TENNESSEE MOB TAKES LAW IN HANDS

NEGRO TAKEN FROM PRISON AND LYNCHED

Black Accused of Having Attacked White Woman.

ALAMO, Tenn., May 29. — Joe Boxley, 18, negro accused of attacking Mrs. Johnnie James, wife of a Crockett county magistrate, was taken from Alamo jail by a mob today and lynched near here. The mob had sought possession of the negro youth since late yesterday when he was lodged in Gibson county jail at Trenton. Only the quick work of Sheriff C. A. Bradshaw saved him from being lynched last night. Approximately 1,000 men milled about the Gibson county jail last night and demanded the negro be turned over to them. When Sheriff Bradshaw refused and pleaded with them to allow the law to take its course they battered down the jail door. On the inside Bradshaw pleaded with the mob not to disgrace their town and county. They finally were quieted early today and Boxley was spirited out of town to Alamo. The mob followed officers, however, and shortly before daybreak succeeded in entering the jail and moving the negro youth. He was taken out of town and hanged to a tree. The negro's body was recovered by officers shortly before noon. It was dangling by the neck from a rope attached to a tree. Officers did no action was planned against the mob. Boxley confessed to the assault just before the mob obtained possession of him, Sheriff Emerson said here. Mrs. James was reported in a critical condition today.

Reached Father Few Days Before Death

Miss Ura Leveridge, who is teaching in the Methodist Episcopal school at Laredo, reached the bedside of her father, W. T. Leveridge, only a few days before he died. Last February Miss Leveridge was called away on account of the serious condition of her father's health but the pressure in her school forced her return. When her school closed she hurried home, arriving there two days before he began sinking rapidly. Mr. Leveridge brightened up on her arrival and for two days was able to talk with her to enjoy her visit. Miss Leveridge volunteered for missionary work in China but after preparation for this work she found physically unfit for this task. She was consecrated, however, and given from work. Her heart is still with the cause and she personally supports a missionary to that land.

Cartridge Belts Used by Bandits Are Found South of Cisco 7 Miles

The tragic episode of the robbery of the First National bank, of Cisco, was called to mind this morning with the finding of three cartridge belts used by the bandits on the farm of Uncle John Thurman, seven miles southeast of Cisco. The belts, somewhat rotted from exposure to weather, had apparently washed down Leon creek from where the bandits left them in the course of their flight. Examined at the city hall where they were brought this morning they were found to contain two bullet holes, one of them punctured in the web belt where the bandit had evidently received a glancing bullet in the back, and the other in a cartridge pocket in front. The bandits who escaped the scene of the robbery alive, after fatally wounding Chief of Police Bit Bedford and Police Officer George Carmichael, were Marshall Ratliff, Henry Helms and Robert W. Hill. Helms and Ratliff, captured at Graham, face death sentences for their part in the crime, and Hill, captured at the same time and place, is serving a 99-year sentence.

TRAPPING OF WOLVES HERE IS SUSPENDED

Pending the outcome of the suit for injunction against the county commissioners court, restraining the court from paying county funds to wolf trappers, the force of trappers employed by the county in conjunction with the state and the biological survey of the federal government has suspended trapping operations by direction of the commissioners. An injunction is in force at this time and the case is on appeal to the court of civil appeals at Eastland. The suit was brought by a group of citizens who contended that the caption of the state law under the terms of which the commissioners court ordered the employment of trappers and the payment of their salaries, did not cover the subject matter in the act and that the act was therefore void. The district court upheld the plaintiffs, in the contention and ordered the payment of funds after the manner stopped. The county commissioners appealed the case. Later the situation with regard to the act was presented to Governor Moody by citizens from all over Texas with the request that he submit the topic to the legislature for action to validate the law. Pending the outcome of the matter the work of predatory animal eradication in this county will remain in abeyance. P. B. Mathews, Cisco trapper, said today that he will take a position with the federal biological bureau as a trapper about July 1.

R. M. A. PLANS TO IMPROVE ITS SERVICE

Now Established in New Quarters in Garner Building.

The Cisco Retail Merchants' association is now located in new quarters in the John H. Garner building. The space formerly occupied by the Lions and Rotary club luncheon room has been remodeled to meet the needs of the association. This space, repainted and refurnished, has been divided into offices with a large meeting room for members of the association. Very soon, E. H. Price, secretary-manager, announces, a merchants finance center will be located in the quarters. At an early date regular meetings of the merchants who are members of the association will be started, Mr. Price said. It is planned to classify the merchants according to the character of their businesses and to have meetings of each classification at regular intervals. The association is embarking upon a campaign to strengthen itself here and to enroll Cisco business men 100 per cent so that the service it renders may be enhanced to the greatest degree. Steps to secure and preserve a voluminous amount of valuable data, properly filed, are being taken. This requires much time and work, however, and of necessity is never entirely complete. These records will be of incalculable value to Cisco merchants. With Mr. Price in the office are Misses Lavada Houston and Marie Glenn. The officers of the association are: H. S. Drumwright, president; J. T. Elliott, vice president; A. D. Anderson and Hugh White, who serve with the officers as directors.

ENTERTAINING PROGRAM FOR LIONS MEETING

One of the most entertaining programs of the year was presented by chairman of the day, Lion J. A. Bearman, at the regular Lions luncheon in the Laguna Hotel roof garden at noon today. After a song led by Lion Paul D. Farling and the roar led by Bob Herron, the invocation was pronounced by Lion Rev. A. C. Miller. The first number on the program was an Indian love song, "Pale Moon," sung by Mrs. O. B. Pierce, accompanied by Miss Lucille Pierce. An encore was demanded and applauded. A very inspirational address, on the subject of "Some happenings in the legislature which are not printed in the newspapers," was delivered by Hon. Victor B. Gilbert, representative from this district. At the close of this address Mrs. Pierce sang her favorite song, "Texas," which she dedicated to Mr. Gilbert. After hearing the address and song, the club gave the entertainers a rising vote of thanks. Lions A. C. Miller, Nick Miller and J. R. Burnett will have charge of the program for the next luncheon.

WISCONSIN'S PROHIBITION LAW REPEALED

Kohler signed the repealer bill introduced by Assemblyman John W. Grobschmidt of Milwaukee. The legislature passed the measure after a statewide referendum in which the voters approved repeal of the state dry law by a majority of 142,000. Governor Kohler, the man who invented colored bathroom fixtures in his big bathroom fixture plant at Kohler, Wis., has approved President Hoover's prohibition enforcement policies, leading many to believe that he would feel bound to veto the Grobschmidt bill.

"YELLOW BIRD" MAKES START BUT RETURNS

Small Leak Develops in Gas Tank, Fliers Explain.

OLD ORCHARD, Me., May 29.—Misfortune today trailed the attempts at a trans-Atlantic race between the American plane Green Flash, and the French plane, Yellow Bird, with the result that both machines remained landlocked, and postponed their attempts to later in the week. The French plane made a getaway during the forenoon, but 20 minutes afterwards—at 10:16 a. m. EDT—it was back with its disappointed trio of Frenchmen, reporting a leak in the gas tank and postponement of the proposed jump to Paris for one or more days. The American plane, in an attempted start for Rome, had encountered difficulty and it was postponed until tomorrow morning its next attempt.

BOTH PLANES HAVE ACCIDENTS.

OLD ORCHARD, Me., May 29.—The French monoplane Yellow Bird returned to the beach here and landed at 10:16 a. m. EDT, after starting her flight to Paris. Meanwhile, the American monoplane Green Flash remained on the beach. In an attempted takeoff on its projected flight to Rome, prior to the Yellow Bird's hop off, the Green Flash stuck in the soft sand and its right wing dipped against the beach. Pilot Jean Assolant of the Yellow Bird explained that after a few minutes of flying a small leak had been discovered in the main gasoline tank. Assolant believed the leak itself was not serious, but he said in the long run it might have proved the difference between success and failure of their flight. Because of the leak and tide conditions, it seemed the Yellow Bird would not be able to start its flight today. Meanwhile, mechanics examined the Green Flash to ascertain if it had been damaged when stuck in the soft sand on its false start. It was reported the right wing, which had dipped against the sand, had not been harmed. Efforts were being made to determine whether the right wheel had been damaged. Assolant announced definitely at 10:35 a. m. that he and his flying companions would make no new attempt to take off today. Mechanics found the Green Flash's right wheel had not been damaged. It was decided to test the wheel and, if it did not function satisfactorily, to replace it with another Bellanca plane on the beach here. Navigator Lewis A. Yancey announced he expected to be able to take off before 2 p. m.

Cisco Merchants Will Close for Court House Dedication Event Thursday

MAYOR ISSUES PROCLAMATION THIS MORNING

Thousands Expected at Ceremony at Eastland.

By general agreement among the merchants most of the business houses in Cisco will be closed for the greater part of the day tomorrow for the county court house dedication and memorial services at Eastland. A proclamation issued by Mayor J. M. Williamson this morning has called upon the business men to cooperate in this manner with the American Legion at Eastland during the hours that the celebration will be in progress.

The mayor's proclamation is printed upon the front page of the Daily News this afternoon.

The hours suggested for closing are between 9:30 a. m. and 4:30 p. m. It was understood, however, that numbers of the merchants would close for the entire day.

Between 10,000 and 15,000 people are expected in Eastland tomorrow for the ceremonies during which the new $300,000 court house will be dedicated to the ex-service men of Eastland county and to the use of the citizens of Eastland county. Formal dedication will be made by Ex-County Judge Ed S. Pritchard, under whose administration the building was erected. Mr. Pritchard will be introduced from the platform by County Judge Clyde L. Garrett.

Rufus Scott to Speak.

The principal address of the day will be delivered by Rufus F. Scott, Jr., of Paris, commander of the American Legion, department of Texas. On the program will also appear Mrs. Lexie Dean Robertson, of Rising Star, well known Texas poet.

Memorial services will be conducted by Rev. P. T. Stanford, pastor of the First Methodist church of Ranger and former pastor of the First Methodist church here, and C. E. Yates, adjutant of the John William Butts post of the American Legion, of Cisco.

The dedicatory and memorial services will take place at 2:30 p. m. from a large speakers' platform erected on the public square at Eastland.

The first event of the day's program will be a parade of floats, decorated cars, the five bands participating, gold star mothers and others, Company I of the 142nd Infantry of the National Guard, representatives of the various Legion posts in the county, school children and so forth.

There will be band concerts and inspection of the court house with the county officers holding open house for the visitors.

At noon a mammoth picnic, with visitors bringing their own baskets, will be spread in Whiteway Park near the T. & P. station in Eastland. Free lemonade and ice water will be served by Eastland people.

Prizes will be awarded in the parade.

DOG FORGETS MICROPHONE IN "TALKIE"

Some wag has said that beauty, children, should be seen but not heard, and this certainly applied to Beauty, the big St. Bernard recently upset the works in Griffith's "Prisoners." First and Vitaphone picture now showing at the Palace theater.

The story of "Prisoners" by Ferenc Molnar is laid in Hungary and of the chief locales is a provincial town near Budapest where a group of student-actors gives an excellent performance of "A Midwinter Night's Dream." Miss Griffith in the role of a peasant girl, works as a waitress in a passageway, carries the luncheon for the players in a picturesque cart by Beauty, who stands 36 inches from the ground and weighs 150 pounds.

Reflections of a Young Married Woman

It is not pleasant if a woman is delicate, run-overworked, feels "played-off" her smiles and her spirits have flight. It worries her husband as much as herself.

Her husband writes:—"My wife was down two years. We tried several doctors of different remedies—spent a great deal of money but she did not seem to improve until I purchased a bottle each of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and Golden Discovery. The doctors said she was operated on but I told her we had tried Pierce's medicines in the family for 20 years and they had never failed. She commenced taking them and after a few days she was able to get up and is now doing her household work. We think Dr. Pierce's is the best on earth."—E. T. Bronson, 5, Box 23a, Kaufman, Texas. students had been carrying some college work, one student, John T. Thompson, having completed practically two years of college work.

Awards Diplomas.

Dr. Roberts then awarded diplomas as recommended by Dean Isaacks.

Dean Isaacks then announced that the honors should be awarded as follows:

The first honor, to the pupil making the highest average in all subjects for the two years in college to Segie Marie Thompson, Cisco, Texas.

The second honor, to the pupil making the second highest average in all subjects for the two years in college, to Mary Grace Phillips, of Winnfield, La.

The third honor, the third highest average in the class to Eugene Shockley, Cisco, Texas.

Dr. Roberts then asked Mrs. Thompson to stand, and after praising her for her excellent scholarship, and mentioning that during the time she was attending Randolph as a student, she was also occupying the position as secretary of Randolph college, presented her with scholarships from the following colleges and universities, such scholarships having been awarded to the highest honor pupil:

Southern Methodist university, Dallas, Texas.

Texas Christian university, upon application, Fort Worth, Texas.

Trinity university, Waxahachie, Texas.

College of Industrial Arts and Sciences, Kingsville, Texas.

He then presented Eugene Shockley with scholarships awarded him by the following colleges and universities in recognition of his being the highest honor graduate among the boys:

Southern Methodist university, Dallas, Texas.

Texas Christian university, upon application, Fort Worth, Texas.

Trinity university, Waxahachie, Texas.

College of Industrial Arts and Sciences, Kingsville, Texas.

State university, Austin, Texas.

Miss Grace Phillips was asked to stand, and Dr. Roberts praised her for her excellent work in Randolph, expressed appreciation for her character, and commended her for being the second honor graduate.

Upon the recommendation of the Dean of the Fine Arts department, Thomas Reid, Dr. Roberts then presented a diploma in voice to Mrs. Thompson, she having completed three years work in the fine arts department, having majored in voice, and having given a voice recital in two languages.

After the song, "America," by the congregation, the benediction was pronounced and the happy graduates were presented with flowers from their many well-wishers.

SACRIFICIAL VICTIM SLAYS 2 ATTENDANTS

MOSCOW, May 29.—The story of meek Isaac on the sacrificial altar was strangely and tragically changed in a distant Russian village when a young man selected as a blood sacrifice in a religious rite suddenly seized the knife with which he was to be slain and killed two of those who had gathered to perform the bloody ceremony.

The remnants of an old sect, the followers of John Kronstadsky, have persisted to this day in the village Tlomme in the province of Uman. The village leader of the "Johnists," as they are called, was a former policeman, Skripnik, and his principal disciple was a peasant named Serednitsky.

Under the guidance of these two a large group lived up to the esoteric teachings of Kronstadsky. The coming of the Soviet power they regarded as a visitation from God in punishment of their sins. They waited patiently for the visitation to end, meanwhile refusing to recognize the new regime. They even continued to use Czarist money among themselves.

Finally their patience was exhausted. In solemn council it was decided that "a messenger must be sent to heaven" to intercede in their behalf. A young member of the sect, Romashevsky, was given the honor of acting as messenger. He accepted it in a saintly spirit of resignation, and preparations were made to release his soul by cutting his throat.

On an appointed day the whole sect gathered in their church. Young Romashevsky was laid out on a table. A sharp butcher's knife was at hand for the slaughter and the leaders were intoning prayers. "I am strangely torn between the desire of my soul for heaven and the desire of my body for earth," the victim said when the prayer was over. "Please pray once more."

While they complied with this request, Romashevsky's body apparently triumphed over his spirit. At any rate, he suddenly jumped from the table, grabbed the knife and plunged first into Skripnik and then into Serednitsky. They were both dead when the police arrived.

The sect has been disrupted and Romashevsky is under arrest on a murder charge. He is pleading self-defense.

10,000,000 BUSHELS.

BORGER, May 29.—Ten million bushels of the estimated thirty million bushel panhandle wheat crop will be hauled from Hutchinson and Hansford counties by the new liberal-Amarillo Rock Island line, H. E. Morrow of the Borger-Morrow Grain company, estimated. Ten elevators will operate.

OUT OUR WAY

FAINT FRIGHTENS BANDITS.

BUITE, Mont., May 29.—Two bold, bad bandits displayed nerve and guns in the faces of three girls late one evening, but dropped their roles of fearless desperadoes and fled when one of the girls, less experienced in the way of holdups, tossed up her arms and dropped in a faint.

GOLDEN FIRE WOOD.

ELDORADO SPRINGS, Mo., May 29.—For years John Bettis had seen an old log lying in his farm yard. Recently he needed firewood and decided to cut the log into stove lengths. He sawed it open and revealed $250 in gold dust hidden in a can thrust into an auger hole.

Fire-resistant building erected in Alice for occupancy by steam laundry.

Bids opened in Washington, D. C., for erection of Dallas federal building.

EAGER FOR EDUCATION.

UXBRIDGE, Mass., May 29.—Cassie Richardson, 17-year-old high school senior, walks more than 2,500 miles a year to get her education. She walks six miles to school and six miles home, rain or shine, and has so impressed local educators that the tardiness rule is suspended in her case.

WALES HAT PEG ABUSED.
 LONDON, May 29.—The Prince of Wales' hat peg is badly abused. In the house of lords he has a special peg in the lobby. On visitor's day hundreds of persons, many of whom are Americans, hang their hats there for a few minutes—just to give their headgear a "royal hang."

ROCK-TOSSING QUINTET NOW RIFLE CHAMPS

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., May 29.—Ten years ago five boys from the Ozark hills of Arkansas threw rocks at rabbits with deadly aim. Today, that same hill-billy quintet forms the collegiate championship rifle team of the nation.

Three consecutive times, this little band of "shepherds of the hills" have entered the national fire. And for three consecutive times, they left a blazing trail, capturing national honors for their alma mater, the University of Arkansas, the only non-Texas institution in the Southwest conference.

The Dixieland gunners first won the Southern title, the second time they successfully accomplished the feat. Not contented with sectional honors, they entered the open tourney.

After the smoke of fire had cleared away, it was visible alike to both friend and foe—the south had triumphed. The Razorback five had "bull-eyed" their way for 392 points out of a possible 1,000 and with victory coming three successive times, the Porkers became sole owners of the William Randolph Hearst national trophy.

The hill-billy five can do more tricks than merely spit bulls-eyes. In fact, they wouldn't even think of shooting at the apple if they had been in William Tell's shoes. They would have pointed their guns at the apple core.

It is an every day stunt for them to light each other's cigarettes, substituting steel bullets for matches. They think nothing of knocking ashes from a cigar at the regulation distance, they drive thumb tacks, split chalk from the hand of their comrade, and can even apell their own names with a punning gun spitting out bullets at rapid fire.

The "big-five" who grew up with guns in their hands are Cadets Gayle M. Jackson, Van Buren; Ben F. Uhl, Fayetteville; Tom E. Hicks, Lonoke; George W. Streeby and Allen V. Tuller, both of Little Rock.

The team is coached by Lieutenant Herman O. Lane of Vanderbilt. Coach Lane believes in his proteges to such an extent he often takes his turn "holding the chalk" when one of his pupils pulls the trigger.

"Yes, Miss. I been out to Arizona, staying with my sister who was sick with T. B. She died last week, and I buried her out here and come home. I just got home today. Me and Mama are feeling awful bad about Madge, so I hope there ain't going to be no trouble."

"Well, yes, Miss. I did," Annie Crayfish flushed. "It hurt my feelings the way she carried on just because I made an innocent remark like that and so when she was called to the door to sign for a telegram I stopped her quick and slipped the book off the letter she'd been writing with her left hand—she'd covered it up soon as I came in—and it was the funniest writing—almost lying on its back, and square, like a kid's just learning to write—"

"Haven't you been reading the papers, Annie?" Nan marvelled. "Grace Cox is accused of having blackmailed several wealthy members of the Country Club, including Mrs. Fleming herself. And the letters were in the funny handwriting you've just described to me, Annie! They're trying to send Grace Cox to the penitentiary for writing those letters, Annie!" she emphasized slowly. "But don't understand," Annie Crayfish protested dazedly. "I ain't seen any papers from here or hardly anywhere else since I left home. I'm not much hand for reading and Madge— But I seen Mrs. Fleming writing one of them letters, Miss!" The full truth dawned on the woman's slow intellect. "Don't you understand, Annie?" Nan exclaimed. "Mrs. Fleming bribed you to leave to state, so you could never testify against her! She's a wicked woman, Annie, and they may send Grace Cox to prison for a crime Mrs. Fleming committed, if you don't come pride stand in the way of going to my sister, could I, Miss?" "Of course not," Nan agreed heartily. "Listen, Annie, do you think Grace Cox is guilty?" "A puzzled look spread over the chambermaid's pleasant face. "Guilty—of what, Miss? Miss Cox that's the switchboard operator of the club? An awful nice girl, not a bit stuck-up—" "Haven't you been reading the papers, Annie?" Nan marvelled. "Grace Cox is accused of having blackmailed several wealthy members of the Country Club, including Mrs. Fleming herself. And the letters were in the funny handwriting you've just described to me, Annie! They're trying to send Grace Cox to the penitentiary for writing those letters, Annie!" she emphasized slowly. "But don't understand," Annie Crayfish protested dazedly. "I ain't seen any papers from here or hardly anywhere else since I left home. I'm not much hand for reading and Madge— But I seen Mrs. Fleming writing one of them letters, Miss!" The full truth dawned on the woman's slow intellect. "Don't you understand, Annie?" Nan exclaimed. "Mrs. Fleming bribed you to leave to state, so you could never testify against her! She's a wicked woman, Annie, and they may send Grace Cox to prison for a crime Mrs. Fleming committed, if you don't come with me right now and tell the court exactly what you've told me! Will you, Annie? I know you didn't mean to commit a crime yourself in accepting a bribe, and I know you don't want poor little Grace Cox to suffer for a crime she didn't do. Come, Annie! Hurry!" CHAPTER VI In less than two hours it was all over; the sensational Grace Cox blackmailing case had come to a sudden and dramatic end, with John Curtis Morgan the undisputed hero the super last act of the drama, and humble Annie Crayfish its heroine. For Annie had testified simply, convincingly and unshakably to the facts which she had previously told Nan Carroll and Martha Fleming, pseudo-so-ciety woman and adventuress, had collapsed into a snivelling confession almost as soon as Morgan had put her upon the stand which Annie Crayfish had just vacated. Grace Cox was free, or would be as soon as red tape had been cut, for District Attorney Brainard, confronted with Annie Crayfish's testimony and Mrs. Fleming's own confession, had been forced to ask the court to dismiss the indictment against the hysterically happy telephone operator. Nan Carroll received and desired none of the congratulations which were being showered upon John Curtis Morgan. No one but Morgan himself knew that it was his private secretary who had discovered and brought Annie Crayfish into court, and it was Nan herself who had insisted that her part in the drama be kept a secret. "Don't dare tell the press how we got hold of Annie Crayfish," she had whispered urgently to Morgan when she had turned her witness over to him. "Remember the papers are going to call you the greatest criminal lawyer in the state when this trial is over, and they mustn't get an inkling that accident and luck had anything to do with it. And I was working under your orders, wasn't I? Hadn't you told me to go over the transcript of the case? You had a hunch, and you let me play it—that's all!" But Nan would not have been human if she had not remained in the background, drinking in every detail of the dramatic triumph which she had helped Morgan achieve. The anonymous letter, by which Martha Fleming or someone associated in crime with her had attempted to blackmail the defense attorney, was still safe in Nan's handbag. The teeth of the tigress had been pulled by her own confession. A rumor was already current that Martha Fleming would plead guilty and throw herself on the mercy of the court, without subjecting the state to the expense of a trial. John Curtis Morgan, thanks to his secretary's culpable tampering with his mail, would in all probability never know that his peace of mind and the "sanctity" of his home had been threatened. "Let's get out of this, Nan," Morgan called to her across the reporters who were still clustered about him. "I've got a lot of work filled up at the office, boys. Excuse me, won't you?" Blake, the young lawyer who assisted him with routine work, had already been dispatched on red tape business connected with releasing Grace Cox's immediate release from jail, and Nan was helping Morgan pack his brief case when a blithe voice interrupted: "Hello, Morgan! Been trying to get a word with you, but the newspaper boys had me crowded out. Congratulations, old man! I'd just dropped in to see you about your staff, and was lucky enough to be here when you touched off the fireworks. Some show! I'm proud to know you, boy!" "Thanks, Bert," Morgan grinned at the amazingly good-looking young man who was slapping his back with jovial good-fellowship. "You're coming out to dinner to-night, Iris tells me. Sort of a celebration for some high-finance deal you've put over, isn't it? Congratulations right back at you!" "I'll take a back seat tonight," Bert Crawford laughed, his blue eyes beaming fondly upon his friend. "It's going to be YOUR celebration! By jove, Iris is going to be proud of you—already is, of course!" He turned to Nan, giving her the full benefit of his extraordinary magnetism and vitality. "Hello, Nan—or do I have to be formal around the boss and call you Miss Carroll? We've been carrying on a desperate affair behind your back, old man. You'd better look out or you'll find yourself minus a secretary."

"That being the case," Morgan twinkled, "I'd better be a good sport and encourage the affair. Nan's coming to dinner to-night, too—that is, if it's really my celebration, for just between you and me, Bert, it was Nan who discovered Annie Crayfish and brought her to court this morning. She refuses to accept any credit publicly, but of course you and Iris must know what I owe to her—my junior partner?" Nan flushed brilliantly. "Oh, I can't come to dinner, Mr. Morgan. Really I can't." "She's going to say she hasn't a thing to wear," Bert Crawford laughed, "and yet I saw her at the Vincent the other night in one of the swankiest evening dresses among a pretty swank lot of flappers. There with Willis Todd, rival, Morgan, breaking my heart—" "Of course you're coming, Nan," Morgan said brusquely. "It's an official order from your boss. If you've already got a date with Todd, bring him along. I'll phone Iris as soon as we get to the office, and she'll be delighted to have you."
