The 1973 REAP that was ter minated in December of 1972 has been reinstated. A sign-up period to accept requests for cost-share assistance for the following practices will begin immediately: planting permanent grass, wells, terraces, diversion terraces, waterways, control of oak, mesquite, or prickly pear. Requests will be considered by the committee on April 26 and May 10, provided funds are available

A sign-up period for winter cover crops will be announced at a later date.

The final date to sell, lease, release or request cotton acreage has been extended until May 1, 1974. The final date for peanuts was not extended and expired April 1.

The reason for the extension of the final date was due to a change in disaster provisions of the cotton program.

There are two kinds of disaster payments that producers may be eligible for in the 1974 wheat program: (1) natural disaster such as drought or hail and (2) abnormally low yields

Under the drought or hail provision, a producer must make application and the crop appraised before it is plowed up or grazing is started. If a low yield is obtained due to natural causes an application may be filed after harvest and production evidence presented at that time.

Thanks Friends

I acknowledge myself debtor to the people of Cross Plains for the confidence reposed in me at the polls Saturday. As mayor, I will work with other members of the council for continued improvement of the little city we

I congratulate my opponent in Saturday's balloting for the dignity which not only characterized his bid for re-election but for his long service as mayor. Having held the office four full terms and one year as a predecessor's tenure, Doyle Burchfield is rounding out nine continuous years as mayor, a record unequaled in the history of Cross Plains. As a citizen of the town, I commend him and those with whom he worked for their good stewardship.

Again, my sincere thanks to the people of Cross Plains and a plea for us to join hands in a harmonious effort to make our town the best in Texas.
