At a conference last night of those senators favoring what is regarded as the most drastic regulation proposed in the bill reported by the senate agriculture committee, it was decided the next move would be an attempt to secure reconsideration of the vote by which the measure was defeated by the margin of 37 to 34. HAVE BEEN TAKEN FROM HOMES AND COMPELLED TO JOIN GREEK FORCES; VIGOROUS PROTEST HAS BEEN FILED

SMYRNA, June 17.—American citizens are being impressed into the Greek army by agents of the Athens government, and George Horton, United States consul general here, has made vigorous protest against the action of the government. For many months past, Americans, even men who served in the army in France, have been taken forcibly from their homes in Smyrna and compelled to join the Greek forces.

There have been stories of such cases in Athens, Smyrna, Patras and Salonika, and only those able to escape and get in communication with American consular officials have obtained release. In many instances, however, they have been stripped of their clothing and their passports confiscated. When they have protested, it is charged that they have been handcuffed, thrown into jails and mistreated.

Consul General Horton has made it a practice when Americans have been released from the Greek army personally to put them on board boats and send them to America. Governor General Steriades has repeatedly promised to remedy the situation and has repudiated the action of minor Greek officials in detaining American citizens, but despite his efforts arrests of Americans continue. Mr. Horton has appealed to Washington to make a proclamation demanding upon the Greek government to discontinue this branch of the agreement existing between the two countries.

PAINCARE DISCUSSES A POSSIBLE ALLIANCE WITH GREAT BRITAIN

PARIS, June 17.—Raymond Poincare, former president of France, writing in the Revue des Deux Mondes concerning an Alliance between Great Britain and France, which has been discussed in political circles for the last few weeks.

Such an alliance, which may have the gravest consequences at some future date and upon which some day war or peace may hang, can only be definitely decided upon after mature reflection. Just as England would not help us in the remote contingency of our being attacked, we could not promise her eventual aid in a war which would not be strictly defensive. We have above all to guard ourselves against any agreement which might lead us indirectly into untimely disputes with the United States.

We are friends of Japan, but England is the ally of the Mikado, and agreement tomorrow 1,000 questions may arise in the Pacific between the United States and Japan, which would naturally be settled in our favor.

DESCRIBED AS "ABSURD AND UNFOUNDED" BY THE GOVERNMENT.

PRODUCTION FIGURES ARE GIVEN TO PUBLIC

Since 1901 Production in That Country Has Constantly Increased, is Report.

MEXICO CITY, June 17.—Reports of the depletion of Mexico oil fields were described as "absurd and unfounded" last night by the treasury and commerce departments of the Mexican government. They made public figures showing that since 1901 production of oil in Mexico has constantly increased, and stated that it was estimated the total output for the present year would be more than two hundred and sixty million barrels.

The total amount of crude petroleum on hand in Mexico at the end of 1920 was estimated at 8,528,029 barrels. The production for the first months of the present year was given as follows: January, 10,248,029; February, 12,067,864; March, 17,841,837; April, 13,614,740; May, approximately 19,000,000. Exports during the same period were given in round numbers. They were: January, 12,000,000; February, March and April, 12,000,000 each; and May, 14,000,000. The total exports for the five months were 77,000,000 barrels.

Reviewing the history of oil developments since 1901, when only 10,000 barrels were produced, the official figures indicate that the industry had jumped in 1910 to over twenty-five million in 1912, and in excess of fifty-five million in 1913. In 1918 the total production was 42,523,000 barrels. In 1919 it was 57,000,000 and last year's output was estimated at more than one hundred and sixty million.

Rafael Alarcon, chief of the petroleum department, said in commenting on the situation: "Persons studying petroleum affairs must not confuse exportation with production, since the increase or decrease of exportation is dependent on the circumstances of the moment."

WIVES OF PROPERTY OWNERS ENTITLED TO VOTE ON BOND ISSUE

COMMITTEE DECIDES TO MAKE THOROUGH CANVAS

Various Districts Are Assigned to Members to See That None Forget to Vote.

Married women who have paid their poll taxes and whose husbands are property taxpayers can vote in Saturday's bond election regardless of whether such women's names are actually on the tax rolls or not.

At the request of the Civic league, the question was looked into Friday by S. A. L. Morgan, local attorney, who rendered an opinion in accordance with the above. Mr. Morgan held that, as a married woman is, in fact, half owner of property on which her husband pays taxes, she is entitled to vote as a property taxpayer.

The decision is expected to add materially to the majority for the bond issue.

A thorough and systematic canvass will be made Saturday by advocates of the bond issue in an effort to see that no one forgets to vote. At a meeting of the local campaign committee Saturday morning, Chairman C. H. Clark made assignments of territory as follows:

Ohio avenue, Sixth to Tenth, both sides—H. Willis and Will Daniel.

Indiana avenue, Sixth to Tenth—D. M. Perkins, Nat Henderson and Tom P. Hickman.

Scott avenue, Sixth to Tenth—Frank Klem and Jimmy Maxwell.

THE ADVENTURE OF THE PRIORY SCHOOL

By A. CONAN DOYLE
Copyright, 1911, by Harper & Bros. Published by special arrangement with The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

The story thus far:
Lord Saltire, 10-year-old heir and only child of the late cabinet minister, the Duke of Holderness, disappeared from the Priory, a select preparatory school in the north of England one night, and Dr. Thornycroft Huxtable, founder and principal of the school, went to Holmes for help. He said that the same night the German master, Heidegger, had also disappeared, and his bicycle was gone. The beds of Lord Saltire and of the German master had both been slept in, but whereas Lord Saltire was evidently fully dressed when he went away, the German master's clothing was absent from them in his room. Dr. Huxtable suggested that the missing bicycle was perhaps only a blind.

Holmes and Watson went with Huxtable to the school, where the duke and his secretary, Mr. James Wilder, met them. Wilder was angry with Huxtable for taking Holmes to his confidence, but the duke was courteous, though he hesitated to give any information about his unhappy marriage. His wife, the duchess, was living apart from him in the south of France, he did not think she had anything to do with her son's disappearance. The duke admitted having written a letter to the boy which he received on the day he disappeared, and Wilder remembered seeing it among the papers that he received from the duke that day. But the duke declared that the letter concerned nothing but the duke's intention of going to the south of France. Later on, Holmes got a map of the region and decided the couple must have made off across the moors to the north in the direction of the boy's home.

At the Priory, Holmes and Watson were with a blue and white cricket-cap.

This had been found among a hand of spades in the moor, and Holmes picked it up on the moor. Holmes and Watson early in the morning looked for tracks in the moor, and found those of the German's bicycle and another. Following these, they came on blood also. Finally they found the body of the German, dead, with a battered head. Holmes argued that evidence pointed to the probability that the German had seen the boy making off with somebody in the night, had pursued him half-dressed on his bicycle, and had been killed by whoever it was which had taken him away.

Holmes and Watson go to the inn where they meet the landlord, Mr. Reuben Hayes, a surly fellow, who says he was once headcoachman for the Duke, who dismissed him without a reference. Holmes goes to the smithy attached to the inn to make some investigations, after remembering that the cow tracks along the side of the bicycles seemed to gallop, canter and trot. He found a horse in the stable newly shod, and that the way along the road to the Duke's hall, and suddenly saw a wild figure, the Duke's secretary, tearing past on a bicycle on the road toward the inn. Later they saw a trap leave the inn with a solitary occupant, and the secretary sawing into the dark. And later still Holmes, climbing on Watson's shoulders, peered into the window of the inn, but would not tell what he saw.

"I believe he is his bed."
"I will see him there."
Holmes' cold and inexorable manner showed the secretary that it was useless to argue with him.
"Very good, Mr. Holmes, I will tell him that you are here."
After an hour's delay, the great noblesman appeared. His face was more cadaverous than ever, his shoulders had rounded, and he seemed to me to be an altogether older man than he had been the morning before. He greeted us with a stately courtesy and seated himself at his desk, his beard streaming down on the table.
"Well, Mr. Holmes," said he.
"But my friend's eyes were fixed upon the secretary, who stood by his master's chair."
"I think, your Grace, that I could speak more freely in Mr. Wilder's absence."
The man turned a shade paler and cast a malignant glance at Holmes.
"If your Grace wishes—"
"Yes, yes, you had better go. Now, Mr. Holmes, what have you to say?"
My friend waited until the door had closed behind the retreating secretary.
"The fact is, your Grace," said he, "that my colleague, Dr. Watson, and myself had an assurance from Dr. Huxtable that a reward had been offered in this case. I should like to have this confirmed from your own lips."
"Graciously, Mr. Holmes,"
"It amounted, if I am correctly informed, to five thousand pounds to any one who will tell you where your son is."
"Exactly."
"And another thousand to the man who will name the person or persons who keep him in custody."
"Exactly."
"Under the latter heading is included no doubt, not only those who may have taken him away, but also those who conspire to keep him in his present position."
"Yes, yes," cried the Duke, impatiently. "If you do your work well, Mr. Sherlock Holmes, you will have no reason to complain of my regard for you."
My friend rubbed his thin hands together with an appearance of avidity which was a surprise to me, who knew his frugal tastes.
"I fancy that I see your Grace's check-book upon the table," said he.
"I should be glad if you would make me out a check for six thousand pounds. It would be as well, perhaps, for you to cross it. The Capital and Counties bank, Oxford street branch, are my agents."
His Grace sat very stern and upright in his chair, and looked stonily at me.
"Is this a joke, Mr. Holmes? It is hardly a subject for pleasantness."
"Not at all, your Grace. I was never more earnest in my life."
"What do you mean, then?"
"I mean that I have earned the reward. I know where your son is, and I know some, at least, of those who are holding him."
The Duke's beard had turned more aggressively red than ever against his ghastly white face.
"Where is he?" he gasped.
"He is, or was last night, at the Fighting Cock inn, about two miles from your park."
The Duke fell back in his chair.
"And whom do you accuse?"
"Sherlock Holmes' answer was an astounding one. He stepped swiftly forward and touched the Duke upon the shoulder.
"I accuse you," said he. "And now, I'll trouble you for that check."

Never shall I forget the Duke's appearance as he sprang up and claved with his hands, like one who is sinking into an abyss. Then, with an extraordinary effort of aristocratic self-command, he sat down and sank his face in his hands. It was some minutes before he spoke.
"How much do you know?" he asked at last, without raising his head.
"The death together last night."
"Does any one else beside your friend know?"
"I have spoken to no one."
The Duke took a pen in his quivering fingers and opened his check-book. "I shall be as good as my word, Mr. Holmes. I am about to write your check, however unwelcome the information which you have gained may be to me. When the offer was first made, I little thought the turn which events might take. But you and your friend are men of discretion, Mr. Holmes."
"I hardly understand your Grace."
"I must put it plainly, Mr. Holmes. Only you two know of this incident."
The Duke rose and walked about the room any farther. I think sixty thousand dollars is the sum that I owe you to it—not Holmes smiled and shook his head.
"I fear, your Grace, that matters can hardly be arranged so easily. There is the death of this school-master to be accounted for."
"But James knew nothing of that. You cannot hold him responsible for that. It was the work of this brutal ruffian whom he had the misfortune to employ."
"I must take the view, your Grace, that when a man embarks upon a crime, he is morally guilty of any other crime which may spring from it."
"Morally, Mr. Holmes. No doubt you are right. But surely not in the eyes of the law. A man cannot be condemned for a murder at which he was not present, and which he neither abhors as much as you do. The instant that he heard of it, he made a complete confession to me, so filled with horror and remorse. He lost not an hour in breaking entirely with the murderer, oh, Mr. Holmes, you must save him—you must save him! I tell you that you must save him!" The Duke had dropped the last attempt at self-command, and was pacing the room with a convulsed face and with his clenched hands raving in the air. At last he mastered himself, and sat down once more at his desk. "I'll trouble you for that check."
"I appreciate your conduct in coming here before you spoke to any one else," said he. "At least, we may take counsel how far we can minimize this hideous scandal."
"Exactly," said Holmes. "I think, your Grace, that this can only be done by absolute frankness between us. I am disposed to help your Grace to the best of my ability, but, in order to do so, I must be told to the last detail how the matter stands. I realize that your words applied to Mr. James Wilder, and that he is not the murderer."
"No, the murderer has escaped."
"Sherlock Holmes smiled demurely.
"Your Grace can hardly have heard of any small reputation which I possess or you would not imagine that it is so easy to escape me. Mr. Reuben Hayes was arrested at Chesterfield, on my information, at eleven o'clock last night. I had a telegram from the head of the local police before I left the school this morning."
The Duke leaned back in his chair and stared with amazement at my friend.
"You seem to have powers that are hardly human," said he. "So Reuben Hayes is taken? I am right glad to hear it. If it will not react upon the fate of James."
"Your secretary."
"No sir, my son."
"I confess that this is entirely new to me, your Grace. I must beg you to be more explicit."
"Tomorrow—The Adventure of the Priory School, concluded."

PART FIVE
At eleven o'clock next morning my friend and I were walking up the famous yew avenue of Holderness Hall. We were ushered through the magnificent Elizabethan doorway and into his Grace's study. There we found Mr. James Wilder, demure and courtly, but with some trace of that wild terror of the night before still lurking in his furtive eyes and in his twitching features.
"You have come to see his Grace?" I am sorry, but the fact is that the duke is far from well. He has been very much upset by the tragic news we received a telegram from Dr. Huxtable yesterday afternoon, which told us of your discovery."
"I must see the Duke, Mr. Wilder."
"But he is in his room."
"Then I must go to his room."

Newer Styles, Better Quality, Lower Prices

WICHITA FALLS QUALITY STORE

This Store Is Always a Busy Store

Present Conditions and How We Are Meeting Them

On Every Street and Everywhere You Go You See Well Dressed People

When you attend church, or go to a theatre, in a hotel, restaurant or on the streets notice the well dressed people. At present they are all in new summer attire and you hardly notice that fact because everyone is dressed that way, but you will notice a lady if she is wearing a last winter's hat, because they are the exceptions.

Very Few Stores Have Met These Demands. The Stores That Have Are Doing a Splendid Business

On account of the decline in prices many merchants have been unable to sell their high priced merchandise and replace these stocks with new merchandise at lower prices. Other merchants have believed that the public was on a buyer strike and that business had stopped and would not replenish stocks. Every department of this department store is well stocked with newer merchandise of better quality at lower prices.

The Trade Hase Demanded Newer Styles, Better Quality and Lower Prices and We Have Met the Demand

Our policy is to do what we should do before we are forced to do it. Last year when prices declined we lowered our prices at once. We were ready with new spring merchandise of better quality at lower prices before the trade demand it. Spring stocks have been disposed of and we are in the midst of a busy summer business and have the newer stock at lower prices to meet the demands.

We Are Familiar with Present Conditions. We Are Meeting Them With Quality Merchandise at Lower Prices

We know that the public expects a dollar to do its duty now. We maintain direct connections with our New York office that has combined the buying for hundreds of the largest merchants in the country. In this way we buy most of our merchandise direct from the manufacturer at wholesale cost. Whenever anything is offered new in New York it is shipped to us at once. This means that our stocks are always complete with the better quality of newer merchandise at lower prices.

DRESS

By ANNE RITTENHOUSE

Leather Coats Which Were Discarded by the Fastidious Woman Have Been Given New Impetus By Their Use as Sport Apparel in Bright Colors.

During the war the leather jacket became almost a mark of distinction. It was a part of that somewhat sentimental costume that linked a woman up with the fighting lines of the service in the rear.

After the winter jackets were discarded into rainy day apparel and they gave genuine service in that capacity except in summer when they were far too warm for comfort.

Then there came a slump in the fashion. Discarding women would have nothing to do with leather garments and they rather shunned the fabric for so slight a thing as trimming. Now the pendulum has swung back to leather coats. The new idea is to use them for sports.

There is much to be said against them in that field, if the wearer is to go in for the actual playing of games. They do not absorb moisture and this is decidedly against them. Equally, in by far the best ratio for sports because of its ability to absorb.

If the leather jacket is to be a purely ornamental feature of the wardrobe in the open on summer days, then wear it by all means. It is excessively decorative. When in bright colors it adds to the gaiety of any costume.

The designers of these sport garments have followed the trickery of the season in playing lines of stitching over the surface either in squares or diamonds. Or they restrain themselves and merely place lines of stitching at all edges. They do not leave the surface plain and unadorned.

Look at the coat in the sketch. It is of bright blue leather, stitched with grey. It is double-breasted, is minus fastenings, is a rippling pleum effect below the belt, long sleeves and a wide collar with revers.

The belt is of grey leather matched by the shoes and stockings. Grey shoes for sports are widely accepted, you know, they carry off the honors from black and brown. From white come new sport shoes—buckskin and calf. Many of them seem foolish with their high Spanish heels, but one just throws up the hands in despair when any return in shoes is mentioned. Nearly everything is fashionable but the right thing.

Back to leather. It is rather strange that the preference is given to coats of it and not to skirts, which is the other way around from the fashion of two seasons ago when brown and white leather skirts were smart on golf links of Southern resorts in the winter.

The skirts built by the big houses for the winter are of loosely woven homespun. Plaid is chosen by the young and plain surfaces by those who should avoid design. There is a slight regard shown by conservative women for the bright plaids. They prefer a one-color stripe which forms large open squares.

These new sport skirts there is no evidence of the struggle between the long and short lengths. The battle line does not reach into this field. Skirts are frankly and unequivocally short. They are intended to show the new thin type of woolen stocking in wood colors, or matching the shoes.

But let not the girl who is not a living picture despair. Nothing is easier to camouflage than peach-blond hair. Hand-makeup is usually better than the real article. Marcel artists perform on every corner, and there are very few men, thank God, who have ever learned to distinguish between a woman and her clothes.

The next aid to popularity is to learn how to dance, how to play cards, how to play tennis, and golf. Especially how to dance, for in these days, if a girl wants attention from men, she must be able to tread a measure with them without stepping on their toes. Heels are even more important than heads just at present, and though a girl were as beautiful as Venus, and as clever as Aeschylus, she would lose the deely if she could not toddle, and shimmy, or shake a nimble foot in the latest dance steps.

As for games, the girl who wishes to be popular with men must play well enough to interest the gatekeepers, but not to well that she beats her partner. If she can keep herself in the perpetual amateur class who begs the man she is playing with to teach her that wonderful stroke of his, or explain that marvelous trick, she will never look for instructors, or have to sit on the Country Club veranda with the golf widows.

Nothing has more to do with the hit that women make with men than their hair. It is the most important carry. This should be selected with great care, and with strict deference to the individual upon whom it is to be bestowed. Some men like chatty women who will work like a steam engine to entertain them. Others want to monopolize all the talking themselves.

But there are certain things that all men abhor. One is sarcasm. No man can abide a woman who says sharp and bitter things, and in an effort to be brilliant and witty, many a girl cuts her own throat with her tongue. No man likes a scandal-mongering woman, or a girl who says little catty things about other girls. No man likes a woman who laughs at other people. He is afraid he will be the next figure of fun to her. No man likes a woman who babbles on and on. It makes him tired, if he is a quiet man, and if he is a talker, he wants the floor himself.

There is disagreement as to the last words that Napoleon uttered. According to one authority, his words constituted a broken sentence. "My God... and the French Nation... My son... Head of the Army... France... France!"

The most eloquent thing ever said or written of Napoleon was Robert Ingersoll's description of the tomb of Napoleon under the dome of the Invalides in Paris. In the last paragraph of that magnificent, but brief description, Ingersoll said: "I would rather have lived in a hut with a vine growing over the door, and the grapes growing purple in the autumn sun; I would rather have been that poor peasant, with my wife by my side, knitting at the day, and out of the sky, with my children upon my knees and their arms about me."

These should possess knowledge who aspire to assume the command of others.

Napoleon believed in fate. He said: "It is not written on high that I am to perish by the hands of the Arabs," and he made his escape.

At another time he said to an officer: "My friend, if that ball were destined for you, it would be sure to find you, though you were to burrow a hundred feet under ground."

Of Lennox, who entered the Army as a volunteer, and died Marshal of France, Napoleon said: "I found him a dwarf, and left him a giant." Napoleon found HIMSELF a dwarf and made of himself the greatest military commander that ever lived, unless it be Julius Caesar.

"From the sublime to the ridiculous there is but a step." Of all the things which Napoleon said, he was fondest and proudest of this one sentence.

"When Madame de Stael asked Napoleon, whom he considered the greatest woman in the world, his reply was: 'Her who has borne the most children.'" This ought to be satisfying to the American mothers of big families.

"It would be better for a man never to have lived, than not to leave behind him traces of his existence, better never to have been born than to live without glory."

"Victory belongs to the most persevering."

"Imagination rules the world."

"To give one's self up to grief without resistance, to kill one's self to escape it, is to leave the field of battle without gaining the day."

"Alexander, Caesar, Charlemagne and myself have founded empires. But upon what did we rest the creations of our genius? Upon FORCE. Upon love, and at this moment millions of men would die for Him."

"No man's loss is irreparable. No man is necessary, nor I, nor Caesar, nor Alexander." An excellent thing to remember if you have an exaggerated idea of your own importance.

"Towards often boast of their ignorance of fear."

DOROTHY DIX'S TALKS

By DOROTHY DIX THE WORLD'S HIGHEST PAID WOMAN WRITER

How to Please the Men

A YOUNG woman asks me to give her some reliable recipe for pleasing the men.

There is none. Nobody knows just what peculiar quality in a woman attracts men or repulses them. Even the Bible declares that the way of a man with a maid is one of the mysteries that human wisdom cannot fathom.

Generally speaking, a girl's first aid to popularity is beauty. Every man's eye is attracted by a pretty face. Every man likes to be seen out with a peach, who makes other men rather ask the next day who was the little queen. Undoubtedly, Heaven's best gift to a woman is a peach and cream complexion, a straight nose, and hair with a natural wave in it; for if her good fairy has endowed her with these gifts, she can get all the balance herself.

But let not the girl who is not a living picture despair. Nothing is easier to camouflage than peach-blond hair. Hand-makeup is usually better than the real article. Marcel artists perform on every corner, and there are very few men, thank God, who have ever learned to distinguish between a woman and her clothes.

The young lady across the way says there's much to be said on the other side but her own opinion is that the political prisoners in this country have suffered amnesty long enough and ought to be released.

Lyrics of Life

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THE CALL OF THE NORTH

I can hear the northwoods callin', as the sailor hears the sea, And the city yoke is gallin', for it's there I want to be.

Where the cataract is fallin' and the bud is on the tree, I can see the crimson burnin' in a sunrise red as rose.

I can hear the zephyr's yearnin', and it's northward that it blows, I can hear the birds returnin' where the pine and cedar grow.

Every day I see 'em wingin' from the South they want to roam, Ev'ry dawn I hear 'em singin' in the blue, unclouded dome— And the song that they are bringin' is a song of joy and home.

I can hear the northwoods callin', as the sailor hears the sea, Where the cataract is fallin' and the bud is on the tree, I can hear the northwoods callin'— and the man they want is me!

"What's In a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Feels About Your Name, Its History, Its Meaning, Whence It Was Derived, Its Significance, Your Lucky Day and Lucky Jew.

JOAN

JOAN is the feminine counterpart of John and yet it has never had the common vogue of that most popular of male proper names. Joan signifies "gift of the Lord," and there is considerable question as to whether its origin was English or Teutonic.

At any event, the name first made its appearance as Joanna and is said to have originated with Joanna, holy woman of the Gospel. She was never canonized, so it is believed that the name was adopted rather in honor of one of the Saint John's than as a tribute to her, particularly as there are thirty feasts of Saint John on the Roman calendar and only two in honor of Joanna.

In the twelfth century, the name began to be used with infrequent frequency in southern France, when ladies named Juana in Spanish, and Jehanne or Jeanne in French married into every royal family of the time. The first English princess so called was the daughter of Henry II. Indeed, almost every king had a daughter Joan or Jhane.

Joan Makepeace was the name given to the daughter of Edward II when the long war with the Bruce began to be waged by her marriage. Another famous Joan was Joan Beaufort, the maiden romantically beloved by the captive James I. As his widow, she so fiercely revenged his death, it will be recalled.

LAST NIGHT'S DREAMS WHAT THEY MEAN

DID YOU DREAM OF PORTRAITS?

MOST of the mystic oracles agree that to dream of a portrait means bliss for the one whose face the portrait represents. But many say that it is an unfavorable omen for the dreamer, as well as to the person represented in the portrait, to dream of destroying the pictured face. Some of the mystic authorities assert that one who dreams of seeing his own portrait will have much happiness in married life. If he or she is not already married he or she will soon enter into the wedded state and that most happily—in short, to dream of your own portrait is a sure sign of domestic, wedded bliss.

An O. HENRY Story

Vanity and Some Sables

WHEN "KID" Brady was sent to the ropes by Molly McKeever's blue-black eyes he withdrew from the Stovepipe Gang. So much for the power of a colleen's blazer's tongue and stubborn truth-heartedness.

The Stovepipe Gang borrowed its name from a sub-district of the city called the "Stovepipe," which is a narrow and natural extension of the familiar district known as "Hell's Kitchen." The "Stovepipe" strip of town runs along Eleventh and Twelfth avenues on the river, and bends a hard and sooty elbow around little, lost homeless DeWitt Clinton park. Consider that a stovepipe is an important factor in any kitchen, and the situation is analyzed. The chefs in "Hell's Kitchen" are many, and the "Stovepipe" Gang wears the coronal blue.

"Kid" Brady promised Molly to be good. "Kid" was the vainest, the strongest, the warriest and the most successful plunderer in the gang. Therefore, the boys were sorry to give him up.

But they witnessed his fall to a virtuous life without protest. For, in the Kitchen it is considered neither unmanly nor improper for a guy to do as his girl advises.

"Turn off the hydrant," said the Kid, one night when Molly, tearful, besought him to amend his ways. "I'm going to cut out the gang. You for mine, and the simple life on the side. I'll tell you, Moll—I'll get work, and in a year we'll get married."

"Oh, Kid," sighed Molly, wiping the powder off his shoulder with her handkerchief. "I'd rather hear you say that than to own all of New York. And we can be happy on so little."

The Kid looked down at his speckled cuffs and shining patent leather shoes with a suspicion of melancholy. "I'll hurt hardest in the rag department," said he. "I've kind of always liked to rig out swell when I could. You know how I hate cheap things, Moll."

"Never mind, Kid. I'll like you just as much in a blue jumper as I would in a red automobile."

Before the Kid had grown large enough to knock out his father he had been compelled to learn the plumber's art. So now back to this.

"I can hear the northwoods callin', as the sailor hears the sea, Where the cataract is fallin' and the bud is on the tree, I can hear the northwoods callin'— and the man they want is me!"

JOAN is the feminine counterpart of John and yet it has never had the common vogue of that most popular of male proper names. Joan signifies "gift of the Lord," and there is considerable question as to whether its origin was English or Teutonic.

At any event, the name first made its appearance as Joanna and is said to have originated with Joanna, holy woman of the Gospel. She was never canonized, so it is believed that the name was adopted rather in honor of one of the Saint John's than as a tribute to her, particularly as there are thirty feasts of Saint John on the Roman calendar and only two in honor of Joanna.

In the twelfth century, the name began to be used with infrequent frequency in southern France, when ladies named Juana in Spanish, and Jehanne or Jeanne in French married into every royal family of the time. The first English princess so called was the daughter of Henry II. Indeed, almost every king had a daughter Joan or Jhane.

Joan Makepeace was the name given to the daughter of Edward II when the long war with the Bruce began to be waged by her marriage. Another famous Joan was Joan Beaufort, the maiden romantically beloved by the captive James I. As his widow, she so fiercely revenged his death, it will be recalled.

LAST NIGHT'S DREAMS WHAT THEY MEAN

DID YOU DREAM OF PORTRAITS?

MOST of the mystic oracles agree that to dream of a portrait means bliss for the one whose face the portrait represents. But many say that it is an unfavorable omen for the dreamer, as well as to the person represented in the portrait, to dream of destroying the pictured face. Some of the mystic authorities assert that one who dreams of seeing his own portrait will have much happiness in married life. If he or she is not already married he or she will soon enter into the wedded state and that most happily—in short, to dream of your own portrait is a sure sign of domestic, wedded bliss.

HUMANISMS Inner Lights on Lives and Whims of Personages in the Public Eye

By WILLIAM ATHERTON DU PUY

In the senate barber shop in Washington there is an ancient colored man who has probably shaved more distinguished men than anybody else in America. His name is Sims.

Sims is a preacher among his own people and was mentioned as a candidate for the chaplaincy of the senate, a position which he took quite seriously.

He used to shave Mr. Harding, all the time that gentleman was in the senate.

Speaking of going back to the good old days of our fathers, it may be said that Sims once insisted on this policy somewhat to the disadvantage of the senator from Ohio.

Mr. Harding had not been in the senate more than two or three years, and while he shaved him Sims moralized on the tendency of the times, lamented because the introduction of the direct primary had resulted in a different sort of senator, and said the place had run down badly since the good old days.

Then he happened to think that Mr. Harding was comparatively new in the senate and tried to back up.

But the most of one day to be present refused to be reconciled and he and Sims quarreled about the reflection for months thereafter.

The eccentricities of scientists are like unto those of artists, says Dr. Williams.

Colonel E. Lester Jones, chief of the coast and geodetic survey, who had been making a mighty reputation as an efficient government executive during the last ten years, made his first big step in that direction by sending a telegram from Alaska to President Wilson.

He had gone up there to report on Alaskan conditions. He wired back that the first necessity was to map the waterways of Alaska. The only way to get in was by water. Boats would not go in unless they knew where the channels and where the rocks were located.

The recommendation was made a part of the president's next message to congress, and was the basis for Colonel Jones' subsequent advancement to his present post.

The History of Your Name

FAIRBANKS. Variations—None. Slang—Middle English. Source—Descriptive, geographical.

There are a tremendous number of geographical family names which developed in England.

Often a man would take the name of the town or village in which he had resided, but for the most part this occurred only when he had moved to another place, or if he happened to belong to the nobility and was a member of the family which exercised overlordship over that town.

More often, however, he would take as his distinguishing name some particular spot or place of the countryside in which he resided.

Fairbanks might be described as a countryside family name in the mid-

Little Benny's Note Book

I was walking along yesterday just waking along and I saw a loose horse shoe out in the street, thinking, Gosh, some horse must of lost that without knowing it. And I picked it up and started to take it home on account of loose horse shoes being good luck, thinking this is a good chance to prove it whether they really are or not.

Which just then what did I do but trip over a stuck up brick and I fell down holding on to the horse shoe for good luck, and it gave me a fierce crack on the nuckles when it hit the pavement, me thinking, Ouch, heck.

And when I got home I got a hammer and a nail and I fell off of both of them and landed in a sitting position on the floor with a fierce bump, thinking, O well, the horse shoe is up anyway.

Which it was, but not very good, the nail only being a little worse on account of being missed on my neck, and pop came up stairs to see what made the fierce bump and he opened my door and he saw me sitting on the floor with the horse shoe on my head.

Wat in the name of blinking blues.

It's only a loose horse shoe, pop, it's supposed to be good luck, I said.

You don't tell me, said pop. And the next thing I knew I was being shook and smacked both at the same time, and pop still gets mad every time he feels the top of his head.

Proving loose horse shoes may be good luck for some people but mine is out in the alley.

MANCHESTER STRIKE HAS BEEN SETTLED

MANCHESTER, ENGL., June 17.—The COLON STRIKE, a walk-out by the United Textile Workers, at a joint meeting accepted by the employers, offer for a settlement.

de ages, when it ceased to be a merely descriptive name of a single individual, and began to be passed down from father to son, it meant just what it would be taken to mean today, "fair banks." Undoubtedly the original Fairbanks dwelt at some riverside spot in England locally described as such. More than likely he was a farmer.

This family name, strictly speaking, has no variations, being a straight combination of two words which have come down from the middle ages with little or no change in spelling. There are, however, a host of names which originated in England and consist of the combination of the word "fair" with other words.

Fairbanks, though widely known, is not an exceptionally common name. Yet it occurs often enough to warrant the assumption that it developed independently in several different places and probably in various periods.

NOOSE SLIPS AT HANGING OF MAN AT NEW ORLEANS

NEW-ORLEANS, June 17.—The police at the parish jail were rushed by a crowd here today, when it was learned that execution of Felix Birbiglia, convicted murderer, seemingly had miscarried, due to the slipping of the noose. Police reserves drove the mob back and Birbiglia was pronounced dead nearly 30 minutes after the trap was sprung.

Prison officials said 15 minutes after the drop the condemned man was heard to whisper "God have mercy on my soul."

LEAVENWORTH, KAN., June 17.—Word was received at the federal prison here today that the life sentence of Samuel L. M. Patterson, a former soldier, had been reduced five years by the secretary of war, Patterson was sentenced at Fort Rosecrans, Calif., where he was a corporal in the 4th coast artillery on a statutory charge.

BEES START OFFENSIVE IN SUGARLAND TERRITORY

SUGARLAND, TEXAS, June 17.—A summer offensive of the kind that would delight the heart of Field Marshal Joffre of France is getting under way here.

It is a nibbling offensive, such as that famous soldier employed against the "primitives" of the world, and the invaders are literally swarming over their objective.

The advancing soldiers are honeybees, just plain, every day, of honey-making proclivities and a bayonet-like sting, and their objectives are the big sugar refineries which give this city its name.

Thousands of swarms of bees, according to estimates of refinery officials, have moved bag and baggage into Sugarland, whether in claim or lateral industry for Sugarland or the discovery of a new by-product of sugar.

TWO MORE ARRESTED FRIDAY AFTERNOON IN CAR THEFT CASE

Senational developments within the next 48 hours are promised by the city police in connection with interstate shipment robberies which were uncovered Thursday and which thus far have resulted in the arrest of five men and the recovery of over $1,000 worth of cigarettes, candy and dry goods.

Two more men were placed under arrest Friday afternoon on charges of complicity in the robberies. H. E. Brown, formerly a city history expert, and riding partner of O. Hobbs, who was arrested Thursday night in connection with the affair, and Doris Brown, owner of a confectionary at 816 1/2 Main, being taken into custody.

Brown is alleged to have operated with Hobbs in the securing of the merchandise as it was thrown from box cars by other accomplices and Greer is said by officers to have been working with Herbert Minor, who was arrested with Hobbs and who is alleged to have disposed of much of the stolen property.

Chief of Police Huff declared Friday afternoon that there were still half a dozen at liberty who were involved in the police declared there would be in jail within the next day. There is also a large amount of loot which has not yet been recovered, according to Huff, and it will amount to another $1,000.

None of those arrested have been turned over to county officials set and formal charges, but they have been held against them but signed statements have been taken by the police which implicate all those named.

CAMPAIN OF WIDESPREAD VIOLENCE AROUND LONDON, ACCUSE THE SINN FEINERS

LONDON, June 17.—A campaign of widespread burning of railway and signal boxes and burning of signal cabins around London, attended by violence against signal men, was carried out here during last night by men who the police declared were Sinn Feiners and members of the Irish self-government determination league. Nine men were arrested.

The official police statement says: "All the men arrested give local addresses. They are young Irishmen between 17 and 22. It has been known for some time that the heads of the Irish self-determination league in London have been in correspondence with the so-called Irish republican army, which has been directing the murders and outrages in Ireland."

REPUBLICANS CLAIM THEY DID NOT AGREE TO REDUCE THE TAXES

PERFECTLY GOOD AS AN OFFICIAL ANSWER

Party Leaders, However, Know That It Will Not be Acceptable to Voter.

By MARK SULLIVAN National Political Correspondent of the New York Evening Post and the Wichita Daily Times (Copyright, 1921, by the New York Evening Post)

WASHINGTON, D. C. June 17.—The republican answer to the clamor for reduction of taxes is that they never promised to reduce taxes. They quote the language of their platform adopted at Chicago a year ago this week. It said:

"The burden of taxation imposed upon the American people is staggering but in presenting a true statement of the situation we must face the fact that while the character of the tax can and should be changed, an early reduction of the amount of revenue to be raised is not to be expected."

This is a perfectly good official answer, and those among the republican leaders who rely on it do so with straight forward sincerity. But as the republican politicians who gathered here for the meeting of the national committee last week expressed it, this is no good as a practical answer. They say that next year, when they are electing a new congress and when they are charged with failure to reduce government expenditures, it won't help them any on the stump to prove that they made no promise.

Congressman James W. Good of Iowa, who knows the financial situation of the government as well as anybody, and is just retiring as chairman of the appropriations committee, expressed the sound view of the practical politician when he said: "The republican administration must make a big reduction in government expenditures with a consequent lifting of oppressive war taxes, or it will be swept out of power."

That is what the republican politicians know, and that is what troubles them. They know the need, but they cannot find the way to meet that need. The fact is that some of the best informed and most responsible leaders in congress and in the senate are inclined to the belief and the fear that when the end of the session has come it will be found that there are more taxes instead of less.

There is plenty of economy entirely earned in intention and performance, but relatively negligible in amount. When one cabinet member releases seventeen lawyers who are drawing $5,000 a year each, that is economy. But $10,000 a year is a small matter in a budget whose total is about fifty thousand times $10,000. The reorganization of government departments will achieve some economy, but that, too, will be relatively small in amount.

IF YOU LIVE IN A FLAT HERE'S THE WAY TO GROW STRAWBERRIES

All you need is about six square feet of porch, or roof, in a spot accessible to sunshine, an old sugar barrel, some rich loam, a bunch of "ever-bearing" strawberry plants, and faith. Bore circles of one-inch holes around the barrel, the holes about six inches apart and the circles equal distance apart, the first circle being about a foot from the bottom. Then put in some loam, stick the roots of a strawberry plant in each hole and cover them up as you work upward. Plant a dozen or so on the top, and soon you will be picking your berries, as this woman does, nearly every day from early spring until the snow falls.

Also, in spite of the impetus which the administration is just now putting behind the scheme of reorganization, that process will be slow in coming to fruition. Every clerk and every bureau chief who feels a vested interest in his particular job has each a congressman who is sympathetic to him, and the aggregate of the pressure that dislocated government employees can bring on congress is formidable. Soon or later ruthless vigor will be required of the administration to put this recognition through. It may well be that the end of the session will have arrived before it is finally accomplished.

Meaningless those leaders who are directly responsible for raising money do not see much real hope of decreased taxation. The form of it may be changed, but the total burden is not likely to be decreased. A few of these leaders still believe the sales tax will come. They base that belief on the theory that the government must have the money. But an accurate picture of the prevailing sentiment of congress on this point would have to record, at the present time, a strong opposition to the sales tax.

The only big opportunity for reducing taxes lies in reducing armaments, and we are now far enough along to make it fairly certain that no further material reduction in our expenditures for armament will occur during the present session. The bulk of the members of congress would like to make the reduction, but they don't want to do it until such time as they can get assurances from the president that their action does not embarrass him.

SOLDIERS OF THIS CLASS ARE RETURNING TO PARIS

PARIS, June 17.—Soldiers of the class of 1913, who were mobilized early in May for duty in the Dusseldorf area, began returning to Paris today. The 1913 class troops gradually are being replaced on the Rhine by soldiers of the class of 1921 who now are in training.

RENEWS DEMAND IN FRENCH SENATE FOR A TRIAL OF KAISER

PARIS, June 17.—Senator Du Planter in the senate late yesterday with Premier Briand attending the session, renewed his demand of Tuesday to know "what measures the French government intends to take concerning the execution of the treaty of Versailles relative to bringing William Hohenzollern, ex-king of Germany, to trial for his crimes against humanity."

The senator asked for immediate discussion of his interpellation. Premier Briand argued that it might be advisable to wait to see what action is taken by the Leipzig court which is trying war criminals and what verdict it reaches in cases submitted to it for trial by France. Up to the present, the premier added, the cases decided by the court have been exclusively on Belgian and British demands.

"As far as the kaiser is concerned,"

M. Briand said, "the senate doubtless will rule that two years after the armistice we cannot join his case with the others now being tried at Leipzig without some slight inconvenience."

There was a touch of sarcasm in the voice of the premier as he spoke. Later the senate voted to postpone discussion of M. Du Planter's interpellation, and ordered that it be entered in its regular turn on the order of the day. This is equivalent to an indefinite postponement of debate on the interpellation.

EIGHTY-FIVE RESERVISTS TAKE TRAINING CRUISE

Galveston, Texas, June 16.—Waiting gods of Texas and Louisiana members of the country's naval reserves, are once more getting their sea legs aboard the U. S. S. Wheeling which left this port recently for a training cruise in the West Indies. About 85 reservists are aboard the ship.

These polishing, deck, washing and "holystoning" are among the "pleasures" of the training cruise, for nothing is to be neglected which goes to constitute a sailor's training. According to Lieutenant Commander Harry G. Black Jr., in command of this sub-district of the eighth naval reserve district.

Lieutenant Commander Black said that the Wheeling probably would put in at New Orleans before returning to Galveston, the entire cruise probably lasting only a fortnight. Similar cruises for the reservists of the eighth district, he said, would be engaged upon during the summer and fall.

Senator Declares Harvey Statement to Be a Falsehood

BOSTON, June 17.—Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, in a speech before the Northern club last night, branded Ambassador George Harvey's recent speech that "Americans were afraid not to fight as a falsehood."

"Additional facts are a great fighting man," he added, "but he has no love for a foreign nation and there engage in open discussion of one of the most delicate political questions confronting the nation."

MEXICAN NEWSPAPERS HAVE LITTLE COMMENT ON INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

MEXICO CITY, June 17.—International relations are only incidentally commented on by Mexican city newspapers, which evidently believe that the situation for the present is deadlocked. President Obregon's stand for recognition prior to the signing of a treaty has been accepted unanimously by the papers as consistent with national pride and tradition.

With respect to the various reports published on oil production in Mexico, the secretary of the interior, General Calles, who has just returned from an extended tour of the Tampico region, says: "The future of the oil industry in Mexico is a brilliant one and production will last several years."

DODSON KILLING USE OF CALOMEL

Says Drug is Mercury and Acts Like Dynamite on Your Liver.

Dodson is making a hard fight against calomel in the south. Every druggist has noticed a great falling off in the sale of calomel. They all give the same reason. Dodson's Liver Tone is taking its place.

"Calomel is dangerous and people know it, while Dodson's Liver Tone is perfectly safe and gives better results," said a prominent local druggist. Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist. A large bottle costs but a few cents, and if it fails to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, you have only to ask for your money back.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults. Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine, no biliousness, sick headache, acid stomach or constipated bowels. It doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all the next day like violent calomel. Take a dose of calomel today and tomorrow you will feel weak, sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work! Take Dodson's Liver Tone instead and feel fine, full of vigor and ambition—adv.

BARBECUE AT LAKE IS WELL ATTENDED

Players and Fans Enjoy "Eats" And Other Amusements Offered by Rooters' Club.

About 200 members of the Spudder Rooters' club and 35 Spudders and Sand Crabs enjoyed themselves hugely at the barbecue tendered the members of both teams by the rooters' club at Lake Wichita last night. Fans who had long wanted to meet the boys were given the long-awaited introduction and the purpose of the club, which was to bring the players and fans into closer contact with one another, was accomplished.

Virgil Shepherd was in charge of the festivities and he left nothing undone to give everybody a good time, though it was through the co-operation of several other fans who gave the boys the use of their machines that the occasion was made possible.

After the thorough consumption of several pounds of beef, a few hundred pickles, a couple of kegs of "beer" and numerous quarts of lemonade, the majority ambled over to the swimming pool where Danny Gross was the particular object of attention. Danny had quite a bit of trouble keeping his hair out of his eyes, but outside of that gave a most creditable performance, showing that he is as adept in the art of diving as he is in scoping up the hot ones.

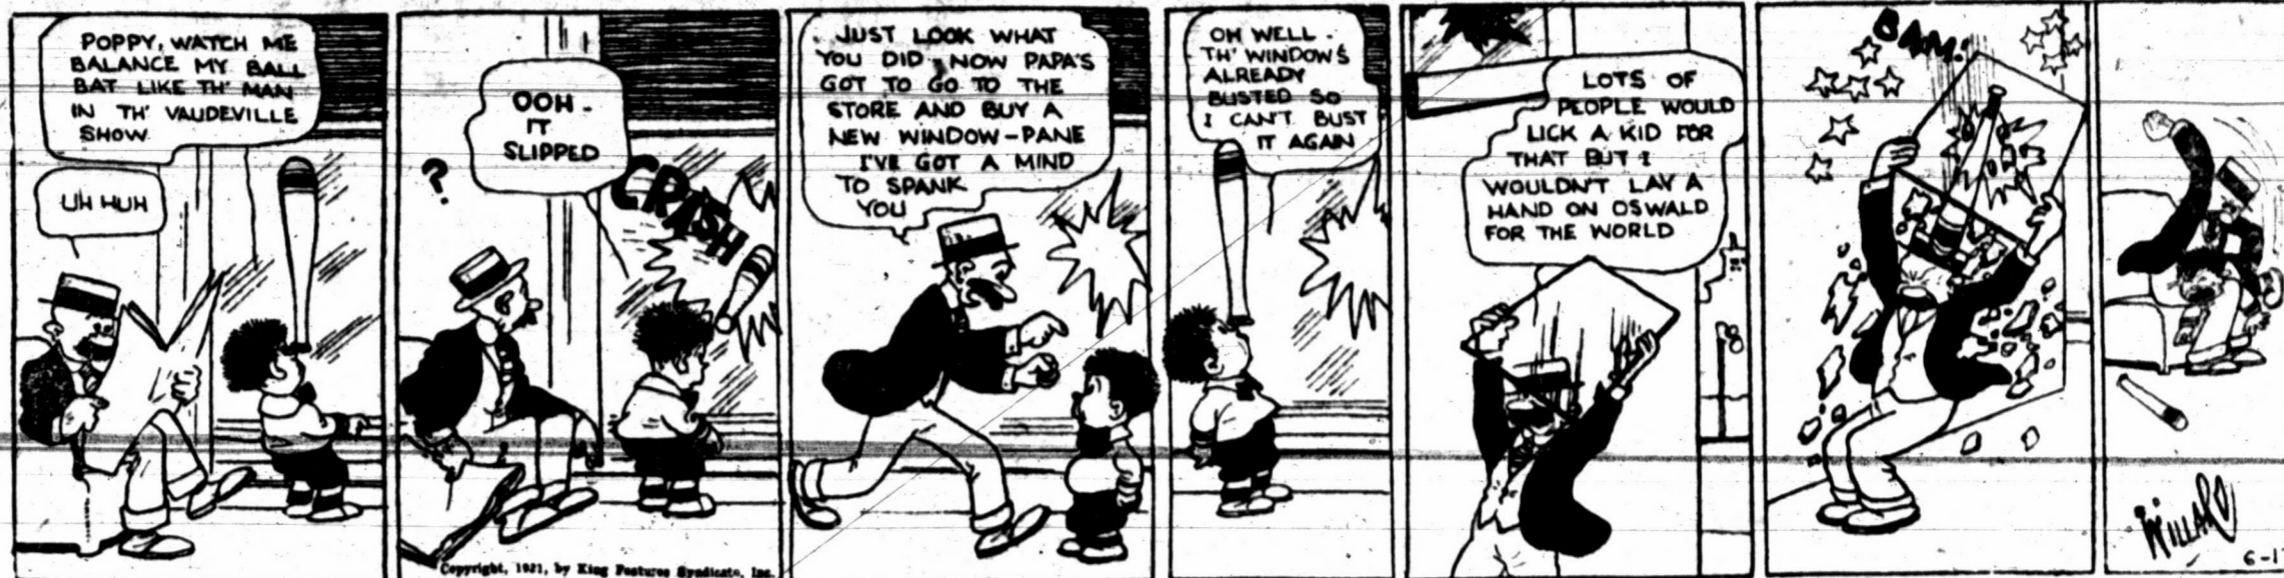

Lapan a Headliner.

The next stopping place was the roller skating rink, though George Mobley, his partner, Leland McElwee, and Bob Tarleton took a trip around the lake in a motor boat. Roller skating seemed to be more popular with the players than any other form of amusement except sitting in both these events Pete Lapan was the headliner. Pete tore into the fodder the way he does into the spheroid, but as a roller skater, Pete is a wonderful performer. However, he kept the boys in good humor with his contortions. First honors for grace and ability to stay on the rollers must be these events Freddie McDonald. This boy showed that he is no novice at the sport. Among the others who placed in this event were "Mac" O'Brien, "Mac" McElwee and Harry Lee.

A few dimes were left at the "Tijin' jinn" by the youngsters, though there were some who went back to their childhood days and took a few romps. All gathered at the dance hall when the music started up, but up to the time the character of the music was changed by Freddie McDonald. This boy showed that he is no novice at the sport. Among the others who placed in this event were "Mac" O'Brien, "Mac" McElwee and Harry Lee.

CITY LEAGUE RACE WAXING WARMER

Railroaders Spring Surprise by Defeating Texas Co.—Three Clubs Battling At Top

City league fans were handed their biggest surprise of the season yesterday when the supposedly weak Fort Worth and Denver club stopped the Texas company and knocked it further away from the top rung, a position that it has held since the beginning of the season. The railroaders combined nine hits off Sandusky with three errors in the third round and pushed nine tallies across the platter. The Oilers kept in the game and tied the score up in the sixth, only to lose out when the winners chalked up the deciding run in the eighth.

The Wichita Motors, by staying idle, went into the lead by one full game, and the race now looms up as a three-cornered affair with the Motors, Texas company and First Nationals battling for the honors. Wonderful pitching by Mathis, Sandusky and Hart has kept these three clubs out in front all year, though their mates have shown ability to punch out hits when needed, one of these clubs is bound to meet the

GOEF CHAMPIONSHIP OF KANSAS AT STAKE TODAY

WICHITA, KAN., June 17.—Alex Graham of Wellington, a young car clerk who works from midnight to 3 a. m., obtained a night's respite last night so that he would be fresh today for his 36-hole battle with Grant Chamberlain of Hutchinson, for the Kansas state golf championship. Graham, driving to Wichita each day during the tournament and back to Wellington at night for his tour of duty, won his way through the field to the final on three hours' sleep a night.

With a championship before him, and he is picked to beat his older opponent today, he obtained a layoff last night. He came through the semi-final yesterday in a spectacular last-hole, last-stroke finish.

Chamberlain, 47 years old, is well known in golfing circles. He has played in all 14 tournaments since state organization.

Graham has been the tournament favorite since he shot a 75 in the qualifying round. He was born in Ireland where he played his first golf at 8 years. He came to America 9 years ago and resumed golf playing only last year.

COUNTY AND SCHOOL DISTRICTS WILL HOLD ELECTIONS SATURDAY

NO ORGANIZED OPPOSITION TO ANY OF PROPOSALS TO BE SUBMITTED.

VOTING TO BE LIMITED TO PROPERTY OWNERS

Road and Hospital Bonds to be Voted in County—School Tax Issue in Wichita Falls.

Property owners of Wichita county will vote Saturday upon bond issues for good roads and for additional hospital facilities. Property owners of the Wichita Falls school district will vote on authorizing the trustees to increase the school tax above the 50-cent limit.

The chief proposition before the voters Saturday is that of the so-called substitute bond issue. As its name implies, the bond issue is not a new one, but is to be substituted for one already voted.

The present bond issue of $1,500,000 cannot be sold, owing to existing conditions in the bond market. It is proposed in Saturday's election to make the bonds six per cent instead of five, and to mature them at the rate of one a year for 30 years. The new bonds are already assured of a sale.

Unless the bonds are voted, the road work must stop, as funds are now about exhausted. Should the bonds be defeated, the old bond issue will remain in effect and will be sold when possible, which probably will not be for several years.

The hospital bond issues include $25,000 for the Wichita Falls general hospital and a total of $55,000 for joint hospitals at Electra, Iowa Park and Burkburnett. The $25,000 sought for the local hospital was voted once before, but the issue was knocked out on a technicality. It will be added to the $75,000 already voted by the city. The expenditure of the other $30,000 will be contingent, it is understood, upon the municipalities of Electra, Iowa Park and Burkburnett joining with the county in the construction of community hospitals.

The school tax question to be voted upon in the Wichita Falls district has previously been explained at length. It gives Wichita Falls an opportunity to take advantage of the constitutional amendment adopted last November, removing the 50-cent limit, which has been a considerable handicap in the upbuilding and conduct of this city's schools.

There is no organized opposition to any of the proposals.

"KILLING BIG DOGS" EVANGELIST'S TOPIC

Draws Forceful Lesson From Story of Samson—Is Heard by Large Crowd.

"Killing Big Dogs" proved to be one of the most popular subjects yet discussed by Evangelist Culpepper. Last night the crowd was the largest that has yet assembled. Extra seats have been put in, making the seating capacity 500 more than it has been.

As a prelude to the sermon the evangelist "killed" the audience by stating and nearly every state in the union was represented, as well as nearly every denomination.

The theme of the evening was the "Binding, Blinding, Grinding Nature of Sin," and the text was taken from Judges 16:21: "But the Philistines took him and put out his eyes, and brought him down to Gaza, and bound him with fetters of brass, and he did grind in the prison house." The evangelist recited the story of Samson, saying that he was the strongest man in the Bible; that one may take all the Jess Willards, Jack Dempseys, Jane Kilrines, Georges Carpentiers and the rest of the prize fighters, and they would not stand up five minutes before this man of power.

Samson was a man. Everybody likes a real man—a successful man. The world will forgive you for everything but one, don't fail. Samson failed—Samson so strong. The Philistines hated him, and they finally got him, and will get you, too, if you are not very careful.

"Samson fell in love with a beautiful but wicked woman and she finally got his secret—what made him so strong. If a woman finds out that you know something that she does not she is going to find out that thing or bust." Samson caught three hundred foxes, tied their tails together, set them on fire and they scampered through the enemies' corn fields and burned up their bread supply. There is your submarine policy. Germany said that if she could cut off England's and France's bread supply she could win the war, and she started out to do so with her submarine warfare, but thank God she did not succeed.

The Philistines went to Delilah, Samson's wife, and told her they would give her eleven hundred pieces of silver each if she would tell them what made Samson so strong. The Bible says she kept on until she finally made him tell her. Now that was his and God's secret. I wish Samson had married some sweet Ruth or modest Esther, but he not only crossed the national line, he also crossed the religious line. I repeat, I think Baptists should marry Methodists and Methodists should marry Methodists.

"After Delilah found out wherein lay the strength of Samson she divulged the secret, and then it was that they took him and put out his eyes and bound him with fetters of brass and made him grind out his enemies' bread supply."

The sins of men were likened to a pack of dogs. Mr. Culpepper said his father, when a young man, had a large pack of dogs, and in the pack was one big dog. The other dogs always waited to take hold of a bull or bear until the big dog got there, and after it had been punished sufficiently the big dog was driven off. And so it was with sin, said the speaker, if one will kill the big sin the little ones will be easy to get rid of.

"Samson came again, God heard his prayer, and he killed more at his death than he did in his life."

The splendid attention given the speaker was evidence that the sermon was much appreciated. At the close Mr. Culpepper gave an invitation and a large number came forward and gave their names for church membership.

COUNTY AND SCHOOL DISTRICTS WILL HOLD ELECTIONS SATURDAY

NO ORGANIZED OPPOSITION TO ANY OF PROPOSALS TO BE SUBMITTED.

VOTING TO BE LIMITED TO PROPERTY OWNERS

Road and Hospital Bonds to be Voted in County—School Tax Issue in Wichita Falls.

Property owners of Wichita county will vote Saturday upon bond issues for road bonds and for additional hospital facilities. Property owners of the Wichita Falls school district will vote on authorizing the trustees to increase the school tax above the 50-cent limit.

The present bond issue of $1,500,000 cannot be sold, owing to existing conditions in the bond market. It is proposed in Saturday's election to make the bonds six per cent instead of five, and to mature them at the rate of one a year for 30 years. The new bonds are already assured of a sale. Unless the bonds are voted, the road work must stop, as funds are now about exhausted. Should the bonds be defeated, the old bond issue will remain in effect and will be sold when possible, which probably will not be for several years.

The hospital bond issues include $25,000 for the Wichita Falls general hospital and a total of $55,000 for joint hospitals at Electra, Iowa Park and Burkburnett. The $75,000 sought for the local hospital was voted once before, but the issue was knocked out on a technicality. It will be added to the $25,000 already voted by the city. The expenditure of the other $50,000 will be contingent. It is understood, upon the municipalities of Electra, Iowa Park and Burkburnett joining with the county in the construction of community hospitals.

The school tax question to be voted upon in the Wichita Falls district has given Wichita Falls an opportunity to take advantage of the constitutional amendment adopted last November, removing the 50-cent limit, which has been a considerable handicap in the rebuilding and conduct of this city's schools.

There is no organized opposition to any of the proposals. Protest your living room suit this summer by having our drapery department make linen slip covers for it. Samples and estimates submitted on request. W. A. Freear Furniture Co. Phone 5155.
