TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 9.-Governor Hoch, in his message to the legislature urged the enactment of a new primary law and the passage of a law giving equal suffrage to all. He appealed for the continuance of the prohibition fight. He asked for a state hospital for inebriates, for banking insurance, for traveling libraries and art galleries, and also asked that school lands be withdrawn from the market or the price increased. He favored a protective tariff in favor of the beet sugar industry, a state bureau of information and separate schools for the solution of the school race problem. He declared the state binding twine plant could be made to pay the penitentiary expenses if the farmers would buy prison-made twine. He urged

Take shortening for instan e. The oldtime way was to purchase bulk ! ard, in a barrel or tub, which the grocer uncovered as soon as received, leaving it open to dirt, dust and flies, exposing it in some cases to the sun with the possibility of its becoming rancid, and permitting it to be placed where it would be likely to absorb the odor of cod-fish, soap or kerosene oil. This is an old-fashioned, out-of-date method of buying shortening, but many people still continue it. We wonder why? Probably, just a matter of habit.

There is a better way. Cottolene is not only superior to lard as a shortening, from the fact that it is a vegetable, and cleanly product, while lard is made from greasy, indigestible hog-fat, but Cottolene reaches the consumer in the same condition it was on the day we manufactured it.

If cleanliness, healthfulness, economy and superiority count for anything there is no excuse for any housewife in the land using other than Cottolene for shortening and frying. You owe it to yourself and family, as a careful housewife, to give Cottolene a test, and verify the claims we make for it.

Any one who expects to live his allotted three score years and ten cannot afford to experiment with lard cooked food. It is a foe to good digestion and a healthful condition of the stomach-Cottolene is the only satisfactory and perfect shortening.

COTTOLENE was granted a GRAND PRIZE (highest possible award) over all other cooking fats at the recent Louisiana Purchase Exposition, and food cooked with COTTOLENE another GRAND PRIZE.

There are some evidences of a recurrent outbreak of the old feeling against the state and federal quarantine line in some counties bordering on the line, together with the revival of the old cry that the line was established in restriction of immigration, but it is not believed that there will be much real trouble over this feature of the situation. Experiments by disinterested agencies have too clearly established the tick theory at this time for successful contravention, and it is believed the legislature now in session will proceed to act in conformity with the plans of the federal authorities and co-operate with the work now in progress, and at the same time strengthen the live stock santtary laws in all places where they are now weak and defective. A vigorous effort will at least be made in this direction by leading cattlemen of the state.

TROUBLE FOR THE LEGISLATURE

The legislature of the state of Texas now in session has a grave duty to perform, and the performance of which is going to bring an angry protest no matter as to just how it is performed. That duty lies in the choice of a successor to Senator Joseph Weldon Bailey as United States senator. It makes no difference that the Bailey matter has been completely threshed over from one end of Texas to the other and the people have heard charges reiterated and explanations offered that do not explain. There is going to be a prolonged and painful howl go up from all parts of the state when a successor to Bailey is chosen, no matter who is honored with the election. It does not require a prophetic vision to decipher that fact. It is written in characters so eligible that all can read.

If Ealley is re-elected it is going to call for a storm of angry protests-a howl to the effect that the legislature has sold out and delivered the people of this state over bodily to the trusts and corporations. That Texas has fallen upon grievous ways and sinful days when the self-confessed legal representative of a branch of the leading trust of the country is sent back to the United States senate. There has been a wonderful revulsion in public sentiment in Texas since the July primaries were held. The vote taken in the second primary in Austin a few days ago indicates that fact beyond the shadow of a doubt.

But in every county in Texas there is a strong Bailey following. In nearly every county in the state this Bailey following is made up of men who are blind worshippers at the shrine of genius, and who believe that Bailey could do no wrong. The acts complained of in the case of Senator Bailey are right perforce they were performed by Senator Bailey. And hundreds of good men and true in the state of Texas honestly believe that Bailey has done no wrong, but that he is the victim of scheming politicians who desire to accomplish his defeat for personal ends. Right here in Fort Worth there are as good men as can be found in the state of Texas who can see nothing in the Balley matter

PLAN EXTENSION

OF CITY LIMITS

THE FORT WORTH TELEGRAM

Directors of Board of Trade Met Tuesday

At the meeting of the directors of the Board of Trade Tuesday afternoon a committee of fifty was authorized to agitate the matter of the extension of the corporate limits of the city of Fort Worth and another committee was authorized to begin work for the entertainment of the cattlemen when here in March, and a third committee was appointed to secure rates from the railroads.

The matter of extension of the corporate limits of the city was brought up by F. W. Axtell and was fully discussed by the members of the board present. Upon motion of G. C. Mountcastle the president was authorized to appoint a committee of fifty to push the matter.

A committee of fifteen was authorized for the purpose of preparing for the entertainment of the Cattle Raisers' Association at its annual meeting here and a committee of three for the procuring of rates from the railroads for the convention.

The matter of a city directory was taken up and resolutions were adopted commending the issue of a directory by a local company. A petition was also authorized to the governor of the state asking that the secretary of the Board of Trade be appointed census commissioner to supervise that part of the directory.

He shrugged his shoulders, which might mean anything, and confined his reply to a repetition of my own words. "Mrs. Fairbrother murdered!" he exclaimed, but in a suppressed voice, to which point was given by the cautious look he cast behind him at the tent which had drawn my attention. "He must not know it, man. I could not answer for his life if he received the least shock in his present critical condition, Murdered? When?"

"Ten days ago, at a ball in New York. It was after Mr. Fairbrother left the city. He was expected to return. after hearing the news, but he seems to have kept straight on to his destination. He was not very fond of his wife-that is, they have not been living together for the last year. But he could not help feeling the shock of her death which he must have heard of somewhere along the route." "He has said nothing in his delirium to show that he knew it. It is possible, just possible, that he didn't read the papers. He could not have been well for days before he reached Santa Fe." "When were you called in to attend him?"

"The very night after he reached this place. It was thought he wouldn't live to reach the camp. But he is a man of great pluck. He held up till his foot touched this platform. Then he succumbed.'

"If he were as sick as that," I muttered, "why did he leave Santa Fe? He must have known what it would mean to be sick here?

"I don't think he did. This is his first visit to the mine. He evidently knew nothing of the difficulties of the road. But he would not stop. He was determined to reach the camp even after he had been given a sight of it from the opposite mountain. He told them that he had once crossed the Sierras in midwinter, But he wasn't a sick man then."

"Doctor, they don't know who killed his wife." "He didn't."

"I know, but under such circumstances every fact bearing on the event is of immense importance. There is one which Mr. Fairbrother only can make clear. It can be said in a word-" The grim doctor's eye flashed angrily and I stopped. "Were you a detective from the district attorney's office in New York, sent on with special powers to examine him, I should still say what I am going to say now. While Mr. Fairbrother's temperature and pulse remain where they now are, no one shall see him and no one shall talk to him save myself and his nurse.' I turned with a sick look of disappointment toward the road up which I had so lately come.

"I won't allow it and I am master here, so far as my patient is concerned. You couldn't stay here without talking. and talking makes excitement, and excitement is just what he cannot stand. A week from now I will see about itthat is, if my patient continues to improve. I am not sure that he will."

"Let me spend that week here. I'll not talk any more than the dead. Maybe the manager will let me carry sacks.

"Look here," said the doctor, edging me farther and farther away from the tent, he hardly let out of his sight for a moment. "You're a canny lad, and shall have your bite and something to drink before you take your way back. But back you go before sunset and with this message: No man from any paper north or south will be received here until I hang out a blue flag. I say blue, for that is the color of my bandana. When my patient is in a condition to discuss murder I'll hoist it from his tent-top. It can be seen from the divide, and if you want to camp there on the lookout, well and good. As for the police, that's another matter. I will see them if they come, but they need not expect to talk to my patient. You may say so down there. It will save scrambling up this trail to no purpose." "You may count on me." said I: "trust a New York correspondent to do the right thing at the right time to head off the boys. But I doubt if they will believe me."

"In that case I shall have a barricade thrown up fifty feet down the mountain side," said he. "But the mail and your supplies?" "Oh, the burros can make their way up. We shan't suffer."

"You are certainly master," I remarked.

All this time I had been using my eyes. There was not much to see, but what there was was romantically interesting. Aside from the furnace and what was going on there, there was little else but a sleeping tent, a cooking tent, and the small one I had come on first, which, without the least doubt, contained the sick man. This last tent was of a peculiar construction and showed the primitive nature of everything at this height. It consisted simply of a cloth thrown over a thing like a trapeze." This cloth did not come to the ground on either side, but stopped short a foot or so from the flat mound of adobe which serves as a base or floor for hut or tent in New Mexico. The rear of the simple tent abutted on the mountain side; the opening was toward the valley. I felt an intense desire to look into this opening -- so intense that I thought I would venture on an attempt to gratify it. Scrutinizing the resolute face of the man before me and flattering myself that I detected signs of humor underlying his professional bruskness, I asked, somewhat mournfully, if h would let me go away without so much as a glance at the man I had come so far to see. "A glimpse would satisfy me now," I assured him, as the hint of a twinkle flashed in his eye. "Surely there will be no harm in that. I'll take it instead of supper." to me. He smiled, but not encouragingly, and I was feeling very despondent, indeed, when the canvas on which our eves were fixed suddenly shook and the calm figure of a woman stepped out before us, clad in the simplest garb, but showing in every line of face and form a character of mingled kind-

Sat

Leading the way to the opening, he whispered a word to the nurse, then motioned me to look in. The sight was a simple one, but to me very impressive. The owner of palaces, a man to whom millions were as thousands to such poor devils as myself, lay on an improvised bed of evergreens, and wrapped in a horse blanket, with nothing better than another of these rolled up under his head. At his side sat his nurse on what looked like the uneven stump of a tree. Close to her hand was a tolerably flat stone, on which I saw arranged a number of bottles and such other comforts as were absolutely necessary to a proper care of the sufferer.

That was all. In these few words I have told the whole story. To be sure, this simple tent, perched seven thousand feet and more above sealevel. had one advantage which even his great house in New York could not offer. This was the outlook. Lying as he did facing the valley, he had only to open his eyes to catch a full view of the panorama of sky and mountain stretched out before him. It was glorious; whether seen at morning, noon or night, glorious. But I doubt if he would not gladly have exchanged it for a sight of his home walls. As I started to go, a stir took place in the blanket wrapped about his chin. and I caught a glimpse of the irongray head and hollow cheeks of the great financier. He was a very sick man. Even I could see that. Had obtained the permission I sought and been allowed to ask him one of the many questions burning on my tongue should have received only deliriun for reply. There was no reaching that clouded intelligence now, and I felt grateful to the doctor for convincing me of it. I told him so and thanked him quite warmly when we were well away from the tent, and his answer was most kindly, tho he made no effort to hide his impatience and anxiety to see me go. The looks he cast at the sun were significant, and having no wish to antagonize him and every wish to visit the spot again, I moved toward my horse with the intention of untying

To my surprise the doctor held me back.

"You can't go tonight," said he, "your horse has hurt himself." It was true. There was something the matter with the animal's left foreoot. As the doctor lifted it the mai ager came up. He agreed with the doctor. I could not make the descent to Santa Fe on horseback that night. Did I feel elated? Rather, I had no wish to descend. Yet I was far from foreseeing what the night was to bring-I was turned over to the manager, but not without a final injunction from the doctor. "Not a word to anyone about your errand! Not a word about the New York tragedy, as you value Mr. Fairbrother's life." "Not a word," said I. Then he left me. (To Be Continued.) ness and shrewdness. She was evi-

LIVE STOCK SANITARY MATTERS

During the year that has just passed there has been some notable progress made by the bureau of animal industry in its fight for the eradication of the fever tick, notwithstanding the fact that when the movement was first started so many people indulged in the belief that nothing tangible would come of the effort. The department has been seriously handicapped in the work it has undertaken by the lack of available state funds in much of the territory affected, but faru the co-operation of stockmen generally the experiments instituted have been prosecuted to the point where there are no longer any sneers heard at the undertaking.

The congress now in session at Washington at its former session appropriated the sum of $80,000 for experimental work in fever tick extermination, but stipulated the work should be done in co-operation with officials of the various states and territories affected. The federal government merely undertook to furnish experts to show how the work of eradicating the ticks should be done, while the state and territorial authorities were required to put the suggestions into practical working effect. The most marked results so far obtained have been in Oklahoma and Texas, where the experimental work has been under the direction of Dr. Leslie J. Allen and Dr. Joseph W. Parker. In Oklahoma the livestock sanitary board employed inspectors to assist in the cleaning up process, while In Texas the work done was the result of voluntary cooperation on the part of stockmen.

"The outlook for the eradication of the ticks is now very encouraging," says Colonel Albert Dean, of Kansas City, who maintains a general espionage over quarantine matters in the Southwest. "We find the best way to go about this work is to talk with the ranchmen and get their voluntary co-operation. Six months ago some of them would not listen to our men. Now some of the biggest ranchmen are putting in dipping vats and getting ready to clean up their pastures. One man who has large interests on both sides of the quarantine line is building twenty vats on his property. The sentiment is very generally changed from six months ago. We believe that we have demonstrated that it is possible to clean up a pasture, and the ranchmen are coming to realize that it can be done, and that it is to their benefit to do so. Reports from government men in Texas indicate that public sentiment in the state is changing on the subject. They used to think we were infringing on their rights when we talked of eradicating the ticks. I understand now that there is a good chance for an appropriation from Texas for the work, and legislation that will give local officials authority to enforce quarantine and cleaning up regulations. Another season's work is of course necessary to show whether our plans of tick eradication can be made permanently successful.

"We can report considerable improvement in the statistics as to Texas fever during the past year. To be sure. Kansas City got blamed in former years for a good deal of fever that we were not responsible for, in the outbreaks resulting from infested feed yards where stuff coming in was held. Part of the trouble in previous years was due to the 28-hour law, under which Southern cattle were unloaded for feeding at except persecution of one of the greatest men in public life today, and these men cannot be made to see the situation in any other light.

It stands to reason, then, that if the legislature should decline to re-elect Bailey there is going to be some prolonged howling heard from the Bailey ranks. The friends of Bailey-and he has some of the truest friends mortal man ever possessed-are going to make themselves heard, and they are going to be extremely resentful of the action taken. They are going to cry out that the righteousness and ability of the Democratic party has been crucified in order that other men's desire for greatness might be appeased, and there is nothing but trickery and rascality left in the Democracy of Texas. There will be weeping and wailing and gnashing of political teeth from Red river to the guif, and from the Sabine to the Rio Grande.

It is clear that the legislature is up against a hard proposition any horn of the dilemma it may choose to take, and for this reason it is confidently believed that with the lights before it, that body cannot presume to act with any degree of haste, but will go about the matter calmly and deliberately. That the legislature cannot afford to re-elect Senator Balley with these charges against him standing in their present light, is too patent to require any kind of argument, and there seems but one way out of the situation, and that is to thoroly investigate these matters and let the whole truth out. Conceding for the sake of argument, that Senator Bafley is the Democratic nominee, and it must also be conceded that no Domocratic nominee is immune to investigation when circumstances so clearly indicate necessity for such action, Investigation should be insisted upon by both sides of the controversy, and if agreement cannot come out of that investigation, let the whole question be relegated back to the people to be determined in a second state primary.

That seems to be the drift of public sentiment in Texas at this time, and if the state legislature is unwilling to take the action that should be taken in the premises, the people will quickly solve the question so there can be ao crimination and recrimination in the future. In the meantime, it is up to the legislature to decide.

PACKERS FAVOR STEPHENS BILL

The packing interests of the country are greatly pleased with the bill introduced in congress by Congressman Stephens, of Texas, for the purpose of extending the meat trade of the United States thru reciprocal commercial agreements. The bill proposes to give the President authority to reduce the tariff on foreign goods not extensively produced or manufactured in this country, provided countries so favored will admit American meats free of duty. A leading representative of the packing industry says of the Stephens bill:

"Such an arrangement would undoubtedly materially enlarge the market for American meats, and it seems to me the proper basis on which to do business. If we expect favors from a person or a nation, it is only fair that we should do favors in return, provided it does not injure us, and as I understand the main ideas of Mr. Stephens' bili, he does not purpose to bring our manufactured goods into competition with those of other countries. If other countries have goods we do not make in any considerable quantities, it strikes me it would be a good bargain to admit them under a reduced traiff if these countries will in turn admit

Success

The annual ball under the auspices of the Police Benevolent Association. given at Colonial hall Tuesday night, was the most successful affair of the kind ever given by the association. It is estimated that nearly 1,500 people attended the ball, and the occasion was one full of pleasure to all who attended.

The management was perfect and there was not a detail, no matter how small, that was not looked after by the committee in charge. The music was the best to be had and while the spacious hall was filled, there was plenty of floor space to give the dancers ample opportunity to get all the enjoyment possible out of the dance Everybody present went home well pleased with the function and the police boys are to be congratulated on

J. C. White Remained as Manager of the Sainapuchic Ranch

F. G. Oxsheer and F. G. Oxsheer Jr. returned Tuesday from a trip to Old Mexico. They were accompanied on the trip by J. C. White of Navasota, Texas, who purchased an interest in the Sainapuchic company, a land and cattle company located near Chihuahua, of which F. G. Oxsheer Sr. is president. Mr. White purchased $15,000 worth of stock in the company and remained in Mexico as the manager of the ranch. The company owns 35,000 acres of land there.

RAID ON POKER GAME

Eight Were Arrested on Charge of Gaming

County officers made a raid on a jack pot party in a room at the Taylor flats Tuesday night and captured eight parties and placed them under bond on a charge of gaming, as follows: W. F. Reeves, J. H. Wilson, M. Green, W. E. Collingsworth, Bill Jackson, Frank Correy, J. F. Young and Charles Rob-

The raiding party was composed of Deputy Sheriff C. C. Evatt, Officer Sid Waller and Assistant County Attorney W. H. Slay.
