This department has had little

Bayou Philosopher Amazed To Learn It Took National Poll To Find Out Why People Worry

Editor's note: The Bayou Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on the Bayou writes about worry this week, a subject he is no authority on.

Dear editar: Some people go to a lot of trouble to find out something nearly everybody else already

The other day I was stretched out under a tree out here on my place admirin the September sky, and not worryin about anything when I pulled a and not worryin 3 about anything when I pulled a newspaper out of my pocket I'd been savin and glanced through it and ran across an item about a survey the Gallup Poll has just taken.

Accordin to this item, Dr. Gallup's men have conducted a nation-wide survey to find out what most people worry about these days, and after a careful scientific sampling of opinion and adding up figures and preparing complicated charts they have come up with the discovery that the chief worry today is; money. How to get in enough money to pay the bills, how to keep ahead of the collectors, how to make income meet outgo, that's the thing that Dr. Gallup finds most people are worryin about. You mean to say he went to

I could have told him for a twocent post card.

There are some things in life you're supposed to know without having to be told, and the fact that keepin ahead of the hounds financially speaking is most people's worry is one of em. Furthermore, that was what most people were worryin about last year and it's what they'll be worryin about next year.

And also, it doesn't seem to make much difference what income bracket a man is in. Nature has some sort of system whereby it enables a man's wants to keep two jumps ahead of his financial capacity to satisfy em. A man strugglin to pay for a wash pot has a neighbor strugglin to pay for an automatic washin machine. When some men finally get up in the class where they can write out a check for a new car, they find one car ain't enough, they need two and they're right back in the strain they was before.

Over-expansion causes more individuals and more businesses to go busted than anything else.

I'll tell you, I'm not recommendin that anybody follow my methods, but in the big scramble for success there ought to be something said for the man who starts out in business in a hole in the wall and stays there.

Yours faithfully,

J. A.

IT'S CHEAPER

TO

KEEP WELL

That's why, with Fall around the Corner (we think) we suggest you get started preventing those colds before they start.

To give you a certain amount of immunity and lessen the severity of a cold, if you should then take one, try one of the oral cold vaccines sold from $1.25 to $1.35.

To build up the cold-fighting resistance of the body itself, try a good multiple vitamin rich in vitamin A & D along with strong vitamin C. For less than the price of a coke, you can have that extra vitamin protection each day.

At the first sign of a cold or other illness, consult your physician . . . those first hours are important in combating any infection or disease.
