If you are on the Gloomy Line. Get a transfer. If you're inclined to fret and pine. Get a transfer. Get off the track of Doubt and Gloom. Get on the Sunshine track, there's room. Get a transfer. Everywhere one goes they come in contact with people who, apparently, have formed a distrust for everything and everybody.

prefer a diet of carrion and corruption to good wholesome food. Every sane person will admit there are deplorable facts existing in the world; but they should be minimized rather than magnified. The enlargement upon crime, the elephantizing of perfidy, the inflating of corruption, the magnifying of wrongs is no aid whatever to the purification of social and moral conditions.

How little praise human nature gets for doing well, and how often it is excoriated for doing wrong! How frequently denunciation takes the place of appreciation! How often people's discouragement instead of encourage, or at least assume an attitude of nonchalance when some glowing account of successful achievement is poured into their ears.

GROCERIES AND FOOD ARE AGE-OLD!

The first woman was made of a "spare" rib, and she tempted the first man by dangling an apple in front of him.

Since that time men have been tempted by appetizing foods, and since then women have been constantly seeking new foods, new combinations of them and new ways of preparing foods.

Larger Flocks Of Poultry Expected In State In 1936

That the poultry population around Muleshoe and throughout this county generally will be greatly increased this year, is the consensus of opinion expressed by local poultry factors and chicken dealers who say there are more baby chicks being hatched out in Bailey county than ever before in its history. The local chicken hatchery has been taxed to its capacity to accommodate its numerous customers who are anxious for baby chicks, hundreds have been shipped in from outside hatcheries and all broody hens on farmssteads have been set to work hatching out new flocks. The demand for setting eggs this year has been unusual.

Two years ago chicken stocks, as well as other stocks were allowed to dwindle considerably because of the scarcity and high price of feed, but last year there was a bumper crop of feed of various kinds raised in this section and this year the big boost in biddies is being brought about. Many new chicken houses have been constructed this year, others been repaired and enlarged. Much pure bred foundation stock of various varieties has been imported. Nearly every farm in this section is adding to the normally depleted stock of poultry and planning having large numbers of pullets for egg laying this fall and winter. While there are still baby chicks coming off the hatcheries, yet many are now from four to 10 weeks old, which poultry dealers say is a critical time in the life of these birds following the initial danger just after hatching. Type of brooders for baby chicks is not so important as the proper heat, which should be around 92 degrees for the first two or three days, then gradually reduced to around 80 degrees until about the second week end. On account of variation in weather, during first two weeks chick are liable to suffer from too much heat unless closely watched. Filing and crowding of chick is generally due to either too high temperature or too much variation of it. Feeds containing plenty of vitamin A are essential to proper health and growth.

Ordinarily baby chicks grown in this section have a high life rate, fewer losses being sustained than in many other sections, growers say, and present prospects are that egg sales will be up in by the hundreds of dozens just fall.

We often wonder—

Why the motor in our Car or Truck seems to be lacking in power and pep after it has been driven several thousand miles. Let's stop and think for a moment.

If your car has traveled 15,000 miles each Piston has traveled up and down the cylinder wall approximately 90,000,000 times and each valve has opened and closed about 22,500,000 times. Don't you think that is a lot of traveling?

Why wonder then?

Really, it is no wonder that a motor needs a regular checkup and service. Why not then, let us help you keep your car or truck in good condition at a very reasonable cost.

Washington, D. C.—The first three-quarters of the current fiscal year the United States national debt was $247 for every man, woman and child in the country. Bare $1,000,000
AAA Payments

Wallace Admits Big Checks to Sugar Firms, But Withholds Names.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The United States government paid two sugar firms more than one million dollars each on AAA contracts for not raising sugar cane.

Secretary Wallace made the admission after several days of dodging Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg's (Mich.) demands that all AAA payments of more than $100,000 be made public.

Florida Payment Tops Million. Wallace disclosed that one Florida sugar cane producing corporation had been paid $1,047,000 for cutting cane acreage, while a Hawaiian firm will be paid $1,022,037.

Another California farming corporation received $29,538, with the landlord getting $5,870 and the tenant $23,228.

One $84,000 Cotton Payment. The average cotton contract was less than $1,000, but Wallace said payments of $84,000 had been made jointly to an Arkansas company and the Federal Farm Credit administration.

Rice and tobacco farms came in for their share of the larger windfalls from Tacke Sam for not raising the products they are in business to raise.

Special interest was the third largest cotton benefit payment. It went to Oscar Johnston, manager of the Federal Cotton Pool and for nearly three years associated with the AAA, and amounted to $34,200.

Secretary Wallace admitted that 28 Puerto Rican producers had received payments of more than $10,000, with prospects that their total benefits would be several times that amount.

THE CRACKER BARREL The housewife, who paid the processing fees in higher food prices, is glad to learn that she now contributing to a million-dollar AAA benefit for a Florida sugar planter.

Experts Analyze New Deal's Acts

Democratic N. Y. Times, in Editorial, Lauds Fact-Finding Group.

NEW YORK.—When the Republican National committee announced the formation of a staff of 50 economic experts to analyze the Roosevelt policies, the New York Times, an independent Democratic newspaper, declared in an editorial that "there was good reason for placing the assembling of facts and reasoning in the hands of other (than the New Deal) economists."

The Republican research department is headed by Dr. Olin G. Saxon, professor of business administration at Yale university. Dr. Saxon voted for Roosevelt in 1932 "with regret," and says that many of his associates in the fact-finding work at the G. O. P. Washington headquarters have been life-long Republicans.

Step "Entirely Logical." The Times editorial, entitled "Campaign Research," read in part as follows: "That the Republican National Committee should, according to the announcement of Chairman Fletcher, have organized a committee of economists to analyze the New Deal, to criticize, in the light of economic science, the principles or programs of action adopted by the present Administration is in many respects entirely logical."

The Administration's concrete policies, in the field not only of taxation and government finance, but of industry, agriculture, labor and social problems, have been pursued under the inspiration of professional experts advocating ideas or theories of their own, and departing widely from the opinions of other experts in the same fields. When it should become the duty of the opposition party, in the course of the Presidential campaign, to criticize or attack these executive policies, or any of them, there was good reason for placing the necessary and important work of fact-finding in the hands of other experts in the same fields.

Voting Public is Judge. "To what extent the work of the economic committee will contribute to the formation of public opinion on these questions and to the determination of political action is perhaps more debatable. The term 'brain trust' usually ever since the inauguration of 1933 to describe the experts whose judgment the Administration had adopted, has not been employed with respect to the committee.

Dr. Saxon, in explanation of his department, stressed the point that its purpose is "simply to assemble information which is accurate and trustworthy and make it available to the Republican party." Dr. Saxon said further: "We have no desire (nor would we be permitted) to impose any pet theories or lobby of our own upon the Republican party. When we have established the facts—our job is done. If this is a trust, it is a Common Sense Trust."

Better Baby Chicks Poultrymen used to buy baby chicks without considering their ancestry and prospects for future growth. Now, however, chick purchasers generally demand assurance of good breeding and future productivity.

Feeding Molting Hens Molting birds require just as much feed as all birds and are laying birds and, in most cases, they need a little more of the protein elements, says an authority at North Carolina State college.

Select Breeders Early Breeding hens and males should be selected and mated as early as possible, advises an expert at the North Carolina State college.

PULLETS AIDED BY ARTIFICIAL LIGHT

No Danger to Health From Winter Program.

By Prof. L. E. Weaver, New York State College of Agriculture—WNU Service.

Artificial lights in the poultry house do not harm the health of pullets. Early-hatched pullets, subject to a molt, may be materially aided during this period by the use of lights.

Lights have little value after April 1. Abandonment of lights must be gradual to avoid a drop in egg production.

Eggs can be produced more economically during the winter under lights than under natural conditions.

Late-hatched pullets mature earlier under lights. Annual income is definitely increased by lights.

In general, lights have more effect on flocks of low or medium egg-laying ability than on high producers.

Busier Hen's Eggs Hatch' Better Than 'Loafer's' A fast working hen not only lays more eggs than the loafer hen, but her eggs usually hatch better.

Hot stability, the United States Department of Agriculture has learned, is closely linked with high egg production. It found that eggs which remain in the hen's oviduct 24 to 27 hours before they are laid are more likely to hatch than those retained longer.

Feeding Mash and Grain The amount of grain fed to chickens depends upon the season of the year, and the condition and production of the birds.

Why Pullets Are Poor Many pullets are poor and scrawny because they do not get enough to eat. And the reason they lack feed is that they are "crowded out" at feeding time by the losses of the flock.
