of Constantinople is apparently felt by allied officials here. Operations by bandits are assuming serious proportions, particularly in Thrace. Large numbers of bolsheviks are arriving and the American embassy is under guard of armed sailors.

British General Harrington, commander of allied forces here, has gone to London to lay the military situation before British authorities.

Turkish nationalists declare that bandits are being encouraged by the Greeks, who they allege, are seeking an excuse for seizing Constantinople. The Greeks, on the other hand, state that uprisings are being stimulated by Bulgarian chiefs. At any rate, life and property are not considered safe in the region about this city.

Interest in the fate of the Knox peace resolution is still very much alive in official German circles. A spokesman for the Wirth cabinet declared today that the new German government is keenly desirous of having peace with the United States re-established on the earliest possible date, now that the reparations issue has been disposed of Germany is facing the necessity of taking a national inventory of her productive assets. The cabinet members express the belief that a separate peace would offer a more attractive prospect for Germany, as a result of the war.

CHIEF JUSTICE WHITE DIES EARLY THURSDAY, ON BENCH 27 YEARS

UNDERWENT OPERATION LAST FRIDAY BUT FAILED TO RALLY.

SHADOW OF SORROW CAST OVER NATIONAL CAPITAL

Had Grown in Admiration and Esteem of Officials and Others at Washington.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—The death here early this morning of Edward Douglas White, veteran chief justice of the United States, cast a shadow of sorrow today over the national capital, where during his long years of service on the supreme bench he had grown in the admiration and esteem not only of his official associates but of the entire community.

Although all hope for the chief justice's recovery following an operation last Friday had been abandoned since he took a critical turn for the worse two days ago, the news of his death, which occurred at 2 o'clock this morning, came as a shock to friends and associates. The chief justice, who was 78 years old, had enjoyed rugged health up to the time he was forced to submit to the recent operation for bladder trouble and his record of attendance on the supreme bench was traditional.

At the bedside, when death came, were the wife of the chief justice; his two nieces, Miss Ann Montgomery and Miss Mary Lee Brunsard, and the Rev. Father J. J. Crocetti, of the University, who had administered the last sacrament during the early evening.

According to tentative funeral arrangements announced today by Frank K. Greer, marshal of the supreme court, who has taken charge, interment will take place here in Oak Hill cemetery following simple services under the Catholic ritual to be held at St. Matthews church at ten o'clock Saturday morning.

The body of the late chief justice was removed to his local residence from the hospital where he died.

On Bench 27 Years.

No chief justice in the office had a more important tenure of office, according to students of law. Occupying a place in the court for 27 years, Mr. White participated in judgments which decided the fate of the income tax, the direct primary, prohibition and woman suffrage amendments, as well as issue of the tremendous legal battles which grew out of the anti-trust and commerce regulation laws.

As recently as the Newberry case, Chief Justice White departed from the usual judicial tenor of the bench to warn against attack upon the federal power. He declared that the proposition that congress could not regulate the election of United States senators was "a suicidal one," and he predicted that legislation to cover the point would be enacted.

His "rule of reason" decisions in the tobacco and standard oil anti-trust cases called the attention of the public to the fact that he intended to interpret the law according to the formula of moderation as well as cold logic. His opinion on the majority of the court, the chief justice refused to construe all combinations, as in violation of the law unless the restraint they exercised against normal trade was "unreasonable."

Opinions Extraneous.

By far the majority of Mr. White's opinions were extraneous. He was said by competent authorities to have been unequalled in his ability to analyze orally and without notes an intricate legal proposition, quoting precedent and precedent with absolute accuracy as to his citations. Frequently, after having prepared a formal opinion upon an important case, the chief justice would neglect to pick it up and talking to the always large assemblage of distinguished lawyers in the chamber, as might a teacher to his class, would deliver an entirely different opinion as to language, interspersed with flashes of vigorous expressions not to be found in his prepared copy.

Thus, in denouncing the form in which the Lever act was drawn, he declared that the "statute was as broad as human imagination" and left to each separate jury "the determination of the degree of guilt of any alleged violator."

With the opening of the world war, the court was cooperative and often missed the uninitiated attorney. Almon invariably he would recline in his high backed chair, his hand over his eyes, as if doing. But any divergence from the set rules of the court or the slightest attempt to impose on the time of that body immediately brought a reaction.

"Council may proceed on the assumption that this court knows the law," he suddenly shot at a famous lawyer who had wandered after in his effort to translate the meaning of a statute.

Mild Office Important.

Mr. White considered the chief justice's position as equal in importance to the presidency, according to intimate friends. It is related that on leaving Louisiana to come to Washington he confidentially expressed the hope that if fortune offered him the opportunity of either post, it would be the seat of Marshall and Rutledge.

In international affairs Mr. White's influence was felt in the arbitral award determining the boundary line between Costa Rica and Panama. Called upon in 1911 to complete the task begun by President Loebel of France in fixing a boundary between the two countries, he arrived at a decision which the American government is now insisting Panama shall accept and cease the dispute with her neighbor on the question.

During recent years Mr. White indulged in no exercises except walking. His vacations, spent in Maine or Canada, were devoted largely to reading in preparation for the next term's work. Some years ago he attempted to give more material help to his neighbor as a means, he said, of reducing weight, but he gave up the venture after a few trials and returned to the mental air of his remarkable library.

More than one newsworthy and well-peddler of Washington will miss the chief justice, as will the coteries of famous attorneys who practice before the supreme court. Mr. White, widely discussed subjects today in official circles of the capital. Although the speculation centered chiefly about the name of former President William H. Taft, there were many indications that President Harding was far from a decision and might find the selection a difficult one.

One of the first suggestions to come to the surface in private discussions of the subject among members of the senate, which must confirm the nomination, was that Mr. Taft had disqualified himself by insisting when he was chief executive that no man over 60 years old should be appointed to the highest court.

All indications pointed to considerable delay in making the appointment. The general impression was that nothing would be done prior to the reconvening of the court after its summer recess, which begins June 6.

Mr. Taft is known to have been long under consideration by President Harding as a possible chief justice.

Another whose name has been linked repeatedly with the highest judicial post is Secretary Hughes of the state department, a member of the court until he retired in 1916, to accept the republican nomination for the presidency, but there never has been any tangible evidence that President Harding intended to appoint him.

services for the late Edward Douglas White, chief justice of the United States, who died early today at a hospital here, will be private. It was announced today. They will be held at 10 a. m. Saturday at St. Matthews Catholic church on Rhode island avenue and will be conducted by the pastor, the Right Rev. Monsignor Lee. Interment will be in Oak Hill cemetery, Georgetown.

Justices of the supreme court will act as honorary pallbearers and members of the cabinet and other high government officials will attend.

Justice McKenna, as senior associate member, formally notified President Harding, Vice-President Coolidge and Speaker Gillett today of the death of Chief Justice White. Following the court's custom in such cases, the news was sent in a letter inscribed upon black bordered parchment and enclosed in an envelope deeply edged in black. As a mark of respect to the late chief justice, the senate, where he served a brief term, adjourned today immediately after convening, following a message from Senator Cummings, president pro tem, of Mr. White's death, and a brief eulogy by Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, the republican leader in the senate, which adjourned today, having adjourned yesterday until tomorrow.

The senate adopted a resolution providing for a committee to represent it at the funeral.

TAFT IS MENTIONED FOR PLACE ON SUPREME COURT

WASHINGTON, May 19.—The choice of a successor to Edward Douglas White as chief justice of the United States was one of the most widely discussed subjects today in official circles of the capital. Although the speculation centered chiefly about the name of former President William H. Taft, there were many indications that President Harding was far from a decision and might find the selection a difficult one.

One of the first suggestions to come to the surface in private discussions of the subject among members of the senate, which must confirm the nomination, was that Mr. Taft had disqualified himself by insisting when he was chief executive that no man over 60 years old should be appointed to the highest court.

All indications pointed to considerable delay in making the appointment. The general impression was that nothing would be done prior to the reconvening of the court after its summer recess, which begins June 6.

Mr. Taft is known to have been long under consideration by President Harding as a possible chief justice.

Another whose name has been linked repeatedly with the highest judicial post is Secretary Hughes of the state department, a member of the court until he retired in 1916, to accept the republican nomination for the presidency, but there never has been any tangible evidence that President Harding intended to appoint him.

Anything Goes in Bathing Suits at Chicago Beaches

CHICAGO, May 19.—Two good reasons for wearing a 1921 model bathing suit, will be displayed by women who visit Chicago beaches this year.

Form-fitting, one-piece bathing suits will be shown, sold and worn. Investigation showed. Stockings will be the exception rather than the rule.

Movies of bathing girls have just about standardized the demand for suits, according to leading dealers here, and there isn't much demand except for the one-piece "tank" outfits.

Customers asking for "something novel" in beach attire are shown caps, to which designers have devoted most of their attention. Silk lassets, ribbon, embroidery and jewels adorn the dainty caps.

Slips-on, made of gay colored taffeta and silks will make their appearance at Chicago beaches if the one-piece suit for women is outlawed. However, judging from statements in police quarters, nothing will be outlawed—anything goes.

NO HIP POCKETS WILL BE ALLOWED ON BATHING SUITS

NEW YORK, May 19.—The new state prohibition enforcement law has developed a new regulation for bathers at Long Beach. It is this: "No hip pockets will be allowed on bathing suits, either for men or women."

Police Captain Barricade, in charge of Long Beach, said one-piece suits would not be permitted for either men or women. The latter's skirts must extend to within an inch of the knee. Stockings are not necessary.

At Coney Island it was stated that

LOS ANGELES PERMITS TO GUIDE CONSCIENCE TO GUIDE

LOS ANGELES, May 19.—"Let your conscience be your guide," appears to be the slogan governing bathing suit styles at Venice and other nearby beaches.

The shape, color and size of the beach costumes are left to the maids who wear them. Short, one-piece suits in all colors, without stockings, predominate.

Many tourists are terribly shocked at what they see on the beaches here—but they stick around.

TO SUPPRESS RADICALISM IN WEARING BATHING SUITS

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 19.—The local police are determined this year to suppress radicalism—in bathing suits.

One-piece costumes will not be permitted and women bathers must wear stockings.

"The stockings must extend above the knee and overlap their lower extremity of the bathing suit," it was explained at Police Chief Miller's office. "The skirt must also be a real skirt, not a mere ruffle."

THREE BANK ROBBERS IN CHICAGO COME TO GRIEF

CHICAGO, May 19.—Three bank robbers, fleeing after holding up the Division State Bank here, were captured today when their automobile turned over. One bandit was wounded by police fire. A fourth robber escaped.

The four men entered the bank shortly after it opened today and drove officials into a rear room. After scooping up all of the money in sight, about $10,000, they fled.

DECLARES FILIPINO INDEPENDENCE NO LONGER DEBATABLE

WOULD BE LIKE DEBATING WHETHER WATER OUGHT TO RUN UP HILL.

SUCH IS CONCLUSION OF CHARLES EDWARD RUSSELL

Four Years and Six Months Have Demonstrated Their Ability, He States.

By CHARLES EDWARD RUSSELL, Special Correspondent of the Wichita Daily Times. (Copyright, 1921, by the Wichita Daily Times.)

MANILA, May 19.—To debate whether the people of the Philippine Islands are or are not fit for self government is about as profitable now as to debate whether water ought to run down hill, ice be cold or ginger hot in the month of July. They have been doing it these four years and six months, absolutely, incontestably, without let or hindrance. Learned gentlemen at home that say they can't do it are like the lawyer in that old, long-whiskered story about the man in jail. "They can't put you in jail for that," they cry. "You know." "Perhaps they can't, but here I am," says the man.

These four years and six months the only real governing power in these islands has been the Philippine legislature, elected by the Philippine people and composed exclusively of Filipinos. For several days together I signed the sessions of this body to wear in what respects (other than white drill clothes and safe air lant complexion) it differed from the legislative bodies I had known in my native land.

The white drill clothes, incidentally, strike you as climatic wisdom, Manila being by common repute a hot place and 14 degrees from the equator. And yet as a matter of fact, it is never so hot as Washington from the middle of June to the middle of September; 85 degrees is about as high as the meteorological sun, doing its best in these parts, can ever raise the thermometer. White drill would be much more appropriate in a Washington or New York July than it is in Manila, but a congressman who would appear in the oven of the house clad in a Manila suit, cool, comfortable, comely and appropriate, would probably be defeated by his constituents. It would be just like wearing a straw hat in New York after September 15.

There are twenty-four members of the senate and ninety-one members of the house, mostly elected by districts; big districts for the senate, smaller districts for the house. Senators hold office for six years and representatives for three, but half of the senate goes out every three years, thereby ensuring the continuance of the body; but this is the Jones law and not the work of the Filipino.

Members of either house can be and usually are absent as dilly in an assembling as members of either house of the American congress; but the Filipinos have the better excuse for the reason that their sessions seldom open at any hour scheduled for the opening. This country did not associate three-hundred years with the manana-loving Spaniard for nothing. If the house is to meet at 10 a. m. it will be 10:15 when that remarkable man, Speaker Osmena, clad in a suit of white silk perfectly tailored in the latest American fashion, steps upon the platform and sits down behind his desk. The members are grouped around the chamber, going full tilt in free conversation, and they belong to a race by no means tongue-tied. The quietly watchful speaker, his face always a flawless mask for his thought, picks up his gavel and strikes with it two light raps on the side rail of his desk, and instantly the house falls into order. The clerk begins to read the journal of the previous day, and the session is off.

The first thing the American visitor notices as strange is that the members seem to be interested in the proceedings. There isn't a doubt of it, they actually do. Of course, if they were really au fait with civilization and that sort of thing they would sit with their backs to the speaker and tell funny stories while the proceedings go on. Next I am obliged to admit to you (for I desire to keep back no truth, however poignant) that they do not seem to have that mad, consuming passion for verbiage that marks your real legislator. And again, the poor benighted things have never learned to print in the record speeches undelivered on the floor. It is to time, I suppose, that we must look for the cure of these defects.

Throughout the performance the cool imperturbable speaker remains seated. His gavel is about the size of a toothbrush; I missed at once the sledge hammer with which the speaker of the American house maces the plank set into the top of his desk. Likewise, I missed the repetition of that familiar cry, strident, persistent but always fallacious, "The house will be in order!" Here the tense is the present, not the vainly hoped-for future, and the speaker always in order. There were some hot debates in the closing hours of this session, for rather radical legislation was going over, but when feeling was at its height one small tap of the speaker's gavel never failed to restrain it. Other things than manana, the Spaniards wanted in this country, one of them being a conception of courtesy and good manners.

Another is the Spanish language, in which the proceedings of the legislature are still conducted. But in three more years, American is to be the language of the courts and by that time it will probably be also the language of the legislature as it has been for twenty years the language of the

"Thanks to War's Baby Powder, My Baby Boy is Fine and Sturdy"

This famous medicine brought Quick and Lasting Relief in bad case of Bowel Trouble.

On May 25th, 1920, Mrs. E. Howard of Marquez, Texas, writes: "My little boy was a year old when his bowels got bad. We tried ever means, but with no result, until a friend recommended War's Baby Powder. We gave it to him according to directions, and he began to change in every way until he got entirely well. Thanks to the powder, he is a fine, sturdy boy of three years. I am now giving it to my 7-month-old baby girl with the same good results."

War's Baby Powder is just as successful in cases of teething, summer complaint and stomach trouble in infants. It is a simple form, mixed with sugar and water, they love to take it. Perfectly harmless. At all drugists. 50¢ and $1.25 the package. THE WARE CHEMICAL CO., Dulles, Va.

schools. Most of the legislators understand American now, but Spanish is retained for the benefit of the old boys that went into the business of life before the Americans brought the blessings of common school education and universal baseball.

In the senate that morning Senator Filomeno Sotto of Cebu was making an address on the pending legislation, which was the important bill reforming the judicial system of the islands. Sotto is one of the senate leaders and would be anywhere a man you would look at more than once. He is squarely built, with a square face, a big square head, a resonant and carrying voice and as good a method in public speaking as I have ever observed in any man, a quiet, masterful, easy manner, absolutely fluent without the least affectation, and at all times a fine show of sincerity. I thought it was remarkable that he never singsonged nor used the cloying circumflex, we know so well and so sadly, at home, but seemed to talk like a sane, reasoning, Christian person having something to say and trying to say it. He made of his subject (in that total space of fifteen minutes) an exposition as clear and firm as crystal, and I was impressed with the notion that no present senator of the United States in the same length of time could have made of anything on earth from carpet tacks to tariffs a statement equally concise, lucid and simple. When I remarked upon this to some Filipino friends, I found they were not impressed as I had been; but of course they had not spent dreary years in the press gallery, and that makes a difference.

When Sotto was done other senators followed. The speeches were short, pointed and as bare as a skillet of the sweet flowers of rhetoric. I was told that the Philippine do not care for these blossomy and balmy outpourings but much prefer substance to ornament, a fact that again but indicates a primitive darkness.

The president of the Philippine senate is Manuel Quezon, the bright-eyed and quick-witted little man who goes long as the resident Philippine commissioner at Washington. He has an even easier job at the sessions than Osmena has; the grave decorum of the senate seldom gets over the severest mutes and bounds laid down by Cushing and Roberts. He puts the motions; if there is any doubt, a show of hands or a roll call is had; everything according to Hoyle and all that being a senator himself, he sometimes calls a substitute to the chair, gets down upon the floor and speaks upon a pending motion, when being of a more fiery order than Sotto he sometimes shakes things up. But even he, long attendant upon the American house of representatives, was never inoculated there with the seven times accursed national pest of loquacity. His speeches here are like the rest brief and pregnant and he is still able to stop when he has said all he had to say.

I noticed in the senate as in the house that the dispatch of business was rapid and the speakers did not hesitate nor mumble nor bump along like a dullard trying to think of a word. This seemed so different from my observations in more enlightened lands that I drew up as I sat there this little comparative record of results: Score card between the senate of the United States and the senate of the Philippines, on the basis of a possible 100:

	U. S.	Phil.
Attendance at the session	7	82
Order to proceedings	2	66
Ability in public speaking	24	74
Dispatch of business	18	72

health 100 100 The senate of the United States wins by above 100 points, but the contest was often close. Since its inauguration in October, 1916, the Philippine legislature has passed about forty acts of first class national importance, among them acts enlarging the educational system, establishing the Philippine militia, seeking to increase the production of food stuffs, establishing a mint, seeking to curb profiteering, establish a bureau of dependent children, instituting an income tax.

The opponents of Philippine independence criticize the policy of some of these acts but no one has been able to say they fail to indicate a stable and fully operating government and a stable government was the only condition made by the Jones law.

PIPE LINE COMPANIES MANIFESTING INTEREST IN BUNGER TERRITORY

GRAHAM, TEXAS, May 19.—That the big pipe line companies are manifesting an interest in the prospects of the Bunger territory was indicated today when a representative of the Texas Pipe Line company visited Graham, with a view of obtaining assurances from the Barnes Production company that production from their well, when it is brought in, will be given to the company. Mr. Wise, representing the Texas company, said this morning that as soon as the slightest showing was obtained in the Barnes well his company would extend a pipe line from Ivan. It is understood that the Gulf and Magnolia people are also considering extending pipe lines from Ivan into the Bunger district.

GIRLS CLUB COMPLIMENTS BRIDE-ELECT WITH SHOWER

Members of the Girls Bridge club, entertained by Charles Francis and Miss Marlin Macer at the Francis home on Lucile street, complimented Miss Lella Beall Anderson with a miscellaneous shower Wednesday afternoon.

The party was a specially pretty one, with a color and flower motif of pink sweet peas and green ferns. The colors were beautifully suggested throughout the entire entertainment, in the score cards for the bridge games, the decorations, the pretty box containing the refreshments, the prizes, the refreshments and the plate favors, which were little nosegays of sweet peas tied with tulle.

In the games Mrs. A. B. Booth was fortunate and was presented with the high score remembrance, a pair of silk hose, and Miss Berenice Jackson was crowned with a beautiful crown and a handkerchief. The shower was drawn into the room by little Miss Sybil Macer in a big green dress with green ribbons serving for reins. After they had all inspected a dainty refreshment course of fruit salad, pink and green mints was served.

DECAYED TEETH URGED AS BIG PREDISPOSING TO DISEASE

That decayed teeth are very strong predisposing causes to the catching of measles, scarlet fever, pneumonia, mumps or other childhood diseases, is strongly urged by the public health service, which notes very considerable reduction, according to a recent bulletin put out by the department, of those diseases in cities where dental clinics have been established in the schools.

STANDARD CLUB PLANS PICNIC LUNCHEON FOR LAST MEETING

The Standard club plans a picnic luncheon for its last meeting, as decided at the called meeting held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. W. Staley on Fourteenth street. The date of the picnic, to which the husbands are to be invited, is to be announced later. During the business session Mrs. Ralph Hines was elected to membership in the club.

At the meeting Tuesday afternoon the club continued the discussion of E. Brioux as a dramatist, with Miss Chella Hendrick leader. After a very interesting lesson study a social hour was enjoyed, during which the hostess served a delicious refreshment plate of brick cream, angel food cake and iced tea. Readings were given by little Miss Mary Louise Staley, which were very much enjoyed and applauded.

TARPLEY-HUMPHREYS MARRIAGE IN HOUSTON SURPRISES FRIENDS

A telegram received Wednesday afternoon from Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Tarpley, announcing the marriage in Houston, Texas, of Mr. Tarpley and Mrs. Zada Humphreys, was a surprise to friends of both the contractors in Wichita Falls. Mrs. Humphreys is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Humphreys, as she told friends, to go to California. Mr. Tarpley was station accountant at the Katy offices here until January of this year, when he was transferred to Galveston. Mrs. Humphreys is well known in the city, having been connected with the millinery department at Perkins-Timberlake for some time, and having made her home here a number of years. Mr. and Mrs. Tarpley will be at home at 1201 Thirty-seventh street, in Galveston.

ATTRACTIVE BRIDGE PARTY HONORS VISITING GUEST

Mrs. C. E. Thames of 1813 Huff avenue was hostess at an informal bridge party Wednesday afternoon in completion to her state guest, Miss Grace Thames of Taylor, Texas. The living room suite was prettily decorated with roses, fern and green, and the score and guest remembrances later on carried out the same motif. Mrs. John Shaw held high score and was presented a beautiful pink potted begonia, and the consolation, a shopping list in leather cover, was presented Mrs. M. J. Bauman, a cut among all the guests. The guest was remembered with a monogrammed gold pencil, presented by Mrs. C. W. Reid. A dainty refreshment course of salad sandwiches, with coffee and mints, was served the following: Mesdames Julian Montgomery, L. E. Whitman, George Pitts, M. J. Bauman, Wrenn, John Shaw, F. P. JUBILEE'S PARDNER by Judd Mortimer Lewis

I guess I was made to get into trouble. I bet I was born on Friday or something. I was milking the cow's dotter Doughbriches come into our barn pulling his express wagon, and when he had stood and watched me send a few squirts into Jubilee, we found a man hiding him, and we got on him and hid him home, and when we got there I took the harness off of him and put some axle grease on a gallop and kicking at what was left of the wagon every time it caught up with him. And Jubilee was in front of him barking at him and trying to head him off, and we all ran after him and when we had run about ten miles we found a man hiding him, and we got on him and hid him home, and when we got there I took the harness off of him and put some axle grease on his heels where the wagon skipt them, and nobody was at home so everything was all right, only Doughbriches said he was going to wait till my father got home and make him pay him for his wagon, but I gave him a skait in the pants and chased him away, and when I went out to milk he had come around and clumb in the manure hole and I pushed him out of it on his face. The little nut would like to get me a licking. I went upstairs and pulled a licker up and went to bed early. (To be continued.)

The linen shower, with many beautiful bits of handwork, was presented in a big basket, and during the afternoon an informal musical program added to the enjoyment of the guests, with Mrs. J. G. Stearns at the piano. Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served to the following: Mesdames Gutcheon, Long, Redin, Genette, Rattican, Fowler, Muller, Sprinkle, Schmetz, Small, Stearns, Hallford, Morris, Walton, Chandler, Newman and Jones.

LATEST STYLE BY LENORE

A slim slip of linen eyelot work in a lovely shade of soft old blue, and three tiers of dark blue French linen, offer a solution for at least one frock for the summer outfit which can be relied on for smartness in town or at the resort hotel. Dark blue linen fashions

The wagon caught on something that jerked the hind axle off of it and I went upstairs and pulled a licker up and went to bed early.

Four tables were arranged for the games, all prettily decorated with roses in crystal vases. ### ROTARIANS HEAR OF AMERICA'S PROMISE TO ADOPTED CITIZEN

An impressive talk on what was America's promise to the foreigner coming to her shores was made at Thursday's luncheon of the Rotary club, by J. E. Emond, local Rotarian, who, being himself an immigrant, spoke from the depths of his own experience.

A desire to express gratitude for assistance given him when recently, after his seven years' search, he finally located his parents whom he had left in Europe, prompted Mr. Emond to address the club briefly, and he took occasion both to declare his unwavering loyalty to everything American, and to speak his opinion of those who seek liberty in this country, fail to appreciate the opportunities America offers.

"This is the only paradise on earth, the only promised land," Mr. Emond declared. "I would not take a million dollars for the fact that I was able to serve America in the war, that I can call myself a real citizen of my adopted country."

Shortly before Mr. Emond spoke, the club had listened to a declamation, "I Am An American," by Edward Kadane, who will represent Wichita Falls in the declamation contest at the international Rotary convention at Edinburgh, Scotland, the Rotarians sang "Kuld Lang Syne." Mr. Couper will be one of a great number of American Rotarians to make the trip. T. A. Bergin reported upon the charter presentation ceremony at Vernon earlier in the week.

297 DIE IN ONE VILLAGE IN CHINA IN THREE WEEKS' TIME

Two hundred and ninety-seven human beings died in three weeks in one Chinese village in the famine district, according to Mr. Clines of the Sam Clines & Co. engineering firm of New York City.

"I did not have the heart to take pictures," Mr. Clines said in an interview with the American Commission for Chinese Relief. "I am haunted day and night by the memory of the dying people I saw from the railway train. The tragedy of the scene was deepened by the way they looked at us—always with a pathetic smile; never with resentment that we were well fed and prosperous looking."

The local committee for Chinese relief asks that contributions for the relief of the starving people be sent to Pat H. Simmons at the Wichita State Bank and Trust Co.

Will Cremate Body Of Lane and Scatter Ashes to the Winds

CHICAGO, May 19.—The body of Franklin K. Lane, former secretary of the interior, who died in Rochester, Minn., yesterday following an operation, was cremated here today. The ashes will be taken to the top of El Capitan peak in the Yosemite valley, California, and scattered to the winds in compliance with a request made by Mr. Lane prior to his death.

Relatives of Mr. Lane explained the unusual request by saying that he had spent much of his life in the Yosemite region and had grown to love it so much that he wished his remains to be taken there when he died.

The body arrived here this morning from Rochester and was immediately taken to Graceland cemetery for cremation. There were no funeral services, another request of Mr. Lane's, and only the immediate family attended the cremation. The body was accompanied by Mrs. Lane, the widow, and G. W. Lane, a brother.

The remains will be taken west immediately, it was said.

Mr. Lane left no will and no estate.

COUCH WINFREY TO TEST DEEPER SAND HIT AT 1631 FEET

A sand which gives considerable promise has been struck at a depth of 1631 feet in the Couch-Winfrey test on the N. Henderson land in Archer county. The 6 1/2 casing was set at 1611 feet in this well, and a sand from 1627 to 1629 was tested without making any oil. After going through two feet of shale the well picked up the sand at 1631 and went a foot into it, the core-sample showing good oil.

The new sand will be tested shortly. Tubing is being run in the Sun company's No. 1 Farmer, the well having been completed for a small producer, as previously reported. Location will be made shortly for No. 2. The Wichita Southern Oil company's No. 1 L. F. Wilson has junked the hole at 400 feet, and is skidding the rig 15 feet north for another try. This test is also known as the Swisher-Lemke.

Twelve miles southeast of Archer City the Miller Aeroplane Oil company's No. 1 Miller has set the 6 1/2 on the sand at 819 to 821, but will drill on to 900 feet. Lester Miller of Dallas is the principal figure in this company, which has a 320-acre lease in that section.

Casing is being set at 1480 feet in the Dees-Belport No. 1 Cowan. The Sun company's No. 1 Henderson is drilling at 400 feet. The Stanley-McGregor No. 1 H. W. Taylor is now down 1100 feet. Canadian Petroleum company No. 1 Goose is down 600 feet. The W. J. Grisham test is still waiting for cement to set.

Drilling is to be resumed on the Burke-Archer No. 1 W. L. Andrews, a

SHERIFF RECEIVES LIST OF A SPECIAL VENIRE OF 100 MEN

Sheriff Fred Smith Thursday afternoon received a list of 100 special veniremen which are to be summoned to appear in court for Monday morning, May 23. The men are being called for the trial of Willie Shelton, who will be tried for the murder of Thomas Abscher.

The defendant was brought to trial once before in the 89th district court but the issue was never submitted to the jury, as a new witness appeared at the time that the court was ready to charge the jury.

Shelton is charged with having killed the aged nightwatchman of the Bob Waggoner building last October. The watchman was found early Sunday morning at the point of death suffering from a serious bruise on his head and his throat cut from ear to ear.

Officials here said today they will spend more than $1,000,000 in railroad fares.

Negotiations for transportation will be closed probably this week.

The members of the order, who claim they have been persecuted by the Canadian government, will seek asylum in Mexico, their agents said. Passengers, livestock, farm equipment and household goods will make up special trains to cross the country from north to south.

Rev. J. F. Wiebe of Herbert, Sank, was here today arranging for transportation of hundreds from various points in Canada. They will settle in West Durango, Mexico. The Mexican government will give them free transportation from the Mexican border.

PARK TO BE NAMED IN HONOR OF BOYS WHO DID NOT RETURN

COUNCIL TO SET ASIDE ONE OF TRACTS AS MEMORIAL TO WAR'S DEAD.

ERECTOR OF MONUMENT WILL PROBABLY FOLLOW

City Fixes June 6 as New Date For Paving Side—May Bar Streets For Storing Cars.

One of Wichita Falls parks will be named "Memorial Park" and a suitable monument erected there in honor of Wichita county's young men who gave their lives in the war, if plans inaugurated at Thursday morning's session of the city council are carried out.

Decision as to which park will be designated will be made later. It was suggested by Dr. J. F. Rood, of the council that the tourist camp park, just acquired, be made a memorial park, but other councilmen felt that some other tract would be more suitable to such a purpose.

As soon as a park is chosen, steps will be taken to erect an appropriate monument.

"It has been a fond hope of mine," said Mayor Cline, in discussing the matter, "that some of our real wealthy citizens would establish a memorial to the dead boys in the form of a hospital, if that is done, however, it will not detract from the sentiment of a memorial park."

Final action on the memorial park will probably be taken at next Monday night's meeting.

The council ordered new bids for street paving, and also ordered bids for the concrete gutter and curb work at the cemetery. The bids will be opened June 6.

The suitability of an ordinance prohibiting use of the streets for storage purposes by garage proprietors was discussed at some length by the council, on report of complaints of abuses of parking privileges. It was finally decided that if garage proprietors continued to make such an ordinance necessary.

J. H. Ogilvie and J. T. Harrell, as a committee from the M. E. Church, South, appeared to see if something could be done for the erection of a business building on a lot immediately adjoining the church. Members of the council expressed doubt whether the council could do any relief, but referred the matter to City Attorney Mann for investigation.

BOY SCOUT SUMMER CAMP TO BE HELD IN WICHITA MOUNTAINS

Cratesville, Oklahoma, sixty miles north of Wichita Falls in the Wichita mountains, was selected Wednesday by the camp committee of the Boy Scout council as the site for the summer camp for local troops.

The committee left Friday to pick out the exact location for the camp, expecting to return Friday.

Saturday, May 21, will be field day for the local scouts. Every scout that can arrange to be present is urgently requested to do so.

The bird house building contest that the Wichita Hardware company is holding has been extended until the first of June, as several of the boys who wish to enter the contest have not as yet completed the houses they are working on.

K. Taylor, scout executive, has succeeded in organizing troop sixteen. The home of the new troop will be at the Presbyterian Mission church, unless the men and boys there are too slow and fail to get the troop registered.

Assistant Scoutmaster Jess McLarry of troop eight will take the troop on an all-night hike Friday night, May 20. All members who wish to go are requested to meet at Floral Heights

The remaining hideaway is the possessor of the gun but according to his partner his finances are exhausted.

It was stated by officers that the boy who is still in hiding was left in this city by his parents during the carnival week.

HIGH SCHOOL BALL TEAM PLANS BANQUET AS FINAL ACTIVITY OF 1921 SEASON
Following out the custom of other athletic teams of the institution, the school baseball team of the local high school are planning on a banquet, to be held at a hotel late this week, given by themselves, to themselves in payment for their own work on the diamond this spring. The affair has the complete sanction of school authorities.

It was intended at first that awardees should be awarded members of the team and that the banquet would be dispensed with, but a depleted treasury put aside under this idea and the big "spread" was resorted to as a last measure. About twenty-five boys, all those playing on the first and second teams, and several instructors will be included in the list of participants.

The baseball game between the high school outfit and a crowd of University club has been several weeks ago, wherein the prep school stars took their elders into camp by a decisive score, raised enough money to pay a banquet bill. It was hoped to realize enough from this game to purchase the sweaters, but such was not the case and as there was no way of adding to the fund it is to be expended on the banquet.

HAYS, HUMAN LIVE WIRE WHO DELIVERS YOUR LETTERS

Some of the Factors Which Contribute to the Success of the Postmaster General in Handling Men Are Disclosed in a Chat With This Young Member of the President's Official Family

By William Atherton Du Puy

ONE of the humanest of men in the Harding Cabinet is Will H. Hays. Neither Mark Twain nor Thomas R. Marshall nor Abraham Lincoln was more human than this bantamweight political strategist who has become Postmaster General. Human sympathy with his fellows is one of two or three characteristics which make him a very unusual man. A second quality is dynamic energy similar to that of Theodore Roosevelt. And to these he adds a capacity for organization, and the result is an individual who, at forty-one, has climbed to a high place by the road of accomplishment.

Here is an example of the way he works: On the second Sunday before the election last November he got into Chicago at 10 o'clock in the morning. His purpose was to estimate the situation in the West. He had to know how things were going that he might wisely direct the drives of those vital last few days of the campaign. He had to get in touch.

He resorted to his favorite means of communication, the long-distance telephone. It is probably true that more miles of telephone wire have tingled with the messages of Will H. Hays than of any other man the world has known. When I was down past the Postoffice Department some weeks ago he was reaching out after a certain man he wanted as second assistant—a hundred thousand dollar man who would take a job at six thousand. He was arguing with this man, out in San Francisco about his duty to render public service, and doing it over 3000 miles-of-telephone wire.

WELL, on this second Sunday before election, he began calling up national committeemen and State chairmen west of Chicago. Oregon, New Mexico, Nevada, Kansas responded one after the other. The view of the State chairman was checked by that of the national committeeman. It was Tom, Jim and Charley to whom he talked—all personal friends, all responding to the human touch, all supplying their best information as to the "low down" on the situation.

The difficulty, the insistence, the patience, the industry that is required for a day's work like this can be appreciated by anybody who has so much as tried to call up fifty people in his own town to invite them to a party. But by Sunday night Will Hays had completed the survey, had classified the results, had flashed them to New York, and the basis was laid for the fight that was to end the campaign.

Then there is the correspondingly illustrative picture presented when the Postmaster General stood in line for three hours and shook hands with the employees of the department. There was a genial fellowship in the smile and the handshake he gave each division chief, stenographer, scrub woman. He insisted on getting the name of each, registering it in his mind and fixing it with the face. As a master politician he has long trained himself to remember names stand out prominently from his head. His face is always wrinkling up in a merry smile. It is a gleeful, contagious smile, quite personal.

As he talks with a friend his arm steals over onto his shoulder or, perhaps, clear around to the northeast corner. All the time he is dispatching business. In ten minutes he has satisfied ten men, has cleared the anteroom. Then he leads me, the interviewer, to his inner sanctum.

"This is a great, human job," he tells me. "The Postoffice Department is the greatest employer of labor in all the Government. We hire 300,000 people. It is the greatest business institution in the world. We have a hundred million customers. It operates the biggest express company on earth, the greatest savings bank. Its activities touch every family, every individual under the flag.

"My first interest is the human interest. I want to get in touch with the people who work for the department. I do not subscribe to the theory that labor is a commodity and the way to buy it is at the lowest price at which it is offered. That theory was abandoned 1021 years ago last Easter. I want to find out about these people and the conditions under which they work. All over the United States there are great industries that are spending large sums of money for welfare work among their employees. I would not say that it was selfish interest that has inspired this welfare work, but I will say that it has been found to pay.

"If an organization has a thousand employees or a hundred thousand and each of those employees is a time-server without enthusiasm, or an individual who harbors hate of his employer in his heart, the amount of service rendered per employee will be greatly reduced. If each of those employees is brought to feel that he is working for a human institution that appreciates him as a human being and the efforts that he is making, the amount of service rendered will rise appreciably, a new spirit will come into the organization, results will increase immeasurably.

"If consideration of the welfare and happiness of employees of industries works to the interest and advantage of those industries, a similar program on the part of the Postoffice Department, the Government's greatest employer, should work out similarly.

"And besides," declared the Postmaster General, rising and striding up and down and waving his arms in his enthusiasm, "it people of the city of Washington and the result was that the Postmaster was able immediately to take twenty men off the shift that had been handling the peak load."

Then I led Mr. Hays to talk of his past life, because I hold that a man is like a race horse and can be best judged by his past performances.

When he was a small boy out in Sullivan, Ind., which has but 4000 or 5000 population even now, the county courtroom used to be his favorite playground. His father, John T. Hays, was a practicing attorney there, and the boy sat at the feet of the Judge and played among the jurors while cases were being tried. Sullivan is over on the Wabash side of the State and down toward the southern end, where people are somewhat old-fashioned and disinclined to adopt metropolitan ways.

Will Hays was sixteen years old and still wearing short trousers when his father took of the step," said Harrison, "is not so important as the direction in which it is taken."

The elder Hays was of Scotch-Irish descent and was a Presbyterian. It was, therefore, but natural that his son should go up to Crawfordsville to Wabash College and there acquire an education. It was an old-fashioned sort of school, but there has always been about it something of that atmosphere that has caused the sons of Indiana to write books and participate in other callings of the intellectual. During all

Will H. Hays, who radiates the warmth of genial kindness signing himself "Will" Hays. His name was, of course, William, William H. Hays. The Postmaster General was thoughtful for a moment. There is no man more ready to listen to suggestions. Then slowly he wrote it out on a piece of paper: "William H. Hays." He looked at it critically. Then he slowly tore up the paper and let the fragments sift from his fingers into the waste-basket. He is still Will Hays.

HE IS a new variety of politician—a man thrust into this position, where strong-arm methods have always been regarded as necessary, who believes that "gentleness maketh a man great." Yet it may not be entirely true to say that he is a new type. There was another Indiana from whom it might appear that he took many of his methods. This man was Thomas Taggart, the Democratic leader of the State. Taggart was a conciliatory person who found no enemies in his own camp to fight and, therefore, had more time to devote to the opposition. Taggart bound people to him by personal ties. Taggart had no time for hate. Neither has Hays. It looks as though the younger man had taken many a leaf from the book of his older and very successful rival.

I saw Hays the other day standing out in front of the executive offices of the White House talking to a friend. You know the manner of men in the small towns who stand around on the street corners and talk. The street corner is the farmers' club in such communities. Saturday afternoon is the big day. Well, Hays talking in front of the White House had the air of these small-town men visiting on the corners. A city man never gets the air of it, never rests his hat in just the same way, never stands in the same attitude of ease, never does the same things with his hands. Hays was at home. It was good, old-fashioned visiting just like back in Sullivan.

Will Hays has one brother and two sisters. They all, with their families, lived near Sullivan, Ind., where the Postmaster General taught Sunday school for fifteen years. The mother and father of the family were still alive up until two or three years ago. Will Hays often traveled 500 miles to get to Sullivan for Sunday, for it was the family custom that everybody should come over to the old home after church for Sunday dinner. Maybe it was small-town stuff, but it was the way folks act in the heart of America where real Americans dwell.

Mr. Hays has a wife and a boy. He is one of that class of men who is himself about twelve years old when he is off the job. He can play and romp, fiddle around, and loaf. He even has a bag full of golf sticks. He has carried them all over the United States and, to date, has played five games with them. He is a likable, companionable, human man who approaches all his fellows in a spirit of mellow optimism and seems to take it for granted that that same spirit pervades all the world. At any rate he is sure it will pervade any organization with which he has to do.

The Reason

MR. LIGHTLEIGH was boasting to Mr. Billington that he had been able to retain a cook's service for a period in excess of two months.

"What?" demanded Mr. Billington, incredulously. "You don't mean to tell me that a cook stayed in your employ for more than two months? How on earth did you manage it?"

"Well," continued Mr. Lightleigh, "we were cruising on a houseboat and she couldn't swim."

and faces. One modest clerk shook hands and sought to hurry past without giving his name. Why should he? The PMG would not remember. Mr. Hays stopped him, asked the name, and his associates say, "Will" met this clerk in the hallway some day and called him by it.

Then, when I went to see the Postmaster General for a talk, I had a further chance to see him in action. There were many men in his outer office. There were postmasters by the tens of thousands to be appointed and there are ten candidates for each office. They and their friends and their congressmen seek the ear of this man.

He receives as many of them in the inner office as he can, but the day is not long enough to get all the way round. So, when the sun gets low, he emerges from the inner sanctum and passes among those who are waiting. His face lights up as he grasps the hand of the first man he meets. "Hello, Colonel," he exclaims. "How is Montana?" and they draw aside for a few confidential words. Mr. Hays, as he talks, looks over the Colonel's shoulder and waves a boyish salute to a waiting friend, does a mimic handshake with another, passes a third a merry wink. All the time he is registering pleas, giving assurances of consideration, directing steps to be taken.

AND I observe and register impressions of the new Postmaster General. I have recently interviewed Danby and Weeks of the Navy and War Departments, each of whom weighs 250 pounds. Hays is about half the weight of one of these heavy set-teries. He is of medium height, but very thin. The boys must have called him "Slimmy" on the old playground. He has dark hair and brown eyes. He is sharp-faced with a nose-like nose that varies a bit from the meridian line. Large ears is the simple, decent thing to do and, by all the powers, it shall be done."

"The great idea," he continued, "is to get in touch with people. I have just had groups of postmasters down here to confer with me. There were Democratic Postmasters, holdovers from the former administration. When I proposed to bring them down I was told that it was useless, that they would not co-operate. But I got them here and talked about humanizing the service, about developing a new morale, about convincing their people that they were not working for us but with us. They arose to the occasion as men always do. Folks want to be human beings and will be if but given a chance."

"What is your view," I asked, "of the relation of the Postoffice Department to politics?"

"I regard it as a business organization," he replied. "It should be so firmly built as a business organization that politics will never again have anything to do with its make-up. My hope is to establish it on this basis.

"There are many common-sense possibilities of increasing the efficiency of the department. There is that matter of the time of day when the citizen drops his letters into the box. The habit is to mail everything between four and seven in the evening. Almost no mail comes in in the morning. So we have a peak of work and an absence of hands for its distribution. So I want people to use their heads. Don't dump everything into the mails at the same hour. Get some of your mail off in the forenoon. Hold all of it over until the next morning that will serve your purpose just as well and mail it then. I issued a plea of this sort to the him down to St. Louis in 1806 to his first national convention. It was then that he sat with his father and saw William McKinley receive a presidential nomination and got his first look into that phase of politics in which he was destined to win distinction.

NOT long ago Mr. Hays was digging around among his effects and found an envelope, yellowed by time, and filled with clippings from the St. Louis papers, describing the progress of that convention. Written across the back of it in the handwriting of his father was the legend:

"To Master Willie Hays, with the hope that he will always take a citizen's interest in politics."

It was in the same hotel in which the elder Hays and "Willie" stayed on that occasion of their first visit that, twenty-two years later, the young political organizer from Indiana was chosen as Republican National Committee chairman. It was in this same court which he had made his playground of childhood that William Harrison Hays was admitted to practice on the day he was twenty-one, and it was from that same courtroom on that same day that he went forth to cast his ballot, for it happened, somewhat prophetically, that his majority and election day arrived simultaneously.

It was to this court house, also, that he went in boyhood to hear Benjamin Harrison plead a case, and it was during the speech that this man, who was to be President, made that one sentence was uttered that fired itself in the mind of Willie Hays and has remained there ever since to be often used as his favorite quotation. "The length the time that Will Hays was at Wabash there was no oratorical contest staged in which he did not participate and few in which he did not carry off the honors.

Following his father's expressed desire that he take a "citizen's interest in politics," Will Hays became precinct committeeman before he was twenty-one. When he was twenty-two he was nominated for prosecutor and defeated, this being a foregone conclusion, for the community was strongly Democratic. At twenty-three he was county chairman. A little later he went up to Indianapolis and handled the speakers' bureau for the State campaign. By 1906 he had broken into the Democrats in his district and elected part of the candidates. When 1914 arrived there was great gloom in Republican circles. The Roosevelt-Taft breach had not been healed in Indiana. The Democrats had everything nailed down. The Progressives showed no desire to get back into the party.

Hays was made State chairman. It was then and there he began to preach his gospel that "there are no yesterday's in the Republican party." He insisted that the door was wide open, that all were welcome back and that all were entitled to a voice in the councils. He hired the biggest elephant in Indiana and painted on his sides: "G. O. P., I am back already," and paraded him through the streets of Indianapolis. Good progress was shown at the polls. The Republicans almost won.

THEN came the campaign of 1916, in which Hays made his big reputation. Indiana, which had become almost confirmed in its Democracy, piled up a good majority for Hughes and elected most of the ticket. This victory made Hays chairman of the National Committee.

Will Hays was a bit of a novelty as a political leader. He held a deep conviction which he often preached as the foundation upon which party success should be built. He said that, in a democracy, the party which would be in control longest was the party which was most consistently right.

Therefore, the first requisite was to get right and the second was to stay right. He believed that the party belonged to the people and that they had a right to be heard, that they did not need to be so darn regular, and that the latch-string was hanging out for anybody who may have wandered away. He had just sort of grown up liking people and he still liked them and got along with them. It was said at Republican headquarters that nobody ever came in with whom Hays could not work. I never heard anybody say that they had ever seen Hays mad. He never wields a big stick. He never dismissed a man from his office or from the party in his life. Whoever he was he would find a place for him to do effective work. He had a genius for putting people to work. The individual might not be personally attractive to him, might not be runed to the key he liked. That did not matter; he could not be made useful. He found the job that fit the man. If it was at his very elbow he would work with him despite personal uncongeniality.

And the way this slight, apparently frail, man could work. It was by no means an uncommon thing to see him working two stenographers and two telephones. It was said that Caesar could interview seven people at one time and at the same time write his memoirs. Two modern stenographers and two telephones is about as complicated a task.

"Things do not happen," he is fond of saying. "They are brought about."

"Human nature," he insists, "is the core of politics."

Some one recently suggested to Mr. Hays that he had grown to be a national figure now, that he occupied a high and dignified position, and that he should therefore quit

MARK SULLIVAN OF OPINION BORAH HAS BEST OF ARGUMENT

DECLARES SENATOR IS VOICING A DEMAND FOR DISARMAMENT.

CONGRESS WILL ACT IF THE PRESIDENT FAILS

President May be Willing to Permit His Hand to be Forced in Matter.

By MARK SULLIVAN National Political Correspondent of The New York Evening Post and The Wichita Daily Times. (Copyright, 1921, by The New York Evening Post.)

WASHINGTON, May 19.—The biggest thing in Washington this week is Senator Borah's insistence on a conference between America, Great Britain and Japan looking to limitation of armament. Compared with this issue tariff and taxation are confined for the moment to the attention of "special groups."

Just who is furnishing the opposition that enables Senator Borah to dramatize his campaign as a fight is clear. The method by which he has won the senate post their opposition on the ground that they are protecting President Harding from embarrassment. How much there is in this cannot be told. Apparently, Senators Hale and Poindexter talked to President Harding about it and got the idea that he doesn't want this resolution passed just now. On the other hand, Senator Borah himself talked to President Harding and apparently got the idea that the president did not object to his going ahead.

Probably the more fact that President Harding and the administration are extremely occupied with many other things has as much to do with it as anything else. Also, it is quite within the possibilities that President Harding may be more or less contented to let Senator Borah build up a demonstration of public opinion, and may like to seem to have his hand forced. He may like to have an alibi when he comes to mentioning to foreign governments a matter which they will regard as disagreeable.

Sincere But Not Convincing. When you ask the regular Republican leadership why America shouldn't go ahead with a call for a conference between the three nations, they give reasons which are sincere but not convincing. They say that it isn't time for it yet or that it ought to be done later on in connection with a larger program in the entire field of foreign affairs, or that it ought to go ahead and get a big fleet first before we make such a proposal, or that Japan won't disarm anyhow, or that Great Britain won't disarm unless we disarm, or that she has struggled along a little further under the burden of heavy costs.

A further complaint made is that it is embarrassing for President Harding to have to act with a vocal and militant democracy back of him, accustomed to creating public opinion when the statements of Japan and Great Britain suffer less interference from their respective publics.

It is clear that so far as public opinion is concerned both in the rank and file of congress and throughout the country, Borah has the best of it. And if the conference is held, it is further the administration will be at a disadvantage. The administration is very busy with house-cleaning. Both in domestic and foreign affairs it faces a chaotic mess and is doing a fine job in bringing order into it. But it isn't enough that any statesman or any administrator should be meeting a good field on occasion it must also be a good better. It isn't enough that all the incoming telephone calls are punctiliously cared for and that the desk is kept clear. A great executive must occasionally do something big in the way of an out-going call—sometimes a long distance call.

SLATED FOR CHAIRMANSHIP

John T. Adams of Iowa, who, according to rumors in official Washington, will in all probability be elected to succeed Postmaster-General Hays as chairman of the republican national committee, which meets in Washington that day, will immediately elect his successor.

STATE DEPARTMENT HAS CAUTIONED EMBASSIES AS TO BOOZE CONSIGNMENTS

WASHINGTON, May 19.—The state department has taken steps to guard more closely the only avenue by which alcoholic liquors for beverage use may enter the country. In a communication to the heads of the embassies and legations, the department outlined new regulations governing the issuance and use of certificates under which members or employees of the missions may obtain liquor shipments, amendment of the existing rules apparently being for the purpose of preventing possible misuse of such certificates.

The secretary of state presents his compliments to their excellencies and assures the chiefs of missions, "the state department's communication said, "and has the honor to inform them that he has found it necessary to discontinue, except as indicated herein below the issue of the certificates for use in the matter of clearance of consignments (of liquor) intended for the personal use of members of the missions."

The secretary of state begs to inform the chiefs of missions that he will be glad if, when making requests for the free entry of such consignments, they will, whenever it is necessary to send a representative to clear them, advise the name or the names of the respective missions who have been designated to receive the consignment. The department of state will then issue a certificate to be used in that specific instance. The name of the person designated should appear either in the diplomatic list or in the list of employees in the embassies and legations in Washington not printed in the diplomatic list. When the consignment shall have been cleared and brought to Washington the usefulness of the certificate will cease, and the secretary of state has the honor to request that it be returned to the department of state.

STATEWIDE SEARCH FOR GENTRY SLAYER STARTED BY POLICE

DETECTIVES LEAVE FOR OTHER POINTS IN HUNT FOR ASSAILANT.

DEATH RESULTS LATE WEDNESDAY FROM WOUNDS

Money Which Victim Was in Habit of Carrying on His Person is Missing.

Detectives of the police department have started a statewide search for the assailant of George Gentry, old time resident of Wichita Falls, who was found fatally wounded in the basement of his home, 308 Mississippi street, early Wednesday morning. He had been slugged with a two-foot steel bar, a gash five inches in length having inflicted across the top of the head. Over $400 in cash had been removed from his clothing, according to the police. Officers made no announcement of the affair until late Wednesday.

Gentry was unconscious when found and was taken to the Wichita General hospital, where he died late in the day after a futile effort to save his life by operating had been made. He never regained consciousness.

That the police have important clues as to the identity of the slayer seems highly probable, as Chief Detective Boyd left town hurriedly Wednesday night for parts unknown, while Detective Jack Miller boarded a south bound train earlier in the day. Chief Huff admitted Thursday morning that he was working on clues in connection with the case, but made no statement as to Miller's operations.

Robbery was the obvious motive for the killing of Gentry, police say, as the clothing he had worn through the night and the pockets turned inside out. Mr. Gentry was in the habit of carrying large sums of money on his person, it is said, never carrying trusted banks sufficiently to guard his wealth. Early this week he had exhibited $400 in cash to his landlady, Mrs. W. G. Wooten, the money being in four $100 bills and one of 15 denomination, she said.

Whether he had acquired more than this or had disposed of part of that which he had before being robbed is not known, but it is believed that the robber took approximately $400. A gold watch and one or two other articles of minor value which Gentry had on his person were not molested by the assailant.

Knowledge that Mr. Gentry always carried a large amount of cash in his pockets undoubtedly led to the attack, Chief Huff stated Thursday. The man had been in the habit of sleeping in the basement of the Wooten home and is believed to have been struck down as he entered the room preparatory to retiring Tuesday night. Police made no announcement of the affair Wednesday, believing that they might proceed further in apprehending the bandit by working secretly.

George Gentry had been a resident of Wichita Falls for the past 20 years. He had been operating a small knife and saw sharpening stand on Seventh street and had also been engaged in small mechanical jobs. He was 44 years of age at the time of his death.

Funeral services were held at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon in the O. W. Hines funeral chapel, Rev. H. D. Calkins, pastor of the First Methodist church, officiating. Burial was in Riverside cemetery.

AMERICAN DISCOVERS ATTEMPT TO SMUGGLE GERMAN CROWN JEWELS

AKRON, OHIO, May 19.—The curiosity of an American peace conference courier as to the contents of a cigar box wrapped crudely in newspapers was all that prevented the smuggling of the German crown jewels out of Germany to the former Kaiser, according to E. M. McIntosh, foreign expert of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company who served as one of the American couriers at Paris.

The attempt was made by confederates of the former Kaiser, who placed the courier as the innocent fool, McIntosh declared in an address before the Exchange club here yesterday.

The contents included long ropes of pearls, rubies and diamonds, and a platinum and diamond tiara weighing 12 pounds. They were discovered when the courier opened the box while on a train still in Germany.

AMERICAN LEGION WANTS SLACKER LIST MADE PUBLIC

INDIANAPOLIS, May 19.—F. W. Galbraith, commander of the American legion, sent letters to all department commanders of the legion today supporting the appeal of the war department for wide publicity of the "slacker lists" being issued by the department.

Publication of the lists in newspapers throughout the country "is the only satisfactory means of protecting the innocent and punishing the guilty," Galbraith wrote. He added that he hoped all newspapers would take this view and would consider publication of a list as a means of clearing the names of those wrongfully accused as well as assuring punishment of the guilty.

OPEN SHOP Conditions

With reference to the walkout of the printers from the commercial printing establishments in Wichita Falls, the employing printers desire to advise the public of the facts in the case and leave to their judgment whether we did the right thing under the circumstances.

The Typographical Union in April presented us with a contract to take effect on May first, demanding $50 a week for journeymen and $55 a week for foremen, on a basis of 44 hours work. This was the scale in effect during 1920 and until May 1st.

This offer was met by a counter proposition of $42.50 and $47.50 respectively for 44 hours' work, with a further statement that if an agreement could not be reached we were willing to submit the matter to arbitration. This offer was declined and on Sunday, May 1st, the union took a strike vote and called the men out on Monday-morning provided the contracts were not signed or agreed to.

After a conference with some of the more conservative members of the union the executive committee ordered the men to return to work Tuesday morning and remain on the job until information could be received from the International union.

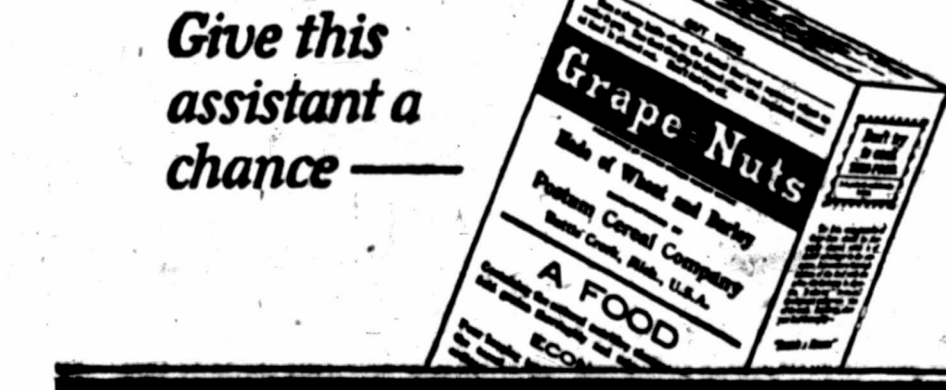

During the interim, the scale committee from the union suggested to the employing printers that the union would likely accept a compromise of $48 a week for 44 hours' work. This did not meet with the approval of the employing printers and was not considered. We then gave them our final proposition of $1.04 an hour, which was the basis of our old contract for 48 hours, and comply with the 44-hour law as promulgated by the International union. They declined this proposition after having received word from the International permitting them to take a strike vote on the basis of the old $50 per week contract.

Here we want to say parenthetically that the International union would have approved any contract made by the local union, hence it was a local matter entirely as to the scale of wages. This statement is admitted by the most radical members of the union.

Now, a word as to our future plans. There are practical men at the head of each of the plants effected and we are going to continue our business under open shop conditions. We expect to have some trouble in getting a force of good men, but we are going to take care of our customers the best we can and ask that they bear with us for a short time.

Work is being done in all offices today.

SILVER BLAZE

By A. CONAN DOYLE

Copyright, 1921, by Harper & Bros. Published by special arrangement with The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

The story thus far: Silver Blaze, the great race horse of King's Pyland, Dartmoor, was first favored for the Wexsex cup, a race soon to be run. John Straker, his trainer, had three boys under him, one of whom stayed at night with the horse, the other two of whom slept in the barn. On the night in question the maid in Straker's house went with a dish of curried lamb for a supper for the boy on duty. She met a man asking him about the great horse. The boy refused to talk and ran after him with the dog.

Straker went to investigate. In the morning he was found dead in a hollow nearby in the moor. The stable boy had been drugged with opium in his lamb. The horse was gone. The dead man's head was crushed by a cruel blow. In his hand were a small knife and the cravat of the stranger, and about him were signs of a violent struggle. The stranger proved to be Fitzroy Simpson, staying in the neighborhood, who admitted questioning the boy, because he had money up on Silver Blaze. He admitted carrying a heavy club, but denied all knowledge of the murder. Holmes and Watson went to King's Pyland and were met by Colonel Ross, owner of the horse, and Inspector Gregory, in charge of the case.

Gregory reviewed the case and they all agreed Straker had himself owned the knife, a small, peculiar Sygion's knife. Nearby across the moors was the Mapleton stable, whose trainer, Silas Brown, was no friend to Straker. In Straker's pocket was a dressmaker's bill made out to William Derbyshire for a twenty-two guinea frock. When Mrs. Straker entered the room Holmes asked her if she hadn't met her in a dove-colored silk dress at a garden party in Plymouth. She denied it.

PART FOUR

"There was no wind that night, I understand," said Holmes.

"None; but very heavy rain."

"In that case the overcoat was not blown against the furze-bushes, but placed there."

"Yes, it was laid across the bush."

"You fill me with interest. I perceive that the ground has been trampled up a good deal. No doubt many feet have been here since Monday night."

"A piece of matting has been laid here at the side, and we have all stood upon that."

"Excellent."

"In this bag I have one of the boots which Straker wore, one of Fitzroy

Mapleton, and the long sloping plain in front of us was lined with gold, deepening into rich, ruddy browns where the faded ferns and brambles caught the evening light. But the glories of the landscape were all wasted upon my companion, who was sunk in the deepest thought.

"It's this way, Watson," said he at last. "We may leave the question of who killed John Straker for the instant, and confine ourselves to what has become of the horse. Now suppose that he broke away during or after the meeting into a more central position. Then stretching himself upon his face and leaning his chin upon his hands, he made a careful study of the trampled mud in front of him. 'Hullo!' said he, suddenly. 'What's this?' It was a wax yeast half burned, which was so coated with mud that it looked at first like a little chip of wood.

"I cannot think how I came to overlook it," said the inspector, with an expression of annoyance.

"It was invisible, buried in the mud. I only saw it because I was looking for it."

"What! you expected to find it?"

"I thought it unlikely."

"He took the boots from the bag, and compared the impressions of each of them with marks upon the ground. Then he clambered up to the rim of the hollow, and crawled about among the ferns and bushes.

"I am afraid that there are no more tracks," said the inspector. "I have examined the ground very carefully for a hundred yards in every direction."

"Indeed!" said Holmes, rising. "I should not have the impertinence to do it again after what you say. But I should like to take a little walk over the moor before it grows dark, that I may know my ground tomorrow, and I think that I shall put this horse-shoe into my pocket for luck."

He stood pointing with a look of triumph on his face. A man's track was visible beside the horse's.

"The horse was alone before," I cried.

"Quite so. It was alone before. Hullo! what is this?"

The double track turned sharp off and took the direction of King's Pyland, Holmes whistled, and we both followed along after it. His eyes were on the trail, but I happened to look a little to one side, and saw to my surprise the same tracks coming back again in the opposite direction.

"One for you, Watson," said Holmes, when I pointed it out. "You have saved us a long walk, which would have brought us back on our own tracks. Let us follow the return track."

"We had not to go far. It ended at the paving of asphalt which led up to the gates of the Mapleton stables. As we approached, a groom ran out from them.

"We don't want any letterers about here," said he.

"I only wished to ask a question," said Holmes, with his finger and thumb in his waistcoat pocket. "Should I be too early to see your master, Mr. Silas Brown, if I were to call at five o'clock tomorrow morning?"

"Bless you, sir, if any one is about he will be, for he is always the first stirring. But here he is, sir, to answer your questions for himself. No, sir, no it is as much as my place is worth to let him see me touch your money. Afterwards, if you like."

As Sherlock Holmes replaced the half-crown which he had drawn from his pocket, a fierce-looking elderly man strode out from the gate with a hunting-crop swinging in his hand.

"What's this, Dawson?" he cried. "No gossiping! Go about your business! And you, what the devil do you want here?"

"Ten minutes' talk with you, my good sir," said Holmes in the sweetest of voices.

Holmes leaned forward and whispered something in the trainer's ear. He started violently and flushed to the temples.

"It's a lie!" he shouted, "an infernal lie!"

"Very good. Shall we argue about it here in public or talk it over in your parlor?"

"Oh, come in if you wish to."

Holmes smiled. "I shall not keep you more than a few minutes, Watson," said he. "Now, Mr. Brown, I am quite at your disposal."

It was twenty minutes, and the reds had all faded into grays before Holmes and the trainer reappeared. Never had I seen such a change as had been brought about in Silas Brown in that short time. His face was ashy pale, beads of perspiration shown upon his brow, and his hands shook until the hunting-crop waggled like a branch in the wind. His buttying, overbearing manner was all gone, too, and he cringed along at my companion's side like a dog with his master.

"Your instructions will be done. It shall all be done," said he.

"There must be no mistake," said Holmes, looking round at him. The other winced as he read the menace in his eyes.

"Oh, no, there shall be no mistake. It shall be there. Should I change it first or not?"

Holmes thought a little and then burst out laughing. "No, don't," said he. "I shall write to you about it. No tricks, now, or—"

"Oh, you can trust me, you can trust me."

"Yes, I think I can. Well, you shall hear from me tomorrow." He turned upon his heel, disregarding the trembling hand which the other held out to him, and we set off for King's Pyland.

THE EMERGENCY TARIFF

Senator Good.

The total value of live animals imported into the United States in 1920, according to the census of the United States, was $39,569,584.

Now, let me show some further unwarranted deductions from the list and the unreasonable arguments of its proponents in support of it as a revenue producer.

Take cottonseed oil. In 1920, with cottonseed oil at 18 cents a gallon, we imported practically 3,000,000 gallons.

Take rice. The existing rates on rice is 1 cent a pound. One hundred and twenty thousand pounds came in in 1920.

Take corn. In 1920 corn was on the free list and we imported into this country 7,700,000 bushels.

Take wool. In 1920, with wool on the free list, there were imported, of washed wool, less than 8,000,000 pounds.

BIG WHISKEY SEIZURE IS MADE BY POLICE

Two Trunks Full of Liquor Obtained Late Wednesday, One Arrest Made.

The largest whiskey raid yet to be staged by city police was made at 6 o'clock Wednesday evening on a vacant house on the 1400 block on Austin street, and resulted in the capture of two trunks filled with bottled in bond whiskey, one automobile truck with specially designed compartments for carrying bottles, and the arrest of one man, alleged to have been the owner of the truck and liquor.

No charges have been filed against the party yet, a further investigation of the affair being under way.

The raid was made by Chief of Police Huff, Chief Detective Boyd, Motorcycle Officer Eyerley and Plainclothesman Shook. The party went to the house soon after the truck had driven up, according to stories of the police Thursday morning, and took the driver of the machine without difficulty. Two large trunks were partially filled with quart bottles, while a large box, nailed to the bed of the machine and disguised as a tool compartment, contained the remainder. There were between 150 and 200 quarts in all, according to Huff, who had not completely checked up the contents Thursday morning.

It is the belief of police officials that the liquor was brought there from El Paso, a wholesale whiskey dealer's tag, giving the name of a Mr. Pettigrew as consignee, having been attached to one of the trunks. It was probably consigned to a local purchaser, police say, or else was going through the city to a distant point and was utilizing the empty house as a stopping place.

CRAZED FAMINE VICTIMS IN CHINA EATING ROCKS

PEKING, April 8.—(By mail.)—The most amazing condition yet reported in connection with the great famine—the actual eating of rocks dug out of the hills by hunger-crazed people—is reported by a squad of four relief workers who have just returned from a remote district in Chihli.

Everything edible having been consumed in this district, with every form of plant life devoured, some of the starving discovered in the hills some rock which crumbled readily when ground underfoot. This they immediately began to suck out of the jagged, in large slabs, reducing it to powder, mix water with it and eat it.

The effect upon the rock-eaters is that of a sedative. It stills the pangs of hunger and induces quietness, in some cases sleep. At first it was suspected that through some chemical action there might be a form of stimulation derived from the pulverized stone, so marked was the effect of this fare. Physicians, however, say that the temporary relief is due solely to the presence of a larger amount of material in the stomach than usual, which quiets the nerves and induces a better mental condition.

This rock is of a gray color and mixes up into a soft, velvety paste. The continued use of this food, however, is in every case fatal, whether due to the stone itself or the advanced starvation of the users.

How the Price of $13.95 on 30x3 1/2-inch Firestone Tires Was Made Possible

It is in this period of much-needed economy that the full benefit of Firestone's development can best be recognized.

The advantage of having two great individual plants has permitted specialization in the highest degree. Plant No. 1 is devoted to the production of Firestone cords—tires that are accepted as the highest development of tire building. Tire repair men who judge values best, class it as the sturdiest carcass made. Forty-seven car manufacturers have adopted Firestone cords as regular equipment during 1921.

Plant No. 2 was erected for the sole purpose of making 30x3 1/2 Non-Skid fabric tires. With a daily capacity of 16,000 tires and 20,000 tubes, this plant permits refined production on a quantity basis. Its output was 13,700 tires per day during April.

It is such basic economies that enable Firestone to make a price of $13.95 on this standard 30x3 1/2 tire—the lowest price ever made on a standard tire.

Firestone dealers help make this $13.95 price possible by accepting a smaller profit per sale on this fast selling tire.

We see today the fulfilling of what Firestone men have worked for—public support in soundly ratifying the Firestone standard of "Most Miles per Dollar."

Marshall Bests Landry In Hurling Duel and Spudders Blank Bears

A young man named Marshall, obtained by the Spudders this spring from the Memphis club in the best deal the club has ever made, was the person who threw a monkey wrench into Johnny Nee's 1921 Bear machine yesterday afternoon at Athletic Park and brought the visitors a few points nearer the cellar.

But don't think for a second that "Rube" didn't have a battle on his hands. "Zuke" Landry, of Dallas fame, performed on the hill for the Bears and the former Marine twirled the best game local ever saw him twirl in. He slipped in only one round and gave the Spudders the much desired opportunity to break into the top column.

Georges to Continue To Meet All Comers If He Licks Dempsey

NEW YORK, May 18.—Georges Carpentier will not retire from the ring after his fight with Dempsey for the world's championship, Francois Deschamps, his manager, said here today.

"Carpentier first considered retirement from the ring after the battle of his life, but he has changed his mind," his manager said.

"Win or lose, Georges will continue to meet all comers from either side of the water. He will maintain his training camp at La Garenne (a suburb of Paris), making his home in Paris as at present."

"If he wins, he will defend the world's title against all challengers. If he loses, he will defend his present title as light heavyweight champion of the world."

The SPORTLIGHT by Grantland Rice

England in sport is a great believer in experience—in the craft and skill and steadiness under fire that come from many testing years.

So England is hankering heavily upon experience, especially international experience, to pull her safely through the polo championship which is just now a month away.

Polo critics over here cheerfully admit the dash and skill of the American team—in practice. But they also cheerfully suggest that Devoreux Milburn led the British attack at Meadow Brook he was sleeping under a white cross in France, one of the first to fall.

So one of the greatest players of all time, a brilliant adversary in the last international meeting, is now but "a corner of a foreign field," leaving the others to carry on.

Two strong teams. Lockett, Woodhouse, Tompkinson and Rison have all had extended experience, and no team has ever trained harder. Great Britain lost the cup back in 1909 and had to go without a polo trophy for five years.

Three exclusive trips across were required to restore the silver design, and now the defending forces are sprucing no time, money or effort to keep the cup where it is.

As usual, there is much chatter back and forth, but the average opinion, muzzled, is that both England and America will put two strong teams in the field with no great advantage either way.

Outside of Milburn there is no particular margin among Hillsbrook, Webb, Rumsey, Stoddard and Hopping, as the American team is quite strongly reinforced with substitutes. It is no all-star combination, but a hard riding, hard fighting bunch, who are working to have the next polo championship played at Meadow Brook.

The English team has been busy breaking in and training younger ponies, so the big matches will find older polo players on younger ponies, facing younger polo players on older ponies, another complication which time alone will unravel for any suitable or certain answer.

And this answer may easily be played until the third game of the series on June 25, as neither team at this writing is sufficiently overpowering to win in successive matches.

DEMPSEY WORKS AS CARPENTIER RESTS

American Welcoming All Friends While Frenchman is Keeping Under Cover.

By HENRY L. FARRELL, United Press Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, May 18.—Widely divergent reports being enacted in the training camps of the two glove gladiators who will decide the world's championship in Jersey City July 2.

Dempsey, the champion, is battering big sparring partners around in Atlantic City. Carpentier, the challenger, is resting at Manhasset.

The big American is welcoming friends and the public. Carpentier is keeping out of sight.

Beyond taking a little walk, Carpentier has done nothing yet and his trainees say he will remain in comparative inactivity until the first week of June.

From all appearances he is still suffering from the effects of his voyage. The novelty of having a heavyweight training camp fenced, barbed wired and guarded is causing more comment now than the fight or the training.

Some figures in a corner of Manager Deo Camp's widely known psychology directed at the Dempsey camp, where he hopes to get them worried.

Jack Kearns will worry, that's a cinch. He can not figure how anyone could turn down a cool $25,000 or $30,000 in admission money just to keep away from the crowds.

FRANCE WILL PUT IN BID FOR 1924 OLYMPIC GAMES

PARIS, May 18.—When the Olympic congress assembles at Lausanne, Switzerland, May 25, earnest claims will be made by the French delegates to the effect that the 1924 games should be held in France. They will show that plans have been carefully prepared for the construction of an immense stadium, capable of accommodating 50,000 spectators. According to the designs perfected by the architects it will be the greatest structure of its kind in all Europe. Provisions have been made for a three-lap circular running track, one-third of a mile in circumference with a straight-away running path on which the 220-meter races can be decided.

CARPENTIER IN POOR CONDITION ACCORDING TO JACK MAULIFFE

Former Lightweight Champ Thinks Challenger Will Break Under Strain

By JACK MAULIFFE, (Retired Undeclared Lightweight Champion). Copyright 1921 by United Press.

Georges Carpentier looks haggard, drawn, weary and what we call in the parlance of the ring—"baked."

The Frenchman hardly has had a rest in his work and thinks—"I wish it were all over."

He looks five years older than he did when he made his first trip over here last summer.

His general appearance and attitude impressed me as one who has lost interest in his work and thinks—"I wish it were all over."

He looks drawn around the eyes and has a pasty color, although he always was rather pale.

He will have to be handled extremely well to keep from going stale. Training may get on his nerves and he will be unable to put his heart in his work.

Dee Camps, his manager, says he is not going to do anything for a couple of weeks. He had better not. In my opinion he had better lay down and take a good rest for two or three weeks and then go to work with a real heart and interest in his task.

SPORT SHOTS by Paul W. Barkin

Looks as if our faith in the boys was being justified. However, we won't do any crowing until we get out of the woods.

It took Walter's hurlers a long time to get started, but they've finally arrived. In the last three games only three passes have been issued, two by Hollingworth Tuesday and one by Marshall yesterday, and one measly run has trickled across the platter.

"Zeke" Landry never showed the stuff here with the Marines that he put on display yesterday. If a man wasn't capable of sticking with the Hampats we couldn't see what Jimmy Nee wanted with him.

The Bears are now falling into the rut that was vacated by the Spudders. They started skidding in Fort Worth and lost a few to change in the sixth and though they were outpitched and outplayed yesterday they put up a great battle.

Jack Dempsey is a great fighter—in the ring, but we never could warm to him after the draft episode with which he was connected.

It's a good thing that a foreigner is after the title or fight fans throughout the country would not be so strong for Dempsey. A great many will root for him simply because they do not want the title to leave the country.

Local Elks are banking on Bert Lowrey to lead their team to a victory over the Ardmore team.

The team will leave here Saturday at 2 o'clock and if George Jehle is to be believed they'll bring the bacon home without any trouble at all.

Manager Jehle still has many open dates and would like to arrange games with any semi-pro club in this section of the country.

We are offering E-P and Powhatan cigars, ten cent, two-fors and 15-cent sizes for five cents

A while back when more popular cigars were not to be had, we stocked up on these; they're not so well advertised nor so well known as some other brands and haven't moved as fast; so we'll swallow a substantial loss on them and you can get a good 15-cent smoke as you ever inhaled for just—ONE NICKEL.

Five cents is all you lose if you don't like 'em—but you will.

"Lest We Forget"

Workmen's compensation insurance is a matter of concern to all the public.

The working man is entitled to the same courtesy and consideration we show his employer. In the final analysis he is the real "assured."

The survival of our business, and the permanence of our livelihood, depends largely upon our treatment of compensation claimants.

While it would be contrary to public policy to pay compensation to those clearly not entitled to it, EVERY JUST CLAIM SHOULD BE PAID IN FULL ACCORDANCE WITH THE BENEVOLENT INTENT OF THE LAW.

Remember that we are dealing with SUFFERERS. Let them see that we are fellow human beings, that we sympathize with them in their misfortunes, and that at all times we recognize the humane as well as the commercial side of our business. Be helpful to them, and in doubt give the benefit to the injured employee and his dependents.

Get the Habit of Saving

Habit is one of the main characteristics of successful savers, because habit is one of the deepest laws of nature. We first make our habits, and then our habits make us.

It is as easy to form one habit as another; as easy to be prudent and saving, as habitually extravagant. The savings habit when formed can be as automatic as the heart action itself.

No one can confer this habit on us—we have to do this work ourselves.
