WILLEBRANDT RESIGNATION ACCEPTED

HOOPER LAUDS HER RECORD OF EIGHT YEARS

Reports of Friction Discredited at the White House.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—President Hoover today accepted the resignation of Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt as assistant attorney general of the United States. The president feels Mrs. Willebrandt has been a most effective official and has shown the utmost motion and great ability. She remained after March 4 to complete some special work at the department of justice but has received an extraordinary offer which the president did not feel justified in asking her to decline.

President Hoover made public Mrs. Willebrandt's letter of resignation and his response in which he lauded her record of eight years devoted service to the government.

At the same time the white house has publicly discredited reports that there had been a serious dissonance between Mrs. Willebrandt and Attorney General Clegg, or between Mrs. Willebrandt and President Hoover.

Many of the suggestions for resignation policy in the department of justice advanced by Mrs. Willebrandt have been incorporated in the department's routine, the house pointed out.

Mrs. Willebrandt's resignation was prompted by her wish to accept an opportunity to become an aviation counselor for the aviation corporation, her letter to the president said.

Lindbergh and Bride Elude the Hunters of the Press and Public in Honeymoon After Quiet Wedding

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., May 28.—Col. Charles August Lindbergh and his bride, Anne Morrow Lindbergh, were on their honeymoon today. They sought and found solitude away from the gaze of the curious.

They had disappeared after their surprise wedding in the home of the bride's parents, Ambassador and Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow here late yesterday, and, taking the lone trail of the sea, air or highways, had eluded the hunters of the press and public.

"Guess they're off to another tea," said a reporter.

Almost two hours later Charles W. Hulst, Englewood attorney and personal friend of the Morrrows, came down the drive and said to Frank Fitzpatrick, police on guard at the gate:

"Tell the boys that Col. Lindbergh and Miss Morrow were married by Dr. Brown of New York. Those reports that Lindbergh outed his daughter was a classmate of Miss Morrow."

Then 45 minutes elapsed before Ambassador Morrow and his secretary, A. H. Springer, drove out on the grounds. Morrow received the congratulations of newspapermen.

Springer took several typewritten slips from his pocket and handed them to the reporters. The slips read:

"Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Morrow announce the marriage of their daughter, Anne, to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh at Englewood, N. J., May 27, 1929."

That was all the outside world learned about the wedding except meager details given out by servants and a few of the guests. Those reports took Lindbergh out of the role of the bashful lover and made him a calm, self-confident bridegroom.

He had, so the report said, gone into the garden shortly before the ceremony to pick the blue larkspur and columbine bouquet which Miss Morrow carried when she came forward on her father's arm. There was no fumbling for the 7-Year-Old Girl Has Fighting Chance to Recover.

Jewell Justice, seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Justice, of Flatwoods, is near death in an Eastland hospital as the result of the bite of a poisonous snake sustained at her home late Monday afternoon. The child was playing in the yard at the time. Near by her father was sitting on the porch.

Suddenly the child cried out that a snake had bitten her. Mr. Justice rushed to her. A doctor was called and medical attention given the child. This morning she was rushed to a hospital where attending physicians gave her a fighting chance to recover from the wound.

Mr. Justice who searched the vicinity was unable to locate the reptile and the species could not be learned.

267 AUTOS REGISTERED DURING APRIL

NO PAY, NO WORK.

DALLAS, May 28.—The new post of "City Parson," created by Mayor J. Maddy Tate, was still unfilled today, the result of several applicants withdrawing applications when they heard there was no pay connected with the job.

Among the duties of the city parson are: Visiting of sick and poor in city and county jails. Marrying of couples who haven't enough money for a fee.

Giving Christian burial to paupers and unidentified dead. Assisting the welfare department in charitable cases.

Another link was believed added to the chain of evidence being gathered in connection with the $75,000 bank robbery at Oklahoma City last week, with the arrest here yesterday of Russell Gibson, 26.

With Gibson's arrest police said they were convinced the principals for the daring holdup were recruits from the Kansas City underworld.

Gibson was known to be a friend of C. W. Thompson's son, Robert Thompson, both of whom are held in connection with the robbery at Oklahoma City.

LAKE DRAGGED FOR BODIES OF THREE YOUTHS

DALLAS, May 28.—Searching parties in motor boats today dragged White Rock Lake, near Dallas, for the bodies of three youths who are believed to have drowned when a rowboat in which four were riding, capsized Monday night.

Those missing are: Clifford Hall, 19. Roy Gross, 10. Albert McGuire, 17.

Guy Watson, 17, a student at Dallas technological high school, was rescued by a fisherman who heard his cries for help.

"We had started out to run a trot line," Watson said, "and the boat just turned over. I don't know much about what happened. The last I heard from the other boys they said they were going to swim to shore."

Workers searched duck blinds and other places where the three boys might be clinging but thus far have failed to find any trace of them.

40 THROWN IN WATER WHEN PIER FALLS

DALLAS, May 28.—More than 40 persons were thrown into the water and narrowly escaped drowning in White Rock Lake today when a pier on which they were standing collapsed.

The pier had been made the base of operations for finding the bodies of three youths drowned in the lake last night. The pier turned over on one side and threatened for a moment to hold several persons under the water.

Firemen, policemen and onlookers threw ropes to the swimmers in efforts to get them out of the water. E. H. Papley, Dallas electrician, was nearby in a motor boat and rescued nearly a dozen.

Directing the rescue from Papley's boat was Guy Watson, lone survivor of the lake tragedy last night. The water was seven or eight feet deep where the pier collapsed.

"Cisco Looked Good" Says George Wilson

"Cisco sure looked good to me even if it was midnight when I came down the street," said George Wilson who returned home Sunday night from Dallas where he had undergone medical treatment for two weeks at the St. Paul sanitarium. Mr. Wilson, who is now at his home on the Rising Star highway just south of the city, is in splendid spirits, rapidly recovering from his illness.

NEW ARREST IS MADE IN BIG HOLDUP

Officers Convinced Robbers Came From Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 28.—Another link was believed added to the chain of evidence being gathered in connection with the $75,000 bank robbery at Oklahoma City last week, with the arrest here yesterday of Russell Gibson, 26.

With Gibson's arrest police said they were convinced the principals for the daring holdup were recruits from the Kansas City underworld.

Gibson was known to be a friend of C. W. Thompson's son, Robert Thompson, both of whom are held in connection with the robbery at Oklahoma City.

DENY KNOWLEDGE OF HOLDUP.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., May 28.—Four persons, two of them women, held as suspects in the $75,000 robbery Friday of the Charles Vowell, messenger, today steadfastly denied knowledge of the theft after a night of grilling at police headquarters.

Today police took up search for two other suspects involved in the case after questioning of the alleged bandit gang and after new developments which the police would not disclose had come about.

C. W. Thompson, who at certain times was an oil town drug store proprietor, according to police was positively identified by W. D. Criss, taxicab driver, who chased the bandits, and partially identified by Vowell as the man who shot him twice as he seized the money bag from the payroll car.

Mrs. Minnie Rayl, wealthy Hutchinson, Kan., widow, continued to deny she knew anything of the $20,000 bills officers found in her car when she drove into Hutchinson. Mrs. Rayl tall and aristocratic in appearance, spent the night in the matron's department of the city jail with the pretty 21-year-old wife of her brother's foster son.

R. B. Thompson, C. W. Thompson's stepson, was arrested with Thompson in the apartment late Saturday night, Thompson's wife is accused of renting the apartment.

Legion to Sell Poppies Tomorrow

Due to the fact that the Memorial day services in Eastland county will take place in Eastland Thursday with all county Legion posts cooperating, rather than in each city singly as heretofore, the John William Butts post of the Legion will hold its Memorial day poppy sale tomorrow instead of Thursday, it was announced by C. E. Yates, adjutant of the post.

Mrs. Lexie Dean Robertson, of Rising Star, on Program.

All committees of the courthouse dedication program joined in a final meeting Monday night at 8 o'clock in the commissioners' courtroom of the new $300,000 courthouse, working out detail plans for the dedication of the building to the World war veterans on Thursday, May 30, Memorial Day. Every American Legion post in the county will be represented practically 100 per cent, and all towns and cities promise large delegations from their interested citizens.

Among the prominent persons announced last night for the speaking program are Rufus F. Scott, Jr., of Paris, commander of the American Legion, department

STATE WINNER.

Arch Spruill, who will deliver the welcome address at the dedication of the Eastland county court house Thursday, is the winner of the state rural declamation contest this year. of Texas, and Mrs. Lexie Dean Robertson, well known poet and writer of Rising Star.

Committees on decorations, parade, schools, war relics, bands, and publicity, reported marked progress in their work, and all major details of the dedication services have been worked out.

Badges for the Gold Star mothers, guest badges, reception and press badges have been provided. In addition 25 badges have been made for Spanish-American war veterans.

During the Memorial Services a volley will be fired by a selected squad from Company 1 of the 142nd Infantry and taps will be sounded by Harry Schaefer, Cisco. Efforts are being made to provide for an airplane to fly over the city during the services.

Stakes have been set for 1,500 linear feet of tables at Whiteway park, in the north part of the city near the Texas and Pacific railway lines. With this length of tables and their width, about 2,000 people can be seated around them at one time. The park also provides ample space around the tables, where lunches may be eaten. Several barrels of lemonade will "have a part in the program." The tables will be completed by Wednesday evening, the luncheon committee announced.

Five bands will furnish martial airs for the dedication. Four are local bands, the other a cavalry band from Mineral Wells. March music will be played during the parade.

Colorful Parade. Just as the boys who wore the khaki went "on parade" so many times in preparation for the event "over there," so will all Eastland county go on parade Memorial Day in paying tribute to the soldier heroes. From far and near new and old-time citi-

POT SHOTS - POLITICS - By Col. Hugh Nugent Fitzgerald. - AUSTIN

California Lawmakers Move Oil California lawmakers had a prison problem before them. They did not get in a jam. They tackled the problem and they think they have a solution for it. They enacted a bill creating a state department of geology. They heralded the measure as a step toward solution of the crime wave of the state and penal problems.

Gov. C. C. Young signed the bill. It combines five divisions of the state government under one department, the director of which shall be a member of the governor's council. The divisions are: prisons and paroles, criminal identification and investigation, pardons and commutations, narcotic enforcement and criminology.

Are California lawmakers more constructive than Texas lawmakers? Are California lawmakers men of higher qualifications, in a legislative sense than Texas lawmakers? This prison problem or combination of prison problems awaits solution under the big dome. California lawmakers never hesitated. They declared for a new departure. They sent the measure to the governor and, now the new departure is to be given the acid test. Why not a new departure away down here in Texas?

Long Hours and Small Pay An exchange headlines an editorial as follows: "Industrial Era Has Some Dark Pockets." Representatives from southern textile mills journeyed from industrial centers to the city of Washington where they presented their grievances to a group of American senators. For instance, "among them was one Jennie Green, an underfed little girl who looked about eight years but who said she was 11. Jennie is a wage earner—a spinner in the textile mills. She works 60 hours a week and is paid precisely $4.95 a week. Then there was a grown man, Robert Little, who has worked in the southern mills for 30 years. The high mark of his career came when he got a weekly wage of $13.10. Lately he has been working part time and drawing $5.40 a week. Then there was Myrtle Stroud, who was 20 and who works 60 hours a week for pay that averages between $8 and $11, and there was a Mrs. Bertha Crawford, who supports 3 children by working 61 hours a week for $16.62.

There were others who interviewed the group of American senators. All unfolded the same schedule—very long hours of work and very low remuneration for their labor.

"Our biggest job is to tackle these dark pockets and make them as light as the other places of our 'factory system,' is the editorial reminder of our Georgia exchange. And this is the conclusion of the editorial: "We cannot afford to let them stay as they are."

All of which recalls a poem by Herbert Kaufman, "How to Be Virtuous on $5 a Week"

Washington Letter

BY RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer. WASHINGTON, — Senator J. Boomboom McWhorter has had what is by all odds his brightest idea since first he proposed to save the farmers by turning the boll weevils and the corn borers loose on each other and letting them eat each other up.

The senator wants to divide Congress into rival cheering sections, with cheer leaders and megaphones and regulations. When members cheer now, as they did the other day when they heard how the police had killed a young man in a rum-running car, the noise is only spontaneous and disorganized, with none of the set effect on the galleries which Senator McWhorter is sure could be reproduced with a little planning.

It must be admitted that McWhorter's interest is not altogether unselfish. Everyone knows that he can make more noise than an ambulance driver going home to lunch. The mere clearing of his throat is louder than the combined howling of six ordinary senators.

The Senator Is Silent Thus the senator is really a born cheer leader. His magnificent voice has been going to waste lately because the young man who formerly wrote his speeches raised his rates, leaving McWhorter with only four or five speeches to his name. The senator has delivered the one about the flag and the one about the Bolsheviks and the one about his political opponents so many times now that whenever he rises to speak two or three of his colleagues

"DESERT SONG" MAGNIFICENT FILM OPERETTA

"The Desert Song," Warner Bros. latest Vitaphone novelty—a complete screen operetta, with music, songs, choruses, dances, dialogue—scored a magnificent success last night upon its second presentation in this city at the Palace theater. It is a novelty, but an enchanting one, and points the way to still greater triumphs for talking and singing pictures—the production of entire operas upon the screen.

"The Desert Song" retains all the charm, color, action, romance and people love of the stage production, but greatly enhanced by the motion picture camera's power of motion. The desert scenes were made in a desert and not in front of painted backdrops. The desert style of the Calif. with the splendors of its Oriental architecture, would fill several stages. The story gains in dramatic power and picturesque quality because of the natural backgrounds.

Warner Bros. were fortunate in being able to select a cast of such excellent singers, most of whom had both stage and screen training. John Boles, tenor lead, sang the same role in the stage presentation of "The Desert Song" and has been a screen leading man for several years. Carlotta King, soprano, is a concert and radio artist of note. Their voices register perfectly on Vitaphone, are in tone and sweet in quality. "The Desert Song" is one of the best entertainments the screen has ever offered. Fast action and colorful drama are supplemented with Sigmund Romberg's delightful music and the vocal solos, duets and choruses that helped the stage versions to its great success.

He dressed the burn and waited three days until a camp fire came before leaving the place.

Oratory Wins Job as Mayor

DRESDEN, May 28.—A rhetorical battle of almost classic dimensions was recently fought in the town of Eubin, Saxony. This little community, which number about 1,500 inhabitants, was to choose a new mayor. More than 200 applicants answered the advertisement in the State Gazette, and sit as the city fathers might, they could not decide on one single person worthy of the important position.

Finally they sorted out a dozen of the most likely candidates, invited them to their town hall and here had each of them deliver an oration, the winner of the contest to be chosen as the new mayor. When the contest was held, the town hall was packed. The victory was unanimously accorded to a young administration clerk from Reichenbach who, besides being the most eloquent in the final competition, with his 26 years of age, was also by far the youngest of all the 200 applicants.

Orient Takes to "Talkie" Pictures

SAN FRANCISCO, May 28.—The Orient has "fallen hard" for the talkies, according to Delbert Goodman, special representative of a movie company who has just returned from China and Japan.

"If the talkies could only produce smells we could give America a real oriental tour on the screen," Goodman said.

"We made one native drama in Japan, and it was received wildly by the natives. One reason they like American talkies is that they help in teaching the English language."

Within 30 days, according to Goodman, talkie outfits will be installed in Japan. But it will be two years before native talkies are made and produced there to any extent.

By FOSTER EATON
United Press Staff Correspondent.
EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., May 28.—A new air classic—the Gardner Annual Trophy Race—opened today with five groups of speed planes roaring along the "spokes" of an imaginary wheel whose hub is the Park Airport here.

Seven planes are speeding southwest from Buffalo, N. Y., northwest from Jacksonville, Fla., one south from San Antonio, Tex., five east from Denver, Colo., and three southeast from Fargo, N. D. All are due here by 7 p. m. tonight, after trips ranging from 660 to 790 miles.

Winners and second place planes in each "heat" will race from here to Indianapolis, Ind., and back Memorial day for a $5,000 gold purse donated by Russell E. Gardner of the Gardner Motor company.

Departure of the planes on Thursday will be timed so that they may round at Pylen at the annual Indianapolis Speedway automobile races, from which word will be flashed back here by radio.

Entries in the five preliminary races today include some of the best known pilots in America. They include:

SAN ANTONIO, May 28.—Earl Rowland took off from San Antonio at 7:50 o'clock this morning as the only entrant in the San Antonio-St. Louis leg of the Gardner trophy race. Announcement had been made at Winburn Field that the flight would be postponed until Wednesday due to bad weather, but clear skies that followed permitted the start to be made.

Overloading will be prevented by a careful check on passengers at the gang plank. Life preservers will be inspected and a close check-up made on boilers, he said.

COLF GOAT LETTERS

COPYRIGHT 1929 BY SEA SERVICE INC.

By VERNE WICKHAM
The little pest, standing on the edge of the trap, counting "Four, five, six" as you labor in the sand pit, is committing one of the worst offenses known to the land of greens and fairways.

His walking over to watch you as you stroke your way out of the deep trap, is almost over the boundary line between good and bad form, but his counting around your strokes can never be forgiven!

The player has the right at any time to know how many strokes his partner has taken, but he should have the common courtesy to ask for that information.

Here is the rule: "A player is entitled at any time during the play of a hole to ascertain from his opponent the number of strokes the latter has played; if the opponent gives him the wrong information as to the number of strokes he has played, he shall lose the hole, unless he correct his mistake before the player has played another stroke."

So you see you can find out at any time just how many strokes your partner has taken and it isn't necessary to stand around watching and counting for him. To count his strokes aloud is an indication that you don't trust him. Don't stand over him when he is in trouble as if gloating over his misfortune. You may be in the next trap.

New Boat to Appear on Lake Cisco Soon

A new boat will shortly take its place on the waters of Lake Cisco. The boat, owned by R. A. Williams and P. P. Shepard, is a beautiful gasoline launch, painted a bright yellow and capable of seating eight persons. It is 22 feet in length, powered with a Continental motor and fitted out in the most comfortable manner. The canopy resembles an automobile top which can be raised or lowered at the convenience of passengers.

The boat, one of the most beautiful and comfortable to be found on any lake in West Texas, is equipped with a powerful searchlight for night boating.

3 WESTERN CLUBS FIGHT TO GET LEAD

New York Giants Are Slowly Climbing Toward Top.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
United Press Staff Correspondent.
NEW YORK, May 28.—With three western clubs fighting tooth and nail for the National league lead in one of the most stirring early season battles in history, the New York Giants are steadily climbing back in the race.

Riding the crest of a five-game winning streak, the Giants now face the first crucial test of their comeback today when they open a four-game series with Brooklyn before heading west on Saturday. Dazzy Vance and Bill Walker are slated to oppose each other.

The neck-and-neck race between the Cubs and Cardinals has been turned into a three-cornered affair by Pittsburgh taking three straight from the Cards, the Pirates have moved into second place, a game behind the Cubs. Half a game behind the Pirates are the Cards.

Through their ability to beat Washington, the Philadelphia Athletics have amassed a three and a half game lead over the Saint Louis Browns in the American league. Eleven of the Athletics' 25 victories have been at the expense of the Senators.

Both races are running true to recent tradition—a nip and tuck National league affair and a runaway American league race.

Last season about this time the Reds, Cubs and Robins were bat-

HITS DO NOT WIN GAMES EVERY TIME

By WILLIAM J. DUNN
United Press Staff Correspondent.
NEW YORK, May 28.—Hits don't necessarily win ball games. It sounds a bit unorthodox but the proof is found in the case of Walter Johnson's Washington Senators.

The Senators, picked by many as possible pennant winners before the season opened, are floundering helplessly in seventh position in the American league.

Many reasons have been advanced for their failure, one of the most prominently mentioned being their supposed inability to clout the ball.

A review of statistics for the games Washington has played this season disproves this theory. Actually, on the basis of unofficial compilations, they have out-hit their opponents in 29 games, 267 to 252.

The secret seems to be the inability to hit when hits would mean runs. No team ever won a major league pennant when laboring under such a handicap.

Washington, in that length of time, lost 19 games, including the double header dropped at Philadelphia last week. Eleven of those defeats were by the narrow margin of one run. In five of the eleven games they lost by that margin, the Senators out-hit their opponents.

Meanwhile, Washington won but 10 games in the 29 played, yet 15 games they out-hit their opponents and in four others the results were all even.

Years of service in MODEL T FORDS

THE Model T was so strongly and sturdily built that it is still rendering reliable, economical service to motorists in every section of the country. Millions of the cars can be put in shape for two, three and five more years of use at very small cost.

It will continue to do so as long as they are needed by Model T owners. The following list gives the approximate labor charges for reconditioning the Model T Ford:—

Engine
Tune motor (including replacement of commutator case, brush and vibrator points if necessary)	$1.00

RIVAL WIVES

By Anne Austin
Author of
The Black Pigeon
© 1929 NEA SERVICE INC.

Nan's first emotion when she had reread the blackmailing letter was furious anger against its writer. How did anyone dare to try so contemptibly to influence John Curtis Morgan to "throw" a trial? Didn't the fool writer have sense enough to know that Morgan would use this letter as an additional weapon in his fight for Grace Cox's vindication? Imagine trying to blackmail John Curtis Morgan, the most fearless, the most upright man in the world! It was easy to picture his righteous wrath—

But in picturing John Curtis Morgan as he would look when he read the vile thing, Nan saw him reading that postscript, that nasty insinuation which was even now crawling about in her own mind, never-to-be-forgotten. Of course Morgan would snap his fingers at the insinuation, attribute it contemptuously to a villainous fool's obvious effort to frighten him. But he would not forget it. The words would rankle deep in his mind. It would hurt him more than he would ever admit that an anonymous writer had dared sully his wife's name.

No, no! She picked up the letter, folded it with the tips of her fingers as if she were afraid of being poisoned; thrust it hastily into her handbag. He would not see it, she vowed, her mouth and eyes grim. For two years she had served him in big and little ways, sparing him every possible unpleasantness. Just because she now knew she loved him, why should she stop serving him?

But a sudden thought made her hand quiver on the clasp of her bag: was she truly serving him in keeping this anonymous threat from reaching him? What if there was an ugly truth behind the sinister threat in that postscript? September 11—September 11—Nan knit her brows, then swiftly turned back the loose leaves of her daily calendar.

Yes! On September 11 Morgan had been out of town—Chicago! She remembered now, remembered how surprised she had been that Iris Morgan had not accompanied her husband as she invariably did when he went to the larger city on business. Morgan had been surprised, too—and hurt. Nan had heard him pleading with her over the telephone, offering gifts, dinner parties, shows—

Fear—for him—closed icily about Nan's heart. What if the writer meant this warning in all seriousness? Did she have any right to withhold it from him, let him go unwarned to the courthouse that morning? But—and she felt dizzy with conflicting reasoning—if she showed it to him, as she was duty-bound to do, he would seem to profit by the warning, might, in fact, precipitate a terrible crisis by introducing the anonymous threat into the evidence.

And even if he believed or feared that the writer had "something on" his wife—as he certainly would not believe—he could proceed with the Grace Cox case exactly as he had planned. She knew him well enough to be sure of that. So—why let him see the tempting thing? Spare him, shield him—

"Even if it was true I wouldn't want him to know it, not even if it meant—"

But she checked her thoughts with horror of herself. "I love him well enough to hope there is not an atom of truth behind that terrible letter," her heart cried. "But—if he goes blindly on at the trial today, will the blackmailer make good his threat? There are ways of getting this highly interesting information into the court record—if necessary"—oh, I don't know what to do!

Her fingers were upon the clasp of her handbag when the door opened and John Curtis Morgan hurried into the room, smiling with confident cheerfulness.

"Hello, junior partner!" he greeted her affectionately. "Going to be a great day today! Caught that Fleming woman just as she was skipping town last night. But it's in the paper—Say, where's that memorandum on McTeague? I couldn't find it in my briefcase last night—"

CHAPTER V

Nan took his brief case from John Curtis Morgan, rifled through a sheaf of memoranda and found—as she had known she would—the McTeague deposition. How helpless he was, how dependent upon her! And how happy she was to serve him. Would his next see-retary be as alert and intelligent as herself, as eager to wait upon him?

He loathed detail, wanted to have his mind free for concentration upon the bigger aspects of the legal problems which he was called upon to handle. And yet incompetence in those who were responsible for detail made him nervous and impatient, even ill. It took a lot of understanding and patience and intelligence to work for John Curtis Morgan.

"If his next secretary serves him as faithfully as I have done, it will be cause she loves him," Nan decided, and hot jealousy of her prospective successor flooded her already tortured heart.

Nan followed him into his private office, the anonymous letter tucked into the pocket of her blouse, the other mail, or such of it as required his personal attention, in her hands.

He lifted a warding hand, his black eyes pleading with her humorously for indulgence. "Haven't time to read a single letter, Nan. You handle all of it if you can, and let the rest ride. Nothing of life-and-death importance, I suppose."

Nan decided irrevocably then. The anonymous letter should stay in her pocket. She had her orders—"No, Mr. Morgan, nothing of life-and-death importance. Anything special you want me to do today?"

"Nothing special," Morgan answered absent-mindedly, his eyes on the memoranda in his hand. "Oh, yes! When the complete transcript of this Grace Cox case comes from the court stenographer this morning, I'd like to have you read through it carefully. I can depend upon you to see light where apparently all is dark. I'm pretty sure of making Brainerd look like a fool before the day is over, but I'm not taking any chances. That's a slippery crowd. I'll phone during the morning if I have an opportunity, and will come back here when court recesses for lunch."

"I'll order a nice lunch sent up from the Bellaire Grill, and you can eat it while you go over your notes," Nan planned cheerfully.

Of course she had had no opportunity to resign, she scolded her conscience, when Morgan had departed for court. "Besides," she reminded herself, "I've decided to write him a note of resignation, but I'm certainly not going to bother him with it until this case is settled. It ought to go to the jury by Friday night, and Saturday morning will be time enough. Maybe if he finds out I held out this anonymous letter he'll fire me and save me the trouble of resigning."

She tried to forget the blackmailing letter, with its unseemable insinuation against Iris Morgan, but her mind tugged and worried at the thing, while her heart followed John Curtis Morgan to the courthouse.

Evans, the middle-aged, sour-mouthed clerk, arrived just as Blake, the young lawyer on salary, raced in and out again in time to catch his chief at the elevator.

If only she could go with him, could be there to ward off evil! If she, not that silly Blake, sat at his elbow, she could sense a trap before it was sprung, warn him, save him the ghastly humiliation which if the anonymous letter-writer was to be believed, awaited him at the courthouse today. He had told her often enough that he counted on her intuition—

A messenger boy with the court stenographer's transcript of the case interrupted Nan's mill-thoughts. She seized upon the bulky manuscript, fiercely determined to winnow the prosecution's evidence so thoroughly that no clue to the real truth, however infinitesimal, might escape her.

The clue, when she did find it, almost escaped her, it was so tiny: just a name, an odd name, and for some obscure reason, familiar to Nan. The name occurred in the testimony of a chambermaid of the Riverside Country Club:

Q. (District Attorney): How long have you been employed as a chambermaid in the Riverside Country Club?

A. Since September 5. Annie Crayfish recommended me for the job when she was leaving, sir—

Q. (District Attorney): Please confine yourself to answering the questions. Now, Bertha, what were your hours on duty?

Impulsively, her brown eyes shining, Nan called the superintendent of the building upon the telephone. "This is Miss Carroll, of John Curtis Morgan's office, Mr. Bennett. I very much want to see Mrs. Crayfish, head of the cleaning staff. Is she on duty now?"

"Not until four o'clock. The old dames work until 10, you know," Bennett answered.

"Could you give me her address, please, Mr. Bennett? It's terribly important, really, or I shouldn't bother you," Nan pleaded in her sweetest voice.

Five minutes later, Nan, having left a resentful and bewildered clerk in charge of the front office, was on her way to the address which Bennett had supplied. Mrs. Crayfish had no telephone; there was no time to be wasted on telegrams or messenger boys. She was playing a long hunch, at the risk of incurring Morgan's displeasure for having deserted the office, but her eyes were still shining with excitement when she knocked upon the door of a small frame house on the outskirts of the city.

"I want to see Mrs. Crayfish, please," Nan told the plump, homely woman who answered her knock.

"Mama ain't home. Could I do anything for you, Miss? I'm Annie Crayfish—"

"Annie Crayfish?" Nan almost sang the unmusical syllables. "Then you're the very person I want to see. You used to work at the Riverside Country Club as a chambermaid, didn't you, Annie? Will you tell me why you left your job?"
