You Beat Aladdin. Aladdin and his wonderful lamp could not obtain the comfort that is yours from natural gas. When Augustus ruled the world, he hovered around a smoky fire of wood or coal.

Your Special Privilege. Every citizen of this community can have most effective light and most grateful heat by touching a match to his natural gas. This is not a privilege that everybody in the United States enjoys either. It is limited. Thousands who enjoy it now will, in a few years, be compelled to resort to other heating devices.

54 MORE BILLS OF INDICTMENT FILED BY THE GRAND JURY

JURY TAKES RECESS SATURDAY UNTIL AUGUST 21 BY COURT'S ORDER.

NONE OF THE BILLS ARE MADE PUBLIC

Majority of Them Are Cases Which Were Investigated by Former Grand Jury.

Fifty-four more bills of indictment were returned by the grand jury of the 54th district court Saturday afternoon in a partial report returned in open court.

None of the indictments were made public, the district officials being occupied Saturday afternoon in checking over the cases in which Judge Wilson is disqualified by reason of having been district attorney and having been present at former investigations of the cases.

It was stated that the majority of the 54 bills returned were in cases in which the grand jury of the December term of court had also returned indictments and which had been held invalid.

JUDGE INSTRUCTS FOR DEFENDANT IN HAID DIVORCE SUIT

Judge H. E. Wilson of the 54th district court will occupy the bench in Henrietta next week. This became necessary when the court took one week from the Gray county term and held court at Graham and at that time Judge Wilson promised the bar that he would return some time during the summer and hold the extra week's court.

The bar association will meet Monday morning to select a special judge to try the cases which have been specially set for trial for the coming week.

Sixty persons were killed and 622 injured in 890 automobile accidents in 23 larger cities of the United States during the week ending July 7, according to the following figures collected by the United Press.

LATE STRIKE BULLETINS

James An Instruction. NEW ORLEANS, July 8.—Judge Rufus E. Foster in United States district court here today issued an injunction restraining striking railroad shomphen from interfering with the operation of trains on the Southern Pacific.

May Abandon Division. SLATER, MO., July 8.—J. L. Marquette, division superintendent of the Chicago & Alton here, announced today he expected to receive orders shortly to abandon the road's division point at Slater. He said that engine and car repair shops and the division terminal would in all probability be moved to Glasgow, Mo., 12 miles east of here.

Notice of Discharge. TOPEKA, KAN., July 8.—Formal notice of discharge was sent today to all Santa Fe strikers in Topeka who went on strike last Saturday and have not yet returned to work. With this announcement John Durcell, in charge of Santa Fe shops, stated that 1,551 men were enrolled at the shops, a gain of 94 over yesterday and representing about sixty per cent of the force employed before the strike.

Abandon Encampment. COLUMBIA, MO., July 7.—Adjutant General Raupp today ordered battery B, 12th field artillery, Missouri, not to entrain tomorrow for Camp Knox, Ky., for the annual encampment, as previously planned. The adjutant general said Governor Hyde has decided to postpone the movement of the entire regiment of artillery indefinitely on account of the railroad strike situation.

Forbid Interference. SPRINGFIELD, ILL., July 8.—Federal Judge Fishery this afternoon granted a temporary restraining order forbidding strikers from interfering in any way with the operation of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy shops at Beardstown and Olesburg.

U. S. Marshal Arrives. SLATER, MO., July 8.—I. K. Farrell, United States marshal for the western district of Missouri, and seven deputies arrived here this afternoon and took charge of the strike situation in the name of the United States government.

Report First Disorder. BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 8.—The first disorder in the Birmingham district in connection with the strike of railroad shomphen was recorded here today when a crowd of strikers attacked F. L. Fletcher, an employe of the Frisco railway. Fletcher was painfully injured and was removed to a hospital.

Order Guard Mobilized. SPRINGFIELD, ILL., July 8.—The entire 130th infantry, Illinois national guard, was ordered mobilized tonight by Adjutant General Black. The troops will be held in their armories to be moved at a minute's notice to the scene of threatened trouble in the railroad shomphen's strike.

Ordered to Report. SEDALIA, MO., July 8.—The local battalion of the 15th field artillery, Missouri national guards, which was ready to entrain for Camp Knox tomorrow for the annual encampment, received orders late today from Adjutant General Raupp not to entrain, owing to the railroad strike. The battalion is composed of 5 officers and 200 men.

Troops on Their Way. SPRINGFIELD, ILL., July 8.—Troops under command of Major John O. Smith of Champaign were on their way to the scene of rail strike rioting at Clinton within 30 minutes after the order was issued by Adjutant General Black. It was announced here by Colonel Frank A. Taylor of the general's staff.

Ordered to Clifton. SPRINGFIELD, ILL., July 8.—Regimental headquarters company F 130th infantry, now at Decatur, has been ordered to proceed immediately to Clifton in response to rumors of further troubles in the shomphen's strike there.

Notice of Warning. OKLAHOMA CITY, July 8.—Notice warning nonunion men to refrain from work in railroad shops has been posted in St. Louis-San Francisco shops in Afion, Tulsa, Sapulpa, Enid and Oklahoma City. It was announced today by officials of the road. It was said the warnings made no specific threats and were not signed.

Jews to Dedicate a New Sanitarium for Jewish Consumptives. DENVER, July 8.—Jewish families from all parts of the United States arrived in Denver today to attend the eighteenth annual convention of the Jewish Consumptives Relief society and the dedication of the new half million dollar central building at the society's sanitarium.

Go Out on Strike. ROODHOUSE, ILL., July 8.—Acting upon orders they said came from divisional headquarters, 15 men employed in the Chicago and Alton roundhouse here as turntable men, fire blowers and fire tenders walked out on strike this afternoon in sympathy with the striking shomphen.

Restraining Order. COUNCIL BLUFFS, IOWA, July 8.—Judge M. J. Wood late today issued a temporary restraining order directed against the six shop drafts unions in favor of the Burlington railroad. The order affecting all Burlington points in southern Iowa, prohibits the unions from interfering with the operation of trains and the full protection of railroad property.

STRIKE SITUATION IS NOW SERIOUS

(Continued from Page One) graphic instructions from the department of justice at Washington and that his orders are to prevent infringement of federal laws. Interference with interstate commerce or mails will not be tolerated, Mr. Parrshall said.

SEVERELY BEAT A MAN EMPLOYED AT GREENVILLE. GREENVILLE, TEXAS, July 8.—A. C. Andrews, employed yesterday by the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad as a laborer in the local shops, was attacked and severely beaten by alleged strike sympathizers while on his way home from work today. Andrews had just left the shops when, he said, he was accosted by four or five men and clubbed. He was warned to "keep his mouth shut." This is the first trouble here since about 50 shomphen walked out last Saturday. Neither railroad or shop union officials would comment on the attack.

WILL REPORT SITUATION TO ATTORNEY GENERAL. WASHINGTON, July 8.—Advice received by the department of justice concerning disorders at various railroad centers in the middle west resulting in interference with the mails, caused Acting Attorney General Guy D. TWENTY THREE OF 'KATY' TRAINS IN TEXAS CANCELLED

DALLAS, July 8.—Twenty-three of the trains canceled by the M. K. & T. railroad on account of the strike operate over Texas lines of the system. These trains include: Denton district: Trains 45-48 and 50-51; between Dallas and Wichita Falls. Last train leaves Dallas 11:10 p. m. Sunday, July 9; last train left Wichita Falls 11:30 p. m. July 7. With these trains, sleeping cars 25 and 26 will be discontinued.

REBEL STRONGHOLD FALLS BEFORE THE FREE STATE TROOPS

By GEORGE MAC DONOUGH, United Press Staff Correspondent. DUBLIN, July 8.—Blessington, the rebel stronghold in the hills south of Dublin, fell before the onslaught of free state troops today.

Insurgents, many of them concentrated in the southern hills when they were driven from Dublin, put up a stubborn resistance, but were forced to surrender to superior numbers of the loyal troops of Michael Collins.

HOME RULE AMENDMENT CANNOT BE SUBMITTED. MADISON, Wis., July 8.—The proposed home rule amendment to the Wisconsin constitution which would extend authority to all cities and villages to determine local affairs without interference by the legislature, cannot be submitted to the people of the state for a vote in November, the supreme court held today. An error of the scrolling clerk in the 1919 session of the legislature in filing the wrong amendment with the secretary of state qualified the legislative act, the court held.

Clubs Show Why Spudders Lost First Half; Club to Return Monday For 30 Days at Home

OFFICIAL BATTING AVERAGES

(For all games of first half of season up to and including Saturday, July 8. Only players included as participating in 10 or more games.)

Table with columns for Club, G, AB, R, H, TB, 3B, HR, SH, BB, PB, CS, BA. Lists batting averages for various clubs like Wichita Falls, Shreveport, etc.

The fact that poor hurling was responsible for the Spudders winding up the first half of the season in second place is clearly brought out by the official averages for the first half of the season.

The Spudders scored 41 runs more than their nearest rival, the Cats. They had a wide margin in the batting average, with four of the seven runs per contest.

The Spudders played 74 games during the first half, and of this number less than 15 were hurried by rain. The Spudders played 74 games and in 43 of these their pitchers went the full route.

Everything depends on the outcome of the games during the second half. The Spudders will have to win 17 of their 30 games to tie the Cats.

The variety of ball displayed by the Spudders since the season was split has not been to the liking of the fans. The Spudders have been hit hard by the variety of ball.

The much talked of "hurling" has been found with the Spudders since the opening game in Fort Worth. Time and again, ball games could have been broken up by a timely pinch hit, but said hit was never forthcoming.

The Spudders will have to win 17 of their 30 games to tie the Cats. The Spudders will have to win 17 of their 30 games to tie the Cats.

TIMES DAILY MARKETS

COTTON MARKET

New York Cottons. NEW YORK, July 8.—The unfavorable financial and political news from Germany led to rather violent fluctuations in the cotton market today. An opening advance on increasing reports of a very sharp break with October contracts selling off from 22.50 to 22.30, of the lowest price touched since they sold at 22.50 on the bureau report of last Monday. Trade reports were big buyers of this decline, however, and October closed at 22.50, or 21 points up from the lowest closing steady at net declines of 15 to 18 points.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE

CHICAGO, July 8.—Effects of the situation in Germany were apparent in the action of the grain markets here today and values were lower than around 10 1/2c, with July 1.12 to 1.13 and September 1.10 to 1.10 1/2. Corn was off 1/8c, oats showed a net loss of 1/8c, and provisions ranged 1/4c to 1/2c lower. As the inside figures September wheat showed 3/4c under yesterday's close. Concerns that usually act for southeast account did some buying and local brokers were figuring on liberal quantities for shipment to the east, probably to fill old sales abroad. Exporters were after a time pretty freely for December offerings were absorbed by trade concerns, which seemed to include a conservative demand for Japanese accounts. This relieved pressure on the close showing recoveries of some 13 to 20 points from the low.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, July 8.—Selling for both accounts during today's short but active stock market session was largely inspired by the more critical conditions in continental Europe. Bulls fortified the better part of their midweek advances, pressure being especially marked against Louisville and Nashville and several of the grangers, coalers and trans-continental at extreme declines of one to five points.

NEW ORLEANS, July 8.—After falling steady in trading today and making advances of 7 to 15 points on the more active position, the cotton market turned sour in the late trading broke to levels 27 to 28 points under the close of yesterday's session. First rise to 24.10 and then slumped to 23.50. Much of the selling was due to rumors of another political assassination in Germany and to the report that exporters were reselling cotton originally intended for shipment to France at net declines for the day of 15 to 25 points. October closed at 24.50, or 20 points above the low.

Annual Statement. Wichita Falls Building & Loan Association.

Table with columns: RESOURCES, LIABILITIES, and various financial entries.

On the Basis. of the above annual statement of the Wichita Falls Building and Loan Association every individual in this city is solicited very earnestly to start saving some of their earnings through this institution, not only because of its safe and convenient plan, but for the most excellent reason that mortgage money to finance home owning is in great demand and every loan made is but a further step toward a greater and better Wichita Falls.

Young men and young women should use this institution as one of their means toward saving a portion of their earnings.

Business men who require plant equipment should start a sinking fund whereby monthly sums will provide replacement costs as equipment wears out.

Professional men may use this institution very readily to acquire a cash reserve outside of their business.

Persons who desire a home may save and earn interest thereon while accumulating an equity that the Association may further assist them through a real estate loan in their great ambition.

Members of the building trades should especially endeavor to save a portion of their money through the Wichita Falls Building & Loan Association because every dollar that it loans is either to pay for the former construction of a building or for the present erection of one, which provides them with employment of every description involved in the erection of a house and the sale of every form of building material.

Agents and owners engaged in the real estate business should save a portion of their money through this institution because it is a certain friend to them on every reasonable occasion through furnishing the money to enable them to sell property and the consequent good general business conditions that result when real estate is active for it is the basis of all wealth.

IN JUNCTION SUIT OF CITY AGAINST COUNTY IS PASSED

JUDGE WILSON SET TUESDAY
AS DATE FOR HEARING OF ROAD MATTER.

ALL THREE JUDGES MAY SIT TO HEAR CASE

Attorneys For the City Insist On Hearing Merits of Case on Saturday.

The hearing on the injunction suit of the city of Wichita Falls against Wichita county was passed over until Tuesday morning by Judge H. R.
Wilson after some little time was spent Saturday afternoon in argument of counsel.

It was intimated that all three district judges would be asked to sit on the bench to try the case inasmuch as the question involved was one that affected practically the entire citizenship of the county.

The attorneys for the city in the case insisted on trying the case Saturday afternoon and remain at it until it was concluded. They contended that the county was not ready to begin paving operations and that if some pavement was laid on the route as outlined by the county that it would be a more embarrassing situation.

The city is being represented by Attorneys Mann and W. J. Townsend while the county's case is in the hands of Attorney B. Y. Cummins of the law firm of Weldon, Cummings and McDonald.

The city is seeking to stop the county from paving Fort Worth and East Thirteenth street to Lamar in entering the city with the Meridian highway. The city contends that it has been given the sole and absolute jurisdiction over all the streets, alleys and highways in the city and wishes to ask that the routing of the road be placed on Jalisco street opening directly into Lamar.

The city's counsel contended that the entire case rests on a question of law and not on facts, while the county contends that the city through its operation of the road has given the permission to select the routing of the highway.

During the argument before the court in which the city's attorneys asked that an order be issued restraining the county from paving the route until the suit was tried, Attorney Cummings stated:

"If the city wants the county to pave inside of the city limits, the paving will be laid where the commissioners' court wants to lay it." City's attorneys replied that they were not contemplating being bluff.

Attorney McDonald also contended that a writ of injunction could not be issued except in cases where the petitioner could show damage or apparent damage. He insisted that paving a street could certainly not be injurious to the city.

PLAN TO IMPROVE THE SEWER SYSTEM
AT BURKBURNETT

BURKBURNETT, TEXAS, July 8.
—C. O. Walling, general manager and large stockholder in the Burkburnett Sewer company, announced that some extensions of the present sewer system will be made in the near future. Present plans are to lay a lateral in the alley extending east from Avenue B to Avenue D, as well as contemplating other extensions to cover the thickly populated part of the city in exchange for the present system.

The present sanitary sewers were financed and constructed by private individuals, two of whom were non-residents. Efforts have been put forth from time to time by the chamber of commerce and others interested to negotiate the sale of the system to the city in exchange for city bonds, which are available for that purpose, at the cost price paid for the construction of the plant.

The present owners of the sewer system realize the importance of the city owning the plant, as such ownership would facilitate the matter of forced connections of property owners adjacent thereto, the city being in better position to require that they make the connections, as is made mandatory by the sanitary laws of the state.

Present rates are almost prohibitive where all necessary connections are made. A single toilet costs 12 monthly in advance and other connections proportionately high. It is thought that by city ownership the rates could be lowered without additional cost to the taxpayer by handling the system in connection with the already organized water works system of the city, which has been on a paying basis almost since its installation.

The city made several efforts during the years 1918 and 1919 to construct a sewer system with laterals extending north to the Red river. An injunction was secured by property owners owning property along the proposed route and the plan had to be abandoned after months of expensive litigation through in order to build the system. The job was then undertaken by private individuals who with the city's interest only at heart, was able to accomplish that which the city was unable to do and at a much less cost.

The present system covers the main business section of the city and has eliminated the very un-sanitary conditions that section of the city which existed prior to its installation. But there are at present some property owners who have either failed or refused to make the connections and in some few instances the surface toilet may be seen standing in the rear of business houses of the main street of the city.

Parisian Tips on Fall Fashions

COPYRIGHT BY MC CALL

Even as early as midsummer the great gods of Parisian fashion are sending over advance models of autumn's styles to be made up in materials for summer and very early fall.

Most of these are tailored frocks. Wide drapes are shown on some. High collars on others. One dress is not able to disregard the present vogue of capes and has a loose skirt paneled in back that folds up across one's shoulders as a cape.

The marriage of Alfred Thom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Thom of this city, and Miss Irene Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Taylor of St. Louis, was solemnized at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the home of Rev. Dr. Pittenger of the First M. E. church.

Only the immediate family of the groom and a few close friends witnessed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Thom will make their home at 909 Seventh street.

Little Miss Marjorie Vincent, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Vincent of 1217 Austin street, claims the distinction of being the youngest "suff" in Wichita Falls. She has stirred local voting circles greatly by entering the political world at the mature age of eight years and four months.

Miss Vincent is conducting a vigorous campaign in behalf of her uncle, F. G. Swanson, candidate for representative from the 11th district, and confidently predicts his election.

Mrs. Everett McCullough entertained the Merry Matrons at her apartments here Friday night. The affair was a most successful one, the receiving room and dining room were beautiful with cut flowers in keeping with midsummer. Miss Blanche and Leoti Clark, brides-elect for this week, are having a very lovely time right now with parties and showers and other pretty hospitalities.

The first compliment extended both of the young ladies was the Strand theatre party and shower Friday afternoon, when Louline Turner and Suda Willis entertained the party being given at the W. T. Willis home.

After the theatre the guests were taken to the Willis home where a delightfully entertaining program was enjoyed, Miss Alma Willis giving several pretty dances, Miss Junia Kinsey, two or three readings, Miss Loretta Clark a piano solo or two, and Misses Willis and Frances Tyson readings.

The picnic given by the Christian Endeavorers of the Central Presbyterian church Thursday evening was an unusually delightful occasion, from 10 to 15 couples were present.

The young people went to Scotland Park in cars at 6:30. After playing baseball, drop-the-handkerchief and other outdoor games, a picnic lunch was spread with ice cream for good measure.

KATHLEEN NORRIS Woman to-Woman Talks

THE WOMAN IN GEORGE'S OFFICE

By KATHLEEN NORRIS
"America's Most Popular Woman Writer for Women"

Scene: The office of the vice-president. Characters: The vice-president, rich, handsome, and his stenographer, pretty capable, 25.

Plot: After seeing each other every day for 17 months, and after really dishing each powder in the beginning, they have come to respect each other, to confide in each other, and finally the vice president has told Miss Mason that his wife does not understand him, and that he never really loved her. And Miss Mason in return has compared the vice president to the various struggling young men she knows (mere boys who don't know one end of a golf club from another, and who couldn't stand up at a banker's convention and respond to a toast to save their lives, and who don't diffuse that delightful aroma of fine suits and powders, and who are not up to the mark in the morning), and she realizes that she and the vice president love one another, with a great and terrible passion, and she is extremely unhappy.

This story is set in every village and town in America, it occurs upon every floor of the big office buildings in all the cities, it never varies very much, and it has a conclusion as true as its opening—the woman pays.

My heart sinks, when I discover, and rediscover, this plot. Fifty times a year women write to me. "This is my story. I can't write it, but you could. For three years I have been working in the office of—"

Now it all starts.

And so on. Given the original premise, the conclusion is almost inevitable.

Miss Mason is pretty, clever, always trim and neat, always interested. She gets to know the business as the wife at home never can. She rejoices when the big fee, or the big commission, or the successful contract comes along; the vice president notes that she has pretty white teeth and a delightfully demure fashion of sharing the firm's triumphs.

Inevitably, the moment of personalities arrives.

It is the end of a long hot summer day, or it is the beginning of a cold winter day, and the office radiators clanking pleasantly, and Miss Mason's pencil sharpened, and her stenographer paid innocently by awaiting the business of the day.

"Certainly, Mr. Cox," she says. "I know that if I held him here until you got back, the deed would be done."

"Oh, you did? You vamped him, did you?" says Mr. Cox, deeply amused.

Miss Mason looks down at her shining finger nails, raises her trimmed eye brows, shrugs faintly, and says:

"I kept him, anyway."

Office Desk Sweet Nothings.

That is the beginning. Five weeks later he is loitering after the day's work, and she is loitering, and while the mistress is stopping and chattering in the adjoining office, they are murmuring over her desk.

"No, she didn't suspect anything," the vice president is saying. "My wife isn't jealous!"

"But Miss George," says Miss Mason, "she might have met us inside, instead of just outside, the restaurant."

"And should you have minded it so terribly? She'll have to know some day, Ethel," says George, not in the least meaning, or, indeed, thinking what he says. Why should he weigh words? He is married, and perfectly safe, and he likes little Miss Mason, and he especially likes to flirt.

This business of notes, and

KATHLEEN NORRIS SAYS:
The office affinity is a reactionary.

She may think that to fall in love with a married man and tell him so is tremendously daring and advanced.

But, as a matter of fact, it is merely proving herself a clinging vine, the old type of carefully-kept woman. She is telling the world something like this instead of the thrilling secrets she thinks she is imparting:

"Another woman married this man 15 years ago, and broke him in, and taught him some sense, and now I'm going to grab that other woman's product, just as I would the baby she bore, or the gown she has made."

"I won't look around the world, and find my own man, and devour with him, and grow beside him, and solve the normal problems of wifehood, parenthood, home making and life-making beside him. I'm a clinging vine."

"I like money, and perfumes, and flattery. The harem is my ideal; his soul and mind don't matter to me. But it's what he can do for me, give me, save me—that's all I want!"

"Let other women, intelligent and independent women, carve out their destinies and find their own values. I'm not able to stand alone!"

Well, I know one woman whose office affinity is causing her 17th year. They are still keeping up the pretense, that is, actually, it is utterly dead, and the man is devoted to his wife, daughter and grandson. The wife knows about it, too. Every one knows all about it except the woman herself!

"Mother," I said some 25 years ago, "why are all the nice men married?"

"My mother looked at my father, and they smiled."

"Perhaps because some woman has taken every one of them in hand and made him nice?" she suggested quietly.

"I think that's the answer." (Copyright, 1922, by the Republic Syndicate)

Displaced by a New Girl.

Ethel, lean, eyeglassed, extremely useful to her employer (but beginning to take old Mr. Cox's letters now instead of young Mr. George's) is 28, and somewhat faded, and somewhat given to describing herself humorously as an old maid. And the vice president has gotten a delightfully pretty girl of 22 to be his personal stenographer.

Ethel watches her sharply. For a few months the new girl is friendly and simple and approachable. Then she begins to draw somewhat into her shell, and one day she tells Ethel and Mr. George Cox is a remarkable man, and asks Ethel what his wife is like.

"You saw her, at the firm picnic?" says Ethel, unympathetically.

"She looks horridly cold to me," says the new stenographer. "And he's so nice—so full of fun. He's just a boy."

"I like money, and perfumes, and flattery. The harem is my ideal; his soul and mind don't matter to me. But it's what he can do for me, give me, save me—that's all I want!"

"Let other women, intelligent and independent women, carve out their destinies and find their own values. I'm not able to stand alone!"

glances, and little presents, is perfectly delicious to him, and to have an intelligent, much younger woman flattering him so ardently keeps him confident and happy.

Miss Miss Mason cries o' nights, and really suffers, and snubs her family, and her old friends, and tells one or two close intimates all about it.

The intimates are either happily married, or happily engaged young persons, or else they are in exactly the same position, and have their own variation of the office-affinity problem. But, like liquor and drug addicts, persons afflicted with this particular misery never recognize it in themselves. To every office affinity her particular case is unique.

Is Anything More Tedious?

The intimates sympathize; but what is to be done? They listen to Ethel one night, two nights, 15 lights, but it is only the same thing over again! George doesn't love his wife, but he can't divorce her on account of the little girl, and on his uncle's—the president of the company—account, do you see? But he is just crazy about Ethel, and don't it all seem too sad? And Ethel is 28, 29, 31, and George goes on enjoying the flattery, the companionship, the long confidences, and Ethel loses her bloom and tries herself into middle-age in the very prime of life. And is anything—I ask you—is anything, more tedious, than the realization of such an affair? There is nothing to be done, there is nothing to say, one only sighs sympathetically.

"Perhaps you'll come to care for somebody else, Ethel?"

"Oh, never!" The memory of the vice president's money and the clean odor of his shaving soap, and his golf sticks are all blended in Ethel's reply.

"But my dear," you say, glancing wistfully at your half-closed book, "the man would drop him from the firm if he divorced Missie!"

"Well, that's just it," says Ethel, with mournful relish.

Feeling the heat of a bank book, and the interest suddenly begins to drop out of the whole thing, George and Ethel pretend it hasn't, for perhaps a year of service and pretenses. But his excuses for not seeing her get more and more frequent, and her sighs, as she talks to the girls, begin to have a sharply critical note. And how pathetic this sort of talk is, with every one but Ethel knowing that the whole empty dream is over!

It is over. And George is just where he was six years ago. But Ethel has been feeding her soul on husks.

Joe Clark and Jack Wood liked her enormously, six years ago, Joe was a good deal of a boor, and Jack had his mother and sister to support in those days. When they took Ethel out for the day, it was in a mud-spattered Ford. (The vice president drives a marmon.)

But now Joe has picked up a tremendous amount of culture, somehow, and he is going to marry one of the Wilsons, and go into the firm, and Jack's sister is married, and his mother is dead, and his wife (mild little Betty White) told Ethel the other day that they were buying a home in St. Andrew's Wood.

"I won't look around the world, and find my own man, and devour with him, and grow beside him, and solve the normal problems of wifehood, parenthood, home making and life-making beside him. I'm a clinging vine."

"I like money, and perfumes, and flattery. The harem is my ideal; his soul and mind don't matter to me. But it's what he can do for me, give me, save me—that's all I want!"

"Let other women, intelligent and independent women, carve out their destinies and find their own values. I'm not able to stand alone!"

glances, and little presents, is perfectly delicious to him, and to have an intelligent, much younger woman flattering him so ardently keeps him confident and happy.

Miss Miss Mason cries o' nights, and really suffers, and snubs her family, and her old friends, and tells one or two close intimates all about it.

Now, I need hardly say, my sympathy, my interest, my admiration, in this life, is all for women. After thousands of years of being oppressed and deceived and cheated, I think that what we are doing, everywhere, every way, every minute, is simply marvelous. And consequently I hate to see women being fool and being foolish.

The Office Affinity's Message.

The office affinity is a reactionary.

She may think that to fall in love with a married man and tell him so is tremendously daring and advanced.

But, as a matter of fact, it is merely proving herself a clinging vine, the old type of carefully-kept woman. She is telling the world something like this instead of the thrilling secrets she thinks she is imparting:

"Another woman married this man 15 years ago, and broke him in, and taught him some sense, and now I'm going to grab that other woman's product, just as I would the baby she bore, or the gown she has made."

"I won't look around the world, and find my own man, and devour with him, and grow beside him, and solve the normal problems of wifehood, parenthood, home making and life-making beside him. I'm a clinging vine."

"I like money, and perfumes, and flattery. The harem is my ideal; his soul and mind don't matter to me. But it's what he can do for me, give me, save me—that's all I want!"

"Let other women, intelligent and independent women, carve out their destinies and find their own values. I'm not able to stand alone!"

Well, I know one woman whose office affinity is causing her 17th year. They are still keeping up the pretense, that is, actually, it is utterly dead, and the man is devoted to his wife, daughter and grandson. The wife knows about it, too. Every one knows all about it except the woman herself!

"Mother," I said some 25 years ago, "why are all the nice men married?"

"My mother looked at my father, and they smiled."

"Perhaps because some woman has taken every one of them in hand and made him nice?" she suggested quietly.

"I think that's the answer." (Copyright, 1922, by the Republic Syndicate)

Displaced by a New Girl.

Ethel, lean, eyeglassed, extremely useful to her employer (but beginning to take old Mr. Cox's letters now instead of young Mr. George's) is 28, and somewhat faded, and somewhat given to describing herself humorously as an old maid. And the vice president has gotten a delightfully pretty girl of 22 to be his personal stenographer.

Ethel watches her sharply. For a few months the new girl is friendly and simple and approachable. Then she begins to draw somewhat into her shell, and one day she tells Ethel and Mr. George Cox is a remarkable man, and asks Ethel what his wife is like.

"You saw her, at the firm picnic?" says Ethel, unympathetically.

"She looks horridly cold to me," says the new stenographer. "And he's so nice—so full of fun. He's just a boy."

"I like money, and perfumes, and flattery. The harem is my ideal; his soul and mind don't matter to me. But it's what he can do for me, give me, save me—that's all I want!"

"Let other women, intelligent and independent women, carve out their destinies and find their own values. I'm not able to stand alone!"

COX IN EUROPE TO STUDY WORKINGS OF LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Former Democratic Standard Bearer Sincere in His Belief in the International Organization Sponsored by Woodrow Wilson and Turned Down by the U. S. Senate—Has Been Watching Developments

By MARK SULLIVAN, correspondent of the New York Evening Post and Wichita Daily Times.

(Copyright, 1922 by the New York Evening Post, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Ex-Governor Cox of Ohio arrived this week in Europe. It is open to everybody to guess to what extent his trip is that of a mere sightseer; and to what extent it is inspired by interest in the league of nations, and by an expectation on his part that sooner or later the league of nations issue will have a "come-back." Anyone who has followed Governor Cox's movements with any closeness during the 20 months since his campaign for the presidency, is pretty sure to conclude that his interest in the league of nations has increased rather than diminished with time. Instead of being made faint by the personal political adversity that attended his association with it, it has on the contrary, been deepened. This is characteristic of the most obvious of Cox's personal qualities. Cox, in his campaign for the presidency, went through, as regards the league of nations, an intellectual and emotional experience familiarly known as "getting religion." Defeat, instead of making that institution distasteful to him, has had rather the effect of creating in him a kind of apostolic evangelism.

Cox today is as devoted to the league of nations as ex-President Wilson ever was. And Cox being in some ways as tenacious of his own purposes and ideas as President Wilson ever was at his strongest; and being, on the whole, a rather staid and gaunt man, rather than Wilson, more patient and plugging, stick-to-it type of man, it is quite possible that when and if anything comes of the league of nations and America's relation to it, Cox may in the end be judged to have had as much to do with it as Wilson. This, of course, is a mere speculation. The league of nations issue is ever to revive and come to a larger place in the world than it now seems to have. At this moment, the league of nations seems to be at its lowest ebb, both as regards its vitality as a going concern in Europe, and also as regards American public interest in it. But to Cox, as to many league of nations, this phase is negligible. He is earnest about the league, a mere incident of some which occurs frequently and almost inevitably in the course of the evolution of any institutions of the kind.

Seeking information regarding the greatest possible quantity of information about the league as an actual working institution. The thorough public address that Cox has made during the past six months have reflected a greater completeness of minute information about the league than is possessed by any other American, and have reflected also a greater preoccupation on his part with this institution than with any other subject. It is not unreasonable to infer that Governor Cox's European trip is inspired by the desire to make himself still more familiar with the league as an institution in being; and to know exactly what it is doing, and why it does not fill a larger place than it now does in the public eye, and in that direction of European affairs which would seem to be its particular function.

Disturbing Mystery

Why it was not the league of nations that conducted the Genoa conference and other affairs within the field the league was designed to cover has been a disturbing mystery to all American friends of the league. If any of those statesmen whose countries are in the league, and who are supposed to be the natural advocates and guardians of its growth, are neglecting it for motives not superficially apparent, nor inherently justifiable. In short, if there is any sinister "sabotaging" of the league, Cox, on his European trip, may be expected to try to find it out, and to learn who is responsible and why. Cox, as the candidate of the American political party which was dedicated to the league, and as, for the time being, the titular head of the party in a sense; as one of the small number of men whose success in impressing their own belief in the league on their own peoples would make the difference between a great future for the league and a negligible one—Cox in that role has an obvious responsibility to which his temperament and his conviction makes it easy for him to respond. Persons who have talked with Cox have got the idea that in a quiet but formidably steady way, he has dedicated himself to this thing, has come to look upon the purely personal aspect of the question of whether he will ever again be a candidate for the presidency, as something minor; but looks upon his duty to forward the fortunes of the league of nations as a primary and compelling purpose.

Has Not Been Very Active

Governor Cox has not been very active during the past 20 months, but in occasional contact with him one sometimes comes to think of him as having, as regards big things and future things, a rather more impressive vantage point than other public men who have been more active and more in the public eye, merely because they have had to do with current events. From time to time Cox has manifested a little sobersided by his contact with larger things in 1920, and made to seem more reflective, sits in his newspaper office in Dayton and scrutinizes the world as it goes by with a more detached point of view than is possible to men closed to the bustle, smaller things of day to day. Anyone who has ever sat in the audience, and watched a prize fight with any technical interest, has seen how many times it happens that there are chances for a knockout blow, which the contestants permit to go by. Cox as a candidate for the presidency was in the ring. But since November of that year he has had a seat by the ringside of politics and public affairs, and has watched himself quietly but intently to learning every lesson that can be picked up by a most earnest watcher. In that mood, and from what vantage point, Cox has watched the Washington conference, the four-power treaty, the Genoa conference, and all the rest of it go by. What he has watched it all with a calmer and surer eye than those who have taken an actual part in these relatively incomplete efforts to get the world back on the tracks. At each turn of the wheel, Cox has watched the thing that was done, and has measured it by the standard of what would have been done if the league of nations had been in operation. And his conclusion, re-enforced by each installment of the day's news, is that the league of nations would have cleaned up all the mess, that nothing else can clean it up with equal completeness, and in the mind of the public and in the apparent disposition of the present administration, America seems at the moment a little more distant from Europe, and more definitely unwilling to join the league of nations or any other institution looking toward cooperation with Europe in any formal sense, than at any time since that institution emerged upon the world. It can, indeed, be stated definitely—more definitely than at any previous time—that there is at this moment no appearance whatever of expectation on the part of the present administration to change the policy of detachment from European political affairs. In fact, this policy on the part of the administration seems to be held most firmly and definitely today than ever before. But when Cox tells you, as he has in his few recent public speeches, and as his friends report his private conversations, that all this is temporary, and that the league of nations will come into the foreground again—when Cox says that you feel like being impressed by it.

OKLAHOMA MAN DIES FROM INJURY SUSTAINED

CHERRYVALE, Kan., July 8.—Harmon Reid, 15, of Lucas, Okla., died here early today from injuries received early this morning when he was struck by a Frisco passenger train, 15 miles northwest of here, while sleeping on the track. He was accompanied by Walter Boatman, also of Lucas, Okla., who was injured in the accident.

$240,000 PAID OUT ON DEBTS OF CITY DURING THREE DAYS

During the past three days the city of Wichita Falls has paid out approximately $240,000 on its floating debts. Warrants totaling this amount were recorded before the actual cash was paid out. The city finance officers have not had time to check up on the cash actually paid up at this time, for it has been a big job paying off for the first time in six months.

Employees of the city have been considerably worried over the fact that their checks for the month of June were not taken care of. City officials do not know when these checks can be taken up.

The $275,000 loan will be practically exhausted when all the outstanding notes are paid, and when the warrants up to June 1 are collected. According to this the city will be forced to run until the beginning of the new year on a credit basis. The city's strong box may be helped a little by the collection of delinquent taxes, which are said to be coming in rather slowly.

After the first of next year with the money derived from taxes is available the city will be in a much better financial condition, according to Mayor Collier.

MOVIE CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK AT LOCAL THEATRES

"My Old Kentucky Home" Opens the Week at Empress

"My Old Kentucky Home," a motion picture of sweet mother love, which weaves a romance the like of which has never been known before for human interest and heart throbs and named after the famous ballad, is coming to the Empress theater Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

It is a story of an aristocratic southern widow whose son has been away for two years without her having heard from him. He has been railroaded to prison and when released is on the brink of plunging into the underworld when he is rescued by the strains of "My Old Kentucky Home." He goes home and is successful in keeping his secret from his mother.

His former sweetheart is on hand and their beautiful romance is renewed. In order to recoup her fortune the mother has her prize horse "Dixie" in the Kentucky derby. A smuggler who is in love with the boy's sweetheart threatens exposure if he does not stay away from the girl and fear grips the young man.

It is the day of the great Kentucky derby—the day when fortunes are staked to be won or lost. "Dixie" must win. It is a history making race. "Dixie" runs a wonderful race to the tune of thousands of cheers and it is then that the smuggler exposes the boy. Fate then intervenes and the detective who arrests the boy appears, arrests the smuggler, and announces the boy was innocent of the charge.

Tom Mix is coming to the Empress Thursday, Friday and Saturday in "Up and Going," a stirring story filmed by William Fox, of the great Canadian northwest, where some men fight like heroes to force the wilderness to give up its riches, and where others fight like devils to wrest from the heroes that which they have gained—including gold and women—where the spirit of adventure is ever in the air.

The story, written by Mix and Leon F. Reynolds, is that of an English lad, born in the northwest, whose father falls heir to a fortune and title and returns to England, where, when the lad has grown to man's estate, he falls to win the hand of a girl he loves and returns to the northwest to seek fortune. In this northwest is his mother, who his father had told him was dead. There, too, is his childhood sweetheart. The complications that arise make an exciting story that ends in a thrilling fight and rescue.

An underwater battle is said to be a big feature of the picture.

PAULINE FREDERICK in "The Glory of Clementina"

Pauline Frederick At Strand Theater Starting Monday

The story of a brilliant young woman who in the pursuit of fame had stifled every natural instinct within her is unfolded in vivid manner in "The Glory of Clementina," Pauline Frederick's most recent starring vehicle, produced and distributed by R. C. Pictures, and showing at the Strand theater Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

"The Glory of Clementina," which is based upon Wm. J. Locke's famous novel of the same title, reveals one of the greatest character studies ever shown on the screen. In the interpretation of the role of Clementina Wing, a dowdy middle-aged genius who is famous for her portrait painting, but who has stifled all her natural romantic instincts, Pauline Frederick gives one of the most brilliant characterizations of her career. It has been noted only by her great work as the mother in her memorable "Madame X."

It took a baby—not her own, but the daughter of a friend who has died—to completely transform Clementina Wing and the scenes in which she meets the child for the first time, strikes her to her breaking point, reawakens her long slumbering hope of wifehood and motherhood, have seldom been equaled in point of skillful characterization.

"The Glory of Clementina" has distinct appeal for women. It is a woman's story—although it also will strike straight to the heart of every man who sees it.

In the cast with Miss Frederick are such favorites as Louise Dresser, noted musical comedy star, who is appearing for the first time in motion pictures; Truly Shattuck, also recalled as one of the most prominent of musical comedy headliners; also Edward Martindel, George Cow, Lincoln Plummer, Edward Hearn, Jean Colburn, Wilson Hummel, Helen Stone and Lydia Yeaman Titus.

"Free Air," Speaking of appropriate names for motion pictures, the Hodgkinson released feature, "Free Air," which comes to the Strand theater next Thursday for an engagement of three days, is one of the most appropriately named pictures of which this newspaper has any knowledge.

"Free Air" is a picture adapted from the Sinclair Lewis story of the same name which ran serially in the Saturday Evening Post. It was directed by E. H. Griffith and every inch of the picture, from the opening scene to the final fade-out, was made in the "free air" of Montana, Minnesota, North Dakota and Wisconsin.

The company was formed in New York and left on a special train for St. Paul, where the opening scenes were made. From that time on, until the company reached Glacier Park, where the concluding scenes were shot, the company lived out of doors and worked out of doors for a period of more than seven weeks.

Some of the scenes in the picture were taken at an altitude of every 10,000 feet above sea level, and on one occasion the company was caught in a blinding snowstorm. By morning the ground was covered with more than ten inches of snow and the actors were obliged to postpone outside work for more than a week. Many of the locations were found by airplane. The plane was piloted by Lieutenant Becker, an ex-army flier who was locating oil for one of the new western oil companies.

More than 2,000 miners are required to produce the world's supply of coal.

Henry B. Walthall And Pauline Starke Gem Next Saturday

The charge of the Light Brigade had nothing on the swoop of warm-blooded Indians who feature the great store-house attack scene in "Flower of the North," the James Oliver Curwood story which will be shown at the Gem Theater on next Saturday.

In the production, Henry B. Walthall, as Philip, finds himself obliged to fight from the company store-house against the plotters who have vowed to wrest from him the right of way.

Pauline Stark, as Jeanne, and in love with Philip, discovers that Philip's enemies intend to disguise their henchmen as Indians, raid the settlement and then blame the redskins for the attack.

Jeanne warns the Indians, who already have stood all the insults which they are capable of from the white working gangs in league against Philip. The stealthy and proach and characteristic willingness of the North American is seen to perfection in the gathering-for-attack.

In the night they come, the Indian horde, eager to seek revenge for the taunts and maltreatings which come to them from the head element of the whites. Jeanne fights her signal fire, one of the most picturesque scenes in the production as it blazes against flames leaping sixty feet into the air on top of a high mountain peak. This scene is taken at night. The Indians camp at the camp below and the signals and beat the tom-toms while the war-cry is heard. A real tribe of Indians was used, secured from the United States government. Many of the customs of the aborigines were photographed for the production.

OPENING AT OLYMPIC MONDAY

Owen Moore in 'Reported Missing' At the Olympic

The much talked of picture, "Reported Missing," comes to the Olympic theater Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. This Seiznick picture, in which Owen Moore is starred, is really one of those super-productions we hear so much about but rarely see. It is full of the type of thrills which have made motion pictures the world's most popular entertainment. One of these scenes, a race between a sea sled and a hydrocopter, is worth the price of admission alone. Following this chase comes one in high powered auto. In this latter race Moore, in the part of Richard Boyd, stages a scene which is the replica of those thrilling events which fill the daily papers on summer Mondays. In endeavoring to steer clear of a child in his path he swings his machine over an embankment.

In addition to these thrills there is a shipwreck which contains a series of remarkable sea scenes photographed in a manner which vividly illustrates the rapid artistic advance of the cinema.

Tom Wilson, one of D. W. Griffith's old stand-bys, is the prime mover in a lot of comedy scenes, particularly those in which he attempts to wreak revenge on a group of Orientals who are trying to do away with his master, Owen Moore.

Pauline Garon, the perfect flapper furnishes the romance and gives an excellent portrayal of a young girl madly in love and intent upon making herself the inspiration of the man she adores. Owen Moore, the lucky man, in the character of Richard Boyd, certainly needs the inspiration as he is the absolute limit insofar as not caring whether school keeps or not.

"Bought and Paid For," A play that has never failed to thrill American audiences, is George roadhurst's "Bought and Paid For." And now the William de Mille screen version of it, which comes to the Olympic theater next Thursday for the last half of the week; probably will thrill them even more effectively.

It is well known is the story of this popular play that to repeat it seems quite superfluous. It need only be said that the picture follows the story of the play with faithful exactitude, diverting only in those slight instances where divergence meant betterment.

For its direction, the picture could not have been in abler hands than those of William de Mille, whose consummate skill in the interpreting of scenes, filled with dramatic intensity has led to his becoming one of the foremost producers of the motion picture world. Heading a popular cast are the Beginning Monday the Majestic theater will be lifted up in a class with the very best shows in the city. The cooling system has been enlarged and will be in working order, making this theater as cool as any theater in the city, and with Mrs. Hardy at the organ to furnish the music, of course the best music is assured.

The feature pictures beginning Monday will all be specially selected and of the very best, all first run, and besides "The Belle of Alaska," short reels consisting of comedies, news reels, etc., will be shown.

The opening feature Monday will be Jane Novak in "The Belle of Alaska," a story of the Alaska gold fields, just the sort of a picture to enjoy these hot days; in fact, you will keep cool without fans watching this picture. It's the story of a Kansas farmer who sells everything and moves to Alaska to get rich and his struggles are vividly shown in one of the most gripping and interesting stories ever shown on the screen. Supporting Miss Novak in this picture is Noah Berry, who made such a hit in "I Am the Law" at the Olympic last week.

On the same program will be shown the usual short reels consisting of seven snap shots and a comedy entitled "Taking Things Easy."

Government Attitude Toward the Shopmen's Strike

In His Address at Marion, Ohio, July 4th President Harding Declared:

"The foremost thought in the constitution is the right to freedom and the pursuit of happiness. Man must be free to live and achieve. Liberty is gone in America when any man is denied by anybody the right to work and live by that work. It does not matter who denies.

"A free American has the right to labor without any other's leave. It would be no less an abridgement to deny men to bargain collectively. Governments cannot tolerate any class of grouped domination through force. It will be a sorry day when group dominion is reflected in our laws. Government, and the laws which government is charged with enforcing, must be for all the people, ever aiming at the common good."

The United States Railroad Labor Board Has Declared the Strike of Railway Shopmen to be in Effect a Strike Against the Authority of the United States Government, and the Labor Board Accordingly Adopted the Following Resolution, July 3rd:

"Whereas the six organizations composing the Federated Shop Crafts have notified the Railroad Labor Board that a very large majority of the employees which they represent have left the service of the carriers, and that the members of said organizations are no longer employees of the railways, under the jurisdiction of the Railroad Labor Board or subject to the application of the transportation act and,

"Whereas, in the future submission of disputes, involving rules, wages and grievances of said classes of employees of the carriers, it will be desirable, if not a practical necessity: for the employees of each class on each carrier to form a sort of association or organization to function in the representation of said employees before the Railroad Labor Board in order that the effectiveness of the transportation act may be maintained; now, therefore be it

"Resolved, that it be communicated to the carriers

"Resolved, That, if it be assumed that the employees who leave the service of the carrier because of their dissatisfaction with any decision of the Labor Board are within their rights in so doing it must likewise be conceded that the men who remain in the service and those who enter it anew are within their rights in accepting such employment; that they are not strikebreakers seeking to impose the arbitrary will of an employer on employees; that they have the moral as well as the legal right to engage in such service of the American public to avoid interruption of indispensable railway transportation, and that they are entitled to the protection of every department and branch of the government, state and national"

President Harding has announced that the Labor Board has the full backing of the government and the full power of the government will be employed to support its policies. For these reasons, patriotic and law abiding citizens everywhere must regard the strike as directed at the United States government and should support the declaration of Chairman Hooper of the Labor Board that

NASH COMPELLED TO ENLARGE TO MEET THE DEMAND

Enlargement of the Nash Four factory at Milwaukee provides production capacity that will more nearly care for the demand for this product, is planned by the Nash Motors company. Final arrangements for the addition have been made and contractors will begin operations within the next few days.

A new body and sheet metal plant, 100 by 400 feet and three stories high, will provide facilities to make possible the production of the Nash Four almost in its entirety in the Milwaukee plant of the Nash Motors company. At present certain parts of the car are made in the Nash Six plant at Kenosha. The new facilities will mean much to both factories.

"While the substantial addition to our Milwaukee plant will give us increased production facilities," said C. W. Nash, president of the Nash Motors company, "it will not relieve the pressure much before early spring. I say this for the reason that building operations and installations of machinery always take considerable time. We are rushing the work as rapidly as possible, but in view of the oversold condition of the Nash Four and the increasing demand for this model, I do not wish to be placed in the position of extending false hope of increased production in the immediate future.

"The Milwaukee plant with its present facilities is building an excellent car and while production of the Nash four has been greatly increased in the past four months, we are very careful to safeguard the value of this product. We want to fill all orders just as badly as our dealers want these cars, and that is why we have begun work on the plant extension which, when completed, will give us increased production in an orderly and efficient manner."

The extension of the Nash Four cylinder plant was planned a little more than a year ago, but actual work on the construction was postponed to await more favorable building conditions.

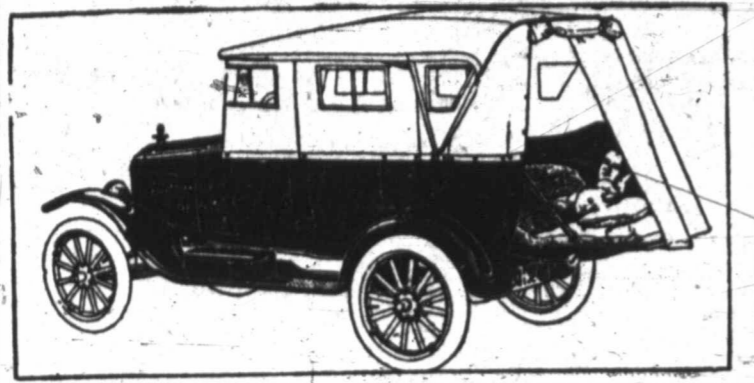

Since the first of the year demand for the Nash Four has increased each month, until in March this model was completely oversold and has been oversold ever since. Production was increased to the highest point possible consistent with careful manufacturing, but the necessity of immediate action on the body plant has resulted in the letting of contracts for the building.

FORD COMPANY HAS MADE MANY NEW IMPROVEMENTS

The Ford Motor Company, Detroit, has just made public a list of recent improvements in the mechanical features of Ford cars. Asserting that Ford cars are better today than they ever have been before, the statement adds that fuel consumption is lower; the engine is even more efficient than formerly; improvements in the springs and steering apparatus insure easier riding and driving qualities; a new headlamp lens, which complies with all state laws, improves the road light; and that many other minor betterments have been made.

Ford pistons and connecting rods have been re-designed and are matched for weight before assembling into motors. This reduces vibration and gives the motor a quicker pick-up. The new pistons weigh three-quarters of a pound less than those formerly used. A highly polished crank shaft bearing surface also reduces wear and, added to the piston and connecting rod improvements, insures a smoother running and better balanced motor. The material used in the Ford crankshaft and the care and precision in its manufacture make it second to none.

The new Ford carburetor gives increased acceleration. Though not radically different from carburetor previously used, the new construction improves the all-round performance of the motor, giving it a quicker pick-up and a greater flexibility of action. The wiring system has been completely re-designed, and while it costs more to install than the old system, is more efficient, proof of which is evidenced by the fact that it affords a fire insurance rate as low as the higher priced cars on the market.

Many other changes have been made: A 14 inch steering wheel is now standard equipment; Timken roller bearings are used in the front wheels; one-piece pressed steel running-board brackets insure body rigidity and eliminate vibration and body noises; a dash weather-tough prevents rain from reaching coil terminals or dash wiring; the steering mechanism has also been improved; and tools supplied to purchasers of Ford cars have also been improved in quality. Another improvement in the truck chassis is the adoption of cord tires as standard equipment on the rear wheels.

The change made some time ago in the seating arrangement of the touring car has met with widespread approval. By lowering the seats and altering the seat backs, greater comfort was added. It is pointed out that retail sale of a million cars and trucks yearly, and the consumption of raw and finished products at a cost of approximately one million dollars a day makes it possible to sell Ford cars at their present low prices and at the same time to produce a car of exceptionally high quality.

More than 15,000,000 yards of material went into tops and side curtains of motor vehicles produced last year. Superbly satisfactory spectacle service supplied by Fred Gosa, optometrist, with Kruger Jewelry Co., Wichita Falls, Texas.

IMPROVED ROADS LEADS PEOPLE TO BUY FINER AUTOS

Due to the fact that we are getting finer roads, the people are becoming more willing and can better afford to drive finer automobiles. Nothing has so great an influence on the construction of automobiles as good roads. In the opinion of J. J. Cole, president of the Cole Motor Company, who has been through many years of automobile development. "In the old days we made a great big engine and then manufactured heavy enough parts to take care of this engine. At the present time we have swung clear away from the big, heavy-wheel-base automobile of tremendous weight, to the comparatively light, scientifically swung, high-powered car. This has been made possible by the vast road improvements that have been made in this country during the last few years.

"We are now building cars that will negotiate bad roads as well as good roads. But what will the development be when, in the course of another five or 10 years, roads have become almost universally good?"

OLDFIELD GIVES DEFINITION OF AN AUTOMOBILE TIRE

With the number of automobiles, trucks and motorcycles reaching the point where today there is one motor vehicle to every ten individuals in the country, attention is very naturally focused on the nation's tire bill, and while many agencies are at work looking to keep this cost at a minimum the whole thing ultimately rests with the tire user.

In those words are summed up a paragraph in a recent letter sent to his agents by "Harvey" Oldfield, master fitter, now president of his own tire company "Too much consideration," the letter continues, "cannot be given to the matter of seeing that the tire buyer not only selects the right type of tire and the right size but that he understands how vital it is to give the tire proper care."

"A tire is much more than simply a rubber casing with a tube inside into which one must now and again pump a certain amount of air," Mr. Oldfield points out, "in fact in many respects a tire resembles the human body. The carcass, built up upon a ply of rubber insulated fabric, corresponds to the flesh, bones and muscles of our body, while the other parts of the casing, such as the side walls, cushion and tread act in a protective capacity similarly as the skin does on the human body.

"Driving an improperly inflated tire or a tire with cuts, holes, bruises and improperly applied repairs is to severely abuse it, perhaps lose it, while at the same time there is no money to be saved in buying cheap 'off' brand tires which have nothing to recommend them.

"In my years of racing on the world's great speedways," Oldfield's letter concludes, "I came to know the vital part tires play in safety and satisfaction and when I decided to build tires myself it was with the determination of bringing to the motor owning public not only the best tire that money can buy, built as the fruit of experience, but to keep everlasting before the tire buyer the need of giving his tires the same consideration as he does his car's important mechanism."

TOMMY MILTON VOUCHES FOR HIS MARMON AUTO

Tommy Milton, winner of the 1921 500-mile race on the Indianapolis speedway, has this to say in a recent letter on his Marmon car which he uses exclusively for his own driving. "The fourteenth car which I have owned and driven in a 1920 Marmon. This includes two transcontinental trips, which were most enjoyable, and many shorter trips from one race meet to another when it arrived as a truck for extra equipment and also as a tow car."

"I consider the work imposed on this car unusually severe and the results obtained have been most satisfactory. The car runs fully as well today as when new, and as there is no evidence of depreciation I have no means of judging what the useful life of the car will be."

ARTHUR HUFF MOTOR CO. IS NAME OF NEW FIRM Effective on July 1, the name of the Marshall Huff Motor company, distributors of Oakland and Jordan cars, was changed to the Arthur Huff Motor company. Mr. Huff reports a splendid business in both cars and accounts for the following sales:

R. R. McGee, Electra; A. M. Cherry, Electra; R. C. Camp, Electra; Hollis Jewell, Electra; John Livingston, Burk Burnett; C. R. Burrows, Wichita Falls, and W. P. McCurdy, Wichita Falls.

THIS IS A STUDEBAKER YEAR

"As Ithers See Us"

"O wad some power the giftie gie us To see oursels as ithers see us."

Dear Mr. Daugherty: I am more than pleased to tell you and the public in general what I think of the Studebaker car and what a wonderful investment it has proved to be. No one can make a mistake in purchasing a Studebaker. I purchased a Special Six touring one year ago from Mr. Keim and have driven it through the states of Oklahoma, Kansas, Illinois, Missouri, Indiana, Ohio and then back to Texas. During this extended trip I was not out of the car except for the occasional gas and oil. I averaged sixteen miles to the gallon of gas and my oil expense was so small to mention. I have never removed a spark plug and it runs like a new car. My experience with a Studebaker has convinced me that it is the best buy in the market today.

Very truly yours, N. D. WELLS

Mr. Wells is a field man for the Ryan Petroleum Co. Inc., based in Dallas, Texas. He is a Studebaker man because equal to the most severe oil field tests without the least or harmful results. No wonder this is a Studebaker year.

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

June Sales Break All Records For Ford Cars in Wichita County

Last month was a great month for Ford in Wichita county. Two hundred and fifty new Ford cars were delivered to various owners, setting a new sales record for this section, and this in the face of an unusual car shortage.

From Present Indications July Sales Will Exceed the Sales in June

With the promise of increased shipments from the factory, July sales will no doubt exceed those of June. The economy of Ford operation, its low initial output, and general all-around uses, meet a widespread popularity and a demand that is universal. You may pay more but you can't get more in real automobile essentials than are offered in the Ford.

PLACE YOUR ORDER NOW TO INSURE PROMPT DELIVERY

A BETTER CAR TODAY THAN EVER BEFORE—Gas consumption lower, engine more efficient, improvement in springs, steering apparatus and driving qualities, new head lamp lenses, Ford pistons and connecting rods have been redesigned and matched for light weight. New Ford carburetor gives increased acceleration. New wiring system is most efficient. Timken roller bearings in front wheels. One piece pressed steel running board brackets, eliminates vibration and body noises. Another important improvement is standard equipment of cord tires on rear wheels of the Ford truck.

CLEVELAND FIGHTS BANDITS WITH BIG PEERLESS EIGHTS

The Cleveland, Ohio, police department, which occupies a notable place among the more efficient metropolitan police forces of the country, finds in the fast and powerful motor car its most effective weapon against the bandit groups which have terrorized many of the larger cities during the last year.

In fact, it is pointed out that due to the department's highly organized motor equipment Cleveland citizens would seem to fall largely on the members of the police department's flying squadron, which is equipped exclusively with big Peerless eight cars.

For example, a call recently went into central station of a bank hold-up at 9th street and Lorain avenue. In less than five minutes after the call about five armed policemen had jumped into the motor car and with shrieking sirens tore through the downtown streets for three minutes after the call had been turned in covering a distance of nearly three miles.

An account with the City National Bank of Commerce places at your command every morning with the convenience of drawing your checks on the "big bank of West Texas." The bank welcomes both small and large accounts.

Among the Dealers

The Shrine Circus Automobile show is a thing of the past and all participating dealers agree that it was a great success and will undoubtedly result in a number of sales. The automobile show is getting the name of being the most progressive and wide awake group of men in the city.

C. C. Randle states that he is 25 or 30 batteries behind orders but is bending every effort to catch up. The Faith has proven itself under all conditions and seems to be getting more popular every day. C. C. has been a busy guy, the time he could spare from business found him on the circus lot selling tickets.

A. L. Weissenborn says he will soon have the new home of Maxwell and Chalmers cars and Wichita Storage Batteries in first class shape. It's a big job to say the least.

Captain Langford returned Thursday from Dallas and Ft. Worth. He reports that one or two of the dealers in those cities have been fortunate enough to receive shipments of the new Lincoln. To say that the Captain is enthused would be putting it mildly. We can give a pretty close guess as to who will grab one of the first to reach Wichita Falls. A carload of Fords arrived Thursday morning and were sold before noon. A word to the wise is sufficient—if you need a Ford better snap up it.

Sales Manager Lane Rosberry of the Overland Motors Co. has moved into town from Archer City and is getting acquainted with city ways. It is said that he has sold his yoke of oxen and has purchased an Overland.

R. A. Ebner spent the Fourth in Dallas and left again Friday to arrange for additional cars. Ebner reports the delivery of two Jewett and is enthusiastic about the sales prospects—to quote him: "There is no other light six under 2,000 lbs. that will perform even equally as well as the Jewett, subject to whatever test you will." A Jewett Sedan will be on display next week.

Claude Hall reports the following Hudson and Essex sales: Hudson Speedster to H. R. Bayne of Burk; Essex five passenger to J. A. Brady of Electra; Hudson Coach to Mrs. W. F. Turner; Essex roadster to W. H. Mizer of Electra. Claude spent the Fourth in Medicine Park.

Lloyd Weaver attended the ball games in Fort Worth on the Fourth. That is not supposed to come under the head of news.

See Frank Quiesler is on the Fair Committee. Know it will be a good fair now.

KNOWLEDGE FOR CAR OWNERS

Interesting and important Facts That Every Motorist Should Know.

A clogged radiator will have the same effect as a clogged jacket. One of the principal causes of poor work of an engine is improper valve timing.

Lack of power is often caused by too many bends in the exhaust pipe. Mistaking on a four-cycle engine may be caused by pitted or clogged valves.

Missing one cylinder may be attributed to the cylinder having a leak around the spark plug. Too rich a mixture will carbonize the spark plug and choke the engine, which may run unevenly.

Dry cells should be wired together from the zinc of one cell to the carbon of the next in the series. Any leak about the spark plug or ignition mechanism or through any of the plugs, should not be allowed to continue.

Care should be taken in connecting up any battery, wet cells or dry cells, with a good grade of insulated rubber covered wire, and see that the ends of the wire attached to the binding posts are scraped clean and bright.

A worn condition of the different working parts of the motor is one of the principal reasons for lost power, because the explosive force partially escapes before the exhaust valve naturally opens.

A deep heavy pounding is caused by too much advanced spark, or overheated cylinders, over advanced timer, or particles of carbon in the cylinder or ignition chamber becoming overheated.

If the motor speeds up a little and then slows back through the base of the carburetor before stopping, look for an empty tank, clogged gasoline pipe or carburetor, water in the gasoline or the tank gasoline valve jarred loose and closing up, shutting off the supply.

With pre-ignition by hot carbon the loose particles of carbon are apt to be blown on the seat of the valve when closing, the result being the valve is not allowed to close properly and the mixture escapes through the valve or compression stroke.

Sources of squeaks in the body of a car may be in the floor boards, which may be loose and rubbing together; in loose doors, windshield of brackets, the dash, particularly where it is secured to the body, where the body rests on the car frame or in the top bows and braces. All body squeaks are hard to locate, and especially so in an old car, when the body has sagged and settled.

LOCAL FIRM SOLVES PROBLEMS FOR MOTORISTS

No longer will the sound of escaping air and petriotic language arise upon the peaceful atmosphere of the city if C. H. Smith of 1010 Indiana avenue can prevail upon the motoring public to use the puncture-cure which he is manufacturing. He claims that it will perform wonders in the way of lengthening the mileage and eliminating the punctures of tires. His puncture-cure is manufactured locally and is being demonstrated daily. Tires being treated with the cure, and then acting as pin-cushions for ten-penny nails. The demonstration is really very interesting.

Horse Isn't Through Yet, Says Owner of Speedway Stock Farm

ago, the purchase putting Wichita Falls very much on the map in horse breeding circles. Bottom row—A register two year old Holstein heifer; breakfast time for a few of the White Leghorns, Hensington. Greater Cloud, world's helping organize fair associations and other activities, W. F. Weeks has found opportunity to build up a stock farm that is beginning to attract wide-spread attention. Horses, dairy cattle, chickens and sheep are to be found on the farm, which is on the Speedway road just south of the city. Mr. Weeks does not share in the view that the horse is a back number; in fact, he believes that despite the increasing use of the automobile, use of riding and driving horses for pleasure will increase. Some of the finest, bluest-blooded equine ancestry in the country has been acquired for his place, those shown in the picture above being some of the more notable specimens.

TRADE TRIPPERS TO DEPART MONDAY FOR THEIR SECOND TRIP

Wichita Falls' second trade trip of the summer will start Monday afternoon on a tour of the territory south and east of this city.

A few reservations remained unobtainable Saturday, but it was expected that these would be taken before noon Monday. At 10:00 a. m. Monday those to participate in the trip will meet at the chamber of commerce to draw for space and receive their uniforms.

The trippers will leave at 4:00 p. m. Monday, reaching Henrieville at 4:45. They will spend the remainder of the day there, taking supper there, and leaving at 10:00 a. m. for Gainesville. Leaving Gainesville at 9:15 a. m., they will visit Myra, Muenster, St. Jo and Neocoma, the latter being the dinner stop. Proceeding west to Ringgold, the train will change to the Rock Island and visit Bowie, Bridgeport and Jackboro, where they stop for supper. From Jackboro the train will proceed via Graham and the W. F. & S. to Breckenridge, where a morning visit will start the third day's program. Graham will be the dinner stop, the day's schedule including Ellaville, South Bend, Graham, Newcastle, Olney, Archer City and then home, being due to reach the union station at 2:25 p. m.

In the parade, R. E. Shepherd will be in command, with C. U. Daniels as first lieutenant, as on the first trip. The schedule follows:

Monday
Leave Wichita Falls 4:00 p. m.; leave Henrieville 4:45 p. m.; leave 10:00 p. m.

Tuesday
Arrive Gainesville 1:10 a. m.; leave 8:15 a. m.; arrive Myra 9:50 a. m.; leave 10:15 a. m.; arrive Muenster 10:30 a. m.; leave 10:45 a. m.; arrive St. Jo 11:25 a. m.; leave 12:01 p. m.; arrive Neocoma 12:40 p. m.; leave 1:00 p. m.; arrive Ringgold 2:40 p. m.; leave 3:10 p. m.; arrive Bowie 3:45 p. m.; leave 4:20 p. m.; arrive Bridgeport 5:30 p. m.; leave 5:50 p. m.; arrive Jackboro 7:00 p. m.; leave 8:20 p. m.; arrive Graham 9:50 p. m.; leave 10:05 p. m.

The Overland Mail Route of the 60's Spanned the Western Wilderness With Fast Stage Coaches and Was Mighty Influence in Pushing Back Frontiers

The discovery of gold on the Pacific coast in the latter '40s fired the United States with excitement and led to the rapid settlement of California with people from every state and territory in the union. The invasion of the new gold fields, in fact, included people from every nation of the civilized globe. While this brought about, eventually, the establishment of the first mail route across the continent for a period of ten years after following the first gold strike there was no time that the mail was received from the east in San Francisco more frequently than twice a month, and then by steamer after it had been transported across the Isthmus of Panama.

The first overland mail west of the Missouri river was established in 1842, and was called the Great Salt Lake mail. The first route was to transport mail from Independence, Mo., on the Missouri river, to Salt Lake City, was awarded in 1850 to Samuel H. Woodson. This was a monthly service, the contract price being $12,500 a year. The route was 1,300 miles long through a country that was a wilderness from Missouri's western border to the Salt Lake valley. Woodson contracted later with Union men to have mail settlements between Salt Lake and Fort Laramie, on the Platte river, where the mail stages met and exchanged. At that time there was no settlement between Salt Lake and Fort Laramie except Jim Bridger's trading post, called Fort Bridger. During the excitement of the first California gold strike another mail route was established between Sacramento and Salt Lake, but it was found impossible to make the journey often than once a month.

Service Slow and Uncertain.
In July, 1854, the government let another contract for carrying mail from the present site of Kansas City to Salt Lake, but so frequent were attacks on stages by Indians that the contractor for some time found it necessary to pack the mail on three mules, escorted by three men who also rode mules. It took more than a month to make the trip from Independence, Mo., to Salt Lake City. When the stage coaches were used passengers were charged $150 to Salt Lake City and $100 to California. The contractor failed in 1854 and after that for a year overland mail service was irregular. In 1851, when the Mexican revolution was at its height, General Albert Sidney Johnston, who later was commander in chief of the Confederate army and was killed at Shiloh, was sent by the government with 5,000 men to quell the disturbances, but was forced to spend the winter at Fort Bridger, and he requested the establishment of a regular mail service to keep in touch with Johnston and his troops. A contract for weekly mail delivery was let at a price of $13,533 a month, and later the government paid $235,000 a year for carrying mail from Independence, Mo., to California. The annual receipts were only $5,100, including passenger fares.

Independence was an old trading post and it became the most important town in Missouri excepting St. Louis in the early days of the overland mail. It was the center of the outfitting point for long overland caravans hauling merchandise to Santa Fe and Chihuahua over the famous Santa Fe trail. The first stage coach left there in May, 1849. The stages, even at that early time, were handsomely equipped and carried eight passengers. The bodies were bright with paint and varnish and were water tight so that they would float in deep ponds across streams. Six mules pulled each coach and there were eight guards, heavily armed.

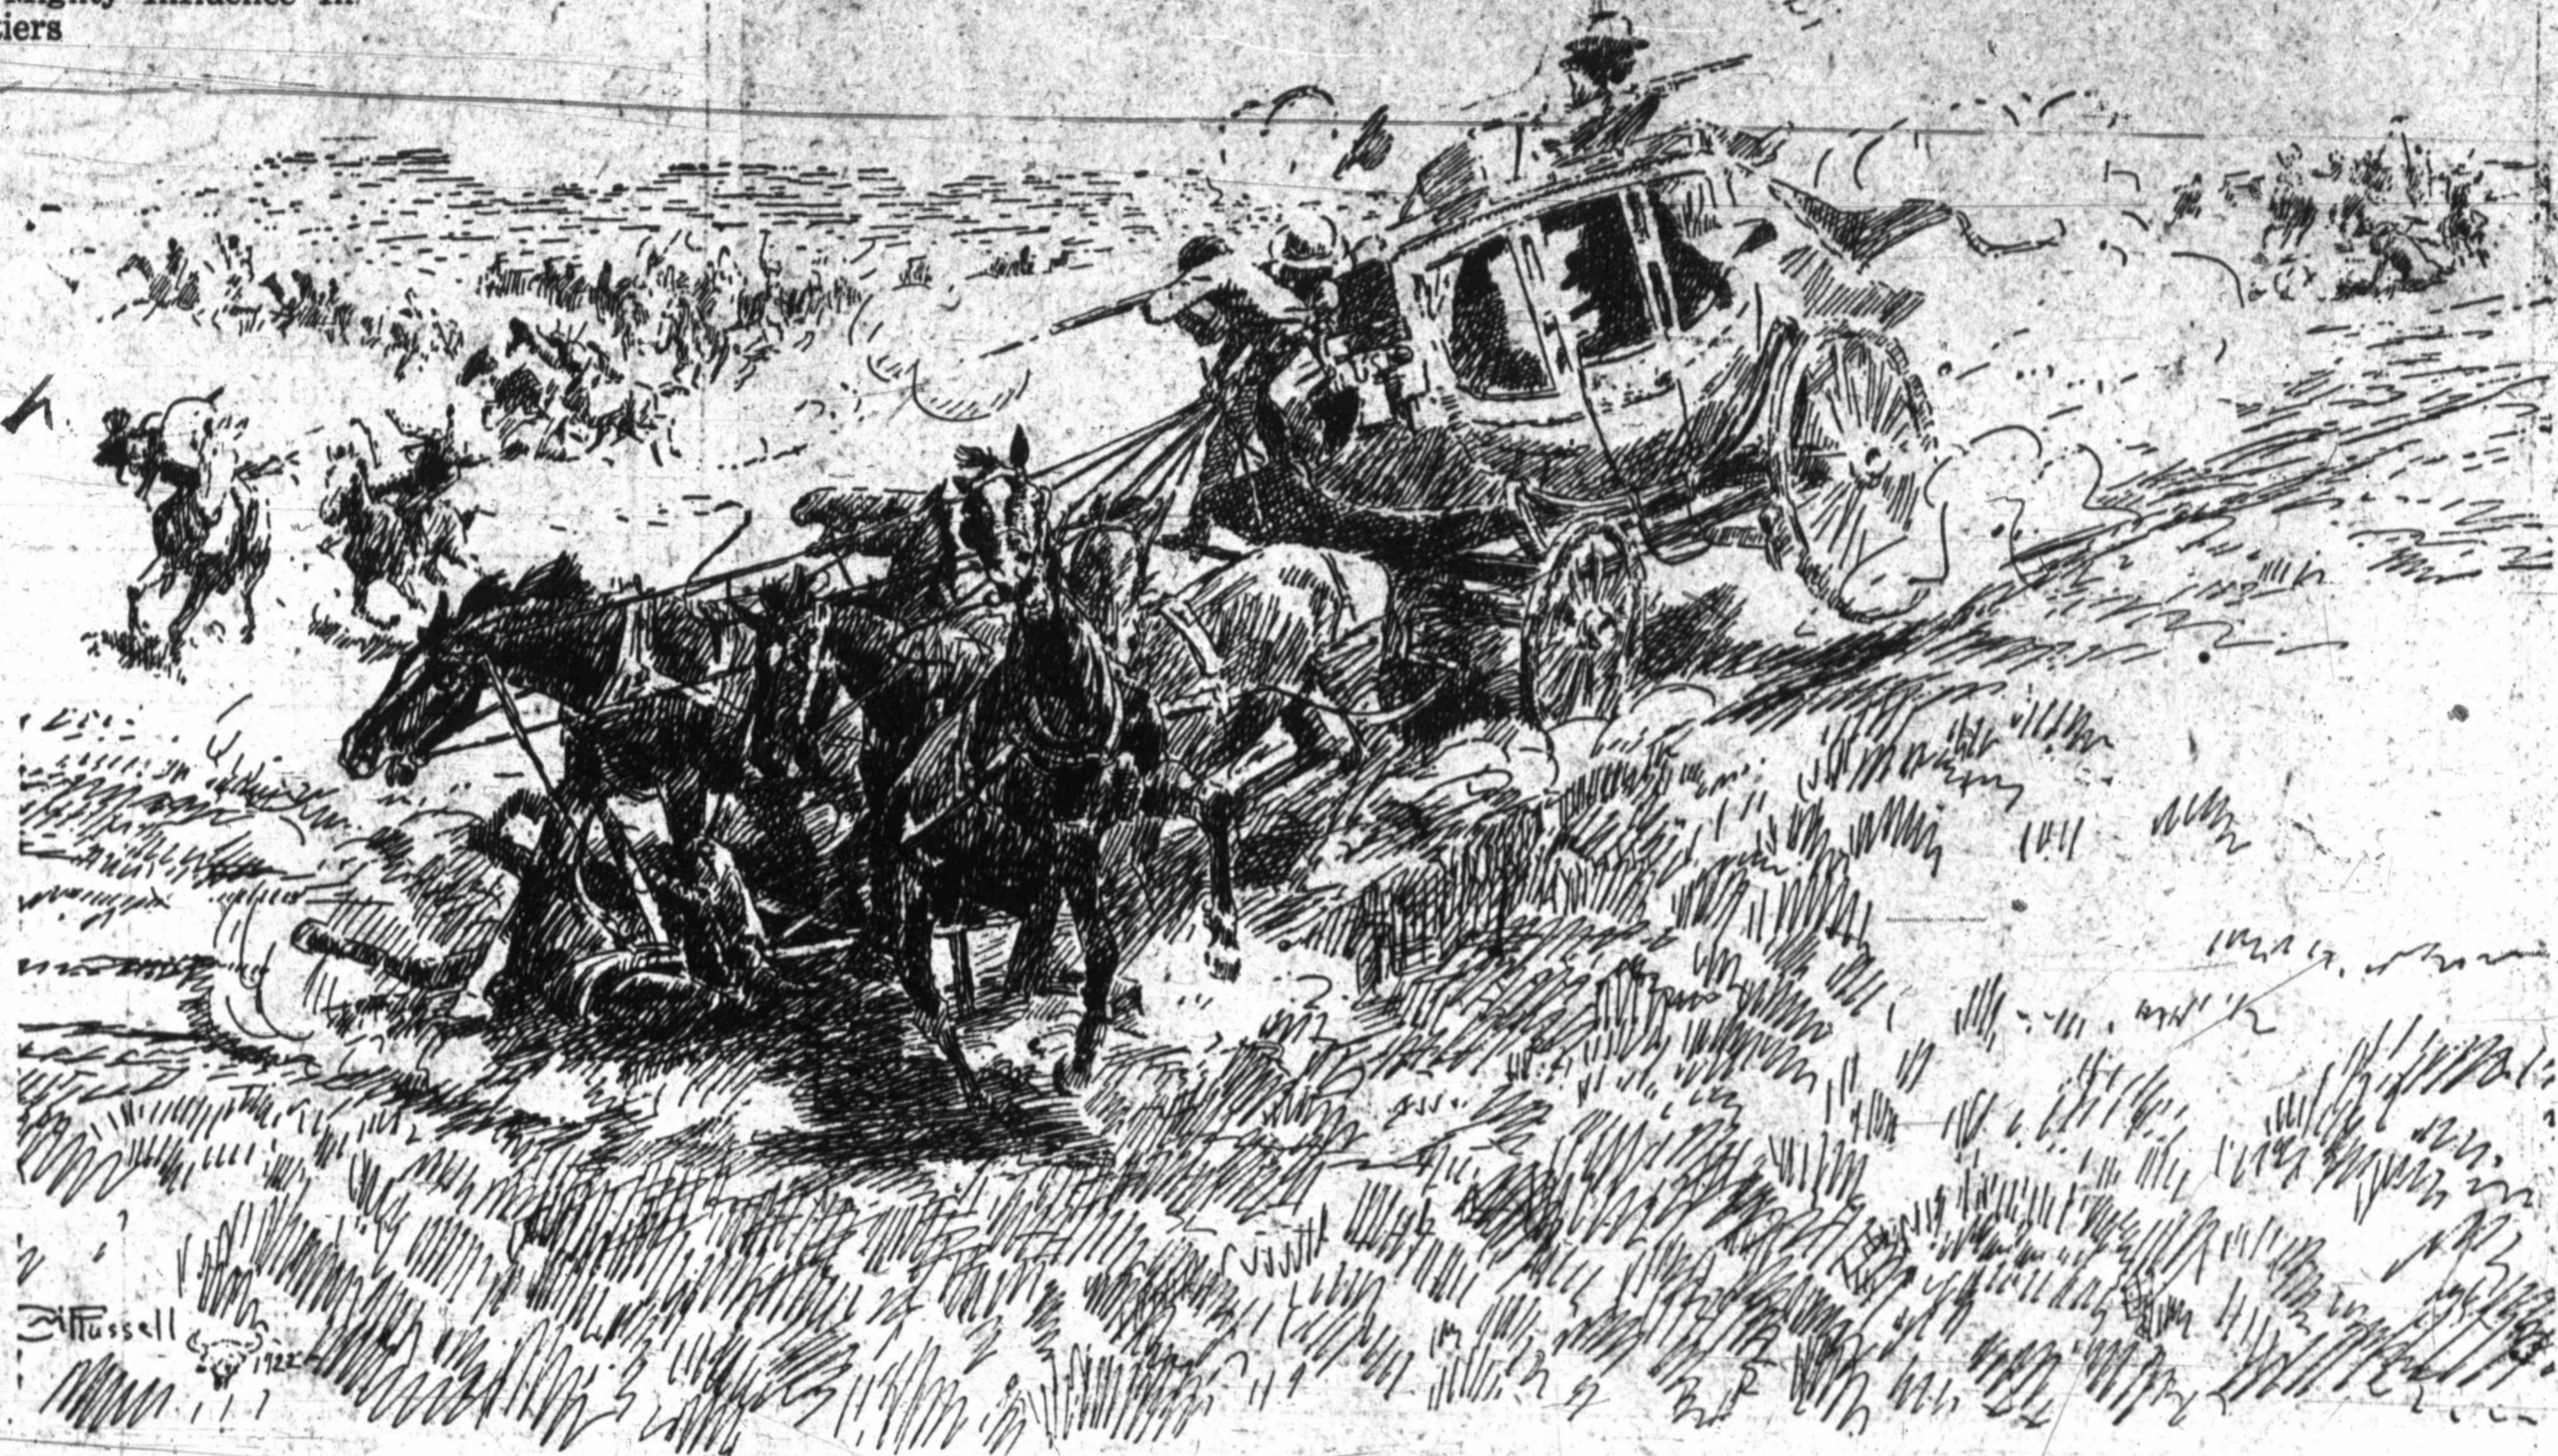

Six Different Mail Routes.
By 1853 there were no less than six different mail routes from the Missouri river to California and the Oregon country, the annual cost to the government being more than $500,000. A curious feature of the early mail routes was one mail contract between Independence and Stockton, Cal., which was in effect for nearly a year and cost the postal department $85,000. The entire mail matter received at Stockton and Rockton, Cal., which was in effect for nearly a year and cost the postal department $85,000. The entire mail matter received at Stockton and Rockton, Cal., which was in effect for nearly a year and cost the postal department $85,000.

After half a dozen years of experimentation the postmaster general issued an order for official transcontinental routes for mail stages as follows: From St. Louis and Memphis, covering at Little Rock, Ark.; between St. Louis, Texas, to the best point of crossing the Rio Grande above El Paso, and thence to Fort Yuma, Cal., and to San Francisco. The length of the route was 2,125 miles and the schedule time from St. Louis to San Francisco was 21 days or about three days ahead of the ocean steamer.

The mail matter transported overland consisted almost entirely of letters, postage being at the rate of 10c. per cent for each half-ounce. The first contract was awarded to John Butterfield, William B. Dinwiddie, William G. Fargo, Hamilton Spencer and half a dozen other prominent citizens of New York. The service was semi-weekly and the compensation paid was about $500,000 a year. The stage line was very well equipped, having more than 100 of the finest Concord stage coaches, 1,000 horses, 500 mules, 150 drivers and 600 other employees. The fare across the continent was $100 in gold. On each of the coaches departing on the first trip from St. Louis and San Francisco was a correspondent of one of the great New York dailies of that time. The coaches going east from San Francisco made the trip through to St. Louis in half an hour less than 24 days. The first west-bound stage made the distance in an hour or two less time. The arrival of the first stage at San Francisco and at St. Louis was hailed with delight and celebrated in a fitting manner.

First Daily Mail Established in 1861.
President Buchanan sent Butterfield a telegram of congratulation declaring the event to be "a glorious triumph for civilization and the union." He added, "Settle the route and the east and west will be bound together by a chain of living Americans, which can never be broken."

The first daily overland mail was established in July, 1861, from St. Joseph, Missouri, and later from Atchison, Kansas, to Placerville, Cal. It crossed the desert on what was known as the "central route," which was 1,525 miles long, passing via Forts Kearney and Bridger and Salt Lake City. Five months later the Great telegraph line was completed across the continent. The Butterfield Overland Despatch, an express and fast freight line, was started across the desert on the Smoky Hill route in 1864, but on account of financial difficulties brought on by Indian depredations, this enterprise was a failure. It followed a consolidation known as the Holladay Overland Mail and Express company.

Holladay Develops Great Stage Line.
When the government decided to contract for carrying mail by small service, the contractors sent out long wagon trains to transport supplies across the plains to the various stations. Atchison and Denver required a train of 25 to 30 wagons to haul provisions, forage and necessary supplies for each division of the line. At each station a enormous quantity of these to feed the army of employees, the hundreds of head of stock and the passengers. It was necessary to have at each station extra teams for use in case of losses from Indian raids and other losses incident to the perilous journey. The stations were built and equipped was considered remarkable.

With the exception of a few weeks in each of three years—1852, 1854 and 1855—there was no interruption of the daily overland mail service from Atchison and California for about five years. It was the greatest stage line on the globe, and the genius who developed it, its greatest asset, was Ben Holladay, who had a long and notable career on the frontier and was possessed of remarkable ability as an organizer and executive. He employed the most experienced stage men in the country. He bought, regardless of price, the finest horses and the swiftest of the type best adapted to staging. He equipped his stage line with the best vehicles obtainable. These stages, built in Colorado, N. H., were designed to carry one or two on the seat with the driver. As many as 15 passengers were carried at times. In 1852 the fare from Atchison to Denver was $75. Later it was increased to $125 and then to $175. Collateral lines were established north and south. The fare from Atchison to Virginia City, Montana, in 1854, was $375. The fare to Salt Lake for carrying mail from Atchison to California and intermediate points was for $1,000,000 a year. Later the compensation was reduced to $500,000.

Among the remarkably fast stage riders made across the plains during overland days was one made by Holladay from California to Atchison. While in San Francisco he received a telegram to go to New York in the quickest time possible. He took word ahead to his division agents to have everything in readiness and made the trip by special coach from Placerville to Atchison a distance of 2,000 miles, in 12 days and two hours, beating the regular daily schedule by five days.

Holladay's Fast Freight Co. was organized in 1854, and was the first to use a somewhat expensive journey, the cost in wear and tear of stock, vehicles and other expenses amounting to $20,000. How Holladay considered it to be a great advertisement for his stage line, being the quickest trip ever made across the plains excepting the route from Kansas to Placerville, Cal. It crossed the desert on what was known as the "central route," which was 1,525 miles long, passing posed of rolling stock, stations, livestock and all other equipment of the line to Wells, Fargo & Co. which firm soon had exclusive control of all express and stage routes along the Mississippi river and the Pacific coast.

Some of the most horrible atrocities committed by Indians on the plains were along the old Overland stage route. In an attack which began August 7, 1864, and lasted for several days, the Arapahoes captured a train of nine wagons, captured and destroyed several stage coaches, burned stations and captured a score of men and women along the South Platte river in Colorado. At the Liberty Ferry station on Little Blue river the butchers were worst. The station keeper and a stage driver were tortured in a horrible manner before being killed, while the wife of the former and their child were captured. The settlers were captured and murdered in a horrible manner before being killed, while the wife of the former and their child were captured. The old stage coach has ended its career—made its last run. Here and there what remains of it stands beneath the rickety shed of some wayside inn, a relic of bygone days—weather-worn, storm-beaten, rusty and abandoned. Its leather springs are cracked and broken, its doors gone, its sides and back smashed in, its roof the refuge of rats and bats, its wheels bent, its axle-trees twisted—a poor forlorn remnant of its former proud and glorious self. The Bloodless Business Woman Modern methods of cooking and the way people of the country live has made such an alarming increase in iron deficiency in the blood of American men and women that I have often marvelled at the large number of people who lack iron in the blood. But in my opinion, you can't be strong, sturdy, manly and womanly by feeding them an ironless diet. The old form of iron was not absorbed through a digestive process to transform it into oxygen. Nuxated Iron is the only iron that is taken up and assimilated by the human system. Notwithstanding all that has been said and written about iron, thousands of people still insist on taking iron in the form of pills or simply, I suppose, because it costs a few cents less. I can't advise you to do that. How many a man and woman have become weak and feeble by taking iron in the form of pills. Sounds the Alarm.

UP IN MASSACHUSETTS the name of Priscilla Alden Woodman has been chiselled on the same tablet of fame with Paul Revere. The revolutionary hero warned a countryside to prepare against the approach of the enemy British. Priscilla Woodman saved a whole town from destruction by flames.

The citizens of West Boylston—the town in question—were deterred from referring to her as the woman Paul Revere by her association, through her name and her blood, with another historic character. For Miss Woodman is a direct descendant of that Priscilla who had courage enough to ask, "Why don't you speak for yourself, John?" when John Alden furnished Longfellow with a theme for his famous "Courtship of Miles Standish."

Today's Priscilla, according to all her fellow citizens, has the same power of decision and strength of purpose. These it was that enabled her to save West Boylston from the forest fire. For in order to warn the town she had to ring the huge bell in the Congregational Church—a task that ordinarily required the arms and shoulders of a strong man.

Forest fires had been sweeping the whole of Worcester County. From Columbia to Andover blazes had sprung up. For many miles a blue haze could be seen hanging over the countryside.

West Boylston, however, thought itself out of the fire's path. It had received news of the flames' progress, but had evidently underrated the rapidity with which they were moving.

The fire, therefore, was licking at the town's edge before the danger was realized. Miss Woodman was the first to see it. In a few minutes more the heat would have enkindled a barn in the town's outskirts and from there the fire would have leaped easily to a long row of houses.

Miss Woodman acted immediately. The bell of the Congregational Church, she knew, had been designated as the town fire alarm, though no recent occasion for its use had arisen. The girl dashed into the church, seized the bell-rope and gave a tug. There was no response. The bell didn't budge.

Miss Woodman then understood that more than her ordinary effort would be needed to make that bell ring out. Accordingly, she leaped and caught the rope a foot or so higher. She gave her body a violent jerk and a loud peal was heard from the belfry.

She repeated this movement and the bell rang again. She now started swinging to and fro like a pendulum. At each swing the rope would cut into her hands. But she kept at it until the sounds of voices and of running feet told her that the town was aroused.

Every able-bodied man in West Boylston, including Priscilla's father, the Rev. G. Edwin Woodman, rushed to the edge of town to fight the fire. Women formed a bucket brigade.

As a result of this prompt action West Boylston suffered least of all the towns in that locality. More than 800 acres of valuable woodland were burned in the vicinity of Andover. The woods of Fall River were also swept by fire. Heavy damage was done in and about Columbia, Conn.; West Concord, Plymouth and other towns.

Miss Woodman saw nothing extraordinary in her act. She said: "Living just across the street from the place where the fire broke out I was one of the first to know of it. I could see that a barn would, without doubt, in a very short time, be ablaze, and that the nearby houses would be in great danger. I of course realized that help must be summoned without delay, so I ran to the church to send out the alarm. Swinging a 1200-pound bell for fifteen minutes was no small job. Still it was there to do, and I did what anybody else would have done in the same situation."

By Mme. Frances
The Famous Creator of Fashions

CLOTHES for the summer vacation are more interesting, perhaps, than clothes for any other time of the year. It is to be a time of play, undisturbed by any cares which would detract from it, and much loving care goes into the planning of the costumes which are to help materially in making the vacation a success.

The place where one is to summer is, of course, a prime consideration in choosing frocks. In the mountains and at some country places, sweaters and skirts are almost a uniform. At other places, simple little frocks of gingham, linen or homespun are most worn. It is almost impossible to have too many of these and there are one or two big considerations in choosing them.

They should always be things that are easily tubbed. This is a prime requisite, and one should choose materials with this in view. It makes for good taste as much as convenience, for the simple summer dress should always be of durable material which will remain attractive under the stress of hard wear and laundering. Dry cleaning is enough of a bother during the winter months, and no one wants to bother much with it during a time set off for play exclusively. It is a great annoyance to decide that a certain morning is ideal for a frock you have in mind, and then find that it has been sent off to the dry cleaner's.

Now, aside from your quota of sweaters, skirts and gingham dresses, there are certain things which the well-equipped vacation wardrobe demands.

First, a smart little traveling frock is indispensable. The smarter the better, and it must be something easily donned and suitable for train or motoring.

Consider the chic black and white checked serge I am showing on this page. Its black satin binding and black-rimmed buttons bring out a smart note of contrast, while the red leather belt adds just enough of color. It is a regular thing affair, the body part twisted cable fashion.

One Afternoon Frock

Then, too, one must have an afternoon frock. The clever woman will plan to take one only, and to have it something that is always ready to slip into and which will fit in with any color scheme.

Many of her daytime dresses and sweaters affect gaiety of color, and for afternoon she relies again on the smartness of black and white. The body part is charmeuse, its blouse made with the shiny side out, and its skirt reversed to show the dull. Over this is used accordion-pleated georgette. It cuffs the short sleeves, drops in bib effect at the blouse front and back and in double panels from either hip.

Such a dress is easily packed, if one is careful of the accordion pleating. If charmeuse becomes mussed it can often be completely restored to its rightful smoothness by being allowed to hang near a window or in the bathroom when a hot tub is being run. In either case the dampness smoothes out the wrinkles. When there is accordion pleating used with the charmeuse, however, the trusty electric iron better serves the purpose.

A small traveling iron is invaluable on any trip. For no matter how carefully one's clothes have been packed, and how well they have been chosen with an eye to summer convenience, there are always things which become wrinkled. And then dainty collars and cuffs, whether they be of organdie or batiste, owe their charm which makes the frock to their immaculate appearance.

Next in consideration comes the gown for evening. There will be dinner dances or evening parties at the club or hotel. Perhaps some of them will be delightfully

FOR TRAIN OR MOTOR—Chic Black and White Checked Serge. A Red Leather Belt Adds Color. Informal, but there are undoubtedly many occasions which call for formal attire. The knack lies in finding something infinitely becoming and adaptable to many occasions. There may be other frocks, as fragile or as fancy as you please, but there should always be one that answers to the former description.

For this, white, which is always charming and very smart just now, is hardly lasting enough. There are a myriad heavenly colors to choose from, it is true. Yes, but brilliant hues become conspicuous when oft repeated, and paler pastel tints soil easily.

Black, yes, black solves the problem to a turn! Every well-dressed woman or girl has learned from her modiste that there is the right black gown for everyone, if she will but find it.

The model I am showing here is extremely adaptable. There is a certain subtle something about chiffon which never fails to appeal, especially when it is black chiffon bordered in twinkling rhinestones.

This frock is simply made, over a black slip, with the wide front and back sections rippling down into panels which touch the floor. A bit of color appears in the blue and silver girdle which encircles the waist beneath the layer of chiffon, while outside it is a cable twist of chiffon twined with brilliants. From this a long silken tassel drops to the floor.

The other little frock is a charming example of the straight-line type which should be included in every summer wardrobe. It is of finely woven linen and combines a heavenly gray-blue shade with embroidered bands of white. The vogue for buttons is very evident here, where tiny pearl ones appear in closely placed rows about the armhole, neck and sleeves.

The hat, too, is of blue straw, faced in chiffon and wreathed in wild flowers with slender green leaves. Summer hats are so charming one is tempted to make a hobby of them and to annex any number. If the clever woman wishes to economize on this point, however, she can do so with ease. A dark hat for street and traveling, a simple little sports model which can be worn with sweater costumes and gingham dresses, and a flower wreathed affair to wear in the afternoon and with linen frocks of the type above. The flower-trimmed hat can be in some color scheme which adapts itself to a number of dresses, say natural-colored leghorn straw with field flowers of all colors.

Concerning Hats and Shoes

The matching idea in hats, by the way, is not as new as the use of contrast. I noticed this was especially evident at the Belmont races, where the smartest women made the enclosure conspicuous by the panoramic field of color which their contrasting hats afforded.

Earrings to match hats remain a whim of fashion, and the gay chapeaux of summer afford ample indulgence of this whim. Blue eyes, blue trimmed hat and dangling blue earrings afford a pleasant minute of diversion, while scarcely less can be said of green. And the longer earrings grow, the more interesting they become, for there is more chance for the exquisite filigree and delicately carved effects to show.

One must have sports shoes for the summer vacation, of course, and there are interesting modes from which to choose. Black and white remains the most favored combination, and the saddle strap oxford of last season is with us again. There are other ways of using black on white, but the saddle strap remains the most effective and, consequently, the most

How a Girl and a Plane Now Foil the Rattler

Miss Gladys Ditmars Has Played with Snakes Since She Was a Baby. Here She Has Used a Love King Snake as a Bandeau.

San Diego Zoological Society Establishes Regular Sky

Ambulance Service to Rush to Snake-Bite Victims Serum Obtained from Rattlesnakes Captured by a Pretty New York Girl.

A Close-up of Gladys Ditmars Demonstrating How to Hold a Rattler. So Now You'll Know the Next Time

Thirty Rattlesnakes and Six Copperheads Were Captured by Mrs. Ditmars and Her Two Daughters on a Sunday Morning Pleasure Trip into the Ramapo Mountains.

By DR. W. H. BALLOU

Who Writes Popularly on Scientific Subjects

A NEW YORK girl, a Brazilian scientist and a California aviator have collaborated in saving Southwestern ranchers from the menace of death by rattlesnake bites. Under the direction of the San Diego (Cal.) Zoological Society arrangements have been made to rush anti-venom serum to the outlands in case of rattlesnake bites. The occurrence of several deaths in the back country because of snake bites led to the adoption of these measures.

The serum which will be used comes, for the most part, from the Instituto Serum-Therapico at San Paulo, Brazil, presided over by Dr. Vital Brazil. And this institution gets a great many of its snakes, from which is drawn the venom used in the production of serum, from Dr. Raymond Ditmars, curator of reptiles at the Bronx Zoo, New York, whose daughter, Gladys, is America's foremost woman snake catcher.

Gladys is not the only member of the family who is expert at stalking the wary rattler or the elusive garter snake. When the Ditmars family goes out on a snake hunt, mother, father and both daughters carry forked sticks and sacks. But Gladys thus far holds the family record for numbers captured.

When she is not laying fair hands to some strictly feminine enterprise she is usually out after snakes in the wilds of Dutchess country, the Ramapo Mountains or the Berkshire Hills.

It is not unusual, in fact, at break of day Sunday make a quick change into sport costume and lead her family on an expedition into the hills in search of such snakes as may be found.

A Snake Hunter's Paradise

A particularly favorable section for the hunting of snakes is on a farm in Dutchess country, several hours' ride from the Ditmars home at Scarsdale, N. Y. This section is very rocky and is filled with crevices and underground runways especially favorable to the hibernation of snakes. In the bowls of the rocks are the entrances of the snakes' homes. But when the weather gets warm they become exits. Rattlesnakes, copperheads, garter snakes, black snakes, mountain pilots and many others swarm out into the sunlight.

The black snakes take to the brush heaps and form themselves in balls and twists of a dozen or more. The garters crawl about swiftly, looking for early mushrooms. The adders fancy swamps and streams. The mountain pilots, big, large and round, and six to eight feet long, go crashing through the underbrush for frogs, small mammals, birds, snails and other prey.

The rattler, however, is the first of all the snakes to crawl into his winter home at the approach of autumn, and is the last to emerge in the spring. Each of this species comes forth slowly and crawls cautiously to the top of a rock where he lies and suns himself and recovers his vitality. When he feels he is completely restored to strength he starts out to roam.

The Ditmars family knows the habits of snakes perfectly. They know when the rattlers will be sunning themselves and they are there to greet them.

On a recent Sunday morning hunt in which the Ditmars family and several Zoo attendants participated, 30 rattlers and half a dozen copperheads were captured. On this occasion Gladys spied a rattler from the machine, made a flying leap to the ground and pinned the rattler down with her stick. As the forks closed over the snake, she reached down swiftly, grasped the astonished reptile by the neck and thrust him squirming into a bag. Closing the neck of the bag, she moved over to another rock and repeated the operation.

Miss Ditmars declares she does not always have to use the fork. In fact, she only uses it with the more active reptiles. Usually she stuns her quarry with a blow on the neck, then picks him up.

On this occasion, the Ditmars family, after getting whatever snakes were sunning on the rocks, climbed up the precipitous mountain goats, in the effort to capture such as were dried and were off on the summer outing. Captures here were less frequent.

Some of the snakes bagged that day were placed in the reptile house at the Bronx Zoo. The others were dispatched to Brazil.

Theodore Roosevelt in "Through the Brazilian Wilderness" (Scribner's), told of a visit to the Brazil Institute where the serum is now manufactured. Describing how the poison is extracted from a snake Roosevelt wrote:

"From the boxes an impressive assistant took the snakes and handled them fearlessly and with caution. The poisonous ones were taken out with a long-handled steel hook, inserting the hook under the snake and lifting him. . . . Dr. Brazil stepped forward. . . . The attendant dropped his hook on the neck of each in succession, seizing by the neck behind the head and holding the reptile up for the doctor. . . . Dr. Brazil inserted a shallow saucer into each mouth behind the fangs into which the poison oozed. From the big lachesis came a large quantity of yellow venom, which speedily crystallized into minute crystals. The rattler yielded a much less quantity of white venom, but which is far more active of the two."

Roosevelt also observes that King Cobra, most poisonous of reptiles, will not feed on another poisonous snake even though it may come from another part of the world.

According to Dr. Ditmars the crotalus serum manufactured at the Instituto-Therapico, which is used for snake bites, comes from the throats of horses that have been immunized under the direction of Dr. Brazil, discoverer of the method.

A small drop of rattler poison is first injected into the horse. The dose is gradually increased until the horse acquires absolute immunity. After this the horse's blood serum will neutralize snake poison when mixed with it. The resulting antitoxin is what comes back to the United States and is one of the serums that will be rushed to a snake bite victim by the airplane service of the San Diego Zoological Society. The society also has on hand a supply of anti-venomous serum known as "antivenens."

According to the published plans of the society, in case of snake bite the alarm should be immediately sent in. The airplane will be started out. A special parachute will be provided and the anti-toxin, together with the necessary instrument for injecting it, will be dropped into the town or the locality from which the call for help came. This service is one of the many humanitarian activities of the San Diego Zoological Society and will be free to those who avail themselves of it. The society urges, however, that notification be made as soon after the wound as possible.

In case it is necessary to transport the serum by airplane, a charge for transportation will be placed against the town or place where it is dropped—or in case it is out in the wilds—against the person.

Instructions will be sent with the emergency kit containing the serum as follows:

Injecting Snake Serum

"As soon as the box arrives choose the place on the body to be injected with the serum. This may be done under the abdominal wall, on the buttocks, the arms or legs. Paint the part selected with iodine. Then assemble the hypodermic syringe as follows: Remove the wire running through the needle; insert the needle on the end of the hypodermic barrel; put in the piston and press it down to the end. The syringe is then assembled. File off the neck of the ampule which contains the serum. Introduce the serum into this opening. Draw liquid up into the syringe. After this is done expel the air that might happen to be drawn into the syringe by holding the needle upwards and pressing on the piston. After the air is expelled it is ready to be injected.

"Put the tourniquet above the wound, if it happens to be on one of the limbs, take the knife out of the sterile tube in which it is held. Cut open the wound where the snake bit and wash it out with a solution made by pouring the distilled water found in one of the bottles into the bottle with the powder.

Copeia quotes Barbour and German advancing a new theory on the way a rattler gets its rattles. They declare that the rattles developed through a constriction in primitive times that kept part of the skin on when the snake cast its skin. A nervous snake vibrates its tail. The rattler discovered that by vibrating its tail it could warn bigger mammals not to step on it. Thus it needed the rattles and with the aid of the constriction, repeated at each casting, and the natural result of selection, the rattle was evolved, not to warn, but to protect, these writers conclude.
