The cars then moved with rapidly increasing velocity before the driving force of the wind, and at a terrific rate when the passenger train was encountered, after rushing seven miles down the main track. The darkness of the night and the heavy storm made it impossible to discern the cars at a great distance from the train. The engine was not derailed, but two passenger cars left the track, being badly wrecked. The injured passengers were in these:

Officials on Train

FLASHES RECORDS

Colquitt and Moore Give Fort Worth Candidate Opportunity to Answer Attacks

Special to The Telegram.

MOODY, Texas, June 1.—The people of Moody have not yet gotten through talking about the debate here Decoration Day, in which Judge C. K. Bell of Fort Worth turned on Monta J. Moore and O. H. Colquitt and with their records succeeded in completely discomfiting both.

Mr. Colquitt left the picnic grounds soon after Judge Bell had finished and Moore was also absent after the speaking was over. About 6,000 people heard the addresses.

Moore Opens

Monta Moore opened the speechmaking of the afternoon with a set speech, which he soon abandoned in order to attack Judge Bell.

He said, pointing to his opponents: "How will they destroy the trusts? Judge Bell says by the courts. He was attorney general four years when the trusts were forming in Texas."

He related how the Kirby Lumber Company consolidated several sawmills and Judge Bell as attorney general did not interfere. He then said: "How can he do more as governor than he did when he was attorney general?"

He contended that his corporation commission would do it, as it would be controlled by the legislature. He referred to the lumber trust and to the testimony of M. L. Womack of Houston at the lumber hearing before the railroad commission and before his distinguished friend, Mr. Colquitt; that this trust was organized when Bell was attorney general, and he should have destroyed the Kirby lumber corporation; that none of his opponents had answered his argument as to a corporation commission; that the people should take the corporations out of politics; that during the recent extra session of the legislature the corporations swarmed to Austin and lined up behind the present administration and Judge Bell to defeat the blanket primary.

Colquitt Follows

Mr. Colquitt started out talking on trusts, but he soon switched to a discussion of Judge Bell. Referring to Judge Bell's recent challenge to place his record as a trust breaker against the record of his predecessors combined, Colquitt said it was a boast unworthy of Bell.

He told of the anti-trust suits against the brewers, in which extra penalties to the amount of $97,000, but said that Judge Bell was not responsible for them. He gave the credit to Henry Faulk, who was county attorney of Travis county at the time, and also to the law firm of Hogg & Robertson.

He went from this to the prohibition question, saying that he was bold enough to let the people know how he stood; that he was not a pro in Moody and an anti in Waco; that he would vote against state prohibition, as he could see no difference in principle between the two county prohibitions.

Some fellow in the audience yelled out, "Hurrah for Bell!" and several bells were rung, whereupon Mr. Colquitt remarked, "We will ring the change of this proposition until it is settled."

"Hurrah for Bell!" shouted some one else.

Mere Mr. Colquitt told his hearers that he was not running for the office for the purpose of saying that he was

ROADS MAY CUT OFF CONCESSIONS

Reduction of Passenger Rates May Decrease Excursions

Special to The Telegram.

AUSTIN, Texas, June 1.—A prominent railroad man, who was at the state house yesterday, stated that in the event the Houston and Texas Central railway is forced to reduce the passenger rates from 3 to 2 1/2 cents per mile, in accordance with the order of the railroad commission, it will mean the cutting off of all concessions now enjoyed by certain classes, such as special rates to ministers of religion, special rates to societies, and the road may have to go so far as to abolish all excursion rates. At present the railroads give half rates to people who are objects of charity. This is recommended by the mayor of a city, and if the reduction order is enforced all this will be cut out.

This will be the only way that the Houston and Texas Central will have in order to make up, in a measure at least, the deficiency which will accrue in their receipts by the reduction of rates.

This state of things, however, will only be put in effect in the event that the courts refuse an injunction against the enforcement of the commission's order, which does not become effective until July 1.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

"TOO LATE, GENTLEMEN"

The Story of the Roumezas, Father and Son (From the French)

Seven o'clock on a September morning, dressed in white with a broad brimmed Panama hat and wearing slippers, M. Roumezas went down into his garden to watch the jacinths.

What a fine reputation was his. Pure as crystal and brilliant as the sun. On the streets hats were lifted to him like the wings of doves. One felt near him an atmosphere of calm and well-earned repose. It was an honest, a great man who passed when M. Roumezas walked by. Such a life merits recompense, but heaven had been unjust toward the just. His wife was dead.

His only child, Antoine, was 30 years old—disipated and completely worthless. What was the good of working? Papa was rich and was his term!

"Let us amuse ourselves," said the young man. Neither reasoning nor threats availed. Wounded in his hope, his pride, his love—his only son—how quickly poor Roumezas aged!

A hesitating step upon the gravelled pathway made M. Roumezas turn. Antoine was before him—very pale, with soiled linen, disordered hair and red eyes.

The old man shrugged his shoulders. "Ah, here you are—at this hour! Are you not ashamed? Come to bed and try to be down by noon."

"Father!" said the young man, advancing a step. M. Roumezas adjusted his glasses, and in a tone half-veiled and half indignant, asked: "What is it?"

"Last night—at play!—You lost—lost again! Ah, misery of my life! He will kill me, that boy! You had sworn to me. By heaven, there is one thing to do. Pay, pay again, and always to the last cent! There is the Roumezas honor. Come, how much?"

Antoine remained silent. "It is not that." "What is it then? A quarrel? Ah, these gambling rooms! A terrible thought crossed the old man's mind: he anxiously reached both hands toward his son in beseeching gesture: "Oh, not that! It is not that!"

Antoine hung his head. Great heavens, it was true! His son—his son—a cheat and a thief! "Papa!" said Antoine. "Don't touch me! Don't touch me!" cried the old man, recovering himself with wonderful energy. Pointing toward the house he said: "Go to your room."

Flinging his head and dropping his nose a criminal the son entered the house and went upstairs. M. Roumezas closed the door behind him.

The young man sat down heavily on the bed, and with downcast eyes, crumpled with feverish fingers a hanging corner of the spread, as he said in a broken voice: "The last time when I asked you for money I promised you I would not play any more. I did not have the strength. I began again. I lost again. I did not dare to come to you the second time. I kept losing all the time—lost everything. Then some one proposed that I should assume the father's name to play together. We lost again—always. This person advised me. I was weak. A madness, father; a madness! Pardon me, he had hit me and extended his arms to his father."

"Go on," said Roumezas, erect before him with folded arms. "Last night they suspected—and we were arrested—excepting me. I have not been taken yet. They don't know about me. You understand? And if Baptist does not tell—"

"Baptist—a servant! Great God! But you have four and six! You told you. They don't know anything yet, I told you. Many gamblers of the party are suspected with me. Baptist is the only one arrested, if he only keeps still!"

"And you will let them suspect innocent men? To preserve the little honor that remains in yours, you will brand the honor of others?"

There was a sound of steps along the silent street. They stopped at the door of the house. Antoine sprang up and listened breathlessly. The bell rang. The young man rushed to the window.

"Baptist has told!" he said, faintly, turning frightfully pale. M. Roumezas looked out. The police were at the door. He took the curtain fall, walked the length of the long room, took a revolver from the wall, assured himself that it was loaded, and held it out to his son, who watched him as if stupefied.

"Come," said he. Antoine did not take the pistol. He fixed upon his father wide open eyes with no comprehension in them. Below the street door had been opened. The servants and the police were talking. The door of the room was closed.

"You have lost your honor, at least save ours!" said M. Roumezas. "Come to the street!" He quickly turned the pistol aimed at his son, fired. Antoine fell across the bed. There was a knocking at the door. M. Roumezas, recovering himself, picked up the pistol in his right hand, opened the door and, pointing to the bleeding corpse, said: "Too late, gentlemen! He has taken the law into his own hands."

HUMOR NOT DEAD IN FRISCO

PLENTY OF FUN IN THE REFUGEE CAMPS—WITTY SIGNS AND PLACARDS DEMONSTRATE THE REGENERATIVE SPIRIT OF THE BURNED CITY

Special to The Telegram. SAN FRANCISCO, June 1.—Did you ever notice that after a fellow has had a tooth pulled or been through some other dreadful trial, he becomes good spirited to the verge of witiness? Well it's just so with these San Franciscans who have been through the horrors of earthquake and fire and are even now living in the street, half fed and shivering. You can't cook much on a stove made of loose bricks and shutters of twisted sheet iron, half burned boards, old window blinds and such don't protect against cold winds, rain and dust, but the proprietors of these street kitchens go right on happily boiling their eggs and passing their jokes down the line of shanties hidden by the cloud of smoke from improvised stove pipes. Sometimes the cook is a fine looking woman in a blue and white sweater borrowed from her baseball son. A male cook working at a four by six kitchen of corrugated iron on Pine street this morning was attired in the upper part of a Princess gown, Tuxedo pants, one patent leather slipper and one ladies' tan shoe. He looked at the job and threw slacks as high in the air as the best female cook in the gutter.

On a 4x4 wooden kitchen in a Fillmore street gutter is this: Dugan's Inn. But Dugan's made of all wood and with a stove pipe, in a clear street, bears this: "Palace Hotel."

Guests are requested to report to the management any inactivity on the part of employees.

Another shack in Fillmore street, bears this: "The Rusticanna."

Run by the Rustic Annie. Another tells this story just above the hole through which it is endeavored to coax the smoke.

"Went down in the quake And when up in the fire. We have never had a wooden roof But our beds might be drier."

Remember, these people have been practically living in the street for a month. All cooking is done in these gutter kitchens and every day since the big shock there have been one or two little shocks which caused the ladies to dash into the streets with their crocheting, where they usually found their men folks had already arrived. In addition to their ordinary troubles, the people have no light save candle light—Standard Oil Company paraffin candles, 3 for 10 cents. It is foot for foot to have a complete rotary circular movement, keeping the knees straight. This you may at first find most difficult to do without losing your balance, but perseverance wins.

Skating is a most health giving exercise, as it brings into play nearly if not all the muscles, giving a suppleness and grace of carriage. It is especially good for the unused muscles of the legs and arms, and on the toilet, bath and nursery, and is a harmless disinfectant. All dealers.

It is Not—That the woman growing old must not wear black. It is that she must not wear all black. There are no powders or cosmetics that have the power to help the skin like a contrast. This is one word that the woman who begins to fade wants to have written at the top of her dress calendar.

Washing Venomous Bites and stings of insects with strong solution of salt and water, in bad cases inserting the salt itself into the wound, is highly recommended as a sovereign remedy. It is well to resort to it in the absence of anything more reliable, as salt is an article generally at hand.

BIG CANVASS DURING JUNE

Y. M. C. A. Preparing for One Thousand Members

Plans are rapidly maturing for the "Thousand in a Day" canvass to be made by the membership committees of the Y. M. C. A. during June. Neat booklets, with original illustrations have just been prepared and are now being distributed, the introduction saying: "We ask you to be one of one thousand who make application for membership in the Fort Worth Young Men's Christian Association during a one-day canvass. Pending this canvass now being undertaken no members have been received."

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

sharply at 9 o'clock in the morning and will close just as promptly at 10 o'clock that night. There seems little doubt that this canvass will be as successful as that recently made for funds for the completion of the new Y. M. C. A. building, the walls of which have now been completed. In that canvass, started to raise $1,000 a day for twelve successive days, the mark was overshot and the indications are that as more than the $12,000 was raised at that time, more than the thousand members will be secured in the coming canvass. The number to be admitted, however, is limited. Explaining this, Secretary Jones says: "We believe it is not right for us to take more members than the building can accommodate. We have established a limit on each class, and when this is reached will open a waiting list. Should experience show that we can handle more, we will increase the number, but we do not think this likely; 1,250 regular members, 250 juniors and 100 in the business men's club is the limit. "You must not be surprised if we reach some of these limits during this canvass. If you do not get in do not say that we did not invite you."

Plan of Canvass

The directors of the association and other business men will make the canvass, assisted by a special committee of 100 young men. The securing of 250 junior members will be taken up by a committee of fifty ladies. The headquarters of the canvass will be at the Board of Trade, and a big clock will be placed near, which will show the results. The whistles will blow for every 100 members secured. The booklet contains a good description of the new building at Texas and Monroe streets, directly opposite the Federal building, and gives full information as to membership fees and advantages.

CLUB HOLDS MEETING

Third Ward Democrats Plan Entertainment in New Hall

At the meeting of the Third Ward Democratic Club held Thursday night a full report was given by the building committee in regard to the buying of the new club hall. The club has secured the Jewish synagogue in Taylor street, which will be replaced by a new building. The building is complete and in every way comfortable and airy and the club will have the building moved to the corner of Sixteenth and Elm streets, Monday, June 4. At the next meeting the club will consider giving an entertainment with music and speaking in the new hall. Date will be decided and program arranged. The next meeting will be held Thursday, June 7, at J. Jacob's, Eighteenth and Terry streets. "Doesn't the speaker recognize you?" "The minute I get on my feet," answered the new congressman, "he recognizes me as one of the people he doesn't want to hear from."—Washington Star.

FRANCHISE FOR LINE IS ASKED

Official Application for South Side Rights

Twenty-five years is the term of the franchise asked by W. O. Allen, through Flournoy & Smith, attorneys, in a petition filed in the city secretary's office late Thursday afternoon, asking that an ordinance attached be submitted to the voters of Fort Worth for its passage, providing for a street railway and having the signatures attached to the petition by more than 100 voters. The route of the proposed line is as follows: Beginning in Texas street at the corner of Burnett street, at the junction of the Arlington Heights Traction Company, south on Burnett to North street, west to Huffman, south to Jarvis, east to Wheeler, south to Pennsylvania avenue, west to College avenue, south to Laurel, east to St. Louis, north to Tucker, west to Jennings avenue, north to Peter Smith and west to Wheeler and to the junction of the line proposed as mentioned. According to the terms of the ordinance desired, the petitioner, who it is understood, is acting for the Arlington Heights Street Railway Company, agrees to pave the inside of the tracks and for eight inches on either side of the tracks with the same materials as that used in the outside of the street. The petitioner asks for six months in which to complete the work and have the line in operation. The petition will be presented to the next session of the Fort Worth city council, which will be next Monday night.

GLENWOOD

Mrs. S. A. Hightower of Denison is visiting her son, W. F. Hightower of Cromwell street. Colonel M. A. Clay and John Williams of Princeton, Ala., are visiting friends in Glenwood. HAYS FOR CAMPBELL

Gubernatorial Race Becomes Interesting in San Marcos Special to The Telegram. SAN MARCOS, Texas, June 1.—The race for governor in Hays county is getting quite interesting. Campbell is perhaps the strongest man with Brooks second. Friends of Mr. Campbell have been circulating lists for names to compose a Campbell Club though no organization has been formed. Judge Bell and Colquhoun have some strong friends here. Colonel Garrison will doubtless lead in the county for state treasurer, while John J. Terrell for land commissioner will get a big majority in the county. Judge Storey for railroad commissioner will get practically all the votes in the county, where he is so well known. The death of Captain Ferg Kyle left G. G. Johnson without opposition for the legislature from the district composed of Hays and Comal counties, until Judge Storey for railroad commissioner, which was made that William Gelsen Sr. of this city would be a candidate for the place. The announcement complicates the situation somewhat at present.

CONTAGIOUS BLOOD POISON THE WORST DISEASE IN THE WORLD

Contagious Blood Poison is the worst disease in the world; not only those who contract it suffer, but the awful taint is often transmitted to innocent offspring whose lives are blighted and bodies diseased because the virus of Contagious Blood Poison has been allowed to remain in the family blood. The first sign of this disease is usually a little pimple or blister, then a red rash breaks out, the mouth and throat ulcerate, the hair comes out, copper colored spots appear on the limbs, back and breast; and as the disease more thoroughly pollutes the blood, sores and ulcers form and if the trouble is not checked the finger nails drop off, and the soft bones of the nose and head are destroyed. S. S. S. goes down into the blood and forces out every particle of the poison and makes a complete and lasting cure. As soon as the system gets under the influence of the remedy the symptoms begin to pass away, and when the cure is complete the patient is left in perfect health. S. S. S. thoroughly cleans the system of the virus that no signs of the disease are ever seen in after years, and posterity is born with a rich, pure blood supply. CITY CONTRACT INEQUITABLE

Charged That Sprinkling Ligation Is All One-sided

Complaint that the sprinkling contracts being circulated by the city signatures of citizens are not equitable is being made. The contracts, it is reported, provide that the citizen shall pay a certain amount for the sprinkling for a certain month for the sprinkling by him, no promise nor stipulation, however being made as to the manner, amount or the number of times the water shall be sprinkled. It is urged that to make a reasonable contract the city should bind itself to some specific performance as well as bind the citizen to the payment of a fixed sum for the sprinkling. An explanation for the continued astuteness of the business men, though the sprinkling wagons, it is asserted, are being operated at full capacity, has been offered by a reader of The Telegram. The theory is that the amount of sprinkling being done is residence portions of the city, in the dust from them being blown away carried into the business sections, accordingly suffers with the percentage of the city not receiving regular sprinkling. The matter is still causing much comment throughout the city. Judge Pluvius played sprinkler all over town Thursday night, leaving the streets in good condition Friday. He refused to sign contracts for regular visits, however.

THRILLING DEEDS OF THE CHEROKEES

The dip of Cherokee tribal tradition reaches far back in the history of our country. Through the maze of war and want, they have come to their present quiet industrial life. The scattered remnants of a once powerful confederacy now live on their reservation in the Indian Territory. Their land occupies 8,500 square miles on the northern boundary and 4,960 square miles in the northeastern section. Years ago they held large tracts now lying in the states of Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, Tennessee and western Florida.

At that time the great Cherokee confederacy was in two divisions. The Ottawa Cherokees inhabited the wild, mountainous districts; the Alaire Cherokees dwelt in the lowlands. In the colonial controversies they aligned themselves with the king and as early as 1730 ceded territory out of their own domain for English forts. In the days of the revolutionary war these Indians were royalists. In the civil war all of them at first stood with the south. Later, however, a large body

TERRIBLE ECZEMA ON LITTLE BOY

Mouth and Eyes Covered With Crusts—Face Itched Most Fearfully—Hands Pinned Down to Prevent Scratching

MIRACULOUS CURE BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"When my little boy was six months old, he had eczema. The sores extended so quickly over the whole body that we at once called in the doctor. We then went to another doctor. But his arms, chest, and hip, and in our despair we went to a third one. Matters became so bad that he had regular holes in his cheeks, large enough to put a finger into. The food had to be given with a spoon, for his mouth was covered with crusts as thick as a finger, and whenever he opened the mouth they began to bleed and suppurate, as did also his eyes. His hands, arms, chest, and back, in short the whole body, was covered over and over. We had no rest by day or night. Whenever he was laid in his bed, we had to pin his hands down; otherwise he would scratch his face, and make an open sore. I think his face must have itched most fearfully. We finally thought nothing could help, and I had made up my mind to send my wife with the child to Europe, hoping that the sea air might cure him, covers he was to be under good medical care there. But, Lord be blessed, matters came differently, and we soon saw a miracle. A friend of ours spoke about Cuticura. We made a trial with Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Resolvent, and within ten days or two weeks we noticed a decided improvement. Just as quickly as it had appeared it also began to disappear. In a few weeks the child was absolutely well, and his skin was smooth and white as never before." F. Hohrath, President of the C. L. Hohrath Company, Manufacturer of Cuticura, 4 to 30 Bink Alley, June 5, 1906. South Bethlehem, Pa.

Warrior Breaks From Captors
A council was held in the enemy's camp, and it was decided that "The Owl" should be burned at the stake. The wood was gathered and everything made ready, but as they were about to tie him he claimed the warrior's privilege to sing his last song and to strike the post as he recited his warlike deeds. The request pleased his enemies, who put a tomahawk into his hands and told him to begin. He told his first exploits in the north, then in the west, giving times and places and the number of scalps taken, until his enemies were so much pleased and interested that they forgot the prisoner in the warrior. It was a long story, but at the last he came to the battle in which he was taken. He told them how many relatives he had killed of the very men around him, and then striking the post with his tomahawk, said:

"So many of your people have I killed, and so many will I yet kill." And with that he struck down two men, sprang through the circle of warriors, and was away. It was all so sudden that it was some moments before his enemies could recover from their surprise. Then they seized their weapons and were after him through the woods, but he had had a good start and was running for his life, so that he outran them, and finally reached the Cherokee camp in safety and rejoined his seven companions.

The eastern tribes were chivalrous people after the Indian fashion. They always gave their captives to a condemned criminal who asked to sing his death song and recite his warlike deeds before he went to torture. They allowed him the widest latitude. He could even do it at the expense of his captors. The death song was a weird chant. It belonged either to the warrior himself or to the war society to which he belonged. The burden of it was a farewell to life and a defiance of death.

The great event of the summer of 1871 was the arrest of the chief of Big Tree. The Kiowa record gives it that notwithstanding the promises of good conduct which had induced General Sherman to release Lone Wolf and Set-tah-tah, they had been broken. He was brought to the reservation in December, 1868. The Kiowas had never ceased their raids into Texas, and had constantly surprised the agent in an insolent manner toward the agent and military commander on the reservation.

Killing of Famous Chief
On May 17, 1871, a party of about one hundred warriors, led by Set-tah-tah and Set-angya, attacked a wagon train in Texas, captured seven men and captured forty-one mules. Shortly afterward Set-tah-tah had the boldness to avow the deed to the agent, Lawrie Tatum, who at once called upon the commander at Fort Sill to arrest Set-tah-tah and several other chiefs, who had accompanied him, viz., Set-angya, Big Tree, Big Bow, Eagle Heart and Eagle Horn. They were promptly responded and arrested the first three; Eagle Heart escaped and the other two were absent at the time. On May 20, the three prisoners were sent under military guard to Fort Richardson (Jackboro), Texas, to be tried for their crimes, when Set-angya attacked the guard and was killed in the wagon.

According to the Kiowa account, the prisoners having been disarmed, Set-angya was placed in a wagon, accompanied by a single soldier, and Set-tah-tah and Big Tree were put into another wagon with other guards, and an escort of cavalry and Tonkawa scouts rode on either side. Leaving Fort Sill, they started at noon for the south on the road to Texas, where Set-angya began a herankue to the two prisoners in the other wagon, telling them he was a chief and a warrior, too old to be treated like a little child. Then pointing to a tree where the road descended to cross a stream about a mile south of the post, he said: "I shall never go beyond that tree." As he spoke in the Kiowa language none but the prisoners knew what he was saying. Then raising his voice he sang his death song, the song of the Katsenke, of whom he was chief.

O sun, you remain forever, but we O earth, you remain forever, but we Katsenke must die.
The song ended, he suddenly sprang upon the guard with a knife which he had managed to conceal behind his person, and had cut him seriously when he fell dead in the wagon. He was buried in the military cemetery at Fort Sill, but there is nothing to distinguish his grave.

ATTACKED THE HEART

NEURALGIA IN THIS FORM IS OFTEN FATAL

A Complicated Case Cured to Stay—Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

Neuralgia in any form is painful but when it attacks the heart it is frequently fatal. Complicated with indigestion of a form that affected the vital organ it threatened serious consequences in an instance just reported. The case is that of Mr. F. L. Graves, of Pleasant Hill, La., who tells of his trouble and cure as follows:

"I traveled considerably, was exposed to all kinds of weather and was irregular in my sleeping and eating. I suppose this was the cause of my sickness, at any rate, in May, 1905, I had got so bad that I was compelled to quit work and take to my bed. I had a good doctor and took his medicine faithfully but grew worse. I gave up hope of getting better and my neighbors thought I was surely going to die.

"I had smothering spells that it is awful to recall. My heart fluttered and then seemed to cease beating. I could not lie on my left side at all. My hands and feet swelled and so did my face. After reading about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in a newspaper I decided to try them and they suited my case exactly. Before long I could see an improvement and after taking a few boxes I was entirely cured. I am glad to make this statement and wish it could cause every sufferer to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do not simply deaden pain; they cure the trouble which causes the pain. They are guaranteed to contain no narcotics, stimulants or opiates. They who take them run no danger of forming any drug habit. The pills are a blood and nerve tonic and they cured Mr. Graves because they fed the nerves through the blood. They act directly on the blood and it is through the blood that any medicine can reach the nerves. In this way they have cured the most severe nervous disorders such as partial paralysis, locomotor ataxia, St. Vitus' dance and all sorts of nervous weakness. They are useful in a special way to women and growing girls. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

ROOSEVELT, THE TRUST BUSTER

In spite of his glaring inconsistencies, Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States, is one of the most interesting characters that this great country of ours affords. It may be true that he subscribes to the theory that consistency is the virtue of fools, and is ready to take a half loaf when the whole article is not obtainable, but at the same time, there can be no questioning the fact that the President intends to do what is right and is desirous of going down into history as a great reformer.

It is this trait in the President that keeps the members of his own party continually guessing. When he first came into the limelight of political prominence his party leaders pined at the idea of his being a politician, but the President has shown wonderful growth and development along political lines until today it is doubtful if there is a shrewder or more versatile politician in the entire country than this same Theodore Roosevelt. Elected to office through the combined efforts of the big corporate influences of the country, and a member of the party that is the mother of every trust in the country, Theodore Roosevelt talks more and more to visitors about the men who run the combines and the need of curbing them, and about the law defying officers of great corporations and the need of punishing them.

He said a few days ago to a Republican United States senator, who is himself a man of great wealth and a director in many large corporations: "President Jackson fought the money power. He was wrong, but he became famous. I am right, and—" The President did not finish his sentence, but he sent a cold chill down the spinal column of the plutocratic senator with whom he was conversing.

To another visitor a few days ago the President spoke of the relations of graft and favoritism in the management of even the greatest railroads, as disclosed in the Pennsylvania railroad scandal, and he said that the managers had got to realize that the railroads were indeed common carriers, nothing more, nothing less. They must treat all customers alike, great and small. The monopolist, the lawbreaker, the corporation, the bribe-taker, the drone, the plutocrat and the parasite must be driven out. Then the President uttered this epigram: "This is the day for the man with a patch on his breeches to come forward, and for the man of the dollar to go to the rear."

And the man with a patch on his breeches is coming forward. He is now standing in the very front of the line demanding that the evils which so sorely afflict him shall be remedied and no more patches fastened on his raiment by the elements now so completely in control of the destinies of this nation. He is demanding that these big trusts and combinations of corporate greed be compelled to bow in deference to the majesty of the law and conduct their affairs along proper and legitimate lines. He is demanding that this government be restored to the people who created it and no longer be the harbinger of those who steadily prey upon the masses. He is demanding that these creatures be no longer permitted to lord it over their creators, and Theodore Roosevelt has heard and hardened unto these demands.

But Theodore Roosevelt, while greater than his party in many respects, is not able to so completely revolutionize that party. He can and does show his sympathy for the man with a patch on his breeches, but he can go no further. The remedy lies with the party now in power, which has no sympathy with thatched gables, and Theodore Roosevelt, the eminent trust buster of the nation, cannot step beyond prescribed bounds. His hands are tied as completely as those of the masses.

It is the great Democratic party the man with the patch on his breeches must look for relief from the ills that encompass him. The party of Jefferson, of Jackson, of Bryan and the common people. When this government has been turned over completely to those who are best qualified to administer it and there is a return to Jeffersonian simplicity and honesty, then the trusts and combinations will be effectually routed and the will of the people will be supreme. It all depends on complete Democratic success. The man with the patch on his breeches has a sacred duty to perform.

THOSE EASTERN BONDHOLDERS

It is a cold day when the eastern railroad bondholders are not to the front with some scheme whereby their will and not that of the people as expressed by legislative action shall prevail. It will be remembered that at various times when the Texas legislature has been in session and some railway measure was pending great threats have been made as to the legal action contemplated by the eastern railway bondholders. And these gentlemen seem to be active all over the country in the suppression of undesirable legislation. The Hepburn bill, according to New York advices, is new the object of their supreme displeasure. The New York Press says:

On the advice of the leading corporation lawyers of the United States the holders of railroad bonds secured by all the property of the issuing roads, including coal mines owned and controlled by them, are preparing to contest the constitutionality of the railroad rate bill, which, if it finally becomes a law in its amended form, will prohibit railroads from being interested in subsidiary companies shipping coal and other commodities, on the ground that their property rights will be assailed.

It is pointed out that the bondholders will suffer greatly in the event of the passage of the Hepburn bill in its amended form, for the reason that their bonds are partly secured by the coal mine holdings of the railroads. Should the roads be forced to divest themselves of these holdings, the securities upon which the bonds rest, would be greatly impaired.

In the opinion of several heavy bondholders the rumored billion dollar holding company, said to be the course of organization by J. P. Morgan and H. C. Frick, is not feasible. This holding company, according to report, was to take over the coal mine holdings of the railroad companies in such a way that the latter would reap the benefits as heretofore, and at the same time be enabled to evade the provisions of the Hepburn bill should it become a law.

According to the theory of some of the heaviest bondholders in New York city, the only way in which the provisions of the Hepburn bill can be met without loss to the bondholders of the coal roads is the purchase by the railroads outright of all the outstanding stock of the coal mines in which they are interested, and the incorporation by the companies of separate corporations, the stock of which to be distributed pro rata among the stockholders of the companies which have issued bonds secured partly by the coal mine holdings. This theory is supported by the advice of leading attorneys in the practice of corporation law.

One of the surprising features of the situation is that these eastern bondholders never proceed to get busy until there is some action contemplated calculated to make the railroad interests of the country track the law of the land. There has not been one word of condemnation from these gentlemen over the practice of giving rebates so prevalent all over the country and which has created such a great national scandal. They did not hold a meeting and consult the leading corporation lawyers of the United States as to the best method of compelling the railroads to conform to the law and save the money honestly earned to be applied as interest on their stocks and bonds.

WE DO NOT KNOW MUCH

The corn field scientist will be glad to learn on the authority of Prof. Angelo Hellprin that the man of science is hardly in a position to be more authoritative regarding the San Francisco earthquake than is the layman.—New York Sun.

We do not know very much. We can name a lot of things but we really know but very little about them.

Science has barely scratched the surface of the earth. It knows very little about the inside of this ball on which we live—one of the little balls of the countless that fly in infinite space.

The greatest scientist of today knows scarcely anything about his real self. The mystery of life is still a mystery. The abject of all scholars knows only that fingers invisible play upon the harp of his life and keep it for awhile in tune. And that some day the strings will break.

What does science know of the mysteries of life and growth in nature? A sheep, a cow and a hog feed upon the same grass in a pasture. How does that grass become on the sheep wool, on the cow hair, on the hog bristles? Your most pretentious master of art and science cannot even explain how his finger nail grows.

Knowledge goes just so far in a given direction and there finds barriers it cannot cross. The mind goes up against a stone wall. Who goes beyond the limits set for him goes only in fancy.

We have read only the alphabet in nature's story book. We shall know more, but how much more? Will the limits widen? Or is man made so that he can know so much and no more? Was human ken made purposely narrow?

That thin veneering of whitewash put on the big packers by the Garfield report was not sufficient to destroy the aroma of some of the meat they are said to be selling to the consumers of the country. The big packers seem to be up against another very difficult proposition and one that promises to bring some very sensational matters to light.

The people of Mineral Wells are hopeful of the next democratic state convention, and believe they are amply able to provide all suitable accommodations for the big gathering. But the convention is coming to Fort Worth this year, and our Mineral Wells friends should content themselves by going after the convention of their congressional district.

The Panhandle country is short on harvest hands at this time, and a great cry is going forth for more laborers. And here is opportunity for the army of candidates who will soon find themselves out of employment.

The season for the withdrawal of candidates is now opening and the east Texas candidate for lieutenant governor, Dr. E. B. Blalock, is the first in the ring. There are several men in the field for governor who would do well to emulate his example.

The Telegram will be pleased if the state Democratic convention is held in Fort Worth, that city of candidates, trusts and trust "busters"—Austin Tribune.

Fort Worth is the convention city of the Southwest, and The Telegram is here to always stand up for its home city. The state Democratic convention should come to this city for the reason that justice to the Democratic party as a whole demands it.

The building of a few large cotton mills at Fort Worth as is announced as a strong possibility will give our neighbor city a boost as a manufacturing and industrial center which will be hard to overcome.—Denton News.

There is nothing that could be added to Fort Worth at this time that would confer a greater benefit than the proposed big cotton mills. It is to be hoped there will be no great delay in the pending negotiations.

Planting cotton on Sunday is very much out of the ordinary in this community. Sunday was cotton planting day for a number of farmers on Lipan Flat. It was a case of taking the ox out of the ditch on the Lord's day rather than let it wait until the morrow. In one field seven cotton planters were clicking up and down the rows planting seed as fast as horses urged by anxious drivers could travel.—San Angelo Standard.

Texas farmers are not given to the practice of tilling the fields on the Sabbath, and such occurrences are quite rare. In the case referred to such procedure was thought to be necessary on account of the destruction of the crop already planted a few days before.

All over Texas the cry is going up for more men for the cotton fields. Big wages are being paid for cotton choppers. This will increase the demand for labor, and should put more money in circulation, and bring an era of better times to many sections complaining of hard times.—Sherman Register.

There is no excuse for any able bodied man in Texas being out of employment at this time. From every section of the state there comes a great demand for labor, but the great trouble is so many men are constitutionally opposed to the idea.

J. K. Lamberton, like most Hardeman wheat raisers, is looking very happy these days. He has cause for feeling good though: 240 acres in wheat that will average thirty-five bushels per acre, is enough to put sunshine into any man's soul.—Quannah Tribune-Chief.

A yield of thirty-five bushels of wheat per acre is enough to flood a man's soul with sunshine, and the Quannah man is entirely excusable. The Panhandle country is strictly in the swim this year.

There is one thing which the papers of the state should keep constantly before their readers and that is that the very best men available are needed in the next legislature. Too little attention has been paid in the past to men who have been sent to Austin to make laws, and the state has paid dearly for it.—Denison Herald.

The papers of the state can do their constituency no greater service than to keep up the fight for better legislative material. No mistake should be made in selecting men for this very important position.

A man near Gainesville made $221.50 worth of strawberries from one acre this season. Such farming will certainly keep the wolf of want from that man's door.—Gainesville Messenger.

Texas has received a great deal of money this year for her strawberry crop, and it is money that was easily made. Texas farmers are learning a whole lot of new things.

Find a town that has all of the sidewalks that it ought to have and you have a town that is right up to the notch in other respects every time. On the other hand, see a town that is almost sidewalkless, and you will see a town that is behind in many other respects. It's true every time.—Terrell Transcript.

Fort Worth has more sidewalks and better sidewalks than any other Texas city—and Fort Worth is continually building new sidewalks. This city is always up to the notch.

Judge Bell is the only candidate for governor who has failed to speak out against nepotism and official favoritism in office.—Dallas Times-Herald.

Judge Bell is a bachelor with no family to provide for at the public trough. Assurances from him in that respect would be superfluous.

THE TELEGRAM AND THE TEXAS PRESS

Colonel Wynne is for Judge Bell for the reason that he knows him to be a genuine reformer. A man who does things without making a grand stand play of his intentions. Judge Bell measures nearer up to the Wynne ideal than any other candidate before the people.—Fort Worth Telegram.

Admitting for the sake of argument that Judge Bell is a genuine reformer, could he as "her presumptive" of the present administration be expected to take a very wide departure from the methods that have governed its course? If not, we do not see how, in view of the red-hot article on political conditions in Texas and avowed desire for a radical administration, previously alluded to, Colonel Wynne can consistently champion the cause of so pronounced a conservative as Judge Bell. If Judge Bell is really and truly Colonel Wynne's ideal in politics, then, indeed, his past utterances but furnish another illustration of the truth of the saying that language was given for the purpose of concealing thought.—Houston Post.

Bryan will be the next democratic nominee for the Presidency, and stands a flattering show to be elected. There is going to be a great uprising of the people politically, and democracy is the only hope of the nation.—Fort Worth Telegram.

There is no denying the fact that Bryan is stronger with the American people than he ever was before, and it is not at all improbable that The Telegram's prediction will prove true.—McKinney Gazette.

WHERE TO FIND SYMPATHY

The dry dock Dewey is now reported to be delayed by wind. A message of sympathy from the senator in charge of the rate bill would no doubt be greatly appreciated.—Washington Post.

A CASE IN POINT

A Chicago physician says that, for sanitary reasons, women should be forced to wear short skirts, and in support of this contention it is recalled that ballet girls as a rule are of a ripe old age.—New York Herald.

GOOD PRACTICE

With the practice gained on the rate bill, perhaps congress will be able to frame a satisfactory law to control second-class mail matter.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

THAT REMINDS ME

THIS BULLDOG DIDN'T BITE

From the office of a metropolitan newspaper which publishes an early Sunday edition, known in newspaper parlance as "the bulldog," a new reporter was sent to interview the wife of a prominent manufacturer who had died. As the young man was going out of the room the city editor shouted: "This is Saturday; don't forget the bulldog."

"No, sir," replied the new reporter.

He saw the bereaved wife and after obtaining all the information sought he remembered the words of the city editor and, with emotion in his voice, remarked:

"What about the bulldog? Didn't a bulldog bite him?"

Brushing away the tears the woman became indignant.

"Didn't a bulldog bite him?" insisted the other. "My city editor told me to ask about the bulldog."

The new reporter was invited to depart expeditiously and a complaint reached the office before he returned. Then the trouble was explained.

THE APPRECIATIVE HUSBAND

"I declare," complained Mrs. Duzzit, "I certainly shall have to punish the children."

"What have they been up to now?" asked Mr. Duzzit.

"They have simply upset my sewing room. Nothing is where it should be. Needles, spools of thread, scissors, darning balls and everything have been poked away into the most unexpected corners. I had to search all afternoon to find a card of buttons. It is perfectly exasperating!"

"My dear, the children didn't do that," explained the husband; "I did it."

"You? What possessed you?"

"I thought I was doing you a kindness. After you straightened up the papers and books in my desk so beautifully, I thought it was no more than right that I should return the compliment by putting your sewing room in similar shape."

HE BOUGHT THE CAR

A rich senator thought about buying an automobile, and after many days of prayerful consideration, he decided on a make that cost $4,000. He spent a week dickering with the agent about extra width tires and betterments, and all that, and then demanded all sorts of implements. He went out several days in the car trying it on hills and in sand and in every conceivable way. Finally he sent for his son, who lived in another state, to come and have a look. The son arrived and put in another week trying the car. The father had not given a decided answer to the agent. When they got to the station the agent said: "Goodbye, senator, I think I'll be leaving now."

"Where are you going?" asked the senator.

"Why," replied the agent, "I am going to take this car up to the store and teach it to read and write. You have demanded everything else of it."

WHY NOT BAILEY?

Zachary Taylor was elected to the Presidency in 1848 in spite of the Massachusetts objections to him as a Louisiana slave holder. In the fifty-eight years since then no southern man living in a southern state has been chosen to that office. Abraham Lincoln was born in Kentucky, but grew up in Illinois; it was an assassination, not an election, that put Andrew Johnson (North Carolinian by birth, Tennesseean by domicile) in the White House. Would it be in any way bad politics for the democratic party to take its candidate in 1908 from the region to which it looks for the bulk of its vote? It's one of the Washington Post's beliefs that Texas has in Joseph W. Bailey and Charles A. Culberson two men of Presidential size, either of whom would command the support of every northern democrat.—Hartford Courant.

JAY GOULD

The showing made by Jay Gould, 17-year-old son of George J. Young Gould recently won the American championship and made a gallant fight in the advises against hugging the base too closely. He says to center ball players, he told how he plays the base. The second baseman, he says, is a sort of right field shortstop as well as baseman. If the player hugs the base too closely many balls will get through his field which another man might have stopped. Mr. Gilbert advises the baseman to play well back of the base line to take care of hard hit balls. He says a baseman should have the play so thoroughly ingrained in his mind that he will almost mechanically run to cover first when the first baseman goes after a batted ball. "No man can hope to be a success on second who does not study to be speedy on double plays," says Mr. Gilbert. "A fast second baseman will relay the ball for a double play and give life to a team that otherwise might go stale through the lousy playing of the man in the keystone position."

GILBERT'S POINTERS ON PLAYING SECOND BASE

William O. Gilbert, second baseman of the New York Giants, in discussing how to play the keystone sack position.

And Joe said no more during the game.

Hurst tells this story on himself: "I was umpiring a game in Boston when an involved and difficult play came up. It took me several seconds to straighten out the tangles. While I was thus engaged I saw Tebeau running toward me. "Go back! Go back!" I yelled at him. "Leave me alone now. I want to think." "Listen, Mr. Hurst," he said. "Think of that from Pat. Mr. Hurst! Then, facing me around so that all cultured people in Boston's grand stand could hear him, Patsy said: "Be careful, now, Mr. Hurst. Your future depends on this decision. If you cannot illuminate your work, please don't obfuscate!" "Obfuscate" won the point with me. I didn't have the least idea what the word meant, but I gave the decision in Patsy's favor. But where do you suppose Tebeau ever heard "obfuscate"?"

Panthers Lose Two in Succession Away from Home

Special to The Telegram. GREENVILLE, Texas, June 1.—Second revenge by Greenville on the baseball team of the Panther City occurred here yesterday afternoon, when, by a score of 4 to 1, the Fort Worth team suffered defeat at the hands of the Panthers. Berry worked behind the bat for the Panthers, beginning in the sixth inning. The hits were: Fort Worth 8, Greenville 5. Walsh pitched a fine game for the visiting team and his support put up an errorless game. The score:

BROOKS LOSES IN ELLIS COUNTY

Campbell and Bell Gain Lead Over Competitors

Special to The Telegram. WAXAHACHIE, Texas, June 1.—The announcement has been made that Hon. T. M. Campbell, candidate for governor, will speak at Waxahachie June 7 and at Ennis June 8. Judge Brooks comes a few days later, June 11 being the date announced for his visit to Waxahachie.

A wonderful change has been taking place in political situation in Ellis county during the last few weeks. At the beginning of the campaign it seemed to be generally conceded that Judge Brooks would receive the greatest vote in Ellis county. But such is not the case now, if one is to judge from expressions heard on the street corners, in business establishments and other places. Brooks is losing ground every day in Ellis county, while Campbell and Bell sympathizers are on the increase. A surmising up of the situation as it exists today strongly indicates that Brooks will not be in the lead when the returns are all in. The two leading contestants in the county now are Campbell and Bell, with the chances decidedly in favor of Campbell being first in the list. In this event Bell will be second, Brooks third and Colquitt fourth. If Monte Moore remains in the race, his vote in the county will be scattering. Should Bell come out in the lead Campbell will be second and the others in the order as already given. Unless a great change takes place between now and the date of holding the primary election Colquitt has no possible chance to carry the county. His vote in the county is already given. Unless a great change seems to be the general sentiment of the voters in this county, especially among those who have always taken an active part in politics, the correspondent has recently talked with voters who had not made up their mind as to who they would vote for, but that they were positive in their assertions that they would vote against Colquitt.

COTTON HANDS NEEDED

Negroes Offered High Wages and Supply Inadequate

Special to The Telegram. WAXAHACHIE, Texas, June 1.—Two dollars a day and board was the inducement offered by farmers on the streets of Waxahachie yesterday to secure negroes to work in their cotton fields. More than fifty wagons were in the city at one time yesterday after hours, and the man who offered the most secured the help. The price paid ranged from $1.25 to $1 per day with board. This liberal offer on the part of the farmers almost depopulated the city of negroes. This seems an extortionate price to pay for cotton picking, but considering the great need of work in the fields just at this time the amount is no doubt reasonable enough. Farmers are behind with their work and unless their cotton fields receive good cultivation this week their loss will be heavy. The last two or three rains have caused weeds and grass to grow rapidly, but with a few days of dry weather these will soon be eliminated. The cotton plant is in excellent condition and is growing nicely. Wheat and corn are doing well and harvesters are being hired in a few days. The grain crop this year is much better than it has been for a number of years, although the acreage is small.

CONDUCTOR ATTACKED

Texas and Pacific Trainman Has Narrow Escape

Passenger Conductor Isaac Cole of the Texas and Pacific, running between Fort Worth and El Paso, had an exciting experience on his east bound trip Thursday, and is now thankful that he is alive.

At Cisco a passenger between whom and Cole there had been a previous misunderstanding, got aboard the train. When Cole in his round for fares reached the man, the trouble commenced. The man paid his fare, but in doing so gave Cole to understand that he did not like him, and that it wouldn't take much to make him give Cole what Paddy gave the drum. Cole retorted with spirit and the man, it is alleged, drew a knife and made a savage lunge with it. Cole side stepped and the knife whistled through the air, but the passenger followed up his attack, lunging savagely and fast, but failed to inflict a wound. The passenger seemed to be bent on blood, and kept up his onslaught as long as the conductor was in the car, causing almost a panic among the passengers.

When the train reached Strawn an officer who was at the depot was informed of the attack on the conductor and arrested the passenger and took him from the train. Cole says he has been in many tight places, but that this one was about as warm a proposition as he ever went up against.

A Public Duty and Its Performance

If you personally owned the entire equipment and personally controlled the entire organization of the American Cigar Co.—

And if you used this equipment and knowledge to produce cigars exclusively for your own smoking—

You could make no better cigars nor make them more carefully than we are now making them for you.

We believe that the possession of the largest equipment, organization, resources and business ever known in the cigar industry, binds us to a public duty to give the public the best cigar possible to make. Furthermore,

It is Good Business Policy

We are good enough judges of human nature to appreciate the fact that meritorious service is the best and most permanent foundation for commercial success.

If we give better cigars at lower cost than can be given by any other manufacturer, we shall secure, by perfectly logical and common-sense methods, what is virtually a franchise from the public to supply it with its cigars.

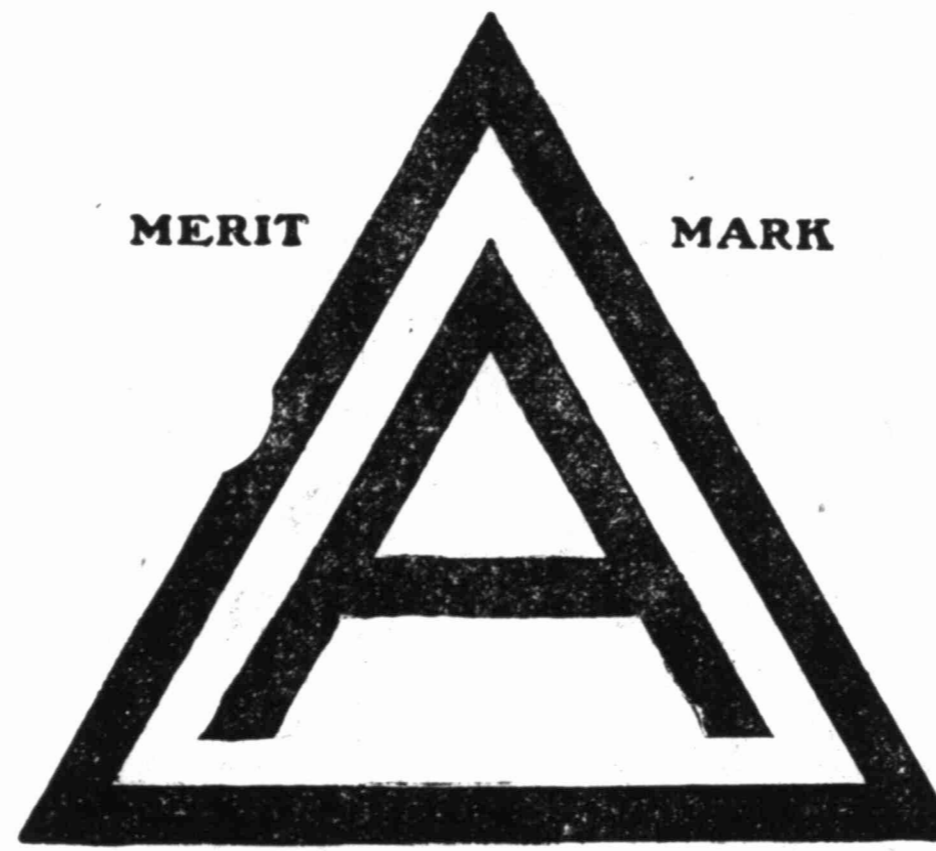

A franchise based upon public preference is stronger and more enduring than any that can be secured by legislative enactment, and it is this sort of franchise, obtained in this way, that we are after.

Gaining Success by Deserving It

Cigar smokers know what they want. Taste is constantly improving, demanding better goods all the time. There is no way of forcing people to purchase any brand of cigar which does not appeal to them on its own merits.

From the beginning, we have devoted the entire force of this organization and equipment to the problem of improving cigar quality and lowering cigar cost.

THE "TRIANGLE A"

Stands for Honest Cigar Values

An "All-Around" Production

The products of our various factories include every variety of cigars—from the little cigar such as the "Royal Bengals" to the highest type of "Seed and Havana."

An important advantage in this comprehensiveness of output lies in the power it gives us to grade our tobacco very accurately. This assures unvarying uniformity—a feature much appreciated by the discriminating smoker.

The tremendous improvement in quality, due to our new and exclusive processes of curing, blending and ripening American grown leaf, extends through our entire line.

These processes are performed in our own gigantic "stemmeries." They have superseded the old, crude haphazard methods which have been followed with blind devotion since the days of Sir Walter Raleigh.

These scientific processes have improved the domestic cigar at least 100 per cent., giving a "mellowness," mildness, freedom from bitterness and a developed fragrance to our 5c. cigars, for example, which were by no means common even in the 10c. cigar a few years ago.

An Unbroken Line of Successes

This improvement has been demonstrated to the smoking public with ever-increasing emphasis by the appearance of brand after brand of cigars selling at 5c. possessing a superiority which has made them instantly popular and permanently successful. These are of different brand-names and different characteristics, but are all marked with our "A" (Triangle A) merit-mark and possess the fundamental qualities of fragrance and "ripeness" for which the "A" (Triangle A) stands unerringly.

This "A" merit-mark appears on the front of every box containing such cigars, and may be accepted implicitly as a guarantee of mellowness, "smoothness," quality, fragrance and uniformity of character.

The latest "A" (Triangle A) production is "The New Cremo" in Victoria size at 5c. which, perhaps better than all that have preceded it, exemplifies the immense improvement that has been effected by our experiments and equipment.

Our purpose is that our organization and resources shall always be used to the increasing betterment of cigar quality and to the lowering of cigar cost.

MISSION OF THE HEREFORD BREED. Many people misunderstand the object of improved breeds of live stock, and in attempting to breed them, totally ignore the methods by which they were formed and the causes that made them necessary, but the hard times that cattlemen have been enduring has taught them, by an object lesson, that "fewer and better cattle" is the only policy that can be followed at a profit. When hard times laid prostrate and prostration fastened the dollars and cents (actually earned by economical production of prime beef) became the sole criterion, the Herefords proved the money-makers in this country, just as for a century they have proved rent-payers of the tenant farmers in England. The time has passed when loose methods, half feed and no care engendered a supposed merit in beef breeds. The falsely so-called "hardness" of starved animals that "run out all winter" has ceased to be considered a valuable quality. In the endurance of hardship, no beef animal can surpass the Hereford, but it has ceased to be a question of "endurance" and become a question of profit. Experience proved the fallacy of ill-considered theories, and practical stockmen now place a premium on well bred, well-fed, well cared-for stock, on which improved breeds were reared; bred up and encouraged by favorable conditions, they prove their value under similar conditions of intelligent management and deterioration toward the scrub under scrub conditions. It is equally obvious to every experienced feeder that there is absolutely no profit in feeding inferior, ill-bred cattle, for no matter how much care, attention and feed is bestowed upon them, they will feed at a loss that has got to be made up by the hogs that follow them. Neither is indiscriminate feeding profitable; there is always too narrow a margin between the right sort of feeders and fat cattle, and it is well known that breeders who raise calves certain to feed at a profit, usually want to feed them themselves. Intelligent stockmen whose experience qualifies them to speak, demand a breed that will profitably convert grass and grain into the highest quality of prime beef under sensible, every-day, practical conditions, and to fill this demand in the greatest degree of perfection is pre-eminently the mission of the Hereford. Having decided to make "good times" in the cattle business, so far as he is individually concerned, the first step the practical stockman takes is to buy some Herefords (a pure-bred bull, at least), and to give them the best care. "This best is not a bit too good." Well bred, thrifty-developed bulls prove the best sires, get more and stronger calves and stamp their progeny with more profit-yielding character, and are therefore worth much more money than those bred and reared at haphazard. The pedigree also varies the value of the animal. It pays to get started right, pay a little more and get good animals from ancestors known to be good; get animals that have been well fed and thrifty raised, so as to fully develop the inherent virtues. Intelligent cattlemen appreciate and pay for these conditions; others should keep out of the business. There are vastly too many "scrub" cattlemen in the innumerable army of "scrub" producers, and the market reports are assuasive with such "chestnuts" as "No King's New Discovery for Consumption, which kept me in perfect health. And now, in New Hampshire, we find it the best medicine in the world for coughs, colds, bronchial troubles and all lung diseases. Guaranteed at Walkup & Fleider, Holland's Red Cross Pharmacy and Renfro Drug Company. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

OLD GUARD TELLS OF EARLY DAYS

Banquet Given in Honor of Past Successes

OTHER CONQUESTS SEEN

New Guard Joins With Early Builders of City to Plan Continued Growth and Commercial Importance

At an elaborate banquet in the Worth Hotel Thursday night, given in honor of the Old Guard of forty years back by the new guard of today were brought up reminiscences of the early history of Fort Worth, her position among important cities of today and her possibilities for the future. Many speeches were made by men who had taken an active part in the foundation building of the city and by the younger business men of the present day, who have inherited the enthusiasm of the Old Guard in making of Fort Worth not only the greatest city of the state, but of the southwest. The patrons of the occasion were: Captains B. B. Paddock, M. B. Loyd, W. T. Maddox, Major K. M. Van Zandt, Zane-Cetti, Major J. J. Jarvis, J. Y. Hogsett, A. J. Row and S. B. Burnham.

About seventy-five guests were in attendance when Toastmaster Paul Waples arose and read the following telegram from Nat M. Wassler of San Antonio:

"By right of charter membership and by courtesy of invitation, I am with the Old Guard in spirit tonight, proudly yet tenderly retrospecting the past achievements while valiantly forecasting the glorious future which lies safely and surely before us. Panther City and to which latter consummation I pledge my earnest support."

Major J. J. Jarvis, as first introduced by the toastmaster, Major J. was reviewed the difficulties which confronted the early citizens of Fort Worth when the first settlement was made in a hamlet of 25 earnest people, working in unison for the one goal, making of Fort Worth a great city, which it was known could be made in a few years after railroads had been secured. He pointed to the stock yards and the packing industries as being of the greatest value in the upbuilding of this city.

Major Jarvis predicted for Fort Worth third place among the great cities with reference to the cattle industries. He said that the advancement made by Fort Worth within the last forty years was very gratifying to him, who had seen the town when the south limit was second street.

Growth of Thirty Years
Zane-Cetti spoke on the building of Fort Worth within the last thirty years. He compared the city of today with the town of thirty years ago, when it was bounded on the south by Second street and the court house and overlaid stage stands were located just north of the present court house location. In concluding his remarks he said: "The growth of Fort Worth began when the citizens met in a meeting in the year of 1875 and the example set then holds good today that nothing is unattainable for Fort Worth if we will only work in unison and in harmony."

Railroad Advantages
F. M. Rogers of the Medlin Milling Company spoke on the building interests of the city with reference to the future. In part he said: "Fort Worth is in the center of the grain territory of Texas. Our railroads have put us in line of northern crops and have opened up the ports. We have a few of the best milling concerns in the territory here in Fort Worth, but I wish we had a dozen more, which we had when we were first here. I believe that you can handle your competitor to a better advantage if he is next door to you, than if he were in another city."

Distributing Point
Dr. J. L. Cooper responded to the subject, "Fort Worth As a Distributing Point of Drugs." In his remarks he indicated a great future for the man who invests his money in this line in Fort Worth.

A. P. Foute of Waples-Platter Company pointed to the advantages as a distributing point for groceries. Mr. Foute stated that the volume of business done annually by Fort Worth grocery jobbers is from $5,000,000 to $8,000,000.

Mr. Foute said: "We have a territory of 600 miles long and 200 miles wide and I think we should expand our jobbing lines and have everybody talk of our facilities in order that we may hold this rich territory exclusively."

John Burnside, on the subject of hardware jobbing, reported that the hardware business is in a flourishing condition and expressed his desire for more houses to locate in Fort Worth, after which he expressed his ever ready willingness to help along progressive enterprise.

Cattle Interests
Marion Sanson, on the cattle interests, attributed to the cattle industry of Fort Worth the greatest credit for the wonderful growth of the city in recent years, expressing himself as being confident that no other one industry could have made her the city she is today. Mr. Sanson urged that the Fat Stock Show be made a permanent organization, declaring in this action he sees a greater future for Fort Worth as a cattle market.

Louis J. Wortham spoke briefly on the progress of this city and reiterated earlier remarks regarding the exclusive occupancy of the rightful business territory.

Connecting Link
Oscar Willis responded speaking of the connecting link. The linking together of the enthusiasm of the young men to that of the Old Guard, and working in unison for the one great achievement—to make of Fort Worth the leading city.

Mr. Willis, representing the new guard, acknowledged their debt of gratitude and stated that he sees a greater future in the building up of the outer sections of the city.

Captain B. B. Paddock then joined the threads of thought expressed before him to show how Fort Worth could be the best port of the state. He found great inspiration in the remarks just made and was sure that the same enterprising spirit of thirty years ago exists today in New York and New England just as soon as the Isthmian canal is completed, which is the matter of but a few years. growth ceases, death ensues; when death comes, decay commences. I am sure that we have a being in the Old Guard still and I think we should effect a permanent organization behind which will be the nervous energy and the propelling force of the new young guard."

Captain Paddock assured them of his willingness to help at all times with his good good. He closed the evening's program with a few brief remarks. He stated that he desired to enumerate the points where his Fort Worth's chief strength. They are as follows: Fort Worth is the largest distributing point for groceries in the southwest, more groceries being shipped out of this city than out of St. Louis. The city is the largest receiving and distributing center for grain. It is the largest distributing point for milling products. It is the largest railroad center in Texas. It is the greatest live stock center south of Kansas City. It has three wholesale grocery houses, which ship more groceries than any three houses in St. Louis.

The house in which the assembly adjourned, but each felt a new enthusiasm gained from the evening's program, brighter hopes for the future and a determined resolve to work along the lines suggested by the Old Guard.

Additional Amusements
The pleasure seeker of Fort Worth is looking for a day's outing should not forget to include in his next day's trip to Lake Erie, Handley. The grounds were never in better shape nor more beautiful than at present, while the many attractions in this year by the management add greatly to the pleasure of the visitor.

The lake is always cool and breezy, and good boats can be hired at reasonable rates by those who enjoy a row. At the Palace skating rink the roller skater will find a floor which is under low barometer domination, with the added advantage of a cool breeze blowing through the building. Many persons go out in the afternoon and enjoy a very pleasant moment at the cafe on the veranda, and spend the evening in the rink or on the water.

There is always something doing at Lake Erie and new attractions are offered every week by the management.

MAINE MAN TELLS OF PANTHER CITY

A striking example of the awakening of the people of the older states to the many opportunities for investment in Texas is the enthusiastic depiction of L. W. Millett of Portland, Maine, about forty miles from Portland.

Mr. Millett, who is now 59 years of age, looks a typical college lad when he talks enthusiastically of Texas, where he has lived for about a year. He has engaged in a multiplicity of business pursuits and has seen a good deal of life in Canada and throughout the United States. The manner in which he portrays the many advantages offered in Texas is certainly sufficient to awaken the young man in the older states.

To a Telegram reporter Mr. Millett said this morning:

"I came to St. Louis from Maine last year to visit the St. Louis Exposition and later a few relatives in Texas. At once I was struck with the land of opportunity and the fact that the country concluded to come back to Texas and invest in real estate here."

"The particular fact to emphasize," continued Mr. Millett, "is that land values in Maine and many of the eastern and northeastern states have already reached a level higher than the present value of land in many other parts of this country reach the same level. For instance, when I was a boy my father bought a farm for $2,200 and two years ago a same farm was sold for the same price, showing that the opportunity for investment in 'rich' land, which the Texas lands are rapidly enhancing, thus affording the young man with a capital, say of $500, a splendid chance to not only earn a big income of interest on the investment, but also to reap a handsome return within a year, or two, or three years in the actual enhancement of the value of the land itself."

"I only wish the young man of my native state could be awakened to the agricultural possibilities of the south-west and particularly this part of Texas, and best of all, Fort Worth. I don't say it egotistically, but I do believe after having been through the school of experience, I have a right to be so enthusiastic about the opportunities there that await the young man in Maine, who will come south to invest with the same amount of labor and determination and capital, he can reap an income several fold greater than is possible in his native state at the globe."

"I have traveled a great deal and have yet to find a more picturesque or beautiful country than the good old state of Texas, and in many ways it is dearer to my heart than any other land, but in the wide-awake world of today a young man must needs turn his attention to that place where he can achieve the most with his capital of dollars and cents and sense. Really, any investment in Fort Worth will pay at the least 10 per cent."

"Indeed, I grow more surprised each day at the wonderful opportunities afforded in Fort Worth for making large sums of money with only small investments. This, however, is, after you come to think about it, quite natural. Fort Worth is the geographical center of all of this part of Texas. No wonder, then, that it has become the live stock center, manufacturing center and market general of so great a territory, all rich in its natural resources."

"Well, then," queried the reporter, point blank, "why don't you invest a few yourself; that's the best manner of proving your confidence in the future?"

"I have," said Mr. Millett. "I have recently purchased thirty acres between Polytechnic College and the Main-Houston highway, which is as beautiful a spot as there is anywhere. Since I bought this tract the county has graded a street entirely across my land and though I am holding the lots at only $100 to $125, I firmly believe that the intrinsic value will double within six months."

Mr. Millett is quite a picturesque character and was at one time a newspaper man, at which stage of life, perhaps, he became imbued with the determination to see the country. Although he has passed his 59th year, he speaks with the enthusiasm of a boy of 16 years.

HIGH WINDS SWEEP CITY

Velocity of 48 Miles an Hour Attained Here

The highest wind known here this year occurred Thursday night between 11 and 12 o'clock, the last hour of the month of May, the velocity at that time being reported by the official weather observer at 48 miles an hour. Rainfall was 4 inches. Temperature for the day ranged from 64 to 91 degrees, and the wind subsided to 6 miles an hour Friday morning.

The Ross-Heyer music store in Houston street had a window broken during Thursday night, it being supposed that the high wind is responsible for the damage.

W. G. Turner, A. E. Went and a number of Fort Worth and Dallas friends encountered the full strength of the wind and electrical storm Thursday night. The party had been to Callaway lake and returned by way of Arlington in order that the Dallas people might take the car there.

The trip home faced the wind and refuge was finally taken in a barn until the storm ceased. The trip to safety at home was completed at 2 o'clock Friday morning.

Along the lines of the Denver Road Friday morning at 7 o'clock, the following temperatures were reported: Texline, 60; Amarillo, 66; Childress, 58; Wichita Falls, 64. A hard rain was reported as falling Thursday night from Memphis, Texas, and from Bowie to Iowa Park. The weather was partly cloudy Friday morning. Cloudy weather was reported along other lines Friday morning with no storms.

Official statement follows: "The northeast quarter of the country is under low barometer domination, its influence extending over the valleys of the Mississippi and the Ohio, resulting in rain this morning in Kansas and Tennessee. During the past 24 hours rain and thunderstorms occurred in Texas, Oklahoma, Missouri, Iowa, Illinois and Pennsylvania. Gale winds were recorded at Fort Worth and Fort Smith, 48 miles being the wind record at Fort Worth."

The northwest and the Rocky Mountain states have high barometer, resulting in fair cool weather, frost occurring in western Montana.

"The cotton belt is cloudy, except in the southeast quarter. Temperatures are about normal in all sections, except a little cooler in the west half."

RECRUITING IS SLOW

But Six Men Added to Army Rolls During May

Recruiting in Fort Worth for the United States army during the month of May was duller than for any other month for a year. Only six recruits were accepted by Sergeant Riley in charge of this station. Twenty-two applicants for enlistment were reported as not coming up to the physical standard.

Of those enlisted three were native Texans, one a native of New York, one of Tennessee and one of Arizona. Five of the men enlisted for the coast artillery service and one for the infantry and all of them with four recruits secured during April were sent to Fort Sam Houston at San Antonio.

WOUNDED BOY LIVING

Ernest Glenk, Accidentally Shot, Still in Serious Condition

Ernest Glenk is not dead and has a possible chance for ultimate recovery, although the surgeons who have the case in charge and who have put forth every effort possible for his saving of the boy's life say that his chances are small. The boy was accidentally shot Wednesday while standing near a shooting gallery at Handley.

An operation was performed Thursday afternoon, a portion of the skull being removed. The bullet, however, was not located.
