PEOPLE ARE INDIFFERENT ABOUT ELECTION

FROM ALMOST ALL THE STATES REPORT IS THAT REGISTRATION IS LOW WITH LITTLE INTEREST

By MARK SULLIVAN.
National Political Correspondent of The New York Evening Post and The Wichita Daily Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—One of the conclusions forced upon you after you have been looking into the politics of a considerable portion of the United States, is that there is a mood abroad in the country to which the coming election provides no answer. About what is going to happen on November 7, the people are largely indifferent. In almost all the states, the registration is low. The number of voters who are sufficiently interested in the outcome on November 7, to take the trouble to get their names on the books, is small relative to similar elections in the past. In a very small number of states, notably Indiana, registration is fairly high. In this state the registration is almost equal to that of the presidential year of 1920. But in this case, as in others where the registration is high, the explanation is found in the increasing number of women voters who are disposed to take advantage of their prerogative. Up to the present, it has chiefly been the pioneer women in politics that have taken part in the elections. But an increasing number of women who hesitate to vote, are now coming to the polls, are now coming to the polls, are now coming to the polls.

With this qualification, which is a qualification at all relative to past years, there is everywhere evidence of lack of interest in the coming election. The mood of the people is largely one of indifference. But it is a mood of sullenness, of disappointment, not only with both political parties and all political leaders, but with something more than that. It is a mood of protest, "an against" mood.

The states in which this mood is most evident are the farming states of Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, and some of the states farther west. The triumph which Senator La Follette had in the primaries this summer constituted probably the most emphatic endorsement given to any man in politics this year. Similarly, the majority that will be given to Brookhart in Iowa at the coming election will probably be equal to the majority that any Iowa candidate for any office has ever received. This likelihood exists in spite of the fact that many of the conservative leaders of Brookhart's own republican party, including the governors of the state, and thousands of business men, will vote against him. In Minnesota, while the present writer is not able to speak with much confidence, the apparent likelihood is much the same. If it were a square fight between a single opponent, Kellogg would probably lose. It is only the fact that Kellogg's opposition is divided between the democratic candidate and the farmer-labor candidate that would beat Kellogg. Also, it is significant that the democratic candidate and the farmer-labor candidate, it is the farmer-labor candidate that is clearly in the lead.

Not "Socialism." It is the custom in many parts of the country distant from these states to speak of this sort of political expression as "socialism." That is absurd. La Follette is as far as possible from fulfilling the definition of a socialist. So also is Brookhart. This mood is neither socialist nor revolutionary. It is the mood of a man who is not headed for revolution. For the most part, these farmers are home-owning small farmers. They are not revolutionists. In the ordinary meaning of the word, it is as odious as it is to any other essentially conservative member of the community. But it is a fact that not only in these states, but throughout the country generally, there is a mood of angry sullenness, of discontent with what is happening in the world and of suspicion against those who are directing the world. If you try to probe deep into this mood, you find it is true that a certain amount of it is economic. But the economic aspect of it is not all. If you go farther than this, and try to find what specific things the ordinary voter is angry about, you observe that in many cases he has not himself, clearly visualized the reasons for his anger. He is angry because he thinks that the government, national, state and local is being dominated by selfish interests of one kind or another. He thinks that these big selfish interests have some kind of free-masonry among themselves, constituting an inviolable government, made up partly of big business and partly of high politics, which keeps the ordinary man in the dark and exploits him.

to the state governments, the war meant no additional expense to speak of, except in the case of those states who voted a local bonus to their soldiers. But omitting all increases of expense due to the war, it is a fact that the local taxes in nearly all the communities in the United States, have gone up intolerably. One reason for this has been that the states have gone in for a good deal of highly expensive, road-building. After a considerable period of the making of expensive highways, the citizens have come, to a large extent, to feel that the investment has not been wise and has not led to the hopes held out in the beginning. The voters, and especially the farmers, cannot find that they have been benefited by these expensive roads to the extent they were assured they would. They find that the chief beneficiaries have been a minute number of land-owners, whose land went up in price and a few others interests, who profit by the spread of hard roads. The average voter in the city does not find that he is able to buy his food any cheaper by virtue of these expensive roads, and the average farmer in the country does not find that he is able to get any better price for his crops. The result is a mood of disappointment, a feeling that once more something has been "put over" on the voter and tax payer, but what he regards as the same subtle combination of business and politics which he thinks has always been exploiting him. It is difficult to conceive of the taxes on a farm as being so large an item that they really embarrass the farmer and sometimes make the difference between solvency and bankruptcy. But it is a fact that in many parts of the west, farmers are being foreclosed for taxes. I was told of a relatively ly small farm of 160 acres in a western state, on which the taxes are close to $500 in the same year in which the farmer was called upon to pay this amount of taxes. It is probable that the total profit from his farming operations was less than $1,000.

FRANK G. CARPENTER WRITES HE FINDS RECREATED FRANCE

MIRACLES OF WORLD'S BIGGEST RECONSTRUCTION SINCE FLOOD SAYS NOTED AMERICAN WRITER

With Motor Car and Camera He Inspects the New Farms, Mines and Factories in the Battle Scared Regions—Tells How They Are Baling Tons of Barbed Wire to Make Steel Rails—Filling in the Trenches and Renovating the Soil—How the Red Zone Looks—The New Farms and Their Wonderful Crops—A Graphic Story of the Mightiest Feat of Reconstruction Since Noah Landed on Ararat—Men, Women and Children at Work from Dawn to Twilight.

CARPENTER'S WORLD TRAVELS. Copyright 1922, by Frank G. Carpenter.

LILLE, FRANCE, 1922.—For the past week I have been motoring over the devastated region dictating descriptions and making photographs of the new farms, new factories and new buildings that have risen from the ashes of war. I have had my secretary, Dan Houghton, at my elbow taking my notes, and Charles C. Colt, a Harvard junior who got his schooling in France, interpreting my talks with people in addition the government has given me a guide in the person of Lieutenant Robert Desrousseaux, a man who was wounded and lost a dozen times during the war, and who knows the battle fields as you know the palm of your hand.

We started at Rheims and rode back and forth, making many detours and going through Chateau Thierry, along the Chemin des Dames, by Soissons, St. Quentin, Arras, Albert and a score of other cities and towns, traveling through the valleys of the Marne, the Aisne, the Oise and the Somme, and ending our journey here at Lille in the Department of the Nord. Some of the time we were so close to the front that I could have thrown stones from France into Belgium, and again so far south as the Germans got in their rushes toward Paris. Before that I had traveled through other parts of the battle fields so that I have, as it were, almost the whole of Re-created France in my eye.

I say Re-created France, for the country I have seen is a new France rising more rapidly out of the ruins than did San Francisco after the earthquake or Chicago or Baltimore after the fire. We thought those works of rebuilding enormous. They were like fitting together the toy blocks of a baby, compared to the great work going on here. The reconstruction is so vast and so rapid that I despair of making you realize the marvels that have sprung up since the treaty of peace was signed.

Villages, cities and factories rising like magic out of the most terrible ruins! Mines, blown up and flooded, pumped out and worked again under the mighty shaft houses which have risen above them! Farms, cut up by shell holes and covered with a net of barbed wire now as smooth and as clean as your garden, and loaded with crops. New roads and railways. The work recalls that of the Germans five thousand nine hundred and twenty-six years ago when God divided the light from the darkness, and in the space of six days, there were no lions upon which man since then has been building.

Several hundred thousand were engaged in spinning and weaving. What the War Did. Now look at the conditions after the armistice when France began to count up its losses. Remember I am giving the figures prepared by the government department that has charge of this vast work of reconstruction. When the Germans left, the population of the 10 departments had so shrunk that there were only two out of every five people left. Take two out of every family in Boston, Washington, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Cleveland and Philadelphia, and those cities would be reduced to the condition of the territory at the close of the war. One thousand communes or counties had been completely destroyed, and 2,000 more were damaged. Out of the whole country only 374 were saved. In some of the departments not a single village was spared, and in the four principal ones about 20,000 were completely destroyed, 144,000 badly damaged by projectiles, and more than 100,000 were seriously injured in one way or another. One of the great calamities was the ruin of the water supply. The French village and the average French peasant. He goes to the village wells or to the hydrant, to get the water he drinks and uses in cooking. I saw men, women and children drawing water in every town I passed through. In the Rhine valley, the wells were so ruined that 25,000 had to be cleaned up. In addition it was necessary to clean out 5,000 acres of ponds, and so many streams that if they were joined together would fill a canal longer than from Kansas City to Paris.

Thousands of acres of farms were entangled in a network of barbed wire. Vast areas which had been plowed up by shells were as hilly as prairie dog village and other tracks had holes so big that they would make a grave for an elephant in some of the holes. The contents of our national capitol at Washington. About 4,000,000 acres of land were thought to be ruined, and the land had been under the plow. A vast territory had been sown with projectiles, some of which live shells which blow up so many children who played about in the fields that when the work of reconstruction began the little ones had to be guarded against the shells from the dug-outs.

A vast territory had been sown with projectiles, some of which live shells which blow up so many children who played about in the fields that when the work of reconstruction began the little ones had to be guarded against the shells from the dug-outs.

After four years France is still digging miles of barbed wire out of the soil of the battle-scarred areas. The wire is compressed into 120-pound coils by this machine and sold to the steel mills for $4.00 a ton.

drawing a blanket over its scars. The soil is chert and the zone now looks half desert with white rock showing out through the weeds. Still, all around it the fields are smiling with grain, and the same sort of soil laughs with the harvest.

Let me now take you across the country, and show you some of the new farms of north France. We are in a Panhard limousine with Lieutenant Desrousseaux and the chauffeur on the front seat. We are going over a road as hard as stone and as smooth as a floor. There are windrows of barbed wire by the side of the road, and here and there the wire is stuck up like hay in the fields, or put up into bales to be sold as old iron. Each bale is about a foot thick, two feet wide and three long. It weighs 125 pounds and brings $4 a ton. There are cords of such bales by the roadside and with them the old iron which aided in making the entanglements.

The Greater part of the wire has been taken from the land that can be farmed and most of the towns it still lies in great quantities are in the "red zone" which will be the last cleaned up. This zone is made up of the worst of the battle fields. It equals 2,000 farms of 100 acres each. It will cost more than it is worth to redeem it, and so the government has bought the land from the peasants and it will be planted with trees. There is no possibility of making it into farm land for another generation because it will take from 50 to 100 years for the leaf mould from the forest to create a top soil.

Next Sunday Mr. Carpenter will write of "Thrifty Housekeeping in France," where questions of landlords, apartments and cooks are even more urgent than in America.

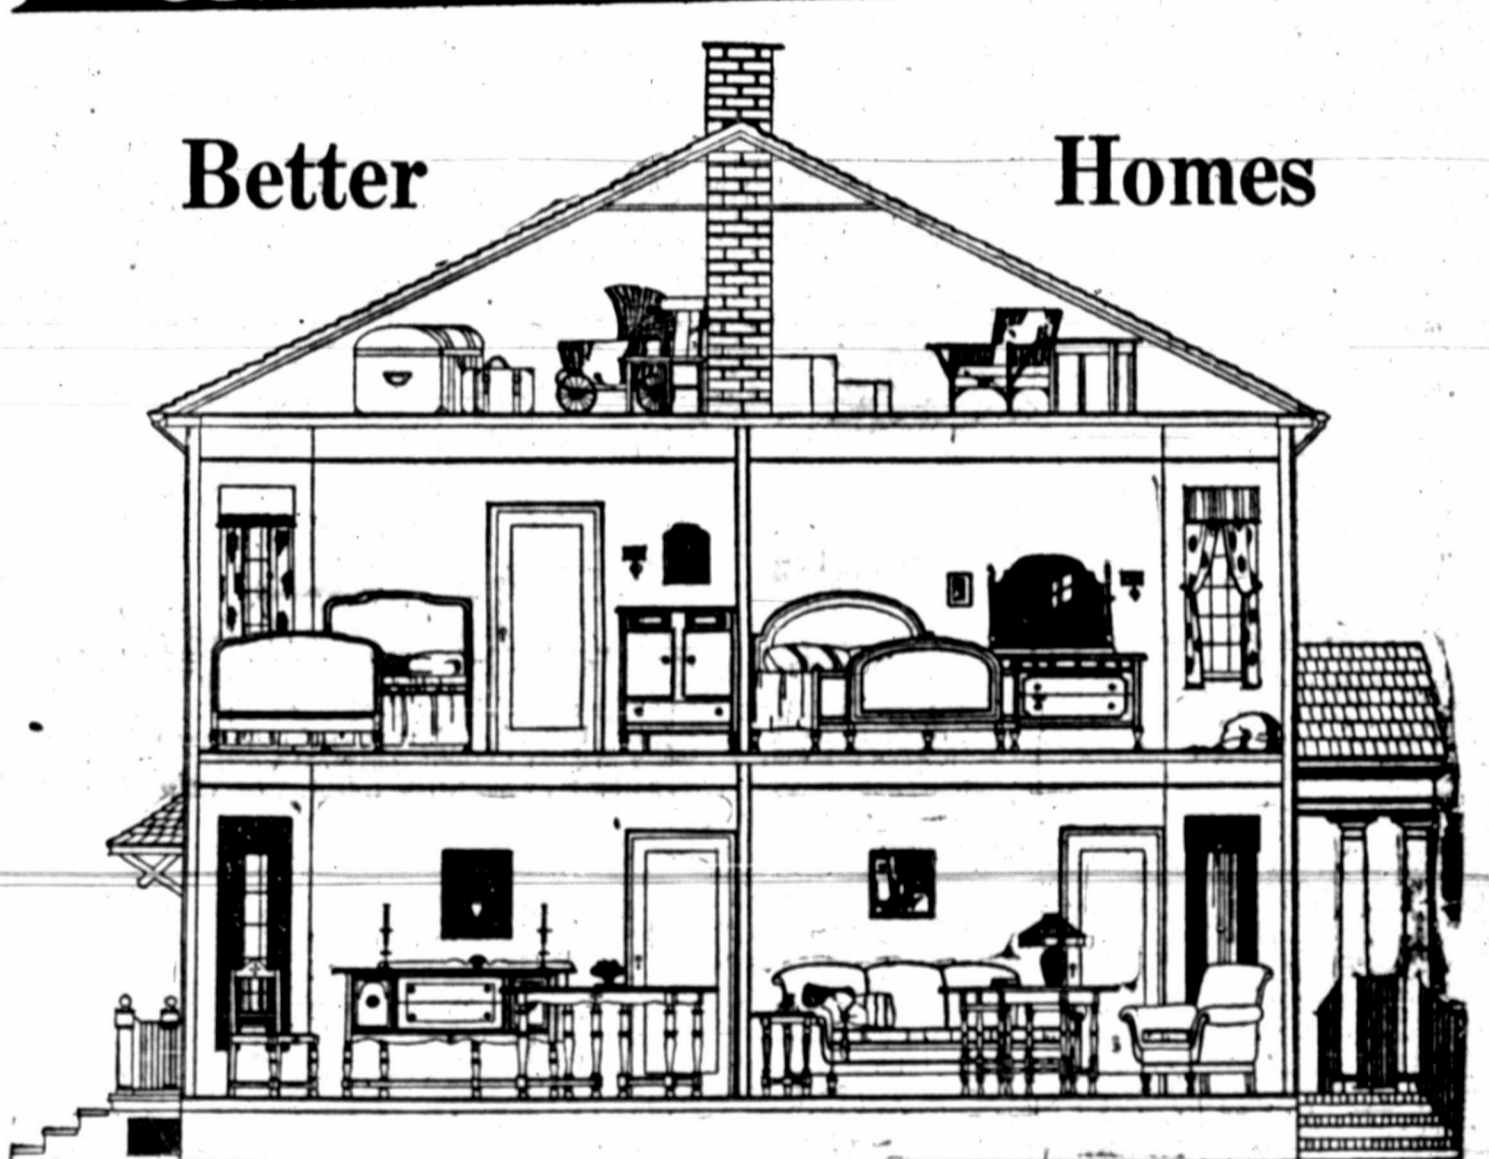

The fields are of many colors, and just now the declining rays of the sun has turned them to velvet. There are green sugar beets and purple alfalfa. There are patches of golden ripe wheat, lemon hued oats and the dark brown newly plowed land. Now and then we pass a place where the red poppies are trying to conquer the gold of the wheat. The poppies are about the only weeds to be seen, and we ride on and on through what seems a vast garden.

Frank G. Carpenter

Fields that were recently fought over are now yielding forty bushels of wheat to the acre, while new farms stand with their red brick walls and red tiled roofs are seen everywhere. This is a typical view in re-created France.

The Magic of Furniture

A house or a home—a good deal depends on the proper selection of furniture and the furnishings of the rooms. Furniture is the medium that transforms cold space and bare walls into warm friendly surroundings. Our business is not simply to sell furniture. We like to think of it as building homes.

We will send our interior decorator out to your house to get the sizes of the rooms and their exposures. The kind of paper on the walls and the woodwork if you desire. Then when you come to our store, he will be in a position to make any suggestions you may want.

This doesn't mean you will have to spend a lot of money to furnish the new home. We have different grades of furniture but each is of thoroughly dependable quality.

It doesn't pay to get anything but the best in furniture. If you buy good furniture at the start, you will always have it. The furniture you buy here today will satisfy you just as much in the years to come as it does now. Whatever you buy here is guaranteed to satisfy, and if it doesn't we will cheerfully refund your money.

What Drapes
Do for a Room

Next in importance to the furniture in a room are the drapes. Beautiful drapes not only improve the appearance of the room but the furniture as well. Dainty drapes make the best furniture look shoddy.

In choosing drapes the exposure of the room must be considered carefully as a room with a northern exposure requires drapes with warm colors while a room with a southern exposure calls for the softer pastel shades.

Beautiful Velours, Damasks, Woolen Repe and heavy Taffetas may be had by the yard or made up to your order.

DE FOREST SAYS AMERICA WILL LEAD WORLD IN WIRELESS

COUNTRY'S GREATEST EXPERT MAKES SURVEY EUROPEAN FIELD, FRANCE NOT YET ENTHUSIASTIC

Only a Few Details Remain to be Worked Out Before Films on Which Both Sound and Action Have Been Photographed Will Be Ready for Exhibition—Radio Certain to be Increasingly Important Influence in American Life—Educational Possibilities Beyond Measure and Sure to Have a Good Effect in Stabilizing Nation's Nerves By Keeping Amusement Within Home.

By EDWARD MARSHALL

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Wireless will sway and educate the world.

Speaking moving pictures are close at hand. Lee De Forest, America's most celebrated wireless expert, just after a year to this new field, made these announcements to me just after his return from a survey of the European field.

The speaking pictures will have in them nothing of the phonograph but will demonstrate that new scientific marvel—photography and photographic reproduction of both sound and image.

Wireless transmission, now so seriously hampered by the cackling fiends of "static" is likely to be freed from them. As inventor of the audio detector, oscillator and amplifier, he is surely qualified to give this good news to "fans."

"I have great faith in the future of broadcasting as a means of amusement and instruction," said Mr. De Forest, as we sat talking. He is a man of unpretentious appearance, plainly dressed, evidently forgetful of some things held holy by those who give less time to thinking of realities. In his buttonhole a tiny knot of red ribbon indicates his possession of the French Legion of Honor, given him in tribute for his scientific attainments.

"The statement of his faith in broadcasting was important, for, in fact, he was the original broadcaster. That was back in 1909," said he. "I tried the broadcasting of phonograph music from a building in New York, not having made any arrangement to have anyone pick it up, but waiting eagerly to hear if anyone had done so. Next day George Davis, chief electrician at the Brooklyn navy yard telephoned to me:

"Were you putting music into the air last night?" he asked.

"Yes," I answered.

"Well, it came perfectly," he commented, "to know you sent it. I thought perhaps I might be crazy—hearing things, you know."

"No one else got it, so far as I ever heard. Today thousands would receive the music broadcasted by the great stations."

"Broadcasting obviously was not feasible at that time. The spread of interest in radio which has made it possible has come through the training of men for the signal corps by the thousands. They fired their imaginations with regard to wireless possibilities. Leaving the various services each became a nucleus of interest in the development of the art."

"With their aid and that of the small boy, the radio has achieved an impetus among America's untold millions unprecedented in the history of anything of the sort. And interest increases."

America Will Lead.

"America will always lead in radio as she has led in telegraphy, telephony, photography and cinematography."

general is used to assist in the maintenance of the broadcasting stations. There can be no confusion, no overlapping wave lengths. Experts believe that the British plan will prove superior to the apparatus development in the United States.

"British apparatus for amateurs, however, and, indeed, amateur apparatus, speaking generally, throughout Europe, cannot be compared with that which is available on this side."

"In France, although the government recently has begun broadcasting from the Eiffel Tower, and has arranged a license system, there is little amateur enthusiasm. The French have developed a high-frequency alternator which is superior to the best in America for high-power long distance work."

"Germany is very backward in the general development of this art. No broadcasting is permitted save from a few government stations and these are in operation only twice or thrice a week. Amateur apparatus must be purchased through the government."

"It seems had judgment thus to handicap the German wireless amateur. German amateurs in flying who had gone in for the construction and management of air-giders recently have been arrested."

"Developments in the United States prove that similar results may be expected from the amateur in wireless."

I asked Mr. De Forest to outline his conception of the ultimate possibilities of broadcasting in America.

"To my mind the great importance of broadcasting as an adjunct to the nation's life," he replied, "is that it offers something which does not take people out of their homes. This has immense value, especially for young folk."

"Wireless is an addition to the home. Most other means of entertainment which have been developed by the scientific men (barring, of course, the wonderful achievement of Edison with the phonograph) have tended to take their devotees to public places."

"It therefore is immeasurably important that the development of wireless should be thoughtfully carried out."

"Especially it will transmit to tens of thousands, probably to tens of tens of thousands, educational discourses, such as scientific and generally cultural lectures, just as it now takes to innumerable little ones those bed-time stories which are doing so much to lighten mothers' burdens in a multitude of households."

Will Increase Home Content.

"I am confident that in wireless will be found one of the greatest agencies ever known for the spread of general content in home life, especially in the rural districts. Presently we shall not only have such mail correspondence courses as now have proved themselves to be so very useful, but perhaps definite university extension courses transmitted to the very fireless of the student by his wireless apparatus."

"The University of Wisconsin for a year has been broadcasting lectures upon appropriate topics to housewives, farmers and children."

"The cultural possibilities of wireless are beyond prediction. Eventually it will acquaint the great mass of our people with that better sort of music which the greater number of our people neither have the opportunity nor the desire to listen to."

"It will not be many years before every symphony concert by a great orchestra will be heard through wireless by tens of thousands far distant from the hall in which it is performed. Music which now can be heard only by the wealthy and the favorably located will be free ere long, to all who may care to listen."

"What the art principally needs is a simple static eliminator which can be used in every home receiving set so that the delightful broadcast programs need no longer be interrupted and made dreadful by that scratching and banging with which all radio fans are familiar and which fills them with despair."

I asked Mr. De Forest about his moving-speaking pictures which have been so widely heralded.

"They will be," said he, "another gift of science to the entertainment and instruction of the developed human being. A year ago I took to Germany for further development the photo-film, or talking-moving picture, an American invention. My thought in going abroad was that a new environment would divorce me from attention to those radio and business problems which here in America had absorbed my attention, as well as to get the benefit of the highest skill in optical science which was very deeply needed in the production of the moving-speaking picture."

"In Berlin I succeeded in finishing up the strictly laboratory side of the problem, working out the electrical and mechanical details. The remaining problem, which must be solved before perfection is attained, is mainly of technique."

"We have to learn how best to stage our picture and how best to record the voice which by our process of simultaneous photography on the same film inevitably synchronizes with it."

"There have been several honest claims proved afterwards to be unfounded, but in elaborate long distance receiving stations, where money is no object, much has been done."

"During eight or nine months of the year, including the winter, transatlantic communication is reliable and it is not seriously interrupted during 75 per cent of the aggregate of summer hours."

secured the services of the celebrated Hugo Riesenfeld in the working out of this considerable problem. He already has done marvels in providing musical, lighting and general scenic accessories to the display of motion pictures in several great theatres in New York and elsewhere. He is now associated with me in the work of combining the action and the voice so that the perfect mechanical process will produce the perfect artistic effect."

No Grand Opera at First.

"We shall deal with all kinds of music, but, at first, in small numbers. That is, we shall not attempt grand opera but shall reproduce the pictures and voices of individual singers," although we regard the filming of opera as our ultimate goal. When it has been accomplished the residents of the small towns who now, if they remain at home, can have no opportunity to see and hear the first class artists, will be enabled to enjoy their work in great ensembles as fully as the audiences at the great opera houses of New York and Chicago can be present. By long before this is accomplished we shall be able to show anywhere the singing or speaking pictures of individual artists."

"Conceivably the apparatus, in the course of time, may be installed in private homes, but for a long time to come it will be rather expensive."

"Another handicap upon that project is that so long as broadcasting sets of light power are in use in large numbers it must remain impossible to send music out over distances great than, say, a hundred miles."

But it is probable that all such stations will soon be sending out the music of the photo-film, though, of course, they will not send out the pictures."

"For the photo-film will be of immense service to the broadcasting stations and those who get material from them. The device will permit the broadcasting from all stations of the very best of singers, speakers, preachers and readers, and duplication of especially good programs an indefinite number of times and from an indefinite number of stations. Good programs will not pass out of existence as their original vibrations come to an end. The new invention will make the scope of the voice truly national, indeed, conceivably worldwide."

Will Educate the People.

"Educational films of the very highest value will be possible by the new method, for we shall be able to show not only the pictures of the objects which are being studied but simultaneously to present the spoken explanations and comment of trained experts with regard to them."

"This method will make language teaching easy, for it will not only give the sound but will show the pupil all the movements of the lips and some of the formations of the tongue necessary to the production of specified sounds."

"The films will add much to the ordinary motion picture exhibition, as, for instance, animated cartoons. In addition to the cost of production will be slight. The instruments needed in the studio will not cost more than $2,000, a mere bagatelle when compared with regular studio expenditures. The attachments necessary in the theatre where the films will be shown and heard will not cost more than $500—the receipts of one performance."

"The sound projector has been designed to fit the two most popular forms of motion picture projecting machines so that most theatres will be able to equip themselves with the necessary apparatus at very slight expense."

"I cannot say just when the photo-film will be ready for public exhibition, but I hope the day will not be long deferred. Certain work remains to be done, but all the serious problems have been solved."

PEDDY AND PATRIOTISM AGAINST MAYFIELD AND MASKS LAW AND ORDER above the SECRET FORCES OF DARKNESS

Leading Democrats and patriots are enlisting daily in the forces for law and order. Exposures of the fraud and deception by which a technical nomination was purchased for $40,500, (law allowing but $10,000) for an advocate of river bottom courts is driving voting citizens in tidal waves to the support of the bill of rights and the constitution.

For Personal Views of Leading Democrats of Wichita County—Read Letters Below

C. H. VERSCHOYLE, Oil Operator

HON. JOHN C. KAY,
Chairman George Peddy Club,
City.
Dear Sir:—
I have always been, and I expect to continue being a DEMOCRAT. The great fundamental principles of our constitutions and the precious privileges and immunities guaranteed to the people by the Bill of Rights, are dear to me. At this time these splendid elements of our government appear most certainly to be endangered. The present race for the seat of Junior United States Senator from Texas seems certain to advertise to the world that, either on the one hand we are for orderly government, or on the other hand we are for a system of so-called government that sanctions the threat, the stake, the gibbet, the lash and the tar bucket.
Out of the fog of political ructions that have all but strangled the people of Texas, George Peddy has risen, rocket-like, to a place of high favor. His rise is no accident. His strong faith in, and his adherence to the lofty ideals of true democracy will carry him far. I expect to vote for him, and I am happy to have the privilege of endorsing him.
Yours very truly,
C. H. VERSCHOYLE

W. W. SILK, Oil Producer

TO MY FRIENDS:—
I shall vote on November 7th for Mr. George Peddy, because it is my duty as an American citizen to do so.
Every man or woman who loves freedom and is acquainted with history, knows that it will not do to put men in office that teach doctrines which will destroy the fundamental principles of free government.
Mr. Peddy is one of God's noble sons, that has equipped himself in every way to fill this high office. He is a great orator, with a trained mind and is a true-hearted gentleman.
Yours very truly,
W. W. SILK

D. T. CROSS, Electra

WHY I AM FOR PEDDY:—
After a careful investigation of the facts of the case, I am giving a few reasons of why I am for George Peddy to represent the state of Texas in Washington: First, that he is 100 per cent American, and proved himself so, in the World War, beyond any doubt. That he is the man for United States Senator is further proven by the fact that in all the state of Texas there is not a man who has a better insight into the problems and conditions that confront us.
I believe in a government that gives equal privileges to the rich and the poor, the masked and the unmasked, with special privileges to none, and I firmly believe George Peddy to be such a man.
Last, but by no means least, he does not wear a mask and robe and work secretly, but comes out in the clear and says what he thinks and does what he says he will do. He has given this matter much thought and it is my firm belief that when the voters of Texas go to the polls on the 7th day of November, if they will stop and ask themselves the question of what is best for me and my government, regardless of organizations and abominations and cast their vote according to the dictates of their conscience, the ballots will be a big majority for George Peddy.
D. T. CROSS

C. L. BASS, Attorney

TO ALL PERSONS:—
I love my country more than any party.
I believe that my country will be best served by making laws according to the principles of equal religious liberty and other equal rights taught by Thomas Jefferson and advocated by George Peddy.
I believe that my country will be best served by defeating for office any person who takes an oath to support a secret party advocating restriction of equal religious liberty, and to keep secret any knowledge of the acts of other members, except treason, rape and murder.
For, if such person knows of a crime committed by one of his party, then such person must violate his party oath or be in contempt of court by refusing to testify or be guilty of perjury by testifying falsely in court.
The taking of such a party oath tends to undermine public justice and ought to be made an offense against the state.
It has been proven that the Ku Klux party nominated Earle B. Mayfield for United States Senator, and then went into the Democratic primary and assisted in again nominating him as a Democrat.
No one voting in the Democratic primary is pledged to vote for the nominee if the nominee does not stand on Democratic principles and stands on the principles of another party that advocates restriction of religious liberty and either defiance of the courts or committing perjury in the courts.
To the clear, sane mind of one who loves his country, there can be but one course under such circumstances. I will write "George Peddy" under the words "Candidate for United States Senator" upon the official ballot and I will scratch the name of Earle B. Mayfield or any other candidate belonging to or accepting a nomination from the Ku Klux Klan or any such party.
C. L. BASS

J. B. HATCHITT, Lawyer

I shall vote for George Peddy for the Senate. He was my comrade during the war and I always found him a true soldier and patriot according to every standard.
It does not trouble me at all to be compelled to repudiate a discredited and wholly unworthy party nominee in order to cast my vote for a sterling Democrat whom I personally know to be well qualified and thoroughly deserving.
In my opinion, the only view which can justify a decent citizen in casting his vote for the present so-called Democratic nominee, is based on the idea that duty to party is above duty to country. I cannot subscribe to any such doctrine.
J. B. HATCHITT

TOM CORRIDON, Jr.

Iowa Park, Oct. 27, 1922
HON. JOHN C. KAY,
Chairman Peddy Campaign Committee,
Wichita Falls, Texas
Dear Sir:—
I wish to enroll under the banner of George Peddy. I have reached this decision after careful deliberation, believing, as I do, that my country comes first, and that every citizen of the United States is entitled to worship God as his conscience dictates, regardless of his race or creed.
Every man must have protection under the law; our laws are sufficient: all are entitled to protection of person and property and in the pursuit of happiness. I believe that George Peddy will make the people of Texas a United States Senator to be proud of.
Very truly yours,
TOM CORRIDON JR.

FRANK KELL

Dear Sir:—
I am glad to advise I shall be very glad to extend my support to Honorable George Peddy for United States Senator. I feel that the support of Peddy is well justified on many grounds; my own support being chiefly by reason of the fact that he was brought up in the country, where nearly all good men get their first training, was reared by a widowed mother, is a self-made man, a man of the highest grade moral worth, of very splendid professional capacity, and one of the most brilliant young men in Texas, with a clean record as a citizen. He offered his services to his country when the emergency arose by reason of the world war, and made a brilliant record in the service; on the return of the army to America he received an honorable discharge, completed his education, and entered his profession.
In my opinion, there being no legal nominee of the Democratic party representing the will of the majority of the voters in Texas, I feel that a vote for the Honorable George Peddy in no wise impairs one's political record as a Democrat.
Should Peddy be elected United States Senator he would go into office untrammelled by any allegiance to an invisible government and unpledged to the radical leadership of organized labor, free to represent the people at large, composed of workmen, farmers and business men, casting his vote and influence at all times, guided only by the interest of good government.
Yours very truly,
FRANK KELL

C. H. CLARK, Oil and Land

HON. JOHN KAY, Chairman,
City.
Dear Sir:—
I am glad to say that the platform of George Peddy, candidate for United States Senator, suits my idea of civil government. I do not now and never have believed that the politics of this country should be controlled by any influence that does not conform to the Bill of Rights, the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States.
Believing that my duty lies first to my country above everything else, I have made up my mind definitely that I should support George Peddy for the United States Senate.
Very truly yours,
C. H. CLARK

W. T. WILLIS, Ranchman

I am taking this opportunity of expressing to the citizens of Wichita county, my views and reason therefor, in deciding who should be elected for United States Senator at the coming election, i. e. George Peddy.
Surely you will not misinterpret the spirit of the occasion when I assume that the whole people's covenant with me and with one another, to support and defend the constitution of these United States, to yield willing obedience to all the laws and each to every other citizen his equal, civil and religious rights, for mob rule is intolerable in any form. With these principles clearly in your mind, that advocates them; then you have put your country above all other obligations and then surely you are one hundred percent American.
Respectfully yours,
W. T. WILLIS

The Hon. George Peddy is a native Texan. He proved his patriotism on the fields of France. He has now been drafted to lead the forces of reconstruction. He is a rising self-made man of the people. He is a keen student of government and stands four-square on the foundation principles of democracy taught by Thomas Jefferson.

The hour has struck when Americans who believe in these principles must choose between them and their advocate, and secret manipulations without rule of law and the advocate of invisible empires, choose between justice administered in courts of law in the light of day, and the alternative of mob rule from decisions reached under hiding of masks and darkness in pastures at midnight. For unfettered citizens who think for themselves, we believe there is but one choice. Register your decision with a clear conscience November 7th at the ballot box.

We, the undersigned, believe that the foregoing and duties and obligations of citizenship demand the election of George Peddy as the solution of the crisis in Texas, we believe that his election will lead Texas out of political confusion, and urge his support:

DECLINE IS NOTED IN OIL ACTIVITIES PRICE IS FACTOR

Wagoner land Kruger-Pols company also completed their third well in this sand, good for 40 barrels. Completion a week ago. The well of Carter-Carter on the Jim Fisher land was placed on the pump for 12 hours.

Several tests on the Planet and Texas Wagoner leases are being casing on the sands preparatory to drilling in the next few days. Tests in the semi-wildcat districts are feeling the water shortage and are shutting down until the situation has been remedied.

Manhins District Has Moderate Boom; Griswold Gets Good Well at Electra.

A slight gain in production, several good completions and a number of deals were developments in the district for the past week. A slackening in activities is evident in the north Texas district due to the price of oil.

With the picking up of different sands in the county a number of tests in the existing or wildcat sections are preparing to resume operations at an early date.

TWO BIG GASSESS FEATURES OF WEEK IN YOUNG COUNTY

GRAHAM, TEXAS, Oct. 28.—Burton, Reed and Beavers brought in a big gasser this week on their Paws lease at 2395 feet. Actual gauge shows this well to be making better than 16,000,000 feet of gas.

The second big gasser for the week came on Wednesday 45 feet southwest from the old original Barnes Production company well on the Parsons. They found the gas at 2525 feet and the well tests 15,000,000 feet of gas.

The Tulsa company, a Tulsa concern, is reliably stated, is obligated to begin drilling before January 1 on 108 acres out of the Muskien fee, located southwest of the Texas gasser possibly a mile and a quarter away.

With the picking up of different sands in the county a number of tests in the existing or wildcat sections are preparing to resume operations at an early date.

Four wells were finished in the Electra pool, two in the 1300 foot sand and two in the 1000 foot pay. The Griswold Oil company brought in the best their No. 15 Burnett Bryan lease, being finished Thursday with a flow of 450 barrels from the 1500 foot sand.

A clean, wholesome, undeniable and wholly enjoyable musical attraction is announced as coming to the Palace theatre Friday and Saturday, Nov. 3 and 4, with matinee Saturday, when Geo. E. Wintz presents the brilliant musical comedy entitled "Eve". This lively and optimistic little comedy is the central idea that attracts attention, but the very rational manner in which the characters portray their parts that makes the picture understandable and highly entertaining. The tragic and the comedy side of life are presented with vividness and realism. luxurious scenes with a continual and bewitching change of ravishing costumes. In witnessing the process of "Eve" it is said that Johnnie Getz has every audience to the point of exhaustive laughter, a riot of laughter, the kind that makes the eye stream and the ribs ache. The entrancing musical score includes every phase of fitting harmony from the jazziest to the classical. It is the kind you'll whistle and hum as you leave the theatre and retain in your memory. For a nearer view of the charming beauties of the feminine ensemble a feature of the production will be a "jeweled illuminated runway" illuminated footpath extending from the stage to and over the orchestra seats in the auditorium. Over the runway the singing and dancing maidens will from time to time trip their fascinating selves over the heads of the audience but not too far above to hide their smiling lips, flashing eyes and alluring dimples. The all prominent cast of entertainers includes Nyra Brown, Angerica's most beautiful actress; John G. Getz, monkey man and perfect nut; Harmonized Quartette, Helen Janis, Ace Wingfield, Babe Monnot, Harry Green, Walter Diggs, Elwood Brown, Betty Fairfax, Cecil Graham, Smiles Rodgers and Baby Richards, with the biggest and best appearing chorus ever out of New York.

"Burning Sands" At the Olympic Starting Monday

A desert story which treats the native Arabs as human beings, and which is tremendously appealing and dramatic, is "Burning Sands," which comes to the Olympic Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, a George H. Melford production, of Arthur Weisell's successful novel adapted by Olga Printzlau, and Waldemar Young. This Paramount picture has as its central character Daniel Lane, a student and philosopher who lives among the Arabs and who, by his insight and sympathy, learns to know them as the ordinary man never does, and so finds in them much to admire. Lane is a splendid character, sympathetically portrayed by Milton Sills. The other featured part, that of Muriel, is allotted to Miss Hawley. Muriel is the present-day type of pleasure-loving, materialistic young woman; who refers to herself as an "emancipated" but who is really a slave to her whims and desires. She is an English girl the daughter of Lord Blair, His Majesty's Chief Commissioner to Egypt and the Sudan. Muriel, petted and spoiled, accustomed to admiration and flattery from every man, meets Lane, and out of the encounter of these contrasting characters grows the drama. Lane does not flatter; he admires, but in silence, because while he realized Muriel's great charm, he is convinced that it would be a great mistake for him to yield to it. Muriel is fascinated by this man, so different from any in her circle of courtiers. As time goes on, she finds him "too good to be true." His apparent indifference to her, so unprecipitated in her experience, piques her interest. She decides that he must prefer the native women, and jumps to

Musical Comedy Entitled 'Eve' Is Coming to Palace

The first of the season's road shows will appear at the Palace theatre on Friday and Saturday, November 3 and 4, a musical comedy production entitled "Eve." The show has as its star Nyra Brown, a famous beauty and New York comedy star. Prominent assistants are Johnnie Getz, known as the monkey man and "perfect nut" and the harmony quartet. Twelve big features are claimed for the attraction which include the mirror ball, LaZarkia the cutana exponent of perennial dancers, a dazzling bubble effect, the radium dance, a flirtation walk 15 rows into the audience, and one of the most elaborate wedding scenes ever presented on the musical comedy stage. The company boasts a large orchestra and a perfect avalanche of original songs. The Edna Park stock company, one whose southern fame equals that of Gene Lewis-Olga Worth will open an indefinite engagement at the Palace November 12. Reports were secured on a number of companies by Manager Ford before the Edna Park company was selected. He is very enthusiastic over it and believes it will be one of the finest ever brought to this city. Jack Doty, who made such a hit with Gene Lewis here last season, is a member of the company. When a lobster's shell becomes too small the lobster bursts it by a series of spasms and grows a new one. It has been estimated that on a mature maple tree of vigorous growth there is one-half acre of leaf surface exposed to the sun.

"REMEMBRANCE" PICTURE THAT GRIPS HEART INTEREST WHILE BEAUTIFUL STORY IS UNFOLDED

No picture made by Rupert Hughes is more interesting. That is universally conceded. Furthermore, since the "American Balloon" has focused his genius upon making photodramas, it has come to be an accepted fact that one of more of his works will be numbered each year among the season's "best sellers."

Indications are that in his latest picture "Remembrance," Major Hughes has repeated his great success of last season, "The Old Nest." In "Remembrance," which is at the Strand theater beginning Monday, the self-sacrificing fatherhood is the theme, just as self-sacrifice of motherhood was the motif of "The Old Nest."

The story is a simple, straightforward one, yet with all the tremendous human appeal, or "heart interest," that distinguishes the work of its author. There is no dependence in it upon crowds or tricks of photography. Faithfulness to life might be set down as the dominating feature. No doubt in every town in the United States persons who see "Remembrance" will recognize friends or acquaintances—perhaps even themselves in "Pop" or "Mom," or in their children, or in the other characters of a most capable cast.

"Remembrance" is distinctly an American drama, of American city life. But its characters, so faithfully portrayed on the silver sheet under the direction of Major Hughes himself, and so eloquently articulated through the medium of the sub-titles written in the fascinating style peculiar to him, are so perfectly human that there is no doubt of its universal appeal.

It is a little family world with all the annoying troubles and individual failings and with the inherent goodness of human nature underlying the whole, that Major Hughes has created with the "magic camera." In it there is deep interest for youth as well as for old age. Indeed, it would be strange if the man who had won the world for his audience, first through the printed page and now through the pictorial screen, failed in winning the interest of both sexes and all ages.

An almost unnecessary comment, but one that is not out of place here, perhaps, is that this picture illustrates another accomplishment of Major Hughes, which is to get his powerful dramatic effects through action that is "clean," sane and wholesome, and yet has nothing of mawkishness or sentimentality about it. His pathos and his humor alike are secured through an unerring ability to isolate pure samples of human nature and hold them under the powerful microscope of genius and understanding so that all may see and appreciate.

Picture Brings Back Memories Cherished Past

There are those in Wichita Falls who can remember when there were no movies to go to, no automobiles, no chiropractors, no paved streets, no skyscrapers to mark the progress of a busy bustling city. But there is nothing really pleasant about remembering those things, so why not turn our thoughts to pleasant memories.

Life passes us quickly but we can treasure its joys forever. We sometimes long to bring back all of its tender memories. We think tenderly of our early sweetheart days, the first kiss, the first pang of love in "Remembrance" Rupert. Hughes brings back to us the past as vividly and truly as though each of us were young lovers again in Arcady.

But there are other things to remember. There is joy in remembering one's friends, the little courtesies shown us by our merchants and neighbors that should be a source of pleasure.

We have listed here a few of Wichita Falls merchants who are striving to make your dealing with them a pleasant remembrance—and you will no doubt remember them.

STRAND PROMISES INNOVATION IN THE MUSICAL SETTINGS WITH PRODUCTION OF "REMEMBRANCE"

The character of the musical program to be offered in connection with the showing of Rupert Hughes' "Remembrance" at the Strand promises an innovation in musical settings and will consist of a blending of numbers that will give the classic representation to the old numbers moods and paraling the theme of the picture. "When You and I Were Young, Maggie," "Silver Threads Among the Gold," "Sweet Alice Ben Bolt," and song, the memory of which will arouse in the mind subconscious thoughts that are tender and sweet, melodies that will recall vividly the first kiss, the first pang of love—and ere the picture is over you will be living again in the happy, sweetest days of long ago.

To Miss Lou Thomas, Strand organist, goes the honor of the musical score rendered for "Monte Cristo," "Orphans of the Storm," "The Man Who Played God," "Hero," and other big attractions which have played the Strand recently. Miss Thomas, besides having a wonderful touch, understands and James Somerville will be in charge of the devotional exercises. Prohibition will be discussed in its various phases.

TEN YEARS AGO ONLY THEATER ATTRACTION IN WICHITA FALLS WAS "THE BALKAN PRINCESS"

Perhaps it is an indication of advancing years, perhaps of inertia or perhaps it means nothing, but whatever the reason there is some sort of appeal in digging into the past and seeing things as they were.

A retrospective adventure was stimulated by Rupert Hughes' "Remembrance," the photoplay attraction which starts a four-day engagement at the Strand tomorrow. The files of The Times were referred to and they reveal names and happenings that were enough to brush the cob webs from one's memory and make them think and remember.

Ten years ago today, the only attraction in Wichita Falls was "The Balkan Princess," a musical message with sparkling girls and dazzling costumes and the price was $1.00, $1.50 and $2.00. How would you like to date up with friend wife and take her and the six kiddies down to the Wichita theater and pay those prices for an evening's entertainment? Yet some refer to "the good old days" with considerable pride, but they may be referring to something else besides amusements.

There were no movies in Wichita Falls 10 years ago—at least there were none advertised in The Times, and today the moving picture industry is the sixth largest in this country. There was only one automobile advertised and if the cog in the ad did jut into the ear the tin Henry of today looks like a "tinouline" in comparison. Wichita Falls has made great progress in the past 10 years and with the progressive men, the live commercial and civic organizations working in harmony for a greater Wichita Falls, the next 10 years promises greater strides in every line than the 10 years just past.

REMEMBRANCES

In the Remembrance of Almost Every Pleasant Occasion, Clothes Play an Important Role.

Anticipation and Remembrance are the most intense of all the mental sensations. Young and old, alike are prone to get the keenest enjoyment from these two extremes.

The first thought that comes to mind when an opportunity comes to visit an interesting place, to take part in a pleasurable affair is "what shall I wear?"

In the "Remembrance" of these occasions there is always the recollection of how you were dressed at that time.

Remember the frock that you wore when you went to grandma's, the first time you rode on the train, Remember how proud you were to have her see it?

The selection of the pretty frock for your graduation days was such an important thing that the years you had spent in mastering the studies were forgotten in the thrill of the new dress.

Remember the dress you wore to the first college ball and how anxious you were to have it look just as you wanted it to.

That was the night that you met Jerry and you know that it was his perfect appearance in a dress suit that attracted you to him.

Then came the thrill of choosing the wedding gown, how particular you were and how anxious that it should befit the "great moment."

So it goes, down through all the impressive "Remembrances," clothes play a role that is of prime importance.

PART TWO

TEMPTATIONS DESIGNED TO TEST CHARACTER OF MEN, JUDGE KAY TELLS HIS CLASS

There are high-grade temptations and low-grade ones that beset mankind, Judge John C. Kay told his Bible class at the Olympic theater last Sunday, and he pointed out that men who succumb to the former forfeit character and that those who give in to the latter sell themselves out cheaply.

St. John in writing his Revelation his wonderful story of his vision on the Isle of Patmos, and in his description of the new Jerusalem, points out that there was one separate crowd on white horses, higher than the others, more noticeable than the others, and he asked who they were, and he said: "These are they who have come up through much tribulation." One old German emperor said that "He is no soldier who has never tasted battle."

In the story of the mount of transfiguration, where the Savior and Peter and James and John went up there, the three leading figures were Christ, Moses and Elias, or Elijah as he is called in the old book. It is remarkable that all three of these men had fasted 40 days and 40 nights in the wilderness.

Now, the temptations that were offered the Savior are peculiar, and you can get from that a good measurement of that high ground upon which He stood, as compared to the ground that you and I stand upon. There was not one low grade temptation offered Him. He was not invited to one of the ordinary low and that we commit. Well enough did Satan know that his appeal must be made to the lofty nature of a God.

ing of the schools and go into psychology. It is just a suggestion that comes into the human mind. How does it come? You say you understand everything. You say you understand your religion. You say you understand that your church has got up here on some creek and worked out the only true doctrine in the world. If you know that much, how does it come into your mind and who made it there? I never did know.

Where does temptation come from? It comes out of the infinite blue, where you and I have no knowledge and no control. It comes from where the power is higher than we and control us.

You know, I have often thought (I don't know whether that is an orthodox view of mine), that when some fellows get started wrong, they are just man enough to keep it up without the devil ever going back to see whether the fire was burning or whether the steam was up.

It is written that man-love darkness, rather than light. It is written that we are prone to evil as much as we are prone to good.

There is one old fellow in the Bible told the truth about it. He says: "I am a whale of a big man in my community. I can say to one, go, and he goes. I can say to another, come, and he comes. Ah! There's the thing that men want. And money is only an incident to the exercise of that power. So from a human standpoint, this was the most tremendous of all temptations. Why, if he had put some of us on the mountain and offered us 160 acres of good land, to use the language of the street, some of us fellows would have said: 'You're on.'"

And, then, he invites them to jump off the temple, to test the man's scripture written in the Psalms, and quotes it. You know, there is something odd about the quotations of the scripture made by the devil in this lesson. He don't quote them exactly right. If you will read it, you will see that there is a word or two missing here and there.

Now, the temptations that were offered the Savior are peculiar, and you can get from that a good measurement of that high ground upon which He stood, as compared to the ground that you and I stand upon. There was not one low grade temptation offered Him.

There was that old fellow that said: "I don't like my barn and my corn with I am going to test them down here, but they are true grain, and I am going to say to myself, live fat." And there is many a man that listens to me now, that feels like he would like to say to his soul. It is a mighty comfortable temptation. But, what who said to this fellow that was going to put so much in his new barn, "When the night shall thy soul be required of thee." Could he do without that bread?

Every siege in human history, and almost every war, has shown that there is no limit beyond which human endurance can't go. Vicksburg, Lucknow and a hundred other sieges have course, if you were all going to get rich and powerful, I couldn't do a thing with you, maybe, but there will not be so many that will do that. But, I want you to remember that that's the goal that you strive for, many of you.

One of the finest examples of that kind of a fellow was Solomon. Solomon was a good deal wiser man than some of us, but he had peace, and he had prosperity, and he had wealth and his court was the finest court that any king had going at that time, and what, with all that, and with all his wisdom, he goes on the rocks, and wrecks at least one of the most beautiful lives in all history.

I expect it is a pretty good thing for us that a lot of us do stay poor and are denied these things, denied power, sometimes denied bread. It may be a good thing for us. If you do get hungry, there are better men than you that have starved to death.

Now, do you know what is the matter with us? A fellow feels like if I could get fixed just right, I wouldn't work. That's how at least two-thirds of the fellows look at the thing of getting power and prosperity.

But, the Savior never stopped. There is no record that he was ever sick, or ever complained of being sick. St. Paul just keeps going from coast to coast, and every great man has worked. It is no hardship on you that you have to work. There is no salvation and there is no success in ease. You know, I love to see a man with his hands all full of knots. Why? Because he explains himself. He don't have to get up and say that "I have done the best I could." He don't have to shout from the housetops that "I am a working man." He don't have to claim that he is industrious, but it is known of all men that he is a worker.

And, the Savior worked, but He didn't work for power, and He didn't work for prosperity, but He worked to lift, and lift; and lift humanity, and that's the finest of all work.

Let me beg of you don't surrender to these high temptations, and let me command you that you don't sink and stoop to fall before low grade temptations.

BACI-TRAILING ON THE OLD FRONTIERS

Drawing by CHARLES M. RUSSELL

Freighting with 'Bulls' and Mule Teams in Frontier Times in the West Formed One of Great and Picturesque Industries that Has Been Forgotten.

Extension of the railroads, more than 20 years ago, over the trade routes of the west, and the evolution of the pioneer railway from the narrow gauge, commonly known as the "turkey trail" into the heavier and more substantial standard gauge, marked the end of the bull and mule trains of the prairie and the picture of that type of transportation, which had so much to do with the development of the west. Little has been written of the freighting industry of the west, and this phase of frontier life has become almost completely obscured by the passing years.

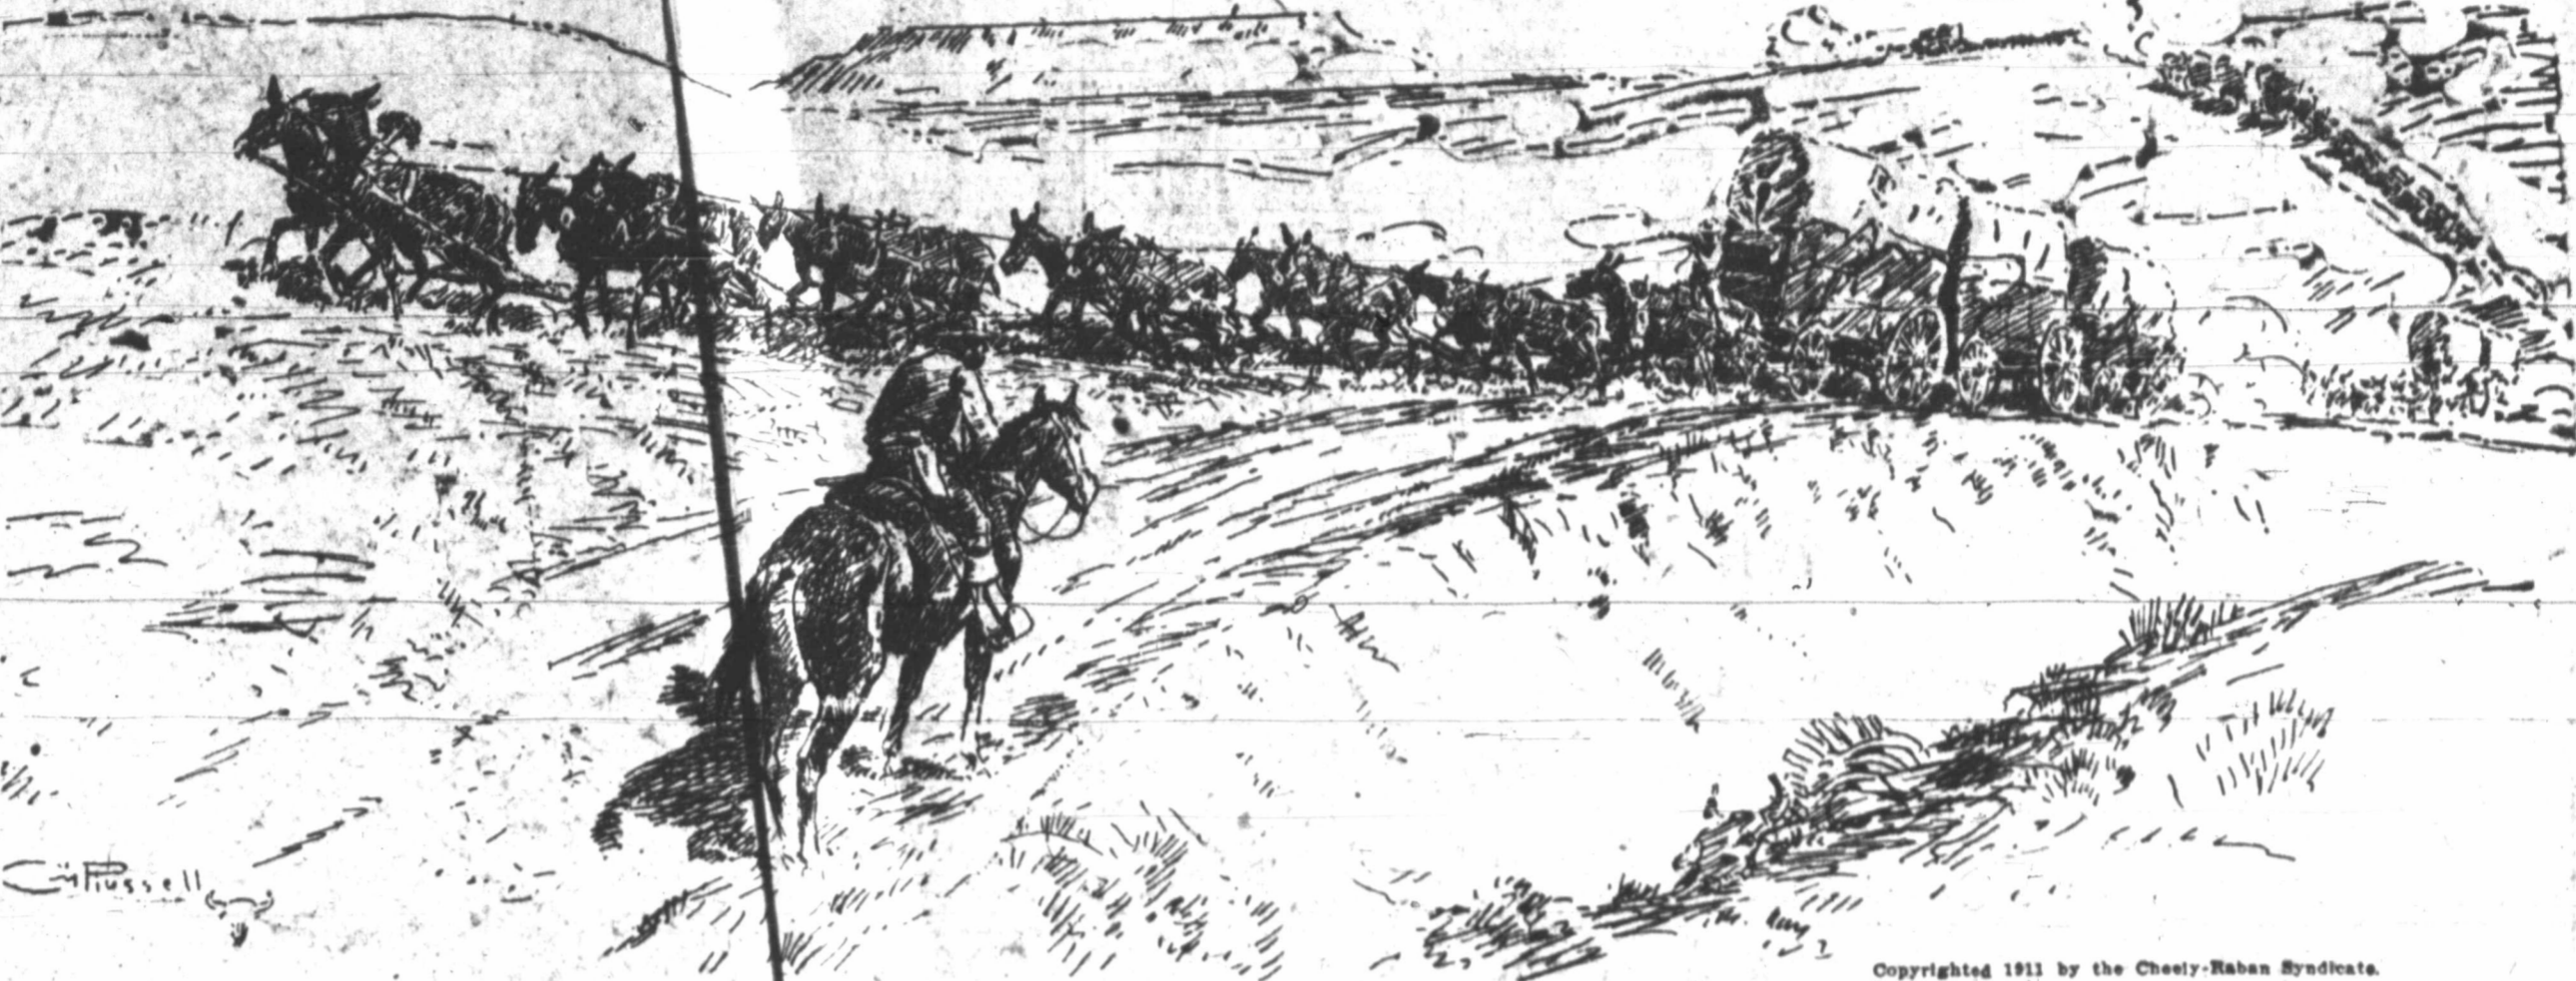

An epic of a half a century ago might be written around the "bull" train, which carried the frontier train, which carried the military and the Indian agencies of the great area lying between the Mississippi river and the Rocky mountains. Today that wild and picturesque territory lives only in the memories of a handful of grizzled pioneers. The names of towns that were important as distributing points have been forgotten or are remembered only as ghost cities of the west. There were many of these, but few achieved in their day the importance of the town of Carroll, which for two or three years made its bid as a rival of Fort Benton, which for two decades, between 1810 and 1840, was head of steamboat navigation on the Missouri river.

Carroll, which had an existence of only a few years, was established by Matt Carroll, after whom it was named. E. G. Mackay, George Steele and Colonel Charles A. Broadwater, writers of the great Diamond R. Transportation company, in its day the greatest freighting concern between the Mississippi and the Pacific coast. It represented the second effort to found a successful rival to Fort Benton as a freight debarking point for Missouri river steamboats from St. Louis, Sioux City and other river ports.

The town of Carroll was built in 1814, at a time when river traffic had assumed great importance. It was built, due to low water in the river, steamboats bound for Fort Benton with supplies for the gold camps had been unable to ascend the river as far as the mouth of the Yellowstone, and had unloaded at the trading post conducted by Major F. D. Pease. Colonel Broadwater, who had charge of actual freighting operations for the Diamond R. took several teams of wagons and went down to Pease's post, near Fort Union, to take the freight from the steamboats to Helena. He located fords, built grades up and down the river banks, and built a road consisting of a diamond R. in the center, was the best known emblem in the northwest, and was seen on the trails everywhere.

The partners stocked the Diamond R. with the finest mule teams and oxen that money could buy. Their wagon met steamers at Fort Benton, and carried to the mouth of the Judith river (Fort Claggett), and after 1814, at Carroll, and carried their cargo to every mining camp, town, army post and Indian agency in the northwestern country. They contracted with the government for transporting supplies, not only to military camps and posts, but also with troops in the field. Carroll, in person, took charge of the supply trains of General Gibbon and other commands during the Sioux campaign of 1816, and was among the first on the battlefield where Custer and his command were wiped out, the day after the battle. He was with Colonel Baker when attacked by Sitting Bull at Baker's battle ground, now occupied by the town of Huntley.

The Diamond R. partners firmly believed Carroll would supply Fort Benton as the river traffic terminal. It was an immense and profitable industry. The Diamond R. company was the largest single enterprise in the Rocky mountain region in the middle 70's.

he was being reluctantly hauled along as one of the team, the fun was fast and furious. Especially would this be the case if he broke loose and with a heavy yoke swinging around his neck, would make the skinner's eye under the wagon until the key broke the yoke flew off at a tangent and the business began afresh.

Some of the old-time bullwhackers, once Indian fighters, to whom an Indian was one degree lower than a coyote, are still living, but like the early day placer miners, their ranks are thinning rapidly. To many of these the bull train stood for home, and they felt like evicted tenants when the shriek of the locomotive sounded the destruction of the bull camp.

For a time during the early steamboating days, owing to the limited means of transportation compared with its needs, freighters commended their own prices and at times received as high as ten cents per pound for hails of 100 miles or less. This did not continue long, however, for freighters soon became plentiful. In one year, 1847, it was estimated, Montana alone paid $1,000,000 in gold for freight charges and the population numbered only a few thousand.

One of the picturesque freight terminals of the 70's was Miles City, which first was an army post, then a railroad construction camp and later a cow town. Describing those days, Sam Gordon, a pioneer editor of that place, writes:

"Speaking of freighting, it was surely a sight when a Diamond R. bull-train pulled into Main street en route to Rough from Glendive or Buford, loaded with government freight. With from eight to twelve two and often three wagon loads of 'bulls' to a team, hauling the heavy top-heavy mass against you. It was a dog's life as far as the comfort and amenities went. The men rarely went beyond black coffee, sour-dough bread and 'now belly' fried in a skillet in its own grease thickened with flour and of camp shelter there was none for the men were too tired at night to arrange any but the most primitive protection and they 'pulled' too early in the morning to do any 'breaking camp.' Summer was bad enough but the slow and uncertain creep of a bull-train-on-the-road-in-winter was an experience to be endured only once by anyone but a real bull-whacker. Why he endured it he probably could not explain but there was possibly an element of personal pride and ambition in it that had its brief display on the occasions mentioned, when the train rolled into town and the fine points of the profession were shown. It was a fleeting glory, though, for an hour after the train had been paraded all hands were too drunk to tell their own names and were swayed up in the spirit that added around the 'Diamond R.' corner and by pure centrifugal force were one by one thrown off into the park, there to lie and sleep the overwearing effects of the dogs they had taken aboard."

CIRCULAR GUARD ON WHEEL RIMS NEWEST DEVICE

Splash preventers may soon be seen on motor buses of this country. Devices for keeping mud from splashing pedestrians have been out for the last 10 years. None has been found practical until the circular guard to be attached to the rim of each wheel.

Recent tests by Paris officials resulted in the approval of this type of "splash preventer" for use on that city's motor buses. Heretofore the buses have been equipped with a flap swinging on each hub across the wheel. It was effective as a splash guard, except when a prepared mud track with white canvas boards divided into squares on each side. The amount of mud splashed on the guards showed the efficiency of the device.

The winner was a ring of rubber and canvas attached to the rim, projecting about an inch or so from the tire. Second to this was a similar guard, except that its attachment to the rim was different. The third was a flap across the hub, as on the Paris buses with the addition of a device to keep it from swinging.

Paris buses are now being equipped in muddy weather with circular form of splash preventer.

Interest in these guards has spread the ocean. Some form may soon be seen on the motor buses here.

Quite often carburetor trouble can be traced back to the intake valves. If one of the intake valves does not seat properly, or if the valve stem sticks in its guide occasionally, it will be difficult matter to obtain satisfactory adjustment of the carburetor.

A device for letting the air out of inner tubes can be made by driving a nail into a valve cap, so that when it is fastened on the valve, it will raise up and permit the air to escape through an outlet filed in the cap.

FREAKISH TYPES OF BODIES HAVE NO MORE DEMAND

"It was but a few years ago that the closed car was merely an adjunct to the regular line of types produced by automobile manufacturers and the demand for this type was nothing to be compared with the unprecedented demand that exists today," says D. L. Fritz, of the Fritz Motor Co.

"As one looks back at the progress made in automobile body construction during recent years, one fact is prominently evident and that is the freakish types of body have lost favor with the public. Today the standard practice of the car makers, body designers are guided by the desires of the public and dignified design is the vogue.

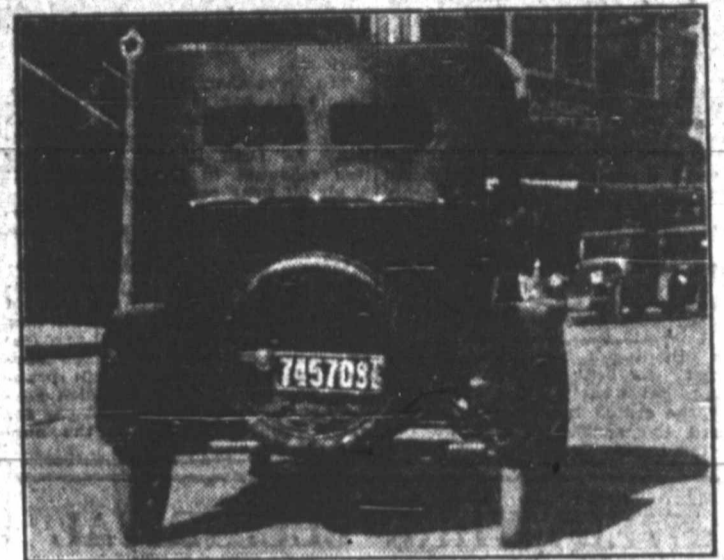

"As a famous designer of women's modes so aptly declared, 'The well dressed woman of refinement should be attired so that she is not conspicuous but yet commands attention by the good taste she displays' so it is with the average closed car of today. They are beautiful, dignified, practical and built for utilitarian purposes.

"Figures recently issued by the national automobile chamber of commerce state that the 1922 production will exceed 2,000,000 motor vehicles alone. During the second quarter of 1922, the entire industry produced 762,000 motor vehicles with 1,127,000 cars and trucks for the first six months. Generally speaking, the closed car is used as a utility vehicle and because it is so adapted to all seasons its popularity has increased by leaps and bounds since the days when the Phoenicians journeyed westward, man has striven to better the mode of travel. He sought new means of expressing himself and as centuries went on civilization and transportation became co-pastors moving down the ages hand in hand.

"The invention of the wheel was the most important step in promoting progress and is comparable only to the compass which guides mariners when out of sight of land. Steam engines helped to quicken the transportation movement and more and more individuals sought rapid and better transportation.

"With the advent of the motor car, it was believed that the last word in transportation had been found because of its independence of such things as schedules, time tables, etc., to which the average man had heretofore been bound. The automobile opened up new avenues

WHO GETS THE FIRST SEARCHLIGHT?

The unsuspecting owner of the automobile shown in the photograph above happened to drive right in front of the photographer's camera last week and as a result, if he will come to the Times office and establish the fact that he is the owner of the car, he will be rewarded with a $15 search light.

This is the first photograph of a series of twelve. One picture will appear each Sunday on the automobile page of the Daily Times.

The names of the recipients of the searchlight will be printed the following Sunday morning.

The automobile owner who finds a picture of his car on this page is requested to come to The Times office some time before Thursday night of the week in which the picture appeared and an order will be given for a search light. The Langford Motor Supply company will install the light free of charge.

Progress has advanced with the advent of the motor car and today its importance is felt throughout the world.

"The new Reo closed models represent the best work in closed cars. Mechanical reliability that is institutionally Reo is built into the double-framed chassis, with the power units suspended in an inner frame which, in turn, is cradled with the outer one.

"Fifty horse-power is developed in the six ground cylinders in which travel the aluminum-alloy pistons. And quietly carried to the drive wheels through a 4-bearing crankshaft, a 13-plate clutch, an anti-ship-mounted transmission and smoothly operating universal joints.

"Both new Reo closed models attracted unusual attention at the closed car exhibition in New York and those who have seen these closed cars agree that never before has mechanical goodness so effectively joined forces with beauty and utility as in the new Reo all-steel paneled coupe and sedan."

A coat of graphite or common stove polish will prevent rime from becoming rusty.

CHANDLER OFFERS WIDE RANGES IN CHOICE OF MODEL

"There never was a time when the Chandler Motor Car company was able to offer such a wide range of choice in motor car models as now," says J. D. Moulder of Wilhelm Moulder Auto Co., who has an exhibit of the handsome new Chandler Six at their show room.

The addition of a smart, new five-passenger touring car to the Chandler six line at the beginning of the year has been followed by the bringing-out-of-two-more-new-models-of-usual style. One of these is the Royal Dispatch, an ultra-sport car with wire wheels carrying two spare wheels over the front fenders, and a polished aluminum trunk rack at the rear.

The latest model brought out by the Chandler company is the five-passenger Metropolitan sedan, a close coupled, closed car of striking beauty featured by an aluminum trunk rack.

"These three new models in the Chandler line have received an enthusiastic reception," says Mr. Moulder. "The outstanding fact is that the Chandler Motor Car company is now providing its distributors and dealers with any type of motor car that may be desired.

"If the automobile buyer has to take care of large family, the seven-passenger touring car and the seven-passenger sedan are available. "If his family is small he can express his preference for the five-passenger touring car or Metropolitan sedan. For the doctor desiring a town car, the coupe fills a valuable place. The very sporty rider can purchase the Royal Dispatch, one of the handsomest cars on the market. The four-passenger chunky roadster has an important place and the two-passenger roadster is a smart, worthwhile car for the market which this type commands.

"Then for the customer who wants a chauffeur driven car, there is nothing more beautiful on the market than the Chandler limousine.

"Moreover in the Chandler line of body types—every one of admitted beauty—the buyer has a wide range of colors from which to choose. There is a choice of two colors on every car except the Metropolitan sedan. The colors of the ten Chandler models include, blue, green, maroon and gray."

The motorist who makes his own repairs will learn the ins and outs of his car more readily than having it done by someone else.

MOTOR DUST

Of Personal Interest to the Motoring Public and Dealers.

W. S. Langford of the Langford Motor company, spent the last few days in Dallas, returning Saturday morning.

The question was asked Otto Lambert, of the Langford Motor company: "Do you know anything for the motor dust?" He laughed and replied, "The only thing that I know, is that business is darn good."

E. V. Lesley of the Auto Tire company, said that he may not be selling so many tires, but he was sure shooting his part of the shells up at the gun club. He stated that business was holding up fine and that he was very optimistic as to the future business.

The next meeting of the Automobile Dealers Association will be held in the saleroom of the Victory

It is not advisable to fold curtains flat, especially if it is impossible to fold them so that the window lights will not be folded over as the creases, as it is the folding which cracks and breaks the lights.

DODGE BROTHERS BUSINESS COUPE

The approach of winter emphasizes the all-year usefulness of the car.

Wind and sleet beat in vain against the weather-stripped doors and windows. A floor radiator keeps the interior as warm as a room. The windows are readily adjusted for ventilation.

Underlying these seasonal comforts, is the satisfaction owners feel in the car's exceptional sturdiness.

The body proper is a hand-welded steel unit. It is now generally known that this novel construction has made possible Dodge Brothers enamel finish (instead of paint) which is baked at high temperature on the surface of the steel.

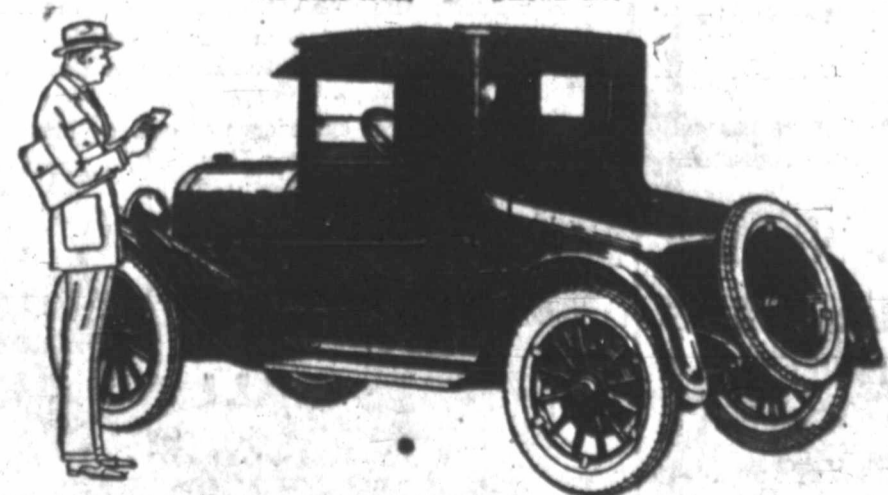

The trimness and grace of the body lines are enhanced by a non-rumble fabric top and rear quarters fashioned in the present attractive mode.

Genuine Spanish blue leather upholstery, wide snug-fitting doors, and roomy luggage quarters heighten the impression you instantly get of the car's distinctive fitness for service, either business or social.
