TEXAS AND GEORGIA COTTON SITUATION IS MOST DISCOURAGING

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2. (AP)—The department of agriculture, in a statement issued last night, commenting on its report early in the day, which forecast cotton production this year at 1,150,000 bales from its condition of $1.3 per cent of a normal crop, July 25, declared "the outlook for the cotton crop during the month ending July 25, was decidedly in two important states, Texas and Georgia."

Florida also was hard hit, according to the statement.

"Every district in Texas," the statement said, "suffered deterioration of condition due principally to lack of moisture, but also due to high temperatures and the ravages of insects."

"With the exception of counties in south Texas, little material damage has thus far been done by the worms of the boll worm in that state, but the leaf worm has been very active, particularly in the south. Serious damage is reported from the south district of Texas from the effect of what is known as the cotton fly," a relatively new pest.

The forecast was based on a survey of the cotton crop in the state as a whole, to 75 per cent, or the average of the past years, on July 25, continued the report.

Georgia's cotton crop, which has had a heavy average of 70 per cent, on July 25, fell about 10 points during the month this year, to 48 per cent, the lowest on record for that date.

Artificial Fat Newest Remedy For Diabetes

NEW YORK, Aug. 2. (AP)—Artificial fat is the newest remedy for diabetes, it was announced today by physicians at Beth Israel Hospital, Dr. Max Kahn, associate biologist and chemist at the medical school of Columbia is the discoverer. The substance, known as Intarvin, is a synthetic fat developed in the Columbia laboratory by Professor Ralph H. McKee, has, Dr. Kahn reported, been used successfully in the cases of more than two dozen men and women in New York and Detroit.

Intarvin is declared to be the first true oleochemical the world has ever seen. It is made from margarine acid. Oleomargarine is made from cotton seed oil and tallow.

Intarvin is of a white cream color, odorless and tasteless, melting at body temperature and neutral in reaction. It does not cause nausea and seems to satisfy the hungry craving for fat that diabetes has.

Doctor Suggests Psychology Cure For Indigestion

CHICAGO, Aug. 2. (AP)—Psychology as a cure for indigestion was mentioned by Dr. Arno B. Lockhart, head of the department of psychology at the University of Chicago, in a paper read last night before the American Home Economics Association in a session here. Dr. Lockhart said that he had been told by a "lay" person, to whom he had been referred, that the patient was suffering from indigestion. When the patient was interviewed, the doctor discovered that the patient was suffering from indigestion. "When we talked with the patient and explained the nature of his condition," the doctor said.

Exporters and Cats In Squabble Over Dolly Gray

PORT WORTH, August 2. (AP)—Dolly Gray, who will become a member of the Fort Worth club's pitching staff by tonight, last night Fort Worth claimed him, though the Exporters of Cleveland, Indiana, was turned over to Beaumont by Fort Worth on an optional agreement two weeks ago. However, they seem to be somewhat at odds as to when the recall period expired, now or at the end of the season.

Manager Kitheens this morning refused to give up Gray, asserting La Grava had loaned him the player until the end of the season. La Grava called on Roberts for a decision. Gray said he had turned his uniform back to Kitheens and would don a Panther uniform this afternoon. Kitheens said he would put Gray in to pitch against Fort Worth.

SHOWERS BENEFICIAL TO CROPS OF WEST TEXAS

PORT WORTH, Aug. 2. (AP)—Crops in some sections of the panhandle and west Texas, withered by the three weeks' heat wave, have revived this week, according to reports here, under the influence of heavy rains and now promised showers. This is true especially of cotton and feed crops. Showers have been falling regularly since Sunday, reports say.

RAIN, BADLY NEEDED OVER WEST TEXAS AS A WHOLE

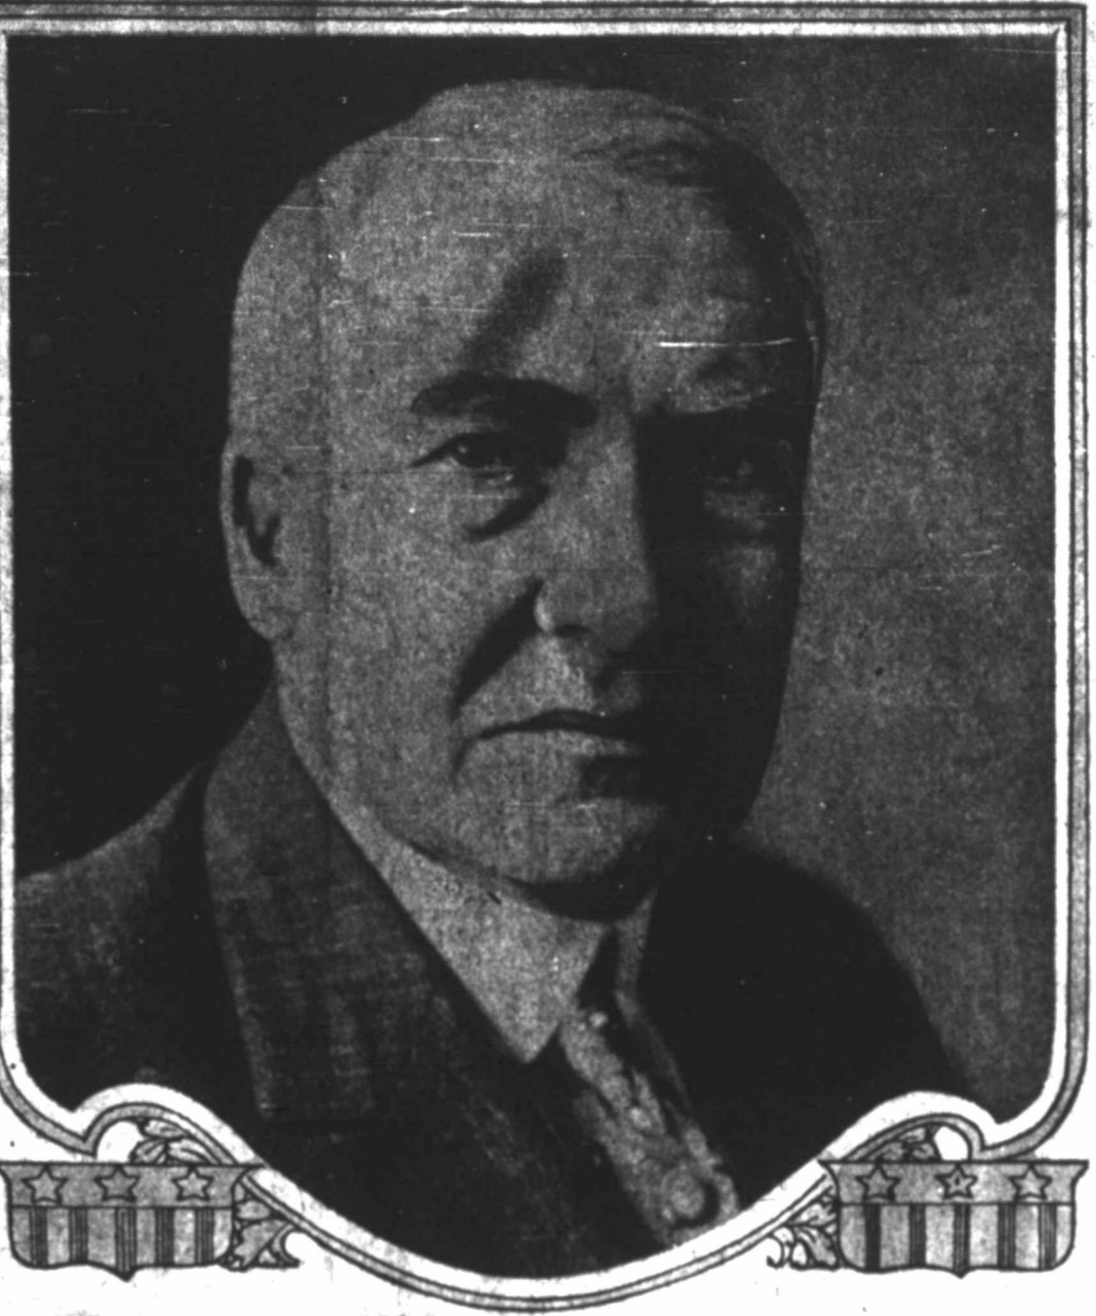

ARLINGTON, Aug. 2. (AP)—Rain is badly needed over west Texas as a whole, and the general drought has not been relieved by scattered showers. Cotton in central west Texas is needing rain badly and has begun to wither under the scorching rays of the sun.

LITTLE APPREHENSION RESULT PUEBLO FLOOD

PUEBLO, COLO., Aug. 2. (AP)—High water in the Arkansas River and Fountain Creek caused some apprehension here late last night, but early this morning there was little to indicate that more than the ordinary flow of water had been carried through the city.

Cloudbursts last night several miles from Pueblo caused a rush of water to the lowlands, and some damage to railroad property and highways resulted.

NO CURE FOR CANCER BUT PROGRESS IS MADE

NEW YORK, Aug. 1. (AP)—Dr. William J. Mayo of Rochester, Minn., who returned yesterday from the Adriatic after attending the congress of the international society of surgery in London, said no positive cure of cancer had been demonstrated at the congress, which was very, very promising.

Fair and Warmer Day After Day Is Wichita Weather

The winds continued to blow fair and warmer over Wichita Falls Wednesday. While a light south-westerly wind blew most of the day, the sun beat down as any August sun here. This is true especially of the afternoon. The temperature dropped to 89 degrees at early dawn Thursday morning. There was no change in the weather conditions over this section of the state Wednesday night and Thursday morning, according to reports from the railroad dispatchers' office. Following the general rain and wind storm of a few days ago, the weather cleared and there has been no indication of disturbances since that time.

TURKISH AND AMERICAN DELEGATION IS AGREED ON TERMS OF TREATY

LAUSANNE, Aug. 2. (AP)—After an all-night session the Turkish and American delegations today completed the text of a proposed American-Turkish treaty and it was immediately called to Washington and Ankara. If the two governments approve the terms it probably will be signed here Saturday and possibly tomorrow.

It is understood that the text provides measures for the satisfaction of the claims of all American citizens whether they are natives or naturalized.

Janet Pasha, head of the Turkish delegation, assured Joseph C. Grew, American minister to Switzerland, that the text set passed by the last legislature would meet all just claims against him.

'Y' Swimmer In Lake Erie Trial Lands at Lorain

CLEVELAND, Aug. 2. (AP)—Carbis A. Walker, central Y. M. C. A. swimmer, landed at Lorain at 1:15 a. m. today, just 30 hours, and 15 minutes after he started his swim across Lake Erie from Pelee Island.

Walker, accompanied by a telephone message to the News here.

Meanwhile a search is being made for the power boat Argus which left Point Pelee lightship yesterday morning, acting as a convoy to Walker. Some time during the trip the boat, which accompanied Walker and his five passengers, Charles D. Solder, commander, Cleveland Post Club, his wife, and three Cleveland newspaper men.

It is believed the Argus is somewhere in the lake.

The pilot of an airplane that left Lorain last night to report on Walker's progress did not sight the Argus.

Walker had to steer his way from the Point Pelee lightship to the Lorain lighthouse by the sun and moon and directions given by passing craft as the compass he had relied upon to guide his course was on the Argus.

Walker was accompanied the entire distance by a row boat manned by five persons.

LONG DISTANCE SWIMMER DECLARES 'NEVER AGAIN'

LORAIN, O., Aug. 2. (AP)—Carbis A. Walker, long distance swimmer, after completing a swim across Lake Erie, arriving here at 1:15 this morning from Point Pelee, where he left at 9:15 yesterday morning, roused himself long enough this forenoon to say: "Never again."

The fresh water swim has sapped his strength. His legs are partially and temporarily paralyzed. He is sleeping an exhausted sleep on a cot in the United States coast guard station here.

END COMES SUDDENLY 7:30 O'CLOCK TONIGHT; FAMILY AT BEDSIDE

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2.—The following bulletin is just issued. The president died instantaneously and without warning and while conversing with members of his family at 7:30 p. m.

Death was apparently due to some brain envelopment, probably apoplexy. During the day he had been free from discomfort and there was every justification for anticipating a prompt recovery.

"C. E. SAWYER, M. D."
"RAY LYMAN WILBURN, M. D."
"C. M. COOPER, M. D."
"J. T. BOONE, M. D."
"HUBERT WORK, M. D."

By Universal Service.
SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2.—The president died at 7:30 p. m. Mrs. Harding and two nurses, Miss Ruth Powderly and Miss Sue Dauser, were in the room at the time. Mrs. Harding was reading to the president when utterly without warning a slight shudder passed through his frame, he collapsed and all recognized that the end had come. A stroke of apoplexy was the cause of his death.

Within a few moments all of the president's official family had been summoned.

HISTORY OF LIFE

Warren G. Harding brought to the presidency an inflexible patience and kindness in dealing with public questions and men, which enabled him to handle the problems of government with the stress and worry which had handicapped many of his predecessors.

Whatever reconstruction had only just begun, with business depressed, agriculture prostrate and unemployment general.

How Mr. Harding measured up to the task before him must be left to the historian, but his friends said that coming to the presidency as he did with an open mind, a desire for counsel and an intimate knowledge of the processes of government required in the service of the state, he was the type of man needed for the job at such a time. Peaching upon every occasion the virtues of Americanism, he set his face resolutely against "entangling alliances." While thus adhering to what he was pleased to term the principles of the founding fathers, he nevertheless lent the moral assistance of his government in the efforts to bind up the wounds of the world.

BRYAN OUTLINES ATTITUDE TOWARD MR. UNDERWOOD

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 2. (AP)—Senator Oscar W. Underwood's availability as a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination will depend on the platform adopted by the Democrats, William J. Bryan is quoted as saying in an article published in the News-Metropolis here today.

Mr. Bryan's signed statement said in part:

"If Wall street and the 'wets' control the convention and write the platform they will doubtless regard Senator Underwood as the logical candidate. He is a man of a part, silent though it was in the main, in effecting the settlements of many vexing world questions. His chief contribution was the Washington arms conference at which the principal powers consented to limit the size of their navies and thus lift from tax weary peoples the burden of maintaining the race for naval supremacy.

Along with the proffer of counsel in effecting world settlement went an insistence that American rights be recognized. In polished phrase, but with a direction of expression that was not to be misconstrued, he was given to understand from the very first of the Harding administration that the United States had the right to be treated as an equal nation, and that she should accept nothing less.

While in his dealings with congress Mr. Harding preferred the role of counselor rather than dictator, he especially removed any doubt that his gift of patience depended any lack of purpose on the part of congress. He was the first senator to which he was elected at the age of 34. He served two terms in the senate, and in 1916 he sought the governorship but was defeated.

MR. UNDERWOOD

Whatever else his attainment Mr. Harding's greatest pride was in his professional accomplishments and in his service to his country. From the first he was an ardent partisan and his insistence upon wearing "stove pipe hat," the badge of support of James O. Blaine, while a reporter on a democratic newspaper, brought him a sharp reprimand from his chief, who held it to be inconsistent for a reporter on a democratic paper to so prominently display the symbol of his partisanship.

The future president's ability as a stump speaker won him early recognition from his local party leaders. From the first he was in the democratic column and he undertook to switch it to the republican party, but his first effort at office hunting party ticket resulted in a defeat, though he commanded an unexpected vote. Mr. Harding's first political office was that of "Ohio" senator, to which he was elected at the age of 34. He served two terms in the senate, and in 1916 he sought the governorship but was defeated.

Lance comes in Wichita Falls with a record that would indicate how with his heavy blows and his ability to stay with the puncher from Gainesville. He has met such able opponents as Red Herring of Houston, and Willie Williams of New Orleans, and while not always a victor, he has never failed to make it a good scrap.

The confidence that is being placed in Lance by his promoter, Red Herring, is attracting almost as much attention as the main event. Lance has been strong with Wichita Falls fans in his recent victories over Red Herring and O'Connell.

Rumors are circulating only that the amount of all that she produced in the past year.

The Lookout

By AL PARKER

The hopefuls, who a day or so ago were on the verge of being dubbed the "hopeless," are off on an important road stunt. For that matter, every game from now on is an important one if the club is to retain its pennant ambitions hanging over at Shreveport and it is probable that the two doubleheaders will be staged in the four days that the Spudders entertain the Gastown fans.

The hopefuls have a fine opportunity to gain a large haul of territory over somebody in this series, for Dallas and Fort Worth will be cutting each other's throat while Spudders and Gastown are winking it. The Gastown still have the weakest team in the league, with the possible exception of Shreveport, and Dallas should get a large share of the games with the Gastown. The Gastown are managed as badly as any team in the league, and it is probable that a portion of the team's strength, all have been out of it for several days.

Following the series at Shreveport there are two with Dallas and Fort Worth and one with Dallas and Fort Worth. The Spudders certainly will make up for the loss of the Gastown.

Several Spudders are starting tonight at Shreveport. Dave Shrade, California welterweight, won a 16-round decision over Paul Doyle of Brooklyn Thursday night at the Velodrome.

And maybe Dutch Weiser is started again. He has been in the throes of a slump for some time, but his two losses Wednesday forecast a new lead on life for the Butcher Boy.

With codes of reserve strength on hand, it would be difficult for an injury to set the hopefuls in such a hole as was caused by the injury to Al White. The Skipper has numerous suits that could be employed with two of the athletes able to play almost anywhere on the diamond. Lester seems to get by nicely anywhere he is stationed while Rookie Coombs already has demonstrated that he should worry about where he is played. And Eddie Dyer can go with the next one in the outfield.

The Spudders now can boast a catching staff second to none in the league. In Bischoff and Jannard the hopefuls are fixed behind the bat just a little bit better than any club in the league, with the possible exception of Viek of Houston. From a throwing standpoint and Bischoff is just about the sweetest hitting piece of receiving machinery on the circuit.

The Texas League probably is better fixed for catchers this season than in many other years. The circuit always has been weak in that one particular and the catching this year is not so strong as other departments. The Texas League develops few receivers. It seems to have been the policy to take on the old heads who are on the downward

DEMPSEY WOULD TAKE ON HARRY WILLS FIRST

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, here today en route to New York where he will begin training in a few days for his bout with Luis Firpo on September 14, said he was anxious to meet the Argentine fighter, although he would rather fight Harry Wills first. He expressed a desire to meet Tommy Gibbons again "after I've got a few good fights under my belt."

Following the series at Shreveport there are two with Dallas and Fort Worth and one with Dallas and Fort Worth. The Spudders certainly will make up for the loss of the Gastown.

TWO CHAMPIONS BILLED IN NO-DECISION BOUTS

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Two world champions will appear in the ring in west New York Thursday night in 12-round no decision bouts. Mike McGuire who took the world's light heavyweight title by defeating Harry Wills in Dublin last St. Patrick's day, will meet Tommy Longbrun of Philadelphia, with whom he boxed eight rounds recently in the first match, also a no decision affair, newspaper critics thought the Philadelphia had shed the champion.

The other title holder is Joe Lynch, welterweight, who will meet Kasechak Joe O'Donnell of Philadelphia.

LYON TO BE HONORED IN WEEKLY TRAPSHOOT

The regular weekly shoot of the Wichita Falls Gun Club will be held Friday afternoon at the high target shoot of Athletic Park at 5 o'clock. A bit of color will be added by the shoot in that it will be in honor of Hunter Lyon, who is departing from Wichita Falls for Pittsburgh in the next few days.

SENATOR COPELAND SAYS REPUBLICANS MISERABLE FAILURE

CRITICIZES RECORD MADE BY ADMINISTRATION OF PRESIDENT HARDING.

SPEAKS BEFORE MEMBERS OF GEORGIA LEGISLATURE

Charges That Party With Being "Strangely Blind to Rights and Privileges of Labor."

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 4.—(AP)—Charging that the Republican party has "miserably and ignominiously failed" in expressing confidence in the Democratic party...

Spur and Crosbyton Are Visited By Locating Board 'Tech' College And Party Leaves for Floydada

Special to the Times. SPUR, TEXAS, Aug. 4.—A regional background of ranch life including the famous roundup and rodeo was witnessed by the locating board of the Texas Technological College in its tour of the site offered at this place for the new institution.

Spur citizens met the locating board at Crosbyton and drove them overland the 40 miles to Spur. A trip to see the city water works plant, to the gravel and sand pits worked near the site, and over the site for the college was followed by a journey to the Spur ranch of the Preston brothers. Here the committee together with about 100 citizens of Spur and surrounding towns witnessed the exciting events of ranch life...

The evening was concluded with a check wagon lunch prepared and served in typical cowboy style and speeches of welcome and presentation of Spur's claims for the location of the college. The party then returned to Spur and spent the night.

Special Investigation. The location of the proffered site for the new college, immediately surrounding the experiment farm and ranch station of the A. & M. College of Texas, was considered as a particular inducement by the Spur committee. Location for buildings could be made either on a tract adjoining the experiment station or on a plot extended within the city limits.

The farmer, Senator Copeland said, has suffered more than all the rest of society. He named agriculture as the fundamental industry of America as well as of many other countries, and asserted that unless the farmer prospers there cannot be prosperity for any nation.

Senator Copeland charged that the Republican tariff framers forgot the farmers when they wrote the Ford-McCumber bill, which he characterized as an "injurious law."

The senator charged the Republican party with being "strangely blind to the rights and privileges of labor," and asserted that never before has it "gone over so openly and avowedly to the support of capital."

Senator Copeland asserted that "on principle the Democratic party is opposed to government ownership and operation, but it will deal vigorously with the entire problem of ownership, consolidation, earnings and operation of the railroads."

Adjusted compensation for war veterans and particular care for all who served our country as a result of war was expressed as a Democratic party principle by the senator.

Foreign Relations. Passing to the subject of foreign relations, Senator Copeland asserted that the present situation of the world is not war or the fear of war, but discontent born of ignorance, "that the world needs is work," he said.

In conclusion, Senator Copeland declared what he termed the Republican abandonment of the "reestablished policy of conservation."

"President Harding," he said, "in one of his Alaska Jay bird speeches attacked nature conservation and his own treasure for the benefit of his generation."

He charged the chief executive with "having taken the country to the verge of bankruptcy."

Senator Copeland declared that 23 states which were carried by the Republicans in 1920 have swung over to the Democratic standard and he believed "because our country will not stand for the thoughtless neglect of the millions for the sake of enriching a few."

A semi-annual dividend of five per cent was declared at the meeting of the board of directors of the Texas Loan and Mortgage company in their office Wednesday evening. This was the first meeting of the directors for the purpose of declaring a dividend since the organization of the company, with some 200 stockholders in January, 1932.

BODY LATE PRESIDENT WILL REACH CAPITAL 1:30 P. M. WEDNESDAY

WASHINGTON, August 3.—A telegram to the white house today from San Francisco announced that the train bearing the body of President Harding would arrive in Washington at 1:30 p. m. next Wednesday.

The body of President Harding will start on its journey across the continent to the national capital at 6:30 o'clock this evening, according to the last official announcement made today.

Members of the presidential party will leave the Palace hotel in advance of the remains of the chief executive about 5:15 p. m., and will arrive at the station at the station at 6 o'clock. The body will start from the hotel to the station through streets which it is expected will be densely lined with mourners and will reach the railway carriage at 6:30. With the casket aboard the train will immediately pull out on its trans-continental way.

The honorary pall bearers were announced as follows: Attorney General Daugherty, Secretaries Work, Wallace and Hoover, General Pershing, Speaker Gillett, Governor Richardson of California; Mayor Ralph of San Francisco; Admiral Simpson, commander of naval forces of the twelfth naval district; Major General Morton, commander of the ninth corps area.

The body will be taken to the railroad station and will be conducted by Rev. James B. West, pastor of the First Baptist church, of San Francisco. President Harding was a Baptist by faith and was a worshipper at Calvary Baptist church, of Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON, August 3.—From its highest officials to its humblest citizen, Washington awoke today to slow realization that President Warren G. Harding lay dead in far-away San Francisco. The suddenness of the blow struck last night with numbing force. Not till the morning papers bore the news over the city was it fully credited.

And among the common folk everywhere realization of the truth carried with it a sense of personal loss. The big, kindly man, who for two years had lived at the White House, had come to be looked upon with very friendly eyes as he moved about the city. There was that in his face that won friendship for him from the thousands who saw him only as chance brought him into the streets or public places.

To the very few in high official life who were in Washington when the wires brought the ill tidings over the country, the shock came with troubled forces. They knew him best, and after many hours of anxiety and eager scanning of the bulletins from his bedside, they had been lulled into confidence that he was soon to be among them again, the calm, kindly leader with whom they have tolled shoulder to shoulder. It was to a strangely scattered official family that word of their leader's death was flashed. Of all the cabinet, only Postmaster General New was actually within the limits of the national capital. Secretary Hughes, the only other cabinet officer within less than a day's journey, was at his summer home in Maryland.

FEW IMMEDIATE CHANGES EXPECTED IN ADMINISTRATION

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—Although work in all government departments is at a standstill today, the death of President Harding is expected to bring about few immediate changes in the administration organization.

President Coolidge has expressed a wish that all those who served under Mr. Harding remain in office and his desire probably will be fulfilled.

As was the case, however, when Theodore Roosevelt succeeded to the presidency and Mr. Harding's death, it is expected that few immediate changes in the administration organization will be made.

While the present members of the cabinet in office without further action by the new president, such as the resignation of Mr. Harding, it is expected that few immediate changes in the administration organization will be made.

REPUBLICANS LOSE SENATE VOTE AND MARGIN IS CLOSE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—The Republican organization in the senate will lose a vote during the next congress through the death of President Harding, a vote which many of the party leaders thought might be necessary to save the control of that party over matters of legislation.

Now that the office of vice-president is no longer filled, it will be necessary for the senate to select from its own membership a presiding officer, who as a senator would cast his vote on roll call. While the vice-president as presiding officer never participated in debate, he was required by the constitution to break any tie vote which might develop. With the Republican majority in the senate reduced almost to the vanishing point and with threatened new alignments of Republican senators, who will be chosen as presiding officer of the senate cannot be foreseen.

Senator Cummins of Iowa was selected by his colleagues during the last session to preside in the absence of Vice-President Coolidge but he has indicated a desire to be relieved of the duties to enable him to give more time to his duties as chairman of the interstate commerce committee, which it is thought will be one of the most active committees during the next session in framing railroad legislation.

WICHITANS KNEW AND HONORED OUR CHIEF EXECUTIVE

J. G. Culbertson, now in South America, who was Republican candidate for governor of Texas at the time that Harding was the nominee for president, knew the chief executive personally, and had been a guest at the white house, he will probably be many weeks before Mr. Culbertson learns of the president's death, as he is now in a remote section of the Andes mountains in South America.

PRESIDENT WAS FAITHFUL, SINCERE AND HONEST—KELL

"President Harding gave the nation a faithful and honest administration and was absolutely sincere in his desire to do his best to serve the American people as the head of their government. Today the whole nation mourns his loss."

Harding Friends Late of Marion, Now Live Here

News of President Harding's untimely death struck perhaps to one Wichita Falls family than to any other person among the thousands that were startled to hear the sad report Thursday night.

Early Friday Mr. Swidlow sent the following telegram to Dr. George Harding, father of the former president, and to Mrs. Harding:

"Permit one who has admired and loved your son as you do to condole with you in your great loss."

"Permit one who has admired and loved your husband as a dear friend to extend deepest sympathy in this hour of bereavement."

Continuation of Letter From Sydney to John Alden Prescott
"I couldn't finish this letter last night, John, because my client in the Strathmore case came in and I had to go over the entire evidence with him. However, there isn't very much more to say. Paula told me that she was leaving for California early next week and she told me to tell you she wished you every happiness. God, Jack, she's a pretty straight girl after all, isn't she? I don't believe I would have sent such a message to a man who had wronged me. Would you?"

"I asked her if she had enough money to go, and she answered proudly that she had borrowed it from some of her friends in New York. She would not allow me to lead her any, I tell you I came away from that hotel feeling that she was pretty decent sort of a girl after all. All my sympathies were with her, and I hope she will have the greatest success on the coast."

"There! I've sent you her message, and I'm not going to write any more. I don't care for it at this moment over-much, Jack, and I hate myself for this quotation keeps running through my head. But for the grace of God, Sydney Carton, that man might have been you. Good night, old chap. SIDNEY."

Letter from Mrs. Helen Prescott to John Alden Prescott
My Dear Son:
I really cannot understand why you haven't written me. Of course, I know that Leslie has been ill, but it does not seem to me that Leslie's death should keep you from writing to your mother—your mother has been very near the Valley of Death. Dear Leslie, I had never told me she wrote to you telling you how ill I was. And I am sure she kept through your illness, and you offering to have her come in my place to help nurse Leslie and you refused so easily. She seemed to me to feel that I have never yet asked her to go to you and she was perfectly willing because of me, to go, that she deserved at least something in the terms in which you sent it. I expect by this time that Leslie is up and around. I have never yet known just how badly she was hurt. I am writing you today, however, because the man who painted the house is asking me rather peremptorily for the money.

You know, I told you when he painted it that I did not have the money to pay for it, but I considered the money was well spent. I did not think for a moment that you would send it to me by return mail. It has been months, and I have neglected to ask you for it before because I felt that you would surely send this to your mother.

Please, John, do not let me be annoyed by this man any longer. Dear Priscilla says she knows it was through some mistake. She insists that you should have sent it to her, or at least you have been so concerned over your wife's health that you have slipped your mind. I cannot help thinking, however, that you have spent very much more money than you should.

I can easily understand that Leslie is extravagant and thoughtless. However, I hope the time will never come when she will be humiliated as I am now, by having to remind her son of her needs. I shall expect to hear from you by return mail. Your loving mother, MARY ALDEN PRESCOTT.

FINAL STAGE OF NEGOTIATIONS IN MEXICO REACHED

ANNOUNCEMENT IS MADE BY STATE DEPARTMENT AT WASHINGTON.

EXPECT RECOGNITION IN THE VERY NEAR FUTURE

Henry Lane Wilson Suggested For Post of Ambassador to That Country.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The state department announces that negotiations between the American and Mexican commissions at Mexico City have reached their "final stage."

Department officials first conveyed the distinct impression that some agreement which will clear the way for recognition of the Mexican government by the United States is expected in the very near future.

With a favorable outcome of the conference in sight the question of an American ambassador to Mexico was discussed in the department circles. It was revealed that some consideration has been given to the name of Henry Lane Wilson, who was ambassador to Mexico under the Taft administration.

Former President Taft, who is now chief justice of the United States, is said to have presented Mr. Wilson's name for consideration by President Harding and Secretary Hughes.

Mr. Wilson, who has been in Mexico several times since Charles Leachman Warren and John Barton Payne, the American commissioners, left for Mexico City.

Reports from Mexico City indicate that President Madero will be selected as Mexican ambassador to the United States following recognition with Henry Lane Wilson as ambassador to Mexico.

Although the state department was without definite news of a final agreement at Mexico City, it was stated that any understanding that may have been reached will be accepted by the government.

It is due to the fact that the American commissioners have been in constant touch with the department and have acted under instructions of every kind.

There was an undisturbed atmosphere of submission at the department over the prospect of early recognition of diplomatic relations with the new government.

Department officials declared that settlement of the Mexican situation would be generally considered as one of the outstanding achievements of the present administration.

THIRTY BIRTHS IN ELECTRA FOR JULY DEATHS TOTAL 11

ELECTRA, TEXAS, Aug. 1.—Thirty babies were born in Electric during July, the decline in births being exactly even with deaths.

During the past six months nearly twice as many babies as girls have been born with an average of about 40 a month.

There were only 11 deaths, of whom three were more than 25 years old.

James Harvey Finley, who looked only a few days of being 25 years old, was the oldest man to die.

Removal Building. The building on West Cleveland avenue formerly occupied by Still's Jewelry Store is being remodelled to house a complete stock of general merchandise, shoes and women's furnishings.

The new store will be known as "The Hub."

The new store of Thomas, Stid and Purdie, for which the old Park-Timberlake building has been demolished, will be opened next week.

Barb Jewelry Store. A. J. Shedd of Lawton, Okla., has bought the jewelry store formerly occupied by the Barb Jewelry Store.

The store was recently opened here by Mr. Osborn, who has been associated with the store in Lawton for a number of years.

Mr. Osborn will return to Lawton and manage his business there.

WEATHER REMAINS CLEAR AND CALM IN THIS DISTRICT

A general calm seems to have settled over the entire district according to reports from various points in the section.

The warm dry weather of the past week continued Thursday night and Friday, with a slight increase in temperature and very little wind.

Conditions locally were also the same. As the temperature of the country day, the mercury reached a maximum Thursday afternoon 87 degrees, according to the thermometer at the home of George Simmons, 1406 Broad street, downtown.

At 10:30 degrees as the lowest point during the twenty-four hours, a slight breeze blew from the southwest Friday morning, and old clouds continued to slide down through a cloudless sky.

DIRECTS GOVERNMENT DEPARTMENTS TO CLOSE

The order will be issued by the government departments and bureaus probably for three days during the period of the funeral.

Hendricks Goes To Tulsa For Alleged Automobile Thief

Detective Harry Hendricks left Tulsa tonight for Tulsa, Okla., to bring back an alleged automobile thief and not shoot a bribe, who is being held in the Tulsa jail upon advice from the Tulsa police officers.

The man being held in Tulsa is said to have purchased an automobile from a local concern several weeks ago. The car was taken to Tulsa before the required payments were made without the permission of the motor company.

Several days later the man returned to this city, without the machine and upon being interrogated by the officials of the motor company, he gave a check for $950. Two hundred dollars of the amount was for payment on the machine; the man was given $150 in cash. The check proved to be worthless and the case was turned over to police officials, who located the man in Tulsa. He will be brought back here Friday, when charges will be filed against him.

THREE MEN INJURED WHEN CEILING OF DRUG STORE FALLS

Three men were painfully hurt and several other persons narrowly escaped injury Friday morning at 215 North Washington when the ceiling of a drug store fell in the front part of the building.

NATION MOURNS HARDING'S DEATH

Transcontinental journey in the history of the nation had been made. The trip will be started about 7 o'clock this evening, and should reach Washington tomorrow morning.

The body of the president will be in the same car as that carrying him to the west. It will be accompanied by the military escort that accompanied the executive when he left Washington June 30.

The five physicians who attended the president were united in their decisions as to the cause of death. In a statement issued last night and signed by all of them they declared it was due to "apoplexy or a rupture of a blood vessel in the axis of the brain near the respiratory center."

The statement showed conclusively that the physicians who attended the president were united in their decisions as to the cause of death. In a statement issued last night and signed by all of them they declared it was due to "apoplexy or a rupture of a blood vessel in the axis of the brain near the respiratory center."

The evidence of infection are subsiding but he has been left in a very weakened condition by the attack which he has made," the bulletin added.

"This afternoon the temperature is remaining normal with the pulse rate around 100 and the respiration averaging about 20. Other factors remain the same."

The bulletin was so optimistic that there was a general letting down in the physicians who had attended the president's illness. Members of the cabinet and their wives, the personnel of the legislative staff and many of the newspapermen went out to dinner where most of the fall was when the trip back to Washington would be started. At no time since the president was brought to San Francisco Sunday morning was the vicinity of the presidential suite as deserted as it was about seven o'clock last night.

Outside the suite the usual secret services were busy. They also discussed when they would get back to Washington—and down the country a trail of beautiful newspapermen were gathered.

Mrs. Harding, General Sawyer and the two nurses, however, had not yet closed their watchfulness and they were still in the presidential suite when the president was reading the president's message entitled "A Review of Our Policy," written by Samuel G. May, a noted political writer and published in a current magazine. It described the man to whom the president had just been sworn in. She paused in her reading and glanced up, he raised the paper and said:

the something impending fully 25 minutes before announcement of death was made. When the death announcement was made it flashed to all parts of the nation by the Associated Press by telegraph and telephone, and to the most distant parts of the world by wireless radio. Thus it was that newspapermen were on the streets in New York with announcement of the passing of the republic's chief before it became at all generally known about the hotel.

The announcement was followed momentarily by confusion in the vicinity of presidential suite but soon the trained members of the executive staff took charge. The physicians conferred and later issued their detailed statement as to the cause of death, and the cabinet members meeting together decided upon and submitted to Mrs. Harding for approval the plans for the return trip to Washington.

Messages were dispatched telling of the sad news to George B. Christian, Jr., the president's secretary, who had gone to Los Angeles to speak for the president at a Knights Templar meeting, to the other cabinet members, and to Calvin Coolidge, the vice president, who early today took the oath of office at his home in Plymouth, Vermont, and became the head of the executive branch of the government.

The detailed statement by the physicians described the changes in the president's physical condition during the last year, when the president, following a severe attack of influenza, was confined to his bed with an attack of pneumonia. This attack was more serious than the one which he had realized and its effects had not been entirely dissipated when the present trip was started in June despite the five weeks' vacation spent in Florida and Georgia in March and early April.

The president, it was revealed, had been subject to some attacks of abdominal pain and indigestion, and there had for some time been evidences of arterio-sclerosis, enlargement of the heart and defective action of the kidneys. The statement then noted that the executive had suffered an acute gastro-intestinal attack associated with abdominal pain and fever on the return trip from Alaska and told how he had insisted on going through with his program to Vancouver, B. C., a week ago Thursday and at Seattle a week ago yesterday.

The statement then told of the cancellation of the proposed trip to the Yosemite of his arrival here Sunday morning and traced his varying condition during the week. "Most disturbing of all," it said, "was the rapid and irregular breathing suggestive of arterio-sclerosis of the brain vessels in the region of the respiratory center."

The physicians reviewed the favorable conditions existing just prior to the apoplectic attack and concluded by saying: "He was resting comfortably in bed and conversing with Mrs. Harding and General Sawyer when he died instantaneously without a word or a groan."

"DENBY FOR PRESIDENT" IS CRY FROM CHICAGO
By Universal Service.
WASHINGTON, July 3.—The cry from Chicago of "Denby for president" was received with cordial acclaim in navy circles Thursday. There is no question but that Denby is as popular a secretary as the navy has ever had, and he has enjoyed perhaps as great an amount of support from the bureau chiefs as any other. Just how much political strength he could develop throughout the country, however, is a matter of speculation.

News that Denby for president club is to be formed in Chicago is regarded as a further compliment to the navy because of the frequent mention of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, assistant secretary, as a possible candidate for governor of New York and also as a running mate for the presidential candidate on the Republican ticket.

had risen to take Secretary Christian's telegram from the messenger who had brought it by automobile to the Coolidge home at Plymouth. He dressed quickly and came down to meet the newspaper men who arrived hard on the heels of the message, a trifle pale, but steady, solemn and quite quiet as he always is in his own quietude. His simple dignity down the old stairway and into the homely sitting room where the newspaper men awaited him was impressive.

Stepping to the little round center table on which stood an oil lamp, the room's only illumination, the new president read Secretary Christian's message. The telegram read:

Telegram for Secretary Christian.
Palace Hotel, San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 3, 1923.
"Mr. Calvin Coolidge:
"The president died instantaneously while conversing with members of his cabinet at 10:15 p. m. The physician's report that death was apparently due to some brain embolism, probably apoplexy."
The message was signed by George B. Christian, secretary.

Then slowly and quietly he dictated his own statement setting forth in brief the new executive's policy, and directed his secretary, Erwin Geisler, to make copies of it for the press.

Meanwhile, the new first lady of the land sat weeping, and exclaiming in sympathy for the bereaved first lady in San Francisco.
"What a blow—what a terrible blow to poor Mrs. Harding," she said. "She had such a burden in her own illness to bear up under—"

Finally, Geisler arrived with the copies, and pushing back the old photo album and the family Bible on the center table, Mrs. Coolidge brushed herself with the work of helping distribute them.

MAKING GOLF ACCESSIBLE.

Not long ago The Times carried as item about a golf match between teams representing Grandfield and Woodstock, yesterday an electric sign told of plans for the early establishment of a golf course near that city.

Ten years ago golf was unknown in communities no larger than those mentioned. Today, towns much smaller than the three referred to have active golf clubs, well laid out courses and many patrons.

In England, golf is a game for "the man in the street," the average wage earner. It is getting to be so in this country. Give it a foothold in a community and it will make its own way.

If you take a fly in and treat her nice she goes home and gets the rest of her family.

JUST FOLKS - By EDGAR A. GUEST

GROWING UP TO THINGS. In days of old when I needed clothes They'd take me to the store.

They did not buy, in those olden days. With a mind to the latest style.

They did not ask, "Do you fancy this?" In the purchase I'd no voice.

Though the sleeves were long and the coat was wide And the pants too wide round here.

My boyhood days were free from style. And now my memory brings A picture glad of an awkward lad.

But times have changed, and the boys today In the latest style are dressed.

Some prosperous young gentlemen are doing a roaring trade between New York and Newport.

THE OPEN HEART. I hear the phrase that one should not carry his heart on his sleeve.

I like the idea of giving of what one has. But to meet an open heart. I like that kind of a heart.

I know many people whose hearts are so closed that the strongest crow-bar could not pry them open.

Of course, people with such hearts often welcome those who are unworthy and who fall to appreciate the beauty of such an opportunity.

THE OPEN HEART lets in the world—and that means you and me, and sunshine and sunsets, and the shades of other hearts.

We grow royally only as we scatter our success and seed it as we go along.

How I was thrilled, as one beautiful morning I listened to the strong voice of that great old patriarch, Edward Everett Hale.

These hearts of ours are the humanest things we possess. Let us keep them full of sunshine, and the doors wide open all day long.

EASY JUSTICE. We put the ropes behind the bars, for slaying goats or stealing cars, and say, "They're gathered in; their evil deeds they won't repeat."

The tears and the prayers of the pation today are for that wonderful lady, to whom he was both lover and husband, and who, herself frail and feeble, is bearing her grief like the noblewoman she is.

The most ideal business combination is a life insurance agent caught bootlegging.

The device connecting track and locomotive automatically will act on the part of the engineer or fireman when there is danger of collision or an open switch.

In Switzerland such devices have been in use for some time, and are not kept secret. Their use should be compulsory.

Last Speech Was To Newspapermen At Seattle Club

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2. (AP)—President Harding's last public address was to newspapermen at the Seattle Press Club.

It was largely extemporaneous and dealt with the need which the newspaper men in the community have for a limited opportunity for community service and the latest employment in life, said President Harding.

"If I may speak to the larger congregation, it has every opportunity to comment and direct the law. It is the effective mouthpiece of our politics."

Although laboring under the strain of illness, the president momentarily drew upon his early experience as editor of the Marion Star, in which he said:

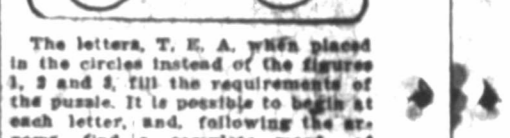

"I purchased it for 200 bucks. While I do not claim to have been a marvel as a newspaper maker, I do rejoice in my lifetime affiliation and participation in the building of the Fourth Estate."

"After all the finest compensations in life are the associations in which a man is entitled through the fruits of his endeavor. If he has done well and has been worthy, he will have the fellowship of his friends."

"I find a pride in nearly 40 years of participation in newspaper making and a reflective survey reassures me that the great satisfaction has come of a policy designed to boost and rarely to knock."

How "Vamps" are Used in Modern Business

Mannequins attached to dress-making establishments were the pioneers in the vamping business. They were engaged to display gowns and beguile the out-of-town customers.

Here Is an Expert Who Tells You That the Best "Vamps" Today Are Not on the Screen but in the Business World, Where They Are Holding Down Good Jobs and Earning Big Money

Automobile concerns took the hint and had smartly togged women act as demonstrators. Beautiful blonds who talk intelligently about spark plugs, etc., are salesmen now.

VAMPING has become a recognized profession.

As in the olden days, the modern vamp preys upon impressionable men, luring him with her smiles, fascinating him with her beauty, and separating him from his money with no lack of the finesse which characterized the Dillies of old.

Today, however, instead of being a free lance in the wide open battlefield of fortune, she works for a regular salary and is employed by big business in all transactions where her "winning" personality has proved itself much more efficient than that of the most highly trained salesman.

De Scia Mooers, movie vamp, in private life is the wife of Edward Demarest Mooers, owner of the famous Yellow Aster Gold Mine, of Randersburg, Calif., and as one of the leaders of the younger "millionaire set" of Southern California had loads of opportunity to study the jazz vamp of modern society; later on in New York, while her husband was putting through a business deal in the East, she became a fast-track student of the new "business vamp" and declares that the latter puts it all over the former.

"Vamps are born—they can't be trained—and the vamp vamps just as naturally as she breathes," says Miss Mooers. "Burns-Jones, together with Rudyard Kipling, pretty nearly killed the vamping business by the publicity it got through the famous 'Rag and Bone and a Hank of Hair' picture and poem. That was one excellent example of how much harm the wrong kind of publicity can do. Until that slipped out, the world was rather accustomed to admiring the wily woman who juggled thrones and conjured governments and twisted great statesmen around their useless little fingers in order to kill time in their worthless existences.

"Then they were regarded as sort of miscreants—their favors were sought by great men, and their influence was mighty. "However, after they were reduced to the status of a rag and a bone and a hank of hair' in some damn different languages, that special sphere of activity was locked against them and, like Eve of old, the vamp had to go out into the everyday world and earn her living—if not exactly by the sweat of her brow, at least in less exalted circles.

"When we arrived in New York I was fascinated by all the phases of the much-written-about white-light districts—the gay restaurants and the all-night clubs. In the West—at least, the part of society where we belonged—everything was very conservative. There are lots of vamps in society—you find them everywhere, of course—but they belonged to our own set. And the restaurants we frequented and the clubs we belonged to were closed to the other sets.

"Here in the East it is quite different. Women of the most exclusive circles are found sitting at tables adjoining those where women of the demi-monde are being entertained. We find them, too, at the horse shows, at the races and at the automobile shows.

"It was at these places that the business vamp was discovered for me.

"The man-who-knows-everybody who was showing us around didn't call her a business vamp. He called her a bond saleswoman, a mannequin, an automobile demonstrator, as the case might be. "But, seeing her with a woman's eyes, I recognized the Dillish methods quite plainly.

"THERE are plenty of good business-like women engaged as bond salesmen and as automobile salesmen, I know. But of a different class entirely is the business vamp. She is always beautiful, fascinating and entertaining. She has a handsome, well-kept-up establishment where she gives entertainments for the clients of her employer; she drives the smartest of cars, and is, of course, always gorgeously gowned.

"The results of my investigation I am going some day to put into a book, and from my experience I should say that positively the best vamps today are in the business world. A beautiful woman is an asset to any business concern just as she is to a home.

"I am going to specialize in 'business vamps' in the movies. She is in a class by herself, and when Samuel Goldwyn cast me to play the part of Ruth Goldman, the vamping designer in 'Potash & Perlmutter,' I was delighted to put my theories into effect.

"You see, the vamp is usually pictured as a dark, unscrupulous woman, with serpentine figure and sleepy, intriguing eyes. And Mr. Goldwyn had just such a vamp in view for the part—in fact, he told me so, and I would have been quipped at once had the interview taken place before I took my course in the study of vamps.

"Blonds are the best bets as business vamps because they are more subtly appealing than the brunettes. No one ever knows quite what new schemes are being hatched behind those calm, laughing eyes; while dark, brooding orbs are regular lighthouses, warning of danger.

Brokers found vamps fitted to their business. A clever woman who could really "talk" stocks and bonds intelligently made a greater impression than a man.

ARE you a "born" vamp? Then don't fritter away your gift in useless flirtations. Big business has a job for you. But you must be willing to play the game "cold turkey"—chickens, salamanders and giddy butterflies are not wanted. This is not a game of hearts—big contracts and large checks are the stakes in this new business of vamping.

"My dissertation on the subject interested Mr. Goldwyn immensely and well—I was engaged for the part.

"A brunette could not have filled this part really, for the brunette is more selfish than the blond—she is only successful when she is trying to get something out of it for herself. Ruth Goldman is vamping the buyers who visit Potash & Perlmutter in order to help her employer make sales and save their business, which is tottering on the verge of ruin.

"It is for this reason that we find the blond triumphant in the field of business vamps. She is of the northern type, you know, coming from a race that has had to fight hard for existence and doesn't expect to get by on sex alone.

"There is no moral issue involved with the business vamp's life. She must outdo Caesar's wife in keeping herself above reproach. If she can't sidestep the final issue and be master of every situation, she will be more harm than good to her employer and she won't hold her job. For every woman knows that hell doth hold one fury greater than a woman scorned—and that is a man whose professed affections (1) have been spurned.

"In other words, it is the woman of the world who plays the game 'cold turkey'—i. e., who can carry the play on a strictly legitimate basis, who is a sup-

So it has developed that many modern business houses today realize the importance and the benefit to be derived from having a smart, good looking, well-dressed woman to present their claims and win their new clients, for, as this writer points out, it is now generally recognized that a beautiful woman is an asset to any business.

cess here. The 'chicken' wouldn't last through the first act.

"The mannequin attached to the big dressmaking establishments was the pioneer in this business. She was engaged to display gowns to their best advantage and usually had an understanding with her employer that she was to go out to supper with men with whom the concern was doing business.

"Then the automobile concerns took the hint and had smartly togged-out women drive their cars, and the demonstration given by a beautiful blond who could talk intelligently about spark plugs, cylinders, gears, tires and other internal mysteries was found to result in much quicker sales of high-priced machines than when put through the hands of a plain, matter-of-fact salesman.

"Brokers, who fell for the vamp spiel and signed on the dotted line, took the hint, and tried out, successfully, the same game in their own business. A clever woman, who could really 'talk' stocks and bonds intelligently, made a much greater impression than a man because of the novelty. Her words had greater weight. Instead of entertaining in a garish restaurant, she could entertain in her own home, and many great deals have been put through under rose-shaded lights that would have been frozen under the cold light of day.

Blonds are the best bets as business vamps because they are more subtly appealing than brunettes. No one ever knows what wily schemes are hatching behind those calm blue eyes.

Mrs. Edward Demarest Mooers, who as De Scia Mooers, the vamp of the screen, has had ample opportunity for studying the vamp and the way she works. Mrs. Mooers says that vamps are like artists, born, not made.

"Newspapers quite frequently carry stories that bear me out in this; the world reads with surprise of the tangle which some bright woman has woven around some big man of affairs. But these are not the business vamps I mean—I refer only to the 'legitimate' vamp, and her skillful hand is never seen.

"SO ALONG the line the elusive influence of the business vamp is being utilized and hard-headed men of money are falling for her 'line' in droves, just as did empire-pated monarchs and long-haired giants in the days of old.

"This is no job for the silly little fluttering moth nor the philandering salamander—these have but short, shiftless careers. They don't belong to the vamp corps at all.

"But for the woman of wit and charm this career is one to conjure with."

POLITICAL STATUS REPUBLICAN PARTY WILL BE AFFECTED

PRESIDENT'S DEATH THROWS NEW COMPLICATIONS INTO THE SITUATION.

WARM CONTEST FOR NOMINATION EXPECTED

Was Generally Agreed Harding Would Have No Opposition For Second Term.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—Pres-ident Harding's death has thrown new complications into the political situation within the Republican party and undoubtedly will result in a re-heating of the national convention of next year.

It probably will turn out that many expected to be merely a ratification of the nomination of Mr. Harding, but the situation is now so confused that a contest for the Republican presidential nomination with the state party organizations and the forces represented by such leaders as Senators Johnson of California, Borah of Idaho and La-follette of Wisconsin on the one side and the forces represented by such leaders as Senators Johnson of California, Borah of Idaho and La-follette of Wisconsin on the other.

Six months ago the renomination of President Harding without an substantial contest seemed assured. One of the men who was regarded as his likely principal opponent for the nomination had confessed to a colleague and friend that he found himself without an issue.

The presidential pronouncement for entry of the United States into the world court however, altered the situation and Harding's opponents in the last few weeks there has come definitely information through the mysterious channels by which political captains maintain their intelligence systems that all was not going to be as clear sailing as had been expected in the Republican national convention of 1924 and there might be a contest after all.

There were days of discouragement in the first 18 months of President Harding's administration. He was regarded as a close political friend and associate who had been held in reserve in the department during the convention of 1924.

"Do you want this job next time? It's yours as far as I am concerned. I'll be for you."

But his friends urged him to put discouragements aside and carry on. Mrs. Harding also always urged him to put away thoughts of stepping down and not being a candidate for renomination.

But as time wore on, President Harding decided he wanted a second term. Early in 1923 there was a great deal of speculation as to whether he would be a contender. There was also some momentary speculation as to whether the party would not be making a valuable strategic move if it selected another candidate.

Agree on Harding. But mature deliberation among the big heads in the regular wing of the party developed a unanimous decision that if the Republican party were to ask the American people to continue it in power for another four years it must do so on the record of the Harding administration. Therefore, necessarily, ask for the reelection of Harding. Be-cause, they reasoned, to fail to recommend Mr. Harding would be a failure to endorse the work of the party. Mr. Harding up to that time had permitted no authoritative of his intentions to get out and a dele-gation of the leaders went to the White house to find out about them.

"Warren," said the spokesman who was a friend and a colleague of many years standing. "You've got to make some announcement of your intention. These fellows who are opposing your nomination are grooming, this one and that one, and before we know it, our wing of the party won't have anybody as candidates and we'll lose political advantage."

"Boys," said the president, "I haven't made up my mind. I expect to make some speeches in the west and elsewhere some time soon and if the reaction is favorable I'll carry on."

Continue Argument. But that assurance failed to satisfy the committee of friends and advisors and they continued their arguments that Mr. Harding should make an announcement. A refusal to run for a second term, they argued, was a confession of failure. The matter of his nomination they considered secure by the processes of party machinery.

"All right fellows," responded Mr. Harding with a characteristic wave of the hand and the intimate expression of friendship that he always used in speaking with old associates, "I'll carry on; that settled. I'll carry on. Tell our fellows that."

A few days later Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, one of the administration spokesmen and party whip made the announcement in the senate that if "Warren Harding wanted a renomination he was going to have it and that it was idle to discuss a prospective contest."

Following that declaration the president was an avowed candidate for renomination and election.

President Enjoyed Rubbing Elbows With His Fellowmen and Greatly Enjoyed the Company of Children

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Massive in frame and feature, a figure to attract a second look in any crowd, that was Warren G. Harding, the man.

Although slightly less than six feet in height, he carried his 210 pounds without any hint of obesity and his unusually broad and high broad forehead and heavy, square jaw rounded out an impression of force and distinction.

Contrasting sharply with his almost silver-gray hair were markedly thick black eyebrows which almost masked a pair of calm gray eyes. In repose his face took on the aspect of severity so often seen in his photographs, but when he talked or listened the lines were broken by a smile that lit "Warren Harding was both a good conversationalist and a good listener and he loved to rub elbows with his fellowmen. His first official order was that the gates to the White house grounds be thrown open and at the start he received visitors at almost any hour of the day. This took up so much of his time, however, that a full hour for this purpose was decided upon.

Each day after he had cleared his desk and was ready for lunch he received groups of visitors in the executive offices, shaking hands and exchanging a smile and a word with each individual. White house officials estimated that an average of 1,000 persons called upon him daily. He revived also the more formal functions, such as the new year reception and the state and diplomatic dinners.

Mr. Harding was very fond of children, though he had none of his own, and Easter egg rollings on the White house lawn were made an annual event.

Mr. and Mrs. Harding mingled freely with the little tots and appeared to find much enjoyment in watching them play.

In his rest hours Mr. Harding liked to have around him personal friends and intimates, in whose company he could put aside the dignity of care of state and whom he could swap stories and reminiscences.

George Kay of Dallas, general agent for the Southern Railroad, was a Friday business visitor. Each day after he had cleared his

Harding's Political Career

Warren G. Harding brought to the presidency an infinite patience and kindness in dealing with public questions and men which enabled him to handle the problems of government without the stress and worry which had handicapped many of his predecessors.

Whatever else historians may say of him, there probably will be little dispute that few presidents have been so calm in office in peace time facing problems more complex in their nature or greater in number. All international affairs were unbalanced as never before, with many principal settlements of the great war still to be effected. At home the work of reconstruction had only just begun, with business depressed, agriculture prostrate and unemployment general.

How Mr. Harding measured up to the task before him must be left to the historian, but his friends said that coming to the presidency as he did with an open mind, a desire for counsel and an intimate knowledge of the processes of government, he acquitted in his services in the senate, he was the type of man needed for the job at such a time. Teaching and every occasion of the doctrine of Americanism, he set his face resolutely against "entangling alliances." While thus adhering to the principles of the founding fathers, he nevertheless lent the moral assistance of the government in the efforts to bind up the wounds of the world.

His Prominent Part.
That influence was once declared by America to be not inconsiderable, and so America under his guidance had a part, silent but important, in the main, in effecting the settlements of many vexing world questions. Its chief contribution was in the Washington peace conference at which the principal powers consented to limit the size of their navies and thus lift from tax payers the burden of maintaining the race for naval supremacy.

Along with the proffer of counsel in effecting that settlement went an insight that American rights be recognized, in polished phrase, but with a directness which was not to be misconstrued, the world was given to understand from the very first of the Harding administration that the United States freely respected the rights of the other nations, and that she should accept nothing less.

While in his dealings with congress Mr. Harding's predominant role of counselor rather than dictator, he speedily removed any doubt that his gift of patience did not mean a lack of purpose. He had charted a course. Thus he told congress that soldiers' bonus legislation either should be postponed, and when the legislators put aside his advice he promptly vetoed the bill.

Tendency of Purpose.
His tenacity of purpose was further exemplified in his continuous spending for economy in public expenditures and again in his insistence that congress pass the merchant marine act and a law which curbs the continental drain which the operation of the built-up commercial fleet had imposed upon the treasury.

Sketch of New President

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2 (AP).—Calvin Coolidge is perhaps better equipped by experience to take up his administrative duties in the white house than was any of his predecessors who have been called to that high office by death of a president.

Having won for himself in a large measure the vice presidential nomination by the conservative conservatism as governor of Massachusetts, particularly by his attitude in the police strike, he has kept throughout the Harding administration closely advised as to the problems of the federal government and has assisted in shaping administrative policy by his constant attendance at cabinet meetings.

Although vice presidents usually have no other duties to perform than that of presiding over the senate and casting the deciding vote when that body finds itself in a tie, Mr. Coolidge has absented himself from his senatorial duties every Tuesday and Friday to participate in the cabinet deliberations.

Thus he became familiar not only with all angles of the major public questions but also with the details of the administration of the government in his own office.

Active Political Life.
Not only has he given his best ability to the work but he has done so much as any other member of the cabinet to place its affairs in the public eye. He has traveled a great deal, making addresses, and is said to have made more public addresses than the president or any member of his cabinet. His intimate touch with the public has been one of the great factors in his selection for the presidency.

He usually has remained reticent under these trying conditions, however, refusing to discuss cabinet meetings or to act as a go-between for those interested in having their views presented to the president.

President Coolidge was born on Independence Day in 1872, in Plymouth, a remote country village in the hills of Vermont, the son of John C. and Victoria J. (Moore) Coolidge, descended from John and Mary Coolidge, who had settled in Waterbury, Mass., about 1638, his ancestry runs through a long line of farmers who lived in Massachusetts until the present day.

His great-grandfather moved from Lancaster into Vermont, where the Coolidge family, through generations, tilled the soil, raised live stock, produced maple syrup and sugar, and were among the persons of influence in their community.

The medicinal virtues of calomel are in no way obscured by its nauseating and dangerous quality as it is proven by the fact that the purified calomel called Calobals is free from objectionable effects yet retains all of the liver-cleansing and system-purifying qualities of the old-style calomel. For biliousness, constipation and indigestion it is a practically perfect remedy.

To inspire confidence in their discovery the manufacturers have authorized druggists everywhere to refund the price if the customer is not "perfectly delighted" with Calobals. Sold only in trademarked packages. Price ten cents and thirty-five cents. One tablet at a time. No taste, no nausea, no griping or salts.
