DUST STORM RULES

Merchants Supplement Sprinkler Service With Garden Hose
Several merchants were out with the garden hose vigorously laying the dust in front of their respective places of business Tuesday morning. Five of the sprinkling wagons were on their beats and the hot dry winds followed closely in their tracks, drying up the much needed water too fast for the comfort of storekeepers and pedestrians. In spite of continued efforts for their protection, merchandise stocks had to be guarded by closed doors and windows in some places.

BULK SALE BILL WILL BE PUSHED

Credit Association Plans an Active Campaign

COMMITTEE APPOINTED

Arrangements Made for Co-operation of South Texas Organizations to Secure Passage of Measure

The executive committee of the Fort Worth Credit Men's Association met on Monday night in the offices of George Q. McGowan, secretary of the association, for the purpose of effecting definite arrangements for the prosecution of the bulk sales law campaign.

A sub-committee composed of A. P. Outcast, of Waples-Plattner company; Oscar Wells, cashier of the Fort Worth National bank, and Secretary George Q. McGowan, was appointed to meet with a like committee of the Dallas Credit Men's Association this week in Dallas and make arrangements to meet with committees from the San Antonio and Houston associations representing South Texas. This meeting will be held in Houston at a date as early as possible.

It is the general impression in the legislature, said Mr. McGowan Tuesday morning, that the bulk sales bill has not the favor of the retailers in the state and that, being promoted by the jobbers as it is, then only it will benefit the retailer. Mr. McGowan's idea was to propose to have every jobbing house in the state provide each of their traveling salesmen with a copy of the proposed bill and endeavor to get its passage to be signed by the retailer.

"This bill appeals to the honesty of every retailer and when our committee presents the petition signed in full to the legislature there can be no question as to the people's being educated to its practicability. It is our policy to attach to this campaign and we are going to provide for the raising of the necessary funds at this meeting of the committee in Houston."

Proposed Law
Following is a copy of the proposed law as it will come up before the state legislature at its next session: An act declaring void sales of portions of stocks of merchandise otherwise than in the ordinary course of trade in the usual and regular prosecution of the business, and sales of entire stocks of merchandise in bulk, unless made in compliance with certain named conditions, and providing for the prosecution of such violations according to which such sales may be made valid.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the legislature that all sales of merchandise in bulk, unless made in compliance with certain named conditions, and providing for the prosecution of such violations according to which such sales may be made valid.

Section 2. Nothing in this act shall apply to sales by executors, administrators, receivers, or any public officer conducting a sale in his official capacity.

"BAD MAN" HELD TO COUNTY COURT

Complaints Follow Fusillade on Lower Main Street

Dang-bang, zing-zip, whoopee! It was like real old Texas times down on Lower Main street.

Down the sidewalk swiftly pattered three frightened men. Behind them loomed a fourth carrying a six-shooter and trying to do the double-roll with a single gun.

It was worse than a summer amusement park excursion of San Juan. When the police came they arrested Ernest Jones, white, and took away from him his empty six-shooter. The three frightened pedestrians stopped running. The police took charge of Jones Monday night and Tuesday two cases, one charging carrying a pistol and the other aggravated assault, were made out against him. Then he was turned over to the sheriff's department.

Jones' trouble began, it is said, at a winter-wrest stand in Lower Main street. He got mixed up with the hot dogs at the stand and in a minute his pistol was barking for sympathy.

It backed until the police came and then, once more, great silence brooded over Lower Main street.

DETROIT, Mich., May 29.—James

Edmund Scripps died at his home here this morning, aged 71. He was founder and proprietor of the Detroit News.

He had more than a local reputation as an art connoisseur and philanthropist. With his brothers, George and E.

W. Scripps, he exercised a powerful influence on modern American journalism, the last named, after an early training in the Detroit News office, having expanded his personal enterprises until he became one of the largest owners of newspaper properties in America. Scripps' policy regarding newspapers is that they are bound by no allegiance stronger than that they owe to the best interests of the community in which they are published.

Myelitis, inflammation of the spinal cord, from which Mr. Scripps had been suffering for a year, was the cause of his death.

His success with the Evenings News

encouraged him to similar enterprises

LOUGHERY'S LAMENT.

O dear, O dear, I'm in distress,

I don't know what to do at all;

I've got me in a fearful mess,

I'm weaker than a tottering wall.

Today I stood before the judge;

I boldly looked him in the face;

I didn't move, I didn't budge,

But eloquently plead my case.

With bleeding heart, I begged for time;

I called the honored judge, "Your Grace."

I told him that it was no crime,

And then you ought to've seen his face.

I felt that I was out and down,

And I turned to run fast down the aisle;

Then, friends, believe me, that the frown

Most sweetly turned into a smile.

And then he said, said he to me:

"Why, Loughery, you have won your cause;

That this is very plain," said he,

"You have not broken any laws."

And as I free walked down the aisle

My clothes absorbed the judge's smile.

Very few men can stand punishment.

Give them a poke or two and they will run like a cottontail for half timber.

elsewhere. In 1878 "The Press" was established in Cleveland; in 1880 the Chronicle in St. Louis, and in 1881 the Post was purchased and reorganized in by men who were associated with the News, were established in many of the principal cities of the country. Per-

Mr. Scripps' influence and enterprise

Mr. Scripps believed in the work of

HEREFORD BREED OF CATTLE

The ranchmen of Texas and the southwest are very partial to the Hereford breed of cattle, and the great majority of the stuff that is now produced out in the range country is white-faced and bearing other unmistakable characteristics of this great beef breed.
As there must always be a cause to produce an effect, so there must be a reason for the marked preference that is accorded the Hereford breed of cattle. Ask the average ranchman why it is he prefers the white-face and nine times out of ten the answer is the same: "They are the best all around range cattle and can rustle for themselves when other breeds would starve to death, quick mudding and making the ideal beef animal," is about the usual form of reply. And those are the characteristics that count for something out in the range country.

A large herd of high-grade Hereford cattle is always a pleasing sight. Those white-faces, stocky, well built and evenly developed animals never fail to make a lasting impression on the beholder, and the effect upon the buyer is almost magical. If he is a corn belt feeder and runs across a bunch of this kind of cattle that measures up to the usual Hereford standard he shows no disposition to go further. He makes his offer, which is usually a very satisfactory one, and that bunch of range bred Texas Herefords soon finds itself being loaded on the cars for transportation to the corn belt, where they are fed and finished into the finest beef that ever went to tickle the palate of an epicure.

These corn belt feeders are the keenest and most discriminating buyers of beef stock that come to Texas. They have been engaged in this feeding and finishing business for years, using the high grade stuff produced on their own lands for the purpose until the enhancement in land values has rendered it impossible to produce the class of stuff needed at a profit. And it is right here that Texas enterprise has come to the front and provided these corn belt men with a solution of one of the greatest problems they have had to contend with. Lands out in the range country, while enhancing in value continually, are still very cheap in comparison with those of the great corn belt, and these Texas lands have demonstrated their ability to produce just as good stock as can be produced on the high priced lands east of the river. The Texas ranchmen have for a number of years been engaged in the work of improving their herds until some of the best blood of the older breeding states has been brought to the range country and used for the upbuilding of Texas herds. The corn belt people know this, for in many instances they have sold the finely bred stuff that has been used in the improvement process, and they are consequently well acquainted with the character of the Texas production even before they see it.
In the thousands of fine breeding animals that have been brought to this state the Hereford has predominated. Other great beef breeds have their friends and steady adherents, and are occupying an important position in the great scheme of general improvement, doing their full part in arriving at the general result, but the fact remains that the Hereford is the prime favorite with the Texas ranchman and has been from the beginning. The general verdict is that the breed cannot be improved upon. It has clearly demonstrated its winning qualities and its popularity is founded upon a basis that is as stable as the rock of Gibraltar.
One very gratifying feature of the general situation is the fact that the Texas Hereford fancier is so thoroughly imbued with the spirit of progress and enterprise. He has not been content with the achievements of the past, involving within itself a very gratifying success, but has determined to keep up with every possible development. The very best breeding animals that the older states can produce, and that money can buy are being continually brought to Texas.

Great breeding herds have been established in many sections of the state and the very cream of Hereford cattle is being bred right here in Texas. Former difficulties encountered in the process of acclimation have been overcome, and there is apparently no limit to the work of improvement that is in prospect.
To those who are contemplating engaging in the cattle business, or who have determined to continue the great work of herd improvement, this paper would suggest that it is now wholly unnecessary for you to go outside the great state of Texas for your breeding stock. You can find among the Texas breeders just as good stuff as you will discover on any breeding farm in the United States, and you are safer in buying the Texas product than that produced in any other section of the country. Buy Texas bred Herefords and you will make no mistake.

THE CHILDLESS WOMEN OF THE AVENUES

Fifteen census takers for the school board at Calumet, Prairie and Michigan avenues, in Chicago, resigned last week. These enumerators are paid 1 cent a name for each child located. The census takers said they could not find enough children in this fashionable district to pay for a dinner.
The enumerators in the Ghetto, the stock yards region and the streets around the settlement houses are at work and are making big wages.
That is to say, the swell people in the "race-suicide" district are too fashionable and too busy to have children. Down in the tenement region the juveniles swarm the streets, but those best able to care for and to educate sons and daughters have few in their houses. Many so-called homes are entirely without children.

In some wealthy homes animals are at a premium and sons and daughters at a discount. The lady of the house finds energy and leisure to look after a poodle or an ugly bull pup, while the children, if there are any, are turned over to the nurses and the tutors.

In some fashionable houses children are regarded as "encumbrances." They interfere with the enjoyment of social dissipation. The argument runs something like this: "A great penalty is attached to these human ties, don't you know. Children may double one's joys (though one doubts it), but it is certain they double one's griefs. Why, there is something absolutely alarming about these close human associations. Is it not better to go through life caring deeply about as few persons as is possible?" This is no made up argument. It is current in certain circles.

Some one has aptly said that a woman without children is a weed—a pretty weed, it may be, but only a weed. Her life has neither flowers nor fruitage. It is true that the rearing of children brings deep care and worry and fear into the mother's life, but it brings joy also. And it takes both joy and sorrow to make a well-rounded character. Sorrow and suffering ripen life. Without its joys we would never know the beauty of life, without its sorrows one would never know its meaning.

When the race suicide woman looks at the future she must recoil. Some day dissipation will lose its zest. Some day madam will lose her beauty. Some day she may lose her money—and the friends that go with money. Some day her heart will be very empty. Some day she will be a very tired old woman—lonely, some, dried-up, disillusioned. Old, worn, childless!

Ah, you who puzzle brain and heart over your lairns! You who sit by their sick bedside through the night. You who carefully mother your brood. You who make over papa's clothes for little Ben and turn your old gowns into Jenny's decent dress for school. You who long for the pretty things in the windows of the big stores and turn away because of the children's needs. You who take a long breath when the mischievous boys are abed. You who gave the best that is in your head and heart and body for your own. Say, do you envy the childless woman of the avenue? Would you change places with the haughty thing who argues against nature, whose life is a garden without flowers, a tree without fruit? Would you trade Ben's big hearty hugs or "sisters' kiss for the chance of going to Europe when you chose, but denied the precious love of your own, flesh and blood? Would you?
And Mrs. Calumet or Prairie or Michigan avenue, what boots it to dodge the duty you owe the race when the outcome of it all is—a thorn without roses?

HIS LIFF OR A CHILD'S SMILE

This story comes by Associated Press from Chicago:
"CHICAGO, May 1.—For the smile of a happy little child, Stephen Kidd, 50 years old, went to his death. He died from a fracture of the skull sustained in a fall as he stepped backward into an open stairway after handing a tiny toddler 5 cents for candy.
"While in front of a candy store Kidd stepped to play for a moment with a child on the sidewalk. He handed the tot a coin and then stepped back to avoid interfering with the baby game in which the child was engaged. He neglected to turn as he backed away, and fell into a stairway leading from the sidewalk to the basement. His skull was fractured and he never regained consciousness."

WELL

How better could Stephen Kidd have died? What finer deed could he have wrought as the last one of his life?

Was it not better to die thus, basking in the pure smile of the little child, than decorously in his bed with friends attendant or with candles burning?

BECAUSE

This was not the first as it was the last generous impulse of this man's life. That much it is safe to say. It was the last of a series of the heartfelt outpourings of fifty years.
And may we not fancy that the kind angels were somewhat swifter than their wont in bearing this ransomed soul to Abraham's bosom?

NORTHERN TRIBUTE TO SOUTHERN SENATORS

It is a great mistake to assume that the whole south has taken up with men of the Arkansas "Jeff" Davis type for its United States senators, and that this indicates a changing public sentiment in that region regarding fitness for high public station. The same period which has placed Tillman, and now apparently Davis, in the senate has also placed there such brilliant men as Bailey, Culbertson and Carmack, all young men of the ablest sort. The north has sent no one to Washington in recent years better qualified intellectually and oratorically for senatorial service than the three senators named from Texas and Tennessee. Mr. Bailey and Mr. Culbertson make Texas one of the most strongly represented states in the union. "Jeff" Davis, too, while of the type of Tillman in his early phase, may develop in Washington much of the same power that the South Carolinian now exhibits. Governor Davis is certainly not effeminate in his character, whatever else may be said of him. As a whole, the south's representation in the senate has not lost in vigor, force and intellectual power during the past fifteen years.—Springfield Republican.

THE TEXAS PRESS

The cotton mill at Denison which has heretofore produced many cotton yards is now preparing to put in looms for weaving. Referring to the success which this plant has attained the Dallas News says: "The mills at Dallas, Waxahachie, Bonham and other places in the state are constantly reporting the addition of more room and machinery, which as an indicator of successful and profitable operation, is the very best. Some of these mills have increased vastly their capitalization and their capacity since their establishment, and the inducement for the building of more factories in the state appears to be all that could be desired." In other words the experimental stage has been passed and it is now practically demonstrated that cotton mills in Texas can be made to pay handsome profits.—San Antonio Express.

Cotton mills are paying handsome profits all over Texas, and the only reason that they are not paying more is because we have so few mills now located in the greatest cotton producing state in the union. Texas needs many new cotton mills.

It is a well known saying that every dog has his day. The dog catcher is abroad with his wagon on the streets of Fort Worth and the days of the dogs without license tags will soon be numbered, unless their owners come speedily to their rescue.—Denton Messenger.

The dog is one of man's most faithful and trustworthy friends, and there are many who grieve over the slaughter that is now being practiced in this city.

Factories will do more to develop Texas than all the work we can do on any other line. If we had cotton mills to take all our production of cotton, we would more than double our population; we would increase the demand for everything else that grows on the farm; in the orchard or garden, and make better prices for them, and we would keep millions of wealth in Texas that is annually sent to other sections for manufactured goods. Factories form a good text for industrial sermons.—Sherman Register.

Factories are crying necessities all over Texas, but Texas people are very slow to take hold of existing opportunities. There is not a city or town in the state that would not be greatly benefited by the building of more of these institutions.

The Paris papers report that but a few of the farmers who regularly visit that city for the purpose of securing cotton choppers have been able to obtain the number of hands desired. The absence of sawnoms from the Lamar county capital is claimed to be responsible for the removal of a large per cent of the surplus help of that kind.—Clarksville Times.

Perhaps. But it may be possible they are running for office. There is a multitude of candidates abroad in Texas, and many good husky cotton choppers are among them.

Judge James H. Wells of Brownsville arrived here yesterday on business with the attorney general's department relative to some Spanish land grant cases which are pending in the higher courts. When seen the judge declared that there was not much politics going on in his section of the state. He did not hear very much about the gubernatorial contest until he reached San Antonio. Since Judge Wells has formally declared that he would not be a candidate for governor, many have wondered how far his strength in the southwest part of the state would inure to the benefit of Judge Bell, and it appears that the Fort Worth candidate will carry many of the counties which would otherwise have gone to Judge Wells.—Austin Statesman.

Judge Bell has a very strong following down in southwest Texas, and his friends are confident he will carry that portion of the state.

Candidate Bell shows signs of anger over criticism. Candidate Bell should remember the people have in mind that he held the office of attorney general of Texas for nearly four years, and that during all that time he was apparently enjoying a deep sleep. These people have in mind also that he ordered the judges down at Austin during the Lanham and Sayers administrations.—Tyler Courier.

Judge Bell is showing no anger over criticism, but is meeting the issues squarely as fast as they are presented. And his record as attorney general is a matter that he defends in a most vigorous manner. Can the Tyler paper point to an attorney general of Texas who accomplished more during his term of office than Charles K. Bell? And were not the Sayers and Lanham administrations democratic administrations?

Texas found homes recently for fifty orphan children from New York, giving them all good homes in the central part of the state. Very much to her credit, it can be said that Texas has done more of this kind of work than any other state in the union, and she will never have any cause to regret it in the least.—Correll Transcript.

The Texas rule is to give everybody a chance, and the chance given these little orphans to grow up and become useful citizens of the state will mark an important epoch in their unfortunate lives. It is a noble charity and in keeping with the Texas record.

WASHINGTON LETTER

WASHINGTON, May 29.—A group of senators who have been prominent in rate legislation were discussing the aftermath of criticism that has befallen some of them. The way that Senator Aldrich is being credited with a great victory was mentioned.
"I am afraid some of us," said Tom Carter, "are going to get a reward for our work for eighteen hours a day the last three months about like Judge Smith's nigger Sam's breakfast."
"Who's that?" asked two or three together.
"Who, the judge had one old darkey. When the judge got up in the morning about 9 o'clock he would get out and hunt up Sam. When he found him a collogu about like this would ensue:
"'Sam, you good-for-nothing nigger, you, did you milk the cows?'
"'Yes, massa, I done milked de cows.'
"'You haven't chopped the missus's wood.'
"'Yes, massa, I done chopped the wood, too.'
"'Have you weeded the onion patch?'
"'Massa, I worked five hours on dat injun patch, and I done got dat done, too.'
"'Well, I'll bet you were too lazy to lay up that fence on the back lot.'
"'Over in de yuther field? Yes, boss, I done did dat for sun-up.'
"'Did you make my julep?'
"'Sure, massa.'
"'Then you lazy nigger, you have got everything all done up, have you?'
"'Yes, massa.'
"'Well, then, Sam, you can go over to the persimmon tree in the pasture and get your breakfast. Be off with you, now.'"

John Dalzell was closing his two-hour speech on prosperity and the tariff. He had quoted figures by the million and piled up the products of the factories of the country by the thousand tons. He had smiled with the sunshine of the high tariff and wept with the misery of free trade. At last, in a burst of impassioned oratory, he reached his climax:
"Let us read our economies," he cried, "by the blazing light of furnace fires and in the sweat of our brows that we coin into wealth, and God help the man or the party that would put out those fires and still the music of that noise!"

THE KINDLY WORD

If you have a word of cheer That may light the pathway drear Of a brother pilgrim here, Let him know.
Show him you appreciate What he does, and do not wait Till the heavy hand of fate Lays him low.
If your heart contains a thought That would brighten make his lot, Then, I beg you, hide it not; Tell him so.
Life is hard enough at best; But the love that is expressed Makes it seem a pathway bright To our feet.
And the troubles that we share Seem the easier to bear, Smile upon our neighbor's care As you greet.
Rough and stony are the ways, Dark and dreary are the days, But another's love and praise Makes them sweet.
Wait not till your friend is dead Ere your compliments are said, For the spirit that has fled, If it knows
Does not need to speed it on Our praise; where it has gone Love's eternal, golden dawn Is aglow.
But unto our brother here That poor praise is very dear, If you've any word of cheer, Tell him so.

YOUTH AND AGE.

If youth could know what age knows without teaching Hope's instability and Love's dear folly, The difference between practicing and preaching, The quiet charm that lurks in melancholy, The after bitterness of tasted pleasure; That temperance of feeling and of words Is health of mind, and the calm fruits of leisure Have sweeter taste than feverish zeal affords; That reason has a joy beyond unreason; That nothing satisfies the soul like truth; That kindness conquers in and out of season— If youth could know—why, youth would not be youth.
If age could feel the uncalculating urgency, The pulse of life that beats in youthful veins, And with its swift, restless ebb and surgeance Make light of difficulties, sport and pain; Could, once, just once, retrace the path and find it, That lovely, foolish zeal, so crude, so young, Which bids defiance to all laws to bind it; And flashes in quick eye and limb and tongue, Which, counting dross for gold, is rich in dreaming; And, reckoning moons as suns, is never cold; And, having naught, has everything in seeming— If age could do all this, age were not old. —Susan Coolidge.

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR

People wouldn't lie half as much if they ought to. When a woman has an ideal husband it is only a dream. It's mighty interesting what a lot of kissing a little mouth can do. Because a man gets damned by everybody doesn't necessarily mean he is fitted for public life. One way to convince a woman you think she is pretty is to convince her you think her friends are nice. She Quit Coffee But it was a hard pull. It is hard to believe that coffee will put a person in such a condition as it did a woman of Apple Creek, O. She tells her own story: "I did not believe coffee caused my trouble, and frequently said I liked so well I would not quit drinking it, even if it took my life, but I was a miserable sufferer from heart trouble and nervous prostration for four years. "I was scarcely able to be around at all. Had no energy and did not care for anything. Was emaciated and had a constant pain around my heart until I thought I could not endure it. For months I never went to bed expecting to get up in the morning. I felt as though I was liable to die any time during the night. "Frequently I had nervous chills and the least excitement would drive sleep away, and my little nose would upset me terribly. I was gradually getting worse until finally one day it came over me and I asked myself what is the use of being sick all the time and buying medicine so that I could indulge myself in coffee? "So I thought I would see if I could quit drinking coffee, and got some Postum Food Coffee to help me quit. I made it strictly according to directions and I want to tell you that the use of the great Postum in my life. It was easy to quit coffee because I had the Postum which I like better than I liked the old coffee. One by one the old troubles left, until now I am in splendid health, nerves steady, heart all right and the pain all gone. Never have any more nervous chills, don't take any medicine, can do all my housework and have done a great deal beside. "My sister-in-law, who visited me this summer, had been an invalid for some time, much as I was. I got her to quit coffee and drink Postum. She gained five pounds in three weeks, and I never saw such a change in anyone's health. "There's a reason."

Coupon in Wednesday's Telegram will be for a set of views at the automatic arcade; that of Thursday for admission to the electric theater, and the one issued Friday for the helter skelter. Distribution of these coupons through The Telegram with the largest circulation in Fort Worth and suburbs of any publication, insures a treat for practically all the children in this city and vicinity. In lieu of the usual cash fare charged, and then enjoys the treat. The scenic tours, the amusement for which today's coupon secures entry, consists of an elaborate mechanical contrivance in which the "passenger," while apparently in a lurching and rapidly running coach, sees the scenery that is viewed by the real tourist on the most famous trips in this country. The trip with its beauty and instructiveness is enjoyed at home in a realistic manner. Not content with an ordinary humdrum trip, the trip taken by the scenic tourist is enlivened by thrilling incidents. The tour promises to become a favorite summer trip for Fort Worth, and for the Telegram's boys and girls next Saturday will be a free one between 10 o'clock in the morning and 7 o'clock at night.
