DEPOSED PRESIDENT OF SOUTHERN CHINA GOING TO SHANGHAI

By Associated Press. HONGKONG, Aug. 10.—Sun Yat Sen, deposed president of the southern republic at Canton, arrived here this morning from Canton harbor aboard the British gunboat Moorhen. In the afternoon he boarded the steamship Empress for Shanghai.

The Hongkong dispatch saying Sun Yat Sen had arrived there gave no other details, but apparently this indicates an abandonment, temporarily, at least, of the southern China leader's attempt to regain his position as head of the Canton government.

Sun Yat Sen had been in the harbor at Canton aboard his cruiser Wingtung since July 11, despite the fact that his enemy, General Chen Ching Ming, whose army resulted in the overthrow of Sun's regime, had possession of the city. The Wingtung practically was bottled up in the harbor, but supplies reached it in some mysterious way and Sun remained there.

A statement this week from Chen Ching Ming's headquarters indicated that he intended to force the issue with Sun, either by blockading his vessel or capturing him. On Monday a Hongkong dispatch to the London Daily Telegraph reported that Sun Yat Sen was suffering from mental trouble which had required the attendance of two foreign brain specialists.

BATTERY COMING HOME SOME TIME SATURDAY

Will be Issued Field Pieces and Horses in Near Future—Men Working Hard.

Wichita Falls artillerymen in camp at Fort Sill are becoming expert gunners with the French "79" field piece, according to First Lieutenant W. J. Plaska, who returned Wednesday night from a brief visit to Battery B.

They are making a fine showing. Mr. Plaska said. "It is the only battery up there that has enlisted men working out problems alongside its officers. Some of the enlisted men are giving the targets a fit, too. They fired about 800 rounds Wednesday."

The men are getting plenty of exercise and instruction, but not much recreation, as they are on the range from early morning until sundown. The battery will be home some time Saturday and shortly after will be issued its complement of guns and horses. The guns will be the "soisnant-quins" or French 75, which was such an effective piece of equipment for the allies during the war.

MARJORIE RAMBEAU TELLS HOW TO IMPROVE FACIAL LINES.

This is the third of a series of articles on beauty, written for the Times by six of the most prominent beauticians in this city. Marjorie Rambeau, hailed as the successor of Lillian Russell, tells you about beauty of contour.

By MARJORIE RAMBEAU. Address in "The Gold Fish." Famed for Beauty of Facial Contour.

Plastic surgery is becoming so common that in time every woman may become the architect of her own face and have any sort of a profile she can pay for.

But the average woman would never be obliged to have recourse to the knife if she would remember the contour of her face is a reflection of her thoughts and character. A psychologist once told me it is possible entirely to change the expression and shape of one's mouth in two weeks by changing the current of the thoughts.

If you have overdeveloped your critical faculty and are continually finding fault with the beauty of your lips.

Small lines indicate you have allowed small worries to absorb your attention, sagging downward lines show you haven't looked on the happy side of things.

A double chin reveals you have not held your head proudly erect, but have allowed it to slump.

The greatest beautifier known is relaxation. Ten minutes of relaxation a day will do more to prevent wrinkles than any other measure.

The benefits of massage are differently rated by different schools of beauty. Undoubtedly heavy facial massage is not desirable, but the simple massage every woman gives herself nightly after cleansing her face does much to keep the muscles firm and the face unlined.

Always use a bare cream and use the first three fingers of each hand. Rub upward and outward, using a firm, gentle touch and rotary motion. Massage the cheeks, temples, throat and forehead, particularly the region between the eyes where wrinkles are prone to assemble.

Correct breathing exercises, swimming and exercises which give play to the muscles of the neck will do much to develop it symmetrically.

Tomorrow, Peggy Kurton of "Good Morning, Dearie," will tell how she gained her wonderful complexion.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS DR. SNUFFLES FINISHES LABORS

At last everybody in Whispering Fork was cured. All the people of Old Orchard, Bright Meadow and Ripple Creek. Dr. Snuffles packed his bag and went back to Fairyland after bidding the Twins goodbye. Mr. Tinsling, the fairy landlord, tucked a "to-let" sign upon Dr. Snuffles' house near the blueberry patch, and Nancy and Nick started to go home.

On their way they passed their old play ground under the chestnut tree in the meadow where they had first found the magic shoes one day a long, long time ago.

They were talking them off and looking every which way for their own little brown leather shoes suddenly they should appear their old friend, the Magical Room.

"Oh, hurry up, quick," he cried. "The Fairy Queen needs you at once."

At last everybody in Whispering Fork was cured. All the people of Old Orchard, Bright Meadow and Ripple Creek.

Dr. Snuffles packed his bag and went back to Fairyland after bidding the Twins goodbye.

Mr. Tinsling, the fairy landlord, tucked a "to-let" sign upon Dr. Snuffles' house near the blueberry patch, and Nancy and Nick started to go home.

On their way they passed their old play ground under the chestnut tree in the meadow where they had first found the magic shoes one day a long, long time ago.

They were talking them off and looking every which way for their own little brown leather shoes suddenly they should appear their old friend, the Magical Room.

"Oh, hurry up, quick," he cried. "The Fairy Queen needs you at once."

Mother-To-Be, Read This—

Here is a wonderful message to all expectant mothers. From this moment on, cast from your mind all dread and fear, and feel every day as the months roll by that great freedom from much of the suffering which thousands of expectant mothers undergo, unecessarily, and when the Little One arrives you can have that moment more free from suffering than you have perhaps imagined. An eminent physician, expert in this science, has shown the way. It was he who first produced the great remedy, "Mother's Friend." Mrs. C. J. Stricker, Scranton, Pa., says:

"With my first two children I had a doctor and a nurse and then they told me that my baby was not well. With my last two children I used Mother's Friend and had only a sore throat. It was the same with my third because I wasn't very sick—only about five or fifteen minutes."

"Mother's Friend" is applied externally to the abdomen, back and chest. It aids the muscles and the system to expand easily. It penetrates quickly. It contains no narcotics or harmful drugs. It is safe. There is no substitute. Avoid unnecessary medicines. "Mother's Friend" is sold by all druggists.

Druggists: J. B. Gillingham, Wichita Falls, Tex.; G. H. Gillingham, Wichita Falls, Tex.; J. B. Gillingham, Wichita Falls, Tex.; G. H. Gillingham, Wichita Falls, Tex.

44 BOARDS AND COMMISSIONS IN STATE GOVERNMENT

AUSTIN, Aug. 16.—There are 44 boards and commissions in the state government of Texas, the members of which must be appointed by the governor, excepting one. Governor Neff was inaugurated on January 12, 1931, and since he has appointed all of the members of all these boards and commissions or one or two members of some of them. These bodies include the directing bodies of the various state institutions, the various boards of examiners and numerous other boards and commissions.

The total membership of the entire 44 is 253. This includes pilot commissioners of the various ports of Texas.

The boards and commissions follow:

Commission of appeals, two sections; board of regents, University of Texas; board of directors, Texas A. & M. college; board of regents, state normal; board of regents, College of Industrial Arts; board of regents, Texas Teachers' college; state board of control; state board of prison commissioners; state penitentiary supervisory board; state board of thirty-seven legislators following penitentiary investigation; text book commission; livestock sanitarian commission; industrial accident board; state board of pharmacy; state board of embalming; state board of health; state board of medical examiners; state board of veterinary surgeons; state board of dental examiners; state board of nurses examiners; state board of public accountancy; state highway commission; state mining board; board of water engineers; governing board, agricultural experiment station; pilot commission for Galveston; pilot commissioners for Houston, Fort Aransas, Sabine river and tributaries; pilots for Galveston, Sabine river and tributaries, Houston and Galveston bay; Fort Aransas, mouth of San Antonio and harbor; public weighers for Galveston, Houston, Magnolia Park; public weighers for various districts and cities of Texas; industrial commission; university land acquisition board, created by the legislature to secure land for the university; child and animal protection; compensation claim board; state board of optometry.

Besides these regular boards, bureaus and commissions, Governor Neff has called on to appoint members of the investigating committee on Texas institutions of higher learning and the advisory board of the Agricultural Experiment Station at Kerrville. Both of them were created by the last legislature.

Excepting a two, Governor Neff has appointed the members of all of these bodies. Where the appointments of members extended beyond his term of office, a great majority of the members were reappointed by Governor Neff. The members appointed by the state board of health and the members of the industrial commission were appointed by Governor Neff.

Governor Neff's first appointment was made on the day of his inauguration. It was that of Captain W. A. Harrison, chairman of the state prison commission. The governor had already decided on this appointment and when inaugurated he announced it.

Added to this multiplicity of appointments to be made are the hundreds of minor appointments which the governor is called upon to make.

AMERICAN BAR ASSOCIATION WOULD PREVENT MANUFACTURE OF PISTOLS AND CARTRIDGES

By Associated Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 16.—Declaring that the pistol "serves no useful purpose in the community today," the committee on law enforcement included in its recommendations submitted to the American Bar Association tonight one for the prohibition of the manufacture, sale of pistols, and of cartridges or ammunition designed to be used in them. "We find that more than ninety per cent of the crimes in this country are committed by the use of pistols," continued the report of the committee, of which Judge William H. Sawyer is chairman. "We find that the laws prohibiting the carrying of firearms or deadly weapons are ineffectively enforced, and that they work to the benefit of the criminal rather than the law-abiding citizen."

"Third, we find the causes for delay in criminal cases so varied and the conditions so differing that we hesitate to make specific recommendations. It is our opinion that many other causes for delay all accrue to the benefit of the law breaker."

"We recommend that every state be given every right to appeal now enjoyed by a defendant—except from a verdict of not guilty, and we recommend that the prosecutor in a criminal trial shall have the right to call the attention of the jury to the fact that the defendant has failed himself to contradict or deny testimony offered by the prosecution."

"We recommend that the state be given the right to amend the indictment upon proper terms, in matters of form."

"We recommend that there should be but one appeal from a judgment of conviction in the trial court."

"We recommend that there be enacted legislation to penalize the state during which judges or courts may hold under advisement dilatory motions made in criminal trials; that managers, attorneys, witnesses, without action, such a motion shall be deemed to be denied."

"Fourth, we find that in some states the jury is in fact a judge both of the law and the facts. We believe that such a condition is absolutely subversive of a government of law and we recommend the repeal of such statutes."

"Fifth, we find in various jurisdictions glaring abuses in the matter of the right to a jury trial. We propose and in the sufficiency of security offered."

Other members of the committee were Judge Marcus Kavanaugh, Chicago; former Governor Charles B. Whitman, New York; Wade H. Ellis, Washington, D. C.; and Charles W. Feham of Louisville, Ky.

President S. C. Spurgeon said: "The criminal situation in the United States, so far as crimes of violence are concerned, is worse than that of any other civilized country," the report said. "Here there is less respect for law. From all available sources of information, we estimate that there were more than 8,500 unlawful homicides last year in this country; that in 1929 there occurred not less than 7,000 such homicides, and that in no year during the last ten years did the number fall below 4,500. In other words, during the last ten years no less than 30,000 additional citizens were killed by pistols, by the pistol or the knife, or by some other unlawful and deadly instrument."

"Deliberate murder, burglary and robbery will seldom be attempted unless the criminal is armed. In European countries the criminal, as a rule, are not armed."

"On the other hand, in crimes which indicate the dishonesty of the people, such as larceny, extortion, counterfeiting, forgery, fraud and other crimes of swindling, a comparison of conditions demonstrates that the morals of this country are better than in any other of the large countries of the world."

"It is our united opinion that the means provided in the United States for coping with crimes and criminals are today neither adequate nor efficient, for example:

"First, we find that the parole and probation laws, as administered, very generally fail to accomplish the purposes for which the laws were designed and weaken the administration of criminal justice. We recommend that first offenders only should be eligible for probation. We recommend that the indeterminate sentence laws should be modified so as to apply to first offenders only, and, we believe, too, that neither probation nor parole should be permitted for those convicted of homicide, burglary, rape or highway robbery."

"Second, we find that more than 90 per cent of the murders in this country are committed by the use of pistols."

BILL HART'S ROMANCE SHORT LIVED; STAR AND WIFE SEPARATED

LOS ANGELES, CAL., Aug. 16.—William H. (Bill) Hart, motion picture star, had only one answer today when asked for comment on his signed statement that he and his wife, who was Winifred Westover, the screen actress he married here December 7, 1931, had separated three months ago.

His statement included declarations that a property settlement had been made for him and family maintenance arranged for their unborn child, expected next month. He also made public a night letter he sent to Will H. Hays, president of the motion picture producers' and distributors' association of America, declaring he was not responsible for statements published here that Hays had attempted to effect a reconciliation between the Harts.

COUNTY ATTORNEY AND SHERIFF WILL TAKE ALLEN AWAY

The county attorney and sheriff from Frederick, Okla., are on their way to this city to take back with them Pat Allen, the man who has been held in custody here since his daughter made a statement of alleged mistreatment.

According to word received here late Thursday afternoon, a preliminary hearing is to be held in this city and plans were made to take the man, his wife and daughter and the team and wagon back to Oklahoma.

Allen was placed in jail last Sunday after the daughter, who is 15 years of age, made the worst statement that she had submitted to her father's assaults for the past six years.

MOTHER ASKS HELP TO FIND DAUGHTER WHO MAY BE WEDDED

The mother of a fourteen year old girl appealed to county authorities Thursday to assist her in finding her daughter "who may be married." When asked whether the girl had really married the woman said, "Some people say she has and some say she hasn't."

"The woman told officers that a week ago she blocked an attempt on the part of the girl to run away and get married to a boy who is 17 years of age. She said the boy lives 'first here, then there and most anywhere.'"

The woman is bent on prosecution as soon as the young couple is traced. She said she wanted to send the young man to the penitentiary and her daughter to the reform school for at least four years.

A search of records showed that no marriage license had been issued to the couple in this county.

SYSTEM OF TRUNK HIGHWAYS PLANNED THROUGHOUT U. S.

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 16.—A system of national trunk highways throughout the United States which will include three of the largest cities of each state, is planned by the Associated Highway Builders of America.

Discussion of these plans will be one of the important issues before the fourth annual convention of the organization, to be held at Chicago, Oct. 25 and 26, according to H. O. Cooley of Minneapolis, member of the executive committee. Arrangements for the convention.

Development of automobile travel has been so rapid that the highway organization believes that a highway program for the whole country is feasible, much on the order of the many state enterprises of the past few years. It is effecting state trunk road programs, Mr. Cooley said.

Prepared maps, outlining and explaining the plan, have been sent to all the delegates invited to the annual meeting and a lively discussion is anticipated, Mr. Cooley said. Members of the Association's highways will be urged to prevail upon congress to secure its adoption of the proposed nation-wide road system.

A national program for the protection of travelers who are subjected to many inconveniences of over zealous small town authorities who arrest motorists for petty offenses, also will share a good portion of this two-day convention, Mr. Cooley said.

Standardization of free camp sites on a nation-wide scale also will receive the attention of the delegates, as will the matter of providing information to the public for long distance automobile travel tours.

In addition to the organization's delegates, representatives from states, cities, towns, commercial clubs, civic organizations and automobile clubs will attend the convention, Mr. Cooley said.

Mr. Cooley said that Hays' error had been asked to send delegates, while cities, towns and members of commerce, commercial clubs, civic organizations and automobile clubs have been requested to have one representative.

Cyrus A. Evans, in president of the Associated Highway Builders; C. F. Adams, Chillicothe, Mo., vice-president; and Frank Davis, Kansas City, secretary.

T. E. Bassett, aged 64, died at a local hospital at 5 p. m. Wednesday. Death came after a long illness. Mr. Bassett lived in Amarillo, and was removed to the local sanitarium a short time ago. The body was forwarded to Amarillo for burial by Merkle and Luna, undertakers.

'WET' AND 'DRY' QUESTION PLAYS LEADING PART IN THE POLITICAL DRAMA IN MICHIGAN THIS YEAR

By Associated Press.
DETROIT, Aug. 16.—The wet and dry question is expected to play a leading part in the political drama that will be enacted in Michigan this year.

Decision of the Michigan division of the National Association Opposed to Prohibition not to submit to the voters next fall a proposed amendment permitting the sale of beer and light wines required some time before the event of the Volstead act's modification, leaves this organization free to press its fight in the various political, congressional and legislative campaigns, it was indicated.

In announcing submission of a light wine and beer amendment would be postponed, at least until the state election in the spring of 1935, Robert Wardell, of Detroit, secretary of the anti-prohibition clubs, and other members of the organization, declared his group would concern itself in every division of the campaign in Michigan this year, both in the primaries and general election.

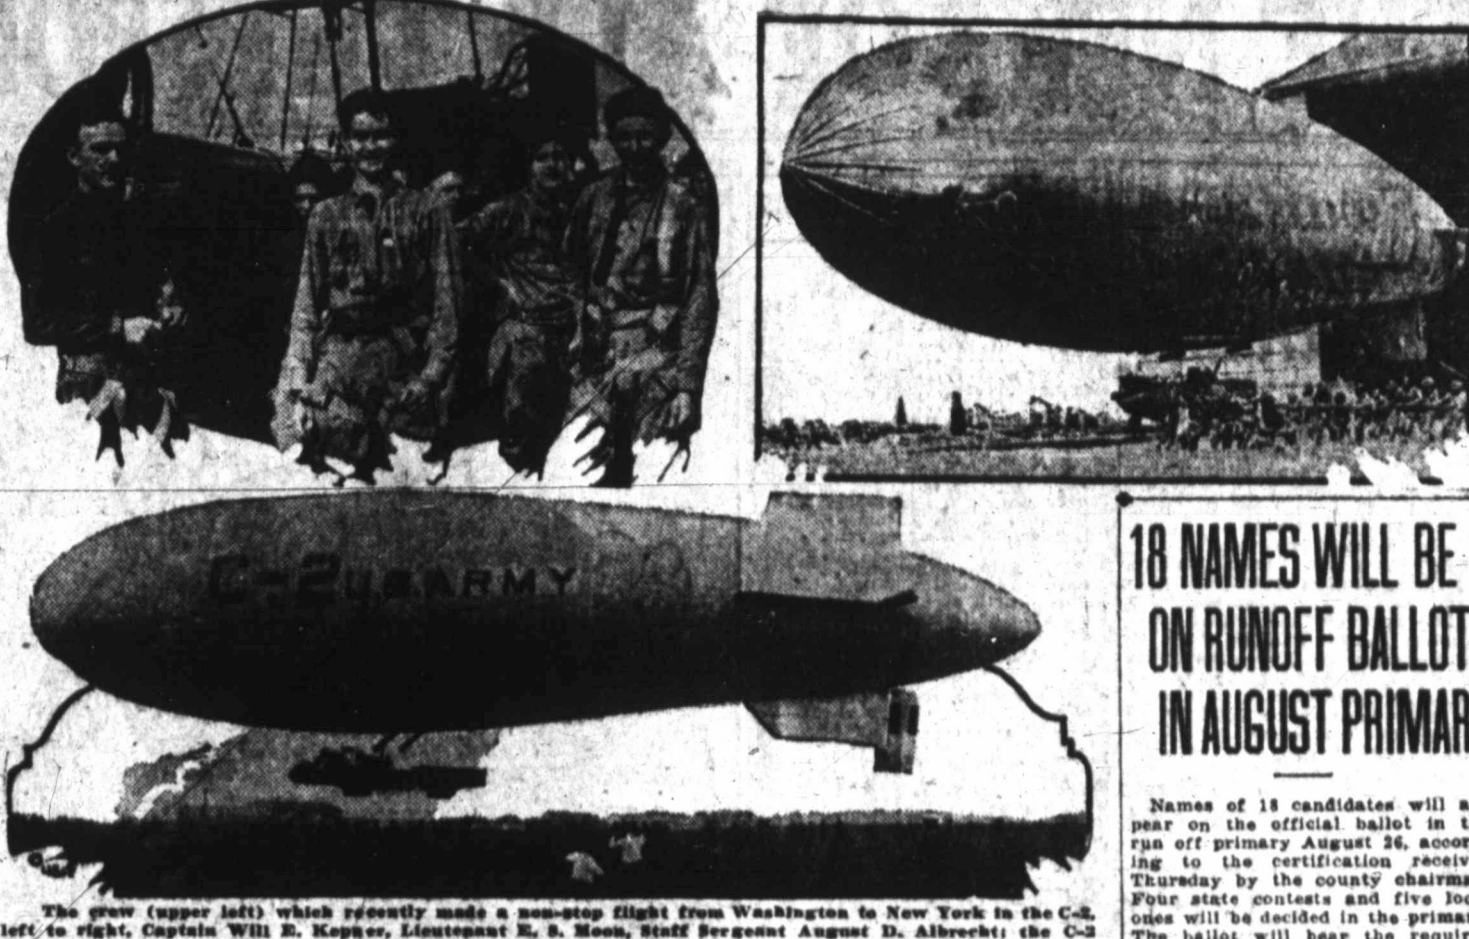

This announcement closely followed one by the state division of the Anti-Saloon League, that said the drys were busy checking the record of every candidate for public office and would make a flat-footed declaration concerning the league's stance on each candidate some time before the days set for balloting.

The league already has undertaken its investigation of each candidate, it is announced, and declarations are expected within a short time.

The wet forces announced their decision to withhold submission of their amendment until the state election because at the time there was a possibility that the so-called anti-prohibition school amendment might be submitted. This school amendment latter proposed amendment would require an affirmative vote for passage, while the wet amendment would require the lesser sort of an expression. "The fear was expressed by the wets, Mr. Wardell said, that those opposed to the school amendment might vote 'no' on all questions to make sure they had registered opposition to the one."

Whether any of the candidates for public office will seek nomination and election on a wet platform remains to be seen. It was rumored in state political circles for a time

WILL CROSS U. S. IN DIRIGIBLE

IN C-2 TEST

Captain Will E. Kepner commands the second trial flight of the dirigible C-2 from Washington, D. C., to New York. The flight was one of those being made preparatory to a transcontinental flight in September.

The weather bureau will cooperate in supplying the balloonsist detailed advance notice of weather conditions ahead, and emergency stocks of supplies and parts will be held at strategic points along the route.

A number of test flights are being made preliminary to the flight in September. Recently a flight was made from New York and back, with a crew composed of Captain Will E. Kepner, Lieutenant E. B. Moore, and Staff Sergeant August D. Albrecht. This flight was attended with many hazards, due to thick fog which hung over New York when the dirigible was being inflated, and to the fact that after being aloft for two hours, the crew regained their bearings, and made the return trip without mishap.

The C-2 has been one of the most dependable lighter-than-air ships the government has ever owned. Originally built for the navy by the Goodyear Tire & Rubber company, it was later transferred to the army for use as a training ship and for aerial bombing service.

WICHITA DISTRICT PRODUCTION SHOWS LOSS 4000 BARRELS

This production report from the north and central Texas districts shows an average of 183,176 barrels daily, a loss of 4,000 barrels since last week's figures. Burkburnett showed a loss of 3,300 barrels while the Electric runs gained 2,000 barrels daily due to the flush production from last week's completions. The Burkburnett loss was attributed to the thorough cleaning up of stocks in storage the week previous and the fact that several companies failed to make runs during the week.

Stephens county and the Ranger-Bastard sections showed slight gains the latter due to some good wells brought in from the Lake and Martin pools. All other pools reported slight decreases in their runs. Following is the production from the various pools:

Burkburnett	12,250
Electric	22,200
Iowa Park-K. M. A.	3,400
Avery county	2,400
Petrolia	3,175
Young county	11,750

CHAPLAIN'S SERMON OVER BODY OF STRIKER MAY BRING PEACE

JOINT, ILL., Aug. 16.—Immediate peaceful settlement of the railway strike troubles here seemed likely today as a result of common conciliation preached yesterday over the grave of Frank Lavina, a striker, who was killed in the rioting Monday.

The preacher was Captain "Jack" O'Donnell, chaplain on duty with the state troops summoned here following the rioting in which a railroad special agent was killed and the sheriff wounded.

Chaplain O'Donnell, unaccompanied, left the troop campment and stopped at the grave of Lavina yesterday he offered his little sermon, notwithstanding the bitterness of the railroad employees against the troops which reached its height yesterday in more than 1,000 men, trainmen and yardmen of the High, Joliet and Eastern railway refusing to work under guard.

WALKOUT BY R. R. BROTHERHOODS

Friday would be consulted and indicated that it might take several days to get the communication into shape. Discussions yesterday among the shop craft executives only served to strengthen the impression that the president's new plan would be rejected. Heads of the railroad management are to meet in New York Friday to frame their answer.

PILLETTE IS SENSATION OF THE AMERICAN LEAGUE

HERMAN PILLETTE

By BILLY EVANS
The American league has uncovered some mighty fine young pitchers...

He stands more than six feet tall. He has a rather peculiar delivery, that makes it appear as if he should get over on the bats than he actually does.

He has good speed, a pretty fair curve and a side-arm fadeaway on his fast ball.

Pillette uses all his speed on this ball and keeps it low. When it starts the plate it breaks down and out, much after the manner of a spitball.

Nothing seems to worry him. He has plenty of nerve. His disposition couldn't be better. It means nothing in his life if an umpire missed a perfect strike.

Pillette's most recent bit of good pitching was against the New York Yankees when he beat them twice in a four-game series.

He has been in the major league for a month. Nothing seems to worry him. He has plenty of nerve.

Earth's Supply of New Gold Falling Off, Due to High Cost of Production

THIS country's output of gold has been cut in half since the beginning of the great war. In 1915 it rose above $100,000,000; last year it was (inclusive of Alaska) $81,186,000.

The war took away a great many workers from the mines. But the main reason for the lessened production lies in increased costs. Gold production is a manufacturing industry, and when expenses rise above a certain point it ceases to be profitable.

The same causes have been in operation everywhere, and their effect is observable in a marked diminution of the gold output all over the world. Last year it amounted to $384,987,610. But in 1915 it was $468,000,000.

Here, then, is a drop of a good deal more than a hundred million dollars. In fact, the gold production of the world has been falling off steadily and rather alarmingly ever since 1915, which was the banner year. Comparing that year with last year, Australia and New Zealand have dropped from about $45,000,000 to $22,000,000. The output of British India has fallen one-third and that of Rhodesia nearly one-half. Even the wonderful mines of the Witwatersrand, in the Transvaal, are producing less gold, though last year they yielded $108,648,178.

One of the most remarkable phenomena in the recent history of civilization has been the growth of gold production during the last thirty years. In 1800 the world's total output was less than $200,000,000. Not until 1890 did it pass that mark, but thereafter it went ahead by leaps and bounds. In 1899 it was over $300,000,000, in 1905 it exceeded $400,000,000, and, as above stated, in 1915 it reached $468,000,000.

This enormous increase was due mainly to the discovery of a new procedure whereby gold could be extracted cheaply from low-grade ores. It is called the "cyanide process." One often sees it mentioned in print, but nobody ever takes the trouble to explain what it is. Nothing, however, could be more simple. Rock that contains gold is crushed fine and mixed with a diluted solution of cyanide of potash. The chemical (one of the most deadly poisons that we know) dissolves the gold, which is thereupon deposited upon zinc plates.

It is the cyanide process that has made possible the production of gold from the low-grade ores of the Rand mines in the Transvaal, which yielded last year about half of the total output of the world. These ores run at something like $14 worth of the yellow metal to the ton of rock, much of which is fetched up out of holes in the earth nearly half a mile deep. To get gold out of them at a profit by old-time methods would be impossible.

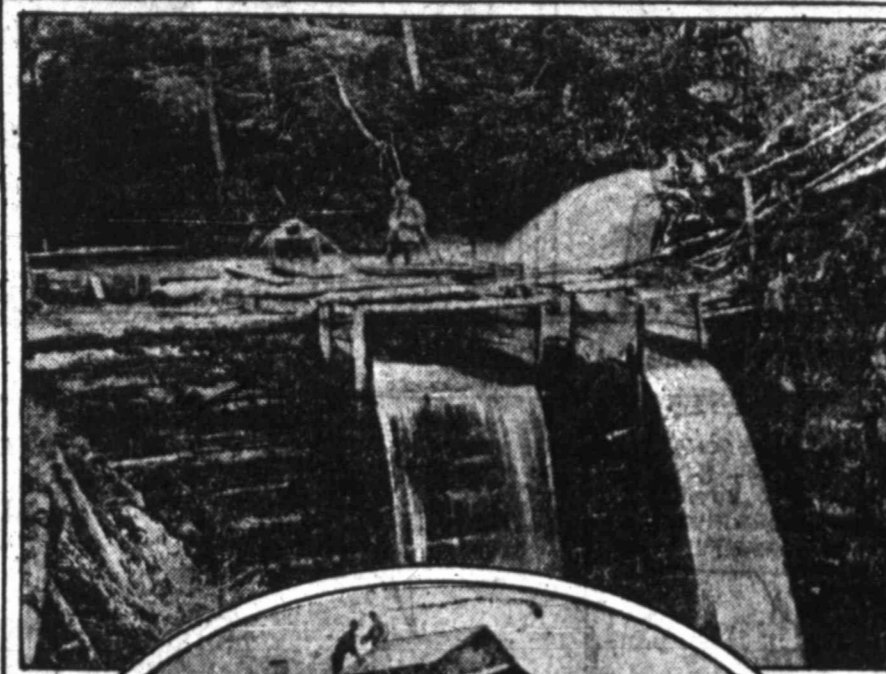

During and since the war our own country has been swallowing more of the world's existing stock of gold. According to figures given out at the end of the last fiscal year, June 30, the United States Treasury now holds $306,937,872 in gold coin and $2,849,924,844 in gold bullion. The greatest bulk of this huge mass of treasure (the bullion being in the shape of bricks) is stored in the Assay Office in New York City; nearly all of the rest of it is in the mints in Philadelphia, Denver and San Francisco. The Treasury at Washington customarily keeps on hand some gold coin with which to transact business, but it is a mere trifle of $25,000,000 or so.

The Treasury is one of the sights of the national capital, and people who visit it are much interested by an exhibit newly placed in the main vestibule, which consists most importantly of gold and silver bars such as the mints sell at cost price to anybody who may want to buy them for use in the arts, i. e., for the manufacture of jewelry, gold leaf, etc. Ingots of this kind, known as "merchants' bars," look rather much like bricks, yellow or grayish-white, and are of various sizes. Thus the biggest one of gold is marked as worth $12,000, and all of them are 990 "fine," meaning that they are practically pure stuff. Smaller gold bricks are labeled to indicate values running down from $5000 to $250 for a little one.

Naturally, the average stranger viewing the gold bars thinks how nice it would be to walk off with one of them, preferably the biggest. It would be a shock to him if he knew what is the fact, that all of them are dummies, merely covered with gold or silver leaf.

If the biggest gold bar were a real one and one were permitted to walk off with it the job would not be an easy one. For a $12,000 brick of the yellow metal (such as one can buy at the Philadelphia Mint if he has the money) weighs about forty pounds. Gold is twice as heavy as lead, relatively to bulk, and it is surprising to realize the "heft" of even a moderate-sized chunk of it.

In 1848, the year of the discovery of the auriferous gravels in California, the world's total output of gold was only about $35,000,000, or a little over one-tenth what

Operating an electric drill in a South African gold mine

Above—How they sluice stream gravels for gold

At the right—The "Welcome" nugget, said to be the largest chunk of gold ever taken from the earth

it was last year. But last year the Treasury sold, for use in the arts, $82,215,037 worth of the precious stuff, of which $54,000,000 was new gold—the balance being old gold which had come into the mints for redemption in coin or paper money.

Canada last year produced $15,833,473 worth of gold and Mexico $15,263,568. If the latter country were not constantly disturbed by political disorders, its output of the metal might easily be multiplied by four.

Gold was discovered in Australia three years after the excitement started in California. From the diggings of that island continent have come all of the very great nuggets, remarkable not only for size, but for degree of "fineness," many of them being over twenty-three carats. Chemically pure gold, of course, is twenty-four carats fine. The largest nugget ever known, called the "Welcome," weighed 2218 ounces (over 150 pounds avoirdupois) and its purity it contained was less than one part in 100. It was found at Ballarat and was worth about $46,000. After being exhibited for a while as a curiosity, it was sent in 1859 to England, where it was converted into sovereigns.

All the gold found in the rocks or elsewhere on the surface of the earth is supposed to be of volcanic origin, having been thrown up with molten stuff from the depths of the planet or carried up in chemical solutions and deposited in cracks and crannies, thus forming "veins" or "lodes." Now and then it happened that its deposition in a hole in rock filled the latter in such a way as to form a considerable lump. If in the course of time the rock was disintegrated by water or "weathering," the lump was liable to drop out and find its way into the gravels of a stream. Thus, it is supposed, all nuggets originated, and hence it is that occasionally they are found in alluvial deposits.

All sands were originally rocks, being derived therefrom by disintegration, and, if there was gold in the rock, the metal must necessarily be found in the sands. Thus in parts of the Mohave Desert, in California, "washing" for gold is profitable, and there is record of a nugget worth $3000 picked up there. Inasmuch as water is hard to get in that region, even for drinking purposes, the work is done with an odd sort of machine called a "dry washer," which is in effect a sifter. Two men operate it. One of them throws shovelfuls of sand

Factolus suggests the idea of gold, because it was the river in Lydia (Asia Minor) which, once famous for the wealth of its sands, is said to have produced much of the treasure of King Croesus.

Great quantities of gold seem to have been collected at Babylon when Semiramis was Queen, at Sardis by King Croesus, and at Alexandria by the Macedonian world-conqueror. Later on, Rome accumulated immense stores of the metal, which is said to have been brought in by wagonloads when she was at the height of her imperial prosperity. But such hoardings-up of yellow treasure mainly represented the prodglittered in the sunshine. Until recently there has been much dispute as to the source from which the wise monarch got his gold; but now it seems to be satisfactorily proved that he obtained it from diggings in Southern Rhodesia. He maintained a trading fleet in the Red Sea, building his ships (of the pattern known today as "dhows") at Exton-Geber, at the head of the Gulf of Akaba. Some of them voyaged to what is now the port of Sofala, on the east coast of Africa, carrying soldiers and supplies, and thence a caravan route, with furs along it, was maintained over a distance of about 200 miles across Portuguese East Africa to the mines.

They were hard-rock mines, the gold being derived from quartz. The metal being forced to do the labor, the metal being obtained by building fires against the rocks and then throwing cold water upon them, to fracture them, after which they were beaten to powder and washed. The gold, as fast as it was accumulated, was sent to the sea-coast, being carried by Negro burden-bearers and guarded by soldiers.

but, geographically speaking, they were most unfortunately situated. To the south were Egypt; across the desert to the east were Babylonia and Assyria. Wars were frequent, and the position of the Israelites was much like that of a man at a street-crossing when automobiles are coming from all directions. If he stays there, he is pretty sure to be run over. That was what happened to the Israelites. We know from the Bible that the Babylonians captured Jerusalem three times. Thus the glory of that city did not long survive the death of Solomon, and, so far as gold-digging was concerned, a final stop was put to that by the total destruction of the Jewish feet at Exton-Geber not very long after Solomon died.

All over the world the business of gold-mining is mainly controlled by Englishmen. The vast deposits of the Transvaal and Southern Rhodesia are owned by British concerns. Needless to say, the same is true of the gold mines of Australia, New Zealand and British India. Placer mining is being developed on an extensive scale in British Guiana. In the Desert of Sahara English companies have reopened gold mines which were worked by the Pharaohs of Egypt 3000 and more years ago. The British are even digging for the yellow metal on some of the islands which are scattered through the Straits of Magellan.

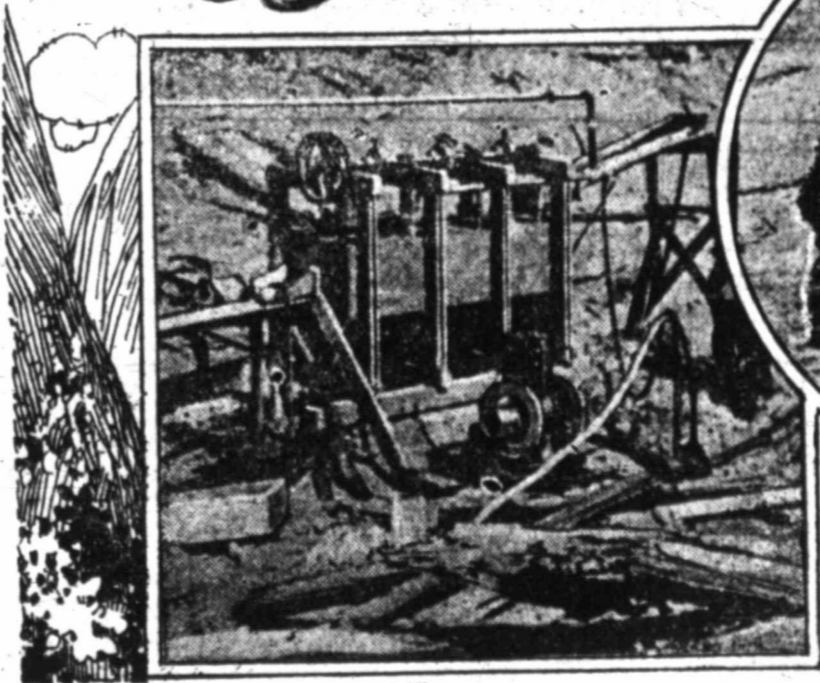

Most of the gold mines in Mexico are owned and operated by British concerns, the output going to England. One of these, the San Juan del Rey, is the deepest gold mine in the world, reaching a depth of 5886 feet, or 406 feet over a mile of the United States.

Even the gold mines of the United States are largely controlled by British capital. Forty per cent of the gold output of California at the present time is derived from dredging, and the biggest plants operated for the purpose are owned by Englishmen. In the Klondike, dredges are now being used to wash the gravels which placer miners skimmed off their yellow wealth of many years ago. This work is being done by Americans, but the region being British territory, they are obliged to pay a royalty on every ounce of gold they collect. When the Craycroft mines were enjoying the heyday of their prosperity—the gold occurring there, by the way, in a very unusual form, as a "telluride" (in combination with tellurium)—British capital controlled most of them.

Most of the gold of the world is swallowed up sooner or later by India. The imports of that country are small, and its exports very large. Thus there is a steady flow of the yellow metal in that direction, and, once arrived there, it never comes out. The natives buy or otherwise hide it. Not very long ago the British Government sent to India $50,000,000 worth of gold coins, which bore a device representing King George and the dragon. This proved unfortunate, because the natives have a great veneration for the dragon, regarding it as a sacred animal. Consequently, all of the coins of that mintage quickly disappeared, and, presumably, will never be seen again.

THE gods of India are very fond of gold; their images are commonly made of it, and the interiors of the temples decorated with the precious metal. Immense hoards are stored away by the rajahs, who are misers on a colossal scale. So sacred is the ancestral hoard that a rajah will borrow money at interest rather than touch it. Only a few years ago the Maharajah of Scindia succeeded in persuading the British Government to return to him his rock-fortress of Gwalior, of the possession of which he had been deprived in consequence of rebellion. Nobody then knew why he was so anxious to get it back, but it was afterward learned that a vast treasure in gold had been buried beneath a corner of the fortress, the subterranean passage that led to it being walled up. The Maharajah, on regaining his property, lost no time in fetching workmen blindfolded from Benares and removing the hoard to some place unknown.

Gold is one of the most widely distributed of substances. In every ton of sea water there is four cents' worth of it—derived originally, of course, from the rocks of the land. It can be separated out by electrolysis, but the process is too expensive to be remunerative.

The "jig" that separates gold from black sand against an inclined wire screen, while his partner turns a crank, shaking the screen and working a bellows which blows the sand away, allowing the heavy particles of gold to fall into a receptacle beneath. There are other places in Arizona and New Mexico where gold is sought by this curious means.

THERE is gold in the sand of all sea beaches, and along the coast of Oregon it is sought with automobile dredges, which approach as near as possible to low-water mark and dig with an endless chain of buckets, the sand being by this means fetched aboard the mill on wheels, to be thereupon washed. The gold (sometimes with platinum) seems to accumulate along the strip where the beach sands meet the sea bottom.

Forty million years or so ago the South African region now known as the Transvaal was partly covered by the ocean, and large rivers brought down sands to the coast. The line of the ancient seashore is marked plainly enough today, for the gold-bearing area of the Witwatersrand are dug out of the old sea beach. That beach, by geologic causes, has been turned up on edge, so that it runs down at a slant into the bowels of the earth. Its sands have been converted into rock, through which the beach pebbles are plentifully distributed.

Thus the rock, as it is now dug out, has somewhat the appearance of a grayish plumbago. Of course, the pebbles contain no gold. All of the yellow metal being found in what was originally the sand. Its particles are so evenly distributed that the ores of the Rand can be counted on, when treated by the cyanide process, to yield an almost unvarying return of $14 a ton.

It is returned that gold was the first metal known to mankind. Occurring in the gravels of streams, it would naturally attract attention. In very ancient times such gravels were the only source from which it was obtained. Thus even today the name of conquest, and might easily pass as part of the spoils of war from the possession of one kingdom to that of another.

Who grabbed all the gold that is said to have been accumulated in Jerusalem in the time of King Solomon? We have read in the Bible about it, and how the hair of Solomon's 22,000-cavalrymen was powdered with gold dust so thickly that their heads

A dry washer of the type used in the Mohave Desert, California

It is permissible for us to imagine that the glory of Solomon has been considerably exaggerated. It is true that in his time Jerusalem attained the height of its prosperity; but Palestine covers only a small area, and the Israelites never did control the whole of it. Apparently Solomon owed much to the support of King Hiram of Tyre (a strong Phoenician kingdom to the north), who, as the Bible tells us, furnished him with sailors for his ships. Palestine lay between Tyre and the Red Sea, and Hiram, the chief interest of whose people was in maritime commerce, deemed it worth while to be on good terms with Solomon.

The Israelites were a military people, and it is not the heat of the sun that burns the skin, but the chemical rays—the rays that have a high-vibration rate. The burning is a chemical effect, and not a result of scorching. The burning may be so severe as to be very painful and cause even serious surface inflammation. People have been known to die of sunburn.

In summer we have in temperate latitudes a tropical climate. At the seashore in that season we have a sunshine so brilliant as to vie with that of the equator. Blondes were never meant to live in the equatorial zone.

Right here, we come to a very interesting point. What is the reason for blondes? How shall we account for their light hair and pale complexions?

It is a matter of latitude. As everybody knows, the blonds races of mankind are northern races, as, for example, the Scandinavians. They have light skins and light hair because of non-exposure to the brilliant sun's rays of warmer zones, which produce a protective pigment, meaning a darker complexion.

Why the Shades in Summer Complexions?

TAN is the fashionable summer shade for the complexion. It is even appropriate for autumn, as a reminiscence of summer. Summer girls by myriads will carry it back home with them, especially from the seashore. They will be envied by others of their sex who do not tan, but burn. A red skin, perhaps with blisters, is the reverse of becoming.

But why the difference? What is the reason that some women burn while others tan?

To answer that question, it is necessary first to explain what tan is. Your skin is not white; it is colored. The substance that colors it is a pigment, secreted by certain cells in the skin. Sunshine stimulates these cells, causing them to manufacture more of the pigment than usual, and it turns your skin brown.

If, however, you are a blonde—particularly a reddish blonde—your skin has little pigment. If it is, in fact, just for that reason that you are a blonde. Your skin manufactures so little pigment, to serve as a protection against the sunshine, that the sun burns it. The brunettes have a great advantage in this respect. Her skin is richly pigmented, and thereby is protected against the burning effect of sunshine. The only effect it has, is to darken her skin still more—in other words, to give her a coat of tan.

That skin-pigment is meant by nature for a protection against light rays seems to be proved by the fact that the human complexion becomes darker as the equator is approached. The peoples of southern Europe and southern Asia are dark; those native to equatorial Africa are very black.

Mark Twain once remarked that we are the colored people, and that negroes are "discolored." As a matter of fact, the pigment that tints our skins is exactly the same as that which makes the negro brown or black; the difference is merely one of quantity.

If military tans, and does not burn, she may nevertheless be afraid of freckles. Freckles are collections of skin-pigment, irregularly deposited in spots. Sometimes the spots run together. The chemical rays of light cause them, usually. Mostly they occur on the part of the body exposed to light—the face, neck and backs of the hands. They are light yellow, or brown, or salmon-color, or sometimes reddish. They are most noticeable in people who have red hair and delicate skins. The beauty doctor tells the freckled young woman that he can easily remove her freckles. So he can. He applies to her skin a corrosive solution that blisters it, peeling off the epidermis and incidentally the spots. There is only one trouble. The freckles soon come back, and they are more persistent than ever.

Substitute for Steel

PREDICTION is made by a metallurgist of high reputation that twenty-five years hence everything that is now of steel will be made of a compound of silicon, aluminum and iron, which will be of great hardness and durability.

We are not familiar with silicon, which is a black metal that shows brightness when cut, like lead. Nevertheless, ordinary beach sand is largely composed of it. In fact, the sands of the seashore on which bathers disport themselves contain 47 per cent of silicon.

The stuff, then, is plentiful enough, the difficulty being to separate it out economically. This can be accomplished only by the use of very high temperatures in the electric furnace. But electricity is likely to be greatly cheapened before long by the development of water powers and the burning of coal at the mine mouths for its production, so that this interesting metal ought to become much less expensive.

Aluminum likewise depends upon the electric furnace for its production, and it has already become fairly cheap, as every housewife knows who uses pots and pans of that material. Probably it will become very much cheaper, inasmuch as every day bank is a mine of it, and it constitutes over 7 per cent of the earth's crust.

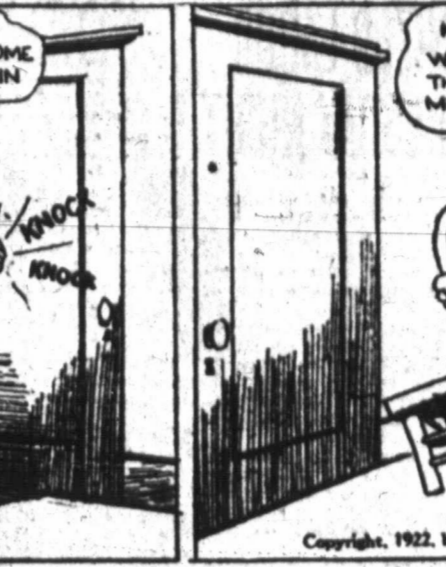

The world's deposits of rich iron ore are being rapidly worked out, and it is a comfort to know that if iron becomes scarcer it may be economized by combining it with aluminum and silicon.

K. S. G. RECEIVES PERMIT TO BUILD AN EXTENSION

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—The Kansas, Oklahoma and Gulf railroad received permission today from the I. C. C. to build six and a half miles of new line between Baxter Springs and Pittsburg, Kan., although the St. Louis-San Francisco railroad opposed its application for the authority. The new line, though short, will cost $12,000 and will give the Gulf railroad access to Joplin, Mo., over its own lines and trackage rights which it will lease to the Missouri, Kansas and Texas system. The Frisco in opposing the request presented evidence to show that the Kansas, Oklahoma and Gulf could obtain trackage rights over Frisco lines into Joplin and that the new construction was unnecessary and that the best use of existing railroad facilities would make it unnecessary for new construction in the territory.

GLASS FACTORY TO RESUME BLOWING EARLY THIS FALL

The Wichita Falls Window Glass company will reopen about October 1 with a full force of workers, it was learned Thursday. The plant has been shut down for some time. When it reopens the plant will return to the "hand-blowing" method of making glass and is now discarding the equipment which has been in use for several years and which largely did away with hand blowing. The local plant was originally a hand-blowing plant, but changed to the automatic method several years ago; now it is changing back.
