BOATS RACE TO SAVE SAILOR
Tide and Storm Renders Battle for Life Difficult
EFFORT IS IN VAIN
Man Sinks Just as Crew Cheers Rescuers Who Were a Moment Too Late

NEW YORK, May 30.—While the rain was falling in torrents Monday afternoon, there was a desperate race in the Hudson river made by a steam launch from the battleship Maine, the flagship of the Atlantic fleet, and another from her sister ship, the Missouri, for the life of Arthur Reese of Colorado, a seaman of Admiral Evans' flagship. Reese disappeared beneath the waves when the launch from the Maine was within twenty feet from him. Details of the attempted rescue were made public yesterday.

Tide Carries Swimmer
Reese was an expert swimmer, but the tide was running at least three miles an hour and he was carried rapidly down stream. The launch from the Maine had on every pound of steam. Her coxswain shouted to Reese to keep up his courage as the rescue was only a question of time. The swiftly ebbing tide made it possible for the launch to gain very far on the seaman, who was being swept toward the anchorage of the Missouri. Reese was probably a hundred yards south of the Maine and the launch was going at full speed about fifty yards astern, when a launch from the Missouri, which was coming from the rear, sighted the racing craft. The coxswain at once turned his boat up stream, where Reese was struggling to keep above water. The little engine on the Missouri's launch puffed with a will, but it was a hard job to buck the tide and she could make but little headway.

Sinks Beneath Waves
The launch from the Maine, assisted by the ebbing tide, fairly skimmed over the waves and had almost reached Reese. The coxswain was leaning far overboard with both hook and line, when suddenly, just as the men who lined the decks of the Maine and the Missouri were getting ready to cheer, the young seaman sank. He was not seen again.

AMERICAN GOODS PUSHED ABROAD
United Kingdoms Depend on United States for Living

NEW YORK, May 30.—Sir Andrew McDonald Fay, lord provost of Edinburgh, Scotland, is a visitor here. He has been touring the country for the last eight weeks, traveling as far as San Francisco. Sir Andrew is pessimistic as to trade conditions in the United Kingdom. He said yesterday: "Great economic facts, such as cotton, wheat and meat—have made Britain finally a dependency of the American republic. In my own country, Scotland, American goods are everywhere. Even our porridge is being made by the introduction of American breakfast foods. We don't annex the United States, but we are annexed to it. The only other way we can save our necks is to raise a cast iron tariff against them."

RUSSIAN GENERAL
Bomb Thrown Injures Official and Several Cossacks
A general attempt was made on the life of General Alakhanoff, governor general of Kutais last night, as he was about to take a train for Tifli. The general arrived at the station surrounded by an escort of Cossacks when two bombs were thrown at him and exploded in the midst of the party, seriously wounding the governor general and several of his staff and several Cossacks. The remainder of the Cossacks fired indiscriminately into the crowd, killing many persons. In addition the Cossacks burned to the ground a building in the vicinity into which the people fled.

DEATH LIST GROWS
Bodies of Eleven More Victims of San Francisco Disaster Recovered

SAN FRANCISCO, May 30.—The remains of eleven more victims of the disaster have been discovered, bringing the death list at the morgue up to 418. Those of Andrew Coleman and David Cook were found in the ruins of a store at 114 Third street. Five bodies were taken out of the ruins of the Kingsbury house. The first four were those of Louis Stambler, Taylor, 34 years of age; his wife, Celia, daughter, Rosie, 10 years old, and Stambler's niece, Miss Fannie Weiner, 23 years old. The fifth body taken from this building is unidentified. The remains of two Chinese were taken from the ruins in Chinatown. The remains of Frank Procheletia, a waiter, were found in a hot near the postoffice. The body of a man supposed to be Frederick Ennel was found in the rear of 515 Third street.

PLAN TO END WORLD'S WARS
Peace Conference Proposes a Treaty of Arbitration

SLAYDEN TALKS
Congressman Says Americans a Fighting Race, But Desire Peace With World

NEW YORK, May 30.—The members of the American delegation to the inter-parliamentary conference at Brussels were the guests last night of Clarence W. Bowen at a dinner at the Metropolitan Club. Among those present were Congressmen Bartholdt of Missouri, Norris of Nebraska and Slayden of Texas.

Mr. Bowen said that the Americans proposed the formation of a general treaty of arbitration which would give the nations jurisdiction to the Hague court over such matters as are included in it and the earliest possible creation of a permanent international congress to codify the laws of the nations and keep the code up to date, insisting that this is the only plan which can make permanent peace possible and at the same time make but little headway.

Senor Diego Mendoza, the Colombian minister, was a guest and said that he could assure America that Colombia would give its entire support to the prospects for peace and justice. The same spirit prevails in the other southern republics, he said.

Naval Program
Congressman Richard Bartholdt of Missouri said: "The friends of arbitration must realize that as long as there is no agreement between nations to keep the peace they must be in readiness for all possible emergencies, and we therefore should not antagonize a naval program as far as it is necessary for the national defense. On the other hand, the friends of the naval program should remember that order to defend it is not only not necessary, but uncalled for to antagonize or make light of the peace movement."

Americans Will Fight
Congressman Slayden said that history told the Americans were a peace-loving people. He added: "Americans will fight at the drop of the hat, and I am glad of it, but we must not let the hat be dropped. If they are quick to fight, they are also willing to faithfully keep their promises. They will abide by their commitments in the United States to the bitterest political fights known to history, each side affirming and believing that if the other wins the country will go to the devil. Yet when the issue has been determined in the regular and legal way the losing side gracefully, even gallily submits. It will be so in international matters, and we must take an active part in the work of the inter-parliamentary union should try to have these treaties made while there is no threat from any source on earth."

There appear to have been commissioned by Providence to promote this work. What we want to do and what should be done to maintain the peace of the world is plain enough. To secure that peace the United States demands treaties of arbitration—a permanent international congress and in the end disarmament."

SHIP DESTROYED BY EXPLOSION
Crew Thrown Into Water and With Difficulty Saved

NEW YORK, May 30.—A special to the Times from Millvale, N. J. says: "While the sloops of the oyster fleet were dredging about Maurice River cove Delaware bay yesterday a terrible explosion wrecked the schooner Hampton. A large portion of the boat was destroyed. The deck with Captain Dave Robbins and a crew of five men was thrown into the water some distance away and debris was scattered over the bay for hundreds of feet. Strangely enough, Captain Robbins and his crew were seriously injured. The schooner was equipped with gasoline machine dredges and several tanks of naphtha which were stored in the hold, had exploded. In a few minutes the schooner plunged to the bottom of the bay. The six men clung to the fragments of the deck and because of the heavy sea were with difficulty picked up by a state patrol steamer."

LIVE STOCK SUITS COME UP MONDAY

Actions for Alleged Violation of Texas Anti-Trust Law Seeking Forfeiture of Charter and Penalties Exceeding $17,000,000 to Be Called in District Court of Travis County at Austin Against Commission Firms and Others Engaged in Business at the Fort Worth Market

REMARKABLE PHASES IN PROCEEDINGS

Attorney General's Department Waited Two Years Before Bringing Action—Complaints Filed at Long Distance From Home of Defendants—Books Used in Investigation Secured by Illegal Method—Civil Cause Brought After Grand Jury Had Failed to Find Evidence of Law Violation

(BY A. W. GRANT.)
On Monday next, June 4, there will come up for trial in the district court of Travis county at Austin, suits seeking forfeiture of charter and the collection of penalties exceeding $17,000,000. The defendants in this double action are the principal firms engaged in various branches of the live stock industry at the Fort Worth market. The prosecutor in these suits is the State of Texas through its attorney general, Davidson, and the basis of the actions is the alleged violation of Texas' anti-trust law of 1903.

Probably the full significance of the facts contained in the foregoing paragraph has been lost to the majority of Texas citizens who have been reading columns about these suits during the past few weeks. There has been a general, though perhaps vague understanding that if these suits are carried by the law and the culmination, it will mean the dissolution of that business organization known as the Fort Worth Live Stock exchange, but the driving out of business of the packers, and the other heavy exporters of live stock, has not been overlooked. The attorney general was merely mistaken.

Why Defendants Complain
Probably in some sections of the state the complaints that have come from Fort Worth have caused so much misunderstanding about the enforcement of the law, or the punishment of statute violators. It is a matter of record that no person connected in even the slightest way with the Fort Worth Live Stock market has ever given expression to even a suggestion that such a condition would be desired or even tolerated should it, through lapse of time, be allowed to exist. On the other hand there has been a constant attitude by officials of the Fort Worth Live Stock exchange manifesting a desire to abide by the law and understand its provisions lest through ignorance they might err.

But there has been objection, an objection which the friends of the commission men earnestly declare is most unjust. It is not the packers who are affected their business as if it had been a disaster, a multitude of suits for an enormous amount of penalties, was suddenly shouldered upon them and they were obliged to defend at the expense of defending them, but of going to a distant county to appear at the trial, when the only point at issue was the live stock market.

When the Swift and Armour packing houses came to Fort Worth it was evident to everybody connected with the live stock industry that some stable arrangement for the management of a market would have to be made. A few commission firms were formed to take care of the live stock consignments sent them from producers, sell them to packing houses or other consumers, collect the money from the sale and forward this money to the owner minus a stipulated fee for the work.

The Commission Fee
The commission firm's fee is based on the same principle as the dime or a quarter collected by any bank when it cashes a check on another bank with which it does not do a drafting business. The fee is charged for the work of converting the check into cash. The commission firm gets its fee for converting live stock into cash, and as the work is more difficult than that of handling checks, its fee is correspondingly larger.

Grand Jury Saw No Violation
The correctness of this statement is borne out by the testimony which came to light during the contempt proceedings against Judge Lightfoot, the attorney general's assistant. In the Seventeenth district court at Fort Worth. In these proceedings it developed that a Tarrant county grand jury had before it for consideration alleged violations of the anti-trust law at Fort Worth live stock yards and that after this consideration, during which many witnesses were examined, it adjourned without finding any bill. The action of this grand jury which included such men as J. W. Spencer, John Bardon, Lon M. Barkley, W. H. Smith, J. D. Collett, H. Scott Wilson, J. O. A. Mann, G. W. Grant, John M. Elliott and R. A. Barrow, might be considered abundant evidence of acquittal, say the friends of the commission men. That this investigation and failure to find any violation of the Texas law was not done in a merely casual manner is believed from the fact that Judge E. Smith's instructions to this grand jury contained special reference to anti-trust law violations and legal references on this subject.

It was after the Tarrant county grand jury had failed to find any bill, the civil suits for collection of penalties and forfeiture of charters was begun by the attorney general's office. The suits were decided at Austin next Monday, therefore, if the suits come to trial, it is not so much whether or not the commission men engaged in business at Fort Worth have violated the law, although that is the apparent question, as whether or not the attorney general has correctly apprehended the technical language of the anti-trust statute as applying to such a business as that in which the commission men have been engaged.

And the answer to the question? If "yes," and the attorney general's interpretation is sustained in the lower courts, it means for many of the commission firms at the Fort Worth market, cessation of business because of crushing penalties for many of them cannot bear the cost of an appeal. If the answer comes "no," the attorney general was merely mistaken and the loss of time, stagnation of business, cost of defense, and the expense of litigation, which other defendants have been put, must be overlooked. The attorney general was merely mistaken.

It is the manifest unevenness of such a proposition, a sort of heads-I-win, tails-you-lose proposition, that has caused so much complaint about the anti-trust suits by the Fort Worth commission men.

After the Swift and Armour packing houses came to Fort Worth it was evident to everybody connected with the live stock industry that some stable arrangement for the management of a market would have to be made. A few commission firms were formed to take care of the live stock consignments sent them from producers, sell them to packing houses or other consumers, collect the money from the sale and forward this money to the owner minus a stipulated fee for the work.

Perhaps after a long wait the buyer would drop around to Grasser's pens, make a bid and Grasser probably would be tired enough by that time to take it. It might be 15 cents a hundred and Grasser wouldn't know it. He had no opportunity for finding out what the markets were doing elsewhere. If he took the bid the cattle would be weighed and after another wait Grasser would get a ticket for their weight. A duplicate of the ticket would go to the firm for which the buyer acted.

Grasser might consider the trouble over, but he would be mistaken. Several hundred tickets go daily to the packing firms that do business at the Fort Worth market, and there would probably be his disposition to give special attention to Grasser's. He would have to call at the packing house office, wait his turn, and probably get a draft. He would have spent an entire day's work in getting rid of three car loads of steers, but he would have had the satisfaction of not being compelled to pay commission charges. Then he probably would be left with the draft, with no means of identifying himself at any bank where he might get a draft. He would be left with enough money out of his three car loads of steers to get back home.

Its customer and the deal resembles that of the real estate man who gets a percentage commission for disposing of realty.

A percentage commission probably would satisfy the commission firms if it were practicable, but it is out of the question. To estimate a 2 per cent commission on a consignment of 173 cattle, averaging 825 pounds and selling at $37.75 per hundred pounds, would take more time and clerical labor than the business would be worth and therefore live stock commission firms everywhere have fixed their charges for selling live stock at a certain fee for each head.

The purpose of live stock commission firms is to expedite business and their necessity at all large markets has been recognized from the time there have been such markets in the United States.

A Sample Transaction
To further explain the workings of a commission firm the following description of an ordinary transaction with a customer is given: The commission firm's name is Brown & Jones and it does business at the Fort Worth market. The customer's name is Grasser and his ranch is in West Texas, 400 miles away. Grasser has three car loads of steers ready for market. He has heard of Fort Worth and prefers to sell there rather than ship to Kansas City or St. Louis. He might load his cattle at the nearest station to his ranch, accompany the shipment to Fort Worth, see that it was unloaded when it arrived here and undertake to sell it himself, and no one would offer him a price, or object. But supposing he would like to do all this without punching the steers along the road from shipping point to Fort Worth. Arrived at Fort Worth he would leave his steers in the hands of a packer, shunted to some sidetrack while the engine and rest of the train went on its way. He might ask the train crew what he intended doing all this time and might resort to strong language, but it would do him no good. After awhile, if his cattle had been properly billed, a belt line switch engine would pick up his cattle cars and start them for the stock yards. Grasser would probably have arrived in Fort Worth at daylight, most stock trains coming in at that time, and it might be 10 o'clock before the belt train would get around. He would have the chance of waiting in the railroad yards or else going out to the stock yards and waiting for the belt train to bring his consignment out.

After the consignment did reach the yards Grasser would have to see about getting his steers to the pens. If he had steers, he would have to hunt up the stock yards office and arrange for having water turned on and hay thrown down for his steers, and then, if he succeeded in doing all this unassisted, he would have to begin the search for a buyer. Somebody would have to point out the buyer to him and he would then begin a desperate effort to get the buyer's attention long enough to look at his cattle. The buyer would probably have every minute for the next three hours scheduled in advance to look at various lots of value offered by the commission salesmen with whom he had been doing business every day and whom he knows well. He would have to get up several seconds in haggling to get unreasonable prices. A buyer's time is valuable and he must work quickly. He probably would be slow about agreeing to look at Grasser's cattle, because he would be dealing with an unknown salesman. To Grasser's impatience he would probably answer, "I'll get to sit on the fence to ruminate about what he might think trust methods."

Wouldn't Know Market
Perhaps after a long wait the buyer would drop around to Grasser's pens, make a bid and Grasser probably would be tired enough by that time to take it. It might be 15 cents a hundred and Grasser wouldn't know it. He had no opportunity for finding out what the markets were doing elsewhere. If he took the bid the cattle would be weighed and after another wait Grasser would get a ticket for their weight. A duplicate of the ticket would go to the firm for which the buyer acted.

Grasser might consider the trouble over, but he would be mistaken. Several hundred tickets go daily to the packing firms that do business at the Fort Worth market, and there would probably be his disposition to give special attention to Grasser's. He would have to call at the packing house office, wait his turn, and probably get a draft. He would have spent an entire day's work in getting rid of three car loads of steers, but he would have had the satisfaction of not being compelled to pay commission charges. Then he probably would be left with the draft, with no means of identifying himself at any bank where he might get a draft. He would be left with enough money out of his three car loads of steers to get back home.

DALNY FORGES AHEAD
Port Arthur Has Not Recovered Activity Since Abandonment by Stoesel

VICTORIA, May 30.—Marquis Salongji, Japanese premier, and a commission consisting of the heads of the various branches of the Japanese government have returned from an official visit to Manchuria and Korea according to advices received by the steamer Empress of Japan. The Japanese premier stated that Talienwan (Dalny), the most important Manchurian port, it being more suitable than Yingkou (New Chang), the buildings at Talienwan have been repaired, but warehouses were necessary. Port Arthur, he said, has no future except as a naval port. The old Chinese town has recovered much of its activity, but the Russian buildings are unrepaid and the forts are left as they were when Stoesel abandoned them. A general air of destruction and desolation prevails.

MAN HURT IN SAFETY VAULT

Gas Explosion Shakes Reynolds Building
MATCH CAUSES IT
Ignition of Gas Because Electric Light Defective Is Held to Blame

Augustus Stagg was blown from the safety deposit vault in the second floor of the Reynolds building, seriously burned about the head, arms, neck and hands and a small panic occurred among the occupants of that floor shortly after 9 o'clock Wednesday morning. When Stagg, who is employed by the Wadsworth-Cameron company, went to the vault on business, he found the electric light was out of commission and opening the door, struck a match to light the gas, an explosion of accumulated gas following, the force of which shook the entire building.

Clothing Burned
In one hand Stagg, who is about 26 years of age, had some currency when he opened the door and lit the match. A portion of one ten-dollar note was burned and his clothing completely ruined in the blaze accompanying the explosion. Dr. J. H. McLean dressed his wounds and he was removed to St. Joseph's infirmary, where, at a late hour Wednesday afternoon, he was reported to be resting easily. His wounds, while serious and painful in the extreme, are said not likely to result fatally.

The safety deposit vault in the second floor is near the stairway and elevator, at the east end of the building. Offices, some twelve in number, are down the hallway to the west end of the building. Dr. McLean was seated in his office at the west end of the floor. He says the explosion shook the entire building. He rushed into the hall to see the young man standing in the doorway, and he saw a rush of heat that seemed to indicate a terrific fire within the vault from which Stagg had been thrown.

Stenographers rushed from their desks in terror and almost without exception, sped down the hallway and stairs. Men shouted and ran about in excitement. Several rushed to the spot where Stagg stood. He was next carried into the offices of Dr. McLean, where that physician attended his injuries and sent him to the infirmary.

Letter files about the safety deposit boxes in the vault were scorched by the flames. The boxes were opened to find that none of their contents had been injured.

FLAMES CAUSE $1,000,000 LOSS
Elevator and Million Bushels of Grain Destroyed

FOUR MEN HURT
Fire Endangers Buildings Two Blocks Distant and Sixty Engines Summoned

CHICAGO, Ill., May 30.—Fire early today destroyed Armour & Co.'s elevator D, standing along a slip extending from the south branch of the river from Fisk street, and was spread by means of sparks to the John Spry Lumber Company's yards, Twenty-Second and Fisk streets. With the elevator were destroyed 1,600,000 bushels of wheat, corn and oats. Four men employed in the elevator were hurt, one fatally, soon after the fire started, when a series of explosions caused by ignition of the dust, spread the flames through the building.

The loss was estimated roughly at from $500,000 to more than $1,000,000. In addition fifteen cars filled yesterday with grain were on the tracks by the elevator and these were destroyed. Switch engines were hurried to the switch track and 150 cars were hauled out of danger.

Sixty Engines Summoned
Within half an hour after the sounding of the first alarm, five special cars had been sent in and sixty engines, some from as far north as Lake View, together with the fireboats, Queen, Yonah and Illinois, were summoned to the scene. The firemen were obliged to get nearly all their water from the slip, no water plugs being within available distance.

The burning destroyed was 500 feet long, 200 feet wide and three stories in height, built of brick. It was not near any other building, but the fire was of such extent that plants and walks away were endangered. Among these were the gas tanks of the People's Gas Light Company, between Twenty-second and Twenty-third streets, in Center avenue. Firemen were stationed to pour water on these when the embers were carried in that direction thickly and the gas company was notified. It responded that it would withdraw the gas from the tanks at once.

Hurt in Explosion
The men hurt in the elevator were watched and were standing near one of the chutes leading to the water front when one of the explosions blew them entirely out of the building. The power house of the Commonwealth Electric Company, on the west bank of the river, not far from the burning elevator, caught fire and fireboats were sent to extinguish the flames there. Companies were also called to help seal the walls of Elevator C of Armour & Co. The walls of elevator D fell a few minutes after 3 o'clock and the debris was piled up. The west bank lumber yards was thus ended. The fire is believed to have been caused by spontaneous combustion. Fire Chief McDonough arrived soon after the fire and took charge at his first big fire after taking Chief Campion's place.

DELAY DECISION ON REDUCED RATES
Commission Awaits Further Information

AUSTIN, May 30.—From the developments yesterday afternoon it may be several days yet before the railroad commission reaches a decision on the proposition to reduce the passenger rates on the Houston & Texas Central railway. The matter was discussed at some length yesterday afternoon, and it was decided that some additional figures should be obtained. The commission accordingly addressed a communication to the officials of the Central, asking for a more detailed statement concerning their passenger earnings, etc. It is now believed that the commission will await this information before a decision is handed down.

SURVIVING LEADERS IN THE LATE WAR

General O. O. Howard

Stephen D. Lee

In many ways General O. O. Howard, of the Union and General Stephen D. Lee, of the Confederacy, are linked together by the melancholy distinction of being the sole survivors among the army leaders—both men as citizens and soldiers.
Classmates at West Point and friends till war's demands made them bear arms for hostile sections, is the beginning of the coincidence that General O. O. Howard, U. S. A., retired, and Lieutenant General Stephen D. Lee, C. S. A., are the surviving army commanders of the civil war of the North and South, respectively. They graduated together at the national military academy in 1854.

DALLAS, Texas, May 30.—Memorial day is being well observed. Grand Army of the Republic veterans and the Woman's Relief Corps are decorating graves. Many Confederate veterans are participating.

the white haired survivors have seen all the great leaders go to their last reward. Time has dealt no less gently with the chief statesmen with the file. That these two survivors are the solitary ones of their eminence reveals with a shock what a swath the grim reaper has cut in the ranks of the blue and of the gray. The time draws nigh when children strewn flowers on the graves of the dead, among whom will be those who never have looked upon a veteran in the flesh.

Dime Novel Hero Dies at Cripple Creek, Colorado

DENVER, May 30.—A dispatch from Cripple Creek says Frank Palmer, said to be the original "Deadwood Dick" of dime novel fame, died in the county hospital Tuesday evening. According to the dispatch Palmer was born at Jackson, Ill. He was a nephew of former Senator John M. Palmer and had a close relationship to the late Potter Palmer of Chicago. When 17 years old Palmer left home and drifted west. He went to Deadwood, S. D., in the early days of that camp, and became a successful gambler. He was known as a square gambler and sports of the mining camp dubbed him "Deadwood Dick, the Plunger." At the age of 21 Palmer returned to Illinois and one year later went to Chicago, where he married a sister of a prominent Episcopal minister of that city. One child was born to them.

OFFICERS HAVE CHASE

Men Answering Description of Suspected Horse Thieves Pursued

Word was received at the sheriff's office Tuesday that a party of five men answering description of suspected horse thieves was pursued by two men afoot, corresponding in many ways to the description of the two men accused of stealing Hamilton Scott's horses, related just passed near Azle making their way toward Fort Worth. Pursuit of the men was made, and Deputy Sheriffs Nate Wilson, E. S. Cloud and O. H. Huxley made a forced horseback run to Azle, where they were joined by Constable Johnson of that precinct, and the constable from Springtown, Parker county, and worked on the trail until late in the night, but failed to come up with the two men. The men were not half as severe as reported elsewhere, for which everybody, especially the farmers, feels thankful. There are but few weeds in crops and the outlook could hardly be better for crops generally.

HAS ONE EMPTY SLEEVE

However, General O. O. Howard is still a Human Dynamo—Tells of Academy Days With the Lees—An Encounter With Stephen D. at Ezra Church and One With Robert E. at Chancellorsville.

Special to The Telegram.

BURLINGTON, Vt., May 31.—This state lays claim to Major General O. O. Howard, U. S. A., since his retirement from active military service in 1894.

The sturdy, white-haired veteran, with his empty sleeve, is a familiar sight in Burlington, one that residents like to point out to visitors as the general that held the field at Gettysburg and marched with Sherman to the sea, and the last one living of the Union army commanders.

His is still a busy existence, with an office on City Hall park, with clerks and stenographers. Amid these surroundings one finds General Howard, when the two corps commanders are not lecturing and traveling here, there and everywhere.

He is the author of many books and has suggested recently that General Stephen D. Lee and he collaborate upon a history of the civil war, but General Lee has been frank to say that

- General Howard
- Home, Burlington, Vt.
- Occupation, publicist, historian.
- Born, Leeds, Me.
- Age, 76.
- Civil war—Colonel Third Maine regiment; brigadier general; unteers after Bull Run; major general; volunteer, commander of army and department Tennessee; brigadier general United States army. Participated in forty-six important battles, and in the first and last battles of the war.
- After war—Commander Freedman's bureau; peace commissioner to Indians of Arizona and New Mexico; department and division commander the Columbia, West Point, the Platte, the Pacific, the Atlantic, the Missouri, the United States army, 1888; retired November 8, 1894; founder Lincoln Memorial university, Cumberland Gap, Tenn.

he can see that struggle from just one angle, which precludes the impartial attitude of the true historian. He has advised General Howard to go ahead with the history alone.

Of his acquaintance with the younger Lees in the days when they were cadets at the military academy, General Howard speaks with kindly remembrance. Of the late Fitzhugh Lee he is wont to remark of the wrestling bouts they had together, and with regret he tells how the war interrupted the friendship he had formed with his classmate, Stephen D. Lee. They have never had a personal meeting since the mighty struggle. Toward the end of the war, when General Howard and his army of the Tennessee were with Sherman in Georgia, he encountered Stephen D. Lee's forces at Ezra Church, July 23, 1864. Telling of it, General Howard says:

"When the engagement opened, Sherman and I were together. I remarked, 'There is going to be a battle, general,' to which he replied, 'Oh, I guess not. But seeing a peculiar form of shrapnel flying through the tops of the trees, a kind that was used by the Confederate artillery throughout the war when the enemy meant business, I called Sherman's attention to it, and he then said, 'You are right,' and, mounting, rode away."

"At that time I was engaged in bringing the fifteenth corps, commanded by Logan, from the left of our line to occupy a position on the extreme right. I gave my personal attention to this movement and saw that my right flank was reinforced by seven regiments and a dozen batteries from the first two corps, General Howard's command, for the enemy was making a demonstration in force against my right."

"When Lee's shrapnel flying through the tree tops posted me on what was coming, I was in position to enfold and crush him, but not till after one of the bloodiest encounters the whole war was this accomplished. In the battle of Ezra Church no less than six Confederate color bearers were shot down and their regiments annihilated."

A different encounter with Lee was the battle of Chancellorsville. "That repulse was the bitterest experience of my life," says General Howard. "Hooker, in his plan to drive General Robert Lee out of Fredericksburg, had evolved an elaborate campaign, and an extended line of battle with the eleventh corps, which I commanded, on the right. My reserves had been withdrawn and when Stonewall Jackson with three men to my one turned my flank he swept my unsupported corps back for some two miles with the impetuosity of his attack."

"Dear would have indeed been a welcome relief from the humiliation of that night. But we retrieved ourselves at Gettysburg, where the gallant eleventh corps, forced to fall back again but not in confusion, occupied the famous field of battle under my direction and held Cemetery ridge till the arrival of General Meade."

How to Tell at a Glance the Nature and Characteristics of Every One You Meet.

Do you want to read the character of the men and women with whom you are brought in contact? Watch their eyes, head, handshake and walk, and the matter becomes simple as reading the first book in your library.

If you follow the following recipe, and study the drawings, you can tell almost at a glance the hidden idiosyncrasies of character of anyone you meet.

A man who presses his thumb on the back of your hand when shaking hands is social and liberal.

The man who never presses his thumb against the outside of your palm when handshaking is stingy, and the higher he keeps his thumb the stinger he is.

A man who shakes hands with the tips of his fingers is sly, secretive and cunning, and is not to be trusted.

You can tell a liar as far as you can see him by watching his eyelids. If the eyelid cuts off the eye at the outside corner, drooping over it, the possessor is a stranger to the truth, and has only a regard of vanity as a word in the dictionary.

It is an easy task to detect a typical criminal by his eyes. Color or size cuts no figures. One eye is invariably larger than the other, and the upper eyelid presents a somewhat ragged appearance.

BOILED EGG OF OLD ENGLAND

May Take the Place of Roast Beef as a Result of the Boat Race

Far more than a mere athletic triumph was Cambridge's victory recently. It was the demonstration of a great scientific principle that bids fair to subvert the gastronomic traditions of a nation. Other crews have won on form or fortune; it remained for the Light Blue crew of 1906 to owe their laurels to the common farm yard egg.

On eggs they were trained—raw eggs, poached eggs, eggs boiled soft and eggs as hard as rocks, scrambled eggs, fried eggs, eggs beaten in milk, and eggs turned into omelets. Every resource of the culinary artist was called into request, and in the strength of those eggs they rowed Oxford to a standstill.

When first people heard that every Cambridge oarsman ate four eggs for breakfast they laughed; when they were told that five dozen eggs were consumed by the crew each day, they sneered; but one or two sensational performances in practice made them mark, and other countries came eggs in countless thousands. But still the demand is increasing, and with the victory of Cambridge it is confidently expected that "the boiled egg of old England" is come to stay.—New York Times over Priam, the Derby winner, and the scientists came forward with uncanny calculations, and how much albumen, proteins, and other things that people eat without knowing it an egg contains. The London restaurants began to feel the change. No one would in 1830 his victory in the St. Leger.

The country was scoured in all directions for eggs. From Brittany, Denmark, and other parts of the world they were brought in.

Then the historians of the turf declared that to eggs Birmingham owed take his breakfast, his luncheon, or his dinner without an egg, and egg flips, egg nog, and every other drink with an egg to its name became the rage.

Night in Venice

A Night in Venice will be the attraction at Lake Como when the grand opening of the skating rink takes place Thursday night in Arlington Heights.

A Night in Venice is distinctively a new feature to Fort Worth people and will undoubtedly prove a drawing card. All of the boats on Lake Como are named after young women living at Arlington Heights and will be decorated by those for whom they are named to represent the different kinds of water craft.

Chinese Junks, two and three masted schooners, ships, canal boats, gondolas, war vessels and in fact every thing that floats, is likely to be represented in this water parade.

Hundreds of Japanese lanterns will be used in decorating the boats and the lake will be in a blaze of colored light when the procession starts.

Prizes will be awarded for the best decorated boats. After the review takes place and the skating stops at 10 o'clock the young women will give a dance for their friends and Lake Como skating rink will be declared open.

Free band concerts will be given at the lake every afternoon and evening during the summer months. The management has engaged as musical director W. T. Cox, who was formerly a St. Louis man and has had years of experience in this line of work. ## Ball Wins Race

The first race of a series of three races for the three-mile championship of the southwest was skated last night at the Fort Worth skating rink. Elmer Ball defeating Gilbert Teague by a half lap. Many spectators said that it was one of the fastest and prettiest events of the season. The third heat of this series of three will take place at the Fort Worth skating rink Tuesday night, June 12.

The last great attraction of the season at the Summit avenue rink will take place tonight. The contest will be the last race but one of the season at the rink. All the races of the season at the Summit avenue rink have been contests in which the best men have invariably won and the large audience which has attended each one bear evidence to the fact that Fort Worth people loves good sport.

In tonight's race the women take a part equally important with the men and although the element of danger has been entirely eliminated, there will be no lack of enthusiasm and excitement.

The race is billed for 9:15 and patrons will be permitted to skate till 11 o'clock.

A Friend in Need

THAT thin, little, 10-cent Box of Cascarets.

When carried constantly in your Vest Pocket, or in "my Lady's" Purse it will ward off ninety per cent of Life's ordinary ills.

Eat one of the six candy tablets contained in that "Vest Pocket Box" whenever you suspect you need one.

It can't hurt you, and is sure insurance against serious sickness.

Want of Exercise, Indoor Employment, weaken the Bowel Muscles, just as they weaken Arm and Leg Muscles.

The Muscles lose tone, tension, strength, to force the food onward.

And the longer they stay in that state the weaker they become, because the less exercise they get through the slow passage of food.

Cascarets contain the only combination of drugs that acts on the Muscles of the Bowels and Intestines, just as Cold Water, or Exercise, act on a Lazy man.

They act like Exercise.

When you have Heartburn, Colic, Coated Tongue, Suspected Breath, Acid-rising-in-throat, Gas-belching, or an incipient Cold, take a Cascaret.

Remember, all these are not merely Discomforts, but indications of a serious Cause.

Nip them in the bud—eat a Candy Cascaret. Cascarets don't purge, nor punish the stomach like "Bile-driving" "Physics."

They act like Exercise on the Bowel-Muscles that propel Food, and that squeeze the natural Digestive Juices of the body into Food.

Cascarets ward off, or cure, the following diseases:

Constipation, Bad Breath, Biliuness, Diabetes

Indigestion, Headache, Dyspepsia, Diarrhea, Torpid Liver, Flatulence, Appendicitis, Hives, Rheumatism, Jaundice, Catarrh, Nausea, Colic, Vertigo, Screefula, Pimples, Womanly Troubles, Worms, Blotches, Flies, Eczema, Ulicers, Dysentery

In such cases a little Cascaret in time is worth fifty dollars worth of Treatment later on, to say nothing of the suffering, discomfort, loss of Business Energy, and loss of Social Sunshine it saves.

A coming Headache can be warded off in short order, by a single Cascaret, and the cause removed.

Heartburn, Gas-belching, Acid-rising-in the throat, and Colicky feeling are sure signs of bowel trouble from food poisons, and should be dealt with promptly.

One Cascaret will stop the coming trouble, and move on the Bowel load, if taken at the first signs.

Don't fail to carry the Vest Pocket Box of Cascarets with you constantly.

All Drugists sell them—over ten million boxes a year.

Be very careful to get the genuine, made only by the Sterling Remedy Company and never sold in bulk. Every tablet stamped "CCC."

FREE TO OUR FRIENDS

STOCK SUITS
WINDS UP MONDAY

The suits were filed in the district court at Fort Worth Monday morning and were heard by Judge Lightfoot.

Organization of Market
The work of the commission which still leaves the organization of a market as conducted in the past.

Such a degree in probably no other kind of business organization. The key-note of the Live Stock exchange's existence is absolute integrity, open dealing, and expediency.

Percentage of Penalties
A feature of the present suits which has provoked query from observant lawyers is the long time which elapsed during which the $50 a day penalty clause might be in operation before the suits were brought.

Compromise or Appeal
There has been some talk at Austin that the attorney general will be willing to accept a compromise settlement from the firms sued and report has fixed this sum at $50,000 to $100,000.

Defendant's Attitude
A summary of the defendant's attitude toward the anti-trust law and the present suits, includes the following contentions which have heretofore been set out more fully.

Grand Jury Had Failed to Find
Still further cause for astonishment at the attorney general's sudden action resulted from the knowledge that a Tarrant county grand jury, in session just before the big suits were filed, had taken under consideration the business of the Fort Worth Live Stock Exchange and had adjourned without finding a bill.

two weeks before the suits were filed in Austin. It developed that the use of the grand jury subpoena to secure these books was illegal and a contempt of court order was issued against Judge Lightfoot.

When it became known that the books had been taken to Austin, a request for their return to the Fort Worth exchange was made, and this request was refused. The Tarrant county grand jury had already adjourned, and the books were out of the jurisdiction of the Seventeenth district court.

This Prominent New Orleans Man
Tells You How
COOPER'S NEW DISCOVERY
Cured His Stomach Trouble
By Expelling From His System An ENORMOUS LIVING PARASITE
Here is his letter, read it and judge for yourself.

THE COOPER MEDICINE COMPANY:
Gentlemen: I cannot refrain from expressing the gratitude I feel toward the wonderful Cooper Medicines. I have been a sufferer from severe Stomach Trouble for over fifteen months. Severe headaches and pains in the abdomen caused me much distress. I had queer dizzy and fainting spells and frequent attacks of dysentery. My tongue was always coated and my appetite irregular. I lost all ambition and had a tired, listless feeling most of the time. It required great effort and will power to attend to my duties.

After reading so much of similar cases that were being cured with the Cooper Medicines I purchased a small quantity of Cooper's New Discovery and began taking it. I had taken only a few doses when a horrible, living parasite or tape-worm passed from my system and then I realized what had caused all my suffering. I felt better immediately and continued taking the medicine. Now I am well and strong again and all my trouble has been relieved. It is to be hoped that many other sufferers will see this and profit thereby.

Signed: CHARLES E. TIZZARD,

THE MARATHON MYSTERY
BY BURTON E. STEVENSON
COPYRIGHT 1906, BY HENRY HOLT & COMPANY

An unknown man is killed at the Marathon, an arduous journey. Godfrey, a reporter, and Simmons, his detective friend, find Grace Croydton, an acquaintance of the new paper man, in the room with a smoking pistol in her hand. She proves her innocence of direct connection with the crime and is freed from suspicion.

Part II
Lester, an attorney who knows Godfrey, takes apartments at the Marathon, the two thinking that Tremaine, who lives there and who becomes acquainted with Lester, has some connection with the murder. Cecily, the woman companion to Tremaine, so Lester learns, the cause of her acquaintance, keeps a small pet snake, called Pete, whose species is such that a bite kills the person bitten in a very short time.

Part III
Tremaine visits the Delroys, Grace Croydton is there, Tremaine makes love to her and Drysdale, also one of the house party, becomes enraged as he is engaged to Grace. It is proposed to immerse a pearl necklace belonging to Mrs. Delroy in sea water, to restore its lost brilliancy, two men being engaged to guard it. The two men who thus engaged is killed and investigation shows that Drysdale was the only person supposed to be out of the house during the time just preceding the finding of the dead man. He is arrested, charged with murder and taken to jail in New York City.

The two men who were guarding the necklace under a carpet in his room at the Marathon, the same room in which the first murder was committed. He thinks they have some connection with the first murder. He shows them to the newspaper reporter.

The two men who Tremaine is the legal husband of Mrs. Delroy, Grace Croydton's sister, that Tremaine killed the two men, and that the first was a former criminal partner, who sent the clippings to Tremaine, following traitorous actions by Tremaine. It is announced that Cecily is to return to the island where she first met Tremaine.

"That throwing of the pistol into the boat," continued Godfrey, "was one of those flashes of inspiration which comes to a man sometimes. It was superb! It proves that our friend is really an artist without his hearing us. 'Did he take the necklace with him to the house?' I asked. 'No,' said Godfrey decidedly. 'There was no one there for him to run that risk. He had doubtless picked out a safe hiding place for it in the afternoon. The necklace once deposited there, he carried some of the evidence to his room. He re-enters the room, he assures himself that there are no blood stains on him anywhere, then he moves his table near the window and sits down to wait for Drysdale's return. 'As soon as he hears him enter his room, he writes up the letters which he had, of course, written during the afternoon, and goes downstairs. And it is here that he makes his most serious mistake. He thinks, perhaps, that he is to have only the country police to deal with—only your Hefelbrowers—that he must clinch the nail, that he must back the evidence against his victim too strong. So, when he places his letters on the top button of the coat, he also tears off the top button of the coat. 'He returns to the hall, talks with Delroy, the storm comes up and young Graham rushes in. They run down to the pier, he sends some of the evidence to discover signs of life—and Tremaine adroitly shuts the button within the dead man's hand. That, my dear Lester, is the whole of the matter. 'Godfrey blew a great smoke ring out over the seat in front of us. 'We haven't to get any direct evidence against Tremaine, he finally said. 'But I believe, within an hour, we'll be in possession of the one piece of positive, indisputable evidence that will outweigh all the rest. 'What is that?' I asked. 'The necklace!'"

OLD SHIPPER TELLS VALUE OF EXCHANGES

The commission firms are called a "trust" by our attorney general, but they are not a trust in the sense that there is nothing in our rules prohibiting any man or set of men from opening up a commission business and selling his own live stock on this market. Now is there anything in our rules prohibiting them from purchasing the live stock from such a shipper. There would be no objection made to this by the commission firms for the reason they realize that a shipper would not do this but once or twice, for the reason that he would not know the value of his customer. For instance, a man ships a car of cattle to this market and they are sold to a feeder to go to the country, there being a difference between the best cattle and stock cattle rate, the commission man makes application for the lower rate which is applicable under the ruling of the railroad commission, and as soon as this is investigated by

SORES AND ULCERS
TROUBLESOME-OFFENSIVE-DANGEROUS

Nothing is more discouraging than to have an unhealthy sore or ulcer resist one treatment after another, sometimes scabbing over and apparently getting well, then returning with renewed energy and becoming worse than before. Sores and ulcers are not due to outside causes; if they were, salves, plasters, lotions, etc., would cure them. They are kept up by a diseased and polluted condition of the blood brought on by the absorption of refuse and waste matters of the body into this vital fluid. These accumulations find their way into the blood, usually because of an inactive and sluggish condition of the system. Nature intends that they shall be carried off through the usual channels of waste, but the different members failing to perform their duties properly leave the matter to rot and ferment. The blood then, in its effort to keep the system healthy, absorbs these poisons at the first bruise, cut or wound the sore is formed, and the constant drainage of foul matter through it keeps the place open and irritated so it cannot heal. Another cause for old sores and ulcers is the polluting or weakening of the blood from the remains of some constitutional trouble or the effects of a long spell of sickness. S. S. S. begins at the fountain-head and drives out all poisonous matter and germs, and makes a lasting cure. As soon as the system gets under gradually leaves, the flesh takes on a healthy color, and soon the place is permanently healed. Book on sores and ulcers and any medical advice without charge.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

the railroads and they find these cattle did actually go to the country to be fed or grazed, this return is made and the amount sent to the party shipping the cattle.

I know commission firms who have collected hundreds of dollars in this manner and the shipper knew nothing of this reimbursement until his check was received. Could not this commission man have kept this as easily as a note? I defy any man to point out a member of one of these exchanges who has purloined or done a disreputable act in recent years that has not been severely punished.

Use of Solicitors
It has been intimated the attorney general's department has made an assertion that the commission firms were in violation of the anti-trust laws because they made it possible to dispense with a few solicitors which were representing the different firms through the country, of which the principal part of this duty was to live at the best hotels, smoke the best cigars and be a general good fellow, and it was the duty of the commission firm to provide a stipulated salary and an unlimited expense account, both of which would aggregate in the neighborhood of $250 or $300 per month, and the shipper did not create a car load of cattle but he did divert Mr. A's business to Mr. B, which was a good thing for Mr. B, but Mr. A had a nice business and diverts Mr. B's business to Mr. A. There is $500 or $600 spent and each commission firm receives the same amount of business they were getting or would get without either of these solicitors, and on account of having this solicitor, expenses make the business unprofitable.

The commission firms do not raise the commission on cattle to pay this unnecessary expense, but they simply abolish the solicitor to make their business profitable and legitimate. Now what fair-minded man can say this procedure is in violation of any law? Can anyone tell what benefit this solicitor was, as he did not create a car load of stock and the only thing that was done was diverting the business from one firm to another and back and forth, and when the season came to a close the commission man handled no more business than he would have handled had there been no solicitor, and he was out on each of these men two or three thousand dollars and the business was not a profitable one, and something had to be done to keep him from going into bankruptcy.

What became of the solicitor? The majority of them were taken care of in positions in the yards or in the office or at some service where they could get a reasonable remuneration for their services rendered. In some instances they went in business for themselves. Then why should all this "trust business" noise be heard of by the public? It is a business that is made which has a tendency to demoralize business in all lines? Now, take the item of dispensing with meals at the stock yards. Why was this done? It was because the commission man did not want to give his best friend and customer a meal, for he left a "trust business" noise which reads: "There is nothing herein contained to prevent a member of this exchange from taking his friend or customer to his home or to the restaurant or hotels down town and wine and dine him to his heart's content."

This meal business was severely abused by people coming in charge of live stock who had no interest in the stock, neither had they interest in the man who was shipping them, but in many instances came along for the purpose of getting a meal, and without paying railroad fare. In many instances he was a stranger to the shipper, going to get to work in Kansas City, St. Louis or probably New York. Often five or six of these people would come to a commission office at a time and say: "I came with Mr. B's cattle and would like to have a meal ticket."

They did not know these men and it had grown to be a custom to give these tickets, and I am told some of these commission firms give as high as $4,000 per year for meals at the stock yards and out of this amount it is probable that not over $200 was spent on a legitimate shipper.

As for telegrams, the solicitor encouraged this expense in his eagerness to pull Mr. A's business to Mr. B and vice versa, and they would tell them to wire a certain house at their expense. I have had instances sighted to me where more than the entire commission on a car load of stock was consumed in this expense before the shipment was ever made.

Would any fair-minded man say such a practice as this should not be eliminated? It cannot be done without concentrated action, for the reason these commission firms that are in a "trust" compete so stringently for business that they are always suspecting that the "other fellow" is taking some undue advantage.

There is no set of men who can get together and show where the live stock exchange ever done anything that is illegal or to the detriment of the shipper or raiser. The producer's interest is first in the minds of commission firms at all times. They realize it is essential to foster his business and to make it profitable for him to continue in business, which also makes it possible for the commission man to continue.

The commission firms can show by statistics that instead of raising commissions on cattle on the first day of the year they have reduced them. I presume this statement will cause someone to be surprised, but these facts can be substantiated and will be desired by any shipper, and this has been explained in the press before. Now to sum this situation up in a nutshell it was impossible for the commission man to make money with these enormous expenses accumulating against their business, and it is also impossible for you to take one man out of your office to dinner and leave several others sitting there. It is also impracticable to pay one man's telephone or telegram without paying all others, as it would be impossible to keep your other customers from finding this out. They would naturally feel they were as important as the man whose message you had paid, and the consequence would be very detrimental to their business.

Last, but not least, the man living in the country and shipping his live stock to market, wants to know that the firm to which he is consigning them is honest and responsible, and that after his stock are sold that he will get the net proceeds, which may amount to $10,000 or $15,000 and which he has worked for years to accumulate. Now, there is but one way to give him this guarantee, and that is through organization with strict rules and the possibility of enforcing them.

The importance prevails among reasonable minded business men that the suits which have been instituted against the commission men, stock yards and packers will be immediately withdrawn when the necessary evidence is produced to show there is no change in the method of doing the contract, this exchange is a legitimate organization, principally for the purpose of protecting the producer and the outside world who are in the live stock business.

Ever remark how poorly some Wisconsin men get along? They claim to know everything, but are never able to accomplish anything.
