

SENATOR GORMAN DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Maryland Statesman's End Comes Unexpectedly LEADER OF PARTY Ability Through Long Term of Service in Upper House Long Recognized

WASHINGTON, June 4.—Senator Arthur P. Gorman of Maryland died at 8:55 o'clock this morning. The end came suddenly, as the senator had been improving lately.

Heart trouble was the cause. Senator Gorman had long been a notable figure in the national congress. He first took his seat in 1881 and served continuously for eighteen years and nearly all that time he was the leader of his party in the senate, winning early a reputation for sagacity and the keenest judgment in congressional affairs.

Managed Cleveland Campaign He was chairman of the executive committee and managed the campaign that resulted in the election of Cleveland in 1896.

Fought Treaty of Paris Senator Gorman was vigorously opposed to the acquisition of the Philippines and fought the ratification of the Paris treaty with all the force he possessed.

Up to the time of his death Senator Gorman was conscious. His condition during the past week has improved so much yesterday that the family hoped shortly to take him to the country.

Million Carries Nations Needed He Declares Evangelist in Chicago Saloon Crusade

CHICAGO, June 4.—"We're in for a fight. We're going to make the Chicago saloon keeping aldermen so ashamed of themselves and their business that they won't dare show their noses in the streets, and we're going to arouse such a white hot hatred against the liquor traffic in the Christian church that it will sweep every saloon out of this city."

A 200-POUND BABY
Young Hippopotamus Takes Daily Five Gallons of Milk
Cincy, the baby hippopotamus, one of the latest attractions at the Cincinnati Zoo, is taking kindly to his new home, and promises to thrive and wax big and strong under the care of those to whom he has been entrusted. Though only three months old, this interesting infant, which is youngest of its species ever seen in America, weighs a little over 200 pounds, and is growing rapidly.

The fact that it requires five gallons of milk daily to satisfy his ravenous appetite, the nourishment being taken from a mammoth nursing bottle, capable of holding eight gallons.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Woman's Shakespeare Club
The Woman's Shakespeare Club held their open meeting Saturday evening at the residence of Mrs. Williams Matthews. The president, Mrs. Kelso, gave an address in the "Study of Shakespeare" and Mrs. A. B. Moore one on "Shakespeare's Heroines."
Mrs. Kelso was then presented with a testimonial of the esteem of the club, three volumes of "Shakespeareana." Green and white, the club colors, prevailed in the decorations and the tea.
Mrs. Matthews had prepared rebuses on six familiar quotations from Shakespeare and these were hung upon the walls. The guest writing them out correctly was Charles Faddock, and he was given a silver bookmarker. Mrs. Warren of the club members received for her list a dolly of Arabian point.
This was the last meeting of the club until next September, when the study of "King John" and English history will be taken up.

NEILL REPORT IS SUBMITTED

President Says Government Is Powerless to Act

NEW LAW URGED

Conditions of Stock Yards, According to Investigation, Are Unhealthy and Revolting

Special to The Telegram.
WASHINGTON, June 4.—The revelation made in the special report of the conditions in Chicago packing houses reported by Commissioner of Labor Neill and James Reynolds, because the President with a message in which Roosevelt describes the state of affairs as revolting, and calling for immediate drastic legislation along the lines of the Beveridge bill. Statements in the report generally are sickening, some unfit for publication.
The investigators spent only two weeks investigating, but found enough to corroborate charges by the independent investigation. The report affects all the Chicago packing houses.
The message of the President and the report follows:
To the Senate and House of Representatives:
I transmit herewith the report of James B. Reynolds and Commissioner Charles P. Neill, the special commission whom I appointed to investigate into the conditions of the stock yards of Chicago and report thereon to me.
This report is of a preliminary nature, and it is urged that it should show the urgent need of immediate action by the congress in the direction of providing a drastic and thorough inspection system by the federal government of all stock yards and packing houses and of their products so far as the latter enter into interstate or foreign commerce. The conditions shown by even this short inspection to exist in the Chicago stock yards are revolting. It is imperatively necessary that the interests of the public should be radically changed. Under the existing law, it is wholly impossible to secure satisfactory results. It is imperative that when my attention was first directed to this matter an investigation was made under the bureau of animal industry of the department of agriculture.
When the preliminary results of this investigation were brought to my attention, they surprised me. In the law and such wholly unexpected developments that I deemed it best to have a further immediate investigation by men not connected with the bureau, and accordingly, appointed Messrs. Reynolds and Neill. It was impossible under the existing law that satisfactory work should be done by the bureau of animal industry. I am now, however, examining the way in which the work actually was done.
Ordered Labels
Before I had received the report of Messrs. Reynolds and Neill, I had directed that labels placed upon any packages of meat food products should state only that the carcass of the animal from which the meat was taken had been inspected at the time of slaughter, and that the meat food products at all stages of preparation is not secured by the passage of legislation recommended. I shall feel compelled to order the inspection of labels and certificates on canned products shall not be used hereafter.
The report shows that the stock yards, meat food products are not kept even reasonably clean, and that the method of handling and preparing food products is unclean and injurious to health. Under existing law, the national government has no power to enforce inspection of the many forms of meat food products that are daily going from the packing houses into interstate commerce. On account of inadequate appropriations, the department has no inspectors to even place inspectors in all establishments desiring them. The present public interest in the subject of meat food products is not foreign countries, but there is no provision forbidding the shipment of uninspected meats in interstate commerce. The present advance of interstate commerce are left open to traffic in diseased or spoiled meats. If, as has been alleged, on seemingly good authority, further laws exist, such as the improper use of chemicals, the government lacks power to remedy the situation. It is necessary that the government should be enabled to inspect and supervise from the hoof to the can the preparation of the meat food products. The evil seems to be much less in the sale of dressed carcasses than in the cured and other prepared products.
In my judgment, the expense of the inspection should be paid by a fee levied on each animal slaughtered. If this is not done, the sole purpose of the law, and at any time, be defeated through an insufficient appropriation; and whenever there was no particular public interest in the subject, it would not only be easy, but natural, to make the appropriation insufficient. If it were not for this consideration, I should favor the government paying for it.
The alarm expressed in certain quarters concerning this feature should be allayed by a realization of the fact that in no case will a law, will the cost of inspection exceed 8 cents per head.
Report Preliminary
I call special attention to the fact that this report is preliminary and that this investigation is still unfinished. It is not yet possible to report upon the alleged abuses by the use of chemical preservatives in connection with the meat food products; nor on the alleged doctoring in this fashion of tainted and diseased products returned to the packers as having grown unusable from a germ or other reasons. Grave allegations are made in reference to the nature of the inspection.
Let me repeat that under the present law there practically is no method of stopping these abuses if they should be allowed to exist. Legislation is needed in order to prevent the possibility of all abuses in the future. If no legislation is passed, then the excellent results accomplished by the work of this special commission will endure only so long as the memory of the commission's work is fresh and recollection of the abuses is absolutely certain. I urge the immediate enactment into law of provisions which will enable the department of agriculture to prescribe the sanitary conditions under which the work shall be performed.

I therefore commend to your favorable consideration and urge the enactment of substantially the provisions known as senate amendment No. 29 to the act making appropriations for the department of agriculture for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1907, as passed by the senate, this amendment being commonly known as the Beveridge amendment. THEODORE ROOSEVELT.
The White House, June 4, 1906.
The Report
The report says that two and a half weeks were spent in the investigation in Chicago, during which "we went through the principal packing houses in the stock yards district, together with a few of the smaller ones. A day was spent by Mr. Reynolds in New York city in the investigation of its leading slaughterhouses."
The report says that in many of the rooms where water is used freely the floors are soaked and slimy and the dark and dingy rooms are naturally not kept suitably clean. An absence of cleanliness was found everywhere in the handling of meat being prepared for the various meat food products. The parts that are sent from the cooling room to these departments, where various forms of meat products are prepared, are handled with no regard whatever for cleanliness. The workers climb over heaps of meat, select the pieces they wish and frequently throw them down upon the dirty floor beside their benches.
"In a word," the report adds, "we saw meat piled from filthy wooden floors, shoveled on tables, rapidly washed, pushed from room to room, to rotten box carts in all of which processes it was in the way of gathering dirt, splinters and floor filth. It was always the reply that this meat would afterwards be cooked and that this sterilization would prevent any danger from its use. A very considerable portion of the meat so handled is sent out as smoked products and in the form of sausages, which are prepared to be eaten without being cooked."
"A particularly glaring instance of uncleanliness was found in a room where the best grade of sausage was being prepared for export."
The report says that the radical defect in the inspection system is that it is confined at present by law to passing on the healthfulness of the animals at the time of killing, but that the meat that is used in sausage and the various forms of canned products and other prepared meat foods go through many processes, in all of which there is possibility of contamination through unsanitary handling and further danger through the use of chemicals. During all these processes there is no government inspection, although those products when sent out bear a label stating they have been passed upon by government inspectors. The report arraigns the sanitary provisions in the buildings as abominable. The men and women work with unwashed hands in meat to be converted into food products.
Government Must Act
The report says the burden of protecting the cleanliness and wholesomeness of the products and the health of the workers and improving the conditions must fall upon the national government.
Department superintendents "seem to ignore all the conditions except the account book," and proper care of the products and of health and comfort of the employees is impossible and the consumer frequently suffers. Tuberculosis victims expectorate on the spongy wooden floors of the dark work rooms, from which falling scraps of meat and later shoveled up to be later converted into food products.
"Even the ordinary decencies of life are completely ignored," says the report in discussing the arrangement for men and women employees.
The report says:
"The whole situation as we saw it in these huge establishments tends surely and inevitably to the moral degradation of thousands of workers, who are forced to spend their working hours under conditions that are entirely unnecessary and unpardonable, and which are a constant menace, not only to their own health, but to the health of those who use the food products prepared by them."
The report urges compulsory examination after slaughter; inspection of meats for foreign or interstate commerce; increase of inspectors for night inspection and special work; legislation prohibiting declarations of government inspection on food products unless subject to government inspection of every stage of preparation; prohibiting interstate transportation of any meat or meat food products not inspected and labeled; urges consideration of the question of special labeling of all carcasses sold and fresh meat which, upon examination after slaughtering, shows signs of disease, but are still deemed suitable for food; and recommending study of inspection standards of other countries.

FIRST OBSERVATION OF NEW HOLIDAY
Official Recognition of Jefferson Davis' Birthday
Citizens of Texas are today officially observing for the first time in history the birthday of Jefferson Davis as a legal holiday. A bill passed by the last session of the state legislature created the holiday and this marks the first observance of the birthday of the great confederate leader since the passage of the bill.
Several other southern states have observed the day as a legal holiday for some years.
In Fort Worth the banks have been closed for the day and the postoffice and other federal offices closed at noon. Mail carriers made one delivery in the district section of the city and two deliveries in the business section.
Retail stores have remained open for business during the entire day.
