Senator Darwin has found a flaw in the record of weeks ago for changing a number of the text-books sed in Texas schools.

Senator Darwin's discovery is a technical one but there are many friends of education in the state who are hoping that it will be an effective bar to the changes contracted for.

As has been said before these changes will cost considerably more than a million dollars and will have the effect of shortening the terms of rural schools, most of which are already too short, by as nuch as a month.

This is a mighty poor time to place such a large fraft upon the funds of the public schools and ought to be avoided if there is any honorable method for

If Lord Julian and Miss Bishop were retained, it was because Don Miguel perceived their obvious value. He received them in his cabin with great urbanity. Urbanely he desired to have the honor of being acquainted with their names.

Lord Julian, sick with horror of the spectacle he had just witnessed, commanded himself with difficulty to supply them. Then haughtly he de-manded to know in turn the name of their aggressor.
"I am Don Miguel de Espinosa," he was answered.

"T affer you he violence. On the contrary, I have saved your lives Don Miguel's smile persisted.

"Meantime it is your lives that will cost you dear. Colonel Bishop is a rich man; and you, milord, are no doubt also rich. I will consider and fix your ransom."
CHAPTER XIX

The Meeting
The Mingrosa, with her consort, the Hidalga rolling after her, ran straight into the arms of Captain Blood. That happened early on the following morning. Den Miguel came upon the Arabella at a time when, separated from the rest of the fleet, she was alone and at a disadvantage. Miss Bishop, newly risen, had come out to take the air on the quarterdeck with his lordship in attendance when she beheld the big red ship that had once been the Cinco Llagas out of Cadis. The vessel was bearing down upon them, the long penns with the cross of St. George flutter-ing from her main truck in the morn-and watched the bustle. Telescope in hand on the quarter deck, Don Miguel was issuing his orders and signaling to his connort, in response to which the Hidalys, had drawn steadily forward until site was now abeam of the Milagross

The Arabella was advancing now along a course which, if continued, must carry her straight between the two Spanish ships.

The Admiral raised his hand; in the waist, below him, a trumpet blared and immediately the gunner on the prew touched off his guns. As the prov touched off his guns. As the thunder of them rolled out, his lord-ahip saw ahead beyond the English ahip and to larboard of her two heavy splanes. Almost at once two suchead, and scarcely had the watchers on the peop seen the shower of spray, where one of the shots struck the water near them, than with a rending crash and a shiver that shook the Milagreea from stern to stern, the other same to ledge in her forecastle.
