RUSSIAN REDS GET WARNING IN ENGLAND

Premier MacDonald Solemnly Warns All Negotiations In Anglo-Russian Meet Will be Called Off.

The Anglo-Russian conference was barely under way Monday in London when Premier MacDonald took the opportunity to warn the soviet delegates against engaging in Bolshevik propaganda in England during the present negotiations, which are certain to extend over many weeks.

The labor premier assumed his very gravest manner after welcoming the Russians and bluntly told them his government would not countenance propaganda of any sort from the Russian visitors.

The premier's statement was somewhat tempered and made more acceptable when he pointed out that he was not demanding anything from the Russians he would not demand from any political mission visiting this country.

The premier made it very plain to M. Rakovsky, and the other Russian delegates that at the first indication of Bolshevik propaganda methods met with which he as a veteran Socialist is very familiar, a halt in the Anglo-Russian negotiations would be called.

COMMISSIONERS PRECINCTS HAVE BEEN CHANGED.

At the regular meeting of the Commissioners Court Monday a petition was presented to the Court asking that the County be equally divided as to the Commissioners precincts and after the petitioners were heard on the question, the Court voted to divide the County into four equal precincts beginning January 1, 1925. The present board of County Commissioners will hold over for the balance of the year and Commissioners will be elected this year for the new precincts. Under the present division of the County about one-half of the County is in one precinct, the precincts are just as they were at the time the County was organized and at that time there were very few people in precinct number four. Last year, they only had about thirty-five voters and this year they have something like one hundred and fifty. We are glad to see the county progress to such an extent as to make it necessary for the redistricting. We have heard of a few who opposed the change, but it seems that a big majority of the people all over the County were in favor of the change. The meeting was in absolute harmony all day and those who attended expressed themselves as being well pleased with the action of the Court. Let's all pull together and stand behind the action of the court whether we were in favor of the action or not. This is no time for one community to work against another, but we must all put our shoulders to the wheel and boost Bailey County and let this year be a banner year for the forward movement. If there are those in the County who have had some petty jealousy or that have been knocking the others fellows of the other community, do some thinking. It doesn't take but very little brains and scarcely any energy to be a knocker. Let's keep up with the progress of this part of the country and not try to keep things as they were at any time in the past.

PRECINCT CONVENTIONS.

On Saturday afternoon, May 3rd, the Democratic party will hold precinct conventions in Texas. Each precinct will elect delegates to the County Convention, and the County Conventions will elect delegates to the State Convention and the State Convention will elect delegates to the National convention at New York in June, where the Democratic candidates for president and vice president will be nominated. It is the duty of every Democrat to attend these precinct conventions and vote his sentiments. There is quite a campaign being made at this time, both for an instructed delegation to the State Convention and against an instructed delegation. Whichever side you favor go out to these precinct conventions and help your side win.

JAPANESE ARE REAL HUFFY

Do Not Like American Exclusion Act Passed by House.

Washington, April 17.—In the face of vigorous protests from the Japanese government and objections of Secretary of State Hughes, the House of Representatives late today passed the new immigration restriction bill, abrogating the "gentlemen's agreement" between Japan and the United States and barring all Japanese from this country.

The bill provides for the reduction of the number of aliens entering the United States annually from 340,000 to 160,000.

The vote was 322 to 71.

The cut in immigration is accomplished by changing the method of computation from 3 per cent of the 1910 alien population, as at present to 2 per cent of the 1890 census.

No one dissenting, the House wrote into the new bill a provision barring Japanese and abrogating the "gentlemen's agreement" with Japan.

Not in years has the Senate been so stirred up as over the Hanihara letter, which was regarded in virtually all quarters as an "astounding document."

ESCAPED CONVICT ARRESTED BY SHERIFF H. A. DOUGLASS

On Saturday afternoon, April 11th, Sheriff H. A. Douglass of Bailey county, arrested William Griffiths, alias Orvell Brown, an escaped convict from the Indiana State Prison. Griffiths was sentenced to a term in the Indiana prison for a term of from two to fourteen years for robbery in September, 1915. He served two years and was paroled and during the time of his parole he violated same and was arrested and carried back to Michigan City, Indiana, to serve the remainder of his term and after about six months he escaped, which was some time in 1919, and has been at large since that date.

Sheriff Douglass arrested Griffiths for the theft of a saddle, alleged to have been the property of the late Roy Elrod, who died April 4. The saddle was taken from Mr. Elrod's premises on the 17th day of March while he was away in a sanitarium. Griffiths made a complete confession to County Attorney Levi Pressly of the theft of the saddle. He very strenuously denied being the William Griffiths for which there was a reward of $50 offered by the Indiana State Prison, but after being confronted with his picture and other marks of identification which Sheriff Douglass had acknowledged that he was the same William Griffiths wanted by the prison authorities. He was carried to Plainview Sunday afternoon and placed in jail to await the arrival of the prison authorities for his return to Indiana. He signed a waiver of extradition and stated that he was ready to return without contest. Sheriff Douglass wired the authorities and August H. Knosman, parole officer of the prison, arrived here Thursday morning to return Griffiths to Indiana county from Oklahoma City in A. 1923, and have resided here that date, going under the name of Orvell Brown.

It was due to the efficient Sheriff Douglass that he was freed. Mr. Douglass has no tures and rewards offered for the capture of criminals and he is to be congratulated for his good memory and close watch on these pictures and

LESSONS FROM THE INTER-SCHOLASTIC LEAGUE MEET.

Several lessons gained from the recent League contests are so evident that the attention of the people of the county should be called to them.

First, it demonstrated that when properly handled the contests can be conducted without controversies and trouble over the points given or over the cups when finally awarded.

Then, one of the best points ever brought out was that no school in the county tried to enter pupils who were not eligible, even refusing to run pupils in for only two weeks in order to get them into the athletic events. The teachers of the county are to be highly complimented on this score. The practice above mentioned should be ruled out of our contests as the pupils who have attended and been loyal to a school should not be displaced by those who enter only for the track meet.

As the writer sees it, the greatest and most important lesson is to be drawn from the great lead Muleshoe had on her Seniors in both track and literary events. The reason Muleshoe took so many first, second and third places in Senior track events is very evident. She had the big boys to enter and take the places. In other words, the point is clearly demonstrated that a consolidated school has an enormous advantage in keeping the larger boys in school. Such a school can have the number and the class of teachers, the proper equipment, and can offer the interesting courses which will hold the boys and girls, especially the boys, and give them the education which will entitle them to an accredited diploma.

Other districts in the county had large boys who should have been in school and in these events but they were not. Why? I will leave that for you to answer and I know that you will not have to search long for it.

Then Muleshoe's winning did not depend altogether on athletics in which the big boys took part. In literary events she took eight first places out of 16 events offered, as well as several second places. Why was this? Here again it is also evident that our larger pupils have stayed with us above the 8th grade and have more enthusiasm and team work which comes from having a larger number of students together in the classes in place of only two or three or sometimes only one as we have in many of our rural school classes.

It is such a pity our rural children arrive at the point in about the 8th grade that they think they know about all the school can offer above it, or that no course is offered which will keep them in life and so drop out and go to farming or take some poorly paid job in the town in place of going on through high school and getting an education which will fit them to occupy the larger spheres of life to which they are entitled.

People of Bailey County, has not the value of central or consolidated high schools been demonstrated time and time again in the older states in the older parts of Texas, and even in our own county to such an extent that we can afford to lay aside our petty selfishness, our little jealousies and our prejudices and work together for the advancement of the high school education of our students in Bailey county?

The Best of the Bad.

On the morning of a recent election in Tennessee a negro was hanging around the polls impatiently waiting to be "approached."

A candidate for some office coming along asked him if he had been in to vote. He said, "No, I ain't voted yet." Upon his promise to vote for him the candidate gave him a dollar.

Another candidate for the same office came up, and after a similar conversation $2.00 changed hands.

Thinking it possibly more profitable to delay voting for a while, the darky waited until a third candidate for the same office had increased his exchequer by $3 upon his promise to "support" him.

Upon being asked for which man he voted he said, "I voted for the man that gave me $1, of course, for he was the least corrupt."

TARWATER FOR LEGISLATURE.

A. B. Tarwater, who lives near Runningwater, Hale Co., announces as a candidate for the legislature. He has owned property in Hale county for eighteen years, and moved here seven years ago. He graduated from the University of Tennessee, and then, after taking the law clerk's examination, entered the federal civil service and was in Washington two years; then for twelve years he was inspector in the pension department and was in the confidential work. He resigned and moved to Hale county and has been actively engaged in farming since then. He is a student of public affairs, has good ideas of legislation, and if elected will give his best service to the people. In his announcement he says:

"Subject to the democratic primary, I announce as a candidate for representative in the state Legislature for the 120th legislative district.

"In the brief space at my disposal in making this announcement I will state that I stand for the firm and strict enforcement of all the laws of this state, for strict economy in the management of our state affairs, for the enactment of just as few laws as is consistent with good government and the protection of our citizens, their homes and property.

"As the public debt and tax levy in our state for the past ten years have far exceeded the per cent of increase in our population and property valuation, we naturally feel that our taxes are too high, and if elected to the legislature I shall make a careful study of all proposed tax laws and appropriations of the state's money and use my best efforts to bring about legislation which will reduce taxes, and at the same time not decrease the efficiency of our state institutions, or prevent necessary public improvements, or impair the enforcement of our laws; and I believe this can be done by carefully enacted laws eliminating waste, unnecessary state officials, bureaus and commissions."

Daughter, who thinks she knows everything about life, and who knows nothing, buys her ticket and with a few hundreds in her wrist bag says goodbye to her family.

Why should any girl with good looks and a talent stay at home and help her mother wash dishes when by a the exercise of a little spirit and initiative, she can go out and conquer the world? The strang life into which she is going has no terrors for her until she finds how very expensive it is to live.

But, before the money is quite gone, her beauty has attracted a friend, middle-aged, good-looking, smartly dressed, and the soul of generosity.

Almost before she knows it, she is compromised. The first shock of realization is terrible. Then, it is softened by learning how to drink, by riding in a limousine, by having such clothes as she never dreamed of in the days when she lived in Junction Center, and by being the recipient of lavish attentions.

Yet, there are hours when her thoughts turn back to that quiet village. She thinks of her patient mother, of the cheerful song of the boiling kettle in the little, old kitchen, of the children studying their next day's lessons, of her father with his bald head and his shiny clothes, peering through his bi-focals at the evening news.

"Those were happy days," she says to herself as she contemplates her latest entanglement, with the emphasis on the "were". Of course, she did not realize that they were happy when she had them. They "look good" to her only in retrospect.

Girls—think, not twice, but ten times, before you leave father and mother, before you turn your back on those little homes that are none too beautiful, before you shake from your feet the dust from the village, where if there be little excitement there is love and security for you.

Don't join the throng of Zoe Wilkins, Dot Kings and Louise Lawsons.—By Edith Johnson, in The Daily Oklahoman.

Six log rafts, each 900 feet long and containing 5,000,000 feet of lumber, besides carrying deck loads of shingles and cedar poles, will be brought to San Diego, California, this year from the Columbia River. The rafts run on schedule, the first starting on June 15 in tow of a tug. They are cut into lumber by the mills at San Diego.

The expression, "Lo, the poor Indian" is from Alexander Pope's essay on Man. It occurs as follows: "Lo, the poor Indian! whose untutored mind sees God in clouds, or hears him in the wind."

THE AMERICAN'S CREED.

"I believe in the United States of America and the principles of freedom, justice, equality and humanity upon which it was founded and for which American patriots have given their lives and fortunes. I believe it is my duty towards my country to love it; to support its constitution; to obey its laws, and to defend it against all enemies."

THE ADVANTAGES OF AMERICA

The one thing above all others that has given modern conveniences to the common everyday American citizen has been the character of our government which encouraged the individual of enterprise to go ahead and develop industries unhampered by stifling interference and official control such as experienced in other nations.

The following facts speak for themselves and are a testimonial as to the advantage of the American system contrasted with methods which discourage private initiative.

The use of manufactured gas in Great Britain, where the industry was born a century and a quarter ago, is steadily increasing and last year totaled 232,600,000,000 cubic feet, or 5524 cubic feet per capita on a population basis of 42,000,000.

New York State alone, where first manufactured gas company was established in 1823, has developed a per capita use of gas nearly double this amount, with an estimated production this year of approximately 90 billion cubic feet.

The production of electrical energy in Great Britain last year reached a high total of 5,738,700,000 kilowatt hours or nearly 800 kilowatt hours for each person in the State, as against 134 kilowatt hours for each of the 42,000,000 persons in Great Britain.

When it comes to telephones, there is one for every 13 people in the nation, something unheard of in any other country in the world.

TRY A NEW METHOD

When you have occasion to speak of the place where you live, what is the burden of your remarks. Some complaint or grievance, no doubt.

The good things of community life we take as a matter of course and never give anyone credit for them. We believe that they are coming to us and we can see no reason for complaint.

If we have a good administration of affairs by public officials, we never take the trouble to tell them. If we have an unusually large number of public-spirited men who are working for the betterment of our local conditions, we seldom ever give them even faint praise.

But let something go wrong and our first inclination is to blow up. Somebody is to blame, of course, we reason, and that somebody needs a good reprimand, if not something worse.

Having let off steam, the most of us are ready for the next round and become almost human again.

But let's resolve to change our policy in the future. Why not try looking for the good things that may be found in abundance and boost them? It will benefit everyone who tries it and it will help the community too.

Some men work like they were afraid of the evils of over-production.

INCREASED RATES WILL HURT FARMER

Raise in Postal Rates Will Affect Agriculturists to Greater Extent Than Any Other Class.

Farmers will have to pay three times as much parcel post if the bill now being considered by a special committee of Congress becomes a law. Not only does it propose to increase the rates on parcel post packages, but it would greatly increase the charge on fourth class matter. This is of greater import to farmers than any other class although the parcel post, of course, is universally used. It catches the farmer both going and coming, for he has to pay postage on what he received and as a producer he has to pay postage on what he ships, and his prices are not set by himself but by the quotations on his market, whether it be close or at a distance. The parcel post charges in this respect are no different than the transportation rates on the railroads, and farmers long have realized that they pay the freight both ways.

Conditions are such at this time, with the purchasing power of agriculture reduced to its lowest ebb, than any increase in the parcel post rates will jeopardize the whole parcel post system, and this applies as well to fourth class matter. The parcel post rates now, considering the service that is rendered, are so close to the express rates that any increase in the former will mean that shipments by parcel post will be greatly curtailed to the benefit of the express companies. Further, the post office department is a service department. Nobody expects it to make money. All branches of any business are not equally profitable and cannot be expected to be made so. If an extra burden of increased rates is placed on the parcel post system it will only make it less profitable than at present.

There is a grave question as to whether the parcel post is not practically self supporting at the present time. At any rate, Congress appropriated one-half million dollars for the purpose of making a detail study of the cost of carrying all mail, including parcel post. The proposal now is for Congress to forget that expenditure and with blind wisdom try to readjust the parcel rates making the burden of the increase fall wholly upon parcel post.

of postal rates. The post office department has compiled all the data at immense expense, yet for some reason Congress has gotten into a feverish haste in which it wishes to revise the rates this session before the post office department can advise it intelligently regarding the proper distribution of costs. It will take the department three or four months or more to analyze the vast volume of records which they have secured thru the expenditure of this one-half million dollars and therefore any action which Congress takes during this session in revising parcel post and postal rates cannot be based upon the results of the department's study. Any congressman who votes for a change must do so ignoring the fact that about a year ago he voted for an appropriation of one-half million to be expended so as to guide him in his vote.

This proposal to increase the postal rates on the things the farmer buys and sells undoubtedly has its origin in the determination on the part of somebody to increase the salaries of postal employees. It is generally admitted, however, that the postal employees, taking them by and large, receive as high wages or salaries as is paid in industry for similar positions. Of course there are inequalities as in any large institution and these undoubtedly will be adjusted. The point which the farmers, make, however, is: Why make them carry the burden by increasing the rates on parcel post and fourth class matter? Certainly it is a most inopportune move to do this, especially at a time when a million and a quarter farmers annually, for the last three years, have left their farms because they cannot make a living. With the purchasing power of farm products at 74 per cent of what they were in 1913 and with the purchasing power of all other classes about twice as much as the farmers' why should they be called upon to bear any deficit in this service department of the government—if there is a deficit? The farmers long have wished for an increase in wages. They have learned to do without the things they need and wish very much, but they are not keen to bear an additional burden through the increase in parcel post rates.

FORD CARS AS BANDIT CHASERS

Armoured Flyers Are Now Used to Run Down Holdups.

Armored Ford cars as bandit chasers are the latest police innovation. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, Philadelphia's dynamic commissioner of public safety, is the man who introduced them.

Before he took office a few weeks back, the Philadelphia city council voted General Butler $5,000 with which to purchase an automobile for his personal use. But when salesmen for high-priced cars appeared and tried to interest him he made it plain that he intended to spend the money in purchasing the small, light cars for use as bandit chasers by the police department. The Ford runabout was his chance and it was not long before an enterprising Ford salesman had a car ready for the general's inspection.

Now the Philadelphia police have six of these armored Ford cars and under General Butler's plan this number will shortly be augmented until there will be ninety such bandit chasers in the service. The cars are built on the Ford chassis and are equipped with 1-8 inch special steel and the space between the armor plating and the outside of the car is packed with loose cotton and coarse hair to retard the velocity of bullets. Armor plate also covers the cowl and runs up as high as the lower portion of the windshield. The upper portion is in two sections of bullet-proof glass and wings have been provided for the front. The engines are specially built to afford increased speed, and show some interesting

THOMAS JEFFERSON.

Not within a century has so much attention been paid to the birthday of Thomas Jefferson, born at Shadwell, Virginia, 181 years ago, yesterday. After three generations of neglect the public mind has been turned again to the natal day of America's greatest political philosopher and at last the date of his birth is receiving a fair measure of that recognition which is its due. Warned and alarmed by the nation's steady trend towards centralization and bureaucracy Americans are once more calling to mind the matchless contribution of Jefferson to democratic equality and local self-government. While the nation has ever prized his teachings and has profited by his instruction it has never accorded his birthday the honor has paid to the birthdays of Washington and Lincoln. But more and more the conscience of America is turning back to the memories of Monticell and Americans are fast learning to regard April 13, as one of the great days of our history.—Oklahoman.

SHIPPED THE MILLIONTH BALE

Texas Celebrates at Houston Shipment of Immense Cotton Crop.

HOUSTON.—A great empire rising on the Gulf of Mexico, if the people of Texas will stop shipping their cotton abroad and begin manufacturing it into cloth, was pictured by Governor Pat M. Neff, in a speech at the millionth bale celebration at Houston on the 3rd.

Texas is wasting her resources and playing the role of the prodigal, the Governor declared. He dwelt on what he called the folly of the Texas farmer paying freight all the way from Houston to foreign ports and back in order to get his cotton made into cloth.

Pays Freight Twice

"A Texas farmer sells a bale of cotton for about $150, pays freight on it to the far distant factories, and then, after paying return freight on the finished product, buys back his bale for approximately $1,000," said the Governor. "This stream of gold should not be permitted to flow out of the State each year. If we can make a living by merely growing cotton, and if other states and countries can become wealthier than we are by manufacturing our output, it is accepted without argument that if we ourselves can do our own manufacturing, Texas will easily leap to the pinnacle of wealth and power."

Governor Neff referred to the great cotton crop of this State, representing last year 47 per cent of the total production of the country.

"Yet we have only a very few small cotton mills," he continued. "We have lost all our wisdom if we continue to ship our 4,000,000 bales a year to other states and countries to be converted into the finished products."

He cited North Carolina as an example of what manufacturing had done for a state. Only a few years ago, he said, North Carolina was a backwoods state. Then she turned to manufacturing and today has 5,000 manufacturing plants with an annual payroll of $130,000,000.

Factory Center Seen.

"If the people will arise to their opportunities," concluded Governor Neff, "this ship channel, where 17 railroads greet the waters of the sea, will, during this generation, be lined with manufacturing industries where the raw materials of the South and West will be turned into the finished product, to be carried by the ships of the world. This can be done for the reason that Texas has the cotton, the climate, the fuel, the labor and the transportation lines, on land and on sea.

If the people of this State will avail themselves of the opportunities at their door they will soon make the Gulf of Mexico the Mediterranean of the West, and on the southern shores of Texas will be built, by Texas genius and Texas gold, the Liverpool of the new world."

Beginning with a parade through downtown streets at 10 a. m. Houston celebrated the shipping of the millionth bale of cotton from this port during the current cotton season, which opened Aug. 1, 1923.

PORTS INVOLVED IN REAL PLAN

AUSTIN, April 15.—Hope of Texas Gulf Ports for development of steamship lines to the Atlantic Seaboard became involved in the proposed merger of the Gulf coast lines and the International-Great Northern railroad at the hearing on this matter before the Texas railroad commission on the 9th.

Beaumont and Houston came to the front as probable rivals for business should the merger go through, although both towns favor the move.

H. C. Eargle, representing the Beaumont chamber of commerce, said his organization favored the merger in the belief that a new steamship line, the Transmarine Steamship company, operating from Newark, N. J., to Beaumont, would be benefitted. He explained that if the Gulf coast lines gained control of the International-Great Northern, much traffic from the latter road would go to Beaumont for shipment by the sea. Beaumont is on the Gulf coast lines, but the International Great Northern does not touch there.

The water shipments from Beaumont last year totalled 3,250,000 tons, he testified adding it was the hope of Beaumont that these shipments would be greatly increased by the organization of this stronger railroad system.

TWO COTTON QUARANTINES COMMONLY CONFUSED

President Kent of Agricultural College Explains Difference.

There are two distinct quarantine regulations affecting cotton in New Mexico. These are continually being confused by farmers and business men of the state. President Kent of the New Mexico Agricultural College, explains these as follows:

One quarantine prevents the shipment of cotton seed out of the state, except to other quarantined areas adjoining New Mexico, and prohibits the shipment of lint cotton except for export purposes. This quarantine was imposed by the Federal Horticultural Board on account of the presence of pink boll worm in New Mexico. This quarantine is enforced entirely by Federal authorities. No pink boll worms have been found in New Mexico this past season. The state requirement that all cotton seed be heat treated as it leaves the gin rolls will probably reduce danger from the pink boll worm to such an extent that the quarantine will be removed in the near future.

The other quarantine imposed and enforced by state authorities prevents the importation of seed or lint cotton, picking bags, planters, used cotton tools, certain packing materials, etc., from states east of New Mexico. This quarantine was imposed in 1921 in an effort to prevent the introduction of the boll weevil into New Mexico.

Because of the great demand for cotton seed for planting this year, permits have been issued for the importation of cotton seed which has been inspected and found to be free from danger of importing insect enemies or cotton diseases.

These two quarantines may work a slight hardship at times on individuals, but are imposed to protect a young industry which promises to add much to the wealth of the state.

OAK TREES JOINED BY LIMB.

KERENS, Texas, April 17.—On a piece of woodland three miles west of town, belonging to W. S. Price, is a freak of nature that is said to have no duplicate in Texas. Two oak trees are growing about eight feet apart, and seven feet from the ground a limb has grown from one to the other. The limb is nearly parallel with the ground and has a uniform diameter of about six inches.

Price says he has observed the tree for twenty years and has found no explanation for it.

DUN'S WEEKLY REVIEW

For The Journal.

An uneven situation in business still exists, with sharp contrasts being shown. Consumption remains very large, but there is relatively little forward buying; steel output has been record-breaking, yet orders have recently decreased; notable activity in the building industry is indicated, although some points show signs of a let-up; cotton goods trading has lately increased, but curtailment of production goes on; and similar irregularities appear in other quarters. Some gain in retail sales has come with the moderate sized commitments, covering there has been a drawback and the same influence has impeded farm-work and the progress of crops in some sections. These phases have had an effect upon sentiment, but price uncertainties and political conditions account for most of the present hesitation and disinclination to anticipate further needs. Even with supplies at a low point in various instances, approach of Easter, yet inclement weather or nearby requirements only, are the rule and the cautious purchasing has led to sharper competition for business in several directions. As pressure to sell increases, price concessions are made more frequently and Dun's list of wholesale quotations for the sixth consecutive week shows an excess of declines. Despite the restricted forward buying and the evidence of price reaction, however, underlying conditions are considered sound, and the report on German reparations, which is of international significance, may have a constructive influence.
