DR. VAN DYKE MAY COME TO THIS CITY SOME TIME IN 1923

Dr. Henry Van Dyke, most variously gifted literary man of today, may come to Wichita Falls and other Texas college cities next year, according to a letter received from him by Professor R. B. Fore, head of the English department of the Wichita Falls junior college. It was Mr. Fore's idea to bring Dr. Van Dyke to the city this year, and this was heartily endorsed by many business men.

Dr. Van Dyke, who is at present a professor in higher English at Princeton university, is known far and wide as a writer and lecturer. Several volumes of prose and poetry have come from his pen, and during the most recent years he has devoted his time and attention to story telling.

It was Mr. Fore's privilege to know Dr. Van Dyke personally last winter at Columbia university, New York, and he realizes that he can do nothing more for the young people than to bring him here.

The following is a copy of Dr. Van Dyke's letter: "Dear Professor Fore: Your letter of November 2 has just come in and it is so kind and hearty that I want to answer it at once. You can hardly understand how much it encourages an old soldier to receive such a letter from one who is in command of the younger forces. I know your strong loyalty to Texas and 'your own folk' there. That you should want me to come to the Lone Star State and talk to the young Texans with the idea that it might be in any way helpful to them, makes me feel very happy.

I should be delighted to come and to fall in with your plan if it were within the bounds of present possibilities. But here is the position of affairs: I am bound here, by my duties, to one of the best and largest classes of seniors that I have ever had, until the first part of February. Then it is quite likely that I shall go to England to see my children there, where my daughter and husband are living at Oxford and busy on a piece of work. Immediately after that I have to go up to the school called the Gunnery, at Washington, Conn., of which another son in law is headmaster, to give four or five weeks of very simple foundation work in English to the boys who are preparing there for college. After that I have to welcome my college class of 1923 in my home here and celebrate the 40th anniversary of our graduation. That covers the ground up to about the middle of June, and in between my wife insists that I shall celebrate my seventieth birthday, November 19.

"Consequently you see the program is full and the hope of coming to Texas this year is hidden behind a cloud with a silver lining. I am sorry that it is so. If you and some of the younger generation would invent a 48 hour day or a 14 day week I might be able to do a few things more of the things that I would like to do before the sun sets. With best wishes for your happiness and success in your work, I remain cordially yours.

"Henry Van Dyke."

Navy Needs 27,500 Men; Recruiting Office Opens Here to Get Personnel

A naval recruiting office will be opened in this city, in the city hall, on Monday, with B. H. Bowman, C. T. M. U. S. N., in charge. Mr. Bowman arrived Friday to get the office opened; he will use the city health department's offices, on the second floor.

All first enlistments are now being sent to San Francisco training station. All previous service men, army, navy and marine corps, are sent to Hampton Roads, Va.

Before June 30, 1923, 27,500 men will be needed for naval service. The office is under supervision of the Dallas district.

Mr. Bowman has had 15 years' continuous service in the navy; during the war he saw service on submarines, and was also on the U. S. S. Jupiter, which was engaged in transporting explosives and food stuffs to the A. E. F. On one of his trips the Jupiter had a successful encounter with a U-boat. The incident after his name stand for chief torpedo man.

PAYS BACK FOUR DOLLARS WHEN HE REVISITS STORE

Here's the four dollars we took out of your cash drawer that night and almost all the cigarettes we got are down in the office at Wichita Falls.

Thus spoke a young man to the proprietor and owner of a store at Electra Friday night when he was taken there by a deputy constable. He told the man that he wanted to pay back all that he could because he knew that he had done wrong.

"Even if they send me up for these jobs I done," he continued, "I can at least have a clear conscience that I paid back almost everything that I took."

The young man had been taken to Electra in order that the store which had been broken into could be located. He had some little difficulty in finding it but later pointed it out. The owner of the store told that he had missed 15 cartons of cigarettes and four dollars in money.

The young man stated that was all they got. He and a partner are being held on charges of burglary. Officers stating that in their arrest they have cleared up three burglaries.

IF SOLDIERS who defended your home and mine, now tramp the streets broken and bruised in body and mind and seek in vain for means of support, while you are safe and secure in this land of the free;

IF MEN and women toss upon beds of sickness without the money to pay for the comforts and attention which they need while you enjoy the blessings of health;

IF BOYS whose fathers are too busy making money to stop and be pals with them have no leadership or friendly interest at the age when "a feller needs a friend";

IF MEN shudder on the brink of despair and destruction because they have lost in the grim battle of life while you have a good living or maybe you are blessed with abundance;

IF MOTHERS alone and unshielded, struggling to keep their babies about them and at the same time to hold their jobs, almost give up in discouragement while you and yours thank God for an unbroken family circle this Thanksgiving time;

Efficiency The new plan of centralizing welfare work of Wichita Falls in the Municipal Welfare Board at the city hall has been in effect one year. It has cut out much duplication of effort and has eliminated overlapping of different organizations. It has greatly decreased begging by "professionals," most of whom are unworthy.

Economy A great saving of time and money is accomplished by conducting one campaign instead of seven as was formerly done. We can all afford to give liberally now with the knowledge that we are caring for the valuable work of seven organizations for all next year and that we will be saved the expense of time and money of frequent and unnecessary solicitation.

TRAINING CLASSES FOR SCOUTMASTERS ARE PLANNED HERE

Plans are being perfected in the office of the local scout executive to organize a "training class" for scoutmasters, assistant scoutmasters and other scout leaders. The purpose of this organization is to train the leaders so that scoutcraft may be more efficiently taught to the boy scouts.

This organization is to include instruction and training for the "troop committee" of the various troops of the city, who then must leave off the old excuse of "not knowing anything about the work."

The "give once" campaign will soon be on, and all corporations, business concerns and individuals are being urged to remember the boy of the community.

Resolutions of Respect

Whereas, in his infinite wisdom it hath pleased the Supreme Master of the universe to summon by death our worthy brother, J. L. Milligan, from the cares and troubles of this transitory existence to the Celestial Grand Lodge above, and whereas, the life and character of Brother Milligan as a citizen and Mason was such as to command respect, honor, esteem, friendship and love, and whereas, our departed brother, as a Mason, was prompt and faithful in the discharge of every duty assigned him, ever spreading the cement of brotherly love and affection, which unites us in one sacred band of brothers, therefore, be it resolved, that in the death of Brother Milligan, Masonry has lost one of its most loved and zealous craftsmen and the community an upright citizen. Resolved, that while we bow in submission to the Divine will of the Author of our existence, we sincerely mourn the death of Brother Milligan, for our loss is great, and in the hour of affliction we offer to the surviving members of the family the tenderest sympathy of our hearts, for their loss is indeed greater than ours. Resolved, that we will endeavor to imitate our departed brother in his virtuous and amiable conduct, in his unfeigned piety to God, and in his inflexible fidelity to every truth, and will remember that faith in the merits of the Lion of the Tribes will strengthen us to look forward to a blessed immortality. Resolved, that resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the lodge, a copy furnished the family of the deceased, and a copy beaded the local papers for publication. Committee: Ewd. Busanena, burg. C. $50 FINE AND DAY IN JAIL VERDICT IN CHIROPRACTOR CASE

F. A. Black, local chiropractor, was found guilty of the charge of practicing medicine without a state license by a jury in the county court at law Saturday afternoon and a fine of $50 was imposed and one day in the county jail assessed. The case went to the jury at 5 o'clock and within an hour the verdict was returned. A large crowd that was present throughout the trial was returned when the jury returned its verdict. It was charged that he had practiced medicine upon a woman in this city and had accepted a fee for his services without being possessed of a state license as required by law.

Iodine Mistaken For Cough Syrup, No Harm Results

The year old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Handy, 1111 Polk street, narrowly escaped death by poisoning when his mother gave a dose of iodine in place of cough medicine Saturday morning. The bottle of iodine was next to the cough medicine which was in a similar container, and the mistake was not realized until after the baby had taken the liquid into its mouth. Immediately after the dose had been administered, the mother smelled the iodine on the spoon, and first aid was given before the baby had swallowed the dose. A doctor was sent for, but found that beyond severely blistered mouth and lips, the youngster was all right.

Aim Was Good But Judgment Was Poor Says Delivery Boy

While rounding a downtown corner in such a way as to bring his machine close to a man standing on the curb, the youthful driver of a grocery wagon decided, late Friday evening, that it would be a real snappy joke to spit on the man and make a fast getaway. He acted upon the idea. His aim was excellent. He was long gone before the target of his idea could do anything. The spit, however, was able to get the number of the machine and a fairly good look at the driver. Saturday afternoon he discovered the car in front of a residence on Scott. When the young driver came to his victim's door, he hesitated and invited himself for a ride. He persuaded the driver to take him down near the river. The two returned in the car several minutes later. The driver had a pair of black eyes and was otherwise the worse for wear. He admitted that his judgment on the previous day had been faulty. The affair was not reported to the police.

ARREST MAN CHARGED WITH POSSESSING LIQUOR

THIS COUNTY'S FARM LANDS MOST VALUABLE IN TEXAS; THAT IS, BASED ON TAXES

Wichita county, twelfth smallest county in Texas, and with a considerable portion of its agricultural land under cultivation, pays the state of Texas a larger sum in taxes on farm lands than in any other county in Texas, not even excepting the larger and agriculturally richer black land counties. This fact, along with other scarcely less startling on the insolvency of tax burdens borne by various Texas counties, was brought out Saturday noon at a meeting of citizens at luncheon at the Kemp, at which pending measures for relief of the state tax situation were discussed. It was stated at the meeting that Wichita county's burden is likely to be further increased by the next session of the legislature, by additional special taxes on oil. Judge R. E. Huff, who made the statement mentioned in the first paragraph, said that it applied to farm lands alone, not to oil development.

DISTINGUISHED SALVATIONIST IS HERE; PRESENTS BANNER SUNDAY TO THE CORPS AT WICHITA FALLS

Lieut. Col. George Wood, commander of the southwestern division of the Salvation Army, comprising Louisiana and Texas, will be in Wichita Falls Sunday. The immediate purpose of his visit is to present to the Wichita Falls corps the banner won by it for having made the best record of any corps in the division during the three months period ending October 1 last.

The colonel needs no introduction to our citizens, having visited the city on many previous occasions, and having, as he admits, a specially warm spot in his heart for the people who have made Wichita Falls the best Salvation Army city in the state of Texas.

Colonel Wood has been in charge of the division for seven years, during which time under his direction the number of corps has more than doubled, while the volume of work has increased fourfold.

The program for Sunday will consist of open air services at the corner of Seventh and Ohio at 10 a. m. and 7 p. m., followed by services in the Army hall at 11 a. m. and 8:15 p. m. The colonel will speak at all services, and will present the banner at the evening service in the hall. He is a forceful and earnest speaker, and is expected that large numbers of our citizens will take advantage of the opportunity to hear his message. The colonel will leave for Dallas Sunday night.

To Work for Bonds
At a meeting of the directors of the chamber of commerce, held last Wednesday, a committee was selected to serve in the interest of an election to be held on Tuesday, November 21, for the purpose of voting bonds for the erection of branch county hospitals at Burk Burnett, Electra and Iowa Park. It will be the purpose of the committee selected to interest voters in this precinct to such an extent that a large vote will be polled in favor of the bonds. It is said that the three towns named are badly in need of hospital facilities on account of the hazardous occupation of workers in the surrounding oil fields and that it is expected the bonds will carry by a large majority.

LITTLE JOURNEYS to the Homes of Friends of CARDUI

Five Women of Wiville Arkansas

In the course of a little journey across Arkansas, I stopped in the town of Wiville, which gets its name from the Y that is formed by the railroad tracks where the Gregory branch leaves the main line of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific. It is in Cache township, Woodruff County, and is said to have a population of about 60.

Cotton and almost any southern farm crop can be, and is, grown around Wiville. The residents are prosperous and contented. Most of the Wiville families own their own homes and run their farms, producing their own meat, fruits and vegetables.

Health of the community has been very good, and all I talked to spoke of enjoying life in Wiville amid its pleasant, quiet, farm-town simplicity.

As in other towns recently visited, Cardui and Black-Draught have been used in almost every home. Statements describing use of these medicines were given me by members of all but two Wiville white families (of which five are printed herewith), showing that the merit of Cardui and Black-Draught has been well known for years in this typical Arkansas town.

What is typical in this one little town, is typical of thousands of other places throughout the country, where the value of these old, established family medicines has, by degrees, and largely by word-of-mouth recommendation, been established so firmly that they have become standard household remedies to be found on nearly every family medicine shelf.

Journey where I may, the unanimous opinion of women whom I meet (who have used Cardui) seems to be that it is the one medicine for female troubles which can always be depended upon, where a tonic remedy for these conditions is indicated.

These letters, from five of the most prominent ladies in Wiville, bear out this statement.

MRS. FLARA DANIELS

Depressed Feeling

"I AM now using Cardui," said Mrs. Flara Daniels. "It was recommended to me for change of life. I have taken two bottles and am feeling so much stronger than I have in a long time. . . The depressed feeling is gone. I enjoy working my yard and garden and visiting. I am going to keep it up, for Cardui is helping me."

MRS. L. J. WILLIAMS

Mother and Daughter

"I USED Cardui for a weak, run-down condition," said Mrs. L. J. Williams. "I used to suffer quite a bit with pain in my left side, a great deal of soreness in this side. I suffered several years with this trouble. I heard of Cardui and it certainly did relieve me. I was strengthened and helped and felt much better after taking it. I cannot say enough for what it has done for me. I used it for my daughter for . . . trouble and she was much benefited. Cardui has been my stand-by and we take it, when we need a tonic, with good results."

MRS. L. F. WALKER
Wiville
Arkansas

Womanly Weakness

"I WAS A SUFFERER for some time with womanly weakness," said Mrs. L. F. Walker. "Each month my back and sides would ache, and I had pains in the lower part of my body. When in this condition I felt so cross and bad. I tried teas and going to bed, but the next month I had to go through with it all again. A lady friend told me of the Cardui and I sent for it. I took two bottles and it helped me. I did not have the pain at . . . I have taken it twice in the Spring, as a tonic. I think it is a splendid builder. After taking I would have a good appetite and feel more like doing my work."

MRS. A. L. STAGGS
Wiville
Arkansas

Pains in Sides

"I HAD the worst pains in my sides and bearing down on each side imaginable," said Mrs. A. L. Staggs. "I felt at times when I would step off of anything quick like there was a boil in my side. My hips were sore and when I would stand I suffered misery. I tried . . . anything any one told me. Ease was what I wanted. A friend told my husband of Cardui and I bless the day. I took a number of bottles. Now I ride, walk, and go and feel fine. The soreness disappeared from my sides. I . . . gradually got my strength back. I believe I owe my good health to Cardui. With the Cardui I took an occasional dose of Black-Draught. It is good to regulate the bowels and cleanse the system."

MRS. LONNIE SUTTON
Wiville
Arkansas

Cramp & Pain

"I USED TO CRAMP . . . and have pain in my back and shoulders and I would have headache," said Mrs. Lonnie Sutton. "I would suffer so I did not feel like doing my work, and I felt like I would like to sit down to do my work. I didn't sleep well, turning and twisting. I would imagine I was worse than what I was, especially when I would cramp. My mother had used Cardui, so I sent for a bottle. It helped me right off. I felt so much better until I used it for a few months at . . . I did not cramp after this and I slept so much better at night. I would take an occasional dose of Black-Draught, and that with the Cardui, was of great benefit to me."

LLOYD GEORGE MAKES GALLANT FIGHT WITH BACK TO WALL

SULLIVAN DISCUSSES EVENTS IN POLITICAL CAREER OF MAN WHO WAS UNABLE TO OVERCOME TIDE

By MARK SULLIVAN
National Political Correspondent of the New York Evening Post and Wichita Daily Times

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—It was apparent to the writer, during a campaign trip made through the middle west about the time Lloyd George resigned as premier, that there was, in considerable portions of the country, almost as much interest in the British election as there was in our own American elections. This sentiment, to a very large extent, took the shape of partisanship for Lloyd George. Probably the reason for this lies merely in the fact that Lloyd George as a public figure is known better in America than any other man in British politics or, indeed, than any other figure in European politics altogether. The sympathy felt for him is largely a natural human partisanship for a gallant fighter with his back to the wall. Doubtless few Americans pay much concern, or have much detailed knowledge, as to how the outcome of this British election may affect those European and world problems which whether we like it or not—however some of us try to avoid looking it in the face—must have an inevitable effect in one degree or another on our own concerns. Doubtless, also, few Americans are fully familiar with Lloyd George's course at the Paris peace conference, or have the data to judge to what extent he is chargeable with responsibility for the unhappy outcome—a responsibility which, so far as it lies on individuals at all, must be charged primarily—in varying degrees, of course—against the "Big Four," Wilson, Lloyd George, Clemenceau and Orlando.

As between Lloyd George and Clemenceau, most of the more important of the Americans at the Paris peace conference felt more strongly drawn toward the Frenchman than toward the Englishman. As to Clemenceau, it was a common saying that you "always knew where he stood"; but as to Lloyd George, it was felt that in the course of winning the war, and also in the course of maintaining himself in office in Great Britain, he had made a series of contradictory commitments to various parties, which commitments turned up at the peace conference to plague not only Lloyd George himself, but the peace conference as a whole. For example: At a certain time during the course of the war it became necessary, in order to win it, to get Italy in on the side of the allies. Italy had to be brought in at a price—a competitive price. Germany was scolding her to come in on that side, and was offering her part of the prize that Germany then expected to win in Asia. The allies in order to get Italy in on their side, had to out-bid Germany. The allies freely made the necessary bargain and sealed it in the shape of a secret treaty which gave Italy a part of the Turkish possessions in Asia Minor, in addition to other territory elsewhere. It is the old negotiations among the allies about dividing up Turkey that sowed the seed of the present trouble at Constantinople. There was a number of these secret treaties among the allies. Colonel House at the time, learning of them, said the allies were like the bear skin before they had killed the bear.

However, this bargain with Italy seemed necessary at the time, in order to win the war, and allies made it. Some of the later negotiations between Great Britain and Italy were conducted by Lloyd George personally, but one of many secret treaties to which Lloyd George was committed, and which were mainly responsible for the present trouble at Constantinople, was a secret treaty which gave the peace conference to live up to Wilson's 14 points. A little later on, when the old Russian government collapsed and Trotsky got his hands on the Russian archives, he published many of these secret treaties to the world. Thereupon, the labor leaders and the liberal press in Great Britain denounced the secret treaties and threatened to impede the progress of the war unless Lloyd George should repudiate them. This created a new situation. It was now necessary for Lloyd George, as an incident to winning the war, to do something different, and he promptly and cheerfully did the different thing. He made a specific discovery of the imperialistic aims of the ference, the British house of commons in London heard that he was going back on his promise to make Germany pay the British pensions, and was for the moment apparently inclined to stand by his precedent. The house of commons sent him a round robin of protest, whereupon he hurried back to London for a day and renewed his other promise to the house of commons. It is too long a story to explain in detail. But it is clearly provable that Lloyd George's effort to live up to this promise to make Germany pay the British pensions, is the primary reason why the German reparations were fixed at a sum which is inconsistent with the 14 points, and which everybody now knows it is impossible to collect. For a year past Lloyd George has been reproaching the French for demanding too much from the Germans, as a matter of fact, it is Lloyd George personally, much more than the French, who is responsible for the size of those demands.

It was in connection with this episode in Lloyd George's career that one of his own assistants at the peace conference, Mr. J. M. Keynes, wrote: "There are few episodes in history which posterity will have less reason to condemn—war ostensibly waged in defense of the sanctity of international agreements, ending in a definite breach of one of the most sacred possible of such engagements on the part of the victorious champions of the ideal."

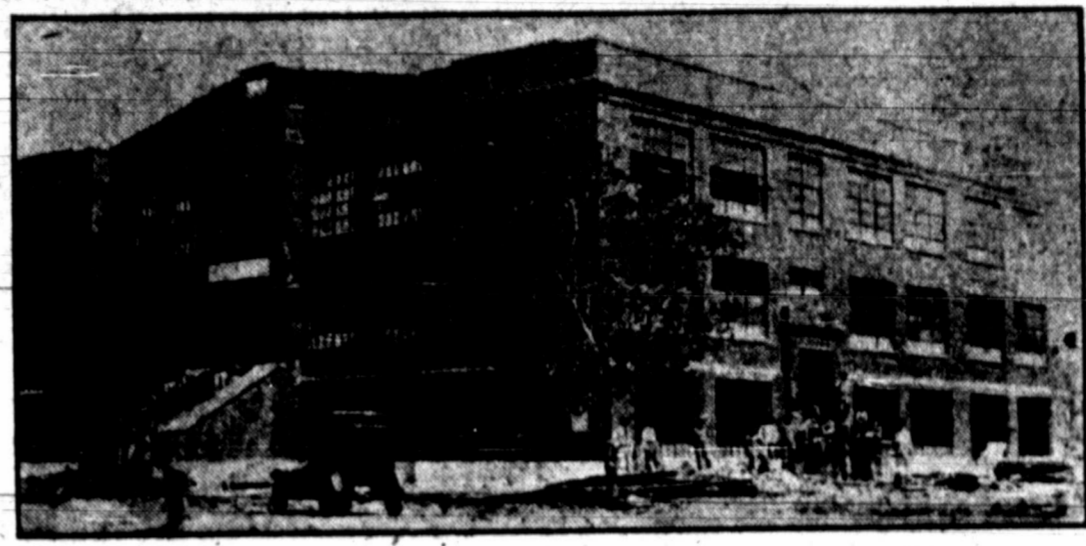

A fair case can be made out to prove that Lloyd George is as much more responsible for what we now blame the French for as the French themselves. Much of what now seems to us unreasonable on the part of the French has its roots in things that Lloyd George did at the peace conference and before it. One can readily understand that the agreement between the British and the French, which is essential to the stability of Europe, is not made easier, certainly, by the compromise, at the head of the British government, of a statesman against whom the French have such just cause of grievance. It is chiefly for this reason that it has seemed to the present writer that the world would be helped forward less by maintaining Lloyd George as premier of Great Britain, than by substituting in his place some new statesman not handicapped by so heavy a burden in the shape of a reputation of past inconsistency. The present writer has thought, in fact, that the world would not readily get back on the track until Lloyd George should cease to be Prime Minister of Great Britain; and that the first evidence of a move in the direction of real stability and a new order, would be the substitution in the place of Lloyd George, of another sort of man, with another sort of reputation, and another sort of temperament.

It is this last promise that is at the root of all the present difficulties about the German reparations. When Lloyd George personally arrived at the peace conference he tried to straddle a middle course which should reconcile his assent to Wilson's 14 points a year before, and his later promise to the British public to make Germany pay the British pensions. In the course of his attempts to perform this feat, he got in trouble himself, got everybody else in trouble, and sowed the seed of most of the mischief that has happened since that time, while Lloyd George was at the Paris conference.

show an extraordinarily erratic course with swift and disconcerting changes of direction. But when all is said that can be said in extenuation of Lloyd George's reputation for inconsistency and opportunism, it still remains incontestably true that the reputation is a heavy handicap in the present work of restoring the world to stability. The problem now is not one of winning the war, or of winning battles from day to day, but is rather a case of laying out a straight course based on sound principle, and following it faithfully. It may be that for this course also Lloyd George would again be a good captain. But he has acquired among the statesmen of the world, and to some extent among the peoples of the world, such a reputation for the other sort of thing, that it handicaps him greatly in achieving the kind of confidence, the kind of reputation for security and dependability which is now the essential thing. If Lloyd George's quick adaptability was one of the essential instruments in winning the war, that quality and Lloyd George himself may properly be regarded as one of those instruments which, having won the war, is now as useless as Mr. Wilson's intimate associates at the Paris conference. These three volumes may be described without inaccuracy as the state of the world from the point of view of Wilson and America. The net impression of them puts Lloyd George in a seriously unfavorable light. In fact, so unfavorable that it would not be unreasonable to guess that Mr. Lloyd George's recently announced determination to write a book of his own, may be based on his realization of his need for a defense against this present work of Mr. Wilson's friend.

Amid Busy Scenes at Storage Dam Where Texas' Biggest Artificial Lake Is Forming

The top picture shows the progress of the dredge, on the gorge dam, which structure is now nearly 40 feet above the river bed. The water shown in the picture is drained back into the pool in which the dredge works, and is used over and over again. The dredge operates in such a way that the water drains toward the center line of the dam, carrying with it the impervious clay that will form the core of the completed structure. The second picture shows the rip-rap construction on a completed portion of the embankment. The heavy rocks are laid in such a way as to minimize the action of the water on the up-stream face of the dam. J. L. Lockridge, resident engineer, appears in the picture. The evening "strafe" at the site of the service spillway is shown in the bottom picture. This is one of the many shots set off each evening as the 20-foot excavation goes deep.

SAN ANGELO, TEXAS, Nov. 18.—Year that Thursday's action of the Texas railroad commission in denying application of the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient railroad for increased joint divisions of intra-state traffic in Texas sounded the "death knell of the Orient" was expressed here today by Albert De Bernardi, general manager of the Orient...

Mr. Bernardi said the Oklahoma state commission has the matter of greater joint line freight divisions under advisement and that Kansas will conduct a hearing in the matter in a few days.

WILHELM CUNO FAILS IN EFFORT TO FORM CABINET

By LAUSANNE Press. BERLIN, Nov. 18.—The efforts of Wilhelm Cuno to form a cabinet have temporarily foundered on attempts by the leaders of the middle parties and united socialists to dictate the cabinet appointments to him.

Heinz Cuno this afternoon wrote to President Ebert asking that he be relieved of the task and incidentally rebuking the party leaders for crossing his plans after having previously assured him of their good will.

Herr Cuno demands that his selection of cabinet assignments, and on the strength of this requirement, the president renewed his mandate to the chancellor-designate who now undertakes to make a slate without fourth inter-party partying.

A drink which Mickey took in the Sturmer house two months ago had been analyzed, according to the coroner's chemist.

SONS OF NASSAU SCORE SPLENDID 3-0 VICTORY OVER YALE, CENTRAL HI GAME TO BE PLAYED HERE MONDAY AFTERNOON

Field Goal in Third Period Spells Doom For Blue's Bull Dog

NEBRASKA PASSES WAY TO VICTORY

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 18.—The list of the Poes, Whites, Trimbles, Murrills and Gilroy's, the name of Smith was added here this afternoon to the Princeton roll of immortals.

Kenneth Smith, 21 years old, of Newark, N. J., has an ordinary name, but he is no ordinary football player. It was the trusty right Smith toe that booted the field goal that gave the fighting Princeton eleven a 3 to 0 victory over Yale and the championship of the "Big Three" game.

Dame Fortuna, Mr. Luck and all those other friends of the fact that have been casting their lot with Princeton for several seasons turned their fickle affections away from the Tigers and worked for Yale.

After a half of punting duels Princeton came out for the third period a determined young band of fighters. Jack Cleaves ran among the whole Yale line. Yale started the half by kicking off and Cleaves took game in hand. He started on his own half, ran, evaded and buckled the tackles, and charged through center for yards and yards. He made one dash down the side line for 40 yards and then advanced the ball to Yale's seven-yard line directly in front of the goal posts. "Ken" Smith was then through back from behind and booted a perfect dropkick of 15 yards for the three points that won the game.

Charles O'Hern, the fragile Yale kicking star, was rushed into the game from the invalid's bench with orders to kick. He tried four attempts at field goals from distances of 40, 55 and 50 yards, but they all failed and Yale lost.

LADY SHOOTERS OUT FOR WEEKLY EVENT

Five Nimrod's Tie For Honors in Singles, While Deatherage Wins Doubles.

Conditions were not ideal for the regular weekly meet of the gun club Friday, but despite the circumstances, there were a dozen shooters present, including two guests, who afforded a bit of entertainment for the regular members.

Mrs. Marshall smashed 23 out of 30 targets with a 20 gauge gun, a feat which few expert shooters would volunteer to duplicate. Not to be outdone, Mrs. Paul Adams scored 19 out of 23 targets. The two ladies were a source of gratification to club members since there has been an effort to introduce the sport to local lovers of the field. Mrs. V. Leath shot an event in the registered meet last Saturday and the influence is growing.

Under the handicap system, Nabbs, Adams, Grooms, Harper and Leslie tied for honors in the singles event. A. G. Deatherage, president of the club, carried off the honor in the doubles event with 29 out of a possible 34.

Scores for 35 single, rifle targets from the 10-rod mark: Deatherage 48, Nabbs 44, Adams 44, Grooms 44, Harper 42, Leslie 42, London 42, Marshall 37, Fell 34, Jennings 33, Berg 23, (29 gauge).

In doubles: Deatherage 59, Nabbs 18, Adams 15, Jennings 15, Leslie 18, Grooms 14, Harper 14, (29 gauge), Bergin (29 gauge).

CENTRE UPSET WHEN AUBURN SCORES OWN POINT THAT FAILED

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 18.—In a game marked by clean play, only one five-yard penalty being assessed against Centre, the football team of the Atlanta Polytechnic Institute defeated Centre college of Danville, Ky., here this afternoon, 4 to 0.

The only scoring came in the third period when Captain Roberts of Centre failed to get a punt away from his own goal line, the kick being blocked by several Auburn players. Moulton, for the Alabamaans, fell on the ball behind the goal. On a try for placement after the touchdown, Moulton failed to kick goal.

Thomas Batters Illinois Team to Shreds for Win

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—With Johnny Thomas, the human "battering ram" ripping and tearing the line to pieces, Chicago triumphed over Illinois, 3 to 0, in their twenty-third annual game on Stag Field today, knocking the Maroons undefeated in the race for the western conference championship.

The contest was witnessed by a capacity crowd of 22,000, the same number that witnessed the Chicago-Princeton classic three weeks ago. Illinois, which sprung the surprise of the season a week ago by defeating Wisconsin 3 to 0, proved dangerous in defense, but lacked the punch to come within striking distance of Chicago's goal to enable Clarke for a field goal.

OKLA. AGGIES PUT FIGHT INTO GAME WITH BAYLOR BEARS

STILLWATER, OKLA., Nov. 18.—Playing a far better team, the Oklahoma Aggies showed stuff here this afternoon that the natives didn't know they had, and held the strong Baylor team from Texas to a 19 to 0 score.

The game with the exception of a few minutes in the last quarter, was played in the Aggie's territory, and it was only their determination and the holding ability of their line that held the scoring to a safety. Trick plays, cross-cross end runs and forward passes featured the playing of the Texas boys.

In the second quarter, Baylor scored field goal. In the fourth period Pittman received a pass and crossed the line for a touchdown. Goal was kicked.

Tulane Crushed As Florida Runs Wild

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 18.—Battered down to but a hollow shell of its real strength, Tulane vainly tried to stave off the onslaught of the Florida football team at Tulane stadium this afternoon and went down to defeat by a score of 27 to 0.

The visitors hammered down the lighter Tulane men into submission and then started an aerial attack that completely routed their opponents. When the final score was there was hardly a regular Tulane player left on the field, nearly all of them going out through injury or exhaustion.

League Race Down To Tangible Basis After Week's Games

AUSTIN, TEXAS, Nov. 18.—The following football teams emerged triumphant from their week end contest in the state race for championship in the university interscholastic league: Amarillo, Denison, Comanche, Waco, Del Rio, Del Rio and Corpus Christi. These teams along with Floydada, Palestine and Cleburne, are eligible contestants for bi-sectional championship games to be scheduled next week.

The winner of the Austin-Temple game to be played Monday, and the winner of the Abilene-Ranger game to be played Wednesday will also be in line for bi-sectional games.

Scores: Del Rio 24, Comanche 7, Junction 21, Waco 12, Milford 7, Corpus Christi 18, Brownsville 6, Beaumont 12, Port Arthur 6, Beaumont (South Park) 12, Houston Heights 12.

Missouri Tramples Washington 27-0

COLUMBIA, MO., Nov. 18.—Missouri university overwhelmed Washington university of St. Louis in a Missouri Valley conference football game here today, 27 to 0. After the first quarter, in which neither side scored, Missouri was never in danger, although Washington at times put up a stubborn defense.

Pittsburg Outplays W. & J. Completely

FORBES FIELD, PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 18.—The famed W. & J. football machine, undefeated for ten seasons, was given a coat of whitewash here today by "Pop" Warner's University of Pittsburgh team. The final score, 19 to 0, showed the relative strength of the teams. Pitt's play was unimpaired in the last period Warner used a second string team, but W. & J. made no headway. Pitt registered 14 first downs and W. & J. five.

Longhorns' Efforts Shadow All Sooner Attempts At Victory

NORMAN, OKLA., Nov. 18.—Meeting little opposition in keeping the play near Oklahoma's goal through three-quarters of the game, Texas ran up a total of 32 points to Oklahoma's 7 on a muddy field here today. Four touchdowns, a field goal and a safety accounted for the Longhorns' score.

Taking the lead on a touchdown in the first period, Oklahoma fell in the second before the rush of the Texans and was never again dangerous.

Robertson was the star of the game. His passes to Ward scored two touchdowns, and the other came when he was carrying the ball. The big half back also sent a place kick over Oklahoma's goal in the second period.

Aggies Find Little To Fear From Rice On Soggy Playing Field

COLLEGE STATION, TEXAS, Nov. 18.—Under an Indian summer sun and on a soggy gridiron, Rice Institute defeated the Aggies by a score of 21 to 0.

The game was largely a punting duel with "Gill" Miller having the edge on the Rice kickers.

Neither side was able to score in the first quarter. In second quarter from the 14 yard line, a field goal and scored three touchdowns in the last half.

McMillan, Gill and Wilson starred for the Aggies. Chambers and Swarts did good work for Rice.

Numerous passes were attempted, but they were grounded time after time. Gill missed a perfect chance to star in the first half when he fumbled a pass in an open field on Rice's 20-yard line.

BROWN WINS FROM HARVARD DESPITE CRIMSON'S ATTACK

CAMBRIDGE, MASS., Nov. 18.—Brown's football eleven, beaten by Yale a few weeks ago, won from Harvard today. The score was 4 to 0, the points being made on a field goal kicked at the first play of the fourth period by Fullback Adams.

Crimson supporters, considering Harvard's defeat 2 to 0, by the team trounced by Yale, 6 to 28, in the light of its effect on the big game of next week, could find no source for hope only the fact that neither Adams nor Adams' successor was in the game today. Otherwise, it was Harvard's victory team, and all the efforts of the Crimson coaches who departed from the usual policy of sending substitutes only against Brown, failed to avert defeat.

The Harvard attack went into sustained action only once. It was good for a touchdown then. Coburn crossing the Brown goal line with the ball, but holding by Hubbard of Harvard caused officials to recall the play, and penalize Harvard 15 yards. Harvard had to try for score by field goal and Hammond, kicking from the 14 yard line, failed.

BEAUMONT SKIDS PORT ARTHUR OUT

PORT ARTHUR, TEXAS, Nov. 18.—The Beaumont high school football eleven skidded to a 12 to 4 victory over the Port Arthur high school team here this evening in a game upon which hinged the championship of district 11. A hard rain this morning had turned the field into a miniature lake and fast play was impossible.

AMARILLO FINALLY NOSES OUT PAMPA FOR DISTRICT TITLE

AMARILLO, Nov. 18.—Amarillo high school won the district title in football by defeating Pampa high school. These two teams played a three to three tie here two weeks ago, and the week-ago played another tie, nine to nine.

Coyotes Ready for Heavy Eleven and Anxious to Start

All present indications point to a Coyote contest here Monday when the Fort Worth Central team will likely fight out the game which was originally scheduled for Saturday afternoon, but postponed on account of the condition of the playing field.

When the game was finally called off Friday afternoon, it was agreed between Coaches Jones and James that unless further negotiations of some nature were resumed, that the game would be played. At a late hour last night, Coach Jones had heard nothing further from Coach James and announced that the game would be played.

In bringing the Central team into one of their hardest battles of the year. Though the team is not in the best of condition, Jones feels that victory will be forthcoming from the club he will start in the fray.

This is the first opportunity the local fans have had to see the Coyotes in action since they were eliminated in the fierce fight against their 1922 championship hopes.

The Central club is reported as heavy as Coach Kenney's Yellow Jackets, and in that case the light Coyotes will be forced to resort to the open play which threatens to count for them in the closing minutes of the game. The "Coyotes" of the game will be played in Athletic park.

KID MALONEY TO BATTLE FOR LIGHTWEIGHT TITLE AT PALACE THIS WEEK

"Kid" Maloney, lightweight aspirant, will topple the crown from the head of the present holder, this week at the Palace in a bout which promises to be a real thriller.

Wichita draws this championship bout because of an interesting side story of "Two Fisted Love," the comedy drama which opens tomorrow night at the Palace.

Maloney is not the "cauliflower-ear, flat-nose, die-an'-die" kind of a fighter, but a clean athlete who has deeper motives to his work than that ordinarily attached to the ring game. His love for a girl, devotion to cleaner athletics and a touch of youthful ambition all combine to make Jack a likable chap despite all social prejudice against his occupation.

A touching love plot is interwoven in the story which climaxes in the thrilling knockout which sends him the crown after being double-crossed by his manager, who in an attempt to square himself with the town, agrees to "fix the fight."

J. A. D. Smith of Burkburnett, was a visitor in the city Friday, on business. Mr. Smith is to leave soon for Eastland, Texas, where he is connected with an oil company.

Fuller Childrens of Kansas City, Missouri, visited friends in the city Saturday. He is enroute to Fort Worth for a short business visit.

MICHIGAN STILL IN UNDEFEATED CLASS

ANN ARBOR, MICH., Nov. 18.—Michigan continued its drive toward a western conference football championship today by defeating Wisconsin, 13 to 6. The victory was tempered, however, by the fact that the Wolverine goal line was crossed for the first time this season. The Badger touchdown came in the last few minutes of play on a short forward pass. Barr to Palanski. Michigan's scores were the result of perfect forward passing, coupled with fine plunges and a long run by Kipke.

Burrowing for More Traffic Under Our National Capitol

THEY have started in Washington to dig a tunnel a mile long from the Capitol power station to the city postoffice. Through it will be run steam pipes and electric wires; but it will be made big enough to provide for pedestrian traffic.

Within recent years the hill on which the great Capitol building stands has become almost like a rabbit warren, penetrated in all directions by huge burrows. One of the latter connects the Capitol and the House and Senate office buildings with the above-mentioned power station, which supplies them, as well as the Library of Congress, with steam and electricity. The new tunnel will be finished by next May.

The tunnel, seven feet high and five feet wide, will pass directly north from the Capitol to the Union Depot, connecting with the latter, so that Congressmen on foot or other pedestrians can, if they choose, walk through from either of the office buildings or from the basement of the Capitol and reach the railroad terminal by a passage entirely subterranean.

Strangers who visit the Capitol are far from imagining how much of the vast building is underground. The sub-basement is a labyrinth of passages in which one may easily lose his way. It is through this sub-basement that one reaches the entrances of the subways that lead from the south end to the House office building and from the north end to the office building of the Senate. Suitably located elevators take one down into them.

These subways are spacious subterranean avenues, with a broad roadway for traffic, a concrete sidewalk and high vaulted roof. Congressmen usually travel through them in going from the Capitol to the office buildings or vice versa. With elevator provided at both ends, they afford convenient routes.

Representatives walk through their connecting tunnels; Senators ride through theirs, a luxury not allowed to members of the lower house because they would require too many cars. There are only ninety-six Senators and two cars suffice for them—topless vehicles running on a monorail track and driven by electric motors.

A Senator, let us say, wishes to go from his office building to the Capitol. He takes an elevator down, walks to the entrance of the subway and pushes an electric button. A car appears, responds and he gets aboard. It conveys him in about a minute to the sub-basement of the Capitol, where he climbs out, walks to an elevator and is transported to the floor he indicates.

Both subways are lined with vitrified white brick and are brilliantly lighted by electricity. They are in effect underground streets. Considerable trucking traffic passes through them. There is even an automobile bus for Senators, but the topless cars—each carrying twelve and the other sixteen passengers—have put it out of use.

About a hundred yards west of the Capitol, on the slope of the hill, stands a lofty stone tower. People often wonder what it is for. It has no windows, and to suppose that it was designed merely as an architectural ornament would hardly seem reasonable. The fact is, however, that it has a very important and practical usefulness, being employed to supply the members of the national Legislature as well as other folks in the Capitol with fresh air.

A man in an airplane flying overhead would discover that the tower has no roof. It is built to swallow air out of the sky, being tall in order that the air taken in through its open top shall be as pure as possible. At the bottom it is connected by a tunnel with the sub-basement of the Capitol, the air being drawn through the tunnel by huge steam-driven revolving fans.

minute, the House 60,000 cubic feet. They use it for talking, mostly.

One of the most important of the various subterranean passages that undermine Capitol Hill is a burrow for books. It connects the Capitol with the Library of Congress. If a Senator or Representative wants a book he does not have to go or send to the library to get it. He pushes a button, summoning a page, writes the title of the volume and the author's name on a scrap of paper, and hands it to the boy in buttons.

The page takes the scrap of paper to a little room off Statuary Hall, where he hands it to a clerk. The clerk pokes it into a small copper-bound leather cylinder, and drops the latter into a pneumatic tube. The

Electrically driven car in the Senate subway

The tunnel is lined with masonry, and in the summer time the air is reduced several degrees in temperature in passing through it. In winter it is drawn through an elaborate system of steam coils, to warm it. Thus the atmosphere inside of the Capitol is kept always at about the same agreeable temperature in all seasons. The structure is indeed so massive, with its enormously thick walls of stone, that like a cavern in the depths of a mountain, its interior is affected comparatively little by outdoor heat or cold.

NEVERTHELESS, Congressmen need fresh air. The chambers of the House and Senate have no windows—no opening of any kind to out-of-doors. Hence the necessity of the tower and the tunnel for ventilation. Air drawn through the tunnel is forced beneath the floors of the legislative chambers, passing up through openings provided for the purpose. The Senate gets in this way 20,000 cubic feet of fresh air per minute, the House 60,000 cubic feet. They use it for talking, mostly.

When the new tunnel is finished, pedestrians can pass through it, beneath Capitol Hill, all the way from the power station to the Union depot, the postoffice and the Government Printing Office. It will be by far the longest of all burrows. Its main purpose, however, will be to carry underground steam pipes and electric conduits to the postoffice and the Government Printing Office, for heating, illumination and power.

The power station is one of the most admirably equipped outfits of its kind in the world. Its steam pipes and electric feed wires run through concrete-lined underground tubes to the Capitol, office buildings and library, the electricity being delivered as an alternating current of 6000 volts, which is converted into direct current and "stepped down" suitably for use. For illuminating the Capitol alone, lamps representing a total of nearly half a million candle-power are required.

The Advantages of Coke

THERE is among householders a very general prejudice against the use of coke as fuel for the furnace. Objection is made that it is bulky and that it burns too rapidly.

As for its bulk, there is no gaining the fact that it takes up more space than is desirable. But this cannot be regarded as of absolute importance if anthracite where-with to fill the family coal bin is not obtainable. The difficulty of too rapid burning may be overcome by limiting the supply of air through the ash-pit.

The United States Bureau of Mines recommends householders to burn coke during the coming winter. It says that coke makes a better domestic fuel than soft coal. As compared with the latter, an important advantage it has is its smokelessness. It does not require poking down; and its use simplifies draft regulations, sufficient air being obtained through leaks around the ash-pit door.

Coke should be used for heating houses because it is a clean and convenient fuel. It requires less attention than coal, gives a more uniform temperature in the house, and almost does away with the necessity of cleaning the furnace and flues.

Consumers of coke, however, must adopt suitable methods of firing. The wood should be started by first feeding a six-inch layer of coke onto wood kindlings after they are well ignited with the draft on. When this layer has started to burning well, fill the fire-box with the fuel and cut down the draft until the coke will just continue to burn. Keep the fire always under control; do not let it blaze up and then try to cut it down again suddenly.

With the fair-sized fire-box, the furnace should carry fire over night. But if there is any anthracite on hand, it should be used at night in very cold weather.

Road Reasons

THE automobile is doing wonderful things for the improvement of roads in this country; particularly the main roads.

But did you ever think to inquire why do the main roads pursue the routes they do? Why were these particular routes adopted, often twisting and turning as they pass over hills and valleys?

The answer is that they follow ancient Indian trails, which in their twists and turns pursued the lines of least resistance. Those lines remain unaltered today, and so the main road routes do not change and never will change.

Soles That Last

THE Government Bureau of Standards has found out how to make shoes wear longer. The method adopted is rather curious.

The entire surface of the shoe soles is covered with stitches which are looped and locked near the center of the sole. Thread of wood fiber thoroughly saturated with wax is used for the purpose.

Thorough tests have proved that shoe soles thus treated wear about 25 per cent longer than ordinary soles; the gain in wear-resistance being in proportion to the amount of fiber material added to the leather.

Numerals Antedate Writing

NUMERALS are much older than writing. People found it necessary to count ages before there was any written language.

The earliest numerals were the fingers. Even nowadays you yourself often use one or more fingers to indicate numbers.

A short vertical line marked on a sheet of paper stands for "one." By origin, it represents a finger. We call it a digit, which means a finger.

The earliest method of recording a number was to do it with a series of such vertical marks. But that was obviously inconvenient for reckoning purposes if the number was a large one.

Hence, the adoption of symbols—2, 3, 4 and so on—to represent quantities up to 9. This idea is credited to the ancient Arabians, who were famous mathematicians. Later on, for bigger numbers, letters were used as symbols—X for ten, C (centum) for 100, M (mille) for 1000, and so on.

The ancient Egyptians had hieroglyphs for big numbers. A frog stood for 100,000. For 1,000,000 their symbol was a man with arms extended as if in admiration.

We are accustomed to count by tens because our remote ancestors did their counting on their fingers. Even at the present time, people, especially women and children, often count in that way. This method of counting was anciently developed into a system by which, with certain postures of the fingers, bent or outstretched, any number below 10,000 could be indicated.

For arithmetical purposes the most important achievement was the invention of the zero, which is said to have originated in India, being communicated to Europe through Arabia. The zero is nothing, but what should we do without it?

The Mystery of the Magnet

WHY is a magnet? It is a mystery. A magnet attracts iron, but how or why it does so science cannot tell.

Many centuries before the Christian era, writers referred to a mysterious "stone" possessing remarkable properties, chief among which was its power to "draw to it all the conquering iron."

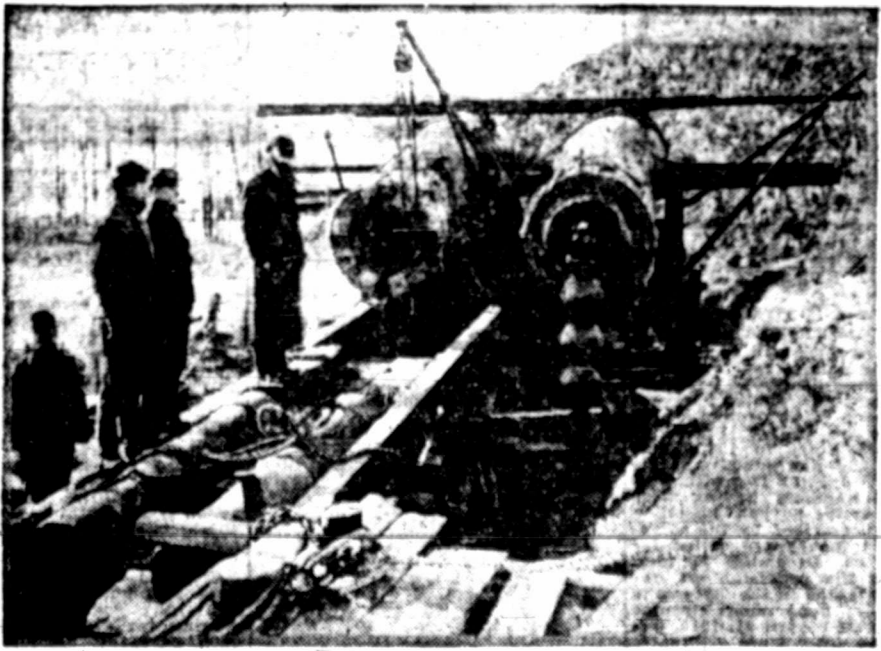

Magnetic mountains, which caused ships to fall to pieces by drawing from their sides the iron nails, remained in the category of

Probably this was because in China the south is the "honorable" quarter.

Up to the year 1000 it was mistakenly supposed in Europe that the needle pointed north and south owing to the attractive influence of the Pole Star.

If a piece of ordinary iron is rubbed with a piece of lodestone, it acquires magnetism of its own, so that it will pick up a needle or the like. Why? Nobody knows.

Every small boy is familiar with the horseshoe magnet. Originally it was a

Magnet made of two cannons son terrors up to a comparatively recent date.

They were mountains of "lodestone," which was the name given to the wonderful substance. Today lodestone is known as the mineral "magnetite," which is the magnetic or black oxide of iron. It is quite widely distributed over the earth. There is a notable deposit of it at Magnet Cove, Ark.

A rod of magnetite pointed at the ends and suspended so that it turns freely will set itself in an approximately north and south direction.

This fact did not become known to Europeans until the twelfth century. A. D. but the Chinese discovered it long before the birth of Christ. They were the inventors of the compass, but seem to have used the latter for land journeys, and not for navigation. As early as the seventh century the Japanese mounted compasses on wheeled vehicles, which they called "south-pointing carts."

The Chinese were guided by the south point of the compass needle, their name for compass being "needle pointing south."

straight bar of steel. An electric current was passed through it, and the bar was thereby made a magnet. Why? Nobody can tell.

The bar is formed into horseshoe shape because in that form it holds the magnetism better. Why? Ask the moon. A piece of steel goes with a magnet of this kind, to fit across its ends. If the horseshoe be hung up, and a small weight be suspended from the piece of steel, it will be found that the latter day by day will support a greater weight without being pulled off—up to a certain limit, of course. Why? Don't ask me.

Not many years ago an army officer built at Sandy Hook an enormous horseshoe magnet out of two big cannons and a bunch of steel rails. When a powerful current of electricity was passed through the contrivance it did extraordinary things. Suggestion was made that it might be used to disarrange by its influence the compasses of enemy warships venturing near the coast, but the War Department refused to take the idea seriously.

Trailing Aurora

INCIDENTAL to his voyage of discovery in the Arctic, Captain Roald Amundsen plans to make movie pictures of the aurora borealis—that wonderful phenomenon, now known to be electrical in its nature, which manifests itself in the form of light-streamers that ascend into the sky all around the Arctic Circle.

Occasionally in our latitudes we get a glimpse of it, but only a glimpse; and it seems to us as if the streamers sprang from the surface level of the earth. But they do not. They start from forty to fifty miles up.

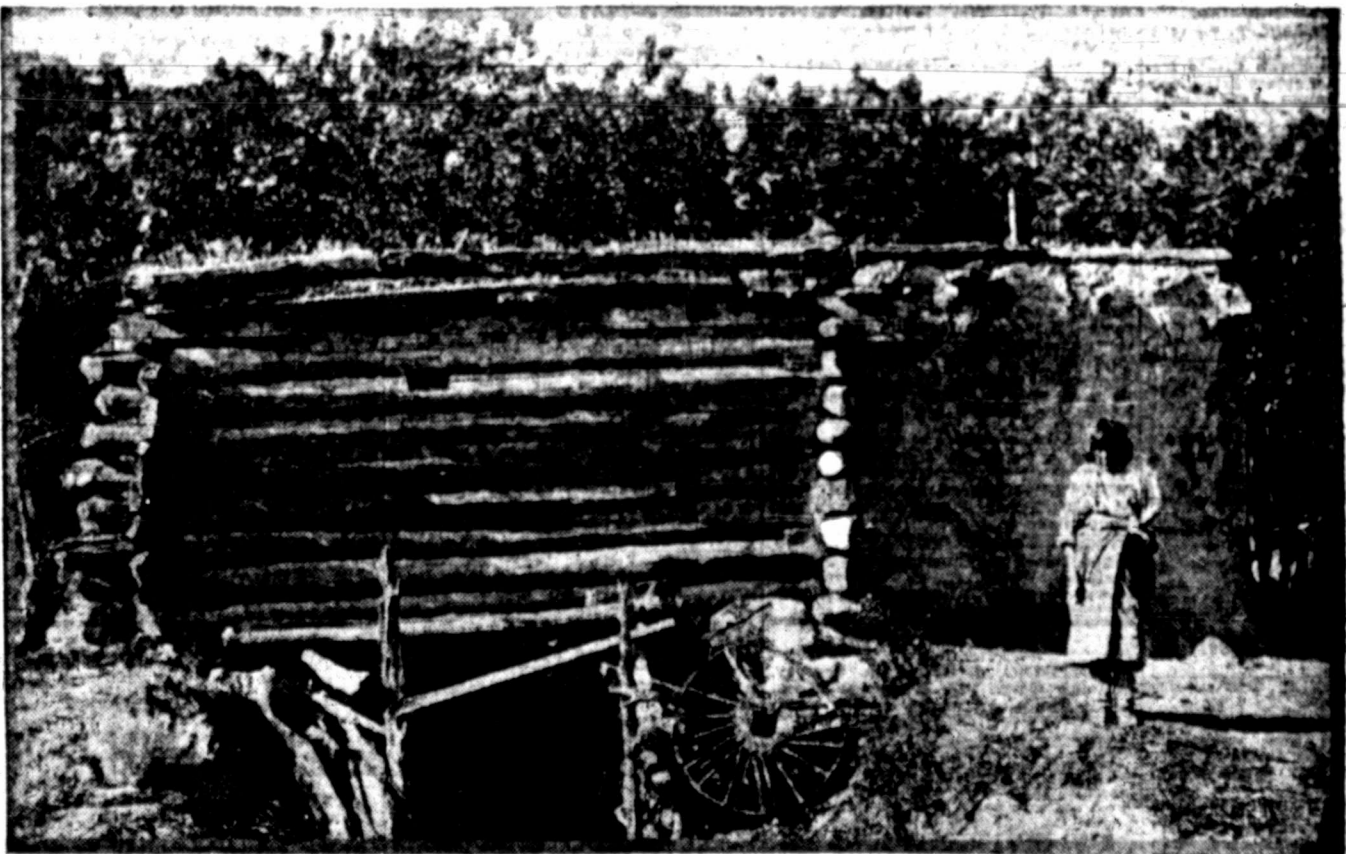

It is the sun that makes the aurora, which varies in size and intensity with solar activity. Once in a while, when it reaches a maximum, its streamers may be seen stretching clear across our night sky, and there is so much electricity let loose that all our telegraph instruments go on strike.

Your Housing Problem Solved

THE cheapest material for house-building is mud. It ought to be good and sticky, of the sort we call clay. If burned into brick, it is expensive nowadays; but sundried brick may be home-made, and serves the purpose very well, if the clay have a tenuous quality.

Such brick, dried in the sun, is called "adobe" in the Southwest, where it was used as building material long before the days of Columbus. It may be red or any other color. One sees in the accompanying photograph an illustration of architecture along the Rio Grande. Originally the house was a log cabin, straddling a small stream for the sake of water supply. Later on the structure was extended by an addition of adobe for a kitchen. It has not, perhaps, all the conveniences of a modern flat, but it meets all domestic requirements, and there is no rent to pay.

BUT WHAT OF SIMPLE FAITH AND HIGH IDEALS By KATHLEEN NORRIS

"If you could have one wish, Sally, and it would surely come true, what do you think you'd wish?" She was just a normal, typical housewife of the year 1722—exactly 200 years ago.

"Well, Sally," said the impatient youngest of the group, pushing her sore-cracked fingers about to assure them, "I've often thought that I'd wish, 'I'd have it that I only had to but my hand out, and touch a magic button on the wall, and the whole cabin would be full of light, like the sunlight—with no grease and no soot and ashes and wicks to bother about."

"I'd wish," another woman contributed, diverted, "that when I was dead tired, and the babies not rest- less, some of the hot summer after- noons, I could put 'em into a magic wagon, without horses or reins, and just whirl 'em off into the blue sky, over the woods, 40 miles away! And when dark came, I could just stick 'em back in and 'whisk 'em home again."

"It'd be a funny wish!" "You'd be a long time getting that, Susan Butler," said one of them, shaking her head. "Here's what I've wished sometimes," she added whimsically in her turn. "I've wished I only had to go to my kitchen and turn my hands over something and the good hot boiling water comes pouring forth out of a hole in the wall.

"And I wish," another woman con- tributed, diverted, "that when I was dead tired, and the babies not rest- less, some of the hot summer after- noons, I could put 'em into a magic wagon, without horses or reins, and just whirl 'em off into the blue sky, over the woods, 40 miles away! And when dark came, I could just stick 'em back in and 'whisk 'em home again."

"We have these things, but—" "But what made the world new?" "What was their conception of mat- ernal duty, and what is ours?"

"I'll be a long time getting that, Susan Butler," said one of them, shaking her head. "Here's what I've wished sometimes," she added whimsically in her turn.

GREAT BUSINESS WAR AHEAD AND U. S. LACKS TRAINED MEN

VAST OPPORTUNITIES FOR YOUTH SAYS SAMUEL WESLEY STRATTON DIRECTOR FAMOUS BOSTON 'TECH'

Young American Women As Well As Their Brothers May Find in the New Professions Such Chances As the Old Ones Do Not Offer—No Youngsters in the World Better Naturally Equipped Than Ours But Those on Other Side Have More Chances to Learn Game—Shortage of Men Technically Trained and Educated to Research Methods Due Less to Educational Institutions Than to Fact that Youth Does Not Understand Where the Best Openings for Its Ambitions Lie.

By EDWARD MARSHALL.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—"If America seriously intends to retain that commercial supremacy which she has achieved, she must train technically—that is, in specific, practical sciences which have to do with commerce and industry—many times as large a number of young men and women as she is training at present.

These were the words of the one man in the nation best qualified to speak—Samuel Wesley Stratton, until this week director of the United States government bureau of standards, one of the most important scientific institutions in the world.

As we talked he was preparing to leave, that distinguished post to become head of America's greatest school of practical science, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. This, indeed, is Dr. Stratton's last interview from his old and famous desk in Washington.

"Commerce and industry have become sciences. They are no longer matters of mere energy," he went on. "Sciences need study. Instinct cannot make a man a scientist. It can only give him the impulse to become one.

"American commerce and industry do not seem to grasp these facts as fully as they are grasped in certain other countries.

"Therein lies the danger. The educational institutions of this nation, notably that which is best known as its 'MIT'—Boston Tech—have grasped it.

"I know perfectly that it calls me because, it thinks that once upon the ground I shall study it with care and find out how best it may be used, how best it may apply to the enrichment of the unusual training which it has been my privilege to gain as head of the United States Government Bureau of Standards.

"I have had twenty years of opportunity to study the application of science to industry and it is assuredly in that connection that the most important of all scientific work may be of some advantage to the country when put directly at the disposal of an educational institution already so well organized and so perfectly as Boston Tech.

"Scientific, Not Traditional. . . . One of the things which the opportunity has emphasized is the appreciation of that undoubted national necessity for substituting scientific methods for traditional procedure in every line of human effort wherein this is a possibility.

I know they are awakening I should be very appreciative. Competition With Us Not Normal. "Naturally disturbed political conditions in Europe, plus chaotic financial situations, have made it utterly impossible for any nation in Europe to attack our trade with normal vigor.

"The European disadvantages will pass in time and then, if we are not prepared, we seriously shall feel the pressure of their large, trained personnel.

"Our own raw products are often superior to any which we can buy abroad, but we have learned the methods of use best suited for the imported ones while our own require methods especially adapted to them and which we do not know.

"In going through a large factory, recently I found clays from Georgia, Florida and Kentucky in use for purposes which until very recently had been dependent upon foreign clays.

"That showed that we have made much headway in our technical development of such products. A few years ago at least such raw materials and usually the manufacturer of product were all imported. But if we can go part way we can go all the way.

"In a dozen lines development of our own technician will reveal the fact that we have raw material in abundance which previously has been waste material.

"The government took up the matter, with full realization of its importance to the nation, and technical fields became a throbbing impulse wherever young men are brought into the new technical careers.

"They became, even in Germany, with its worship of the military, almost as socially desirable as the army and navy and very much more remunerative.

"In the United States engineering long has been recognized and honored as a profession.

"Our engineers fully have deserved all the consideration given to them. No better are to be found anywhere. In fact do not hesitate to say that American engineers now lead the world and long have done so.

"I have seen in the engineering fields new and great problems are continually arising calling for the most difficult research work.

"There are many details in which we are lacking—things which have been solved elsewhere by specialists, yet which we do not recognize as such.

"Each man in important places. In some lines it is necessary for us to have men for it. In others we have not. If it concerns one of these very many lines, which involve questions of physics, chemistry, or electricity, we are handicapped by lack of men.

the men trained in their use. Importance of By-Products. "By-products wasted in one industry may well be materials essential to another. But we are likely not to realize this, too, until we have developed many more technically men than at present are available to our industry.

"For one example: any industry involving kilns and furnaces is now certain to waste great quantities of heat which might and should be utilized in the manufacture of other products requiring heat.

"Waste-elimination will be the key-note of the future effort. It must be the watchword of the nation which is to win commercially.

"But at the bottom of waste-elimination are problems of physics, chemistry and engineering, frequently of extreme difficulty and of such an elusive character that they can be solved only by men with thorough knowledge of the scientific principles involved.

"They must be ready to apply tomorrow the scientific discoveries of today and must be equipped to use scientific knowledge in every field.

"Remedies are not usually found until the nature of a disease is thoroughly understood.

"When the nature of a waste once is established, some means for its elimination will be found, either through utilizing in by-products that which previously has been the waste material.

"And the greatest of all waste eliminations which will be accomplished by the right kind of effort along the lines we are discussing will come from unobvious sources.

"It is infinitely important something should be done to educate young men as to the sort of education they should seek.

"In other words they must be far better informed than they are now as to these new opportunities.

"They must know that there are many, not a few, avenues of scientific work from which to make selection.

"Young men eminently fitted for scientific careers, which would be congenial and profitable frequently find themselves in other things for which they are not suited and make this discovery when it is too late.

"It always will prove wiser in the end to help a young man choose life-work for which he is especially adapted by natural tastes and special aptitude than to urge him into a career—whose surface indications hint may be extremely profitable, but for which he has not the special talents and aptitude. And this is as true from the financial as from any other point of view.

life in which technical training is not needed. Consider, for example, public utilities. It would be hard to think of anything in which there is such general misunderstanding due to the lack of knowledge on the part of the public's representatives in dealing with technical questions.

"There is not a town of considerable size in the whole country, surely there is not a city which does not need the services of a trained expert familiar with the engineering and scientific problems which arise in connection with production, distribution and regulation of public utility products.

"There is an answer to every problem of this kind which is fair to both producer and user—this answer must be determined by men trained to the particular industry and the special circumstances involved.

"Thorough study would put beyond the reach of controversy many things which now continually are the subjects of political discussion with neither side actually informed.

"Nothing could be more absurd, for instance, than that street-car fares should be the subject of political controversy. They can be determined beyond question through a careful study of the problem they involve.

"Personally I believe that the United States very rapidly is moving toward that point which through the medium of public utility commissions or otherwise, determines the medium of public utility.

"The average high school boy sometimes hears of chemistry as a profession but never of physics or all the others in which, really, there are equal opportunities.

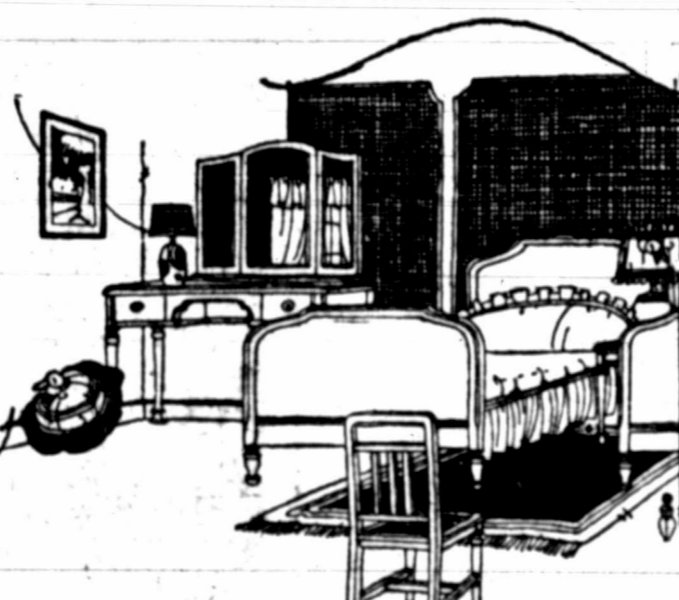

"A supply of men—and women!—things to girls as well as to boys—properly trained in the great problems of sanitation, transportation, housing and a hundred other things would be absorbed in the United States without delay and to the public's newly-made expert's credit.

Prayer meeting next Wednesday at 7:15 p. m. subject, "How We Got Our Bible." The attendance is increasing all the time. The mid-week service ought to be one of the outstanding hours of every week. People should not wait until great sorrow comes before they turn to God; rather there should be continuous thanksgiving to Him for all His mercies.

The women of the Missionary Society are planning a systematic and persistent visitation of all the Methodist homes in the city. Congratulations to the Baptist Sunday school for their splendid record in attendance last Sunday.

Mr. Killough, superintendent of the Sunday school, gave a Turkey dinner to all the teachers and officers of the school last Thursday evening at the Vernon Hotel.

It is the wish of the pastor that the stewardship of their families plan to attend the eleven o'clock service next Sunday morning. Space for their accommodation will be reserved in the middle tier of pews. Mr. U. S. Davis, president, P. M. McKinley, secretary, and J. L. Showers, treasurer, are the newly elected officers of the coming year.

The women of the Missionary Society observed the week of prayer with great success. The stewards have voted to give the silver offering next Sunday night to the society, to add to the week of prayer offering already made by the women.

The Women's Missionary Society will meet next Monday afternoon at the church at three o'clock.

COLLECTIONS OF WEEK IN COUNTY TOTAL $10,000

The tax collections for the week by the county tax collector amounted to over $10,000 according to the weekly report of M. L. Tuttle, the redemption tax collections totaled $1,976.77.

The collection of 1922 property tax for both the county and the state which also includes the school tax amounted to $8,192.61. A total of 90 poll taxes were paid.

Many local automobile owners have already made application for new license plates for 1923, but the department does not expect a rush in either the payment of taxes or the securing of auto tags until after the first of the year.

$150,000 HOSPITAL BOND ELECTION IS SET FOR TUESDAY

IS FOR BRANCH INSTITUTIONS AT THREE POINTS IN COUNTY.

TENTH TIME THIS YEAR POLL RECEIPT NEEDED

Wichita Falls Voters Have Had Plenty of Use For Franchises During 1922.

Pre-war prices have returned. People are getting more for their money than they did in 1914. Now take for instance the poll tax paying proposition.

Tuesday there's going to be another election. To pass on $150,000 worth of bonds issued for Burk Burnett, Iowa Park and Electra branch county hospitals.

This will make the tenth election of the year for which the property owner poll tax payer paid the sum of one dollar and six bits. Ten elections makes it seventeen and a half cents per and further more the year hasn't come to an end yet. One can never tell how many more there may be.

Tuesday's election on the branch hospital bond issue is the second one on the question this year. The first one last August was declared null and void. At that time the issue was defeated by a majority of eight votes. It was discovered that in five instances the polling places were not opened. Other irregularities were also discovered which set the election aside.

The three smaller towns in the county are asking for a bond issue for the purpose of erecting hospital buildings within their respective corporate limits.

The greatest opposition to the bond issue at the last election was voiced in Wichita Falls although Burk Burnett gave only a small majority in favor of the issue. Electra and Iowa Park however carried the issue with but a small dissenting vote.

The ten elections had in Wichita Falls during the year included the city election last spring; a school board election; two school bond elections; the democratic primary; the run off primary; the contested sheriff's election; the general election; and the branch hospital bond election last August.

Third Pipe Line

This photograph, taken September 7, shows the installation of a new ten-inch pipe line to Wichita Falls from Petrolia compressor station. The line saves two miles, will reduce leakage, and will deliver more gas to the city distributing company. It is the third line laid to Wichita Falls.

Another Evidence

The addition of this line is another evidence of the heavy cost of supplying gas to North Texas, and further proof that the Lone Star Company is itself doing what it asks its customers to do—eliminate losses by leakage and save gas.

This company is spending money at all times to perfect its system. The addition of thirty many miles of pipe line to offer the best service possible in bringing gas to your city responsibility ends.

(Carpenter's World Travels, Copyright, 1922, by Frank G. Carpenter.) PARIS, 1922.—As I motored toward Paris last night I saw two moons high in the sky. This has nothing to do with the absence of the prohibition amendment in France. I do not drink and my eyes are as clear as my head.

Seven Planes Now Traveling from Paris to London—Daily Flights to Belgium and Holland, and Across Europe to Warsaw—The Extensions from Czechoslovakia to Hungary and Turkey—A Daily Service from Paris to Constantinople—How France Flies to Its African Colonies—The Trip to Morocco, to Be Followed by Others to Algeria and Tunis—The Matter of Safety—A Visit to the Le Bourget Flying Field and Chats with the Pilots.

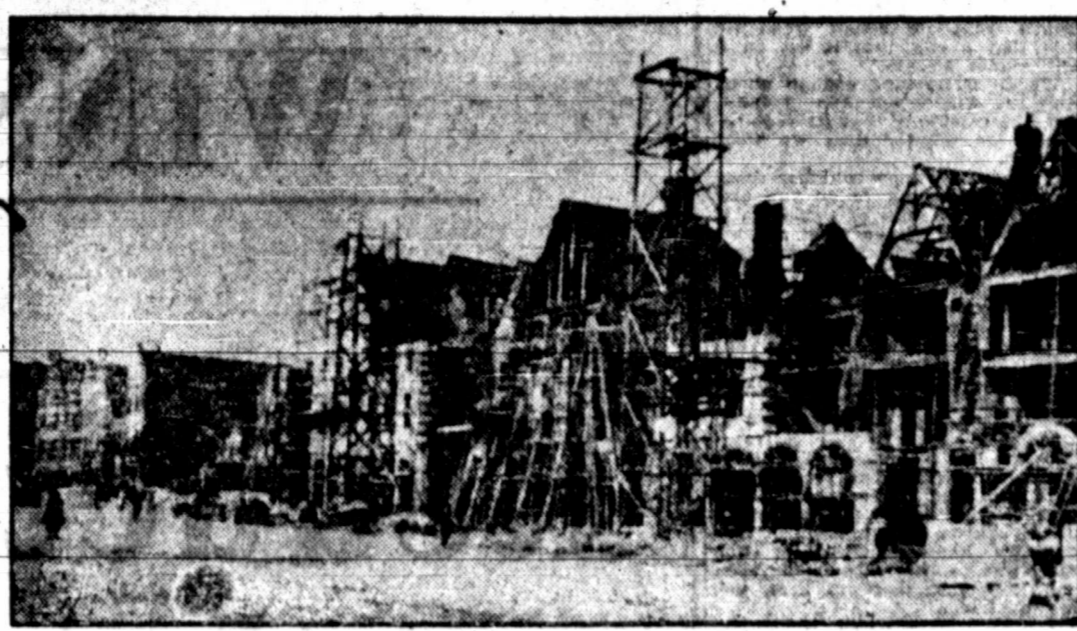

Laurent Eynac stands at the head of commercial aviation in France, and this means much, for France is far in advance of any other country in Europe in its aeronautic development. Mr. Eynac not only centralizes the technical information of the country, but he distributes the subsidies granted by the French parliament to the various operating companies.

Paris to London Before Breakfast—The progress of France along all lines of aviation is exceedingly rapid. We instituted our commercial aviation service in 1914, just after the war, when we established our first line from Paris to Brussels.

How about your service between Paris and Constantinople? "In addition to this," Mr. Eynac continued, "we have a regular service five times a week between Toulouse in south France and Casablanca in Morocco. That city is well down on the Atlantic coast of West Africa. The planes fly from Toulouse across the foot hills of the Pyrenees to Barcelona, the chief port of Spain. They leave Toulouse at nine and are in Barcelona at five past eleven. They stop there fifteen minutes, and then fly on to Alicante and Malaga along the Spanish coast of the Mediterranean Sea. They stay over night at Malaga, but at six the next morning are again on their way southward.

The distance from Toulouse to Casablanca by air is perhaps as far as from New York to the Mediterranean, and the cost is about the same as that made by steamer and rail. We shall lengthen the line southward to Algeria and Tunisia in the near future. We have an experimental line now running to Dakar in Senegal and this will be extended to Niamey in French Equatorial Africa.

How about your service between Paris and Constantinople? "In addition to this," Mr. Eynac continued, "we have a regular service five times a week between Toulouse in south France and Casablanca in Morocco. That city is well down on the Atlantic coast of West Africa.

Whole streets, squares and towns are being rebuilt on a scale such as the world has never seen before. France has spent an average of $2,000 per acre of the devastated regions, and hopes to collect the whole bill from Germany.

The mayor of Lens, who has his office in a wooden shack during the rebuilding of his city, showed Frank G. Carpenter the great works of reconstruction in the famous coal mine district. Mr. Carpenter tells what he saw next Sunday in "A Nineteenth Century Rebuilt."

Does the train dispatcher on a railway. As a result we have very few accidents and you may count on your fingers the pilots and passengers killed in one year.

The Question of Profits—"Will the day come when your air lines will pay commercially?" "Yes, but I can not prophesy as to the date. At present they are largely subsidized by the government. The budget for this year provided about $12,000,000 and the largest item in it approximated $7,000,000 for subsidies.

This matter of national defense referred to by Minister Eynac, is the milk in the coconut of the vast amounts of money which France, England, and other countries are expending on commercial aviation. Airships and airplanes are bound to be one of the necessities of the wars of the future.

We Might Give Planes to Japan—"It takes time to build up an air plane industry, and in case of sudden war the country that has no industrial aviation establishment will be at a great disadvantage. For this reason France is doing all she can to develop airplanes and air manufacturing plants for other countries at little more than cost.

CHRIST TAUGHT HOW TO SAVE RATHER THAN HOW TO THINK, JUDGE KAY TELLS HIS CLASS

The religion that Christ taught was simple religion, and it is what men have tried to do with it that has made it complex. Judge John C. Kay told his Bible class at the Olympic last Sunday. Judge Kay pleaded with hearers to "live their religion, not think it." His lecture followed:

It generally frightens me when strangers are announced here. I find that I am apt to have some great O. H. D. or some fellow who knows more about everything than I know about anything. Sometimes, I get to talking about military matters, and find out I have got a west pointer in the audience. If I mention the sea, I find out afterwards there were two or three sailors present. Here it is again!

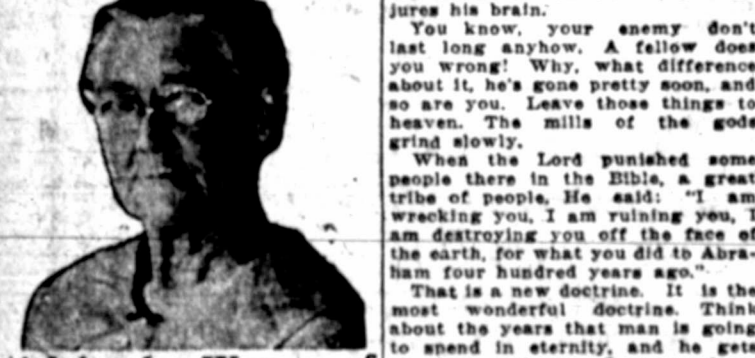

Now, I haven't got but one clear thought this morning, which I think is clear and, under the best of it will be built around that. A man does not think his religion, he lives it. It is not to be worked out as a system of philosophy, with a great line of thought. Loitering it up from what we might call a purely mental process, it is a system of life, and not a system of doctrine.

Now, there is a difference, as I think, in the dignity, in the importance of different parts of the Bible. There is a difference, and there will not be, religious controversies about those things that the Savior said and wrote, or of the things that were written recording his sayings. The controversy, the doctrine, the creed, has come from the writings of human men, like Paul and John. Paul writing of doctrines, and John writing of other worlds.

The Savior's religion was simple. No man of ordinary intelligence can fail to understand it. It is not only simple and plain, but it is practical. He didn't write out a long, learned system of doctrine and compel you and I to subscribe to it, but he said: "Live your life in the sight of God and in the sight of man." That's the burden of his preaching.

Now a man might thoroughly, honestly, earnestly, soberly believe, and think about, and dwell on a most profound doctrine. He might have a creed that was polished with learning, steeped in psychology and ornamented with all the beauties of language; he might have all these things and, yet, be empty. Empty! The Savior's teaching didn't call for that kind of thing. These things are not important. They are important in their place. But whether it is ever coming back to you? Do you do that?

You know, one of our most dangerous tendencies is to arrange ourselves in groups. That's what the Savior had in mind here, I think. Yes, I am willing to help anybody that is in my way. You know, that's pretty easy for some of us, because most of our set are rooting pretty high and you could not help them. There is no accommodation you can extend to them. That's not the man that needs it.

How many here ever helped a boy to go to school when that boy was unknown to you and nothing to you? I have. I have helped a good many, in a small way. It had to be in a small way, and I never lost a dime at it. It was just as that written: "Cast your bread upon the waters?" Not lock it up in the safe deposit, don't gather it into the barn, or the smoke house, "Cast your bread upon the waters." Know ye not that it shall return unto you many days hence. Give a portion out from every law, I guess for you know not what evil shall come unto the earth." That's what He meant.

Now, that's not so easy to do, as it is to believe in some creed. You know, you can believe any kind of doctrine, whatever, without it costing you a dime, and yet, you are in a mental state and the other is the fruit of an active life. And then He comes with the Golden Rule. What is the great principle in the Golden Rule that makes it different from every other? It is that it is a rule that recognizes our own selfishness, and it is a rule that recognizes our own selfishness, and it is a rule that recognizes our own selfishness.

IN HARD LINES

"I could not work at all and had to take to my bed with a high fever due to intestinal indigestion, gas and pain in my stomach and in my right side. I had spent my last cent for doctors and medicine, which gave me no relief whatever. I was in despair. A lady brother gave me a bottle of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and the first dose relieved me. Thanks to this medicine I am now in the best of health." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal, mucous membrane, which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince you or money refunded. Mack Taylor and druggists every where.

Back-Trailing on The Old Frontiers

Tragedy stalked at Elbow of Men Who discovered Rich Mines of the West! There Are Few Exceptions to the Rule, Declare Old Prospectors.

Copyrighted 1911 by the Cheely-Raban Syndicate.

Sudden riches often lead to madness, say old prospectors. Often the mere idea that he has acquired a vast fortune unsettles a man's mind. Also, death in some cases follows form stalks often at the elbow of those searchers for wealth in the hills whose picks have tapped deposits of extraordinary richness. One of the most striking instances of this kind—but only one of hundreds—was the story of Taber of Denver, who became immensely wealthy overnight from a gold strike in the Cripple creek district. He bought a seat in the United States senate and spent money like water. He built a magnificent theater in Denver, which he called the Taber Grand Opera house. It was until recently operated. On the night of the opening, it is recalled, Taber was entering the theater to the private box that had been prepared for him. He had with him a gay company of men and women. Suddenly his arm was seized by a witch-like old woman, expectant to him while she cursed him shrilly for leaving his wife—the woman who had helped him locate the mine, she wept when he became wealthy. "Look there," shrieked the hag, pointing to the splendid curtain before the stage, on which was painted the ruin of an ancient temple, with the motto beneath: "So pass the works of men." Back to the Earth again, she shrieked. "A year from today you will be dead—in a pauper's grave."

Her prophecy was a true one. Taber lost his wealth, his health, his sanity, and died in a year of poverty and misery.

More Recent Case The other day the American Zinc company took title to the great Silver Dyke property at Nelbath, Montana, a deposit of silver ore 200 feet in width. From the surface, it is a great profit. But the two men who prospected the mine and bonded it are both inmates of the state hospital in Helena, Montana. They are Dick Heidenreich and Peter Erickson, old-timers in the Nelbath district.

There is a well-grounded superstition among miners, that ill-luck or violent death is the legacy of all original locators of some 25, or 40, of the richest mines in the west are known to have come to tragic ends. One of the most tragic ends that came to any prospector was that of William Farrell, the discoverer of the Meadow Lake, who died a victim of remorse in a San Francisco hospital, "haunted by the spirits of other deluded prospectors passing and re-passing his death-bed."

Prospectors from all parts of the west have sought the famous "Lost Cabin" mine, situated in the Big Horn mountains of Wyoming and Montana. The story of this bonanza deposit states that the mine was found by two men who were prospecting for gold in the early days when the country was the habitat of hostile Indians. They were leaders of an unknown stream of pioneers ran across a body of ore so rich that they could hardly believe their eyes. One of the miners was killed by savages and the third reached civilization more dead than alive. He could not give the exact location of the ledge. As a result of the provisions, the mine was abandoned. The survivor lost his reason, according to the story, and was never able to lead his men to the mine, which he had brought back with him, however, proved that the mine was not altogether a myth. The new owner, who stumpled upon a vein in the Big Horn canyon, which he believed to be the outcrop of the famous ledge. The news was spread to all parts of America, stating: "Lost Cabin mine found." However, this proved to be a premature assertion, for the ore was copper with no gold content.

Found $20,000,000 Gulch July 21st, 1862, "Linda Johnson" Cowan, a well-to-do woman, D. J. Miller and W. J. Crab, were returning to Virginia City, Montana, after a discouraging prospecting trip to the Big Horn mountains, when they came upon a gulch that gave promise of containing placer gold. They decided to return to the creek, which they named Last Chance. They struck colors, and in four years' time gold to the value of $250,000 was mined there. One of the four members of the party died pauper. Stanley lived to an old age and ended his days in comfort in Canada. Bill Fairweather, discoverer of Alder Gulch, Montana, in May, 1863, whose pick tapped a stream that yielded $100,000 in gold, lies in an unmarked grave at Virginia City, Montana, within a few miles of where he and five companions drove their discovery stakes. Only one of the six had any money at the end. This was Tom Cover, one of the original owners of the townsite of Virginia City.

One of the marked exceptions to the rule of prospectors who die poor is former Senator Clark of Montana. His name, Jeff Davis Gulch, in Beaverhead county, Montana, are the ruins of a log cabin built some 10 years ago. It was built in this cabin in the early '60s lived Senator Clark when his wealth consisted of a few hundreds of dollars instead of his present hundreds of millions. Nearby Clark showed morning to night. He was elected first recorder of the mining district. The oldest deed in Montana was drawn in connection with the sale of a mining claim in the gulch which bears Senator Clark's signature. It bears a date in July, 1862. Clark is one of the very few gold new bonanza appeared to be Comstock. Comstock in His Glory Comstock was widely celebrated when mining, and as a wildly extravagant spender, he had been looking for a fortune in the gold fields. He bought whatever his fancy dictated and gave it away the next moment. His only pleasure seemed to be spending money like water, and most of his companions were like him in that respect.

McLaughlin sold his interest in the ground for $15,000. O'Riley was more fortunate and hung on till he secured $40,000, but he spent it all in stock speculation and died in a insane asylum. McLaughlin hung around the district and drank himself to death, being buried at public expense. Thus the real discoverers of the Comstock gold came to miserable ends.

Two months after the ledge was struck, Comstock sold his holdings for $15,000. After spending most of this in riotous living, he started north, later drifting into Montana, where he died by his own hand.

FIVE MILLION DOLLAR BOND ISSUE PROPOSED WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The Southern Railway company applied to the Interstate Commerce commission today for authority to issue $5,000,000 in four per cent general mortgage bonds. The securities will represent expenditures made by the company in additions and betterments.

SUFFERED YEARS WITH PIMPLES On Neck, Hard, Large and Red. Cuticura Heals. "For years I suffered with pimples on my neck. They were hard, large and red, and fostered itching and scaled over. The itching and burning were very severe and caused great discomfort. Because of the irritation I lost a great deal of sleep at night. "I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a sample which helped me so I purchased more, which healed me." (Signed) Joseph Reble, Box 44, Arlington, Va. Improve your skin by daily use of Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum.

Now occurred the first "free-out" the district had known. Comstock jumped on his horse and loped off swiftly to the little camp nearby, called Gold Hill, and found the character he had mentioned by the name of Old Virginia. This man was a drunken prospector and length decided to cross the Sierra mountains to California to raise money with which to develop the silver property, which he had proved by prospecting to be far bigger in size and richer than he and his brother had at first thought. But he fell a victim to what was called by old-timers the curse of the Comstock, and after being overcome in a mountain storm, he managed to drag himself to a mining camp, and died there from the results of exposure 12 days later.

When Allen Grosh started on his fatal journey, he cast about for some one to leave in charge of his affairs. The most available man seemed to be the placer miner Henry Comstock, who was working for gold in a creek nearby. It is said that a contract was drawn up, by the terms of which Comstock was to have one-fourth interest in one claim for keeping the property from being "jumped" in the absence of Grosh. Comstock agreed to live in the little stone cabin that had been built on the claim by the Grosh brothers. However, Allen Grosh, who was a well educated man and a thoroughly equipped prospector, did not take Comstock into his confidence or tell him anything of what he called his "monster vein." Instead, Grosh hid his assaying equipment and the memoranda of his discovery before Comstock came to the cabin, and long after his

NIGHT SCHOOL NOW HAS 286 ENROLLED, CLASSES GROWING

INDUSTRIAL INSTRUCTION RECENTLY PROVIDED FOR LOCAL WORKERS.

SESSIONS BEING HELD THREE NIGHTS WEEKLY

Large Number of Subjects Available For Those Who Are Interested.

Enrollment in the night school at the high school has now reached 286, and with the organization of four important industrial classes, a substantial increase is expected in the near future. The industrial classes have been formed recently under the direction of Prof. Charles Martin of A. & M. college.

Classes are held, for most subjects, on Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights, from 7:15 to 9:15. Prof. A. K. Prouson, principal of the night school, is hopeful for a still further increase in the enrollment. Concerning the progress of the school he said:

"The classes recently organized are a class in industrial chemistry for the benefit of carpenters, masons, workers in cement, etc., to be followed by blue print reading, house planning and contracting; second, a class in auto mechanics is open for membership; a class of this kind was very popular last year and should be even more in demand this year; third, a class in industrial chemistry has been organized, giving a wonderful opportunity for workers in the oil industry to improve scientifically in their line of work; fourth, a class for janitors meets two nights per week. The only requisite for admission to these classes is that the applicant must be following that line of work. These classes do not interfere in any way with the classes already meeting at the night school but are additions to the night school work. The other classes continue to grow. The following subjects are now being taught in addition to the ones outlined above: Arithmetic, algebra, English, Spanish, bookkeeping, typewriting, commercial law, psychology and Americanization. In most of these subjects there are two or more classes in order to fit the exact need of the students."

SING "THE RED FLAG" EN ROUTE TO SCAFFOLD

PRETORIA, Union of South Africa, Nov. 18.—Three men, Lewis, Long and Huil, sentenced to death after conviction on charges of murder arising out of the strike and rebellion on the Rand last winter, have been executed here. The men when leaving their cells to go to the scaffold sang "The Red Flag" whereupon the other prisoners all raised their voices in protest against the executions.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

ADVANCE OF AUTO WONDER OF AGE, SAYS REO DEALER

"Not so very many years ago the appearance of a horseless carriage upon the public streets was the signal for every one to line up at the curb, marveling at the wonderful progress made in the mechanical arts that produced a mechanism that would run under its own power wherever its driver willed. The automobile of a score of years ago was a queer thing to look upon from present day standpoints, but to the public of that day it was a work of art.

"The marvelous advance of automotive industry is perhaps the greatest wonder of the commercial age—electricity and the manufacture and control of the power that lights, heats and conveys us from place to place over interurban routes and traces its development back to the days of Franklin, Simon Ohm, Michael Faraday, Volta, etc. and its advance was spread over a long period of years. The motor car of today is young in years, but has advanced remarkably.

"It was only about 15 years ago that the Reo factory began building motor cars," says D. L. Fritz of the Fritz Motor Co., in discussing motor car development. "And yet today Reo stands with other more expensive cars in the quality class. The same men who built the first Reo are still at the helm, and they are doing just as they did then, putting everything into their product that experience and modern practice advise for the best result.

"The new model Reos are just one step farther in advance and I believe we have come as near to achieving the perfection we have long sought in these cars as it is possible to get with the best of materials and the best engineering and manufacturing practice.

"Many improvements have been made in the new phaeton Reo and our new closed models and the present line is equal in every respect to cars selling for much more."

"Sixty-one per cent of the rural population are on the farms. The last census has no precedent for separating these two classes. Places with fewer than 1,000 people are termed rural. Thus there are not so many individuals actually on farms as has always been inferred although nearly one-half of the country's population is classed as rural.

Numerous rumors emanating from Germany to the effect that that country is soon to produce an automobile tire that will revolutionize the industry have not yet evaporated and little credit is given to the story by the big tire manufacturers.

MAXWELL CLOSED CAR PRODUCTION IS GOING UPWARD

DETROIT, MICH., Nov. 18.—Maxwell Motor corporation's closed car production, which has shown steady gains throughout the year, has now reached a point higher than ever before in the history of the company, and the unusually large buying demand is forcing the Maxwell factories to work day and night. There are also substantial indications that even the present high mark may be exceeded within the next few months. For the past year Maxwell closed models have held an exceptionally strong position in a market ruled by intense competition. Several times it was found necessary to increase production materially in the company's large body plants in Dayton, Ohio, and any time during the week and establish the fact that you are the owner of this automobile and an order for a searchlight will be given. It will be installed free of charge.

recently additions were made in the Dayton properties which permitted the Maxwell organization to shoot at a manufacturing schedule that would more closely conform to the steady and insistent buying demand. The present high closed car output is the direct result of the greatly expanded resources for fine closed car manufacture, it is pointed out by Arthur E. Barker, vice-president of the company, but even with this tremendous schedule it has been found necessary to make further increases, and in the past week the Maxwell factories have been in operation nights as well as days. There is every evidence that this condition will continue.

"Our increased facilities for building closed cars have made possible the attainment of what is believed to be the highest proportionate closed car production ever recorded for a car of or above the Maxwell price," said Mr. Barker. "And our plans for the next few months call for even more remarkable closed car manufacturing developments in our factories."

In 1921, farmers of the United States are estimated to have consumed 1,998,000 gallons of gasoline for stationary engines alone.

JAWN SAYS HIS MARMON SMOOTH AS GREAT INFIELD

"As smooth as the Giant's Infield," is the opinion of his Marmon car held by John J. McGraw, manager of the New York National league baseball team. In a letter recently received by factory officials he writes of his Marmon experiences as follows:

"Now that the world series is over and I have a little time to think of other things, I want to tell you how pleased I am with the Marmon car which I ordered from you last summer.

"I have driven this car now 5,500 miles, and although I expected originally to dispose of it this fall, as has been my custom before going to Cuba and getting a new car, the car has been so eminently satisfactory that I am going to keep it as I could not imagine where or how I could get a better one, certainly no new car could be any better.

"I like a nice running piece of machinery. There seems to be a positive cooperation and coordination of all the parts of the car. Its ease of riding and smoothness of operation makes me think of the Giant Infield. There is no uncertainty about any of its actions. You can always tell exactly what it is going to do.

"To say that I am satisfied is putting it mildly, frankly I am enthusiastic. It rides well, it handles beautifully, it is economical in its upkeep and fuel consumption, and I have no hesitancy to say that if I would buy another car tomorrow, my choice would be a Marmon."

MOTOR FUEL FROM PRICKLY PEARS

By NEA Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Motor fuel from the juice of prickly pears is a new substitute for gasoline, according to a report to the department of commerce from Trade Commissioner Stevenson in South Africa.

Chemicals are mixed with the juice to make what is termed "Springbok" motor spirit.

It was invented by A. C. De Villiers, an attorney of Edenburg in the Orange Free State.

Its formula is a secret.

The spirit has been severely tested, says Stevenson, and is said to produce a mileage of 23.4 in a six-cylinder car. Its inventor also says it is non-corrosive, odorless and can be started easily in cold weather.

FIRST FRANKLIN SEDAN STILL ON DUTY IN DALLAS

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 18.—November 18 stands out as a mile post in the automobile industry, for it marks the ninth anniversary of the shipment of the first stock sedan ever made in this country. On November 19, 1913, the Franklin Automobile company shipped to its Dallas, Texas, dealership its first sedan, made in regularly scheduled production—the car immediately being sold to Mr. G. A. Robertson of Dallas, who continued to operate it until June 3 of this year, when it was sold to Mr. S. A. Leake, a prominent attorney of that city.

The fact that the first stock sedan is now in its tenth year of service and still running smoothly is especially pleasing to factory officials here, who point out that the sedan has long been the most widely sold model in the Franklin line, and that it alone forms 37 per cent of the entire Franklin output. No other manufacturer, so far as is known, turns out such a large proportion of sedans. The public had to be educated to the advantages of a light, flexible, all-year-round car suitable for town or country use, on rough roads or smooth, and in the beginning it was a slow process.

The first year only 22 Franklin sedans—there were no other makes on the market—were sold. The number sold, however, increased rapidly year after year and at the present time more than 12,000 Franklin sedans are in active service.

Wind shield wipers may have their place but experienced motorists know that a little glycerine rubbed over the glass will keep rain, or even sleet and snow if not too heavy, from obscuring the vision.

The total number of cars reported as stolen in 1921 was 27,254, about 7,500 more than 1920.

AMERICAN TIRES HOLD THEIR OWN AGAINST GERMAN

Although German rubber goods are said to be again flooding the Swiss markets, and in spite of the hold British rubber interests managed to gain during the war, American tires and mechanical goods easily hold their own, according to recent consular reports.

Quoting from a report of vice-consul Franklin, in San Salvador, of the 320 automobiles in active use there all but eight are of American manufacture and practically all tire equipment comes from the United States, continues a bulletin issued by Firestone export authorities.

Automobile and bicycle tires constitute the principal rubber goods imported into the Aleppo district and, although there are but about 150 automobiles and 50 trucks, it is evident that motor vehicles are increasing to a popularity bounded only by the condition or presence of roads.

As a means for bettering the motor market in China, American financing of good roads has been proposed for that nation. Although the Chinese government has worked on the situation of better highways, little has been done and a huge potential market is almost at a standstill.

Rubber footwear also is taking hold of people's fancy in remote places. Persia, for example, imported nearly 4,000 pairs of boots and shoes in the last twelve months.

Despite American automotive leadership in many countries there is, however, a prevalent feeling that from now on United States manufacturers will receive keener competition in foreign fields than has existed since 1914. During the war foreign manufacturing in these respects was practically at a standstill, but now automotive factories abroad are getting into action and America will have to hustle to compete with the lower prices some European concerns are prepared to make.

AUTO NOTES.

Keep springs tight at the axles; looseness here causes most spring breaks.

The total cost of the New York-New Jersey vehicular tunnel will exceed $28,000,000.

Never use gasoline to clean the car's upholstery. It cracks the leather and unless the gas or the dye is of very high grade may take out the color.

The United States senate committee on reconstruction and production has estimated that the truck mileage of the United States is 7,154,000,000.

A large motor passenger transport company in California is equipping its buses with radio entertainment quite practicable.

The drip-pan of a car may not seem very important—but it had better be kept clean. Gasoline upon its surface is the producing cause of many fires.

Two Cars in One for the price of one

HERE is an unusual offer—a sedan and a touring car mounted on a Marmon chassis, a new type of convertible body, unlike anything heretofore offered.

This unusual body has been especially designed by Marmon engineers as a final answer to the question "Which shall I buy, a sedan or a touring car?" Now you can have both. But do not get a mistaken idea that this is merely a touring car with winter sides—it is not. It is entirely different from anything you have ever seen before. The price is only $3350 for this convertible phaeton, only $165 added to the price of an open car. Think what is saved, as compared to a standard sedan! Remember it is mounted on the dependable, economical Marmon chassis.

Hundreds of these convertible phaetons are now in service throughout the country and owners say that this is the ideal type of all-year car, the kind people have waited for.

Come in and see it. A surprise awaits. You'll be amazed at the way Marmon engineers have combined beauty and utility.

THE MOTORISTS' PROBLEMS'

By WILLIAM M. STEWART, JR.

Motor Department: Please explain to me what is to be done to a battery when used in a battery...

The battery should be fully charged so that each cell shows between 1.55 and 1.58. Add sufficient distilled water to cover plates and clean the terminals. A little grease on the terminals will prevent corrosion.

Motor Department: I have a 1922 Ford car which will not run on the magneto. Have taken it to several repair shops and they cannot locate the trouble.

Motor Department: I have a 1927 Ford car, and would like to know what cause to the spark plug and other parts with it.

Motor Department: Why do spark plug points have to be closer together for magneto ignition than for battery?

Motor Department: What is meant by pre-ignition? I opened my switch recently and the engine continued to run.

Motor Department: My engine runs very well on level roads at moderate speed, but does not seem to take the hills very well.

Motor Department: Please tell me through your valuable column what makes my engine give gasline all the time.

STAND CHARGED WITH MAKING A 'BOGUS' PLUG

CLEVELAND, OHIO, Nov. 13.—That the busy counterfeiter has discovered profitable possibilities in lines other than making bogus money is shown by a case now pending in Cleveland.

The federal grand jury has returned indictment against David Goldstone and Tom O'Leary for using the mails to defraud.

The charge grew out of a business that had been built up by the defendants in making a spark plug for Ford cars which was sold as the Champion X, which is used as exclusive equipment by the Ford Motor company.

DIFFICULT TO TRACE THE CAUSE FOR TIRE BLOW-OUT

It is not always easy to trace the cause of a blow-out. The tire may have been kept carefully inflated at the proper figure, tread cuts filled and beads watched yet the casing gives out.

More often than not, difficulty of this kind must be traced back for months when the casing received a severe blow weakening the fabric structure and then, as time wore on, the entire casing becomes affected and blows-out when least expected.

Helpful Hints

When following another car closely on crowded roads do not trust too much to your brakes. If car ahead stops run your car slightly off the road so that you have room to go ahead in case your brakes do not take hold readily or you happen to be on a slippery place on the road.

When going down a long hill, change from one brake to the other so as to allow the lining to cool. If this is not done brake linings wear away rapidly and sometimes burn. Thus, by frequent changes, you prolong the life of the brake lining several hundred per cent.

Before driving across railroad tracks, shift into second gear, as there is less danger of stalling the engine. If you drive the car throttled down on high gear the engine stalls very readily and may happen to do so just as a train approaches.

Keep your eyes on the road. Many operators are continually looking down at their feet at the accelerator pedals, etc., while operating. This takes their attention away from the road.

Along the same lines of safety is the practice of keeping your hands on the speed lever until you have finished with it. You must watch the road while you are changing gears.

NEW MACHINE INVENTED FOR MAKING AUTO TAGS

By NEA SERVICE ST. PAUL, MINN., Nov. 12.—Joseph H. Gleake of this city has invented a machine which he says, will stamp out automobile tags in one operation and at less cost than they are manufactured at present.

The machine, he says, may bring about the formation of one of the largest industries in the country.

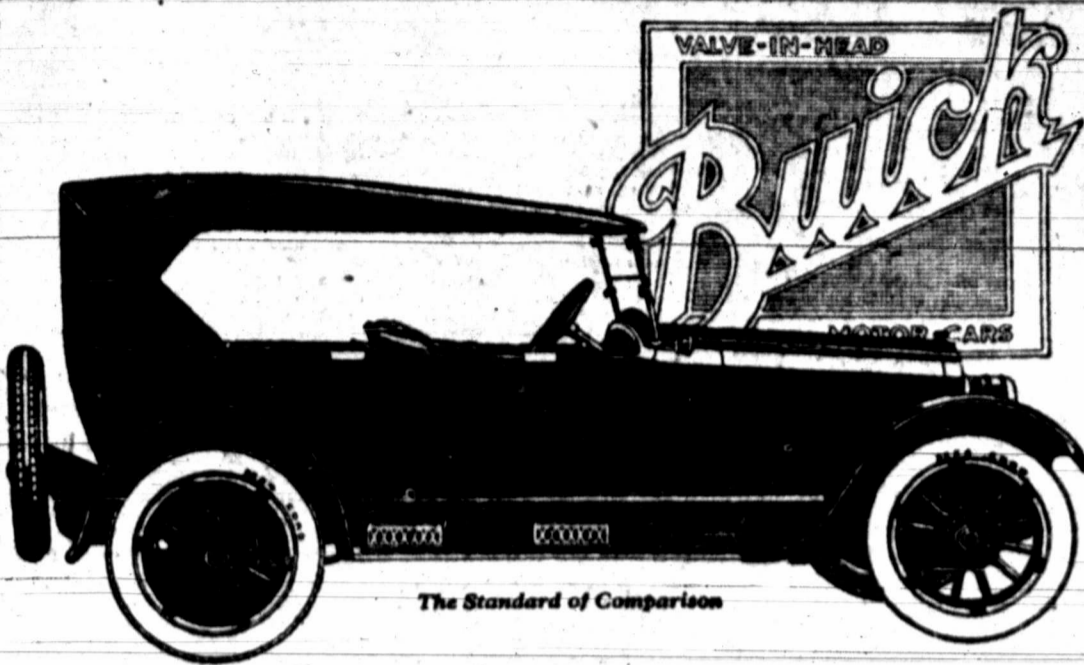

Under the old methods one operation was required to cut the tag, another to round the corners and punch the slots, third to stamp the numbers and a fourth to change the dies.

Gleake's machine does all this with one stroke. Also it saves considerable time in the operation. And the final cost of the finished product is said to be much less than that of today.

The inventor is negotiating with large financial interests for the organization of a national license tag firm.

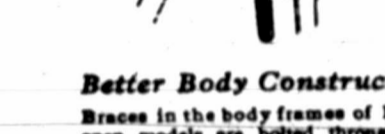

Don't turn the hose on your car in order to wash it. Water, forced out in this way, gets into impossible-to-reach places and doesn't improve the car. Use a sponge and bucket.

The average individual motor vehicle annual gasoline consumption is estimated at from 210 to 449 gallons.

External appearance is as essential in a motor car as it is in any of our other cherished possessions. We naturally want a beautiful car—a car that is rich in finish—distinctive in design—complete in its equipment. But while we desire and insist upon external appearance—we need and must have dependable performance. And it is this essential of performance that marks the Willa Sainte Claire as the great achievement in the history of motor car engineering.

"And it came to pass afterward, that he went throughout every city and village, preaching and showing the glad tidings of the kingdom of God: and the 12 were with him. And certain women, which had been healed of evil spirits and infirmities, Mary called Magdalene, out of whom went seven devils, and Susanna, and Joanna the wife of Chuza, Herod's steward, and many others, which ministered unto him of their substance. And they departed from thence, and came to a certain town, whither he went to pray: and he was there the next day. And when he was forth to land, there met him out of the city a certain man, which had devils long time, and wore no clothes, neither shod he with any shoes, but in the tatters of a skin. And when he saw Jesus, he cried out, and fell down before him, and with a loud voice said, What have I to do with thee, Jesus, thou Son of God most high? I beseech thee, torment me not. For oftentimes he had caught him, and he was kept bound with chains and in fetters; and he brake the bands, and he was driven of the devils into the deep.
