FIFTY-EIGHTH YEAR

Damon Jones Has First '66 Peanuts

Damon D. Jones

New-crop peanuts were harvested in Cross Plains Friday by Damon D. Jones, seven miles north of town.

His initial load came from a 15-acre, irrigated field, which indicates that its yield will approximate 80 bushels to the acre.

Jones has a total of 37 acres under irrigation and believes that the later portion of the crop will be by far the best.

The load dried in Cross Plains Friday appeared to be choice number ones, however, testing was not immediately done due to the fact that a government grader had not yet begun work here.

The 15-acre field had been fertilized with 15-30-15, which Jones believes is ideal for his type of soil.

W. B. (Wes) Holcomb, whom impartial observers say has one of the best dryland crops in the Sabanno area, reported over the week end that he would not begin digging for another 20 or 25 days.

Asked about the prospective yield, Holcomb said, "This is the 29th crop of peanuts I have grown and I've never seen them as good as this year." Observers have estimated Holcomb's crop to run as high as 80 bushels to the acre, said to be an exceptional output for unirrigated land, however, the farmer himself is guessing only 40.

Reports from over the area indicate that some fields have suffered damage because of leaf-spot and rust, both of which are reported aggravated by protracted wet weather. As a whole, though, this may go on record as the largest harvest ever gathered in the Cross Plains area.

Recent experimentation by farmers in planting procedures as well as heavier fertilization and some irrigation are credited with boosting the overall output from fields of this vicinity.

Jones will try an experiment in planting for next year. Whereas most peanuts are planted in June, he plans to plant some hulled seed in either November or December.

"I'm going to experiment with five acres," he said, "setting the seed about two and one-half inches deep."

Glenn Winfrey, partner and manager of Cross Plains Grain & Peanut Company, reports that drying and storing facilities in Cross Plains are prepared and ready to accommodate the bumper crop.

Toad's Baucom had a small one day last week. He stepped into the yard to examine a gas line and noticed that the lawn mower had left in the way. Instead of pushing it by the handles, he reached down and pushed against the frame. As the mower rolled backward, it came an odd noise that he took to be caused by the engine. But not for long, as he quickly emerged a hand and one-half foot rattle. Vibrating every one of his rattles and striking in the direction of the driver, Toad's hand had only inches away as the mower was moved.

City Pays Last Tax Bonds 7 Years Before Due-Date

Few municipalities in this section of Texas can equal Cross Plains in sound financial condition.

A $4,000 general revenue bond, issued in a refunding program in 1952, was paid last week, seven years ahead of the due date. The bond was the last of a series and now leaves the city unincumbered of bonded indebtedness, except for $53,000 in revenue warrants outstanding against the three municipally-owned utility systems.

Large Cash Balance
After payment of the $4,000 last week, the city had a cash balance in its general fund of $8,074.86. In addition the municipality has a $213.31 excess in gas improvement fund, $1,091.30 in a reserve held for payment of interest on meter deposits and $5,000 in certificates of deposit drawing interest.

Clerks at the City Hall were completing the current tax roll Monday, preparatory to mailing annual statements, and future prospects showed substantial improvement over the same period last year. Total valuation of the incorporation now stands at $840,898, a gain of $14,653 in renditions within the past 12 months. Total tax collections for the ensuing year will run $12,613.52, an increase of $220.48 over last year.

Same Tax Rate
Cross Plains tax rate is based on a $1.50 levy on the hundred dollar valuation. Valuations are established from year to year by a board of equalization, generally based near a 25 per cent of actual value. There has been little change in recent years.

Members of the City Council, who oversee the municipality's operation and establish policies implemented by employees are: Doyle Burchfield, mayor, and councilmen, Gerald Bowden, Raymond DeBusk, Oscar Keonig, J. P. McCord and T. T. Nichols.

The city's six employees are: Mrs. Ava Childers, city secretary, and her assistant, Mrs. Freddy Tatom; Bill Dillard, A. B. Foster and Jessie Harris, who maintain the three utility systems, and Marvin Cade, city marshal.

CITY UTILITIES PASS $4,432 IN SEPTEMBER

Sales during September from three municipally-owned utility systems in Cross Plains grossed $4,432.74. The breakdown was as follows:

Water	$2,124.00
Gas	1,447.70
Sewer	861.04

Gross receipts at the City Hall are reported running slightly larger than last year with a minimum of delinquent or late payments.

Airman Tells Of Viet Nam

S-Sgt. V. A. Montgomery, Jr., who has more than 15 years longevity in the Air Force and has served about a third of that time at far-flung U. S. Air Force bases around the world, says he's never experienced a military situation similar to that now in Viet Nam, from which he recently returned.

"It's hard to tell friends from enemies over there," he declares, "and a man never feels secure."

The great difference in Viet Nam from other war zones in which the local airman has served include living conditions, inability of the military to feed and quarter all its personnel, and the great scarcity of potable water and the lack of any definite zones of occupation by friendly and enemy forces.

Lived Off Base
Although barracks are being built as fast as possible for Air Force personnel in rear areas, there are sufficient accommodations for only lowest ranking enlisted men. Most all from non-coms up must find food and lodging from civilian sources. Montgomery and three other sergeants rented a small house in Saigon, for which they paid the American equivalent of about $220 per month. They cooked their own meals from food bought at commissaries. Most all water in Viet Nam is contaminated and must be boiled to avoid contracting the numerous diseases prevalent in that country. Since boiling entails some inconvenience, American servicemen consume a record amount of soft drinks and beer.

Saw Two Riots
The Viet Cong is so infiltrated among the civilian population that even natives employed by the military are under constant suspicion. Montgomery explains that it's difficult to work while wondering about the civilians constantly about. There are a sufficient number of hard core Cong to occasionally incite riots and twice the Cross Plains serviceman found himself present at uprisings where vehicles were burned and property damaged.

"The G.I.'s in Viet Nam seem to believe they're fighting for a just cause," Montgomery says, "but the story of riots back in America and the burning of draft cards is a strain on morale. They don't look with much favor on draft-dodging."

Montgomery lived with and worked alongside another Cross Plains man, Sgt. Roland D. Brown, and together they counted a total of eight servicemen from this immediate locality who were reported in their vicinity. Long work hours, difficulty in getting about in the general state of confusion, though, made it impossible for them to look up any of the other six.

The air terminal where Montgomery and Brown worked was one of the busiest in the world, accommodating both military and civilian aircraft. Lack of experienced personnel required the servicemen to work seven days a week, sometimes as much as 15 hours daily.

Strange Land
Things are so different over there that there is little basis of comparison with this country, the airman pointed out. The land, though, is fertile and beautiful but it is used in primitive fashion.

"You don't have to be in Saigon long to realize what a wonderful place the United States is," Montgomery emphasized.

Having come home on emergency leave to be at the bedside of his father who has been dangerously ill in a Brownwood hospital for several months, Montgomery will not return overseas. He has been reassigned to Carswell Air Force Base at Fort Worth and was to return to duty there Wednesday, Sept. 28.

Vandals Ransack Shop, Classroom

Vandals, who gained entrance by smashing a window, damaged the vocational agriculture shop and littered records and important papers about a classroom on the school campus here Wednesday night. Deputy Sheriff Howard Cox, who is investigating, said that nothing appeared to be missing, indicating that vandalism and not theft had been the motive.

Buffalo-Baird Bear Grid Rivalry Resumes Friday

and both have lost to mutual opponent, Eastland. Cross Plains began the season with a 6-0 loss to the Mavericks, and Baird fell to the same team 14-13 last week end. On strength of comparison scores Baird seems to hold an edge in Friday's encounter.

Adding to that indication is the fact that Baird has scored 19 points in three outings while the Buffs have yet to scratch. Defensive results also favor the county seat Bears. Baird has given up a total of 69 points, while the Herd has watched 84 points light up for three opponents.

Tending to balance the scales, Cross Plains has played three straight Class AA schools while Baird has met one AA foe and two Class A schools, and the Herd claimed a 28-7 victory last year. Injuries have taken tolls in Bear ranks, and for a while threatened to force Baird from grid competition this season. Some new recruits have donned pads, however, and although inexperience plagues the Bears, another classic Buffalo-Baird battle appears to be shaping up Friday night.

At left are listed results of Buffalo-Baird grid contests since 1924. Thirty-five times the two schools have been pitted with the series about even. Cross Plains has been victorious 17 times, and Baird has emerged triumphant 16 times. There have been two ties. Two games were played between the two cities twice, in 1925 and in 1945.

Musgrove Advocates New State Constitution For Texas

Burke Musgrove, state representative-elect of this district issued a statement Monday praising Gov. John Connally's proposals to overhaul the outdated features of the Texas Constitution which "no longer comply with the complexities of our time".

Keynoting the State Democratic Convention last week in Austin, Connally also asked for a stronger executive office with an accompanying cabinet system together with a strengthening of the legislative process through annual sessions of the legislature.

"Conditions have changed greatly," Musgrove said, "since the adoption of our constitution in 1876, when the state's operating budget was not even in the millions — much less billions of dollars as it is now." Musgrove, while a student at the University of Texas, researched the legislative organization of other states in the preparation of a special thesis on streamlining the Texas legislative process.

"The Governor's proposed annual sessions would certainly strengthen the legislative process if 'over-legislation' were not allowed to occur. Most states have implemented annual sessions with every other session usually designated a 'budgetary session' where only the appropriations bill is considered and where all legislators have a greater voice in writing this powerful bill, not just the currently operating 10 in a conference committee, which has for so long been criticized," Musgrove commented. "With the appropriations bill conservatively scrutinized in a separate session, more time would be available in the regular biennial session to carefully consider other necessary legislation," he continued.

On constitutional revision, Musgrove said, "I think almost everyone will agree that the present constitution is outmoded and choked by details." Connally's main reason given for rewriting the Constitution is because it "so rigidly restrains our state government that it cannot respond to the changing needs and requirements of modern life."

"There should hardly be room in our State Constitution of today's times for provisions on how to sell Indian forts to the United States government or what type paper stock and printing should be used for legislator's stationery," Musgrove elaborated. "This super-statutory document should be simplified and condensed to deal more with principles and machinery rather than details, with the details being left to statutes adopted by the legislature," he added.

"One area of revision simply has to take into account the role of local government, particularly at the county level," Musgrove pointed out. "Much of the structure of county government is constitutionally established and much of this is as inadequate at the local level as that at the state level." Musgrove predicted that constitutional revision or rewriting will be a major undertaking and whatever revision approach is approved "proper safeguards should be implemented to protect and preserve the existing Texas philosophy in government."

Several approaches can be used in the revision process, Connally suggested a constitutional convention. This would require the legislature, by two-thirds approval, to set the stage for the convention by writing the rules of procedure, including the method for selection of delegates, and finally, approval by the people in a statewide general election.

Some legislators see advantages in letting the legislature sit as a constitutional convention in preparing a new constitution to present to the people for their approval.

"With the latter plan," Musgrove said, "legislators, acting as convention delegates, would be more public-conscious, having to account for their actions to the people who elected them. Most legislators are familiar with the shortcomings of the present Constitution, and because of their employment as legislators, could be in a better position to give the long time necessary to drafting a quality document," he continued.

◆ Ben's Grid Picks ◆

By Benny Glover

Hold everything! Ben's Grid Picks had a perfect week. Believe it or not, this forecaster predicted six correct results of six football games involving Callahan County and District 9-A football teams last week.

Praise must go where deserved, however. For a while, in three games this column was in danger of falling to a 3-3 record for the week. But Eastland, Bangs and Rising Star came up with extra effort and climbed from behind to post victories.

The six of six mark last week, a 1,000 percentage, upped the season showing to 17 correct picks of 21 attempts and raised percentage record by 76 points to .809.

Eastland overcame a determined Baird crew 14-13, Rising Star rallied in the second half to clip Blanket 14-6, and Bangs clipped Santa Anna 9-6 in the third quarter. Otherwise results coincided with predictions: Clyde blanked Cross Plains 28-0, Gorman surprised Early 20-6, and Goldthwaite ripped Marble Falls 41-22.

Again this week, because of the Cross Plains-Baird intracounty affray and Putnam resting another week, just six games will be scrutinized and winners projected. Last week could be the "fair weather before the storm" because no clear winners are evident, and even the crystal ball hides decisions behind clouds. Projected winners in black type.

Early at Richland Springs: Longhorns of Brown County should be ready to return to victory trail, although nothing is known about Richland Springs. A shot in the dark favors 9-A squad, 20-6.

Mason at Goldthwaite: Eagles to even record against 8-AA Punched who are rated last, but have potential to change that. Another hopeful hunch gives 9-A unit slight nod, 14-13.

Santa Anna at Gorman: 9-A Mountaineers could upset Class B Panthers in Saturday tilt, but will take supreme effort. The game, as all others this week, could be close, but possibly high scoring affair. Makuta and company slightly better than Hirst and company, 22-20.

May at Rising Star: Anything can happen in this hot rivalry. Wildcats should be favorite by playing at home and being larger, but May in upset mood. Wildcats by one touchdown, 14-8.

Albany at Clyde: Bulldogs used to cover at Lion's roaring, but 10-A cats have tamed considerably, however, Albany smarting after last week's beating. Callahan school with good effort can win, 20-14.

Baird at Cross Plains: First real chance for both Bison and Bears to win a game this season. If Buffs plug leaky air defense, and continue stout ground rebutal, desire could hand Buffs first victory, 12-7.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Payne of McCombs visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmielee Payne, and daughters here during the week end.

Mrs. Oma Glover and daughter, Mary Jane, of Dumas visited briefly with her brother-in-law, Chester Glover, here Saturday.

Mighty Mites Post 12-0 Win Tuesday

Junior high school gridders brought the first football victory to Cross Plains last week. The Mighty Mites belted Bangs 12-0 before home fans Tuesday night of last week, and raised the season mark to 1-1. Cross Plains junior eleven posted a touchdown in the first and second quarters, and completely stymied Bangs Dragons with a stout defense.

Quarterback Ronnie Pancake got the Mites into the lead with an eight-yard sweep of end capping a 40-yard drive in the initial quarter. Then fullback Kim Beggs accounted for the other six pointer on a 28-yard romp in the second period. His gallop climaxed a 68-yard march.

A superlative defensive effort by the entire Mighty Mite squad, headed by ends Robert Lewis and Curtis Shields, limited the Bangs unit to just one first down.

Mites were to have tangled with Santa Anna, there, Tuesday, and will host Rising Star Wildkittens next week, Oct. 4. Game time is 7:30p.m.

Tuesday noon is the deadline for news and advertising.

Short Items About Former Residents

Nat Williams, superintendent of schools at Lubbock, drops an interesting note to the Review editor.

He says: "Robert Anderson sent me the picture from the front page of your Sept 5 edition, showing the graduating class of 1935 at CPHS. I thought you might like to compare with our 1966 class here at Lubbock. There were 1,569 graduates and that is not nearly enough for enrollment of 33,000 students."

Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Oliver, who are well-remembered at Cross Plains and Burkett, order the Review sent to their home at 1508 Hermosa Drive, Artesia, N. M.

Oldsters here will remember Mr. Oliver as a star infielder on the Cross Plains baseball teams of the 1920's.

Albert Gatlin, 916 East 14th in Houston, who formerly operated a barber shop in Cross Plains, sends the Review staff a cute piece of advertising for his business in the Texas metropolis. It's a $3 bill on the Republic of Texas. "I sure enjoy the Review,"

Albert writes, "it brings me news of the fine people I knew there 35 years ago."

Harold Gary, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Gary and a 1957 graduate of Cross Plains High School, is now coaching football at Bandera High School.

Edgar Sessions of Baird transacted business in Cross Plains Saturday.

Mr. R. C. Browning of Brownwood visited relatives in Cross Plains Saturday.

Clyde Bulldog Passes Blank Buffaloes 28-0 There Friday

Clyde Bulldogs, ground troopers by nature, reversed tactics in Bulldog Stadium Friday night and struck through the air four times in defeating the Cross Plains Buffaloes, 28-0.

The four missile scoring strikes were helped by two successful extra point kicks and a safety.

It was the third consecutive loss for the Herd this season and fourth straight dating back to the final game of the 1965 campaign. Clyde, District 7-AA, boosted its season record to two wins against one loss.

No! All Bleak

Although Clyde punctured the Bison pass defense six times for 142 yards, Cross Plains defenders picked off two stray aerials, one which staved off a serious scoring threat. Buffalo ground defense bounced back after a week's lapse, enabling the Herd ground attack to better the opposition. Buff backs totaled 112 yards rushing and Clyde got 101. Clyde held the upper hand in the air game with six completions on 17 launchings for 142 yards, while only three of 18 space probes were successful for the Bison. It was the long bomb primarily that spelled doom for the visiting Herd and got Clyde a touchdown in each quarter.

Clyde Grabs Lead

Callahan County's west-side Bulldogs quickly grabbed the lead with a six-pointer only two minutes and 20 seconds deep into the game. Clyde began the scoring march from its own 26 after taking the opening kickoff. Bulldog quarterback Cecil Eager limbered up his throwing arm after brief success on the ground. The first pass was a 27-yarder to halfback Eddie Craig for a first on the Buff 35, and then fullback Jim Alexander got behind Herd defenders and gathered in a 34 yard toss and stepped into the end zone. Right guard Tony Spagnoli's kick after a five yard penalty was wide and low.

Defense Stiffens

Midway through the second quarter a Clyde punt rolled out of bounds on the Buff five yard line, and two plays later Clyde had regained possession via the fumble route on the Herd 15. Buffalo linebacker Joe Pierce then began his usual brilliant defensive play by spilling Craig for a five yard loss. After a short gainer Pierce again knifed through the Clyde line and separated Clyde's Eager from the pigskin. Buff right end Bo Barr quickly fell on the loose oval, and Cross Plains was back in business on its 31.

Breaks evened and an attempted Buff punt went for naught and Bulldog right end Jim Paylor picked it up for six yards and a first on the Herd's 25. Again the Buff defense held at the five, but after a three yard gain a lateral went astray and Pierce fell on the ball in the end zone for a two-point Clyde safety.

Begin Drive

Following a Clyde punt Cross Plains began an offensive push and in two plays had covered 38 yards to the Clyde 35. Buff halfback Jerry Strickland brought the hoghide into Clyde territory for the first time with a 32-yard romp. But left end David Pope intercepted on the next play and killed the Buff threat. Later a Buff short punt put Clyde on the Cross Plains 35 but Strickland returned Pope's favor and swiped an aerial on the goal line and returned it 16 yards.

Clyde gained possession after a fourth down rushing failure, and in four passing tries covered the needed 24 yards with three seconds left in the first half. Craig passed to Eager for 15 and a first on the Buff nine. Then Eager hit Pope on a down and in pattern for the tally. Buff Pierce kept the score 14-0 by blocking Spagnoli's kick.

Bison Superior

Cross Plains controlled the first part of the third quarter mainly on strength of a good defense. The Herd's Pierce picked up a Clyde bobble on the Bison 47, but after a brief flurry had to punt. Left end Mike Bright allowed Clyde two plays before picking off a pass at the Buff 47. Nothing came of the exchange and Eager returned the punt 18 yards setting in motion the Bulldog's third scoring drive.

A ground attack covered the first 18 yards of the 43-yard blitz, then Eager found Pope with a pass behind all defenders, and he covered the final few yards. Spagnoli split the uprights and the score read Clyde 21 with 14 seconds left in the third stanza.

A minute and 40 seconds later Clyde had another touchdown. On the second play after Craig had intercepted a Buff pass, Eager lofted a missile to Paylor at the 15 and the 190-pounder bowled over one Buff to paydirt. Spagnoli's kick was again good.

Offensive Thrust

After an exchange of punts, Cross Plains began its deepest penetration into Bulldog country. A nine yard pass from quarterback Ricky Jones to end James McMillan got a first on Clyde's 48, and then fullback-quarterback Joe Pierce scampared 19 yards to the Clyde 29, but again Bulldog Pope corralled a Bison pass at the Clyde 23. A punt was necessary and Cross Plains took possession on the Herd 24. The Buffs had moved 44 yards to the Clyde 32 before time ran out.

45 Women Named To United Fund Solicitation Squad

Forty-five women have been named to Mrs. J. Peyton Smith's solicitation committee to canvass the Cross Plains area Oct. 7 to raise $2,000 for 1967 United Fund undertakings in this and adjoining communities.

The organization which supports a number of charities, including local demands, has budgeted $600 to West Texas Rehabilitation Center at Abilene, $400 to M. D. Anderson Tumor Research, $175 to the American Red Cross, $175 to the Salvation Army, $100 to Gonzales Warm Springs Foundation, $100 to Texas Mental Health Association, $50 to the Medical Research Foundation of Texas, $300 for the upcoming Christmas cheer program to unfortunate families and $100 to local and transient relief.

It has been the custom here for the past several years to make one drive to support all charities, thereby eliminating frequent solicitations for money. "The people have been most understanding in the past," said Mrs. Smith yesterday, "and we're hoping to again have their whole-hearted cooperation in this year's effort."

She pointed out that the women who devote one full day to the campaign deserve the pleasant and generous response by donors when they call at homes and business houses.

"Each of these ladies has responsibilities of their own," Mrs. Smith reminded, "which require her time at home and elsewhere and it is most impractical for them to have to call a second time to see any donor."

The Oct. 7 solicitation will be kicked-off with a quick meeting and coffee at Odum's Restaurant, at which time supplies will be passed out and final instructions given to workers.

Named on Mrs. Smith's committee were the following women:

For Cross Plains: Mrs. J. C.

Burke Musgrove Favors New Texas Constitution

for major revision or changes, but only amendment after amendment — 163 through 1965 — has been tacked onto it. One hundred proposed amendments have failed. The bloating of this document — amendment after amendment — from its original 23,000 words to almost 55,000 has added to its complexity and has, consequently, contributed to a more complicated, costly form of state, county and local government. The fact that 105 amendments have been submitted since World War II indicates the rising need for revision," Musgrove stated.

"Regardless of party, or of ideology, thousands of Texans will agree, I think, with Dean Robert G. Storey of S.M.U. (past president of the Texas and American Bar Associations) who says 'any thinking Texan realizes the inadequacies of our Constitution and the need for revision.'" Musgrove concluded, "Obviously, it will take much study and long labor — perhaps for years — to accomplish this challenge."

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Westerman were visitors in Brownwood Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Thate and family of Dallas visited with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Bryan, in Cross Plains, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Freddy Thate, near Burkett last week end.
