A QUICK READ OF THE NEWS

Cash-for-oxygen catching

Lean back in a plush leather chair, pay cash and breathe pure oxygen.

That's a deal increasing numbers of people are lapping up in the eastern Indian city of Calcutta as they struggle to cope with the metropolis' foul air.

Cashing in on rising concerns about air pollution, two brothers have started Calcutta's first oxygen parlor, where customers can sink back in leather chairs, inhale oxygen flavored with various scents and be lulled by music.

"The response has been great. We get bureaucrats, policemen, college students, housewives, corporate bigwigs — all looking for a way to fight pollution and stress," said Rajeev Madhogaria, who owns Oxyzone with his brother, Sanjeev.

A U.N.-sponsored study released earlier this month said a cloud of smog covering southern Asia is putting the health of millions at risk.

Calcutta is one of India's most polluted cities. Many of the city's 15 million inhabitants complain of fatigue and headaches due to emissions from the thousands of taxis and buses.

The brothers said they were surprised by the hundreds of people willing to shell out $3.60 for 20 minutes of pumping oxygen into their lungs.

Besides single sittings, Oxyzone offers memberships, although its rates are likely to be out of reach for many people in a country where the average annual per capita income is $450.

But Purbasha Majumdar, a 20-year-old college student, is an oxygen-seeker who believes it's worth the money.

"The smoke from diesel vehicles gives me a headache and makes me tired," Majumdar said, waiting to breathe the oxygen scented with sandalwood, lemon, orange or lavender.

"This is good way to fight pollution, relax and feel refreshed," she said.

County gets soaking

JOURNAL STAFF REPORT

For the first time in several months, rain in significant amounts fell over just about the whole area Monday night and Tuesday morning.

Nearby, amounts ranged from 1.5 inches to 4 inches, with the largest amount reported from West Camp Gin on FM 1731.

Unofficial reports had up to 8 inches falling in spots around Clovis.

Three inches was reported from both the Sherley-Anderson elevator at Lariat (about five miles due north of the West Camp Gin) and Coyote Lake Feedyard, far to the south on 1731.

A report from 2 1/2 miles east of the original site of West Camp was 2.8 inches; Sherley-Anderson Lazbuddie reported 1.8 and Commissioner Jerry Damron reported 1.5 in southeast Bailey County.

A spokeswoman for Bailey Gin said a good rain fell also fell there.

Younger residents in parts of the county may not recognize this, but it's a puddle on the highway.

Mules take field against New Deal

By DELTON WILHITE
Journal sportswriter

Football scrimmages are held to give coaches, players and diehard fans a preview of what the season at hand holds for their team. The Mules' debut was Saturday morning against the New Deal Lions.

Coach David Wood and his staff were interested in how their players would react under game-like conditions with a new defense, and also in whether the offense still held its punch.

The players were anxious for an opportunity to square off against someone other than their best friends and to impress the coaches with what they had learned during two-a-day practice.

This was the first varsity experience for many of the Mules, and they were up to the challenge.

The fans, who do not know what the coaches are watching for at this point, were treated to many bright spots from both the offense and defense. The Mules hit hard and are on their way to being the well-oiled machine that the fans have come to expect.

The Mules' second scrimmage is Aug. 22 against the Idalou Wildcats

The Mules scrimmage again Aug. 22 in Idalou (freshmen at 5 p.m., junior varsity at 6 and varsity at 7:30) while Lazbuddie hosts Valley High School of Turkey at 6 p.m. Saturday. Both teams open their seasons this month — Muleshoe at Seminole at 8 p.m. Aug. 30 and Lazbuddie against Follett at Groom after a 5 p.m. junior varsity game.

Council dissects hotel-motel tax

JOURNAL STAFF REPORT

The Muleshoe City Council approved using $1,250 from the city's hotel-motel tax to promote the upcoming Diez y Seis de Septiembre celebration, then tangled during a discussion on the use of the tax.

City Manager David Brunson said the fact that both items were on the agenda did not reflect any doubts about the 16th of September festival being qualified, but rather just his desire for the council to be better informed as to what state law says about the hotel-motel tax.

Judging from comments after City Attorney Terri Langenegger stated that one purpose of the tax is to improve business at hotels and motels, the council had been unaware of that provision.

Langenegger said that enhancing tourism is only one requirement. "If people just came into town for the day and left, I'm not Councilman Juan Chávez said that the small events Muleshoe holds would be unlikely to induce anyone to spend the night here when Clovis is 30 miles away, and that small towns shouldn't even have the tax in place if this is a requirement.

Councilman Cliff Black said he doubts that most or maybe all the events approved during his tenure would qualify if the requirement were to be interpreted strictly.

Councilman Jerry Hicks said it would be difficult to prove precisely how much an event benefited local motels, anyway.

Councilwoman Sharon Grant pointed out that the law doesn't specify how big the benefit has to be. "If we bring in three or four people to the motels, it's met the criteria," she said.

Langenegger agreed, adding that the law "doesn't say 5 percent or 50 percent or even one person. I think the idea is that the event potentially benefits the hotel-motel industry."

Armyworms fewer

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL COLLEGE STATION — Fall and beet armyworms in the state are not being true pests this season, a far different story from that a couple of years ago, Texas Cooperative Extension reports.

Brant A. Baugh of Lubbock, Extension agent-integrated pest management, said, "The situation isn't as bad as what you hear in the coffee shop. Most of the rumors are being spread from the neighboring counties. Overall, I wouldn't call this an armyworm infestation; it's not even close to what it was two years ago."

Dr. James F. Leser, Extension entomologist in Lubbock, said the South Plains has been spraying for beet armyworms for about 10 days.

"Most of the problem is in the south and southeast of the High Plains. It starts east of Lubbock and goes over to the Caprock. It goes south about 20 miles and doesn't go too far north. It's pretty isolated. It doesn't mean we don't have beet armyworms outside that area, but we're not treating there."

Dr. Christopher G. Sansone, San Angelo-based Extension entomologist, said the term armyworm is used for almost any species that tend to clump together in fields and feed. High populations appear to march side by side.

Leser said cotton crop losses are a probability, but he could not estimate what those might be because it is still early in the season and spraying activity for other insects has been going on.

In cotton fields, beet armyworms feed on developing squares and bolls.

Armyworms are "still laying eggs, we still have pressure, and we still need to treat for them and other pests as well, but the loss due to them is really going to be quite low because the number of acres involved and the number of armyworms in fields are not substantial," he said.

Even though some losses are expected in the cotton crop, he estimates yields in his area to total more than 3 million bales of cotton, the highest in 20 years, Leser said.

"If we can hold on to what we have out there, we'll have a very, very good crop. Last year we lost a lot of acreage to drought, but this year we could make 500,000 more bales than last year, which is a lot."

He does not expect monetary losses to be very high, even though control costs for beet armyworm are quite a bit more than for other insects.

"Individual growers will feel the economic pinch, but when you look at our district or even the High Plains in general, it's not going to end up being a big deal."

Baugh said the biggest pest problem in his area is aphids. Eight or nine fields in his scouting program have been treated for armyworms, 24 fields have been treated for aphids and 32 fields were treated for bollworms two weeks ago.

The cost of having to spray for bollworms, aphids and beet armyworms costs $21 to $27 per acre, he said.

Only one field in the program is spraying for all three.

The fall armyworm is another pest agricultural producers are monitoring.

Dr. Carl Patrick, Extension entomologist in Amarillo, fall armyworms are defoliating some peanuts in the Panhandle, but they have not affected the yields.

"We are monitoring them, but it's nothing that has reached severe proportions at this point," he said.

Randy Upshaw, district Extension director in Dallas, said fall armyworms also have attacked bermuda grass in North Texas.

Dr. Bob Robinson, district Extension director in Amarillo, said fall armyworms have damaged sorghum, but that crop is producing heads and is still rated mostly fair to good.

He also said aphid numbers are increasing behind insecticide applications for bollworms and boll weevils.

According to the Texas A&M entomology web page, insects.tamu.edu, the fall armyworm usually causes the most problems in pastures, small grains, golf courses and home landscapes.

Armyworms can be found on nearly any plant as they migrate in search of edible foliage.

HERITAGE CENTER

The main order of business at the monthly Heritage Foundation board meeting Aug. 5 was the upcoming annual open membership meeting.

The meeting was conducted by Acting President Dan Throckmorton. Board members present were Jim Allison, Vivian White, Ladene Spears, Betty Kirby, Sammie Simpson and Jean Allison.

Board members first voted to hold the annual meeting at 6 p.m. Sept. 14 — outdoors (weather permitting) at the Heritage Center.

White reported that a 90-year-old storyteller from Truth or Consequences, N.M., will present a program at the meeting.

Leebelle Johnson has lived in New Mexico for 60 years since moving there from Littlefield. She says she did not begin writing and performing until she was 80, and that she and her husband performed many years ago in Muleshoe. She has won many awards for her storytelling.

Other plans for the meeting include local musical groups, square dancing on the plaza, ballroom dancing in the Janes ranch-house ballroom, homemade ice cream, cake and cowboy coffee.

There also will be presentations made by the county Resource Conservation and Development Committee and the Student-Community Action Club.

New board members will be elected to replace those retiring.

Appointed to the nominating committee were Throckmorton, Jean Allison and chairman Jim Allison. Nominations also can be made from the floor at the meeting.

The public is invited to the meeting for an update of Heritage Center activities.

TODAY'S RECIPE

PRIK YUAK

(Thai Stuffed Chilies)
12 fresh mild yellow or green chilies

4 oz. lean ground or minced pork

2 Tbsp. crushed roasted peanuts

fish sauce (preferably nam pla)

1/4 tsp. crushed garlic

2 tsp. finely chopped cilantro (coriander)

1 small egg salt and white pepper

oil for deep-frying

1/2 cup all-purpose (plain) flour

Batter (Foi T'on)

3 large eggs

Use the point of a sharp knife to make a slit along one side of each chili, then carefully scrape away the seeds and stem without splitting the shell.

Mix the pork with the peanuts, 2 teaspoons of the fish sauce, garlic, cilantro and egg; season sparingly with salt and pepper.

Use a teaspoon to stuff the che mixture into the chilies, then smooth the filling with a wet finger. Heat the oil to moderately hot.

Mix the flour with enough ice water to make a thin batter.

Lightly coat the chilies with extra flour, then coat with the batter.

Slide them carefully into the oil and fry for about three minutes, turning once or twice, until crisped and golden on the surface.

Lift out with a slotted spoon; set aside.

To make batter: Beat the eggs well. Strain a third of the egg into a small funnel, holding a finger over the end.

Release the egg into the oil in a very thin stream, moving the funnel so the egg forms a lacy design.

Carefully turn with two spatulas and cook the other side briefly, then lift out and drain on paper towels.

Cook the remaining egg in two batches the same way. (If preferred, the egg threads can be cooked in a lightly oiled omelet pan or nonstick skillet.)

Divide each bundle of "golden threads" in four and wrap a portion around each chili.

Serve at once with additional fish sauce for dipping.

Changes in diet could help with heartburn

HOUSTON — Being more careful about what is eaten could extinguish the heartburn fire before it starts.

"Foods that are acidic and direct irritants to the esophagus should be avoided," said Dr. Gulchin Ergun, medical director of the Reflux Center at Baylor College of Medicine and the Methodist Hospital in Houston.

"Grapefruits, tomato products, food with large amounts of vinegar, caffeine and chocolate are potential 'heart burners,'" he said.

More than 15 million Americans suffer from heartburn, a condition usually accompanied by a sour

Mule mayhem is in the air again

By DELTON WILHITE
Journal sportswriter

Fall is here! The calendar may say it's still August and the thermometer may still be reaching 95, but it's fall: The air is filled with pigskins and the loud pop of plastic on plastic.

To a high school sports nut, that first loud pop signals a new year of excitement just as surely as the first sprig of green is an indication of wonderful things to come for a gardener.

Soon the football and cross-country teams will again be in full bloom.

Two-a-day workouts have come and gone, scrimmages are under way, and the season is about to start in earnest.

The Mules' first scrimmage was Aug. 17, the second is Saturday at Idalou, and the coaches and players are working hard to be ready for the new season. (In reality, they never quit working.)

The players have been running, lifting and working out as individuals and in small groups since last season ended. The University Interscholastic League allowed seven weeks of organized conditioning taste, and burning and pressure that can last for hours.

Symptoms usually can be alleviated with over-the-counter antacids.

To help reduce the odds for getting heartburn, Ergun recommends staying away from large or excessively fatty meals and not eating for two to three hours before lying down.

By Delton Wilhite

this past summer, and the Mules took advantage of that change.

Jordan Dale summed up the Mule attitude for 2002 when he said, "We're better than we thought we would be, and are going to be fun to watch this season."

These Mules feel they have a lot to prove and want to put their stamp on Muleshoe's winning tradition.

A theme that emerged during last spring's workouts, "Tradition does not graduate, has carried over to the new season. These Mules know how to win, and they know they can win. That's half the battle; the other half is finding a way to win.

This season is shaping up as an exciting one — and not just at the varsity level. There's always a home game on Thursday night, with either the seventh- and eighth-host to visiting teams. Fall is definitely here! If you're still not convinced, just wait until the Mules run 26 Hammer. It will once again give their opponents a chill.

Emily Bomer, Jamie Townsen marry in June

Emily Jean Bomer and Jamie Don Townsen were married June 9 at the First United Methodist Church in Muleshoe. The Rev. Brad Reeves officiated.

Organist Marshall Cook of Muleshoe and vocalists Courtney Milleson of Canyon, Elizabeth Finch of Belton, Texas, and Alissa Von Theumer of Amarillo provided wedding selections.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Bomer of Muleshoe.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Townsen of Spearman, Texas.

Finch also served as maid of honor, and Rebecca Davis of Lubbock served as bridesmaid.

Best man was Zach McCammond of Spearman, and Jace Moore of Tahoka was

Mr. and Mrs. Jamie Don Townsen

groomsman. Ushers Tahoka and Robby Bomer of Muleshoe. Acolyte was Robby Bomer. Ringbearers were Colton Savage and Cale Savage, both of Tulsa.

The bride wore a sleeveless empire satin gown overlaid with candlelight organza and trimmed with lace and pearls.

She wore matching lace and pearl armlets and a cathedral-length train with a pearl tiara-style headpiece. She carried a bouquet of lavender sterling roses.

The groom wore a western-style tuxedo, duster jacket, black vest and black Riatas.

For tradition, the bride chose as something old her wedding dress, worn by her mother and made by her grandmother, Jean Moore; something new was her cathedral-length veil and headpiece; something borrowed was a pearl necklace from her grandmother, Louise Faver. A reception was held at church's fellowship hall. Serving were John and Kay Graves, Linda Lee, Jay and Courtney Milleson, Trina Wilson, Julie Daniel, Suzanne Flanary, Sarah Wright, Kathy Ayers and Vallery Daniel.

The bride received a cosmetology degree from Odessa College and an associate degree from Clovis Community College. She is attending Lubbock Christian University and is a hairstylist for Family Hair Salon in Muleshoe.

The groom attended West Texas A&M University and Texas Tech University. He is an installation technician for A-Plus Heating and Air Conditioning in Muleshoe.

Here's How It Works! Lowe's is giving you deep discounts on many of the items you purchase everyday! For each dollar you spend at Lowe's, we will give you a point. After 50 points (or $50), you will receive a Lowe's X-tra Savings Reward Coupon. This coupon can then be redeemed for deep discounts on selected items. Each month, Lowe's will select from our most popular items in the store and deeply discount them for our X-tra Savings Reward Coupon holders. Present your coupon and receive incredible savings on selected items. X-tra Savings Reward Program • Each Dollar You Spend Is Worth ONE (1) Point. • After you earn 50 points, you will receive a Lowe's X-tra Savings Reward Coupon. • Use your Lowe's X-tra Savings Reward Coupon to get deep discounts on one of the selected items. • Only ONE (1) item can be purchased with each Reward Coupon. • Items will be changed monthly. THE X-TRA SAVINGS REWARD PROGRAM GOOD AT LOWE'S MULESHOE, CANYON AND TUCUMCARI STORES ONLY! Points are not transferable between stores. No substitutions please on X-tra Savings Reward Items. Only one item may be purchased at the special deep discount per Reward Coupon.
