Miller said he will investigate thoroughly the strike situation there and make final preparations for the open port order. The governor has given assurance that open port law will be invoked at Waco, it was said, at the urgent request of Missouri, Kansas and Texas officials. Miller stated the strike situation at Denison and other Texas points on the Katy is entirely satisfactory. More than 700 men are now at work in the shops at Denison, he said. The normal force at this plant is 1,000. Governor Neff could not be reached this morning regarding open port action at Waco. BROTHERHOODS ARE NOT LIKELY TO CALL A SYMPATHY STRIKE

WASHINGTON BELIEVES MEN WILL SEEK SENIORITY AGREEMENT. RAILROAD LABOR BOARD IS LARGELY INVOLVED Harding Expected to Insist Upon Complete Obedience to the Board's Decisions.

By MARK SULLIVAN, National Political Correspondent of the New York Evening Post and Wichita Daily Times. (Copyright, 1932, by the New York Evening Post.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—The latest developments here affecting the strike are that congress has reconvened; the railroad labor board is waiting over here in Washington for congress to do something; and Mr. Harding has crossed an important line—he has ceased to be an unofficial mediator and is acting as president of the United States. Of these two developments the last is the more important. Nothing material affecting the strike is likely to come out of congress, either through its own initiative, or through a request from President Harding.

CONGRESS IS NOT LIKELY TO ATTEMPT TO FORCE THE STRIKE TO END. THE SENIORITY QUESTION IS THE MAIN ISSUE. THE SENIORITY QUESTION IS THE MAIN ISSUE. THE SENIORITY QUESTION IS THE MAIN ISSUE.

INCREASE IN PRICE NEW COAL PROBLEM FACING GOVERNMENT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—Settlement in part of the bituminous strike and prospects of an agreement to end the suspension of work in the anthracite fields has brought the government face to face with a new problem, the matter of controlling the price of the augmented coal supply. The government has used car price as a weapon to enforce the price agreements to which the producing operators subscribed at the recent Secretary's floor, but with new mines opening daily the federal fuel distributor has been confronted with the possibility of a breakdown in the country's coal supply.

Whether the present voluntary system can be extended to the mines now being opened is a question being given serious consideration by officials. PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 17.—John H. Phillips, president of the United Mine Workers, and the district president of the anthracite region arrived here shortly before 11 o'clock today for the conference with the hard coal operators this afternoon in the office of Samuel D. Warriner, president of the Lehigh Coal & Navigation Company and head of the operators negotiating committee. The miners chief established headquarters at the Belmont Stratford hotel and planned to confer with the other union leaders prior to the meeting with the operators. "I am not going to talk," said Mr. Lewis, "because I don't believe in talk before this conference. I'll venture the prognosis is that I am hopeful an adjustment will be effected. The situation in the bituminous fields is developing satisfactorily." The operators also held a separate conference in Mr. Warriner's office. The joint meeting was called for 2 P. M.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 17.—The return to the mines of anthracite workers was expected to follow today's conference between officials of the miners union and the operators. The miners through the scale committee have been asking a 50 per cent increase in their pay. The operators wanted a reduction in wages. Both sides, it was indicated at the conference, were ready to concede, and close observers declared that there was a likelihood of the 1932 wage scale being adopted for another term.

CALOMEL USERS TAKE ANWFUL RISK

Very Next Dose of Frenchman Drug May Start Terrible Reaction.

The next dose of calomel you take may silitate you. It may shock your liver or start bone necrosis. Calomel is dangerous. It is mercury, quicksilver. It crashes into your bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you.

If you feel bilious, headache, constipated and all knoocks out, just go to your drugist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tons for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

Don't take calomel! It can not be treated any more than a leopard or a wild-cat. Take Dodson's Liver Tons which straightens you right up and makes you feel fine. No salts necessary. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and can not silitate.—Adv.

"I know there are thousands of women and single girls in this country that would like to have a home and they have sporting blood enough in them to take a chance.

"Here is my offer: I will place myself on raffle and marry any woman (white) between the ages of 21 and 25 years; I will marry the woman that holds the lucky number, provided the cash returns from the raffle amounts to $1250 or more for my part."

TWO HELD IN CASE IN WHICH 18 DOGS CAUSE MAN'S DEATH

SACRAMENTO, CAL., Aug. 17.—Mrs. Mabel Ross Belardi, said to be a divorcee, was held in the case of her husband, Lewis Belardi, who was held responsible for the death of her 18-month-old son, who was set up on by a pack of 18 dogs owned by the Belardis.

According to the most recent story told by Mrs. Belardi to the police, she was engaged in a quarrel with Blao outside the shack on her ranch when he attempted to strike her with a club. One of the dogs rushed at Blao and the pack followed, tearing his clothes to shreds.

The dogs continued their attack until called off by her, Mrs. Belardi said. To save the dogs she did not mention their attack, but told the authorities the victim came to her place injured in search of medical aid. Later she admitted this was a fabrication and the dogs were shot.

The verdict of the coroner's jury indicates the evidence produced strengthened the police theory that Mrs. Belardi attacked Blao with a club before the dogs attacked him.

FLOOD CONTROL AND RECLAMATION PLANS MADE AT MEETING

ORGANIZATION IS PERFECTED AT FORT WORTH ON WEDNESDAY.

KEMP VICE PRESIDENT OF THE ORGANIZATION

Homer D. Wade of Stamford Is Chosen For the Position of Secretary.

WACO, TEXAS, Aug. 17.—The Texas Conservation association was organized at Waco Wednesday afternoon as a result of a conference lasting all day Wednesday among prominent engineers and public officials of the state.

The association will have as its purpose promulgation of a program of flood control and water conservation in Texas, the immediate object being necessary legislation to put under way the program adopted at the conference.

Officers chosen at the session are: President, Leo S. Bird; Vice-presidents, Carl Gulon, Ballinger; John M. Lawrence, Bryan; W. D. Wilson, Ray City; D. C. Snow, LaMar; Sam G. Morgan, Dallas; J. A. Kemp, Wichita Falls; W. T. Eldridge, Sugarland.

Secretary and treasurer, Homer D. Wade, Fort Worth. Legislative committee, John W. Galina, San Antonio; Clifford E. Jones, Spur; F. W. Seabury, Brownsville; Roy Miller, Corpus Christi; W. E. Lee, Orange; T. B. Henderson, Cameron; E. H. Astin, Bryan; G. G. Kelley, Wharton; R. E. L. Knight, Dallas; E. R. Cockrell, Fort Worth; R. P. Burgess, El Paso; J. G. Rust, San Angelo; Carl Gulon, Ballinger; Ward Tompman, Navasota; W. E. Long, Austin; M. Peckham, Waco, and Chester H. Bryan, Houston.

As outlined in resolutions adopted by the conference, the association's purpose will be to set in motion legislative machinery looking to the carrying out of a program of flood control and conservation of flood waters for irrigation purposes in Texas.

District Idea Prevails. The district idea of conservation effort prevailed, in-though, expressed at the meeting. During the closing hours of the session a resolution submitted by W. D. Wilson of Ray City would have amended formal resolutions of the conference to state that it was the sense of the convention that the water-conservation and flood control question is a statewide one, and that our constitution should be so amended that the state of Texas can issue bonds and construct the necessary work.

This amendment, however, was defeated by a large majority. The meeting was called to order Wednesday morning by A. B. Spencer of Crosbyton, president of the West Texas chamber of commerce. Governor Pat M. Neff addressed the gathering during the day, giving details of his state program for conservation legislation. Resolutions adopted by the conference invite the co-operation of the United States government in the program to be undertaken; urge congress to consider the tremendous losses occasioned by flood waters in Texas; and urge upon the senators and representatives in congress from Texas to make every consistent effort to secure the incorporation of such provisions in the pending senate bill known as the Smith-McNary bill, as will authorize the extension of its purposes and advantages in assisting in financing reclamation improvement, Texas enterprises, and when so amended or when so constructed we heartily endorse said bill.

Call for future meetings of the new association is left with the officers.

For several years I had severe pains at menstrual periods, and I tried several remedies, without obtaining relief. I was induced to try Lydia E. ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS FLAP-DOODLE AND HIS WAND IN MISCHIEF

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

So they tiptoed over and peeked in.

The next place Nancy and Nick came to on the Tinky-Winkler Star was a great big oven, large enough for you and me and some of our friends to sleep in.

"Hi!" whispered Nancy. "Perhaps Flap-Doodle, the purple fairy, is hiding inside and we can get the wand he stole from the Fairy Queen."

So they tiptoed over as softly as velvet shoes and peeked in. "But what do you suppose? It was a setting they beheld. A meeting of a dozen Tinky-Winklers with big ears and colored a bright orange, all sitting in a circle inside the oven."

"It's an outrage, I call it!" said one Tinky-Winkler, fiercely to his neighbor.

"Worse than that! It's two outrages," said a second. "Just as soon as we get our handsome town-hall built, Flap-Doodle sent us a bill for taxes, so big as a bad chest. How can we pay them? We've no money left!"

"Yes," said a third Tinky-Wink-

NEW JERSEY TOWN ESTABLISHES A 'COURT OF LOVE' WHICH HAS A LONG LIST OF CASES ON DOCKET

By Associated Press.

HAMMONTON, N. J., Aug. 17.—The court of love—where men and women in search of mates may come for advice—has been established here.

Before the court are the "cases" of some 1,000 bachelors and 1,100 spinsters, but the first day's work resulted in only five matings. These, however, were striking examples of what may come.

A man 52 years old was mated with a gold-digger mother, 41 years old; an undertaker was paired with a nurse; a coast guard was picked to become the life protector of a divorcee; a widow was slated to become the helpmate of a painter, and last but not least, a daughter of the Kentucky mountains was mated by Thomas Bancroft Delker, founder of the court.

The court of love, he it known, is constituted much the same as any other court, having a presiding judge in the case of a woman, and a jury of seven, including the male chief of police, a former soldier, a male telegrapher, and three more women.

The idea of the court, so the story goes, was conceived over a picnic of hash in the town restaurant by Delker and Lewis Conlay, Hammonton's leading cigar store proprietor. They organized the Lovelies Co-operative union, which in turn produced the love court.

Court sat for the first time in the one and only moving picture house. Bleeding hearts with black arrows piercing them through decorated the bench and the jury box.

Delker opened court by reading the letter from the lonely Kentucky girl, and after going over her

FOR A CONSTRUCTIVE PROGRAM.

The possibilities of flood control, conservation and irrigation in Texas are enough to fire the imagination and stir the ambition of all its progressive citizens.

It is doing so and out of such conferences as that held at Waco this week some day will come a great constructive program. It will come slowly and carefully as it ought but it will probably be laid before the people of the state much sooner than many of us now expect.

Reviewing the situation in Texas during the last spring when flood waters were rushing through the channels of all Texas streams, Governor Neff said that he called up the state penitentiary and asked if the prison lands were overflowed.

"And was that Southern Texas rain? No, it was Panhandle rain. Now Northwest and West Texas in the Panhandle is suffering for water in some localities and then only a few months ago its excess waters were destroying thousands upon thousands of acres of valuable crop and millions of dollars' worth of resources and property.

"Why, my friends, the carrying out of this program would add each year to the taxable values of Texas a sum of $300,000,000. We would have a state lined from side to side with great lakes and bodies of water. We would stock them with fish and the families of Texas could get in their automobiles and go to these lakes for outings. We could have a system of state parks and pleasure resorts unsurpassed anywhere.

"In the utilization of the power that would be afforded by the effecting of this conservation and reclamation program we could change that situation that sees Texas produce one-third of all of the cotton grown and then manufacture less than one-half of 1 per cent of the cotton into finished product."

Governor Neff called upon Texans to get behind the problem and work together on a constructive program. It has been so long, he said, that the mind of man runneth not to the contrary since any constructive legislation was wrought in Texas. We have wasted our time on side issues and have gotten off the main track, said Governor Neff.

It is a good thing to hear a governor of Texas talking like that.

He is right about it. We have been taking on side issues until there is no constructive program. We must get together on a constructive program not only because of the direct good that will come from such a program but because if we don't the side issues that Governor Neff talks about will destroy us.

TODAY'S TALK

UNDERSTANDING.
We all like to be understood. And we like to feel that we, in turn, understand. But what is understanding?

It is difficult to explain. Somehow or other, understanding is just—understanding!
As near as I can put it, however, I would say that understanding between one person and another is that silent feeling which travels by way of the mind and heart to the soul—without commotion, freely, as the water runs its happy way over the stones and earth of its brook path.

We think of God as one who understands. And the only way we are able to talk with Him is through our God-heart.
Understanding is something that comes about without explanation. For explanations somehow only serve to confuse and often to bring about misunderstanding.

I heard a friend pay a great tribute to a big man—a man who lost his life on the Louisiana—and this is what she said of him: "You didn't have to explain to him—he just understood."
The trouble with the nations of this earth at the present time is that they talk too much and understand too little.

The mother's kiss and pat on the head of the child, when the little disasters come to it from time to time, mean more than words or healing salve.
He is a friend worth having who tries to understand, who learns to understand.

Words get us into so much trouble. But silent understanding puts love into the world and keeps it warm for the ages.
Capital and labor will never work in harmony until each determines to understand the other.

But understanding is a thing that you can't compel. It must come naturally and happily.
And when understanding comes, you know it. It's as soothing as the cool, mellow air that floats over tropic waters.

JUST FOLKS
THE LITTLE CLOTHES LINE.
The little clothes line by the kitchen door?
My mother stretched it once when I was young.
And there the garments which the baby wore.

Each morning very carefully she hung.
Square bits of flannel fluttered in the breeze,
White stockings very delicate and small,
Long flouting dresses and the glad booties.

A little blanket and a knitted shawl.
Then came the day when mother took it down.
And we forgot what symbols fluttered there;
We'd grown to breast the current of the town.

To fight for conquest and to stand in care.
Ten years ago she smiled and said to me:
"I want a little clothes line by the door.
And there she hung for all the world to see.

The various bits of raiment which she wore.
Even the ragman on his alley round
Knew, by the symbols fluttering on that line,
That there a little baby would be found.

And day by day he saw that glorious sign.

THE RED HOUSE MYSTERY

BY A. MILNE
"Come with us," Bill said casually, as he struck a match. He pulled it vigorously at the flame as he waited for the answer together to his. He was smiling, for if Cayley assented, he was done.

"I'll go with you into Stanton," Bill blew out a great cloud of smoke with an expiration which covered also a heartful sigh of relief.
"Oh, a pity. You're driving, I suppose?"
"Yea, the car will be here directly. There's a letter I must write first. He sat down at a writing table, and took out a sheet of note-paper.

He was facing the secret door; if it opened he would see it. At any moment now it might open.
Bill dropped into a chair and thought. Antony must be warned. Obviously, that was of no use. A signal to anybody? By code. Morse code. Did Antony know it? Did Bill know it himself? It came to him! He had picked up a bit in the army. Not enough to send a message, of course. But a message was impossible. Cayley would see him tapping it out. It wouldn't do to send more than a single letter. What letters? 'Did he know?' And what letter would convey anything to Antony?

"O for Cayley. Would Antony understand? Probably not, but it was worth trying. What was C?—yes, short, long, short. Umpty-ldy-umpty-ldy. Was that right? C—yes, that was C. He was sure of that. Umpty-ldy-umpty-ldy. C for Cayley. Hands in pockets, he got up and wandered across the room, humming vaguely to himself, the picture of a boy who is sure of himself. He might be his friend (Gillingham) to come in and take him away for a walk or something. He wandered across to the books at the head of the bed and began to tap absent-mindedly on the shelves, as he looked at the titles. Umpty-ldy-umpty-ldy. Not that it was much like that at first; he couldn't get the rhythm of it. Umpty-ldy-umpty-ldy. That was better. He was back at Samuel Taylor Coleridge now. Antony would begin to hear him soon. Umpty-ldy-umpty-ldy. Just the aimless tapping of a man who is wondering what books he will take out with him to read on the lawn. Would Antony hear? One always heard the man in the next flat knocking out his pipe. World Antony understood? Umpty-ldy-umpty-ldy. C for Cayley. Antony. Cayley's hero. For God's sake wait.

"Good Lord! Sermons!" said Bill, with a loud laugh. (Umpty-ldy-umpty-ldy) "Ever read 'em, Cayley?"
"What?" Cayley looked up suddenly. Bill's back moved slowly along, his fingers beating a tattoo on the shelves as he walked.
"Ever read 'em, Cayley, with a little laugh. An awkward, uncomfortable little laugh. It seemed to Bill. The walls of the room were covered with books—just the same aimless way. "Oh, for God's sake sit down," burst Antony out. "Go outside if you want to walk about."

Bill turned round in astonishment. "Hello, what's the matter?"
"Come in," said Cayley, and went on with his letter.
"Sorry, Bill," he apologized. "My nerves are on edge. Your constant tapping is driving me mad. I'm a bit 'tapped' myself. Go outside if you want to walk about."

"I'll get up again," she said to me, "I'll want a little clothes line by the door."
"Thank you very much. Well, I shall see you later."

He patted and got into the car. As Antony sat there alone Bill turned eagerly to his friend.
"Bill!" he said excitedly.
"Come into the library?"
They went in, and Tony sank down into a chair.
"You must give me a moment," he panted. "I've been running."

CHAPTER XV.
They left the road, and took the path across the fields which sloped gently downward toward Jallands. Antony was silent, and since it is difficult to keep up a conversation with a silent man for any length of time, Bill had dropped into silence too. Of rather, he hummed to himself, bit at twigs in the grass with his stick and made uncomfortable noises with his pipe.

"Try a piece of grass," said Antony, offering it to him.
Bill pushed it through the mouth-piece, blew again, said, "That's better," and returned the pipe to his pocket.

"How are we going to get up with-out Cayley knowing?"
"Bill, that wants thinking over. I wish we were sleeping at the inn."
"Is the Miss Norbury, by any chance?"
Bill looked up quickly. They were close to Jallands now, an old thatched farmhouse.
"Angela Norbury," murmured Bill. "Not bad-looking, is she?"
The girl who stood by the little white gate of Jallands was something more than "not bad-looking," but in Bill's eyes she must be judged and condemned by all that distinguished her from Betty Caladine. To Antony, unimpaired by these standards of comparison, she seemed quite simply beautiful.

POWER FLASHED THROUGH SPACE WILL RUN WORLD SAYS TESLA

Nikola Tesla and some of the marvels he says wireless transmission of power will make possible.
NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Wireless transmission of power will be the next astounding and revolutionary development of science, Hayden White says in an article in the Saturday Evening Post.

POWER ORIGINATING MILES AWAY WILL ANNILATE ARMIES.

"A piece of radium will give us a tremendous energy as a low cost source of power," says Tesla.
"Light bulbs will last forever," he says. "Wireless power can be transmitted at once and in the most remote places. It is of great economic importance, but of immeasurably greater specific value, and invention of the future."

BRAIN TESTERS.

A puzzle of ancient origin deals with an inkpiper, who had only 10 beds to take care of 11 guests. He accommodated them as follows: He put two in the first bed; he put one in the second; he put the fourth in the third; and so on, the tenth being placed in the ninth bed. Thus he had one bed left, which the eleventh man, now sleeping alone in the first bed, was invited to occupy. It is clear that a fallacy exists somewhere in this arrangement.

ATOMIC ENERGY DISCOVERED.

Atomic energy is not regarded by Tesla as offering great prospect in power development. He calls this a "scientific illusion," and says that in disintegrating atoms no minute energy is expended that it will be carried into reality within two or three years.
