Judo students take charge

If there was a "Bad Career Move Award" for car thieves, police in Los Angeles say they have a candidate -a man who tried to steal a minivan with a judo team inside.

The co-ed team from Florida International University of Miami was in town to teach a self-defense course and was taking a tour of Hollywood before heading to the airport.

The team crossed paths with the carjacker at a gas station about six blocks from where he had carjacked a Nissan minutes earlier.

In that incident, police said, the carjacker punched the Nissan's driver, pulled him out of the car and drove away with the female passen-

The carjacker pushed the woman out of the car after trying to steal her purse, police said.

The suspect apparently was trying to ditch the first vehicle and steal another when he approached one of the students, police said. He demanded money and got into a scuffle with judo student Nester Bustillo.

"We get into a little bit of a struggle and he eventually winds up jumping into, trying to take our car," Bustillo told a local TV station.

The other students piled on and subdued the suspect in a body hold until police arrived.

"They hit him a couple of times and brought him to ground," Los Angeles Police Department Officer Jack Richter said.

"Our department does not condone or recommend that people do that in a carjacking because you never know if the carjacker is armed," Richter

Police identified the suspect as Tyrone Jermaine Hogan, 20, who was held in lieu of $1.2 million bail.

School officials cautious on enro

JOURNAL STAFF REPORT

Enrollment is looking exceptionally good for Muleshoe schools this fall, but school officials aren't dancing a jig just yet.

Superintendent Gene Sheets said Monday that enrollment that enrollment was 53 students above the figure at the same point last year, with 23 or 24 of those at Dillman Elementary School.

If this figure holds, it could mean a considerable jump in state funding for the Sheets said, however, that there could be factors — such as fewer students enrolling later — that might make the increase less remarkable by the time official enrollment figures are turned in to the state.

During discussion at Monday night's school board meeting, Magann Rennels asked from the audience whether Sheets knew of other area school districts that were experiencing enrollment increases. He replied that some districts of similar size are dealing with decreases of 50 or even 100 students, but he hadn't heard of any others with such a big increase.

He said the situation could result in the addition of a teacher at Dillman.

The board approved a tax rate of $1.40 per $100 assessed evaluation, as discussed at the previous meeting, and also approved a balanced budget for the 2002-2003 school year.

Mules ready to open fire against Seminole

By DELTON WILHITE Journal sportswriter

After two scrimmages, the Mules kick off their 2002 football season at 8 p.m. Friday in Seminole against the Indians.

This is the first year for the Mules to open their season during zero week and have an open date before district play be-

"We are starting a week early this year, and the first scrimmage (with New Deal) replaced our inter-squad scrimmage," Muleshoe coach David Wood said this week. "In Idalou, we were doing what we normally do during our first scrimmage.

"We were looking at individual personnel and tried to put them in different situations to see how they would react," he said.

"We learned that we need to be more perimeter-oriented in our offense and that our defense is going to have to get into different fronts to confuse people and not just stay in our base formation."

Two pleasant surprises for the Mules have been Kyle Yell and Valentine Colunga. Because of early injuries, Yell has already got to show he can catch the ball at tight end and has turned into a force as a linebacker on defense.

Colunga is not very big but has quickness and can catch the ball as a wide re-

According to Wood, "Kyle has really grown up and could be a two-way starter for us this season. Valentine uses his quickness as a receiver and hangs onto the ball really well." Seminole scrimmaged Shallowater last week and — much like the Mules — stuck to their basics. Wood expects both teams to open up their offenses and defenses more Friday night.

The Indians have a sophomore running back, Jeremy Hill, who stands 6 feet, 3 inches tall and is listed at 190 pounds.

Against Shallowater, Hill made things happen for the Indians but since he is a sophomore, he may not start against the Mules. He can be expected to get in the Amanda Bailey won a national title in Level 10 double mini, Amber Cowart won the silver medal in senior double mini and the team won the national team title in both women's double mini and women's trampoline.

Bailey also won eighth in senior trampoline, while Cowart took 12th in the same

These contests were held the first three days of the weeklong competition, while younger athletes (levels five through seven) competed the final two days.

"We were really proud of the upper-level athletes," said Will Green, director of the academy. "They really set the tone for the rest of the competition."

Other Muleshoe athletes competing were Madison Chester, national title in Level 5 trampoline, silver in double mini; Kaylie Miller, silvers in double mini and tumbling, bronze in trampoline; Keela Chester, national title in trampoline, silver in double mini and bronze in tumbling; and Jake Chester, fourth in trampoline and double mini, fourth in tumbling.

Amanda Bailey, Keela Chester, Jake Chester, Madison Chester, Kaylie Miller and coach Will Green pause during the Junior Olympic National Championships in Indianapolis.

Outlook optimistic for school district's food service

JOURNAL STAFF REPORT

After registering a huge loss for the 2000-2001 school year, Aramark's foodservice operation in the Muleshoe School District has reported a much smaller loss for the year just ending and projects operations in the black for the coming year.

Robin Thacker, now Aramark's local manager, inherited a situation that had been bleak by the time it was discovered last year, but had seen some improvement.

She reported Monday that the operation had managed to cut its losses from tens of thousands to possibly $8,000 for the year. (Bills are still being paid, so a firm figure is not yet available.)

Thacker's projected budget for next year shows a surplus of more than $1,800 that could be plowed back into improvements.

Board member Cindy Purdy asked Thacker at Monday night's board meeting what profit Aramark showed in Muleshoe for the just-finished year, and Thacker said she didn't know but would find out.

Asked if new offerings are being considered for the school cafeterias, Thacker replied, "I've been trying to see what the kids are bringing from outside the cafeteria, to see what they want."

Purdy also asked if Aramark intends to cover the deficit. Superintendent Gene Sheets said there had been no discussion about which side would cover it.

Sunflower agreage down; Production outdoing last year's

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL COLLEGE STATION

Although planted sunflower acreage is significantly down this year, production is looking similar to 2001, Texas Cooperative Extension reports.

"A surge of new growers were disappointed last year when near-record temperatures and a lack of rainfall caused sunflower destruction throughout the state," said Calvin Trostle, Extension agronomist in Lub-

"For those who were first-time growers last year, I think it cut down considerably on the renewal rate or people who grow the second year," he added.

Although fewer acres have been planted this year, temperatures have been a cooler, and overall weather conditions have been better since planting, he said.

Sunflowers are planted for food and oil, and fields provide environments for dove hunting.

There are two main market types of sunflow-ers," Trostle said. "The first is the confectionary type; these are used for food such as the seeds one may see at the checkout stand of a convenience store.

For confectionary markets, "If we plant poor quality seed, it becomes quite expensive," Trostle said. 'As far as the crop, because of the nature of the insect, the sunflower head moth, it is best that a grower do what he can to get a uniform stand."

The oil-seed sunflower is crushed for oil. Many of last year's new planters had hoped to tap into this market, but a proposed oil-seed crushing market in Lubbock never materialized.

cres that were planted with the intent that they would come to Lubbock for crushing on the oil-seed sunflower, but then that company decided not to crush

'So there were some after a lot of sunflowers had been planted," Trostle said.

'The irony there is the prices have rocketed up since a lot of sunflowers were planted. We're looking at $12 per hundredweight in some oil-seed circumstances, and last year were looking at $8.50 per hundred pounds."

Most of sunflower production in Texas is in the High Plains. Centers include Lubbock, Plainview Floydada, Pampa and Dumas Stratford

There's a processor for confectionary in Lubbock so that makes delivery easier and there's not a lot of trucking involved," Trostle said

'A lot of the market in the Panhandle, north of Amarillo, is a combination. You have confectionary, and those guys are close enough to the market in western Kansas that you'll see more oil-seed acres up there

The nearest market this year would be in Goodland, Kan., and that is about 450 miles north of Lubbock. We estimate that the freight up to Goodland and back would run about $1.50 per hundred pounds of sunflowers.

'We were going to have two (oil-seed) markets in Lubbock, but one of them did not develop," he added.

The other market is associated with Red River Commodities in Lubbock

The company primarily processes confectionary sunflowers, but also opened a bird-food plant last fall. So some oil-seed sunflowers are taken in Lubbock — for bird food rather than for crushing, he

"But most people in the South Plains region, if they're going to grow oil-seed, they are looking at the Red River market in Lubbock unless prices are really strong and then they'd be looking at shipping to Goodland."

NGAGEMENT

UNDERWOOD-DANIEL

Jim and Lorraine Sandoval of Hereford announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Kara Underwood of Plainview, to Todd Daniel of Lubbock, son of Jim and Paula Daniel of Lazbuddie. The bride-elect is a graduate of the Texas Tech Health Sciences Center School of Nursing. She is a surgical nurse at Covenant Hospital in Plainview. The prospective groom is a graduate of Amarillo College and is a sales associate at Zimmer-Baker Associates Inc. The wedding is scheduled for Oct. 12 at St. Paul Historical Church in Lubbock, with a reception following the ceremony. Invitations have been sent.

Men also get eating disorders

HOUSTON — Females are not the only ones falling victim to obsessive pursuits of "the perfect body."

About 10 percent of patients diagnosed with an eating disorder are male.

"Typically, males who develop an eating disorder start off with a weight problem," said Dr. Jana Rosenbaum of the Baylor College of Medicine eating disorders program in Hous-

"They try to diet; it doesn't work, and they restrict their food even more," she added.

About 45 percent of binge eaters are men. Eating for emotional reasons, they consume large amounts of food in short periods of time, feel out of control, and often feel ashamed.

Bulimics also consume large amounts of food, followed by purging.

Unlike female bulimics, who often turn to self-induced vomiting or laxatives, males often purge through excessive exercise.

Anorexia, or self-starvation, is the least diagnosed disorder.

Signs to look for include extreme weight loss, social isolation, avoiding situations where food is the focus and visits to the bathroom after meals.

State floats 39-day pintail

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL

AUSTIN — When it comes to managing waterfowl, a natural resource that covers a lot of ground as it cycles across North America annually, the basic philosophy for hunting is "don't take more than you can make."

The bottom line this year: Most ducks - except for canvasbacks and pintails are holding their own.

Waterfowl hunting-season guidelines are set at the federal level each summer based on duck breeding populations and habitat conditions.

For ducks, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service uses mallard populations as the benchmark for the general framework and individual states are given flexibility within those parameters.

The good news is that mallard breeding population estimates remained unchanged from last year at 8.52 million birds, which means hunters can look to another 74-day duck season and a six-bird daily bag limit.

Aside from mallards, however, six of the remaining nine duck species that comprise the breeding population survey index remain below the long-term numbers the service established as target goals within the North American Waterfowl Management Plan.

This doesn't mean they are not plentiful, because most are, however, waterfowl managers are concerned because of declines in pintail and canvasback populations.

Pintail breeding population estimates this year are at their lowest on record and as a result, the service has restricted hunting to 39 days.

"We are guided by the reality that it is so hard to 'stockpile' ducks when habitat is bad — and yet when it gets good again, they can recover fairly quickly," said Vernon Bevill, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department game bird program director.

"That is, except pintails, which breed in the mostly heavily farmed areas of Canada above Montana. They have not established a strong recovery during the wet years because they didn't adapt and because their primary breeding area didn't recover as well as the others areas did." he said.

As a result of the reduced season length, Parks and Wildlife will recommend a season structure that will run the last 39 days in each split.

This will allow for the taking of pintails when they are at the height of plumage and more readily identifiable.

The same can be said of canvasbacks.

Last year, as a result of habitat concerns, the service cut canvasback hunting to 25 days, and the resulting reduction in harvest levels fell within acceptable limits.

But because canvasback numbers still dipped below the breeding population threshold allowed by the service for hunting harvest, the season for this species was closed altogether for the first time since 1993.

"Canvasback harvest dropped to just over 36,000 for the entire nation with the season-within-a-season approach last year," Bevill said. "However, the service noted that the breeding population was 487,000 and below the population goal of 500,000."

The problem with the current management approach to canvasbacks, Bevill said, is that the waterfowl management plan's population goal for this species is only 560,000 — about 12 percent above the threshold for hunt-

"The Central Flyway Council is recommending to the service that the hunting season threshold be revised to 400,000, which is more realistic. We've hunted canvasbacks below 400,000 in the past," he added. "Hopefully, that's something that can be worked out next year."

But, for this year, the service did grant a petition from the National Central Flyway Council to extend the duck season to the last Sunday in January.

After analyzing hunter preferences from a recent mail survey, Parks and Wildlife officials are proposing the later closure in the North Zone only.

If adopted by the agency at its Aug. 29 Commission meeting, the North Zone season would run Nov. 9-10, close for five days, then reopen Nov. 16 through Jan. 26.

Hunting for pintails in the North Zone is being proposed for Dec. 19 through Jan. 26. The youth-only season in the North Zone is proposed for Oct. 26-27.

"Hunters in the north told us they need the later closure, the service gave us this opportunity and we are amenable to it," Bevill said. "However, in my view it will take a very special set of severely cold and snowy weather conditions in Kansas and Oklahoma for our hunters to really take more ducks with the extra week at the end. And this is weather we haven't been seeing in recent years."

Conversely, the survey showed a higher preference for more hunting opportunity in December in the South Zone, according to Bevill.

States cannot open the liberal conservation season for light geese until all other migratory seasons are closed.

By ending the South Zone duck season on Jan. 19, the conservation season can begin the next day.

"We believe losing that additional week of harvest opportunity for light geese is not an equitable tradeoff," Bevill said.

As proposed, the South Zone would open Nov. 2 through Dec. 1, close for five days, then reopen Dec. 7 through Jan. 19. Pintail hunting would be allowed Dec. 12 through Jan. 19. The youth-only season would run Oct. 26-27.

In the High Plains Mallard Management Unit, which comprises most of the Panhandle, the proposed dates for duck season are Oct. 12-14 and Oct. 19 through Jan. 19. Pintail hunting in this area would be Dec. 12 through Jan. 19. The youthonly season would run Oct.

The daily bag limit for ducks is six and can include no more than five mallards or Mexican mallards, only two of which may be hens; three scaup (lesser scaup and greater scaup in the aggregate); two wood ducks; two redheads; one mottled duck and one pintail (during the open season for pintails).

The possession limit is twice the daily bag.

"Habitat problems, species declines, late frameworks and other variables have combined this year to make the final season regulations a bit more complicated than they have been for the past five or six years," said Dave Morrison, Parks and Wildlife waterfowl program leader.

"The late framework makes coordination of the sandhill crane and goose seasons difficult and could make things complicated for hunters," he added.

Hunters in the Eastern Goose Zone may need to carry a day planner with them afield this year.

Because the eastern goose boundaries cross both duck zones, there is a patchwork

"60 Minutes" Discovers the Worst Problem with Movies

One of the small advantages (and I think there are also some large ones) of our church's early afternoon group meetings (instead of a second service) is that occasionally I get to watch CBS's "60 Minutes." I don't always agree with it (who does?), but I get to watch it, and I enjoy the format. The producers usually do at least a credible job of taking a stab at reporting real news, digging into what rational people might consider to be real issues, whether you agree with their slant (decidedly to the left) or not.

But listening to a Lesley Stahl piece dealing with the evils of smoking on the silver screen, I almost reached for a cigarette. Actually, I almost spontaneously combusted without any help from tobacco at all.

Now, may I be clear. I don't like smoking, and I don't like to be around smoking. The sooner it is banned completely in restaurants, the happier I'll be.

But Stahl was, in deadly serious tones, sniffing about Hollywood's irresponsible portrayal of many characters as smokers, as if that was Hollywood's worst disservice to us.

Do I want young people to be encouraged to smoke? Of course not! It's an obnoxious, unhealthy, expensive [please supply your own negative adjectives] habit that 9 out of 10 smokers would give their eye teeth to be rid of! (And most smokers will be amen-ing now more loudly than non-smokers.)

Kids don't need to start.

But I do not understand why, in the moral sewer of our time, smoking is the primary piece of flotsam folks like Lesley Stahl seem to be able to spot. She whines, "As far as we can tell there seems to be more smoking than ever in the movies and on TV."

She browbeats a movie director into confessing in low tones, "I think it's wrong." This new convert, by the way, is exactly the same sort of fellow who would almost move you to tears with a rousing defence of any other obnoxious, indecent, and distasteful act: "My movies just reflect society as it is. To refuse to show the truth would violate my artistic trust." So has society quit smoking yet?

And another movie mogul says of tobacco-puffing actors and actresses that what they do in their own lives is totally their own business, but that they have a responsibility to be positive role models on camera.

Excuse me while I throw up. Yes, this is a serious public health issue, Stahl snivels.

So, it's not a public health issue when character after character plays musical beds with anyone they like and alcohol flows like the Nile? When body parts are blown all the way from first flicker to the end credit? When the garbage we cable into our homes stinks worse than the waste that leaves in our sewers?

Anyone who can view most modern films and find smoke the most morally offensive and dangerous influence there is the sort of nincompoop who could view a Nazi concentration camp and come away mainly concerned that the inmates don't have access to dental floss.

Curtis Shelburne is minister of the 16th & D Church of Christ in Muleshoe.

Herpes increasing rapidly in adolescents

SPECIAL TO THE JOURNAL in the genital or anal HOUSTON — During a period of increased attention on HIV/AIDS, genital herpes has quietly gained momentum.

"Most people who have genital herpes don't even realize it," said Dr. David Tweardy, professor of medicineinfectious diseases at Baylor College of Medicine. "This is because they have never had symptoms of the disease or may not have noticed symptoms they've had."

More than 67 million Americans — about one in every five - now have genital herpes, according to the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases. The disease, even with the insistent call for safe sex from health-care professionals, has exploded since the 1970s.

When there are symptoms, they can be different in each person.

Most often, when a person becomes infected with herpes for the first time, the symptoms will appear within two to 10 days. These first episodes of symptoms usually last two to three weeks.

Early indications of the disease include itching or a burning feeling area, pain in the legs, buttocks or genital area, discharge of fluid from the vagina or feeling of pressure in the abdo-

Anglo adolescents have seen the quickest increases. White youths between the ages of 12 and 19 are five times more likely to have herpes today than were their counterparts 30

An individual catches the disease by having unprotected sex with an infected partner during an outbreak (a time in which the disease is active and there are sores on the genitals).

Tweardy said.

Although there is no cure for genital herpes, there are several medications a physician can prescribe to treat it.

"The threat of catching herpes is very real, and should be taken seriously," he said. "As with most other sexually transmitted diseases, use of a condom can help protect someone from catching herpes."

HOROSCOPES

AUGUST 25-31

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22

It takes only one kind word from a friend to remind you how wonderful you are, Virgo. There are many willing partners who are waiting for you to jump into the mix.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23

Expect a sudden reversal in your life, Libra. Everything is still going your way, but it changes somehow. As long as you can adapt quickly you'll be fine.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22

Being timid is not in your make-up, Scorpio. This is your week to shine and get noticed. The scorpion's desires will not be denied and pity those who stand in your way.

SAGITTARIUS- Nov 23/Dec 21

Be careful about getting worn out this week, Sagittarius. It may be time to pass the torch to another able person. You have to remember you're as human as everyone else and need a break now and again.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20

You've had enough of being alone, Capricorn. You like to be around people even if they are quite different from you. Wear your heart on your sleeve this week and you're sure to find a love connection.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18

Avoid problems by making peace with troublesome individuals early on, Aquarius. The best compromise is a combination of everyone's best ideas - then go with it.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20

It's finally time for Pisces to yell, "I told you so." But wait until there is a larger audience to experience it. Wednesday will be your day of victory, so enjoy it.

ARIES - March 21/April 20

You can be unusually persuasive, Aries. Your biggest opponents are those who question your timing. Act as if you already know the answer and your instincts will prove right.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21

You find deeper meaning in the most casual remarks lately, Taurus. Introspection causes you to do some self analysis. Believe in your potential and you can do almost anything. GEMINI - May 22/June 21

You're caught off balance by a surprising question, Gemini. Yet, you don't miss a beat. Cosmic forces are pushing love closer in your direction. Enjoy the rush while it lasts.

CANCER - June 22/July 22
