Barbarian Festival Planning Continues Hunter's Feed Winner Announced

The Barbarian Festival group met on November 28 at Jean's Feed Barn to begin elaborating on plans for the festival on September 1, 2001.

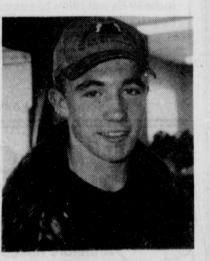

First, however, the group wants to thank the community for its support in each Barbarian activity. The last endeavor was the raffle of the portable cook stove during the Hunter's Feed. The winner was Cooper Thornhill, a sophomore student from Rising Star. He hunts with his dad and can really use the stove.

The Barbarians say, "Thank you, hunters, for coming this way." Also, "Thank you, Chamber of Commerce, for planning events that show our town to be a friendly place." The Barbarians are pleased to take part in such activities.

Right now, the group is getting wound up for the next festival. Hopefully, each year the festival will get bigger and better.

There are at this time 14 members, and those get stretched to make the Festival a day of fun that will keep visitors coming back. Right now there are groups working on door prizes, a raffle, food wenders, arts and crafts ideas, a car show, entertainment, etc.

Last year a lot of tornado trash was cleared out from the festival site, but

A Quiet Hero

Yesterday, I attended the funeral of my friend, Clyde Melton in Cross Plains. Clyde is another World War II hero who lived a post-World War II life unacclaimed and with little or no public recognition for his wartime exploits. Clyde was only 72 years of age.

Clyde joined the United States Navy when he was 15 years of age and had participated in six Island invasions and the Battle of the Coral Sea before he reached his 16th birthday. This brave young man possessed a passionate love for his country and always believed that he had only done what all other 15- and 16-year olds would have done if given the opportunity. He told me that he only mentioned his age one time and that was during the Battle of the Coral Sea when his gun battery took a hit. He picked himself up one deck below and discovered miraculously that he had escaped erious injury and remained able to fight. The captain came by and wante to know why he was standing around doing nothing and ordered him to return to his gun battery and resume the fight. Clyde's response was to state "I am only 15 years old." The captain accused him of being a coward and claimed that he was only making that statement in an effort to escape the fight. Clyde told me that he returned to his place in battle and never again mentioned his true age to any person in authority. Another Old Warrior has gone to rest-I grew up listening to their stories and never tired of hearing them over and over again as I grew older. Most of the time getting them to tell their story was like pulling teeth. Clyde has only been gone a few days and I miss him already-what I miss most is knowing that I cannot pick up the telephone and visit with Clyde-or I cannot ever in the future drop by his house in Cross Plains and engage him in conversation-and feeling guilty for not seeing him more often. He grew up at Pioneer having been born shortly after the "big oil boom," went to the Navy when he was barely 15 years of age, came back from the service and married his Minneapolis sweetheart, and at one time operated the biggest plumbing contracting firm in Minnesota. In the 1970s and 1980s he was very active in the oil business in this area. He is survived by his sweetheart from Minneapolis, Elizabeth L. Melton of Cross Plains; a son, Thomas Clyde Melton of Cross Plains; a daughter, Cheryl Ann Trenary of Tulsa, Okla; and his grandson Scott Joseph Trenary. We join them in sorrow.

James and Jean Alexander had several guests during the Thanksgiving Holiday. My mother used to tell how their turkeys would hide their nests out in some field or equally foreign area such as the neighbors back lot etcetera. The turkeys would use all kinds of diversive tricks, exotic diversions and strange trails to throw a person off and to keep their nests from being found. She said some times she'd have to follow a turkey all day long in her quest to find that nest. The turkeys were very adroit at eluding the person following. They were also very devious. Mother said sometimes they never did find those nests.

Once my sister and I talked our Aunt into frying us a turkey egg, when we were very tiny, like 2 and 4 etc. It tasted (of course) just like a chicken egg only it was much, much larger.

Now-a-days there are people who are often referred to as turkeys. I must admit to having known a few. How about you? Have you ever known any?? Some even sound like a turkey, gobble, gobble, gobble!!!

I guess my files are garbled (not gobbled) since this is about all I know concerning T U R K E Y S 1111111111

Oh, by the way we had one for Thanksgiving, it went over so well that we plan to have two for Christmas. Try one--you might like it!!

GARDEN TIPS By James Nichols

Cut at least 1/4 inch off the bottom of the Christmas tree before putting it in the stand to help it absorb water. Keep poinsettias evenly moist but not soggy for longest, lasting color. Fill a pot with garden supplies; it makes a great gift for a friend who gardens.

Hang a sweet ball for high-energy bird food. Never put out bread crumbs, while this will fill the birds up, it doesn't supply enough calories.

Bob Powell, president, welcomed everyone and gave special recognition to Ray Purvis, Mayor, LaVerne Hood, District VIII Director and Sandra Browning, both from Snyder. Other special guests were Doris Purcell and Frona Carpenter of Abilene.

Powell paid tribute to the deceased members who had served as president with a moment of silence. Honorary pins were presented to Lucille Payne, Dorothy Webb, Julene Franke and Barbara Powell. Life membership ribbons were presented to Julene Franke, Helen Tillotson and Joyce Odom.

The serving table was centered with a beautiful centerpiece and flanked by green candles on either side. The food carried out the bounty of that great ole Texas hospitality. A

Callahan County Receives Capital Murder Funding

As of August 31, 2000 only five counties in Texas have applied for funding from the Governor's Criminal Justice Division for extraordinary capital murder costs. Of the five counties, only two have received funding, according to the Criminal Justice Division. Callahan County was on of the two counties to receive this funding. Callahan County Judge Roger Corn received the following letter from Governor George W. Bush dated June 28, 2000. It reads as follows:

Dear Judge Corn:

I am pleased to announce a grant for $34,530 to your organization safer place. Funding for your punch completed the lovely table. Green candles circle with red pyracantha berries and ivy centered the individual tables.

Scrapbooks, year books and flower show schedules, along with two designs completed the year "memories".

Guests attending were Vivian Lewis, Abilene; Virginia Trevey and Jennifer Stewart, Snyder; Nancy Palmer, Clyde; Ty Laffou, San Diego, California; Lois Garrett, Noah and Bobbie Johnson, Johnnie Bland, Zora Mae Bryant, Bobbie Edmondson, Becky Odom, Dorothy Odom, Donna Burleson, Kathy Anderson, Lovey Nichols and Dr. Richard Chaffin, all of Cross Plains. On Tuesday, we traveled to play Priddy losing the contest 58-29. It was a tough loss to a quality program. We only shot 16% from the field and didn't do a very good job of rebounding. Turner led the scoring with 17, Wyatt 4, Marion, Thomas, and Wilson 2 each, Bailey and Kitchens 1 each. We played hard on defense, but Priddy had an excellent shooting night, hitting over 50% of their 1st shots.

On Thursday, we traveled to Blanket to begin play in the Blanket Shootout. In opening round action, we beat Lingleville by the score of 62-25. In the second round of action we defeated May by the score of 52-28. May has a good ballclub this year and was 6-0 entering play against us. In the championship game we lost a hard fought contest to Zephyr 42-38. We controlled the game for most of the contest, but could only manage 4 points the last 9 minutes of the game. We missed some easy shots down the stretch and some free throws and it came back to haunt us at the end. We had a super tournament over all and the learning experiences we had to deal with will pay off in the future. Scoring the points for a 3 day total were Bailey 50, Hartman 2, Wyatt 20, Turner 18, Kitchens 8, Marion 15, Thomas 9, and Wilson 30.

Candice Bailey was named to the All-Tournament team at Blanket.

Lady Buff Freshman and

Candice averaged 17 points, 6 rebounds, 3 assists, 3 steals, shot right at 50% from the field, 19 for 40 was 12 for 24 from the free throw line and averaged 2 1/2 turnovers per game. Candice had an excellent tournament at Blanket.

This brings our season record to 5-3. Six of the eight teams we've played have two losses or less at this point in the season. We are playing some quality competition and will continue to do so as we continue through the season. You have to be in the fire before you can learn how not to get burned.

Don't forget the Cross Plains Tournament this weekend. We play at 6:30p.m. girls and 8:00p.m. boys on Thursday night.

Regional water planning group seeks nominations for new members

The Brazos G Regional Water Planning Group is soliciting nominations for two new voting members, one representing municipalities and one representing water districts. Nominations will be accepted until January 15, 2001. The new members will be elected by the Group at its first regular quarterly business meeting in Waco on February 26, 2001.

In selecting members for these two positions, the Group will consider a number of factors, including the nominees' representation of municipalities or water districts, their willingness to serve, water knowledge, regional water planning experience, and their commitment to the regional water planning process. "Municipalities" means the governments of cities created or organized under the general, home-rule, or special laws of the State of Texas. "Water districts" are defined in accord with Section 36.00 1 of the Texas Water Code as any district or authority created pursuant to the Texas Constitution, Article III, Section 52, or Article XVI, Section 59, including those with authority to regulate the spacing of water wells, the production from water wells or both, but not including river authorities. The Group has been working since 1998 to develop a comprehensive regional water plan for its 37-County planning area, which extends generally along the Brazos River from Kent, Stonewall and Knox Counties in the Northwest to Washington and Lee Counties in the Southeast. The Brazos G Group is one of 16 regional water planning groups covering the State which are charged with developing regional water plans under Senate Bill 1, passed by the Legislature in 1997. The Group submitted its initially prepared plan to the Texas Water Development Board for comment on October 2. Once the TWDB responds to the Group with comments on the initially prepared plan, the Group will finalize the plan for submission to the State in January 2001.

regional water plans are to be updated at least every five years. As soon as the Brazos G plan is approved and accepted by the TWDB, the Group will start work on the next five-year revision of the plan.

The regional water plans provide for the orderly development, management, and conservation of water resources, and include drought preparation and response. The goal of the planning process is to assure that sufficient water will be available at a reasonable cost to ensure public health, safety, and welfare, further economic development and protect agricultural and natural resources.

Nominations should be mailed to the following address and must be received by January 15, 2001: Executive Committee

Texas GOP Welcomes Latest Party Switcher

AUSTIN — Susan Weddington, Republican Party of Texas Chairman, today welcomed the 154th elected Texas Democrat to join the Republican Party in the last eight years.

Callahan County Justice of the Peace Rolan Jones announced today that he is changing his party affiliation from Democrat to Republican.

"On behalf of Republicans all across Texas, I would like to welcome Judge Jones into our party," said Weddington. "He has demonstrated tremendous courage and a commitment to conservative principles by joining the Republican Party after 14 years in office as a Democrat."

Since Bill Clinton and Al Gore took office in 1992, over 450 elected Democrats have switched parties nationwide. 154-- more than thirty percent of the national total -- are former Texas Democrats.

"Judge Jones is the latest in a long line of elected Democrats to disavow the liberal leadership of the Texas Democrat Party and join the Remember smoking and alcoholic beverages are not allowed. The Grand Ole Oplin is located at FM 604 South and FM 2926 in Oplin. GOP. His switch is indicative of the groundswell of support that Republicans are experiencing all over Texas," said Weddington.

Jones sited the behavior of Vice President Al Gore and Democrat Party leaders surrounding the presidential election as the "last straw", "I can no longer be a member of a party that would put winning before doing what is right," said Jones.

"The Republican Party is gaining momentum all across Texas as we take our message of limited government, strong families and personal responsibility to the people. Grassroots Democrats are joining the Republican family because the Democrat Party simply no longer represents these traditional, conservative Texas principles."

Rolan Jones is a small business owner, an Army veteran and a former schoolteacher. He was first elected to the office of Callahan County Justice of the Peace, Precinct 4, in 1986.

Million in State and Local Sales Taxes

The Callahan County Historical Commission is once again offering a holiday package on two of its most sought after articles as a Christmas special. The official history book of Callahan County, "I Remember Callahan" edited by Hicks Turner and the Burkett Pecan pen are being offered by the commission through the end of December. The cost of book and pen together is $70.00.

"I Remember Callahan" normally sells for $55.00. It is a 475 page, large bound volume relating the history of the county and many of its families and contains many pare tax returns for lower and middle income individuals as well as those with disabilities, language barriers, and other special needs. The volunteers are usually members of community organizations, college students, retirees, professionals, or anyone who enjoys working with numbers.

Special IRS training will be provided. Computers, software, and support will be available. Once trained, the volunteers set up free tax help sites in local schools, churches, libraries, and community centers.

one of the key figures in proposing the Atlas ICBM site, between Clyde and Baird off FM 18, be turned into an Atlas ICBM Museum.

According to Sanders' resolution to the Commissioners' Court, the Atlas ICBM was America's first operational intercontinental ballistic missile system and was rapidly deployed by the United State Air Force's Strategic Air Command to deter military threats from the Soviet Union.

Sanders said the Atlas F ICBM's were the most advanced version of the Atlas ballistic missile system and were deployed in hardened, deep subterranean launch structures called silos.

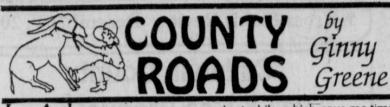

According to Sanders, there were 12 Atlas ICBM bases strategically located in West Texas near rural communities around Dyess Air Force Base and Abilene. The five Atlas ICBM bases were located on and supported via Farm to Mark Road 604 at the communities of Bradshaw, Lawn, Oplin, Denton Valley and Clyde.

Sanders said through the proposed legislation designating FM 604 as the Atlas ICBM Highway, the citizens of Callahan County can recognize the significant contribution the Atlas ICBM played in America's victory in the Cold War, and further to honor the pioneering civilians who engineered, constructed, and serviced the Atlas ICBMs, and the heroic United States Air Force Missileers who operated the system.

During discussion of the resolution, Commissioners were told the designation of FM 604 as the Atlas ICBM Highway would be an honorary title only-that no portion of FM 604 would be renamed.

On a motion by Commissioner Charlie Grider and second by Commissioner Harold Hicks, Commissioners voted 5-0 to endorse the legislation designating FM 604 as the Atlas ICBM Highway.

In Arkansas...

There was this tree. And a spring. And a slope. There was a large clearing, and a whole bunch of trees in the background.

This is Arkansas. We saw a lot of it during our long weekend visit with MyKeeper's sister and her husband.

Their charming farm home, made so by their own sweat and artistry, has a Polynesian ambiance influenced by their years in Hawaii. The house hides among trees, and peeks out over hilly pastures dotted with a few cows, some horses, and a million birds.

The upstairs bedroom has French doors and a small deck overlooking the east pasture. With few alterations, it is the very room I discover climbing the stairs in my dreams, a spacious room that always turns out to be my writing room.

The roomy enclosed porch is their Mainland garden lanai. It's size and decor qualify it as my Dream Mudroom, though more elegant than I've ever imagined. It is light, airy and livable. Ceiling fans ruffle tropical fronds. Potted plants tier the deck stairs. Wicker and rattan furnish comfy seating. A wall of tall windows make it work in Arkansas weather extremes.

The view through the lanai is pastoral from any point in the front rooms of the house. Cows graze the steep hillside. Families of birds and small wildlife call the place Home. The family dogs protect their boundaries from visiting peacocks who are not intimidated.

The view out the east window is a tree at the edge of a spring across the dirt road. There's a slope and a large clearing, and a whole bunch of trees lining the back edge of the clearing.

Late afternoon, the second day we were there, the guys were out hunting. Visions of venison danced in our heads. I was left to myself for a short while, which gave me time to run from window to window enjoying Nature's autumn ballet.

The stage was backlit by the oblique angle of the great spotlight in the sky. It cast a burnished orange glow across the scenery. The distant trees etched a green line across the glassy water.

The mood held me captivated while the Technical Director lowered the intensity of the lighting, passed it through a couple of cloud filters, and brought the angle lower and lower to the horizon.

A burnt sienna flicker caught my eye. It was a deer, meandering in a graceful arc across the clearing. The sun's alpenglow made it the star of the landscape for several minutes. The doe came to stand at the edge of the spring, still and alert, safety a practiced and automatic response.

It dipped its head to the water and then lifted it again, listening. Satisfied that it could drink uninterrupted, the deer lowered its head to the edge of the spring. Her muzzle riffled widening concentric circles that swam to the other side and spent themselves on the far bank.

As I watched, the deer slaked her thirst, the lighting dimmed to gray, the scene turned to sylvan fantasy, then faded to black.

Somewhere between the dimming of day shine, and the rising of the moon, the main character left the stage. It's an old scene to her, played out day after day. She'll be back on another pathway, though, headed towards another stage, ready for the next performance first thing tomorrow morning.

The guys came back, shivering and red-cheeked, and without a deer. Their deer hunting expedition had turned into an all-day nature hike.

On a cold day like that, the best way to "catch" a deer is like I did, huddled up to the fireplace. © Ginny Greene 2000
