

DRAFT NAVAL TREATY ANNOUNCED

RESOLUTIONS AFFECTING CHINA ARE ADOPTED; BRITISH HAND BACK LEASE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—In a three-hour session today the Washington conference approved both the naval limitation treaty and the treaty putting submarine warfare against merchant craft and gas and chemical warfare under the ban of five-power disapproval. The plenary session then adjourned on call.

The naval treaty was not read, but Secretary Hughes outlined its terms and declared that so far as capital ships are concerned, "the integrity of the plan proposed on behalf of the American government has been maintained."

Arthur J. Balfour, heading the British delegation, today described the naval treaty as "the crowning work of Secretary Hughes and the representatives of China and Japan," and then threw in another surprise by the flat announcement that Great Britain would hand back to China her lease on Wei-Hai-Wei.

"Profound satisfaction" over the Shantung settlement was expressed by Baron Shidehara, who also thanked Secretary Hughes and Arthur J. Balfour for their exercise of "good offices."

Dr. Sze of the Chinese, made a speech touching on Shantung and other far eastern problems and filed with the secretary general a record of the attitude adopted throughout the far eastern committee deliberations in regard to Chinese questions. He expressed the belief that the settlement would remove all possibilities of misunderstanding between China and Japan.

Minister Sze declared that the Chinese delegation, speaking in behalf of its government and people took occasion to "thank you, Mr. Chairman, and you, Mr. Balfour, for the good offices which you have rendered in the settlement of the Shantung question."

Speaking for the British, Arthur J. Balfour declared there was no one in the conference who did not rejoice at the "happy settlement" of the Shantung question. The result he said, was particularly gratifying to Great Britain, because of her interest in the Far East.

Secretary Hughes presenting the naval treaty announced that he would not read it because copies had been distributed generally.

Copies had been sent to the contracting powers and to the press, and by the secretary general to the contracting powers and to the press.

Secretary Hughes gave a somewhat detailed review of the principal terms and stated that the original American proposal as to capital ships, which changed in details had been adopted substantially.

"The integrity of the plan presented on behalf of the United States," said Secretary Hughes, "has been maintained in the spirit in which it was proposed, and in which it is being carried out."

Secretary Hughes, in closing, said that no more necessary or significant treaty had ever been negotiated.

"Obviously, it means an enormous saving of money," he said, "and the lifting of very heavy burdens from the shoulders of the nations."

"This treaty absolutely ends the race in naval competition. At the same time it leaves the security of the powers unimpaired, but it means more, the best thing that has ever manifested by which we are able to reach this conclusion."

"We are taking the greatest forward step to establish the reign of peace."

After Secretary Hughes concluded J. M. Sarraut began a speech in French, the text of which was translated into English by the secretary general.

M. Sarraut emphasized that the proposal for the limitation of naval armaments was a surprise feat at the conditions under which France was asked to consent to the treaty, but the French delegation yielded when they felt that they should yield.

"The camouflaged ghost of imperialism," said Sarraut, "is still a very real and very dangerous thing, but it will soon cease to exist."

"I am sure," said Sarraut, "that the ambition cost France the lives of 1,500,000 of her sons and the devastating ravages of her most prosperous regions. Could France have made, to save the world, such a frightful sacrifice in order to be charged with the wish to recommence the arms which she has helped to destroy?"

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The draft treaty for limitation of naval armaments submitted today to the plenary session of the Washington conference contains only the following preamble in explanation of the purpose of the five contracting governments in reaching the agreement set forth:

"Desiring to contribute to the maintenance of the general peace and to reduce the burdens of competition in armaments;

"Have resolved, with a view to accomplishing the above purposes, to conclude a treaty to limit their respective naval armaments and to that end have appointed as their plenipotentiaries the following powers follow:

The treaty is divided into three chapters. Chapter one contains the general language of the agreements, covered in twenty separate articles.

Chapter two contains the detailed, specific agreement on naval matters, many of them in complicated tabular form which amplify and complete the meaning of the general agreement of chapter one.

Chapter three is devoted to "provisional" provisions.

Special to The Times. SOUTH BEND, TEXAS, Feb. 1.—Fire broke out in Shorly Bowman's barber shop in E. K. hotel building at 10 o'clock this morning and after a heroic battle for two hours the flames were extinguished by hundreds of volunteer firemen who were handicapped at the start by no water. Somebody had turned the water hydrant the wrong way, turning off the water in the street.

The fire was caused by a defective fuse from a gas heater. Shorly Bowman's barber shop, which was destroyed, was on the east side of the street and was a two-story building. The fire started in the basement and spread to the upper floors.

QUALIFIED VOTERS IN COUNTY IN 1922 TOTAL OVER 11,775

TOTAL OF 2,356 POLLS RECEIVED BY TAX COLLECTOR ON LAST DAY.

COLLECTOR'S OFFICE SWAMPED WITH WORK

Approximately $400,000 Property Tax Believed to Have Gone Delinquent.

Wednesday afternoon, Tax Collector M. L. Tittle, announced after he and his deputies had spent the entire morning in writing poll tax receipts that were received in job lots by powers of attorney late Tuesday afternoon, that the total number of polls received Tuesday, the last day of grace was 2,356.

This brings the total number of poll taxes for the year to 11,141 and adding to this the 641 exemptions secured makes a total number of 11,782 qualified voters in Wichita county for 1922.

There will be some change in this figure, according to Mr. Tittle, as a complete check will be made of all receipts issued.

For the months of October, November and December, 1921, the ratio of women poll tax payers to men was approximately one to two. With this ratio as a basis and with the estimated total as above stated, it is believed that of the total number 3,200 are women voters.

Wednesday morning's mail brought notices from 150 voters of the county tax collector. All these notices contained checks for property tax. Estimating the total in Wednesday's mail, it is believed that last night 14,000 of the property tax of the county has gone delinquent.

A penalty of ten per cent will be assessed on all property tax from this date.

Two weeks ago the court of criminal appeals at Austin granted a new trial to Snow on the case on the ground that the state had failed to prove its case.

BILL AUTHORIZING DEBT REFUNDING PASSED BY SENATE

EARLY ADJUSTMENT DIFFERENCES WITH LOWER HOUSE EXPECTED

MEASURE PROVIDES FOR COMMISSION

Can Arrange Payment Foreign Debts Not Later Than June 15, 1947.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Early adjustment of the difference between the senate and house measures to authorize the refunding of the 11 billion dollar foreign debt was looked for today following passage of the senate bill. Three republicans—Borah, La Follette and Norris—joined with the solid democratic majority in opposing the measure through the senate last night by a vote of 39 to 25, giving authority to a commission of five members headed by secretary of the treasury to refund the foreign debt into securities maturing in not more than 25 years. The bill as passed was amended by a provision stipulating that the interest on the refunded debt be not less than 4 1/2 per cent.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The bill authorizing refunding of the eleven billion dollar foreign debt into securities maturing in not less than 25 years was passed last night by a vote of 39 to 25. Final enactment of the measure must await adjustment of differences between house and senate which is expected within a week or ten days.

Under the terms of the bill, a commission of five members headed by the secretary of the treasury would have authority, subject to the approval of the president, to refund or convert, and to extend the time of payment of principal or interest, or both, of the foreign debt. The date of the obligation accepted by the commission, could not extend beyond June 15, 1947, and the interest could not be less than 4 1/2 per cent. Bonds of foreign government could not be accepted for those of another, nor could any part of the foreign indebtedness be cancelled.

Only cabinet members and congressmen will be appointed on the commission, according to Senator Borah, who also told the senate yesterday that he knew that this was the president's intention.

Efforts to add a soldier bonus provision to the measure, to limit the authority of the commission in deferring interest payments, and to require congressional approval of the bond conversion agreements failed. The senate did adopt, however, an amendment by Senator Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts, requiring the commission after the conclusion of each refunding negotiation to report the results to the senate.

Natural arteries of commerce lead from St. Louis to your door

A Word to Merchants—

New Spring Styles Ready for Delivery

EVERY merchant should visit a large market at least once each year to get a personal knowledge of the new styles and new lines of merchandise. Your customers expect you to keep posted on the ever-changing conditions and offer reasonable merchandise and correct fashions. This is especially true this Spring. Reasonably priced commodities and the newest patterns will be the demand of your customers this Spring.

Because of uncertain business conditions in the last few seasons many merchants have been unable to go to market regularly. The styles and kinds of merchandise have changed. Your volume of sales this Spring will depend largely upon how fully you are prepared to meet the call for prevailing styles and dependable goods.

St. Louis is your nearest big market. Its nearness to you saves time, railroad fare and freight charges. St. Louis wholesale houses have the largest open stocks of any market in the country. This gives the widest varieties from which to make your selections for immediate delivery. You can see your order made up as you make your choice from up-to-the-minute goods and patterns.

St. Louis business houses have for more than a century specialized in studying and supplying the demands of their section and therefore are better qualified to solve your merchandising problems and meet your requirements. Their 1922 Spring stocks are now complete.

THE WOMAN'S PAGE

PICTURE NOT SHOWN AT BUSINESS WOMEN MEET TUESDAY NIGHT

The picture "How Life Begins" was not shown at the Y. W. C. A. Tuesday evening, and the audience which had gathered at 7 o'clock was dismissed at 9:30, when it became evident that it would be impossible to screen it. A number of unfortunate things appeared to have conspired to defeat its showing, and Miss Dorothea Dorpat, who addressed the Business Women's club on social hygiene as a prelude to the showing of the picture, of which she was in charge, stated that it would be shown in low Park and Burk Burnett this week and later here.

During a brief business meeting of the club the president announced the appointment of Miss Beulah Hackett as chairman of the membership committee to take the place of Miss Mina Stewart, resigned. Miss Stewart's heavy duties at the chamber of commerce made it impossible for her to direct the work of the committee, it was stated. She retained her place on the board, however.

Miss Irma Durnal, new member of the board and chairman of the social committee, announced her committee for the remainder of the year. These included Mesdames Mason, Mary Gross, Edna Vogt and Mildred Packer; Misses Frances Brooks, Irena Gardner, Irena Dickson, Ethel McDevitt, Bonnie Marie Morse, Bessie Mae Coger, Mary Coffield and Jack Vaughn. Mrs. Mason, Mrs. Gross and Miss Coger were asked to act as hostesses for February.

After Miss Dorpat's talk, Miss Brooks announced the membership prize contest, which was conducted by Mrs. Vogt. The members whose birthdays had occurred in October, November, December or January and whose attendance had been perfect from the time they joined, took part in the contest, which was to name the forty-eight states of the union in fifteen minutes. Misses Elizabeth Miller and Anne Timm tied for honors, with forty-seven apiece, and "played off" the tie by naming capitals of five states. Miss Miller won and was awarded the prize, a beautiful gold pencil from the Tenth Street drug store.

After the contest Mrs. Gross Higgins announced the dance being given in the American legion headquarters by the club. Miss Higgins conveyed Mr. Sam Beattie's invitation for the members of the club to come over in a bunch. Mrs. Higgins did not characterize by Mrs. Higgins.

Miss Beattie's weeks and Miss Ida Pierce of Verdun are visiting here today.

Miss Edith Woodhouse has recovered from her recent illness.

WOMAN BLAMED BY HER FAMILY

Restless, irritable, nervous, excitable and reacting like the charge against her by those nearest and dearest. How little they realize the struggle the overworked wife and mother is making to keep about and perform the hundred and one duties that devolve upon her! Every hour her headaches, backaches and pains drag her down until she can stand it no longer. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored more women in this condition to health and happiness than any other medicine. The great letters we are continually publishing in this paper from women who have found health by its use prove it.

CHILD AUTHOR IS WORRIED ABOUT BEING A PRODIGY

MISS VIRGINIA KOMIS

By BOY BIRBONS
CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—"And please don't say I'm a child prodigy," pleads little Miss Virginia Komis, who at 12 is the author of 12 plays and almost 100 stories.

Her name hasn't gotten into "Who's Who" yet, and if Virginia had her way it never shall. "Because I want to grow up into a very normal sort of woman and have babies and a home and just be me," she says most gravely and in an astonishingly matured voice.

"Patents Out Moral." "I write plays because I like to. Most of them are based on fairy stories and all of them point out some sort of moral showing what will happen to little boys and children if they're good all the time." Psychologists who have examined her say Virginia has the developed mind of a 21-year-old woman.

She has been writing plays since she was six. She also is an accomplished musician. For pastime Virginia reads Homer's Odyssey and is familiar and quit low aintings, skirts on an average of 16, sometimes only 8 inches from the floor. Where the skirts are of irregular length, to within three or four inches of the floor. The dress is used for the model shown above. The long graceful sleeves are of chiffon, and the wide low collar is also of chiffon, almost covered with iridescent beads, which also trim the bodice and sleeves around the narrow insert of silver cloth.

A letter I have just received from Paris describing in detail the type of dresses most seen at the smart dining places, the theater, and supper dances, lays special stress on the extreme simplicity of style that prevails everywhere.

Black is, of course, still a favorite; sapphire blue is seen here and there, worn by older women; gray is worn, and the younger women seemed to prefer extremely light shades—salmon and light mauve, and a great deal of white. Most of the gowns are sleeveless, but with conservative bodices, very much like the model in the sketch.

SURPRISE PARTY CELEBRATES MRS. HOWARD'S BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Ed Howard was the very surprised honoree at a birthday "42" party Tuesday afternoon, when Mesdames Irena Howard and C. C. Cabinas planned the pretty complement to her in her own home. An invitation to the theatre with friends took her away long enough to permit the decoration of the home in Valentine motif, and she was brought home shortly after on some pretext, to find everything arranged for the birthday party.

Table favors were presented after the games, and were dainty little crimson baskets, tied with malinge and red hearts, bearing beautiful Washington fern. Later the birthday cake, with its red candles, was served with her accompaniment, luncheon, and the honoree was presented with a corsage bouquet of carnations and sweet peas, with fern.

Those who enjoyed the party included Mesdames Dasher, Cobb, Nicholson, and Messrs. Howard, Boyd, Carter, H. O. Craven, Andrew, Jack Shelton of Fort Worth, C. C. Cabinas, Messrs. Howard, Ed Howard, and Misses Jodie Maynes, and Dent.

Everything a family needs in the way of kitchen equipment was brought by the women to furnish the kitchen in the house the Nance family have moved into, and after the shower and expressions of sympathy from her friends and good wishes for the future, the hostess served a dainty lunch, assisted by Mesdames Olin Gibbs and Jetter.

BRIDGE SOCIAL AT COUNCIL MEETING TUESDAY AFTERNOON

A bridge social very pleasantly entertained 35 or 40 members and guests of the Jewish Council of Women Tuesday afternoon at Temple Israel, when Mesdames Art. Rosenber, Cohen and Philip Kleinman were hostesses.

High scores in the games was won by Mrs. Egede of Tulsa; low was held by Mrs. Peraky, another visitor, and Mrs. David Goldberg reced of consolation. The hostesses served a delicious refreshment plate of sandwiches, olives, cakes and tea. A number of out of town guests were present.

GUNSLINGER PASS

by WILLIAM MACLEOD RAINES

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Dave Sanders, accompanied by his pal, Ed Miller, a gambler, and his confederate, George Doble, Dave believes that Miller and Doble have stolen his pet pony, Chiquito. Arriving at Malaji, they meet Joyce Crawford, daughter of Emerson Crawford, the owner of the 2 Bar Lazy R ranch and Dave's employer. Dave fears that his father has met with foul play from his enemy Bradley Steelman, a rival ranchman. Dave and Ed Miller and Doble, to avenge the murder of his father, Dave enters a second story window.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

He was at the head of the stairway which ran down to the first floor and lost himself in the darkness of the hall. He was sure that he heard low voices behind a closed door. Never before had Dave noticed that stairs creaked and groaned so loudly beneath the pressure of a soft footstep. He did not hide the truth from himself. If Steelman or his men found him here looking for Crawford he would never leave the house alive. His foot left the last tread and found the uncarpeted floor. As he moved forward his stomach muscles tightened. At any moment some one might come out of the room and walk into him.

He put his eye to the keyhole. Ad Miller was sitting astraddle a chair, his elbows on the back. Another man, one not visible to the cowpuncher, was announcing a decision and giving an order. "Hook up the horses, Shorty. He's got his back bowed and he won't sign. All right, I'll get the dura foot up in the hills and show him whether he will or won't."

The range-rider grumbled an indistinct answer. Dave did not make out his words, and his interest in the conversation abruptly ceased. For from upstairs there came the sudden sounds of tramping feet, of bodies thrashing to and fro in conflict. A revolver shot barked its sinister menace. Dave rose to go. At the same time the door in front of him was jerked open. He pushed his forty-five into Miller's fat ribs. "Stick up your hands—stick 'em up!"

The boy was backing along the passage as he spoke. He reached a newel post in that second while Miller was being flung aside by an eruption of men from the room. Like a frightened rabbit Dave leaped for the stairs, taking them three at a time. Halfway up he collided with a man flying down. They came together with the heavy impact of fast-moving bodies. Sanders rose, clutching a rubber ball. The other man lay still. Dave's head had struck him in the solar plexus and knocked the breath out of him. The young cowpuncher turned himself the active center of a cyclone. His own revolver was gone. He grappled with a man, striking him by the wrist to prevent the use of a long-barreled Colt. The trigger fell, a bullet flying through the ceiling.

George Doble's shy, shifty eyes found the crook jumping to his feet, tugging at his gun. Before he could flip the range-rider had closed with him. The puncher caught his right arm. The deflected bullet plunged through a looking glass on a dresser near the foot of the bed.

One hundred and sixty pounds of steel-muscled cowpuncher landed on his midriff and the six-shooter went clattering away to a far corner of the room.

Bob dived for the revolver. Doble for the door. A moment, and Hart had the gun. But whereas there had been three in the room there were now but two.

A voice from the bed spoke in curt command. "Cut me loose." Bob had heard that voice on more than one round-up. It was that of Emerson Crawford.

From below came the sound of a shot, the shuffling of many feet. Crawford stretched his cramped muscles, flexing and reflexing his arms and legs. "We'll drift down and sit in."

Softly the two men padded down the stair treads and moved along the passage.

"Who's that?" demanded Shorty, thrusting his head into the hall. "Stay right there or I'll shoot."

"Oh, no you won't," answered the cattleman evenly. "There'll be no shooting—unless I do it."

His step did not falter. He moved forward, brushed Shorty aside, and strode into the midst of his enemies. There is something about a strong man unafraid more potent than a company of troopers. Such a man was Emerson Crawford now. His steady gray eyes swept the circle, rested on each worried face, and fastened on Brad Steelman.

Steelman laughed uneasily. "Well, I reckon you've kinda upset my plans, Em. 'Course I was a-coddlin' you. I didn't aim to hurt you some, though I'd 'a liked to have talked you outa the water-holes."

The big cattleman ignored this absolutely. He was a team hitched up right away. Shorty will tend to that. But the up-fore friend's hand with a handkerchief.

Hart thrust his revolver back into its holster. He was willing to trust Crawford to dominate the group of lawless folk, every one of whom held some deep grudge against him.

"You'll drive us, Steelman," announced Crawford.

"Me?" scowled the leader of the other faction. "You got the most nerve I ever did see."

The trigger fell, a bullet flying through the ceiling.

"You'll drive," the cattleman repeated steadily.

The weak spot in Steelman's leadership was that he was personally not game.

"Oh, well, what's it matter? We can talk things over on the way. Me, I'm not lookin' for trouble none," he said, his small black eyes twinkling restlessly to watch the effect of this on his men.

CHAPTER VIII
Joyce came flying to her father's arms. She threw herself at Crawford with a moaning little sob.

"Oh Dad... Dad... Dad!" she cried, and her slender arms went round his neck.

"You're not... hurt," she begged through her tears.

"Not none. Never was huskier. But I got a boy out here that's beat up some. Come in, Dave—and you, Bob." Dave was up and ready to say good-bye within forty-eight hours. He was still a bit under par a trifle washed-out, but he wanted to take the road in pursuit of Miller and Doble, who had again decamped in a hurry with the two horses they had stolen.

"They had the broncs hid up Frio Canyon way, I reckon," explained Hart. "We're not loble to find them after they hole up in some mountain pocket."

"Might. Let's take a whirl at it anyhow," urged Dave.

"Hate to give up your paint horse, don't you?" said Bob with his friendly grin. "Ain't blamin' you none what-ever. I'd sleep on those fellows' trail if 'Chiquito was mine."

When Joyce was in the room where Dave lay on the lounge, the young man never looked at her, but he saw nobody else.

What took him by the throat was her goodness. She was gushing in his heart as a young man. The sweetness of her affection for rough Em Crawford, the dear, maternal tenderness with which she nursed her three-year-old brother, Kelt, motherless since the week of his birth, the kindness of the luminous brown eyes (Can the uncouth stranger thrown upon her hospitality: Dave treasured them as all signs of angelic grace and they played upon his heart strings disturbingly.

"Yes, we all want you to come back," she said with a charming smile. "I think you saved father's life. We can't tell you how much we owe you. Can we, Kelt?"

He shifted awkwardly to the other foot, flushing to the hair while he buried her soft little hand in his big freckled one. The girl showed no shyness. Seventeen is sometimes so much older than twenty.

Emerson Crawford scattered in, big and bluff and easy-going. "Hittin' the trail, boys? Hope you find the thieves. They're treacherous devils. Don't take no chances with 'em. I left an order at store for you to draw on me for another pair of boots in place of those you lost in the brush, Dave. Get a good pair, son. They're owe you."

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 1, 1922.

Saturday morning of last week Mary Thomas, a young woman of Kenosha, Wisconsin, was found dead in a bedroom at the Kenosha hotel. She had been working as housemaid in a family, the members of which recalled somewhat vaguely that she had been in ill health and seemed depressed. Of course, though, Wisconsin is a long way off.

Saturday night in Washington City Frances McLane, a young woman well known in social circles, was found in her apartment dead, a suicide. Her friends, who flocked to the scene, knew that she had gone through a recent great trouble, but had no idea that it would affect her that way. But of course Washington City is also a long way off.

Last week in Chicago the body of a young woman, drowned, was found in the bathtub at a big boarding home of the Young Women's Christian Association. In her clothing were found addresses of business men to whom she had applied for work. They remembered having talked with her, and that she seemed depressed. But Chicago, too, is some distance from us.

Sunday morning in Houston, Texas, friends entered the room of Mrs. Lalia Langford, and her nineteen-year-old daughter, Olive, and found them dead together on the bed. Seven gas jets were pouring their poison into the room. Notes left to an aged father and mother told of the absolute inability of either to find work. "We are right up against the wall," the mother wrote. The friends who flocked in all said they would have been glad to extend credit, lend money, or provide food if they had known. (Houston is closer home.)

Last week in Wichita Falls a school teacher found that a youngster who hadn't been at school for a day or two was staying home because it was too cold to come barefooted. He and his mother and several other children were living in a small house in the back yard of a well-to-do family. "We certainly wouldn't have let that happen if we had known it," the man of the other house said. Yesterday at the station the Travelers' Aid dried the tears of a little seven-year-old boy whose mother was sending him to a sister to be taken care of. There were other younger children and she hadn't been able to make it. She talked bravely to the little fellow, but when the train pulled out she broke down. Mothers are the proper folks for little seven-year-olds to stay with, but there was just one mouth too many. Of course, if they had known, a bunch of good people might have banded together and helped make it possible for the little fellow to stay at home—but they didn't know.

Yet there are three national social service organizations located in Wichita Falls; one community welfare organization; twenty-one women's church organizations; five men's luncheon clubs doing social service; twelve women's study clubs; thirteen organized bridge clubs and three organized "42" clubs. And last week an attractive young woman who had just joined her second weekly bridge club confessed that she did so because time hung heavy on her hands. There was nothing to do.

FORD AND MUSCLE SHOALS.

That a man of Henry Ford's temperament, achievements and ideas should be without enemies is, of course, not to be expected; that even a considerable element of the American people should agree with him in toto, especially as to his freak peace stant and his Jew-baiting propensities, is still less to be looked for; but such considerations should not weigh materially in the contest over his plans for the Muscle Shoals project.

The future of that undertaking must be viewed on business grounds, and with nearly all factions agreed that the government should not undertake to operate the plant itself, the only remaining question is whether Henry Ford has the business ability to make good on the project. And that he has such ability is not, with all the propaganda that is being spread, being even seriously questioned.

The Times is at a loss to understand why, with all the attacks that are being made on Henry Ford as an individual, no other individual or group of individuals has come forward with any semblance of an offer to take the properties over. If the trade offered is a poor one, for the government, surely there are forces in American business who can offer a better one.

Senator McKellar, speaking recently in the senate, summed up the situation when he said Ford was offering to take a government liability and turn it into a government asset. If Ford should fail utterly in his plans, the government would be no worse off than it is now. If he succeeds in a measure all, the advantages to the nation and to the south in particular will be tremendous. If he does nothing more than provide cheaper fertilizer for the farmers of America he will have rendered a worth while public service.

Two nice things about radio sermons are: No objections, and on getting sleepy you can turn a ch.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

NIGHTFALL.
How gently it arrives—nightfall! As though some huge robe were wrapped about the body of the earth.

Before you realize, night comes on. And the glories of the day, with its fragrances and beauties, give place to quietness and peace.

Grayer and grayer—until here and there lights begin to flicker like the sparkles from a diamond, and the astounding sunset is replaced by darkness, through whose sky holes stars peep and twinkle.

Nightfall—when the soul throws off its masks and sits naked for communion.

Always I resent the artificial lightings at nightfall. When I was a boy on the farm I remember that I loved to go far from the house at nightfall and sit on some great rock or near some stream and just listen in the silence which was only broken by the night owl or the whippoorwill or the cricket's chirr.

For hours I would remain. And the memories are now full of sweetened happiness.

For soothing is the spirit of nightfall! The day's work is over. The hours of meditation are on, and the body says: I am ready for rest now. And the heart of one says: I want to laugh and play a little—the day has been long and full of movement.

At nightfall the wheels of farm and factory go to bed with their masters. Even the flower droops its tiny head and closes its eyes. The hen gathers her own under her wings and the frolics of nature are put away until the morrow.

Even the "mills of the gods" close their doors at nightfall. And the tired tots of the street seek home and bed. While the weary wanderer with no home at all to which he may go, lies down among the leaves of the forest, on some bench or in some corner where he may find a few hours of undisturbed slumber.

For nightfall, like the "crystal snow, descends upon both rich and poor, happy and unhappy—like the impartial mercy of God.

If you have troubles, shed them at nightfall—that your dreams may be full of love, getting you ready for service in the morning! (Copyright, 1922, by George Matthew Adams.)

JUST FOLKS

By—Edgar A. Guest

THE LIVING.
You will praise him when he's gone. When his earthly struggle closes. You may send the florist's roses His dark bier to lie upon;

You will speak about his worth When he has no need of fame, You will glorify his name When at last he quits the earth;

When at last his journey ends He will pass through lines of friends. But today he mustn't know That his neighbors love him so.

Draw up, friends, on either side For the man who lives today! Smile at him and smooth his way. Let the life be long and wide, Let your praise of him be said As you would if he were dead, Make his living march as fine As shall be his funeral line. (Copyright, 1922, by Edgar A. Guest)

SMILE A WHILE

By TOM SIMS

Two's a company. "Buy coal now," urges Hoover; who neglects to say what with. "About 22 is the proper time to marry," decide the college girls—who probably mean 1922.

All the world doesn't love a man who is in love with himself. A man who tried out a new parachute the other day leaves a wife and three children.

Some people are so rich they don't have to pay their bills at all. Bryan says the democrats can win congress, but they mustn't let that discourage them.

A woman has agreed to accept $8000 for her husband. His picture shows she made a fine bargain. A lot of children see "objectionable movies" because they can't be left at home alone.

The women don't spend as much to get their cheeks red as the men do to get their noses red. Making a bootlegger drink what he sells would be capital punishment.

The only two who can live as cheaply as one are a flea and a dog. That great silence you hear is people discussing the Arbuckle trial.

Married men are said to work harder; single ones say they have to. Maybe Jack Dempsey would consent to fight the winner in this Chile-Peru dispute.

SEPTIC SORE THROAT

By DR. R. H. BISHOP

Septic sore throat is a highly communicable disease. It frequently occurs in sudden epidemics among people using milk from a particular supply.

The disease is characterized by a redness and soreness of the mucous membrane of the throat, varying in amount in different epidemics and including enlargement of the cervical lymph nodes, fever and prostration.

The throat at first is generally red and sore, and later white patches appear in some cases which fuse to form a false membrane suggestive of diphtheria. The temperature often rises to 104 degrees or more and we speak of the individual as pronounced and out of all proportion to the local symptoms, in some instances a rash occurs, which is often confused with that of scarlet fever.

The severity of the symptoms varies to a great degree. The common complication is from septic sore throat are tonsillar abscesses, otitis media, arthritis, erysipelas, pneumonia, peritonitis, nephritis and epididymitis.

Death is often the result when the disease goes into pneumonia or in the case of general sepsis, or in old age merely from the general depression due to the constitutional disturbance.

YOU AND I

Would Have Been Locked Up If We'd Lived 100 Years Ago With Modern Ideas

A back-fence argument landed two Chicago women in court. One of them told the judge: "My neighbor counted me about my gray hair—I'm proud of my gray hair."

"How old are you?" the judge asked. "Thirty." The judge asked, then sent the woman to the psychopathic ward for observation. Her sanity, he decided, needed probing.

Gray hair is quite natural. Dread of it is due to widespread fear of looking aged, especially among women. Have we reached the point where a person who accepts natural processes without shrinking is to be considered "queer"?

Or are sanity and insanity just relative terms? If we of 1922 had lived 100 years ago, with modern ideas, we'd have been locked up with the demented.

Germany finds herself so successful at shadow-boxing the indemnity that she has just made substantial reductions in her income taxes. Under the new rate, the German with an income of 1,000,000 marks a year will pay income tax of 352,500 marks. The former tax was 531,600 marks.

Similar cuts are made on all other big incomes down to 50,000 marks a year. But the mark is no worthless, the 50,000 line lets nearly everyone out.

Some of the worst things for a taxpayer than losing a war. Bank clerks are digging up fallen off heavily, compared with a year ago. But about 372 is passing through the clearing houses now, for every $100 in 1917 when America entered the war.

This reflects higher prices. But that is largely counterbalanced by the low volume of business transactions during depression. Just how a third more money can be changing hands now than five years ago, is a mystery, say you look at it. Who is getting the money? There was plenty of it back in 1917. Now nearly every one seems to be broke—or badly bent.

Rum hounds are digging up police statistics to prove that there has been an increase of crime under prohibition. The increase in crime has been due to absence of prohibition. The dry never contended that crime would decrease under a prohibition not thoroughly enforced.

This should start arguments among farmers: Wheat exports last year were $79,945,601 bushels against $18,287,334 in 1920. Corn exports jumped from 17,761,420 bushels in 1920 to 127,954,508 in 1921. Rice jumped from 32,612,355 pounds to 69,655,978. Cotton exports were 6,474,105 bales in 1921, against 6,139,132 in 1920.

The "fakingoff" in farm exports is a pure-and-simple price slump. Actual shipments have gained. Farmer's problem is prices, not sales.

You get a book out of the library, and notice that some other reader has improved on the author by underscoring the printed text, penciling notes in the margin. Occasionally they show intense interest and deep thought. But librarians say most of the "improvements" are changes in punctuation. Some folks are so busy looking for other people's mistakes that they haven't time for their own.

KATY CONSOLIDATES TWO DISTRICTS IN TEXAS

Advice was received Wednesday morning at the office of the Wichita Falls and Northwestern Electric & Light Co. that the Katy system in Texas had been consolidated. The new district thus formed will be known as the South Texas district. A. S. Johnson, formerly of Parsons, will act as general manager and superintendent of the new district.

SUCCESS OF TANLAC DUE TO MERIT ALONE

Personal Recommendation of Celebrated Medicine by Persons It Has Restored to Health Is the Chief Reason for Its Tremendous Sale

Not a day passes but that thousands of people ask the question: What is Tanlac? Why its phenomenal success? Why do we hear so much about it? The answer to these questions is not difficult.

Tanlac's success is due to its wonderful constructive tonic and body-builder. It is purely vegetable and is made from the most beneficial roots of the good, new science. The medicinal properties are really taken up by the system, thereby adding digestion, stimulating the appetite and assisting the stomach in converting the food into nourishing elements that build up tissue and nerve strength.

This is proof of the position of the Tanlac that is not benefited by the harmful action of this remarkable medicine. The Tanlac system, besides being purified and strengthened by being toned up and invigorated, it quickly overcomes indigestion, non-assimilation of the food, nervousness, headache, backache, general debility and many other complaints that are so common to the thousands of half sick, depressed men and women.

Tanlac was designed primarily for the correction of disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. At the same time, it acts as a powerful reconstructive medicine, for it naturally follows that any medicine that brings about proper assimilation of the food and the thorough elimination of waste products must, therefore, have a far-reaching and most beneficial effect upon the entire system.

Probably eighty per cent of all diseases originate in the digestive organs. Dyspepsia, or what is more commonly known as indigestion, is not only one of the most prevalent, but is one of the most devastating.

PRISONER ESCAPES, RECAPTURED LATER, POLICE USE GUNS

P. L. Miller, arrested Tuesday night by special investigator George Hawkins, was taken into custody by police officials early Wednesday morning after an all night search following his escape from an officer detailed to lock him up.

Miller broke and ran from K. J. Hoover, motorcycle policeman, as the latter was unlocking a cell door.

Miller and other officers chased their quarry several blocks through the business district, but were unable to recapture him. Several shots were fired during the pursuit. Miller was found this morning at the home of a brother said to be living in the Southland addition.

The arrest was made Tuesday night on an inconsequential charge. No trace has yet been found of three other men who have escaped from the city hall in the last two days. Cotton Huey, who walked out when his cell was inadvertently left unlocked last Monday morning, and Edgar O'Mary and J. J. Hill, who escaped their way to freedom early Tuesday afternoon, were still at liberty Wednesday.

COMMANDERY WILL INSTALL OFFICERS THURSDAY EVENING

JUDGE JO. A. P. DICKSON

Judge Jo A. P. Dickson of Seymour will be the principal speaker Thursday evening when officers for 1922 are installed by the local Commandery of Knights Templar.

The following program has been arranged: Opening of commandery in long form; regular business; installation of officers; song by Wichita Falls Shrine; presentation of past commander's jewel by Dr. R. C. Smith to Dr. R. H. Hartsook, retiring commander; song by R. E. Shepherd; address by Judge Jo A. P. Dickson on "Templarity"; address by Dr. N. F. Grafton.

Judge Jo A. P. Dickson is one of Baylor county's best known citizens, having resided at Seymour for 25 years. Shortly after his arrival here he was appointed a deputy sheriff, there being 15 unorganized counties attached to Baylor for judicial purposes at that time. After seven years as a deputy, he entered the real estate business with A. L. Ewing, under whom he had served as a sheriff. In 1904, he was licensed to practice law and was immediately appointed county attorney, being elected at the next election, and then elected district attorney of the 50th district, in which position he served two terms.

In 1901 he was appointed district judge, serving for two years. He practiced his profession in Seymour until 1908 when he was again elected district judge, serving until 1916. Since that time he has been engaged in law practice at Seymour.

"THE UNKISSED BRIDE" PROVES PLEASING COMEDY AT WICHITA THIS WEEK

Another rollicking farce comedy that lives up to its advertisement of "being built for laughing purposes only," is being offered at the Wichita theater by the Theodore Lorich stock company under the title of "The Unkissed Bride." The play will appear the rest of the week.

Comedy is made the predominant feature throughout and in the hands of the Lorich cast is brought out to the best possible advantage. The plot deals with the old story of the eccentric rich uncle who is to settle a fortune on a young nephew, provided the latter marries satisfactorily. In this case said nephew gets himself and everyone else into all kinds of trouble by persuading a stenographer to pose as his wife until he can collect.

Things are ironed out smoothly in the end, however, and in so doing even greater comedy situations are brought out.

St. Jacob's Oil stops any pain, so when your back is sore and lame, or lumbago, sciatica or rheumatism has you stiffened up, don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle of old, honest St. Jacob's Oil at any drug store, pour a little in your hand, and rub it right on your aching back; and by the time you count fifty the soreness and lameness is gone.

Don't stay crippled! This soothing, penetrating oil needs to be used only once. It takes the pain right out and ends the misery. It is magical, yet absolutely harmless, and doesn't burn the skin.

Nothing else stops lumbago, sciatica, backache or rheumatism so promptly. It never disappoints!—adv.
